The Man with a Measure. 1 On the tenth day of the month beginning the twenty-fifth year of our exile, fourteen years after the city was taken, that very day the hand of the Lord came upon me and brought me 2 in divine visions to the land of Israel, where he set me down on a very high mountain. On it there seemed to be a city being built before me. 3 When he had brought me there, all at once I saw a man whose appearance was that of bronze; he was standing in the gate, holding a linen cord and a measuring rod. 4 The man said to me, "Son of man, look carefully and listen intently, and pay strict attention to all that I will show you, for you have been brought here so that I might show it to you. Tell the house of Israel all that you see." 5 [Then I saw an outer wall that completely surrounded the temple. The man was holding a measuring rod six cubits long, each cubit being a cubit and a handbreadth;* he measured the width and the height of the structure, each of which were found to be one rod.]

The East Gate.* 6 Then he went to the gate which faced the east, climbed its steps, and measured the gate's threshold, which was found to be a rod wide. 7 The cells were a rod long and a rod wide, and the pilasters between the cells measured five cubits. The threshold of the gate adjoining the vestibule of the gate toward the inside measured one rod. 8 He measured the vestibule of the gate, 9 which was eight cubits, and its pilasters, which were two cubits. The vestibule of the gate was toward the inside. 10 The cells of the east gate were three on either side, of equal size, and the pilasters on either side were also of equal size. 11 He measured the gate's entrance, which was ten cubits wide, while the width of the gate's passage itself was thirteen cubits. 12 The border before each of the cells on both sides was one cubit; the cells themselves were six cubits on either side, from opening to opening. 13 He measured the gate from the back wall of one cell to the back wall of the cell on the opposite side: the width was twenty-five cubits. 14 He measured the vestibule, which was twenty-five cubits. The pilasters adjoining the court on either side were six cubits. 15 The length of the gate from the front entrance to the front of the vestibule on the inside was fifty cubits. 16 Within the gateway on both sides there were splayed windows let into the cells [and into their pilasters]; likewise, within the vestibule on both sides there were windows. The pilasters were decorated with palms.

The Outer Court. 17 Then he brought me to the outer court,* where there were chambers and a pavement. The pavement was laid all around the court, and the chambers, which were on the pavement, were thirty in number. 18 The pavement lay alongside the gates, as wide as the gates were long; this was the lower pavement. 19 He measured the width of the court from the front of the lower gate to the front of the inner gate; it was one hundred cubits between them.

The North Gate. Then he proceeded north, 20 where, on the outer court, there was a gate facing north, whose length and width he measured. 21 Its cells, three on either side, its pilasters, and its vestibule had the same measurements as those of the first gate; it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide. 22 Its windows, the windows of its vestibule, and its palm decorations were of the same proportions as those of the gate facing the east. Seven steps led up to it, and its vestibule was toward the inside. 23 The inner court had a gate opposite the north gate, just as at the east gate; he measured one hundred cubits from one gate to the other.

The South Gate. 24 Then he led me south, to where there was a southern gate, whose cells, pilasters, and vestibule he measured; they were the same size as the others. 25 The gate and its vestibule had windows on both sides, like the other

40, 1–48, 35: This lengthy vision of the new Israel is dated (Ez 40, 1) April 28, 573 B. C. It is largely concerned with the new temple and the prescriptions to govern it, but other details of the restored commonwealth are included, forming a kind of program for the future. The literary form of the vision has been aptly termed "utopian": it is plain that the prophet did not expect a literal fulfillment of much of what he described. The passage doubtless underwent successive additions, both from the prophet and from later inspired writers.

40, 5: A cubit and a handbreadth: the ordinary cubit consisted of six handbreadths; the great cubit, of seven. In measuring the temple, a rod six great cubits long was used. The ordinary cubit was about one and a half feet, or, more exactly, 17.5 inches; the large cubit, 20.4 inches.

40, 6-16: The east gate, leading into the outer court of the temple, is described more fully than the north and south gates, which, however, were of the same dimensions. On the west side of the outer court there was a large building instead of a gate (Ez 41, 12).

windows. It was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide. 26 It was ascended by seven steps; its vestibule was toward the inside; and it was decorated with palms here and there on its pilasters. 27 The inner court also had a southern gate; from gate to gate he measured one hundred cubits.

Gates of the Inner Court.* 28 Then he brought me to the inner court by the south gate, where he measured the south gate. Its dimensions were the same as the others; 29 its cells, its pilasters, and its vestibule were the same size as the others. The gate and its vestibule had windows on both sides; and it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide. 31 But its vestibule was toward the outer court; palms were on its pilasters, and it had a stairway of eight steps. 32 Then he brought me to the gate facing the east, where he measured the gate, whose dimensions were found to be the same. 33 Its cells, its pilasters, and its vestibule were the same size as the others; the gate and its vestibule had windows on both sides; it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide. 34 But its vestibule was toward the outer court; palms were on its pilasters here and there, and it had a stairway of eight steps. 35 Then he brought me to the north gate, where he measured the dimensions 36 of its cells, its pilasters, and its vestibule, and found them the same. The gate and its vestibule had windows on both sides; it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide. 37 Its vestibule was toward the outer court; palms were on its pilasters here and there, and it had a stairway of eight steps.

Side Rooms. 38 There was a chamber opening off the vestibule of the gate, where the holocausts were rinsed. 39 In the vestibule of the gate there were two tables on either side, on which were slaughtered the sin offerings and guilt offerings. 40 Along the wall of the vestibule, but outside, near the entrance of the north gate, were two tables, and on the other side of the vestibule of the gate there were two tables. 41 There were four tables on either side of the gate [eight tables], on which the sacrifices were slaughtered. 42 There were four tables for holocausts, made of cut stone, one and a half cubits long, one and a half cubits wide, and one cubit high. 43 The ledges, a handbreadth wide, were set on the inside all around, and on them were laid the instruments with which the holocausts were slaughtered. On the tables themselves the flesh was laid. 44 He then led me to the inner court where there were two chambers, one beside the north gate, facing south, and the other beside the south gate, facing north. 45 He said to me, "This chamber which faces south is for the priests who have charge of the temple, 46 and the chamber which faces north is for the priests who have charge of the altar. These are the Sadocites,* the only Levites who may come near to minister to the Lord." 47 Then he measured the court, which was a hundred cubits long and a hundred cubits wide, a perfect square. The altar stood in front of the temple.

The Temple Building.* 48 Then he brought me into the vestibule of the temple and measured the pilasters on each side, which were five cubits. The width of the doorway was fourteen cubits, and the side walls on either side of the door measured three cubits. 49 The vestibule was twenty cubits wide and twelve cubits deep; ten steps led up to it, and there were columns by the pilasters, one on either side.

CHAPTER 41.

1 Then he brought me to the nave and measured the pilasters, which were six cubits thick on either side. 2 The width of the entrance was ten cubits, and the walls at either side of it measured five cubits each. He measured the length of the nave, which was found to be forty cubits, while its width was twenty.

3 Then he went in beyond and measured the pilasters flanking that entrance, which were two cubits; the width of the entrance was six cubits, and the walls at either side of it extended seven cubits each. 4 He measured the space beyond the nave, twenty cubits long and twenty cubits wide, and said to me, "This is the holy of holies."*

40, 28-37: The gates leading into the inner court of the temple area correspond to the gates leading into the outer court, with the exception that their vestibules are on the outer rather than the inner side.

40, 46: The Sadocites: descendants of the priestly line of Sadoc; cf 2 Kgs 15, 24-29; 3 Kgs 1, 32ff; 2, 35.

40, 48—41, 15: The description of Ezechiel's visionary temple closely follows the description of the temple of Solomon (3 Kgs 6).

40, 49—41, 4: Vestibule . . . nave . . . holy of holies: the three divisions of the temple building in progressing order of sanctity. The last is called "the inner sanctuary" in 3 Kgs 6.

5 Then he measured the wall of the temple, which was six cubits thick; the side chambers, which extended all the way around the temple, had a width of four cubits. 6 There were thirty side chambers built one above the other in three stories, and there were offsets in the outside wall of the temple that enclosed the side chambers; these served as supports, so that there were no supports in the temple wall proper. 7 There was a broad circular passageway that led upward to the side chambers, for the temple was enclosed all the way around and all the way upward; therefore the temple had a broad way running upward so that one could pass from the lowest to the middle and the highest story. 8 About the temple was a raised pavement completely enclosing it —the foundations of the side chambers— a full rod of six cubits in extent. 9 The width of the outside wall which enclosed the side chambers was five cubits. Between the side chambers of the temple 10 and the chambers of the court was an open space twenty cubits wide going all around the temple. 11 The side chambers had entrances to the open space, one entrance on the north and another on the south. The width of the wall surrounding the open space was five cubits. 12 The building* fronting the free area on the west side was seventy cubits front to back; the wall of the building was five cubits thick all around, and it measured ninety cubits from side to side. 13 He measured the temple, which was one hundred cubits long. The free area, together with the building and its walls, was a hundred cubits in length. 14 The façade of the temple, along with the free area, on the east side, was one hundred cubits wide. 15 He measured the building which lay the length of the free area and behind it, and together with its walls on both sides it was one hundred cubits.

Interior of the Temple. The inner nave and the outer vestibule 16 were paneled with precious wood all around, covered from the ground to the windows. There were splayed windows with trellises about them [facing the threshold]. 17 As high as the lintel of the door, even into the interior part of the temple as well as outside, on every wall on every side in both the inner and outer rooms were carved 18 the figures of cherubim and palmtrees: a palmtree between every two cherubim. Each cherub had two faces: 19 a man's face looking at a palmtree on one side, and a lion's face looking at a palmtree on the other; thus they were figured on every side throughout the whole temple. 20 From the ground to the lintel of the door the cherubim and palmtrees were carved on the walls. 21 The way into the nave was a square doorframe. In front of the holy place was something that looked like 22 a wooden altar,* three cubits in height, two cubits long, and two cubits wide. It had corners, and its base and sides were of wood. He said to me, "This is the table which is before the Lord." 23 The nave had a double door, and also the holy place had 24 a double door. Each door had two movable leaves; two leaves were on one doorjamb and two on the other. 25 Carved upon them [on the doors of the nave] were cherubim and palmtrees, like those carved on the walls. Before the vestibule outside was a wooden lattice. 26 There were splayed windows [and palmtrees] on both side walls of the vestibule, and the side chambers of the temple. . . .

CHAPTER 42.

Other Structures. 1 Then he led me north to the outer court, bringing me to some chambers on the north that lay across the free area and which were also across from the building. 2 Their length was a hundred cubits on the north side, and they were fifty cubits wide. 3 Across the twenty cubits of the inner court and the pavement of the outer court, there were three parallel rows of them on different levels. 4 In front of the chambers, to the inside, was a walk ten cubits broad and a wall of one cubit; but the entrances of the chambers were on the north. 5 The outermost chambers were the lowest, for the system of levels set them at a level lower than the closest chambers and those in between;* 6 for they were in three rows and had no foundations to conform with the foundations of the courts, therefore they were on a lower terrace of the ground than the closest and the middle chambers. 7 On the far side there was a wall running parallel to the chambers along the outer court; its length before these chambers was fifty cubits, [8] for the length of the chambers belonging to the outer court was fifty cubits, but along its entire length the wall measured one hundred cubits. [9] Below these chambers there was the way in from the east, so that one could enter from the outer court [10] where the wall of the court began.

41, 12: The building: the function of this structure lying behind the temple is never specified.

41, 22: A wooden altar: the altar of incense, standing in the nave at the entrance to the holy of holies.

To the south along the side of the free area and the building there were also chambers, [11] before which was a passage. These looked like the chambers to the north, just as long and just as wide, with the same exits and plan and entrances. [12] Below the chambers to the south there was an entrance at the beginning of the way which led to the back wall, by which one could enter from the east. [13] He said to me, "The north and south chambers which border on the free area are the sanctuary chambers; here the priests who draw near to the Lord shall eat the most sacred meals, and here they shall keep the most sacred offerings: cereal offerings, sin offerings, and guilt offerings; for it is a holy place.* [14] When the priests have once entered, they shall not leave the holy place for the outer court until they have left here the clothing in which they ministered, for it is holy. They shall put on other garments, and then approach the place destined for the people."

Measuring the Outer Court. [15] When he had finished measuring the inner temple area, he brought me out by way of the gate which faces east and measured all the limits of the court. [16] He measured the east side: five hundred cubits by his measuring rod. Then he turned [17] and measured the north side: five hundred cubits by the measuring rod. He turned [18] to the south and measured five hundred cubits by the measuring rod. [19] Then he turned to the west and measured five hundred cubits by the measuring rod. [20] Thus he measured it in the four directions, five hundred cubits long and five hundred cubits wide. It was surrounded by a wall, to separate the sacred from the profane.

42, 13: The function of these chambers is explained again in Ez 46, 19f.

43, 8: They placed their threshold against my threshold: the pre-exilic temple and the royal palace belonged to the same complex of buildings, and this physical proximity was reflected in the use made of the temple by kings like Achaz and Manasse, who treated it as their private chapel for pagan rites. In the new Israel the temple is free, even physically, from civil jurisdiction; cf Ez 45, 7f.

43, 13: The altar: of holocausts, standing in the inner court of the temple area; cf Ez 40, 47.

Restoration of the Temple

CHAPTER 43.

The Return of the Lord. [1] Then he led me to the gate which faces the east, [2] and there I saw the glory of the God of Israel coming from the east. I heard a sound like the roaring of many waters, and the earth shone with his glory. [3] v The vision was like that which I had seen when he came to destroy the city, and like that which I had seen by the river Chobar. I fell prone [4] as the glory of the Lord entered the temple by way of the gate which faces the east, [5] but spirit lifted me up and brought me to the inner court. And I saw that the temple was filled with the glory of the Lord. [6] Then I heard someone speaking to me from the temple, while the man stood beside me. [7] The voice said to me: Son of man, this is where my throne shall be, this is where I will set the soles of my feet; here I will dwell among the Israelites forever. Never again shall they and their kings profane my holy name with their harlotries and with the corpses of their kings [their high places]. [8] When they placed their threshold against my threshold* and their doorpost next to mine, so that only a wall was between us, they profaned my holy name by their abominable deeds; therefore I consumed them in my wrath. [9] From now on they shall put far from me their harlotry and the corpses of their kings, and I will dwell in their midst forever.

The Law of the Temple. [10] As for you, son of man, describe the temple to the house of Israel [that they may be ashamed of their sins], both its measurements and its design; [11] [and if they are ashamed of all that they have done,] make known to them the form and design of the temple, its exits and entrances, all its statutes and laws; write these down for them to see, that they may carefully observe all its laws and statutes. [12] This is the law of the temple: its whole surrounding area on the mountain top shall be most sacred.

The Altar. [13] These were the measurements of the altar* in cubits of one cubit plus a handbreadth. Its base was one cubit high and one cubit deep, with a rim around its edge of one span. The height of the altar itself was as follows: [14] from its base at the bottom up to the lower ledge it was two cubits high, and this ledge was one cubit deep; from the lower to the upper ledge it was four cubits high, and this ledge also was one cubit deep; 15 the hearth of the altar was four cubits high, and extending from the top of the hearth were the four horns of the altar. 16 The hearth was a square: twelve cubits long and twelve cubits wide. 17 The upper ledge was also a square: fourteen cubits long and fourteen cubits wide. The lower ledge, likewise a square, was sixteen cubits long and sixteen cubits wide, with a half-cubit rim surrounding it. And there was a base of one cubit all around. The steps of the altar face the east.

18 Then he said to me: Son of man, thus says the Lord God: These are the statutes for the altar when it is set up for the offering of holocausts upon it and for the sprinkling of blood against it. 19 Give a young bull as a sin offering to the priests, the Levites who are of the line of Sadoc, who draw near me to minister to me, says the Lord God. 20 Take some of its blood and put it on the four horns of the altar, and on the four corners of the ledge, and on the rim all around. Thus you shall purify it and make atonement for it. 21 Then take the bull of the sin offering, which is to be burnt in a designated part of the temple, outside the sanctuary. 22 On the second day present an unblemished he-goat as a sin offering, to purify the altar as was done with the bull. 23 When you have finished the purification, bring an unblemished young bull and an unblemished ram from the flock, 24 and present them before the Lord; the priests shall strew salt on them and offer them to the Lord as holocausts. 25 Daily for seven days you shall offer a he-goat as a sin offering, and a young bull and a ram from the flock, all unblemished, shall be offered 26 for seven days. Thus atonement shall be made for the altar, and it shall be purified and dedicated. 27 And when these days are over, from the eighth day on, the priests shall offer your holocausts and peace offerings on the altar. Then I will accept you, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 44.

The Closed Gate. 1 Then he brought me back to the outer gate of the sanctuary, facing the east; but it was closed. 2 He said to me: This gate is to remain closed; it is not to be opened for anyone to enter by it; since the Lord, the God of Israel, has entered by it, it shall remain closed. 3 Only the prince may sit down in it to eat his meal in the presence of the Lord. He must enter by way of the vestibule of the gate, and leave by the same way.*

The New Law

Admission to the Temple. 4 Then he brought me by way of the north gate to the façade of the temple, and when I looked I saw the glory of the Lord filling the Lord's temple, and I fell prone. 5 Then he said to me: Son of man, pay strict attention, look carefully, and listen intently to all that I will tell you about the statutes and laws of the Lord's temple; be attentive in regard to those who are to be admitted to the temple and all those who are to be excluded from the sanctuary. 6 Say to that rebellious house, the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: Enough of all these abominations of yours, O house of Israel! 7 You have admitted foreigners, uncircumcised both in heart and flesh, to my sanctuary to profane it when you offered me food, fat, and blood;* thus you have broken my covenant by all your abominations. 8 Instead of caring for the service of my temple, you have appointed such as these to serve me in my sanctuary in your stead. 9 Thus says the Lord God: No foreigners, uncircumcised in heart and in flesh, shall ever enter my sanctuary; none of the foreigners who live among the Israelites.

Levites.* 10 But as for the Levites who departed from me when Israel strayed from me to pursue their idols, they shall bear the consequences of their sin. 11 They shall serve in my sanctuary as gatekeepers and temple servants; they shall slaughter the holocausts and the sacrifices for the people, and they shall stand before the people to minister for them. 12 Because they used to minister for them before their idols, and became an occasion of sin to the house of Israel, therefore I have sworn an oath against them, says the Lord God: they shall bear the consequences of their sin. 13 They shall no longer draw near me to serve as my priests, nor shall they touch any of my sacred things, or the most sacred things. Thus they shall bear their disgrace because of all their abominable deeds. 14 But I will set them to the service of the temple, for all its work and for everything that is to be done in it.

44, 3: The prince stands at the eastern gate of the inner court while his sacrifice is offered up (Ez 46, 2); he then goes to the vestibule of the outer court, there to partake of his sacrificial meal. The closed outer gate on the eastern side signifies that the Lord has entered the temple permanently, not to depart again.

44, 7ff: In the pre-exilic temple various menial services had been performed by foreigners; cf Jos 9, 22-27. In the new temple the Levites will perform these services (vv 10-14).

44, 10-14: Levites other than the Sadocite priesthood of Jerusalem had performed priestly functions at the various sanctuaries and high places in Israel and Juda, where the worship of the Lord had often been corrupted with pagan elements. The demotion of the Levites to menial service in the temple was enforced in the actual restoration after the Exile, and explains why relatively few Levites were willing to return; cf 1 Esd 8, 15ff.

Priests. 15 As for the Levitical priests, however, the Sadocites who cared for my sanctuary when the Israelites strayed from me, they shall draw near me to minister to me, and they shall stand before me to offer me fat and blood, says the Lord God. 16 It is they who shall enter my sanctuary, they who shall approach my table to minister to me, and they who shall carry out my service. 17 Whenever they enter the gates of the inner court, they shall wear linen garments; they shall not put on anything woolen when they minister at the gates of the inner court or within the temple. 18 w They shall have linen turbans on their heads and linen drawers on their loins; they shall not gird themselves with anything that causes sweat. 19 x When they are to go out to the people in the outer court, they shall take off the garments in which they ministered and leave them in the chambers of the sanctuary, putting on other garments; thus they will not transmit holiness to the people* with their garments.

20 y They shall not shave their heads nor let their hair hang loose, but they shall keep their hair carefully trimmed. 21 z No priest shall drink wine when he is to enter the inner court. 22 a They shall not take for their wives either widows or divorced women, but only virgins of the race of Israel; however, they may marry women who are the widows of priests. 23 They shall teach my people to distinguish between the sacred and the profane, and make known to them the difference between the clean and the unclean. 24 b In capital cases they shall stand as judges, judging them according to my decrees. They shall observe my laws and statutes on all my festivals, and keep my Sabbaths holy.

25 c They shall not make themselves unclean by coming near any dead person, unless it be their father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or maiden sister; for these they may make themselves unclean. 26 After a priest has been cleansed, he must wait an additional seven days, 27 and on the day he enters the inner court to minister in the sanctuary, he shall present his sin offering, says the Lord God. 28 d They shall have no inheritance, for I am their inheritance; you shall give them no property in Israel, for I am their property. 29 e They shall eat the cereal offering, the sin offering, and the guilt offering; whatever is under the ban* in Israel shall be theirs. 30 f All the choicest first fruits of every kind, and all the best of your offerings of every kind, shall belong to the priests; likewise the best of your dough you shall give to the priests to bring a blessing down upon your house. 31 g The priests shall not eat anything, whether flesh or fowl, that has died of itself or has been killed by wild beasts.

The Sacred Tract. 1 When you apportion the land into inheritances, you shall set apart a sacred tract of land for the Lord, twenty-five thousand cubits long and twenty thousand wide; its whole area shall be sacred. 2 Of this land a square plot, five hundred by five hundred cubits, surrounded by a free space of fifty cubits, shall be assigned to the sanctuary. 3 Also from this sector measure off a strip, twenty-five thousand cubits long and ten thousand wide, within which shall be the sanctuary, the holy of holies. 4 This shall be the sacred part of the land belonging to the priests, the ministers of the sanctuary, who draw near to minister to the Lord; it shall be a place for their homes and pasture land for their cattle. 5 Also there shall be a strip twenty-five thousand cubits long and ten thousand wide as property for the Levites, the ministers of the temple, that they may have cities to live in. 6 As property of the City you shall designate a strip five thousand cubits wide and twenty-five thousand long, parallel to the sacred tract; this shall belong to the whole house of Israel. 7 The prince shall have a section bordering on both sides of the combined sacred tract and City property, extending westward on the western side and eastward on the eastern side, corresponding in length to one of the tribal portions from the western boundary to the eastern boundary 8 of the land. This shall be his property in Israel, so that the princes of Israel will no longer oppress my people, but will leave the land to the house of Israel according to their tribes.

Weights and Measures.* 9 Thus says the Lord God: Enough, you princes of Israel! Put away violence and oppression, and do what is right and just! Stop evicting my people! says the Lord God. 10 h You shall have honest scales, an honest epha, and an honest bath. 11 The epha and the bath shall be of the same size: the bath equal to a tenth of a homor, and the epha equal to a tenth of a homor; by the homor they shall be determined. 12 i The shekel shall be twenty geras. Twenty shekels, twenty-five shekels, plus fifteen shekels shall be your mina.

Offerings. 13 These are the offerings you shall make: one sixth of an epha from each homor of wheat, and one sixth of an epha from each homor of barley. 14 The regulation for oil: for every bath of oil, a tenth of a bath, computed by the kor* of ten baths [or a homor, for ten baths make a homor]. 15 One sheep from the flock for every two hundred from the pasturage of Israel, for sacrifice—holocausts and peace offerings and atonement sacrifices, says the Lord God. 16 All the people of the land shall be bound to this offering [for the prince in Israel]. 17 It shall be the duty of the prince to provide the holocausts, cereal offerings, and libations on the feasts, new moons, and Sabbaths, on all the festivals of the house of Israel. He shall offer the sin offerings, cereal offerings, holocausts, and peace offerings, to make atonement on behalf of the house of Israel.

The Passover. 18 Thus says the Lord God: On the first day of the first month you shall use an unblemished young bull as a sacrifice to purify the sanctuary. 19 Then the priest shall take some of the blood from the sin offering and put it on the doorposts of the temple, on the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and on the doorposts of the gates of the inner court. 20 You shall repeat this on the first day of the seventh month for those who have sinned through inadvertence or ignorance; thus you shall make atonement for the temple. 21 j On the fourteenth day of the first month you shall observe the feast of the Passover; for seven days unleavened bread is to be eaten. 22 On that day the prince shall offer on his own behalf, and on behalf of all the people of the land, a bull as a sin offering. 23 On each of the seven days of the feast he shall offer as a holocaust to the Lord seven bulls and seven rams without blemish, and as a sin offering he shall offer one male goat each day. 24 As a cereal offering he shall offer one epha for each bull and one epha for each ram; and he shall offer one hin* of oil for each epha.

The Feast of Booths. 25 On the fifteenth day of the seventh month, the feast day, and for seven days, he shall perform the same rites, making the same sin offerings, the same holocausts, the same cereal offerings and offerings of oil.

CHAPTER 46.

Sabbaths. 1 Thus says the Lord God: The gate toward the east of the inner court shall remain closed throughout the six working days, but on the Sabbath and on the day of the new moon it shall be open. 2 The prince shall enter from outside by way of the vestibule of the gate and remain standing at the doorpost of the gate; then while the priests offer his holocausts and peace offerings, he shall worship at the threshold of the gate and then leave; the gate shall not be closed until evening. 3 The people of the land shall worship before the Lord at the door

Epha: a dry measure; bath: a liquid measure; here they are standardized according to the homor (a dry measure of about 10 bushels, or 80 gallons). In v 12 reference is made to the change in value of the mina: before the Exile it was valued at 50 shekels, but afterward, in imitation of Babylonian practice, the 60-shekel mina was adopted. The shekel was a unit of weight slightly less than half an ounce. As a monetary unit, the value obviously differed greatly, depending on whether it was a gold or a silver shekel.

of this gate on the Sabbaths and new moons. 4 k The holocausts which the prince presents to the Lord on the Sabbath shall consist of six unblemished lambs and an unblemished ram, 5 together with a cereal offering of one epha for the ram, whatever he pleases for the lambs, and a hin of oil for each epha. 6 l On the day of the new moon he shall provide an unblemished young bull, also six lambs and a ram without blemish, 7 with a cereal offering of one epha for the bull and one for the ram, for the lambs as much as he has at hand, and for each epha a hin of oil.

Ritual Laws. 8 The prince shall always enter and depart by the vestibule of the gate. 9 m When the people of the land enter the presence of the Lord to worship on the festivals, if they enter by the north gate they shall leave by the south gate, and if they enter by the south gate they shall leave by the north gate; no one shall return by the gate through which he has entered, but he shall leave by the opposite gate. 10 The prince shall be in their midst when they enter, and he shall also leave with them. 11 On the feasts and festivals the cereal offering shall be an epha for a bull, an epha for a ram, but for the lambs as much as one pleases, and a hin of oil with each epha. 12 When the prince makes a freewill offering to the Lord, whether holocausts or peace offerings, the eastern gate shall be opened for him, and he shall offer his holocausts or his peace offerings as on the Sabbath; then he shall leave, and the gate shall be closed after his departure. 13 n He shall offer as a daily holocaust to the Lord an unblemished yearling lamb; this he shall offer every morning. 14 With it every morning he shall provide as a cereal offering one sixth of an epha, with a third of a hin of oil to moisten the fine flour. This cereal offering to the Lord is mandatory with the established holocaust. 15 o The lamb, the cereal offering, and the oil are to be offered every morning as an established holocaust.

The Prince and the Land. 16 Thus says the Lord God: If the prince makes a gift of part of his inheritance to any of his sons, it shall belong to his sons; that property is theirs by inheritance. 17 But if he makes a gift of part of his inheritance to one of his servants, it shall belong to the latter only until the year of release,* when it shall revert to the prince. Only the inheritance given to his sons is permanent. 18 The prince shall not seize any part of the inheritance of the people by evicting them from their property. He shall provide an inheritance for his sons from his own property, so that none of my people will be driven from their property.

The Temple Kitchens. 19 Then he brought me by the entrance which is on the side of the gate to the chambers [of the sanctuary, reserved to the priests] which face the north. There, at their west end, I saw a place, 20 concerning which he said to me, "Here the priests cook the guilt offerings and the sin offerings, and bake the cereal offerings, so that they do not have to take them into the outer court at the risk of transmitting holiness to the people." 21 Then he led me into the outer court and had me pass around the four corners of the court, and I saw that in each corner there was another court: 22 in the four corners of the court, minor courts, forty cubits long and thirty wide, all four of them the same size. 23 A wall of stones surrounded each of the four, and hearths were built beneath the stones all the way around. 24 He said to me, "These are the kitchens where the temple ministers cook the sacrifices of the people."

The Wonderful Stream.* 1 Then he brought me back to the entrance of the temple, and I saw water flowing out from beneath the threshold of the temple toward the east, for the façade of the temple was toward the east; the water flowed down from the southern side of the temple, south of the altar. p 2 He led me outside by the north gate, and around to the outer gate facing the east, where I saw water trickling from the southern side. 3 Then when he had walked off to the east with a measuring cord in his hand, he measured off a thousand cubits and had me wade through the water, which was ankle-deep. 4 He measured off another thousand and once more had me wade through the water, which was now knee-deep. Again he measured off a thousand and had me wade; the water was up to my waist. [5] Once more he measured off a thousand, but there was now a river through which I could not wade; for the water had risen so high it had become a river that could not be crossed except by swimming. [6] He asked me, "Have you seen this, son of man?" Then he brought me to the bank of the river, where he had me sit. [7] Along the bank of the river I saw very many trees on both sides. [8] He said to me, "This water flows into the eastern district down upon the Araba, and empties into the sea, the salt waters, which it makes fresh. [9] Wherever the river flows, every sort of living creature that can multiply shall live, and there shall be abundant fish, for wherever this water comes the sea shall be made fresh. [10] Fishermen shall be standing along it from En-gaddi to En-gallim,* spreading their nets there. Its kinds of fish shall be like those of the Great Sea, very numerous. [11] Only its marshes and swamps shall not be made fresh; they shall be left for salt. [12] Along both banks of the river, fruit trees of every kind shall grow; their leaves shall not fade, nor their fruit fail. Every month they shall bear fresh fruit, for they shall be watered by the flow from the sanctuary. Their fruit shall serve for food, and their leaves for medicine."

Boundaries of the Land.* [13] Thus says the Lord God: These are the boundaries within which you shall apportion the land among the twelve tribes of Israel [Joseph having two portions]. [14] All of you shall have a like portion in this land which I swore to give to your fathers, that it might fall to you as your inheritance. [15] q This is the boundary of the land on the north side: from the Great Sea in the direction of Hethalon, past Labo of Hamath, to Sedada, [16] Berotha, and Sabarim, along the frontiers of Hamath and Damascus, to Hasar-Enon which is on the border of the Hauran. [17] Thus the border shall extend from the sea to Hasar-Enon, with the frontier of Hamath and Damascus to the north. This is the northern boundary. [18] The eastern boundary: between the Hauran – toward Damascus – and Galaad on the one side, and the land of Israel on the other side, the Jordan shall form the boundary down to the eastern sea as far as Thamar. This is the eastern boundary. [19] The southern boundary: from Thamar to the waters of Meribath-Cades, thence to the Wadi of Egypt, and on to the Great Sea. This is the southern boundary. [20] The western boundary: the Great Sea forms the boundary up to a point parallel to Labo of Hamath. This is the western boundary.

The Northern Portions. [21] You shall distribute this land among yourselves according to the tribes of Israel. [22] r You shall allot it as inheritances for yourselves and for the aliens resident in your midst who have bred children among you. The latter shall be to you like native Israelites; along with you they shall receive inheritances among the tribes of Israel. [23] In whatever tribe the alien may be resident, there you shall assign him his inheritance, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 48.

[1] This is the list* of the tribes.s Dan: at the northern extremity, adjoining Hamath, all along from the approaches to Hethalon through Labo of Hamath to Hasar-Enon, on the northerly border with Damascus, with his possession reaching from the eastern to the western boundary. [2] Aser: on the frontier of Dan, from the eastern to the western boundary. Nepthali: [3] on the frontier of Aser, from the eastern to the western boundary. Nephnasse: on the frontier of Nephthali, from the eastern to the western boundary. [5] Ephraim: on the frontier of Manasse, from the eastern to the western boundary. [6] Ruben: on the frontier of Ephraim, from the eastern to the western boundary. [7] Juda: on the frontier of Ruben, from the eastern to the western boundary.

The Sacred Tract. [8] On the frontier of Juda, from the eastern to the western boundary there shall be the tract which you shall set apart, twenty-five thousand cubits from north to south, and as wide as one of the tribal portions from the eastern to the western boundary. In the center of the tract shall be the sanctuary. 9 The tract that you set aside for the Lord shall be twenty-five thousand cubits across by twenty thousand north and south. 10 In this sacred tract the priests shall have twenty-five thousand cubits on the north, ten thousand on the west, ten thousand on the east, and twenty-five thousand on the south; and the sanctuary of the Lord shall be in its center. 11 The consecrated priests, the Sadocites, who fulfilled my service and did not stray along with the Israelites as the Levites did, 12 shall have within this tract of land their own most sacred domain, next to the territory of the Levites. 13 The Levites shall have a territory corresponding to that of the priests, twenty-five thousand cubits by ten thousand. The whole tract shall be twenty-five thousand cubits across and twenty thousand north and south. 14 They may not sell or exchange or alienate this, the best part of the land, for it is sacred to the Lord. 15 The remaining five thousand cubits along the twenty-five-thousand-cubit line are profane land, assigned to the City for dwellings and pasture; the City shall be at their center. 16 These are the dimensions of the City: the north side, forty-five hundred cubits; the south side, forty-five hundred cubits; the east side, forty-five hundred cubits; and the west side, forty-five hundred cubits. 17 The pasture lands of the City shall extend north two hundred and fifty cubits, south two hundred and fifty cubits, east two hundred and fifty cubits, and west two hundred and fifty cubits. 18 There shall remain an area along the sacred tract, ten thousand cubits to the east and ten thousand to the west, whose produce shall provide food for the workers of the City. 19 The workers in the City shall be taken from all the tribes of Israel. 20 The entire tract shall be twenty-five thousand by twenty-five thousand cubits; as a perfect square you shall set apart the sacred tract together with the City property.

21 The remainder shall belong to the prince: the land on both sides of the sacred tract and the City property, extending from along the twenty-five-thousand-cubit line eastward to the eastern boundary, and westward from along the twenty-five-thousand-cubit line to the western boundary, a territory parallel with the tribal portions for the prince. The sacred tract and the sanctuary of the temple shall be in the middle. 22 Thus, except for the property of the Levites and the City property, which lie in the midst of the prince's property, the territory between the portions of Juda and of Benjamin shall belong to the prince.

The Southern Portions. 23 These are the remaining tribes. Benjamin: from the eastern to the western boundary. 24 Simeon: on the frontier of Benjamin, from the eastern to the western boundary. 25 Issachar: on the frontier of Simeon, from the eastern to the western boundary. 26 Zabulon: on the frontier of Issachar, from the eastern to the western boundary. 27 Gad: on the frontier of Zabulon, from the eastern to the western boundary. 28 Along the frontier of Gad shall be the southern boundary which shall extend from Thamar to the waters of Meribath-Cades, and from there to the Wadi of Egypt, and on to the Great Sea. 29 Such is the land which you shall apportion as inheritances among the tribes of Israel, and these are their portions, says the Lord God.

The Gates of the City. These are the exits of the City, 30 the gates of which are named after the tribes of Israel. On the north side, measuring forty-five hundred cubits, 31 there shall be three gates: the gate of Ruben, the gate of Juda, and the gate of Levi. 32 On the east side, measuring forty-five hundred cubits, there shall be three gates: the gate of Joseph, the gate of Benjamin, and the gate of Dan. 33 On the south side, measuring forty-five hundred cubits, there shall be three gates: the gate of Simeon, the gate of Issachar, and the gate of Zabulon. 34 On the west side, measuring forty-five hundred cubits, there shall be three gates: the gate of Gad, the gate of Aser, and the gate of Nephthali. 35 The perimeter of the City is eighteen thousand cubits. The name of the City shall henceforth be "The Lord is here."

THE BOOK OF DANIEL

This Book takes its name, not from the author, who is actually unknown, but from its hero, a young Jew taken early to Babylon, where he lived at least until 538 B. C. Strictly speaking, the book does not belong to the prophetic writings but rather to a distinctive type of literature known as "apocalyptic," of which it is an early specimen. Apocalyptic writing enjoyed its greatest popularity from 200 B. C. to 100 A. D., a time of distress and persecution for Jews, and later, for Christians. Though subsequent in time to the prophetic, apocalyptic literature has its roots in the teaching of the prophets, who often pointed ahead to the Day of the Lord, the consummation of history. For both prophet and apocalyptist Yahweh was the Lord of history, and He would ultimately vindicate His people.

This work was composed during the bitter persecution carried on by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (167-164) and was written to strengthen and comfort the Jewish people in their ordeal.

The Book contains stories originating in and transmitted by popular tradition which tell of the trials and triumphs of the wise Daniel and his three companions. The moral is that men of faith can resist temptation and conquer adversity. The characters are not purely legendary but rest on sound historical tradition. What is more important than the question of historicity, and closer to the intention of the author, is the fact that a persecuted Jew of the second century B. C. would quickly see the application of these stories to his own plight.

There follows a series of visions promising deliverance and glory to the Jews in the days to come. The great nations of the ancient world have risen in vain against Yahweh; His kingdom shall overthrow existing powers and last forever. Under this apocalyptic imagery are contained some of the best elements of prophetic teaching: the insistence on right conduct, the divine control over events, the certainty that the kingdom of God will ultimately triumph. The arrival of the kingdom is a central theme of the Synoptic Gospels, and Jesus, in calling Himself the "Son of Man," reminds us that He fulfills the destiny of this mysterious figure in the seventh chapter of Daniel.

The added episodes of Susanna, Bel, and the Dragon, found only in the Greek version, are edifying short stories with a didactic purpose.

These three sections constitute the divisions of the Book of Daniel: I. Daniel and the Kings of Babylon (1, 1–6, 29). II. Daniel's Visions (7, 1–12, 13). III. Appendix (13, 1–14, 42).

I: DANIEL AND THE KINGS OF BABYLON

CHAPTER 1.

The Food Test. 1 In the third year of the reign of Joakim, king of Juda, King Nabuchodonosor of Babylon came and laid siege to Jerusalem.[a] 2[b] The Lord handed over to him Joakim, king of Juda, and some of the vessels of the temple of God, which he carried off to the land of Senaar,* and placed in the temple treasury of his god.

3 The king told Asphenaz, his chief chamberlain, to bring in some of the Israelites of royal blood and of the nobility, 4 young men without any defect, handsome, intelligent and wise, quick to learn, and prudent in judgment, such as could take their place in the king's palace; they were to be taught the language and literature of the Chaldeans; 5 after three years' training they were to enter the king's service. The king allotted them a daily portion of food and wine from the royal table. 6 Among these were men of Juda: Daniel, Anania, Misael, and Azaria. 7 The chief chamberlain changed their names: Daniel to Baltassar, Anania to Sidrach, Misael to Misach, and Azaria to Abdenago.*

8 But Daniel was resolved not to defile himself with the king's food or wine; so he begged the chief chamberlain to spare him this defilement.* 9 Though God had given Daniel the favor and sympathy of the chief chamberlain, 10 he nevertheless said to Daniel, "I am afraid of my lord the king; it is he who allotted your food and drink. If he sees that you look wretched by comparison with the other young men of your age, you will endanger my life with the king." [11] Then Daniel said to the steward whom the chief chamberlain had put in charge of Daniel, Anania, Misael, and Azaria, [12] "Please test your servants for ten days. Give us vegetables to eat and water to drink. [13] Then see how we look in comparison with the other young men who eat from the royal table, and treat your servants according to what you see." [14] He acceded to this request, and tested them for ten days; [15] after ten days they looked healthier and better fed than any of the young men who ate from the royal table. [16] So the steward continued to take away the food and wine they were to receive, and gave them vegetables.

1, 2: Senaar: ancient name for Babylonia, a deliberate archaism in this text; cf Gn 10, 10; 11, 2.

1, 7: The young men are given Babylonian names as a sign of their adoption by the king.

1, 8: This defilement: the bread, meat, and wine of the Gentiles, which were unclean (Os 9, 3; Tb 1, 12; Jdt 10, 5; 12, 1f) because they might have been offered to idols or prepared over firewood taken from a sacred grove. Only raw vegetables and water were safe from this danger (v 12).

[17] To these four young men God gave knowledge and proficiency in all literature and science, and to Daniel the understanding of all visions and dreams. [18] At the end of the time the king had specified for their preparation, the chief chamberlain brought them before Nabuchodonosor. [19] When the king had spoken with all of them, none was found equal to Daniel, Anania, Misael, and Azaria; and so they entered the king's service. [20] In any question of wisdom or prudence which the king put to them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters in his kingdom. [21] [c] Daniel remained there until the first year of King Cyrus.*

CHAPTER 2.

The King's Dream.* [1] In the second year of his reign, King Nabuchodonosor had a dream which left his spirit no rest and robbed him of his sleep. [2] So he ordered that the magicians, enchanters, sorcerers, and Chaldeans* be summoned to interpret the dream for him. When they came and presented themselves to the king, [3] he said to them, "I had a dream which will leave my spirit no rest until I know what it means." [4] The Chaldeans answered the king [Aramaic]:* "O king, live forever! Tell your servants the dream and we will give its meaning." [5] The king answered the Chaldeans, "This is what I have decided: unless you tell me the dream and its meaning, you shall be cut to pieces and your houses destroyed. [6] But if you tell me the dream and its meaning, you shall receive from me gifts and presents and great honors. Now tell me the dream and its meaning."

Again they answered, "Let the king tell his servants the dream and we will give its meaning." [8] But the king replied: "I know for certain that you are bargaining for time, since you know what I have decided. [9] If you do not tell me the dream, there can be but one decree for you. You have framed a false and deceitful interpretation to present me with till the crisis is past. Tell me the dream, therefore, that I may be sure that you can also give its correct interpretation."

[10] The Chaldeans answered the king: "There is not a man on earth who can do what you ask, O king; never has any king, however great and mighty, asked such a thing of any magician, enchanter, or Chaldean. [11] What you demand, O king, is too difficult; there is no one who can tell it to the king except the gods who do not dwell among men." [12] At this the king became violently angry and ordered all the wise men of Babylon to be put to death. [13] When the decree was issued that the wise men should be slain, Daniel and his companions were also sought out.

[14] Then Daniel prudently took counsel with Arioch, the captain of the king's guard, who had set out to kill the wise men of Babylon: [15] "O officer of the king," he asked, "what is the reason for this harsh order from the king?" When Arioch told him, [16] Daniel went and asked for time from the king, that he might give him the interpretation.

[17] Daniel went home and informed his companions Anania, Misael, and Azaria, [18] that they might implore the mercy of the God of heaven in regard to this mystery, so that Daniel and his companions might not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon. [19] During the night the mystery was revealed to Daniel in a vision, and he blessed the God of heaven: [20] "Blessed be the name of God forever

c Dn 6, 28.

1, 21: The first year of King Cyrus: the year of this Persian king's conquest of Babylon, 539/8 B. C.

2, 1-49: The chronology of v 1 is in conflict with that of Dn 1, 5. 18, and in v 25 Daniel appears to be introduced to the king for the first time. It seems that the story of this chapter was originally entirely independent of chapter 1, and later retouched slightly to fit its present setting.

2, 2: Chaldeans: here probably astrologers, who were so associated with the Chaldeans in the Hebrew mind that in the later language they are sometimes simply called by the name of that people.

2, 4: Aramaic: from Dn 2, 4 to 7, 28 the text of Daniel is in Aramaic, not Hebrew, as indicated by this gloss.

and ever, for wisdom and power are his.
21 He causes the changes of the times and seasons, makes kings and unmakes them.
He gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to those who understand. 22 d He reveals deep and hidden things and knows what is in the darkness, for the light dwells with him. 23 To you, O God of my fathers, I give thanks and praise, because you have given me wisdom and power. Now you have shown me what we asked of you, you have made known to us the king's dream."

24 So Daniel went to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon, and said to him, "Do not put the wise men of Babylon to death.
Bring me before the king, and I will tell him the interpretation of the dream."
Arioch quickly brought Daniel to the king and said, 25 "I have found a man among the Judean captives who can give the interpretation to the king." 26 The king asked Daniel, whose name was Baltassar,
"Can you tell me the dream that I had,
and its meaning?" 27 In the king's presence Daniel made this reply:

"The mystery about which the king has inquired, the wise men, enchanters, magicians, and astrologers could not explain to the king. 28 But there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries, and he has shown King Nabuchodonosor what is to happen in days to come; this was the dream you saw as you lay in bed. 29 To you in your bed there came thoughts about what should happen in the future, and he who reveals mysteries showed you what is to be. 30 To me also this mystery has been revealed; not that I am wiser than any other living person, but in order that its meaning may be made known to the king, that you may understand the thoughts in your own mind.

31 "In your vision, O king, you saw a statue, very large and exceedingly bright, terrifying in appearance as it stood before you. 32 The head of the statue was pure gold, its chest and arms were silver, its belly and thighs bronze, 33 the legs iron, its feet partly iron and partly tile.*
34 While you looked at the statue, a stone which was hewn from a mountain without a hand being put to it, struck its iron and tile feet, breaking them in pieces. 35
The iron, tile, bronze, silver, and gold all crumbled at once, fine as the chaff on the threshing floor in summer, and the wind blew them away without leaving a trace. But the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.

36 *"This was the dream; the interpretation we shall also give in the king's presence. 37 You, O king, are the king of kings; to you the God of heaven has given dominion and strength, power and glory; 38 men, wild beasts, and birds of the air, wherever they may dwell, he has handed over to you, making you ruler over them all; you are the head of gold.
39 Another kingdom shall take your place, inferior to yours, then a third kingdom, of bronze, which shall rule over the whole earth. 40 There shall be a fourth kingdom, strong as iron; it shall break in pieces and subdue all these others, just as iron breaks in pieces and crushes everything else. 41
The feet and toes you saw, partly of potters' tile and partly of iron, mean that it shall be a divided kingdom, but yet have some of the hardness of iron. As you saw the iron mixed with clay tile, 42 and the toes partly iron and partly tile, the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly fragile. 43 The iron mixed with clay tile means that they shall seal their alliances by intermarriage, but they shall not stay united, any more than iron mixes with clay. 44 e In the lifetime of those kings the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed or delivered up to another people; rather, it shall break in pieces all these kingdoms and put an end to them, and it shall stand forever.
45 That is the meaning of the stone you saw hewn from the mountain without a hand being put to it, which broke in pieces the tile, iron, bronze, silver, and gold. The great God has revealed to the king what shall be in the future; this is exactly what you dreamed, and its meaning is sure."

46 Then King Nabuchodonosor fell

2, 33: Partly tile: terra cotta tile was much in use among the Babylonians for decoration and for actual construction.

2, 36-45: The four successive kingdoms in this apocalyptic perspective are the Babylonian (gold), the Median (silver), the Persian (bronze), and the Hellenistic (iron). The last, after Alexander's death, was divided among his generals (vv 41f). The two resulting kingdoms, which most affected the Jews, were the dynasty of the Ptolemies in Egypt and that of the Seleucids in Syria, who tried in vain, by war and through intermarriage, to restore the unity of Alexander's empire (v 43). The stone hewn from the mountain is the Messianic kingdom awaited by the Jews (vv 44f). Our Lord made this image personal to Himself; cf Lk 20, 17f.

down and worshiped Daniel and ordered sacrifice and incense offered to him. 47 To Daniel the king said, "Truly your God is the God of gods and Lord of kings and a revealer of mysteries; that is why you were able to reveal this mystery." 48 He advanced Daniel to a high post, gave him many generous presents, made him ruler of the whole province of Babylon and chief prefect over all the wise men of Babylon. 49 At Daniel's request the king made Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago administrators of the province of Babylon, while David himself remained at the king's court.

CHAPTER 3.

The Fiery Furnace. 1 King Nabuchodonosor had a golden statue made, sixty cubits high and six cubits wide, which he set up in the plain of Dura* in the province of Babylon. 2 He then ordered the satraps,* prefects, and governors, the counselors, treasurers, judges, magistrates and all the officials of the provinces to be summoned to the dedication of the statue which he had set up. 3 The satraps, prefects, and governors, the counselors, treasurers, judges, and magistrates and all the officials of the provinces, all these came together for the dedication and stood before the statue which King Nabuchodonosor had set up. 4 A herald cried out: "Nations and peoples of every language, when you hear the sound of the trumpet, flute, lyre, harp, psaltery,* bagpipe, and all the other musical instruments, 5 you are ordered to fall down and worship the golden statue which King Nabuchodonosor has set up. 6 Whoever does not fall down and worship shall be instantly cast into a white-hot furnace."* 7 Therefore, as soon as they heard the sound of the trumpet, flute, lyre, harp, psaltery, bagpipe, and all the other musical instruments, the nations and peoples of every language all fell down and worshiped the golden statue which King Nabuchodonosor had set up.

8 At that point, some of the Chaldeans came and accused the Jews 9 to King Nabuchodonosor: "O king, live forever! 10 O king, you issued a decree that everyone who heard the sound of the trumpet, flute, lyre, harp, psaltery, bagpipe, and all the other musical instruments should fall down and worship the golden statue; 11 whoever did not was to be cast into a white-hot furnace. 12 There are certain Jews whom you have made administrators of the province of Babylon: Sidrach, Misach, Abdenago; these men, O king, have paid no attention to you; they will not serve your god or worship the golden statue which you set up."

13 Nabuchodonosor flew into a rage and sent for Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, who were promptly brought before the king. 14 King Nabuchodonosor questioned them: "Is it true, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, that you will not serve my god, or worship the golden statue that I set up? 15 Be ready now to fall down and worship the statue I had made, whenever you hear the sound of the trumpet, flute, lyre, harp, psaltery, bagpipe, and all the other musical instruments; otherwise, you shall be instantly cast into the white-hot furnace; and who is the God that can deliver you out of my hands?" 16 Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago answered King Nabuchodonosor, "There is no need for us to defend ourselves before you in this matter. 17 If our God, whom we serve, can save us* from the white-hot furnace and from your hands, O king, may he save us! But even if he will not, know, O king, that we will not serve your god or worship the golden statue which you set up."

19 Nabuchodonosor's face became livid with utter rage against Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago. He ordered the furnace to be heated seven times more than usual 20 and had some of the strongest men in his army bind Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago and cast them into the white-hot furnace. 21 They were bound and cast into the white-hot furnace with their coats, hats, shoes and other garments, 22 for the king's order was urgent. So huge a fire was kindled in the furnace that the flames devoured the men who threw Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago into it. 23 But these three fell, bound, into the midst of the white-hot furnace.

3, 1: Dura: several places in Babylonia bore this name. Probably the present reference is to one a few miles south of Babylon. Colossi of the type mentioned here were not uncommon in antiquity; a cubit was seventeen and a half inches.

3, 2: Satraps: the Persian major governors.

3, 4: Psaltery: a harplike instrument.

3, 6: Death by fire was not unknown as a punishment in Babylonia; cf Jer 29, 22.

3, 17: If our God . . . can save us: the youths do not question the efficacy of the divine power, but whether it will be exercised (v 18).

24 *They walked about in the flames, singing to God and blessing the Lord. 25
In the fire Azaria stood up and prayed aloud:

26 "Blessed are you, and praiseworthy, O Lord, the God of our fathers, and glorious forever is your name. 27 For you are just in all you have done; all your deeds are faultless, all your ways right, and all your judgments proper. 28
You have executed proper judgments in all that you have brought upon us and upon Jerusalem, the holy city of our fathers. By a proper judgment you have done all this because of our sins; 29 for we have sinned and transgressed by departing from you, and we have done every kind of evil. 30 Your commandments we have not heeded or observed, nor have we done as you ordered us for our good.
31 Therefore all you have brought upon us, all you have done to us, you have done by a proper judgment. 32 You have handed us over to our enemies, lawless and hateful rebels; to an unjust king, the worst in all the world. 33 Now we cannot open our mouths; we, your servants, who revere you, have become a shame and a reproach. 34 For your name's sake, do not deliver us up forever, or make void your covenant. 35 Do not take away your mercy from us, for the sake of Abraham, your beloved, Isaac your servant, and Israel your holy one, 36 to whom you promised to multiply their offspring like the stars of heaven, or the sand on the shore of the sea. 37 For we are reduced, O Lord, beyond any other nation, brought low everywhere in the world this day because of our sins. 38 We have in our day no prince, prophet, or leader, no holocaust, sacrifice, oblation, or incense, no place to offer first fruits, to find favor with you. 39 But with contrite heart and humble spirit let us be received; 40 as though it were holocausts of rams and bullocks, or thousands of fat lambs, so let our sacrifice be in your presence today as we follow you unreservedly; for those who trust in you cannot be put to shame.
41 And now we follow you with our whole heart, we fear you and we pray to you.
42 Do not let us be put to shame, but deal with us in your kindness and great mercy.
43 Deliver us by your wonders, and bring glory to your name, O Lord: 44 let all those be routed who inflict evils on your servants; let them be shamed and powerless, and their strength broken; 45 let them know that you alone are the Lord God, glorious over the whole world."

46 Now the king's men who had thrown them in continued to stoke the furnace with brimstone, pitch, tow, and faggots.
47 The flames rose forty-nine cubits above the furnace, 48 and spread out, burning the Chaldeans nearby. 49 But the angel of the Lord went down into the furnace with Azaria and his companions, drove the fiery flames out of the furnace, 50 and made the inside of the furnace as though a dew-laden breeze were blowing through it. The fire in no way touched them or caused them pain or harm. 51 Then these three in the furnace with one voice sang, glorifying and blessing God:

52 "Blessed are you, O Lord, the God of our fathers, praiseworthy and exalted above all forever; and blessed is your holy and glorious name, praiseworthy and exalted above all for all ages. 53 Blessed are you in the temple of your holy glory, praiseworthy and glorious above all forever. 54 Blessed are you on the throne of your kingdom, praiseworthy and exalted above all forever. 55 Blessed are you who look into the depths from your throne upon the cherubim, praiseworthy and exalted above all forever. 56 Blessed are you in the firmament of heaven, praiseworthy and glorious forever.

57 Bless the Lord, all you works of the Lord, praise and exalt him above all forever. 58 Angels of the Lord, bless the Lord, praise and exalt him above all forever. 59 f You heavens, bless the Lord, praise and exalt him above all forever. 60
All you waters above the heavens, bless the Lord, praise and exalt him above all forever. 61 All you hosts of the Lord, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. 62 Sun and moon, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all forever.
63 Stars of heaven, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. 64 Every shower and dew, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. 65 All you winds, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. 66 Fire and heat, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [67] [Cold and chill, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [68] Dew and rain, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever.] [69] Frost and chill, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [70] Ice and snow, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [71] Nights and days, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [72] Light and darkness, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [73] Lightnings and clouds, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever.

[74] Let the earth bless the Lord, praise and exalt him above all forever. [75] Mountains and hills, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [76] Everything growing from the earth, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [77] You springs, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [78] Seas and rivers, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [79] You dolphins and all water creatures, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [80] All you birds of the air, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [81] All you beasts, wild and tame, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [82] You sons of men, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [83] O Israel, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [84] Priests of the Lord, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [85] Servants of the Lord, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [86] Spirits and souls of the just, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [87] Holy men of humble heart, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. [88] Anania, Azaria, Misael, bless the Lord; praise and exalt him above all forever. For he has delivered us from the nether world, and saved us from the power of death; he has freed us from the raging flame and delivered us from the fire. [89] Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endures forever. [90] Bless the God of gods, all you who fear the Lord; praise him and give him thanks, because his mercy endures forever."

Hearing them sing, and astonished at seeing them alive, [91] King Nabuchodonosor rose in haste and asked his nobles, "Did we not cast three men bound into the fire?" "Assuredly, O king," they answered. [92] "But," he replied, "I see four men unfettered and unhurt, walking in the fire, and the fourth looks like a son of God."* [93] Then Nabuchodonosor came to the opening of the white-hot furnace and called to Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago: "Servants of the most high God, come out." Thereupon Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago came out of the fire. [94] When the satraps, prefects, governors, and nobles of the king came together, they saw that the fire had had no power over the bodies of these men; not a hair of their heads had been singed, nor were their garments altered; there was not even a smell of fire about them. [95] Nabuchodonosor exclaimed, "Blessed be the God of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, who sent his angel to deliver the servants that trusted in him; they disobeyed the royal command and yielded their bodies rather than serve or worship any god except their own God. [96] Therefore I decree for nations and peoples of every language that whoever blasphemes the God of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago shall be cut to pieces and his house destroyed. For there is no other God who can rescue like this." [97] Then the king promoted Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago in the province of Babylon.

Vision of the Great Tree.* [98] King Nabuchodonosor to the nations and peoples of every language, wherever they dwell on earth: abundant peace! [99] It has seemed good to me to publish the signs and wonders which the most high God* has accomplished in my regard.

[100] g How great are his signs, how mighty his wonders; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his dominion endures through all generations.

CHAPTER 4.

[1] I, Nabuchodonosor, was at home in my palace, content and prosperous. [2] I had a terrifying dream as I lay in bed, and the images and the visions of my mind frightened me. [3] So I issued a decree that all the wise men of Babylon

3, 98–4, 34: This section has the form of a letter written by Nabuchodonosor to his subjects.

3, 99: The most high God: the Jews, especially in the diaspora, used this title to distinguish their God from those of the pagans. On the lips of a polytheist (so also in v 93) it was merely the title of another god. It was an ancient divine name used in Chanaan; cf Gn 14, 18.

should be brought before me to give the interpretation of the dream. 4 When the magicians, enchanters, Chaldeans, and astrologers had come in, I related the dream before them; but none of them could tell me its meaning. 5 b Finally there came before me Daniel, whose name is Baltassar after the name of my god,* and in whom is the spirit of the holy God. I repeated the dream to him: 6 "Baltassar, chief of the magicians, I know that the spirit of the holy God is in you and no mystery is too difficult for you; tell me the meaning of the visions that I saw in my dream.

7 "These were the visions I saw while in bed: I saw a tree of great height at the center of the world. 8 It was large and strong, with its top touching the heavens, and it could be seen to the ends of the earth. 9 Its leaves were beautiful and its fruit abundant, providing food for all. Under it the wild beasts found shade, in its branches the birds of the air nested; all men ate of it. 10 In the vision I saw while in bed, a holy sentinel* came down from heaven, 11 and cried out:

*" 'Cut down the tree and lop off its branches, strip off its leaves and scatter its fruit; let the beasts flee its shade, and the birds its branches. 12 But leave in the earth its stump and roots, fettered with iron and bronze, in the grass of the field. Let him be bathed with the dew of heaven; his lot be to eat, among beasts, the grass of the earth. 13 Let his mind be changed from the human; let him be given the sense of a beast, till seven years pass over him. 14 i By decree of the sentinels is this decided, by order of the holy ones, this sentence; that all who live may know that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men: he can give it to whom he will, or set over it the lowliest of men.'

15 "This is the dream that I, King Nabuchodonosor, had. Now, Baltassar, tell me its meaning. Although none of the wise men in my kingdom can tell me the meaning, you can, because the spirit of the holy God is in you."

16 Then Daniel, whose name was Baltassar, was appalled for a while, terrified by his thoughts. "Baltassar," the king said to him, "let not the dream or its meaning terrify you." 17 "My lord," Baltassar replied, "this dream should be for your enemies, and its meaning for your foes.* The large, strong tree that you saw, with its top touching the heavens, that could be seen by the whole earth, 18 which had beautiful foliage and abundant fruit, providing food for all, under which the wild beasts lived, and in whose branches the birds of the air dwelt—19 you are that tree, O king, large and strong! Your majesty has become so great as to touch the heavens, and your rule extends over the whole earth. 20 As for the king's vision of a holy sentinel that came down from heaven and proclaimed: 'Cut down the tree and destroy it, but leave in the earth its stump and roots, fettered with iron and bronze in the grass of the field; let him be bathed with the dew of heaven, and let his lot be among wild beasts till seven years pass over him'—21 this is its meaning, O king; this is the sentence which the Most High has passed upon my lord king: 22 j You shall be cast out from among men and dwell with wild beasts; you shall be given grass to eat like an ox and be bathed with the dew of heaven;* seven years shall pass over you, until you know that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men and gives it to whom he will. 23 The command that the stump and roots of the tree are to be left means that your kingdom shall be preserved for you, once you have learned it is heaven that rules. 24 k Therefore, O king, take my advice; atone for your sins by good deeds, and for your misdeeds by kindness to the poor; then your prosperity will be long."*

25 All this happened to King Nabuchodonosor. 26 Twelve months later, as he was walking on the roof of the royal palace in Babylon, 27 the king said, "Babylon the great! Was it not I, with my great strength, who built it as a royal residence

4, 5: After the name of my god: Baltassar, the Babylonian name given to Daniel at the king's orders (Dn 1, 7), is Balatsu-ussur, "protect his life." In the king's intention, this would be an abbreviation for Bel-balatsu-ussur. It would thus include an appeal to the god Bel, originally the name of the city god of Nippur, and later identified with Marduk, the chief god of Babylon. Daniel's use of the name would refer the prayer rather to the true God.

4, 10: A holy sentinel: an angel. This term is found in the Bible only in this chapter of Daniel, but it is common in later Jewish literature.

4, 11ff: As the tree is Nabuchodonosor (v 19), the description passes from metaphor to the reality.

4, 17: "This dream . . . for your foes": Daniel speaks as a courtier.

for my splendor and majesty?"* 28 While these words were still on the king's lips, a voice spoke from heaven, "It has been decreed for you, King Nabuchodonosor, that your kingdom is taken from you! 29 You shall be cast out from among men, and shall dwell with wild beasts; you shall be given grass to eat like an ox, and seven years shall pass over you, until you learn that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men and gives it to whom he will." 30 *At once this was fulfilled. Nabùchodonosor was cast out from among men, he ate grass like an ox, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven, until his hair grew like the feathers of an eagle, and his nails like the claws of a bird.

31 I When this period was over, I, Nabuchodonosor, raised my eyes to heaven: my reason was restored to me, and I blessed the Most High, I praised and glorified him who lives forever: His dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom endures through all generations. 32 All who live on the earth are counted as nothing; he does as he pleases with the powers of heaven as well as with those who live on the earth. There is no one who can stay his hand or say to him, "What have you done?"

33 At the same time my reason returned to me, and for the glory of my kingdom, my majesty and my splendor returned to me. My nobles and lords sought me out; I was restored to my kingdom, and became much greater than before. 34 Therefore, I, Nabuchodonosor, now praise and exalt and glorify the King of heaven, because all his works are right and his ways just; and those who walk in pride he is able to humble.

4, 27: The words attributed to the king are similar to the boastings in the royal inscriptions by which the Mesopotamian kings testified to their mighty works.

4, 30ff: There is no certainty of any such thing happening to Nabuchodonosor as is described here. Some scholars think that the Nabuchodonosor of this chapter is actually Nabonidus, the father of Belsassar, who was mysteriously absent from Babylon for a number of years. The Biblical author's chief interest was not in the historicity of this popular tale, but in the object lesson it contained for the proud "divine" kings of the Seleucid dynasty.

5, 1: King Belsassar: Belsassar was actually the crown prince, but he had been given royal authority in Babylon by his father Nabonidus.

5, 2: Nabuchodonosor, his father: several kings of Babylon intervened between Nabuchodonosor and Belsassar. Either the term father is used here in the broad sense of "remote predecessor," or the name Nabuchodonosor is used for "Nabonidus."

CHAPTER 5.

The Writing on the Wall. 1 King Belsassar* gave a great banquet for a thousand of his lords, with whom he drank. 2 Under the influence of the wine, he ordered the gold and silver vessels which Nabuchodonosor, his father,* had taken from the temple in Jerusalem, to be brought in so that the king, his lords, his wives and his entertainers might drink from them. 3 When the gold and silver vessels taken from the house of God in Jerusalem had been brought in, and while the king, his lords, his wives and his entertainers were drinking 4 wine from them, they praised their gods of gold and silver, bronze and iron, wood and stone.

5 Suddenly, opposite the lampstand, the fingers of a human hand appeared, writing on the plaster of the wall in the king's palace. When the king saw the wrist and hand that wrote, 6 his face blanched; his thoughts terrified him, his hip joints shook, and his knees knocked. 7 The king shouted for the enchanters, Chaldeans, and astrologers to be brought in. "Whoever reads this writing and tells me what it means," he said to the wise men of Babylon, "shall be clothed in purple, wear a golden collar about his neck, and be third in the government of the kingdom." 8 But though all the king's wise men came in, none of them could either read the writing or tell the king what it meant. 9 Then King Belsassar was greatly terrified; his face went ashen, and his lords were thrown into confusion.

10 When the queen heard of the discussion between the king and his lords, she entered the banquet hall and said, "O king, live forever! Be not troubled in mind, nor look so pale! 11 There is a man in your kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy God; during the lifetime of your father he was seen to have brilliant knowledge and god-like wisdom. In fact, King Nabuchodonosor, your father, made him chief of the magicians, enchanters, Chaldeans, and astrologers, 12 because of the extraordinary mind possessed by this Daniel, whom the king named Baltassar. He knew and understood how to interpret dreams, explain enigmas, and solve difficulties. Now therefore, summon Daniel to tell you what this means."

13 Then Daniel was brought into the presence of the king. The king asked him, "Are you the Daniel, the Jewish exile, whom my father, the king, brought from Juda? 14 I have heard that the spirit of God is in you, that you possess brilliant knowledge and extraordinary wisdom. 15 Now, the wise men and enchanters were brought in to me to read this writing and tell me its meaning, but they could not say what the words meant. 16
But I have heard that you can interpret dreams and solve difficulties; if you are able to read the writing and tell me what it means, you shall be clothed in purple, wear a gold collar about your neck, and be third in the government of the kingdom."

17 Daniel answered the king: "You may keep your gifts, or give your presents to someone else; but the writing I will read for you, O king, and tell you what it means. 18 The Most High God gave your father Nabuchodonosor a great kingdom and glorious majesty. 19 Because he made him so great, the nations and peoples of every language dreaded and feared him.
Whomever he wished, he killed or let live; whomever he wished, he exalted or humbled. 20 But when his heart became proud and his spirit hardened by insolence, he was put down from his royal throne and deprived of his glory; 21 m he was cast out from among men and was made insensate as a beast; he lived with wild asses, and ate grass like an ox; his body was bathed with the dew of heaven, until he learned that the Most High God rules over the kingdom of men and appoints over it whom he will. 22 You, his son, Belsassar, have not humbled your heart, though you knew all this; 23 you have rebelled against the Lord of heaven.
You had the vessels of his temple brought before you, so that you and your nobles, your wives and your entertainers, might drink wine from them; and you praised the gods of silver and gold, bronze and iron, wood and stone, that neither see nor hear nor have intelligence. But the God in whose hand is your life breath and the whole course of your life, you did not glorify. 24 By him were the wrist and hand sent, and the writing set down.

25 "This is the writing that was inscribed: Mene, Tekel, and Peres.* These words mean: 26 *Mene, God has numbered your kingdom and put an end to it; 27 Tekel, you have been weighed on the scales and found wanting; 28 Peres, your kingdom has been divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

29 Then by order of Belsassar they clothed Daniel in purple, with a gold collar about his neck, and proclaimed him third in the government of the kingdom.
30 The same night Belsassar, the Chaldean king, was slain.

CHAPTER 6.

1 And Darius the Mede* succeeded to the kingdom at the age of sixty-two.

In the Lions' Den. 2 Darius decided to appoint over his entire kingdom one hundred and twenty satraps, to safeguard his interests; 3 these were accountable to three supervisors, one of whom was Daniel. 4 Daniel outshone all the supervisors and satraps because an extraordinary spirit was in him, and the king thought of giving him authority over the entire kingdom. 5 Therefore the supervisors and satraps tried to find grounds for accusation against Daniel as regards the administration. But they could accuse him of no wrongdoing; because he was trustworthy, no fault of neglect or misconduct was to be found in him. 6 Then these men said to themselves, "We shall find no grounds for accusation against this Daniel unless by way of the law of his God." 7 So these supervisors and satraps went thronging to the king and said to him, "King Darius, live forever! 8 n All the supervisors of the kingdom, the prefects, satraps, nobles, and governors are agreed that the following prohibition ought to be put in force by royal decree: no one is to address any petition to god or man for thirty days, except to you, O king; otherwise he shall m Dn 4, 22.—n Est 1, 19.

5, 25: Mene, Tekel, and Peres: these seem to be the Aramaic names of weights and monetary values: the mina, the shekel (the sixtieth part of a mina), and the parsu (a half-mina).

5, 26ff: Daniel interprets these three terms by a play on the words: Mene, connected with the verb meaning to number; Tekel, with the verb meaning to weigh; Peres, with the verb meaning to divide. There is also a play on the last term with the word for Persians.

6, 1: Darius the Mede: unknown in profane history. The Median kingdom had already been conquered by Cyrus the Persian, and it was Cyrus who captured Babylon. Evidently the author of Daniel has deliberately adopted an apocalyptic view of history, derived from prophecy (cf Is 13, 17ff; Jer 51, 11. 28ff), according to which the Medes formed the second of four world kingdoms preceding the Messianic times; see note on Dn 2, 36-45. The character of Darius the Mede has probably been modeled on that of the Persian King Darius the Great (522-486 B. C.), the second successor of Cyrus.

be cast into a den of lions. [9] Now, O king, issue the prohibition over your signature, immutable and irrevocable* under Mede and Persian law." [10] So King Darius signed the prohibition and made it law.

[11] Even after Daniel heard that this law had been signed, he continued his custom of going home to kneel in prayer and give thanks to his God in the upper chamber three times a day, with the windows open toward Jerusalem. [12] So these men rushed in and found Daniel praying and pleading before his God. [13] Then they went to remind the king about the prohibition: "Did you not decree, O king, that no one is to address a petition to god or man for thirty days, except to you, O king; otherwise he shall be cast into a den of lions?" The king answered them, "The decree is absolute, irrevocable under the Mede and Persian law." [14] To this they replied, "Daniel, the Jewish exile, has paid no attention to you, O king, or to the decree you issued; three times a day he offers his prayer." [15] The king was deeply grieved at this news and he made up his mind to save Daniel; he worked till sunset to rescue him. [16] But these men insisted. "Keep in mind, O king," they said, "that under the Mede and Persian law every royal prohibition or decree is irrevocable." [17] So the king ordered Daniel to be brought and cast into the lions' den.* To Daniel he said, "May your God, whom you serve so constantly, save you." [18] To forestall any tampering, the king sealed with his own ring and the rings of the lords the stone that had been brought to block the opening of the den.

[19] Then the king returned to his palace for the night; he refused to eat and he dismissed the entertainers. Since sleep was impossible for him, [20] the king rose very early the next morning and hastened to the lions' den. [21] As he drew near, he cried out to Daniel sorrowfully, "O Daniel, servant of the living God, has the God whom you serve so constantly been able to save you from the lions?" [22] o Daniel answered the king: "O king, live forever! [23] My God has sent his angel and closed the lions' mouths so that they have not hurt me. For I have been found innocent before him; neither to you have I done any harm, O king!" [24] This gave the king great joy. At his order Daniel was removed from the den, unhurt because he trusted in his God. [25] The king then ordered the men who had accused Daniel, along with their children and their wives, to be cast into the lions' den. Before they reached the bottom of the den, the lions overpowered them and crushed all their bones.

[26] Then King Darius wrote to the nations and peoples of every language, wherever they dwell on earth: "All peace to you! [27] I decree that throughout my royal domain the God of Daniel is to be reverenced and feared: "For he is the living God, enduring forever; his kingdom shall not be destroyed, and his dominion shall be without end. [28] p He is a deliverer and savior, working signs and wonders in heaven and on earth, and he delivered Daniel from the lions' power."

II: DANIEL'S VISIONS

CHAPTER 7.

Vision of the Four Beasts.* [1] In the first year of King Belsassar of Babylon, Daniel had a dream as he lay in bed, and was terrified by the visions of his mind. Then he wrote down the dream; the account began: [2] In the vision I saw during the night, suddenly the four winds of heaven stirred up the great sea,* [3] from which emerged four immense beasts, each different from the others. [4] The first was like a lion, but with eagle's wings.* While o 1 Mc 2, 60.—p Dn 1, 21.

6, 9: Immutable and irrevocable: the passages in Est 1, 19 and 8, 8 also refer to the immutability of Medo-Persian laws. The historian Diodorus Siculus indicates that such a concept existed in the time of Darius III (335-331 B. C.), the last of the Persian kings. Cf vv 13. 16.

6, 17: The lions' den: a pit too deep to be easily scaled; its opening was blocked with a stone (v 18).

7, 1-27: The significance of this vision is the same as that of Nabuchodonosor's dream in chapter 2; see note on Dn 2, 36-45. To the four succeeding world kingdoms, Babylonian, Median, Persian, and Greek, is opposed the Messianic kingdom of the people of God. The imagery of this chapter has been used extensively in the Apocalypse of St. John, where it is applied to the Roman empire, the persecutor of the Church.

7, 2: The great sea: the primordial ocean beneath the earth, according to primitive cosmology (Gn 7, 11; 49, 25). This was thought to contain various monsters (Is 27, 1; Jb 7, 12), and in particular mythological monsters symbolizing the chaos which God had vanquished in ancient times (Jb 9, 13; 26, 13; etc.).

7, 4: The representation of the Babylonian empire as a winged lion, a common motif in Babylonian art, symbolizes the bestial power hostile to God. The two wings that were plucked represent Nabuchodonosor and Belsassar. On two feet like a man . . . a human mind: contrasts with what is said in Dn 4, 13. 30.

I watched, the wings were plucked; it was raised from the ground to stand on two feet like a man, and given a human mind. 5 The second was like a bear;* it was raised up on one side, and among the teeth in its mouth were three tusks. It was given the order, "Up, devour much flesh." 6 After this I looked and saw another beast, like a leopard;* on its back were four wings like those of a bird, and it had four heads. To this beast dominion was given. 7 After this, in the visions of the night I saw the fourth beast,* different from all the others, terrifying, horrible, and of extraordinary strength; it had great iron teeth with which it devoured and crushed, and what was left it trampled with its feet. 8 I was considering the ten horns it had, when suddenly another, a little horn, sprang out of their midst, and three of the previous horns were torn away to make room for it. This horn had eyes like a man, and a mouth that spoke arrogantly. 9 *As I watched, thrones were set up and the Ancient One took his throne. His clothing was snow bright, and the hair on his head was as white as wool; his throne was flames of fire, with wheels of burning fire. 10 q A surging stream of fire flowed out from where he sat; thousands upon thousands were ministering to him, and myriads upon myriads attended him.

The court was convened, and the books were opened. 11 I watched, then, from the first of the arrogant words which the horn spoke, until the beast was slain and its body thrown into the fire to be burnt up. 12 The other beasts, which also lost their dominion, were granted a prolongation of life for a time and a season. 13 As the visions during the night continued, I saw one like a son of man* coming, on the clouds of heaven; when he reached the Ancient One and was presented before him, 14 r he received dominion, glory, and kingship; nations and peoples of every language serve him. His dominion is an everlasting dominion that shall not be taken away, his kingship shall not be destroyed.

15 I, Daniel, found my spirit anguished within its sheath of flesh, and I was terrified by the visions of my mind. 16 I approached one of those present and asked him what all this meant in truth; in answer, he made known to me the meaning of the things: 17 "These four great beasts stand for four kingdoms which shall arise on the earth. 18 But the holy ones of the Most High shall receive the kingship, to possess it forever and ever."

19 But I wished to make certain about the fourth beast, so very terrible and different from the others, devouring and crushing with its iron teeth and bronze claws, and trampling with its feet what was left; 20 about the ten horns on its head, and the other one that sprang up, before which three horns fell; about the horn with the eyes and the mouth that spoke arrogantly, which appeared greater than its fellows. 21 For, as I watched, that horn made war against the holy ones and was victorious 22 until the Ancient One arrived; judgment was pronounced in favor of the holy ones of the Most High, and the time came when the holy ones possessed the kingdom. 23 He answered me thus:

"The fourth beast shall be a fourth kingdom on earth, different from all the others; it shall devour the whole earth, beat it down, and crush it. 24 The ten horns shall be ten kings rising out of that kingdom; another shall rise up after them, different from those before him, who shall lay low three kings. 25 He shall speak against the Most High and oppress the holy ones of the Most High, thinking to change the feast days and the law.*

7, 5: A bear: represents the Median empire, its three tusks symbolizing its destructive nature; hence, the command: "Up, devour much flesh."

7, 6: A leopard: used to symbolize the swiftness with which Cyrus the Persian established his kingdom. Four heads: corresponding to the four Persian kings of Dn 11, 2.

7, 7f: Alexander's empire was different from all the others in that it was Western rather than Oriental in inspiration. The ten horns represent the kings of the Seleucid dynasty, the only part of the Hellenistic empire that concerned the author. The little horn is Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-163 B. C.), the worst of the Seleucid kings, who usurped the throne.

7, 9f: A vision of the heavenly throne of God (the Ancient One) who sits in judgment (symbolized by fire) over the nations. Some of the details of the vision, depicting the divine majesty and omnipotence, are to be found in Ez 1.

7, 13f: One like a son of man: in contrast to the worldly kingdoms opposed to God, which appear as beasts, the glorified people of God that will form His kingdom on earth is represented in human form (v 18). Just as our Lord applied the figure of the stone hewn from the mountain to Himself (Dn 2, 36-45), He also made the title "Son of Man" His most characteristic way of referring to Himself, as the One in whom and through whom the salvation of God's people came to be realized.

7, 25: The reference is to the persecutions of Antiochus IV and his attempt to force the Jews to give up their customs and to adopt Hellenistic ways (1 Mc 1, 33f). A year, two years, and a half-year: an indefinite, evil period of time. As

They shall be handed over to him for a year, two years, and a half-year. [26] But when the court is convened, and his power is taken away by final and absolute destruction, [27] then the kingship and dominion and majesty of all the kingdoms under the heavens shall be given to the holy people of the Most High, whose kingdom shall be everlasting: all dominions shall serve and obey him."

[28] The report concluded: I, Daniel, was greatly terrified by my thoughts, and my face blanched, but I kept the matter to myself.*

CHAPTER 8.

Vision of the Ram and He-goat.* [1] After this first vision, I, Daniel, had another, in the third year of the reign of King Belsassar. [2] In my vision I saw myself in the fortress of Susa* in the province of Elam; I was beside the river Ulai. [3] I looked up and saw standing by the river a ram with two great horns, the one larger and newer than the other. [4] I saw the ram butting toward the west, north, and south. No beast could withstand it or be rescued from its power; it did what it pleased and became very powerful.

[5] As I was reflecting, a he-goat with a prominent horn on its forehead suddenly came from the west across the whole earth without touching the ground. [6] It approached the two-horned ram I had seen standing by the river, and rushed toward it with savage force. [7] I saw it attack the ram with furious blows when they met, and break both its horns. It threw the ram, which had not the force to withstand it, to the ground, and trampled upon it; and no one could rescue it from its power.

[8] The he-goat became very powerful, but at the height of its power the great horn was shattered, and in its place came up four others, facing the four winds of heaven. [9] Out of one of them came a little horn* which kept growing toward the south, the east, and the glorious country.
[10] Its power extended to the host of heaven,* so that it cast down to earth some of the host and some of the stars and trampled on them. [11] It boasted even against the prince of the host, from whom it removed the daily sacrifice, and whose sanctuary it cast down, [12] as well as the host, while sin replaced the daily sacrifice. It cast truth to the ground, and was succeeding in its undertaking.

[13] I heard a holy one speaking, and another said to whichever one it was that spoke, "How long shall the events of this vision last concerning the daily sacrifice, the desolating sin* which is placed there, the sanctuary, and the trampled host?" [14] He answered him, "For two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings;
then the sanctuary shall be purified."

[15] While I, Daniel, sought the meaning of the vision I had seen, a manlike figure stood before me, [16] and on the Ulai I heard a human voice that cried out,
"Gabriel,* explain the vision to this man."
[17] When he came near where I was standing, I fell prostrate in terror. But he said to me, "Understand, son of man, that the vision refers to the end time."* [18] As he spoke to me, I fell forward in a faint; he touched me and made me stand up. [19] "I will show you," he said, "what is to happen later in the period of wrath; for at the appointed time, there will be an end.

[20] "The two-horned ram you saw represents the kings of the Medes and Persians. [21] The he-goat is the king of the Greeks, and the great horn on its forehead is the first king. [22] The four that rose in its place when it was broken are four kingdoms that will issue from his nation, but without his strength.

[23] "After their reign, when sinners have reached their measure, there shall arise

seven is the Jewish "perfect" number, half of it signifies great imperfection. Actually, this corresponds fairly accurately to the duration of Antiochus' persecution.

7, 28: This verse ends the Aramaic part of the Book of Daniel.

8, 1-27: This vision repeats the major part of the preceding one, though in a more explicit fashion. As explained in vv 20ff, the two-horned ram represents the combined kingdom of the Medes and Persians, destroyed by Alexander's Hellenistic empire originating in the west. Once again the author is interested only in the Seleucid dynasty, which emerged from the dissolution of Alexander's empire after his death in 323 B. C.

8, 2: The fortress of Susa: the royal palace of the Persian kings in the ancient territory of Elam, east of Babylonia. The river Ulai: a canal along the northern side of Susa.

8, 9: The little horn, as in chapter 7, is Antiochus IV. The glorious country: Palestine.

8, 10ff: The host of heaven: ordinarily meaning the stars, here refers to the people of God; cf Dn 12, 3. The prince of the host: God Himself, with whose holy religion Antiochus interfered (1 Mc 1, 45).

8, 13: The desolating sin: the Hebrew contains a wordplay (shomem) on the name Baal Shamem ("lord of the heavens," the Greek Zeus Olympios), referring to the statue with which Antiochus profaned the temple of Jerusalem (2 Mc 6, 2).

8, 16: The angel Gabriel is mentioned here for the first time in the Bible. There is wordplay in the preceding verse on geber—manlike figure.

8, 17: The end time: the day of the Lord, when God sits in judgment on His enemies (v 19).

24 He shall be strong and powerful, bring about fearful ruin, and succeed in his undertaking. He shall destroy powerful peoples; 25 his cunning shall be against the holy ones, his treacherous conduct shall succeed. He shall be proud of heart and destroy many by stealth. But when he rises against the prince of princes, he shall be broken without a hand being raised. 26 The vision of the evenings and the mornings is true, as spoken; do you, however, keep this vision undisclosed, because the days are to be many."

27 I, Daniel, was weak and ill for some days; then I arose and took care of the king's affairs. But I was appalled at the vision, which I could not understand.

CHAPTER 9.

Gabriel and the Seventy Weeks. 1 It was the first year that Darius,* son of Xerxes, of the race of the Medes, reigned over the kingdom of the Chaldeans; 2 s in the first year of his reign I, Daniel, tried to understand in the Scriptures the counting of the years of which the Lord spoke to the prophet Jeremia: that for the ruins of Jerusalem seventy years* must be fulfilled.

3 I turned to the Lord God, pleading in earnest prayer, with fasting, sackcloth, and ashes. 4 t I prayed to the Lord, my God, and confessed, "Ah, Lord, great and awesome God, you who keep your merciful covenant toward those who love you and observe your commandments! 5 u We have sinned, been wicked and done evil; we have rebelled and departed from your commandments and your laws. 6
We have not obeyed your servants the prophets, who spoke in your name to our kings, our princes, our fathers, and all the people of the land. 7 Justice, O Lord, is on your side; we are shamefaced even to this day: the men of Juda, the residents of Jerusalem, and all Israel, near and far, in all the countries to which you have scattered them because of their treachery toward you. 8 O Lord, we are shamefaced, like our kings, our princes, and our fathers, for having sinned against you. 9 But yours, O Lord, our God, are compassion and forgiveness! Yet we rebelled against you 10 and paid no heed to your command, O Lord, our God, to live by the law you gave us through your servants the prophets. 11 v Because all Israel transgressed your law and went astray, not heeding your voice, the sworn malediction, recorded in the law of Moses, the servant of God, was poured out over us for our sins. 12 You carried out the threats you spoke against us and against those who governed us, by bringing upon us in Jerusalem the greatest calamity that has ever occurred under heaven. 13 As it is written* in the law of Moses, this calamity came full upon us. As we did not appease the Lord, our God, by turning back from our wickedness and recognizing his constancy, 14 so the Lord kept watch over the calamity and brought it upon us. You, O Lord, our God, are just in all that you have done, for we did not listen to your voice.

15 w "Now, O Lord, our God, who led your people out of the land of Egypt with a strong hand, and made a name for yourself even to this day, we have sinned, we are guilty. O Lord, in keeping with all your just deeds, 16 let your anger and your wrath be turned away from your city Jerusalem, your holy mountain. On account of our sins and the crimes of our fathers, Jerusalem and your people have become the reproach of all our neighbors.
17 Hear, therefore, O God, the prayer and petition of your servant; and for your own sake, O Lord, let your face shine upon your desolate sanctuary. 18 x Give ear, O my God, and listen; open your eyes and see our ruins and the city which bears your name. When we present our petition before you, we rely not on our just deeds, but on your great mercy. 19 O Lord, hear! O Lord, pardon!
O Lord, be attentive and act without delay, for your own sake, O my God, because this city and your people bear your name!"

20 I was still occupied with my prayer,

9, 1: Darius: see the note on Dn 6, 1.

9, 2: Seventy years: the prophet Jeremia (25, 11; 29, 10) prophesied a Babylonian captivity of seventy years, a round number signifying the complete passing away of the existing generation. Jeremia's prophecy was fulfilled in the capture of Babylon by Cyrus and the subsequent return of the Jews to Palestine. However, the author of Daniel, living during the persecution of Antiochus, sees the conditions of the Exile still existing; therefore in his meditation he extends Jeremia's number to seventy weeks of years (v 24), i.e., seven times seventy years, to characterize the Jewish victory over the Seleucids as the ultimate fulfillment of the prophecy.

confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, presenting my petition to the Lord, my God, on behalf of his holy mountain—21 [y] I was still occupied with this prayer, when Gabriel, the one whom I had seen before in vision, came to me in rapid flight at the time of the evening sacrifice.* 22 He instructed me in these words: "Daniel, I have now come to give you understanding. 23 When you began your petition, an answer was given which I have come to announce, because you are beloved. Therefore, mark the answer and understand the vision.

24 "Seventy weeks* are decreed for your people and for your holy city: then transgression will stop and sin will end, guilt will be expiated, everlasting justice will be introduced, vision and prophecy ratified, and a most holy will be anointed. 25 Know and understand this: from the utterance of the word that Jerusalem was to be rebuilt* until one who is anointed and a leader, there shall be seven weeks. During sixty-two weeks it shall be rebuilt, with streets and trenches, in time of affliction. 26 After the sixty-two weeks an anointed* shall be cut down when he does not possess the city; and the people of a leader who will come shall destroy the sanctuary. Then the end shall come like a torrent; until the end there shall be war, the desolation that is decreed. 27 [z] For one week* he shall make a firm compact with the many; half the week he shall abolish sacrifice and oblation; on the temple wing shall be the horrible abomination until the ruin that is decreed is poured out upon the horror."

9, 21: At the time of the evening sacrifice: between three and four in the afternoon.

9, 24: Seventy weeks: i. e., of years. Just as Jeremia's seventy years was an approximation (see note on v 2), the four hundred and ninety years here is not to be taken literally. Similarly, the distribution of the "weeks" in the following verses indicates only relative proportions of the total figure. A most holy: an expression used almost always of an object, the altar or the temple, but once (1 Par 23, 13) of Aaron the high priest. The author sees the definitive establishment of the kingdom of God, realized in the reconsecration of the temple after Antiochus' desecration, or personified in the holy community (like the Son of Man of chapter 7). The Fathers of the Church almost unanimously understood the reference to be to Christ, the final realization of the prophecy.

9, 25: From the utterance . . . to be rebuilt: from the time of Jeremia's prophecy. One . . . anointed and a leader: either Cyrus, who was called the anointed of the Lord to end the Exile (Is 45, 1), or the high priest Josue, who presided over the rebuilding of the altar of sacrifice after the Exile (1 Esd 3, 2). Seven weeks: forty-nine years, an approximation of the time of the Exile. During sixty-two weeks . . . rebuilt: a period of 434 years, roughly approximating the interval between the rebuilding of Jerusalem after the Exile and the beginning of the Seleucid persecution.

9, 26: An anointed: doubtless the high priest Onias III, murdered in 171 B. C., from which the author dates the beginning of the persecution. Onias was in exile when he was killed. A leader: Antiochus IV.

9, 27: One week: the final phase of the period in view, the time of Antiochus' persecution; he is Antiochus himself. The many: the faithless Jews who allied themselves with the heathen; cf 1 Mc 1, 11ff. Half the week: three and a half years; see note on Dn 7, 25. The temple was desecrated by Antiochus from 167 to 165 B. C. The temple wing: probably the main portal. The horrible abomination: see note on Dn 8, 13. Perhaps an inscription was placed on the portal of the temple dedicating it to the Olympian Zeus. Our Lord referred to this passage in His own prediction of the destruction of Jerusalem (Mt 24, 15).

CHAPTER 10.

Vision of the Hellenistic Wars.* 1 In the third year of Cyrus, king of Persia, a revelation was given to Daniel, who had been named Baltassar. The revelation was certain: a great war; he understood it from the vision. 2 In those days, I, Daniel, mourned* three full weeks. 3 I ate no savory food, I took no meat or wine, and I did not anoint myself at all until the end of the three weeks.

4 On the twenty-fourth day of the first month* I was on the bank of the great river, the Tigris. 5 As I looked up, I saw a man* dressed in linen with a belt of fine gold around his waist. 6 His body was like chrysolite, his face shone like lightning, his eyes were like fiery torches, his arms and feet looked like burnished bronze, and his voice sounded like the roar of a multitude. 7 I alone, Daniel, saw the vision; but great fear seized the men who were with me; they fled and hid themselves, although they did not see the vision. 8 So I was left alone, seeing this great vision. No strength remained in me; I turned the color of death and was powerless. 9 When I heard the sound of his voice, I fell face forward in a faint.

10 But then a hand touched me, raising me to my hands and knees. 11 "Daniel, beloved," he said to me, "understand the words which I am speaking to you; stand up, for my mission now is to you." When he said this to me, I stood up trembling. 12 "Fear not, Daniel," he continued; "from the first day you made up your mind to acquire understanding and humble yourself before God, your prayer was heard. Because of it I started out, [13] but the prince of the kingdom of Persia* stood in my way for twenty-one days, until finally Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me. I left him there with the prince of the kings of Persia, [14] and came to make you understand what shall happen to your people in the days to come; for there is yet a vision concerning those days."

10, 1—12, 13: This final vision repeats some of the material contained in the others. It is concerned with history of the worldly kingdoms from the time of Cyrus to the defeat of the tyrant Antiochus.

10, 2: Mourned: perhaps the author intends to recall the interruption in the rebuilding of the temple, which occurred during this time (1 Esd 4, 1-4).

10, 4: The first month: the month Nisan (mid-March to mid-April).

[15] While he was speaking thus to me, I fell forward and kept silent. [16] Then something like a man's hand touched my lips; I opened my mouth and said to the one facing me, "My lord, I was seized with pangs at the vision and I was powerless. [17] How can my lord's servant speak with you, my lord? For now no strength or even breath is left in me." [18] The one who looked like a man touched me again and strengthened me, saying, [19] "Fear not, beloved, you are safe; take courage and be strong." [20] When he spoke to me, I grew strong and said, "Speak, my lord, for you have strengthened me." "Do you know," he asked, "why I have come to you? Soon I must fight the prince of Persia again. When I leave, the prince of Greece will come; [21] a but I shall tell you what is written in the truthful book. No one supports me against all these except Michael, your prince, [1] standing* as a reinforcement and a bulwark for me. [2] Now I shall tell you the truth.

CHAPTER 11.

"Three kings of Persia* are yet to come; and a fourth shall acquire the greatest riches of all. Strengthened by his riches, he shall rouse all the kingdom of Greece. [3] But a powerful king shall appear and rule with great might, doing as he pleases. [4] No sooner shall he appear than his kingdom shall be broken and divided in the four directions under heaven; but not among his descendants or in keeping with his mighty rule, for his kingdom shall be torn to pieces and belong to others than they.

[5] *"The king of the south shall grow strong, but one of his princes shall grow stronger still and govern a domain greater than his. [6] After some years they shall become allies: the daughter of the king of the south shall come to the king of the north in the interest of peace. But her bid for power shall fail: and her line shall not be recognized, and she shall be given up, together with those who brought her, her son and her husband. But later [7] a descendant of her line shall succeed to his rank, and shall come against the rampart and enter the stronghold of the king of the north, and conquer them. [8] Even their gods, with their molten images and their precious vessels of silver and gold, he shall carry away as booty into Egypt. For years he shall have nothing to do with the king of the north. [9] Then the latter shall invade the land of the king of the south, and return to his own country.

11, 2-4: The three kings of Persia who follow Cyrus are uncertain, since there were more than three Persian kings between Cyrus and the dissolution of the kingdom. The fourth is doubtless Xerxes I (486-465 B. C.), the great campaigner against Greece. The powerful king is Alexander the Great, who ended the Persian empire by his victory at Issus in 333 B. C.

11, 5-45: These verses describe the dynastic histories of the Ptolemies in Egypt (the king of the south) and the Seleucids in Syria (the king of the north), the two divisions of the Hellenistic empire that were of interest to the author (v 6). In vv 10-20 is described the struggle between the two kingdoms for the control of Palestine, in which the Seleucids were eventually victorious. The reference in v 20 is to Seleucus IV, who sent Heliodorus to plunder the temple treasure in Jerusalem (2 Mc 3). Finally, vv 21-45 describe the career of Antiochus IV and his persecution, in details that have been seen above.

he pleases, with no one to withstand him. He shall stop in the glorious land, dealing destruction. 17 He shall set himself to penetrate the entire strength of his kingdom. He shall conclude an agreement with him and give him a daughter in marriage in order to destroy the kingdom, but this shall not succeed in his favor. 18 He shall turn to the coastland and take many, but a leader shall put an end to his shameful conduct, so that he cannot renew it against him. 19 He shall turn to the strongholds of his own land, but shall stumble and fall, to be found no more. 20 In his stead one shall arise who will send a tax collector through the glorious kingdom, but he shall soon be destroyed, though not in conflict or in battle.

21 "There shall rise in his place a despicable person, to whom the royal insignia shall not be given. By stealth and fraud he shall seize the kingdom. 22 Armed might shall be completely overwhelmed by him and crushed, and even the prince of the covenant. 23 After allying with him, he shall treacherously rise to power with a small party. 24 By stealth he shall enter prosperous provinces and do that which his fathers or grandfathers never did; he shall distribute spoil, booty, and riches among them and devise plots against their strongholds; but only for a time. 25 He shall call on his strength and cleverness to meet the king of the south with a great army; the king of the south shall prepare for battle with a very large and strong army, but he shall not succeed because of the plots devised against him. 26 Even his table companions shall seek to destroy him, his army shall be overwhelmed, and many shall fall slain. 27 The two kings, resolved on evil, shall sit at table together and exchange lies, but they shall have no success, because the appointed end is not yet.

28 "He shall turn back toward his land with great riches, his mind set against the holy covenant; he shall arrange matters and return to his land. 29 At the time appointed he shall come again to the south, but this time it shall not be as before. 30 When ships of the Chetthim* confront him, he shall lose heart and retreat. Then he shall direct his rage and energy against the holy covenant; those who forsake it he shall once more single out. 31 Armed forces shall move at his command and defile the sanctuary stronghold, abolishing the daily sacrifice and setting up the horrible abomination. 32 By his deceit he shall make some who were disloyal to the covenant apostatize; but those who remain loyal to their God shall take strong action. 33 The nation's wise men shall instruct the many; though for a time they will become victims of the sword, of flames, exile, and plunder. 34 When they fall, few people shall help them, but many shall join them out of treachery. 35 Of the wise men, some shall fall, so that the rest may be tested, refined, and purified, until the end time which is still appointed to come.

36 *"The king shall do as he pleases, exalting himself and making himself greater than any god; he shall utter dreadful blasphemies against the God of gods. He shall prosper only till divine wrath is ready, for what is determined must take place. 37 He shall have no regard for the gods of his ancestors or for the one in whom women delight; for no god shall he have regard, because he shall make himself greater than all. 38 Instead, he shall give glory to the god of strongholds; a god unknown to his fathers he shall glorify with gold, silver, precious stones, and other treasures. 39 To defend the strongholds he shall station a people of a foreign god. Whoever acknowledges him he shall provide with abundant honor; he shall make them rule over the many and distribute the land as a reward.

40 "At the appointed time the king of the south shall come to grips with him, but the king of the north shall overwhelm him with chariots and horsemen and a great fleet, passing through the countries like a flood. 41 He shall enter the glorious land and many shall fall, except Edom, Moab, and the chief part of Ammon, which shall escape from his power. 42 He shall extend his power over the countries, and not even the land of Egypt shall escape. 43 He shall control the riches of gold and silver and all the treasures of Egypt; Libya and Ethiopia shall be in his train. 44 When news from the east and

CHAPTER 12.

1 "At that time there shall arise Michael, the great prince, guardian of your people; [c] it shall be a time unsurpassed in distress since nations began until that time. At that time your people shall escape, everyone who is found written in the book.*

2 "Many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake;* some shall live forever, others shall be an everlasting horror and disgrace.[d] 3 [e] But the wise shall shine brightly like the splendor of the firmament, and those who lead the many to justice shall be like the stars forever.

4 "As for you, Daniel, keep secret the message and seal the book until the end time; many shall fall away and evil shall increase."

5 I, Daniel, looked and saw two others, one standing on either bank of the river. 6 One of them said to the man clothed in linen, who was upstream, "How long shall it be to the end of these appalling things?" 7 [f] The man clothed in linen, who was upstream, lifted his right and left hands to heaven; and I heard him swear by him who lives forever that it should be for a year, two years, a half-year;* and that, when the power of the destroyer of the holy people was brought to an end, all these things should end. 8 I heard, but I did not understand; so I asked, "My lord, what follows this?" 9 "Go, Daniel," he said, "because the words are to be kept secret and sealed until the end time. 10 Many shall be refined, purified, and tested, but the wicked shall prove wicked; none of them shall have understanding, but the wise shall have it. 11 From the time that the daily sacrifice is abolished and the horrible abomination is set up, there shall be one thousand two hundred and ninety days. 12 Blessed is the man who has patience and perseveres until the one thousand three hundred and thirty-five days. 13 Go, take your rest, you shall rise for your reward at the end of days."

III: APPENDIX*

CHAPTER 13.

Susanna's Virtue. 1 In Babylon there lived a man named Joakim, 2 who married a very beautiful and God-fearing woman, Susanna, the daughter of Helcia; 3 her pious parents had trained their daughter according to the law of Moses. 4 Joakim was very rich; he had a garden near his house, and the Jews had recourse to him often because he was the most respected of them all.

5 That year, two elders of the people were appointed judges, of whom the Lord said, "Wickedness has come out of Babylon: from the elders who were to govern the people as judges." 6 These men, to whom all brought their cases, frequented the house of Joakim. 7 When the people left at noon, Susanna used to enter her husband's garden for a walk. 8 When the old men saw her enter every day for her walk, they began to lust for her. 9 They suppressed their consciences; they would not allow their eyes to look to heaven, and did not keep in mind just judgments. 10 Though both were enamored of her, they did not tell each other their trouble, 11 for they were ashamed to reveal their lustful desire to have her. 12 Day by day they watched eagerly for her. 13 One day they said to each other, "Let us be off for home, it is time for lunch." So they went out and parted; 14 but both turned back, and when they met again, they asked each other the reason. They admitted their lust, and then they agreed to look for an occasion when they could meet her alone.

15 One day, while they were waiting for the right moment, she entered the garden as usual, with two maids only. She decided to bathe, for the weather was warm. 16 Nobody else was there except the two 12, 7: A year, two years, a half year: see note on Dn 7, 25. The author's perspective is the end of Antiochus, and beyond, the final consummation of all things.

13, 1–14, 42: The short stories in these two chapters may have originally been about some other Daniel or Daniels than the hero of the main part of the book. They exist now only in Greek, but probably were first composed in Hebrew or Aramaic. They are excluded from the Jewish canon of Scripture, but the Church has always included them among the inspired writings.

elders, who had hidden themselves and were watching her. 17 "Bring me oil and soap," she said to the maids, "and shut the garden doors while I bathe." 18 They did as she said; they shut the garden doors and left by the side gate to fetch what she had ordered, unaware that the elders were hidden inside.

19 As soon as the maids had left, the two old men got up and hurried to her. 20 "Look," they said, "the garden doors are shut, and no one can see us; give in to our desire, and lie with us. 21 If you refuse, we will testify against you that you dismissed your maids because a young man was here with you."

22 "I am completely trapped," Susanna groaned. "If I yield, it will be my death; if I refuse, I cannot escape your power. 23 Yet it is better for me to fall into your power without guilt than to sin before the Lord." 24 Then Susanna shrieked, and the old men also shouted at her, 25 as one of them ran to open the garden doors. 26 When the people in the house heard the cries from the garden, they rushed in by the side gate to see what had happened to her. 27 At the accusations by the old men, the servants felt very much ashamed, for never had any such thing been said about Susanna.

28 When the people came to her husband Joakim the next day, the two wicked elders also came, fully determined to put Susanna to death. Before all the people they ordered: 29 "Send for Susanna, the daughter of Helcia, the wife of Joakim." When she was sent for, 30 she came with her parents, children and all her relatives. 31 Susanna, very delicate and beautiful, 32 was veiled; but those wicked men ordered her to uncover her face so as to sate themselves with her beauty. 33 All her relatives and the onlookers were weeping.

34 In the midst of the people the two elders rose up and laid their hands on her head. 35 Through her tears she looked up to heaven, for she trusted in the Lord wholeheartedly. 36 The elders made this accusation: "As we were walking in the garden alone, this woman entered with two girls and shut the doors of the garden, dismissing the girls. 37 A young man, who was hidden there, came and lay with her. 38 When we, in a corner of the garden, saw this crime, we ran toward them. 39 We saw them lying together, but the man we could not hold, because he was stronger than we; he opened the doors and ran off. 40 Then we seized this one and asked who the young man was, 41 but she refused to tell us. We testify to this." The assembly believed them, since they were elders and judges of the people, and they condemned her to death.

42 But Susanna cried aloud: "O eternal God, you know what is hidden and are aware of all things before they come to be: 43 you know that they have testified falsely against me. Here I am about to die, though I have done none of the things with which these wicked men have charged me."

44 The Lord heard her prayer. 45 As she was being led to execution, God stirred up the holy spirit of a young boy named Daniel, 46 and he cried aloud: "I will have no part in the death of this woman." 47 All the people turned and asked him, "What is this you are saying?" 48 He stood in their midst and continued, "Are you such fools, O Israelites! To condemn a woman of Israel without examination and without clear evidence? 49 Return to court, for they have testified falsely against her."

50 Then all the people returned in haste. To Daniel the elders said, "Come, sit with us and inform us, since God has given you the prestige of old age." 51 But he replied, "Separate these two far from one another that I may examine them."

52 After they were separated one from another, he called one of them and said: "How you have grown evil with age! Now have your past sins come to term: 53 g passing unjust sentences, condemning the innocent, and freeing the guilty, although the Lord says, 'The innocent and the just you shall not put to death.' 54 Now, then, if you were a witness, tell me under what tree you saw them together." 55 "Under a mastic tree,"* he answered. "Your fine lie has cost you your head," said Daniel; "for the angel of God shall receive the sentence from him and split you in two." 56 Putting him to one side, he ordered the other one to be brought. "Offspring of Canaan, not of Juda," Daniel said to him, "beauty has seduced you, lust has subverted your conscience. 57 This is how you acted with the daughters of Israel, and in their fear they yielded to you; but a daughter of Juda did not tolerate your wickedness.* 58 Now, then, tell me under what tree you surprised them together." 59 "Under an oak," he said. "Your fine lie has cost you also your head," said Daniel; "for the angel of God waits with a sword to cut you in two so as to make an end of you both."

13, 55-59: The contrast between the mastic tree, which is small, and the majestic oak emphasizes the contradiction between the statements of the two elders. In the Greek text there is a play on words between the names of these two trees and the mortal punishment decreed by Daniel for the elders.

60 The whole assembly cried aloud, blessing God who saves those that hope in him. 61 b They rose up against the two elders, for by their own words Daniel had convicted them of perjury. According to the law of Moses, they inflicted on them the penalty they had plotted to impose on their neighbor: 62 they put them to death. Thus was innocent blood spared that day.

63 Helcia and his wife praised God for their daughter Susanna, as did Joakim her husband and all her relatives, because she was found innocent of any shameful deed. 64 And from that day onward Daniel was greatly esteemed by the people.

CHAPTER 14.

Bel and the Dragon. 1 After King Astyages* was gathered to his fathers, Cyrus the Persian succeeded to his kingdom. 2 Daniel was the king's favorite and was held in higher esteem than any of the friends of the king.* 3 The Babylonians had an idol called Bel,* and every day they provided for it six barrels of fine flour, forty sheep, and six measures of wine. 4 The king worshiped it and went every day to adore it; but Daniel adored only his God. When the king asked him, 5 "Why do you not adore Bel?" Daniel replied, "Because I worship not idols made with hands, but only the living God who made heaven and earth and has dominion over all mankind." 6 Then the king continued, "You do not think Bel is a living god? Do you not see how much he eats and drinks every day?" 7 Daniel began to laugh. "Do not be deceived, O king," he said; "it is only clay inside and bronze outside; it has never taken any food or drink." 8 Enraged, the king called his priests and said to them, "Unless you tell me who it is that consumes these provisions, you shall die. 9 But if you can show that Bel consumes them, Daniel shall die for blaspheming Bel." Daniel said to the king, "Let it be as you say!" 10 There were seventy priests of Bel, besides their wives and children.

When the king went with Daniel into the temple of Bel, 11 the priests of Bel said, "See, we are going to leave. Do you, O king, set out the food and prepare the wine; then shut the door and seal it with your ring. 12 If you do not find that Bel has eaten it all when you return in the morning, we are to die; otherwise Daniel shall die for his lies against us." 13 They were not perturbed, because under the table they had made a secret entrance through which they always came in to consume the food. 14 After they departed the king set the food before Bel, while Daniel ordered his servants to bring some ashes, which they scattered through the whole temple; the king alone was present. Then they went outside, sealed the closed door with the king's ring, and departed. 15 The priests entered that night as usual, with their wives and children, and they ate and drank everything.

16 Early the next morning, the king came with Daniel. 17 "Are the seals unbroken, Daniel?" he asked. And Daniel answered, "They are unbroken, O king." 18 As soon as he had opened the door, the king looked at the table and cried aloud, "Great you are, O Bel; there is no trickery in you." 19 But Daniel laughed and kept the king from entering. "Look at the floor," he said; "whose footprints are these?" 20 "I see the footprints of men, women, and children!" said the king. 21 The angry king arrested the priests, their wives, and their children. They showed him the secret door by which they used to enter to consume what was on the table. 22 He put them to death, and handed Bel over to Daniel, who destroyed it and its temple.

23 There was a great dragon which the Babylonians worshiped. 24 "Look!" said the king to Daniel, "you cannot deny that this is a living god, so adore it." 25

13, 57: Besides the evident moral intent of this story, it appears to have served the purpose of contrasting the Northern and the Southern Kingdoms, Israel and Juda, in favor of the latter.

14, 1: King Astyages: the last of the Median kings, defeated by Cyrus in 550 B. C. This story preserves the fiction of a successive Median and Persian rule of Babylon.

14, 2: This verse in the Septuagint Greek text reads: "There was once a priest, Daniel by name, the son of Abal, a favorite of the king of Babylon." This may represent an earlier form of the story, before it was attached to the Book of Daniel.

14, 3: Bel: see note on Dn 4, 5.

But Daniel answered, "I adore the Lord, my God, for he is the living God. 26 Give me permission O king, and I will kill this dragon without sword or club." "I give you permission," the king said. 27 Then Daniel took some pitch, fat, and hair; these he boiled together and made into cakes. He put them into the mouth of the dragon, and when the dragon ate them, he burst asunder. "This," he said, "is what you worshiped."

28 When the Babylonians heard this, they were angry and turned against the king. "The king has become a Jew," they said; "he has destroyed Bel, killed the dragon, and put the priests to death." 29 They went to the king and demanded: "Hand Daniel over to us, or we will kill you and your family." 30 When he saw himself threatened with violence, the king was forced to hand Daniel over to them. 31 They threw Daniel into a lions' den, where he remained six days. 32 In the den were seven lions, and two carcasses and two sheep had been given to them daily. But now they were given nothing, so that they would devour Daniel.

33 In Judea there was a prophet, Habacuc; he mixed some bread in a bowl with the stew he had boiled, and was going to bring it to the reapers in the field, 34 when an angel of the Lord told him, "Take the lunch you have to Daniel in the lions' den at Babylon." 35 But Habacuc answered, "Babylon, sir, I have never seen, and I do not know the den!" 36 i The angel of the Lord seized him by the crown of his head and carried him by the hair; with the speed of the wind, he set him down in Babylon above the den. 37 "Daniel, Daniel," cried Habacuc, "take the lunch God has sent you." 38 "You have remembered me, O God," said Daniel; "you have not forsaken those who love you." 39 While Daniel began to eat, the angel of the Lord at once brought Habacuc back to his own place.

40 On the seventh day the king came to mourn for Daniel. As he came to the den and looked in, there was Daniel, sitting there! 41 The king cried aloud, "You are great, O Lord, the God of Daniel, and there is no other besides you!" 42 Daniel he took out, but those who had tried to destroy him he threw into the den, and they were devoured in a moment before his eyes.

THE BOOK OF OSEE

Osee belonged to the Northern Kingdom and began his prophetic career in the last years of Jeroboam II (786-746 B. C.). Some believe that he was a priest, others that he was a cult prophet; the prophecy, our only source of information concerning his life, gives us no certain answer in the matter. The collected oracles reveal a very sensitive, emotional man who could pass quickly from violent anger to the deepest tenderness. The prophecy pivots around his own unfortunate marriage to Gomer, a personal tragedy which profoundly influenced his teaching. In fact, his own prophetic vocation and message were immeasurably deepened by the painful experience he underwent in his married life.

Gomer, the adulteress, symbolized faithless Israel. And just as Osee could not give up his wife forever even when she played the harlot, so Yahweh could not renounce Israel, who had been betrothed to Him. God would chastise, but it would be the chastisement of the jealous lover, longing to bring back the beloved to the fresh and pure joy of their first love.

Israel's infidelity took the form of idolatry and ruthless oppression of the poor. No amount of mechanically offered sacrifices could atone for her serious sins. Chastisement alone remained; God would have to strip her of the rich ornaments bestowed by her false lovers and thus bring her back to the true lover. A humiliated Israel would again seek Yahweh. The eleventh chapter of Osee is one of the summits of Old Testament theology; God's love for His people has never been expressed more tenderly. Osee began the tradition of describing the relation between Yahweh and Israel in terms of marriage. This symbolism appears later on in the Old Testament; and, in the New, both St. John and St. Paul express in the same imagery the union between Christ and His Church.

The Book of Osee is divided as follows: I. The Prophet's Marriage and Its Lesson (1, 1—3, 5). II. Israel's Guilt and Punishment (4, 1—14, 10).

I: THE PROPHET'S MARRIAGE AND ITS LESSON*

CHAPTER 1.

Marriage with an Unfaithful Wife. 1 The word of the Lord that came to Osee, the son of Beeri, in the days of Ozia, Joatham, Achaz, Ezechia, kings of Juda, and in the days of Jeroboam, son of Joas, king of Israel. 2 In the beginning of the Lord's speaking to Osee, the Lord said to Osee: Go, take a harlot wife* and harlot's children, for the land gives itself to harlotry, turning away from the Lord. 3 So he went and took Gomer, the daughter of Debelaim; and she conceived and bore him a son. 4 Then the Lord said to him: Give him the name Jezrael,* for in a little while I will punish the house of Jehu for the bloodshed at Jezrael and bring to an end the kingdom of the house of Israel; 5 on that day I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezrael.

6 When she conceived again and bore a daughter, the Lord said to him: Give her the name Lo-ruhama;* I no longer feel pity for the house of Israel: rather, I abhor them utterly.

7 Yet for the house of Juda I feel pity; I will save them by the Lord, their God; but I will not save them by war, by sword or bow, by horses or horsemen.*

8 After she weaned Lo-ruhama, she conceived and bore a son. 9 Then the Lord said: Give him the name Lo-ammi,* for you are not my people, and I will not be your God.

CHAPTER 2.

Israel's Punishment and Restoration. 4 Protest against your mother, protest! for she is not my wife, and I am not her husband.* Let her remove her harlotry from before her, her adultery from between her breasts, 5 or I will strip her naked,* leaving her as on the day of her birth; I will make her like the desert, reduce her to an arid land, and slay her with thirst. 6 I will have no pity on her children, for they are the children of harlotry. 7 Yes, their mother has played the harlot; she that conceived them has acted shamefully. "I will go after my lovers,"* she said, "who give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, my oil and my drink."

10 Since she has not known that it was I who gave her the grain, the wine, and the oil, and her abundance of silver, and of gold, which they used for Baal; 11 therefore I will take back my grain in its time, and my wine in its season; I will snatch away my wool and my flax, with which she covers her nakedness. 12 So now I will lay bare her shame before the eyes of her lovers, and no one can deliver her out of my hand. 13 I will bring an end to all her joy, her feasts, her new moons, her Sabbaths, and all her solemnities. 14 I will lay waste her vines and fig trees, of which she said, "These are the hire my lovers have given me"; I will turn them into rank growth and wild beasts shall devour them. 15 I will punish her for the days of the Baals,* for whom she burnt incense while she decked herself out with her rings and her jewels, and, in going after her lovers, forgot me, says the Lord.

8 *Therefore, I will hedge in her way with thorns and erect a wall against her,

1–3: This section is ordinarily thought to be biographical, the prophet's personal tragedy figuring as the relation of God to His people Israel. Osee's marriage to a harlot wife represents Israel's infidelity to her Lord; hence the symbolic names of the children (Os 1, 4-9). In Os 2, 4-25 the Lord protests this infidelity and decrees its consequences, but promises restoration in return for amendment; His punishments are medicinal. In chapter 3 Osee once more takes back his wife, but only conditionally, signifying God's long-suffering love for Israel and hope for her return.

1, 2: A harlot wife: this does not necessarily mean that Gomer was a harlot when Osee married her; the verse describes the event in its final consequences.

1, 4: Jezrael: the strategic valley in northern Israel where Jehu brought the dynasty of Omri to an end through bloodshed (4 Kgs 9-10). Jeroboam II was the last king but one of the house of Jehu; the prophecy in this verse was fulfilled by the murder of his son, who reigned only six months (4 Kgs 15, 8-10).

1, 6: Lo-ruhama: "she is not pitied." The "pity" that is here withheld from Israel is God's gratuitous love which inspires His beneficent acts.

1, 7: The terrible punishments announced by the prophets were so fully realized that later generations made a point of recalling the same prophets' messages of consolation also, even though it meant taking these from another context. Thus, an editor placed the words of Os 2, 1ff after the repudiation of Israel in Os 1, 9; here the more natural order has been restored. The present verse is another example of the same thing. In addition, it may be the work of a later hand, dating from a time when the prophecies of Osee were circulated in the south, after the dissolution of the Northern Kingdom that he had prophesied. The second part of the verse emphasizes the power of the Lord, who needs no human agents to fulfill His will. It may refer to the deliverance of Jerusalem from the siege of Sennacherib (4 Kgs 19, 35ff).

1, 9: Lo-ammi: "not my people."

2, 4: The Lord speaks of Israel, still using the example of Osee's wife.

2, 5: I will strip her naked: contemporary documents indicate that this was a conventional punishment for adultery.

2, 7: My lovers: the local fertility deities to whom, rather than to the Lord (v 10), the unfaithful Israelites attributed the produce of the land.

2, 8f: The crop failures, blight, etc., sent by the Lord (vv 11-14) have as their purpose to make Israel see the folly of her ways.

so that she cannot find her paths. [9] If she runs after her lovers, she shall not overtake them; if she looks for them she shall not find them. Then she shall say, "I will go back to my first husband, for it was better with me then than now."

[16] So I will allure her; I will lead her into the desert* and speak to her heart. [17] From there I will give her the vineyards she had, and the valley of Achor as a door of hope. She shall respond there as in the days of her youth, when she came up from the land of Egypt.

[18] On that day, says the Lord, she shall call me, "My husband," and never again "My baal."* [19] Then will I remove from her mouth the names of the Baals, so that they shall no longer be invoked. [20] I will make a covenant for them on that day, with the beasts of the field, with the birds of the air, and with the things that crawl on the ground. Bow and sword and war I will destroy from the land, and I will let them take their rest in security.

[21] *I will espouse you to me forever: I will espouse you in right and in justice, in love and in mercy; [22] I will espouse you in fidelity, and you shall know the Lord.

[23] On that day I will respond, says the Lord; I will respond to the heavens, and they shall respond to the earth; [24] the earth shall respond to the grain, and wine, and oil, and these shall respond to Jezrael. [25] a I will sow him for myself in the land, and I will have pity on Lo-ruhama. I will say to Lo-ammi, "You are my people," and he shall say, "My God!"

CHAPTER 3.

Triumph of Love. [1] Again the Lord said to me:* Give your love to a woman beloved of a paramour, an adulteress; even as the Lord loves the people of Israel, though they turn to other gods and are fond of raisin cakes.* [2] So I bought her for fifteen pieces of silver and a homor* and a lethec of barley. [3] Then I said to her: "Many days you shall wait for me; you shall not play the harlot or belong to any man; I in turn will wait for you."

[4] For the people of Israel shall remain many days without king or prince, without sacrifice or sacred pillar,* without ephod or household idols. [5] b Then the people of Israel shall turn back and seek the Lord, their God, and David, their king;* they shall come trembling to the Lord and to his bounty, in the last days.

[1] *The number of the Israelites shall be like the sand of the sea,c which can be neither measured nor counted. Whereas they were called, "Lo-ammi," they shall be called, "Children of the living God." [2] Then the people of Juda and of Israel shall be gathered together; they shall appoint for themselves one head and come up from other lands, for great shall be the day of Jezrael. [3] Say to your brothers, "Ammi," and to your sisters, "Ruhama."

II: ISRAEL'S GUILT AND PUNISHMENT

CHAPTER 4.

Crimes of Israel. [1] Hear the word of the Lord, O people of Israel, for the Lord has a grievance against the inhabitants of the land: There is no fidelity, no mercy, no knowledge of God in the land. [2] d False a Rom 9, 25; I Pt 2, 10.—b Rom 9, 26.—c Ez 34, 23.—d Ex 20, 13-17.

2, 16f: Israel's journey in the desert represents for Osee the time of Israel's fidelity, before it was corrupted by the ways of Chanaan; cf Jer 2, 2-7; Am 5, 25. Thus, he pictures a restoration in terms of a new entry into the promised land.

2, 18: My baal: the word means "lord, master." It was commonly used by women of their husbands, but it is to be shunned as a title for the Lord because of its association with the pagan god Baal. Probably it had been so used by many Israelites, who saw little if any difference between the worship of the Lord and the worship of Baal.

2, 21f: The Lord will once more espouse Israel; the qualities ascribed to the renewed people are the bridal gift (cf Gn 24, 53) with which he will endow it. In right and in justice: two terms dear to Osee, used by him especially to condemn the popular social injustice and corruption of the legal processes. Here they mean right conduct in general. Love: one of the most characteristic words of Osee's prophecy. It means a dutiful love, based on a social relation; here it refers to the covenant between God and His people. It is a love fulfilled by the performance of mutual obligations. Mercy: from the same root as the word translated pity in Os 1, 6; cf v 25. And you shall know the Lord: another characteristic expression of Osee; cf Os 4, 1; 5, 4; 6, 3. 6. It means not an abstract but a practical knowledge, i. e., acknowledgment ofHis will, obedience to His law.

3, 1-5: Osee is instructed to take Gomer back, redeeming her from her paramours. On condition of her amendment, she will be restored to her former position of wife. This in turn signifies God's enduring love for His people. He will put the people through a period of trial—the dissolution of the kingdom—in order that they may return to Him wholeheartedly.

3, 1: Raisin cakes: offerings to the fertility goddess Ashera, the female counterpart of Baal; cf Jer 7, 18; 44, 19.

3, 2: Homor: about ten bushels. Lethec: a half-homor.

3, 4: Sacred pillar: the stone massebah, originally perhaps a phallic symbol, representing Baal. These were also used, with another signification, in Israelite worship; see notes on Gn 28, 18; Ex 34, 13. Ephod: an instrument used in consulting the deity; cf 1 Kgs 23, 6-12; 30, 7; see notes on Ex 28, 6. 15-30. Household idols: images regarded as the tutelary deities of the household; cf Gn 31, 19; Jgs 17, 5; 18, 14. 17f.

3. 5: David, their king: the Messianic king of the Davidic line who will restore the kingdom of God's people; cf Jer 23, 5; Ez 34, 23f. The last days: the Messianic age.

2, 1-3: These verses (transposed from ch 2) continue the conditional promise of restoration made in Os 3, 1-5, reversing the dire predictions of chapter 1; the symbolic names now become names of honor: Jezrael, "God sows"; Ammi, "my people"; Ruhama, "she is pitied."

swearing, lying, murder, stealing and adultery! In their lawlessness, bloodshed follows bloodshed. 3 Therefore the land mourns, and everything that dwells in it languishes: the beasts of the field, the birds of the air, and even the fish of the sea perish.

Guilt of the Priests. 4 But let no one protest, let no one complain; with you is my grievance, O priests!* 5 You shall stumble in the day, and the prophets shall stumble with you at night; I will destroy your mother. 6 My people perish for want of knowledge! Since you have rejected knowledge, I will reject you from my priesthood; since you have ignored the law of your God, I will also ignore your sons.

7 One and all they sin against me, exchanging their glory for shame. 8 They feed on the sin of my people, and are greedy for their guilt. 9 e The priests shall fare no better than the people: I will punish them for their ways, and repay them for their deeds. 10 They shall eat but not be satisfied, they shall play the harlot but not increase, because they have abandoned the Lord 11 to practice harlotry.

Old wine and new deprive my people of understanding. 12 They consult their piece of wood, and their wand* makes pronouncements for them, for the spirit of harlotry has led them astray; they commit harlotry, forsaking their God. 13 On the mountaintops they offer sacrifice and on the hills they burn incense, beneath oak and poplar and terebinth, because of their pleasant shade. That is why your daughters play the harlot, and your daughters-in-law are adulteresses. 14 Am I then to punish your daughters for their harlotry, your daughters-in-law for their adultery? You yourselves consort with harlots; and with prostitutes you offer sacrifice!* So must a people without understanding come to ruin.

15 Though you play the harlot, O Israel, let not Juda become guilty! Come not to Galgal,* nor up to Beth-Aven, to swear, "As the Lord lives!" 16 For Israel is as stubborn as a heifer; will the Lord now give them broad pastures as though they were lambs? 17 Ephraim* is an associate of idols, let him alone! 18 When their carousing is over, they give themselves to harlotry; in their arrogance they love shame. 19 The wind has bound them up in its pinions; they shall have only shame from their altars.*

CHAPTER 5.

Guilt of the Leaders. 1 Hear this, O priests, pay attention, O house of Israel,f O household of the king, give ear! It is you who are called to judgment. For you have become a snare at Maspha,* and a net spread upon Thabor. 2 In their perversity they have sunk into wickedness, and I am rejected by them all.

3 I know Ephraim, and Israel is not hidden from me; now Ephraim has played the harlot, Israel is defiled. 4 Their deeds do not allow them to return to their God; for the spirit of harlotry is in them, and they do not recognize the Lord.

5 The arrogance of Israel bears witness against him; Ephraim stumbles in his guilt, and Juda stumbles with them. 6 With their flocks and their herds they shall go to seek the Lord, but they shall not find him; he has withdrawn himself from them. 7 They have been untrue to the Lord, for they have begotten illegitimate children; now shall the new moon devour them together with their fields.

Political Upheavals.* 8 Blow the horn in Gabaa, the trumpet in Rama!* Sound the

4, 4ff: Osee is particularly severe with the priests in the Northern Kingdom, who had led the way in the general apostasy from God's law. The prophets here associated with the priests (v 5) were doubtless cult prophets, who were often unworthy of their pretended calling; cf Jer 2, 8; 4, 9f; 6, 13f; 23, 9-40.

4, 12: Wood . . . wand: an idol used in divination.

4, 14: With prostitutes you offer sacrifice: the ritual prostitution practiced at the Chanaanite shrines was introduced even into sanctuaries dedicated to the Lord. In comparison, the adultery that had become common in Israel was a far less reprehensible crime.

4, 15: Galgal: not the Galgal of the south (Jos 4, 19f), but a sanctuary north of Bethel where there was an association of cult prophets (4 Kgs 2, 1ff; 4, 38). Beth-Aven: literally, "house of iniquity," Osee's nickname for Bethel, or a scribal substitute for Bethel, "house of god," in this context. Bethel was one of the royal shrines of Israel, where there was a schismatic public worship of the Lord; cf 3 Kgs 12, 26-30.

4, 17: Ephraim: the heartland of the Northern Kingdom. During the latter part of Osee's prophetic career, Ephraim was all that remained of Israel after the Assyrians had overrun Transjordan and Galilee.

4, 19: The Israelites shall be carried from their country as by a whirlwind. To this their idolatry has brought them.

5, 1: Maspha: probably the Maspha in Transjordan is meant; cf Jos 11, 8. Thabor: the mountain that dominates the valley of Jezrael.

5, 8-14: This passage refers to the Syro-Ephraimite war of 735-734 B. C., where a coalition of Aramea ns and Israelites attempted to dethrone the king of Juda. Juda repulsed the attempt with the aid of Assyria, and the latter devastated both Aram and Israel; cf 4 Kgs 16, 5-9. Osee condemns both Israel and Juda for the war.

5, 8: A vision of invasion, from Gabaa and Rama in northern Juda, into Israel.

alarm in Beth-Aven: "Look behind you, O Benjamin!" [9] Ephraim shall become a waste on the day of chastisement: against the tribes of Israel I announce what is sure to be. [10] g The princes of Juda have become like those that move a boundary line;* upon them I will pour out my wrath like water.

[11] Is Ephraim maltreated, his rights violated? No, he has willingly gone after filth!* [12] I am like a moth for Ephraim, like maggots* for the house of Juda. [13]
When Ephraim saw his infirmity, and Juda his sore, Ephraim went to Assyria, and Juda sent to the great king.* But he cannot heal you nor take away your sore.
[14] For I am like a lion to Ephraim, like a young lion to the house of Juda; it is I who rend the prey and depart, I carry it away and no one can save it from me.

Insincere Conversion. [15] I will go back to my place until they pay for their guilt and seek my presence.*

CHAPTER 6.

[1] In their affliction, they shall look for me: "Come, let us return to the Lord, for it is he who has rent, but he will heal us; he has struck us, but he will bind our wounds. [2] h He will revive us after two days; on the third day* he will raise us up, to live in his presence. [3] Let us know, let us strive to know the Lord; as certain as the dawn is his coming, and his judgment shines forth like the light of day!
He will come to us like the rain, like spring rain that waters the earth."

[4] What can I do with you, Ephraim?
What can I do with you, Juda? Your piety* is like a morning cloud, like the dew that early passes away. [5] For this reason I smote them through the prophets, I slew them by the words of my mouth; [6] i for it is love that I desire, not sacrifice, and knowledge of God rather than holocausts. [7] But they, in their land, violated the covenant; there they were untrue to me.

[8] Galaad is a city of evildoers, tracked with blood. [9] As brigands ambush a man, a band of priests slay on the way to Sichem, committing monstrous crime. [10]
In the house of Israel I have seen a horrible thing: there harlotry is found in Ephraim, Israel is defiled. [11] For you also,
O Juda, a harvest* has been appointed.

CHAPTER 7.

[1] When I would bring about the restoration of my people, when I would heal Israel, the guilt of Ephraim stands out, the wickedness of Samaria; they practice falsehood, thieves break in, bandits plunder abroad. [2] Yet they do not remind themselves that I remember all their wickedness. Even now their crimes surround them, present to my sight.

Failure of the Monarchy.* [3] In their wickedness they regale the king, the princes too, with their deceits. [4] They are all kindled to wrath like a blazing oven, whose fire the baker desists from stirring once the dough is kneaded until it has risen. [5] On the day of our king, the princes are overcome with the heat of wine. He extends his hand among dissemblers; [6] the plotters approach with hearts like ovens. All the night their anger sleeps; in the morning it flares like a blazing fire.
[7] They are all heated like ovens, and consume their rulers. All their kings have fallen; none of them calls upon me.

Foreign Alliances. [8] Ephraim mingles with the nations, Ephraim is a hearth cake unturned.* [9] Strangers have sapped his strength, but he takes no notice of it; of gray hairs, too, there is a sprinkling, but he takes no notice of it. [10] The arrogance

5, 11: Gone after filth: by allying himself with Aram.

5, 12: Moth . . . maggots: internal corruption will work the Lord's punishment on both Israel and Juda.

5, 13: Ephraim went . . . the great king: in 738 B. C. the Israelite King Manahem had to pay tribute to the Assyrian king Tiglath-pileser III, whose vassal he became (4 Kgs 15, 19f). Under the threat of the Syro-Ephraimite invasion King Achaz of Juda also submitted himself and his country to Tiglath-pileser (4 Kgs 16, 7-9). "The great king" was the title used by the Assyrian kings.

5, 15: The Lord withdraws himself from Israel, hoping for its repentance.

6, 2: After two days; on the third day: after a short lapse of time.

6, 4: Piety: the word is translated "love" in Os 2, 21 and in v 6 below.

6, 11: Harvest: when the land will reap the consequences of its sins.

7, 3-7: This passage refers to the dynastic upheavals of Israel's declining days. Between the death of Jeroboam II and the fall of Samaria to the Assyrians, a matter of some twenty five years, there were four separate dynasties on the throne and as many murdered kings. The prophet compares the Israelite nobles who were inflamed with passion to an overheated oven that consumes what it is supposed to bake; thus the land consumes its kings. Regale: with wine (v 5). Like fire smoldering through the night and blazing up in the morning, the sleeping anger of plotters soon breaks out in open rebellion; the succession of night and morning suggests the short reigns of the various kings of this troubled period.

7, 8: A hearth cake unturned: burnt on one side, half baked on the other, and therefore useless. Israel's decline in power is ascribed to its disastrous meddling in the power politics of the neighboring nations.

of Israel bears witness against him; yet they do not return to the Lord, their God, nor seek him, for all that.

11 Ephraim is like a dove, silly and senseless; they call upon Egypt, they go to Assyria. 12 Even as they go I will spread my net around them, like birds in the air I will bring them down. In an instant I will send them captive from their land.

Perversity of Israel. 13 Woe to them, they have strayed from me! Ruin to them, they have sinned against me! Though I wished to redeem them they spoke lies against me. 14 They have not cried to me from their hearts when they wailed upon their beds; for wheat and wine they lacerated themselves,* while they rebelled against me. 15 Though I trained and strengthened their arms, yet they devised evil against me. 16 They have again become useless, like a treacherous bow. Their princes shall fall by the sword because of the insolence of their tongues; thus they shall be mocked in the land of Egypt.

CHAPTER 8.

1 A trumpet to your lips, you who watch over the house of the Lord! Since they have violated my covenant, and sinned against my law, 2 while to me they cry out, "O God of Israel, we know you!" 3 The men of Israel have thrown away what is good; the enemy shall pursue them.

4 *They made kings, but not by my authority; they established princes, but without my approval. With their silver and gold they made idols for themselves, to their own destruction. 5 Cast away your calf, O Samaria! my wrath is kindled against them; how long will they be unable to attain innocence in Israel? 6 The work of an artisan, no god at all, destined for the flames—such is the calf of Samaria!

7 When they sow the wind, they shall reap the whirlwind; the stalk of grain that forms no ear can yield no flour; even if it could, strangers would swallow it. 8 Israel is swallowed up; he is now among the nations a thing of no value. 9 They went up to Assyria—a wild ass off on its own—Ephraim bargained for lovers. 10 Even though they bargain with the nations, I will now gather an army; king and princes shall shortly succumb under the burden.

11 When Ephraim made many altars to expiate sin, his altars became occasions of sin.* 12 Though I write for him my many ordinances, they are considered as a stranger's. 13 Though they offer sacrifice, immolate flesh and eat it, the Lord is not pleased with them. He shall still remember their guilt and punish their sins; they shall return to Egypt. 14 i Israel has forgotten his maker and built palaces. Juda, too, has fortified many cities; but I will send fire upon his cities, to devour their castles.

CHAPTER 9.

Exile without Worship. 1 Rejoice not, O Israel, exult not like the nations! For you have been unfaithful to your God, loving a harlot's hire upon every threshing floor.* 2 Threshing floor and wine press shall not nourish them, the new wine shall fail them.

3 They shall not dwell in the Lord's land; Ephraim shall return to Egypt, and in Assyria they shall eat unclean food. 4 They shall not pour libations of wine to the Lord, or proffer their sacrifices before him. Theirs will be like mourners' bread,* that makes unclean all who eat of it; such food as they have shall be for themselves; it cannot enter the house of the Lord.

5 What will you do on the festival day, the day of the Lord's feast?* 6 When they go from the ruins, Egypt shall gather them in, Memphis shall bury them. Weeds

j Am 2, 5.

7, 14: They lacerated themselves: a common oriental practice in prayers of earnest impetration (3 Kgs 18, 28); the practice was forbidden in Israelite religion (Lv 19, 28; Dt 14, 1).

8, 4-6: Israel's monarchy and separate sanctuary are here associated, as in 3 Kgs 12, 20-33; both were the result of rebellion against the divinely approved Davidic dynasty and the Jerusalem temple with the Ark of the Covenant. The calf image set up by Jeroboam I in the royal shrines prevented Israel from attaining innocence (vv 5f).

8, 11: The very multiplicity of sanctuaries throughout the land was a danger to the purity of worship. The local shrines were speedily assimilated to the cult places used by the Chanaanites, and the Lord was identified with the god Baal worshiped there. Thus the Deuteronomic writers, influenced by prophetic ideas, ended by restricting sacrificial worship to the one temple in Jerusalem.

9, 1f: Upon every threshing floor: an allusion to harvest festivals in honor of Baal, to whom the Israelites had attributed the fertility of the land; cf Os 2, 7.

9, 4: Mourners' bread: bread eaten at funeral rites; cf Dt 26, 13f. Contact with a corpse made a person ritually unclean, together with everything he touched. Such bread could not be offered to the Lord.

9, 5: The Lord's feast: doubtless the autumn feast of Booths, the most important of the Israelite public celebrations; cf Lv 23, 34.

shall overgrow their silver treasures, and thorns invade their tents.

The Prophet Ridiculed. 7 They have come, the days of punishment! they have come, the days of recompense! Let Israel know it! "The prophet is a fool, the man of the spirit is mad!" Because your iniquity is great, great, too, is your hostility.

8 A prophet is Ephraim's watchman with God, yet a fowler's snare is on all his ways, hostility in the house of his God. 9 They have sunk to the depths of corruption, as in the days of Gabaa;* he shall remember their iniquity and punish their sins.

Crime of Baal-Phogor. 10 Like grapes in the desert, I found Israel; like the first fruits of the fig tree in its prime, I considered your fathers. When they came to Baal-Phogor* and consecrated themselves to the Shame, they became as abhorrent as the thing they loved. 11 The glory of Ephraim flies away like a bird: no birth, no carrying in the womb, no conception. Were they to bear children, I would slay the darlings of their womb. 12 Even though they bring up their children, I will make them childless, till not one is left. Woe to them when I turn away from them! 13 Ephraim, as I saw, was like Tyre, planted in a beauteous spot; but Ephraim shall bring out his children to the slayer. 14 Give them, O Lord! give them what? Give them an unfruitful womb,* and dry breasts!

Crime of Galgal. 15 k All their wickedness is in Galgal;* yes, there they incurred my hatred. Because of their wicked deeds I will drive them out of my house. I will love them no longer; all their princes are rebels.

16 Ephraim is stricken, their root is dried up; they shall bear no fruit.

17 My God will disown them because they have not listened to him; they shall be wanderers among the nations.

CHAPTER 10.

Punishment of Idolatry. 1 Israel is a luxuriant vine whose fruit matches its growth. The more abundant his fruit, the more altars he built; the more productive his land, the more sacred pillars* he set up. 2 Their heart is false, now they pay for their guilt; God shall break down their altars and destroy their sacred pillars. 3 If they would say, "We have no king"—since they do not fear the Lord, what can the king do for them? 4 Nothing but make promises, swear false oaths, and make alliances, while justice grows wild like wormwood* in a plowed field!

5 The inhabitants of Samaria fear for the calf of Beth-Aven;* the people mourn for it and its priests wail over it, because the glory has departed from it. 6 It too shall be carried to Assyria, as an offering to the great king. Ephraim shall be taken into captivity, Israel be shamed by his schemes.

7 The king of Samaria shall disappear, like foam upon the waters. 8 l The high places of Aven shall be destroyed, the sin of Israel; thorns and thistles shall overgrow their altars. Then they shall cry out to the mountains, "Cover us!" and to the hills, "Fall upon us!"

9 m Since the days of Gabaa you have sinned, O Israel. There they took their stand; war was not to reach them in Gabaa. 10 n Against the wanton people I came and I chastised them; I gathered troops against them when I chastised them for their two crimes.*

Time to Seek the Lord. 11 Ephraim was a trained heifer, willing to thresh; I myself laid a yoke upon her fair neck; Ephraim was to be harnessed, Juda was to plow, Jacob was to break his furrows: 12 o "Sow for yourselves justice, reap the fruit of piety; break up for yourselves a new field, for it is time to seek the Lord, till he come and rain down justice upon you." 13 But you have cultivated wickedness, reaped perversity, and eaten the fruit of falsehood.

Because you have trusted in your chariots, and in your many warriors, 14 p turmoil shall break out among your tribes

9, 14: An unfruitful womb: this appears to be a reversal of the ancient blessing of Joseph contained in Gn 49, 25f, in which the increase, hence fruitfulness, promised to the patriarch is even signified by the name of his son Ephraim, on whose descendants the prophet now invokes the curse of extinction.

and all your fortresses shall be ravaged as Salman ravaged Beth-Arbel* in time of war, smashing mothers and their children.
15 So shall it be done to you, Bethel, because of your utter wickedness: at dawn the king of Israel shall perish utterly.

CHAPTER 11.

When Israel Was a Child. 1 When Israel was a child I loved him, out of Egypt* I called my son. q 2 The more I called them, the farther they went from me, sacrificing to the Baals and burning incense to idols.
3 Yet it was I who taught Ephraim to walk, who took them in my arms; 4 I drew them with human cords, with bands of love;* I fostered them like one who raises an infant to his cheeks; yet, though I stooped to feed my child, they did not know that I was their healer.

5 He shall return to the land of Egypt, and Assyria shall be his king; 6 the sword shall begin with his cities and end by consuming his solitudes. Because they refused to repent, their own counsels shall devour them. 7 His people are in suspense about returning to him; and God, though in unison they cry out to him, shall not raise them up.

End of the Exile. 8 r How could I give you up, O Ephraim, or deliver you up, O Israel? How could I treat you as Adama, or make you like Seboim?* My heart is overwhelmed, my pity is stirred.
9 I will not give vent to my blazing anger,
I will not destroy Ephraim again; for I am God and not man, the Holy One present among you; I will not let the flames consume you.

10 They shall follow the Lord, who roars like a lion; when he roars, his sons shall come frightened from the west, 11 out of Egypt they shall come trembling, like sparrows, from the land of Assyria, like doves; and I will resettle them in their homes, says the Lord.

CHAPTER 12.

Infidelity of Israel. 1 Ephraim has surrounded me with lies, the house of Israel, with deceit; Juda is still rebellious against God, against the Holy One, who is faithful. 2 Ephraim chases the wind, ever pursuing the gale. His lies and falsehoods are many: he comes to terms with Assyria, and carries oil to Egypt.*

3 *The Lord has a grievance against Israel: he shall punish Jacob for his conduct, for his deeds he shall repay him.
4 s In the womb he supplanted his brother, and as a man he contended with God;
5 he contended with the angel and triumphed, entreating him with tears. At Bethel he met God and there he spoke with him: 6 the Lord, the God of hosts, the Lord is his name! 7 You shall return by the help of your God, if you remain loyal and do right and always hope in your God.

8 A merchant who holds a false balance, who loves to defraud! 9 Though Ephraim says, "How rich I have become;
I have made a fortune!" all his gain shall not suffice him for the guilt of his sin.
10 I am the Lord, your God, since the land of Egypt; I will again have you live in tents, as in that appointed time. 11 I granted many visions and spoke to the prophets, through whom I set forth examples. 12 In Galaad is falsehood, they have come to nought, in Galgal they sacrifice to bullocks; their altars are like heaps of stones in the furrows of the field.

13 t When Jacob fled to the land of Aram, he served for a wife; for a wife Israel tended sheep. 14 u By a prophet* the Lord brought Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet they were protected. 15 Ephraim has exasperated his Lord; therefore he shall cast his blood-guilt upon him and repay him for his outrage.

11, 1: Out of Egypt: Osee, like most of the prophets, dates the real beginning of Israel from the time of Moses and the Exodus. Mt 2, 15 applies this text to the return of the Christ Child from Egypt.

11, 4: I drew them . . . with bands of love: not forcing them like draft animals, but drawing them with kindness and affection.

11, 8: Adama . . . Seboim: cities destroyed with Sodom and Gomorra (Dt 29, 22).

12, 2: He comes . . . Egypt: allusion to the commercial and military pacts with the great powers, consistently condemned by the prophets as derogatory of the Lord's claim on His people.

12, 3-7: Contemporary Israel and the Israel represented by its ancestor Jacob (Israel) are here alternated, a splendid example of the Hebrew concept of "corporate personality" or easy transition from the individual to the community of which he is part. Osee recalls the history of Jacob as it now appears in Genesis, but with some differences of detail and order.

12, 14: A prophet: Moses.

was exalted in Israel; but he sinned through Baal and died.

Punishment for Ingratitude. 2 Now they continue to sin, making for themselves molten images, silver idols according to their fancy, all of them the work of artisans. "To these," they say, "offer sacrifice." Men kiss calves! 3 Therefore, they shall be like a morning cloud or like the dew that early passes away, like chaff storm-driven from the threshing floor or like smoke out of the window.

4 v I am the Lord, your God, since the land of Egypt; you know no God besides me, and there is no savior but me. 5 I fed you in the desert, in the torrid land. 6 They ate their fill; when filled, they became proud of heart and forgot me. 7 Therefore, I will be like a lion to them, like a panther by the road I will keep watch. 8 I will attack them like a bear robbed of its young, and tear their hearts from their breasts; I will devour them on the spot like a lion, as though a wild beast were to rend them.

9 Your destruction, O Israel! who is there to help you? 10 w Where now is your king, that he may rescue you in all your cities? And your rulers, of whom you said, "Give me a king and princes"? 11 I give you a king in my anger, and I take him away in my wrath.*

12 The guilt of Israel is wrapped up, his sin is stored away. 13 The birth pangs shall come for him, but he shall be an unwise child; for when it is time he shall not present himself where children break forth.* 14 x Shall I deliver them from the power of the nether world? shall I redeem them from death? Where are your plagues, O death! where is your sting, O nether world!* My eyes are closed to compassion.

15 y Though he be fruitful among his fellows, an east wind shall come, a wind from the Lord, rising from the desert, that shall dry up his spring, and leave his fountain dry. It shall loot his land of every precious thing.

CHAPTER 14.

1 Samaria shall expiate her guilt, for she has rebelled against her God. They shall fall by the sword, their little ones shall be dashed to pieces, their expectant mothers shall be ripped open.

Sincere Conversion. 2 Return, O Israel, to the Lord, your God; you have collapsed through your guilt. 3 Take with you words, and return to the Lord; say to him, "Forgive all iniquity, and receive what is good, that we may render as offerings the bullocks from our stalls. 4 Assyria will not save us, nor shall we have horses to mount; we shall say no more, 'Our god,' to the work of our hands; for in you the orphan finds compassion."

5 I will heal their defection, I will love them freely; for my wrath is turned away from them. 6 I will be like the dew for Israel: he shall blossom like the lily; he shall strike root like the Lebanon cedar, 7 and put forth his shoots. His splendor shall be like the olive tree and his fragrance like the Lebanon cedar. 8 Again they shall dwell in his shade and raise grain; they shall blossom like the vine, and his fame shall be like the wine of Lebanon.

9 Ephraim! What more has he to do with idols? I have humbled him, but I will prosper him. "I am like a verdant cypress tree" – because of me you bear fruit!

10 *Let him who is wise understand these things; let him who is prudent know them. Straight are the paths of the Lord, in them the just walk, but sinners stumble in them.

13, 11: I give you a king . . . in my wrath: the Lord punishes the people of the Northern Kingdom by giving them incompetent kings who are soon deposed.

13, 13: Israel's sin is such as to warrant its destruction (v 12), because it refuses to do penance. It will therefore perish as surely as the unborn child which dies in its mother's body because it does not properly employ the only way to safety.

13, 14: Where . . . nether world: a vigorous affirmation of the Lord's determination to destroy Israel. St. Paul cites these words in a different sense (1 Cor 15, 54f), that of the ultimate victory of life over death in the resurrection of the body on the last day, wrought through the merits of Christ's passion and resurrection.

14, 10: A later addition in the style of the wisdom literature.

THE BOOK OF JOEL

This prophecy is rich in apocalyptic imagery and strongly eschatological in tone. It was composed about 400 B. C. Its prevailing theme is the Day of the Lord.

A terrible invasion of locusts ravaged Juda. So frightful was the scourge that the prophet visualized it as a symbol of the coming Day of the Lord. In the face of this threatening catastrophe, the prophet summoned the people to repent, to turn to the Lord with fasting and weeping. They were ordered to convoke a solemn assembly in which the priests would pray for deliverance. The Lord answered their prayer and promised to drive away the locusts and bless the land with peace and prosperity. To these material blessings would be added an outpouring of the spirit on all flesh. St. Peter, in his first discourse before the people at Pentecost (Acts 2, 16-21), sees in the coming of the Holy Spirit the fulfillment of this promise (1, 1-3, 5).

The concluding poem pictures the nations gathered in the Valley of Josaphat, where the Lord is about to pass judgment. Israel's enemies are summoned to hear the solemn indictment; their evil deeds are at last requited. The tumultuous throng assembled in the valley of decision is made up of the enemies of God and they face inevitable destruction. The oracle changes abruptly from the terrifying image of judgment to a vision of Israel restored and forever secure from her enemies. God is both the vindicator of His people and the source of their blessings (4, 1-21).

CHAPTER 1.

The Land Invaded. 1 The word of the Lord which came to Joel, the son of Phathuel.

2 Hear this, you elders! Pay attention, all you who dwell in the land! Has the like of this happened in your days, or in the days of your fathers? 3 Tell it to your children, and your children to their children, and their children to the next generation. 4 What the cutter left, the locust swarm has eaten; what the locust swarm left, the grasshopper has eaten; and what the grasshopper left, the devourer* has eaten.

5 Wake up, you drunkards, and weep; wail, all you drinkers of wine, because the juice of the grape will be withheld from your mouths. 6 For a people* has invaded my land, mighty and without number; his teeth are the teeth of a lion, and his molars those of a lioness. 7 He has laid waste my vine, and blighted my fig tree; he has stripped it, sheared off its bark; its branches are made white.

8 Lament like a virgin girt with sackcloth for the spouse of her youth. 9 Abolished are offering and libation from the house of the Lord; in mourning are the priests, the ministers of the Lord. 10 The field is ravaged, the earth mourns, because the grain is ravaged, the must has failed, the oil languishes.

11 Be appalled, you husbandmen! wail, you vinedressers! Over the wheat and the barley, because the harvest of the field has perished. 12 The vine has dried up, the fig tree is withered; the pomegranate, the date palm also, and the apple, all the trees of the field are dried up; yes, joy has withered away from among mankind.

Call to Penance. 13 Gird yourselves and weep, O priests! wail, O ministers of the altar! Come, spend the night in sackcloth, O ministers of my God! The house of your God is deprived of offering and libation. 14 [a] Proclaim a fast, call an assembly; gather the elders, all who dwell in the land, into the house of the Lord, your God, and cry to the Lord!

15 Alas, the day! for near is the day of the Lord, and it comes as ruin from the Almighty. 16 From before our very eyes has not the food been cut off; and from the house of our God, joy and gladness? 17 The casks rot away under their lids, the stores are destroyed, the barns are broken down, for the grain has failed. 18 How the beasts groan! The herds of cattle are bewildered! Because they have no pasturage, even the flocks of sheep have perished.

19 To you, O Lord, I cry! for fire has devoured the pastures of the plain, and flame has enkindled all the trees of the field. 20 Even the beasts of the field cry out to you; for the streams of water are dried up, and fire has devoured the pastures of the plain.

CHAPTER 2.

The Day of the Lord. 1 Blow the trumpet in Sion, sound the alarm on my holy mountain! Let all who dwell in the land tremble, for the day of the Lord is coming; 2 yes, it is near, a day of darkness and of gloom, a day of clouds and somberness!

Like dawn spreading over the mountains, a people numerous and mighty! Their like has not been from of old, nor will it be after them, even to the years of distant generations. 3 Before them a fire devours, and after them a flame enkindles; like the garden of Eden is the land before them, and after them a desert waste; from them there is no escape.

4 Their appearance is that of horses; like steeds they run. 5 As with the rumble of chariots they leap on the mountaintops; as with the crackling of a fiery flame devouring stubble; like a mighty people arrayed for battle. 6 Before them peoples are in torment, every face blanches.

7 Like warriors they run, like soldiers they scale the wall; they advance, each in his own lane, without swerving from their paths. 8 No one crowds another, each advances in his own track; though they fall into the ditches, they are not checked.

9 They assault the city, they run upon the wall, they climb into the houses; in at the windows they come like thieves.

10 b Before them the earth trembles, the heavens shake; the sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withhold their brightness.

11 c The Lord raises his voice at the head of his army; for immense indeed is his camp, yes, mighty, and it does his bidding. For great is the day of the Lord, and exceedingly terrible; who can bear it?

12 Yet even now, says the Lord, return to me with your whole heart, with fasting, and weeping, and mourning; 13 d rend your hearts, not your garments, and return to the Lord, your God. For gracious and merciful is he, slow to anger, rich in kindness, and relenting in punishment. 14 e Perhaps he will again relent and leave behind him a blessing, offerings and libations for the Lord, your God.

15 f Blow the trumpet in Sion! proclaim a fast, call an assembly; 16 gather the people, notify the congregation; assemble the elders, gather the children and the infants at the breast; let the bridegroom quit his room, and the bride her chamber.

17 Between the porch and the altar* let the priests, the ministers of the Lord, weep, and say, "Spare, O Lord, your people, and make not your heritage a reproach, with the nations ruling over them! Why should they say among the peoples, 'Where is their God?' "

Blessings for God's People. 18 Then the Lord was stirred to concern for his land and took pity on his people. 19 The Lord answered and said to his people: See, I will send you grain, and wine, and oil, and you shall be filled with them; no more will I make you a reproach among the nations. 20 No, the northerner* I will remove far from you, and drive him out into a land arid and waste, with his van toward the eastern sea, and his rear toward the western sea; and his foulness shall go up, and his stench shall go up.

21 Fear not, O land! exult and rejoice! for the Lord has done great things. 22 Fear not, beasts of the field! for the pastures of the plain are green; the tree bears its fruit, the fig tree and the vine give their yield.

23 g And do you, O children of Sion, exult and rejoice in the Lord, your God! He has given you the teacher of justice:* he has made the rain come down for you, the early and the late rain as before. 24 The threshing floors shall be full of grain and the vats shall overflow with wine and oil.

25 And I will repay you for the years which the locust has eaten, the grasshopper, the devourer, and the cutter, my great army which I sent among you. 26 You shall eat and be filled, and shall

There is also a play on words here between the Hebrew word moreh (teacher) and the Hebrew word yoreh (the early rain). The expression likewise has a Messianic connotation; cf Is 30, 20. The founder of the Essene sect of Qumran (second century B. C.) was known as "The Teacher of Justice."

CHAPTER 3.

1 Then afterward I will pour out my spirit* upon all mankind.[h] Your sons and daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions; 2 even upon the servants and the handmaids, in those days, I will pour out my spirit.

3 And I will work wonders in the heavens and on the earth, blood, fire, and columns of smoke; 4 [i] the sun will be turned to darkness, and the moon to blood, at the coming of the Day of the Lord, the great and terrible day. 5 [j] Then everyone shall be rescued who calls on the name of the Lord; for on Mount Sion there shall be a remnant, as the Lord has said, and in Jerusalem survivors whom the Lord shall call.

CHAPTER 4.

Judgment upon the Nations. 1 Yes, in those days, and at that time, when I would restore the fortunes of Juda and Jerusalem, 2 I will assemble all the nations and bring them down to the Valley of Josaphat,* and I will enter into judgment with them there on behalf of my people and my inheritance, Israel; because they have scattered them among the nations, and divided my land. 3 Upon my people they have cast lots; they gave a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for the wine they drank.

4 Moreover, what are you to me, Tyre and Sidon, and all the regions of Philistia? Would you take vengeance upon me by some action? But if you do take action against me, swiftly, speedily, I will return your deed upon your own head. 5 You took my silver and my gold, and brought my precious treasures into your temples! 6 You sold the people of Juda and Jerusalem to the Greeks, removing them far from their own country! 7 See, I will rouse them from the place into which you have sold them, and I will return your deed upon your own head. 8 I will sell your sons and your daughters to the people of Juda, who shall sell them to the Sabeans,* a nation far off. Indeed, the Lord has spoken.

9 Declare this among the nations: proclaim a war, rouse the warriors to arms! Let all the soldiers report and march! 10 Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning hooks into spears;* let the weak man say, "I am a warrior!"

11 Hasten and come, all you neighboring peoples, assemble there! [Bring down, O Lord, your warriors!*] 12 Let the nations bestir themselves and come up to the Valley of Josaphat; for there will I sit in judgment upon all the neighboring nations.

13 [k] Apply the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come and tread, for the wine press is full;* the vats overflow, for great is their malice. 14 Crowd upon crowd in the valley of decision; for near is the day of the Lord in the valley of decision. 15 [l] Sun and moon are darkened, and the stars withhold their brightness. 16 [m] The Lord roars from Sion, and from Jerusalem raises his voice; the heavens and the earth quake, but the Lord is a refuge to his people, a stronghold to the men of Israel.

Salvation for God's Elect. 17 Then shall you know that I, the Lord, am your God, dwelling on Sion, my holy mountain; Jerusalem shall be holy, and strangers shall pass through her no more.

18 [n] And then, on that day, the mountains shall drip new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk; and the channels of Juda shall flow with water: a fountain shall issue from the house of the Lord,

[20] But Juda shall abide forever, and Jerusalem for all generations. [21] I will avenge their blood, and not leave it unpunished. The Lord dwells in Sion.

4, 18: The Valley of Sattim, or "the ravine of the acacia trees": perhaps a part of the Cedron Valley southeast of Jerusalem; the prophetic picture of a stream of water flowing from a fountain in the temple of Jerusalem is to be found in Ez 47, 1. The Sattim east of the Jordan (see note on Nm 25, 1) is hardly referred to here.

THE BOOK OF AMOS

Amos was a shepherd of Thecua in Juda, who exercised his ministry during the prosperous reign of Jeroboam II (786-746 B. C.). He prophesied in Israel at the great cult center of Bethel, from which he was finally expelled by the priest in charge of this royal sanctuary. The poetry of Amos, who denounces the hollow prosperity of the Northern Kingdom, is filled with imagery and language taken from his own pastoral background. The book is an anthology of his oracles and was compiled either by the prophet or by some of his disciples.

The prophecy begins with a sweeping indictment of Damascus, Philistia, Tyre, and Edom; but the forthright herdsman saves his climactic denunciation for Israel, whose injustice and idolatry are sins against the light granted to her. Israel could indeed expect the Day of Yahweh, but it would be a day of darkness, and not light. When Amos prophesied the overthrow of the sanctuary, the fall of the royal house, and the captivity of the people, it was more than Israelite officialdom could bear. The priest of Bethel drove Amos from the shrine—but not before hearing a terrible sentence pronounced upon himself.

Amos is a prophet of divine judgment, and the sovereignty of Yahweh in nature and history dominates his thought. But he was no innovator; his conservatism was in keeping with the whole prophetic tradition calling the people back to the high moral and religious demands of Yahweh's revelation. In common with the other prophets, Amos knew that divine punishment is never completely destructive; it is part of the hidden plan of God to bring salvation to men. The perversity of the human will may retard, but it cannot totally frustrate, this design of a loving God. The last oracle opens up a perspective of restoration under a Davidic king.

The Book of Amos may be divided as follows: I. Judgment of the Nations (1, 1—2, 16). II. Words and Woes for Israel (3, 1—6, 14). III. Symbolic Visions: Threats and Promises (7, 1—9, 8b). Epilogue: Messianic Perspective (9, 8c—15).

I: JUDGMENT OF THE NATIONS

CHAPTER 1.

[1] a The words of Amos, a shepherd from Thecua, which he received in vision concerning Israel, in the days of Ozia, king of Juda, and in the days of Jeroboam, son of Joas, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake:* [2] b The Lord will roar from Sion, and from Jerusalem raise his voice: the pastures of the shepherds will languish, and the summit of Carmel wither.

a Za 14, 5.—b Jer 25, 30; Jl 3, 16.

1, 1: The earthquake: which according to Hebrew tradition marked the crime of Ozia when he attempted to offer incense in the temple (2 Par 26, 16-21). Zacharia mentions it several centuries later (Za 14, 5).

1, 3: For three crimes . . . four: crime after crime, an indefinite number; cf Am 1, 6. The series of judgments on the foreign nations shows that the Lord demands the observance of the moral order everywhere; Israel and Juda, despite their privileged position, are no exception. I will not revoke my word: God will not withdraw His threat of punishment against each of these nations. They threshed Galaad: the people of Aram under King Hazael had devastated Galaad; cf 4 Kgs 10, 32f.

1, 4: Fire: devastation caused by the Assyrians (Am 1, 7. 10. 12. 14; 2, 2. 5); cf 1 Kgs 15, 18. Hazael and Benadad: kings of the Arameans whose capital was Damascus (v 5); they fought against Israel (4 Kgs 13, 3), and had long occupied the region of Galaad (v 3) in Transjordan.

1, 5: Bar of Damascus: the beam securing the main gate of the city against invaders, symbol of its defenses. Valley of Aven ("vale of wickedness") and Beth-Eden ("house of pleasure"): Aramean territory from southwest to northeast.

Aram. [3] Thus says the Lord: For three crimes of Damascus, and for four,* I will not revoke my word; because they threshed Galaad with sledges of iron, [4] I will send fire* upon the house of Hazael, to devour the castles of Benadad. [5] I will break the bar of Damascus;* I will root out those who live in the Valley of Aven, and the sceptered ruler of Beth-Eden; the people of Aram shall be exiled to Kir, says the Lord.

Philistia. [6] Thus says the Lord: For three crimes of Gaza, and for four, I will not revoke my word; because they took captive whole groups to hand over to Edom, 7 I will send fire upon the wall of Gaza, to devour her castles; I will root out those who live in Azotus, and the sceptered ruler of Ascalon; 8 I will turn my hand against Accaron, and the last of the Philistines shall perish, says the Lord God.

Tyre. 9 Thus says the Lord: For three crimes of Tyre, and for four, I will not revoke my word; because they delivered whole groups captive to Edom, and did not remember the pact of brotherhood,* 10 I will send fire upon the wall of Tyre, to devour her castles.

Edom. 11 Thus says the Lord: For three crimes of Edom, and for four, I will not revoke my word; because he pursued his brother* with the sword, choking up all pity; because he persisted in his anger and kept his wrath to the end, 12 I will send fire upon Theman,* and it will devour the castles of Bosra.

Ammon. 13 Thus says the Lord: For three crimes of the Ammonites, and for four, I will not revoke my word; because they ripped open expectant mothers in Galaad, while extending their territory, 14 I will kindle a fire upon the wall of Rabba,* and it will devour her castles amid clamor on the day of battle and stormwind in a time of tempest. 15 Their king shall go into captivity, he and his princes with him, says the Lord.

CHAPTER 2.

Moab. 1 Thus says the Lord: For three crimes of Moab, and for four, I will not revoke my word; because he burned to ashes the bones of Edom's king,* 2 I will send fire upon Moab, to devour the castles of Carioth; Moab shall meet death amid uproar and shouts and trumpet blasts. 3 I will root out the judge from her midst, and her princes I will slay with him, says the Lord.

Juda. 4 Thus says the Lord: For three crimes of Juda, and for four, I will not revoke my word; because they spurned the law of the Lord, and did not keep his statutes; because the lies* which their fathers followed have led them astray, 5 I will send fire upon Juda, to devour the castles of Jerusalem.

Israel. 6 Thus says the Lord: For three crimes of Israel, and for four, I will not revoke my word;* because they sell the just man for silver, and the poor man for a pair of sandals.* 7 They trample the heads of the weak into the dust of the earth, and force the lowly out of the way. Son and father go to the same prostitute, profaning my holy name. 8 Upon garments taken in pledge they recline beside any altar;* and the wine of those who have been fined they drink in the house of their god.

9 c Yet it was I who destroyed the Amorrites before them, who were as tall as the cedars, and as strong as the oak trees. I destroyed their fruit above, and their roots beneath. 10 d It was I who brought you up from the land of Egypt, and who led you through the desert for forty years, to occupy the land of the Amorrites; 11 I who raised up prophets among your sons, and Nazirites* among your young men. Is this not so, O men of Israel? says the Lord. 12 But you gave the Nazirites wine to drink, and commanded the prophets not to prophesy.

13 Beware, I will crush you into the ground as a wagon crushes when laden with sheaves. 14 Flight shall perish from the swift, and the strong man shall not retain his strength; the warrior shall not save his life, 15 nor the bowman stand his ground; the swift of foot shall not escape, nor the horseman save his life. 16 And the most stouthearted of warriors shall flee naked on that day, says the Lord.

c Nm 21, 24; Dt 2, 24.—d Ex 14, 21; Dt 8, 2. 14.

1, 9: Pact of brotherhood: Hiram of Tyre had made a pact with Solomon and called him brother (3 Kgs 5, 12; 9, 13).

1, 11: Pursued his brother: the Edomites were descended from Esau, the brother of Jacob (Gn 25-27); nevertheless they constantly nourished enmity against Jacob's descendants, the Israelites.

1, 12: Theman and Bosra: two of the chief cities in Edom; cf Jer 49, 20.

1, 14: Rabba: now called Amman, the modern capital of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan.

2, 1: Here the prophet stresses the gravity of Moab's violation of the Semitic custom of providing honorable burial for the dead.

2, 4: The lies: false gods, who exist only in the minds of their worshipers. The crimes of Juda are infidelity and idolatry, in contrast to the sins for which the surrounding nations are judged.

2, 6-13: The detailed crimes of Israel are placed in strong contrast with the benefits with which the Lord favored His people.

2, 6: A pair of sandals: indicating how cheaply the rich regarded the poor.

2, 8: Upon garments . . . any altar: usurers kept the garments taken as pledges from the poor; but instead of restoring them to their owners before nightfall (Ex 22, 25; Dt 24, 12), they used them in idolatrous worship. Wine . . . their god: under the guise of a religious ceremony they drink the wine obtained through unjust fines.

2, 11: Nazirites: see note on Nm 6, 1ff.

II: WORDS AND WOES FOR ISRAEL

CHAPTER 3.

First Word. 1 Hear this word, O men of Israel, that the Lord pronounces over you, over the whole family that I brought up from the land of Egypt: 2 You alone have I favored, more than all the families of the earth;* Therefore I will punish you for all your crimes.

3 Do two walk together unless they have agreed? 4 Does a lion roar in the forest when it has no prey? Does a young lion cry out from its den unless it has seized something? 5 Is a bird brought to earth by a snare when there is no lure for it? Does a snare spring up from the ground without catching anything? 6 If the trumpet sounds in a city, will the people not be frightened? If evil befalls a city, has not the Lord caused it?* 7 Indeed, the Lord God does nothing without revealing his plan to his servants, the prophets.

8 The lion roars—who will not be afraid! The Lord God speaks — who will not prophesy!

9 Proclaim this in the castles of Azotus, in the castles of the land of Egypt:* "Gather about the mountain of Samaria, and see the great disorders within her, the oppression in her midst." 10 For they know not how to do what is right, says the Lord, storing up in their castles what they have extorted and robbed. 11 Therefore, thus says the Lord God: An enemy shall surround the land, and strip you of your strength, and pillage your castles.

12 Thus says the Lord: As the shepherd snatches from the mouth of the lion a pair of legs or the tip of an ear of his sheep, so the Israelites who dwell in Samaria shall escape with the corner of a couch or a piece of a cot.

13 Hear and bear witness against the house of Jacob, says the Lord God, the God of hosts: 14 On the day when I punish Israel for his crimes, I will visit also the altars of Bethel: the horns of the altar shall be broken off and fall to the ground. 15 Then will I strike the winter house and the summer house; the ivory apartments* shall be ruined, and their many rooms shall be no more, says the Lord.

CHAPTER 4.

Second Word. 1 Hear this word, women of the mountain of Samaria, you cows of Basan,* you who oppress the weak and abuse the needy; who say to your lords, "Bring drink for us!" 2 The Lord God has sworn by his holiness: Truly the days are coming upon you when they shall drag you away with hooks, the last of you with fishhooks; 3 you shall go out through the breached walls each by the most direct way, and you shall be cast into the mire, says the Lord.

4 Come to Bethel and sin, to Galgal, and sin the more;* each morning bring your sacrifices, every third day, your tithes; 5 burn leavened food as a thanksgiving sacrifice, proclaim publicly your freewill offerings, for so you love to do, O men of Israel, says the Lord God.

6 Though I have made your teeth clean of food in all your cities, and have made bread scarce in all your dwellings, yet you returned not to me, says the Lord.

7 Though I also withheld the rain from you when the harvest was still three months away; I sent rain upon one city but not upon another; one field was watered by rain, but another without rain dried up; 8 though two or three cities staggered to one city for water that did not quench their thirst; yet you returned not to me, says the Lord.

9 e I struck you with blight and searing wind; your many gardens and vineyards, your fig trees and olive trees the locust devoured; yet you returned not to me, says the Lord.

10 I sent upon you a pestilence like that of Egypt,* and with the sword I slew your young men; your horses I let be captured, to your nostrils I brought the stench of e Ag 2, 17.

3, 2: God's choice of Israel brought its own responsibility.

3, 6: The sufferings which sinful man experiences through the permissive will of God are presented here, as elsewhere in the Old Testament, simply as caused by the Lord.

3, 9: Israel's southern neighbors, beyond Juda, are invited by the prophetic orator to witness the moral disorders of God's people.

3, 15: Ivory apartments: rooms containing furniture inlaid in ivory, similar to the pieces discovered in the excavations at Samaria.

4, 1: Basan: the region east of the Sea of Galilee, famous for its rich pasture and fattened herds, to which Amos likens the indolent women of Samaria.

4, 4f: This invitation to the sanctuaries of the Northern Kingdom is ironical. Pilgrimages to the shrines of Bethel and Galgal were the more displeasing to God because they were contrary to His will and ineffective toward improvement of morals.

4, 10: Pestilence like that of Egypt: plagues were well known in Egypt; cf Dt 7, 15; 28, 27. 60. Stench of your camps: caused by the unburied bodies.

your camps; yet you returned not to me, says the Lord.

11 f I brought upon you such upheaval as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorra:
you were like a brand plucked from the fire;
yet you returned not to me, says the Lord.

12 So now I will deal with you in my own way, O Israel!
and since I will deal thus with you, prepare to meet your God, O Israel:
13 him who formed the mountains, and created the wind, and declares to man his thoughts;
who made the dawn and the darkness,
and strides upon the heights of the earth:
the Lord, the God of hosts by name.

CHAPTER 5.

Third Word. 1 Hear this word which I utter over you, a lament, O house of Israel:
2 She is fallen, to rise no more, the virgin Israel;
she lies abandoned upon her land, with no one to raise her up.

3 For thus says the Lord God:
The city that marched out with a thousand shall be left with a hundred, another that marched out with a hundred shall be left with ten, of the house of Israel.

4 For thus says the Lord to the house of Israel:
Seek me, that you may live,
5 but do not seek Bethel; do not come to Galgal, and do not cross to Bersabee.
For Galgal shell be led into exile, and Bethel shall become nought.
6 Seek the Lord, that you may live, lest he come upon the house of Joseph* like a fire that shall consume, with none to quench it for the house of Israel:
8 g he who made the Pleiades and Orion, who turns darkness into dawn, and darkens day into night;
who summons the waters of the sea, and pours them out upon the surface of the earth; 9 who flashes destruction upon the strong, and brings ruin upon the fortress;
whose name is Lord.

First Woe. 7 Woe to those who turn judgment to wormwood and cast justice to the ground!
10 They hate him who reproves at the gate* and abhor him who speaks the truth.
11 h Therefore, because you have trampled upon the weak and exacted of them levies of grain, though you have built houses of hewn stone, you shall not live in them!
Though you have planted choice vineyards, you shall not drink their wine!
12 Yes, I know how many are your crimes, how grievous your sins:
oppressing the just, accepting bribes, repelling the needy at the gate!
13 Therefore the prudent man is silent at this time, for it is an evil time.

14 Seek good and not evil, that you may live;
then truly will the Lord, the God of hosts, be with you as you claim!
15 i Hate evil and love good, and let justice prevail at the gate;
then it may be that the Lord, the God of hosts, will have pity on the remnant of Joseph.

16 Therefore, thus says the Lord, the God of hosts, the Lord:
In every square there shall be lamentation, and in every street they shall cry, Alas! Alas!
They shall summon the farmers to wail and professional mourners to lament, 17 and in every vineyard there shall be lamentation when I pass through your midst, says the Lord.

Second Woe. 18 j Woe to those who yearn for the day of the Lord!* What will this day of the Lord mean for you?
Darkness and not light!
19 As if a man were to flee from a lion, and a bear should meet him; or as if on entering his house he were to rest his hand against the wall, and a snake should bite him.
20 Will not the day of the Lord be darkness and not light, gloom without any brightness?

21 k I hate, I spurn your feasts,* I take no pleasure in your solemnities;
22 your cereal offerings I will not accept, nor consider your stall-fed peace offerings.
23 Away with your noisy songs! I will not listen to the melodies of your harps.
But if you would offer me holocausts, 24 then let

5, 10: At the gate: see note on Ps 126 (127), 5.

5, 18: Day of the Lord: a technical expression which in earliest times referred to God's special intervention in human affairs. Through it His power and justice triumphed in His people. The present passage is the first instance in which it means a day of punishment of sinners. During the Exile it assumed the meaning of a time when God would avenge Israel against her oppressors and bring about her restoration (Jer 50, 27; Ez 30, 3ff). Still later it came to mean the day of final judgment of the world when the good will be rewarded and the wicked punished (Mal 3, 19ff; Jl 2, 1ff; So 1, 14ff).

5, 21-27: The Lord condemns, not ritual worship in itself, but the cult whose exterior rites and solemnity have no relation to interior morality and justice. The Israelites falsely worshiped Him as neighboring nations adored Baal or Chamos, deities which were thought to protect their respective peoples against their enemies in return for ritual observances, without any relation to right conduct.

justice surge like water, and goodness like an unfailing stream. 25 l Did you bring me sacrifices and offerings for forty years in the desert, O house of Israel?* 26 You will carry away Sakkuth, your king, and Kaiwan, your star god,* the images that you have made for yourselves; 27 for I will exile you beyond Damascus, say I, the Lord, the God of hosts by name.

CHAPTER 6.

Third Woe. 1 Woe to the* complacent m in Sion, to the overconfident on the mount of Samaria,* leaders of a nation favored from the first, to whom the people of Israel have recourse! 2 Pass over to Chalane and see, go from there to Hamath the great, and down to Geth of the Philistines! Are you better than these kingdoms, or is your territory wider than theirs? 3 You would put off the evil day, yet you hasten the reign of violence!

4 Lying upon beds of ivory, stretched comfortably on their couches, they eat lambs taken from the flock, and calves from the stall! 5 Improvising to the music of the harp, like David, they devise their own accompaniment. 6 They drink wine from bowls and anoint themselves with the best oils; yet they are not made ill by the collapse of Joseph! 7 Therefore, now they shall be the first to go into exile, and their wanton revelry shall be done away with.

8 n The Lord God has sworn by his very self, say I, the Lord, the God of hosts: I abhor the pride of Jacob, I hate his castles, and I give over the city with everything in it; 9 should there remain ten men in a single house, these shall die. 10 Only a few shall be left to carry the dead out of the houses; if one says to a man inside a house, "Is anyone with you?" and he answers, "No one," then he shall say, "Silence!" for no one must mention the name of the Lord. 11 Indeed, the Lord has given the command to shatter the great house to bits, and reduce the small house to rubble.

12 Can horses run across a cliff? or can one plow the sea with oxen?* Yet you have turned judgment into gall, and the fruit of justice into wormwood. 13 You rejoice in Lodebar, and say, "Have we not, by our own strength, seized for ourselves Carnaim?"* 14 Beware, I am raising up against you, O house of Israel, say I, the Lord, the God of hosts, a nation* that shall oppress you from Labo of Hamath even to the Wadi Araba.

III: SYMBOLIC VISIONS: THREATS AND PROMISES

CHAPTER 7.

Vision of Locusts. 1 This is what the Lord God showed me: He was forming a locust swarm when the late growth began to come up (the late growth after the king's mowing*). 2 While they were eating all the grass in the land, I said: Forgive, O Lord God! How can Jacob stand? He is so small! 3 And the Lord repented of this. "It shall not be," said the Lord God.

Vision of Fire. 4 Then the Lord God showed me this: he called for a judgment by fire.* It had devoured the great abyss, and was consuming the land, 5 when I said: Cease, O Lord God! How can Jacob stand? He is so small! 6 The Lord repented of this. "This also shall not be," said the Lord God.

Vision of the Plummet. 7 Then the Lord God showed me this: he was standing by a wall, plummet in hand.* 8 The Lord asked me, "What do you see, Amos?" And when I answered, "A plummet," the Lord said: See, I will lay the plummet in the midst of my people Israel; I will for-

1 Acts 7, 42.—m Lk 6, 24.—n Jer 51, 14.

5, 25: The meaning is not certain; according to some, the idea is that during the forty years' wandering in the desert the simple, rudimentary worship of God was accompanied by the practice of justice, in contrast to the elaborate ritual unaccompanied by works of justice in the prophet's time.

5, 26: Sakkuth . . . star god: although the text is uncertain, it seems quite probable that reference is made to the Assyrian deities, Sakkuth, god of war and light, and Kaiwan, the planet Saturn. The people will go into exile, from which these gods have been unable to save them.

6, 1-7: The luxury of the people in Samaria will be punished by exile. They failed to learn the lesson from Chalane, Hamath and Geth at the approach of the powerful and warlike Assyrians.

6, 1: The complacent in Sion . . . the overconfident . . . of Samaria: the proud and self-interested rulers of Juda and Israel.

6, 12: Can horses . . . oxen?: one cannot change the course of nature, as the Israelites attempted to do by their sins of injustice.

6, 13: Lodebar . . . Carnaim: in Transjordan; they had been captured by the Israelites. Perhaps it is in irony that reference is made to these two cities, for the root of the first suggests "nothing" and that of the second, "horns" or "strength."

6, 14: A nation: Assyria.

7, 1: The king's mowing: the first mowing, a portion of which was payable to the king as a tax.

7, 4: Fire: understood by man as a burning drought.

7, 7: Plummet in hand: signifying that God is about to withdraw His mercy from His people and that the nation is to be measured for destruction.

give them no longer. 9 The high places of Isaac shall be laid waste, and the sanctuaries of Israel made desolate; I will attack the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

Amos and Amasia. 10 Amasia, the priest of Bethel, sent word to Jeroboam, king of Israel: "Amos has conspired against you here within Israel; the country cannot endure all his words. 11 For this is what Amos says: Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall surely be exiled from its land."

12 To Amos, Amasia said: "Off with you, visionary, flee to the land of Juda! There earn your bread by prophesying, 13 but never again prophesy in Bethel; for it is the king's sanctuary and a royal temple." 14 Amos answered Amasia, "I was no prophet,* nor have I belonged to a company of prophets; I was a shepherd and a dresser of sycamores. 15 The Lord took me from following the flock and said to me, 16 Go, prophesy to my people Israel. Now hear the word of the Lord!"

You say: Prophesy not against Israel, preach not against the house of Isaac. 17 Now thus says the Lord: Your wife shall be made a harlot in the city, and your sons and daughters shall fall by the sword; your land shall be divided by measuring line, and you yourself shall die in an unclean land; Israel shall be exiled far from its land.

CHAPTER 8.

Vision of the Fruit Basket. 1 This is what the Lord God showed me: a basket of ripe fruit. 2 "What do you see, Amos?" he asked. I answered, "A basket of ripe fruit." Then the Lord said to me: The time is ripe to have done with my people Israel; I will forgive them no longer. 3 The temple songs shall become wailings on that day, says the Lord God. Many shall be the corpses, strewn everywhere.—Silence!

Against Greed. 4 Hear this, you who trample upon the needy and destroy the poor of the land! 5 "When will the New Moon be over," you ask, "that we may sell our grain, and the Sabbath, that we may display the wheat? We will diminish the epha,* add to the shekel, and fix our scales for cheating! 6 We will buy the lowly man for silver, and the poor man for a pair of sandals; even the refuse of the wheat we will sell!"

7 The Lord has sworn by the pride of Jacob:* Never will I forget a thing they have done! 8 Shall not the land tremble because of this, and all who dwell in it mourn, while it rises up and tosses like the Nile, and settles back like the river of Egypt?*

9 On that day, says the Lord God, I will make the sun set at midday and cover the earth with darkness in broad daylight. 10 o I will turn your feasts into mourning and all your songs into lamentations. I will cover the loins of all with sackcloth and make every head bald. I will make them mourn as for an only son, and bring their day to a bitter end.

11 Yes, days are coming, says the Lord God, when I will send famine upon the land: not a famine of bread, or thirst for water, but for hearing the word of the Lord. 12 Then shall they wander from sea to sea and rove from the north to the east in search of the word of the Lord, but they shall not find it.

13 On that day, fair virgins and young men shall faint from thirst; 14 those who swear by the shameful idol of Samaria, "By the life of your god, O Dan!" "By the life of your lover, O Bersabee!"* those shall fall, never to rise again.

CHAPTER 9.

Vision of the Altar.* 1 I saw the Lord standing beside the altar, and he said: Strike the bases, so that the doorjambs totter till you break them off on the heads of them all! Those who are left I will slay with the sword; not one shall flee, no survivor shall escape. 2 p Though they break through to the nether world, even from there my hand shall bring them out; though they climb to the heavens, I will bring them down; 3 though they hide on the summit of Carmel, there too I will hunt them out and take them away; though they hide from my gaze in the bottom of the sea, I will command the serpent* there to bite them; [4] q though they are led into captivity by their enemies, there will I command the sword to slay them. I will fix my gaze upon them for evil, and not for good, [5] I, the Lord God of hosts. I melt the earth with my touch, so that all who dwell on it mourn, while it all rises up like the Nile, and settles back like the river of Egypt; [6] r I have built heaven, my upper chamber, and established my vault over the earth; I summon the waters of the sea and pour them out upon the surface of the earth, I, the Lord by name.

7, 14f: Amos denies that he belonged to the class of professional prophets; his vocation is due to the personal intervention of the Lord.

8, 5: Epha: a standard of measure; a little more than a bushel.

8, 7: The pride of Jacob: the sinful pride detested by God (Am 6, 8), in contrast to God Himself, who is the true Pride of Jacob.

[7] s Are you not like the Ethiopians to me, O men of Israel, says the Lord? Did I not bring the Israelites from the land of Egypt as I brought the Philistines from Caphtor and the Arameans* from Kir? [8] The eyes of the Lord God are on this sinful kingdom: I will destroy it from off the face of the earth.

Epilogue: Messianic Perspective. But I will not destroy the house of Jacob completely, says the Lord. [9] For see, I have given the command to sift the house of Israel among all the nations, as one sifts with a sieve, letting no pebble fall to the ground. [10] By the sword shall all sinners among my people die, those who say, "Evil will not reach or overtake us." [11] t On that day I will raise up the fallen hut of David;* I will wall up its breaches, raise up its ruins, and rebuild it as in the days of old, [12] that they may conquer what is left of Edom and all the nations that shall bear my name, say I, the Lord, who will do this. [13] u Yes, days are coming, says the Lord, when the plowman shall overtake the reaper, and the vintager, him who sows the seed; the juice of grapes shall drip down the mountains, and all the hills shall run with it. [14] I will bring about the restoration of my people Israel; they shall rebuild and inhabit their ruined cities, plant vineyards and drink the wine, set out gardens and eat the fruits. [15] I will plant them upon their own ground; never again shall they be plucked from the land I have given them, say I, the Lord, your God.

THE BOOK OF ABDIA

The twenty-one verses of this book contain the shortest and sternest prophecy in the Old Testament. Nothing is known of the author, although his oracle against Edom, a long-standing enemy of Israel, indicates a date of composition sometime in the fifth century B. C. During this period the Edomites had been forced to abandon their ancient home near the Gulf of Aqaba and had settled in southern Juda, where they appear among the adversaries of the Jews returning from exile.

The prophecy is a bitter cry for vengeance against Edom for its heinous crimes. The mountain of Esau will be occupied and ravaged by the enemy but Sion shall remain inviolate. Juda and Israel shall again form one nation; and that triumphant refrain of Israelite eschatology will be heard once more: "The Kingdom is the Lord's!" Many of the verses in this prophecy can be paralleled in Jer 49, 7-22, but it is difficult to determine the precise relationship between these similar passages.

CHAPTER 1.

Title and Theme. [1] The vision of Abdia. [Thus says the Lord God:] Of Edom we have heard a message from the Lord, and a herald has been sent among the nations: "Up! let us go to war against him!" a

Edom Shall Perish. [2] b See, I make you small among the nations; you are held in dire contempt. [3] The pride of your heart has deceived you: you who dwell in the clefts of the rock, whose abode is in the heights, who say in your heart, "Who will bring me down to earth?" [4] Though you go as high as the eagle, and your nest be set among the stars, from there will I bring you down, says the Lord. [5] c If thieves came to you, if robbers by night—how are you ravaged!—would they not steal till they had enough?

9, 3: Serpent: the sea monster of familiar legend, subdued by God at the time of creation and lurking still in the ocean depths; cf Ps 88 (89), 10f.

9, 7: The Ethiopians . . . the Philistines . . . the Arameans: by nature Israel is not different from any other nation. It was not because of any merit on Israel's part that God delivered them from Egypt. Caphtor: the island of Crete.

9, 11f: In Acts 15, 15ff St. James interprets this passage in a Messianic sense. Fallen hut: the kingdom. All the nations that bear My name: the Gentile peoples who shall be converted to the Lord, that is, conquered by Him, and therefore shall bear His name.

If vintagers came to you, would they not leave some gleanings?* [6] How they search Esau, seek out his hiding places! [7] To the border they drive you—all your allies;
they deceive you, they overpower you—those at peace with you; those who eat your bread lay snares beneath you: There is no understanding in him!* [8] d Shall I not, says the Lord, on that day make the wise men* disappear from Edom, and understanding from the mount of Esau?
[9] Your warriors, O Theman,* shall be crushed, till all on Mount Esau are destroyed.

The Cause. [10] e Because of violence to your brother Jacob,* disgrace shall cover you and you shall be destroyed forever.
[11] On the day when you stood by, on the day when aliens carried off his possessions, and strangers entered his gates and cast lots over Jerusalem, you too were one of them.*

[12] Gaze not upon the day of your brother, the day of his disaster; exult not over the children of Juda on the day of their ruin; speak not haughtily on the day of distress! [13] Enter not the gate of my people on the day of their calamity; gaze not, you at least, upon his misfortune on the day of his calamity; lay not hands upon his possessions on the day of his calamity! [14] Stand not at the crossroads to slay his refugees; betray not his fugitives on the day of distress!

Judgment upon the Nations. [15] f For near is the day of the Lord for all the nations! As you have done, so shall it be done to you, your deed shall come back upon your own head; [16] as you have drunk* upon my holy mountain, so shall all the nations drink continually. Yes, they shall drink and swallow, and shall become as though they had not been.

Juda Shall Be Restored. [17] *But on Mount Sion there shall be a portion saved;
the mountain shall be holy, and the house of Jacob shall take possession of those that dispossessed them. [18] The house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame; the house of Esau shall be stubble, and they shall set them ablaze and devour them; then none shall survive of the house of Esau, for the Lord has spoken. [19] They shall occupy the Ne-geb, the mount of Esau, and the foothills of the Philistines; and they shall occupy the lands of Ephraim and the lands of Samaria, and Benjamin shall occupy Galaad. [20] The captives of this host of the children of Israel shall occupy the Cha-naanite land as far as Sarephta,* and the captives of Jerusalem who are in Sepha-rad shall occupy the cities of the Negeb.
[21] And saviors* shall ascend Mount Sion to rule the mount of Esau, and the kingship shall be the Lord's.

5: Something of value may escape the robber, and the vintager always leaves something for the gleaners, but God's devastation of Edom will be complete.

7: There is no understanding in him: Edom's faithless allies assure one another that he does not have sense enough to be able to defend himself.

8: The wise men: Edom was proverbial for its wise men; cf Jer 49, 7.

9: Theman: one of the names used for the land southeast of Palestine, here synonymous with Edom. Esau: here used as the name of the land.

10: Your brother Jacob: Esau, also called Edom, and Jacob, the father of Juda, were the sons of Isaac (Gn 25, 24ff).

11: After the devastation of Juda, Edom occupied the southern part of its territory. Edomites also joined the invading Chaldean forces (13) and assisted them in capturing the people of Juda (14).

16: As you have drunk: the Lord addresses the people of Juda. As the people of Jerusalem have drunk the cup of retribution, so shall the nations, and especially Edom (18), suffer punishment. This metaphorical use of drinking the cup of God's wrath is common in the Bible; cf Jb 21, 20; Is 19, 14; Jer 25, 15f.

17ff: The Israelites shall be restored and shall occupy the lands of those who oppressed them. The survivors of Juda shall be rejoined by the returned exiles from northern Israel.

20: Sarephta: a town in Phoenicia, north of Tyre; cf 3 Kgs 17, 10. Ezechiel's ideal boundaries of the new Israel (Ez 47, 13ff) extend farther north. Sepharad: probably Sardis in western Asia Minor. The later rabbis thought it to be Spain.

21: Saviors: the victorious Israelites who will rule over their enemies after the fashion of the ancient Judges; cf Jgs 3, 9. 15. 31; 10, 1.

THE BOOK OF JONA

Written in the post-Exilic era, probably in the fifth century B. C., this book is a didactic story with an important theological message. It concerns a disobedient prophet who attempted to run away from his divine commission, was cast overboard and swallowed by a great fish, rescued in a marvelous manner, and sent on his way to Ninive, the traditional enemy of Israel. To the surprise of Jona, the wicked city listened to his message of doom and repented immediately. All, from king to lowliest subject, humbled themselves in sackcloth and ashes. Seeing their repentance, God did not carry out the punishment He had planned for them. Whereupon Jona complained to God about the unexpected success of his mission; he was bitter because Yahweh, instead of destroying, had led the people to repentance and then spared them.

From this partly humorous story, a very sublime lesson may be drawn. Jona stands for a narrow and vindictive mentality, all too common among the Jews of that period. Because they were the chosen people, a good many of them cultivated an intolerant nationalism which limited the mercy of God to their nation. It was abhorrent to their way of thinking that nations as wicked as Assyria should escape His wrath.

The prophecy, which is both instructive and entertaining, strikes directly at this viewpoint. It is a parable of mercy, showing that God's threatened punishments are but the expression of a merciful will which moves all men to repent and seek forgiveness. The universality of the story contrasts sharply with the particularistic spirit of many in the post-Exilic community. The book has also prepared the way for the Gospel with its message of redemption for all, both Jew and Gentile.

CHAPTER 1.

The First Mission. 1 This is the word of the Lord that came to Jona,[a] son of Amathi:* 2 Set out for the great city of Ninive,[b] and preach against it; their wickedness has come up before me." 3 But Jona made ready to flee to Tharsis away from the Lord. He went down to Joppe, found a ship going to Tharsis,* paid the fare, and went aboard to journey with them to Tharsis, away from the Lord.

4 The Lord, however, hurled a violent wind upon the sea, and in the furious tempest that arose the ship was on the point of breaking up. 5 Then the mariners became frightened and each one cried to his god. To lighten the ship for themselves, they threw its cargo into the sea. Meanwhile, Jona had gone down into the hold of the ship, and lay there fast asleep. 6 The captain came to him and said, "What are you doing asleep? Rise up, call upon your God! Perhaps God will be mindful of us so that we may not perish."

7 Then they said to one another, "Come, let us cast lots to find out on whose account we have met with this misfortune." So they cast lots, and thus singled out Jona. 8 "Tell us," they said, "what is your business? Where do you come from? What is your country, and to what people do you belong?" 9 "I am a Hebrew," Jona answered them; "I worship the Lord, the God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land."

10 Now the men were seized with great fear and said to him, "How could you do such a thing!"—They knew that he was fleeing from the Lord, because he had told them.—11 "What shall we do with you," they asked, "that the sea may quiet down for us?" 12 For the sea was growing more and more turbulent. Jona said to them, "Pick me up and throw me into the sea, that it may quiet down for you; since I know it is because of me that this violent storm has come upon you."

13 Still the men rowed hard to regain the land, but they could not, for the sea grew ever more turbulent. 14 Then they cried to the Lord: "We beseech you, O Lord, let us not perish for taking this man's life; do not charge us with shedding innocent blood, for you, Lord, have done as you saw fit."* 15 Then they took Jona and threw him into the sea, and the sea's raging abated. 16 Struck with great fear of the Lord, the men offered sacrifice and made vows to him.

CHAPTER 2.

1 But the Lord sent a large fish, that swallowed Jona; and he remained in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.[c] 2 From the belly of the fish Jona said this prayer to the Lord, his God:

Psalm of Thanksgiving. 3 [d] Out of my distress I called to the Lord, and he answered me; from the midst of the nether world I cried for help, and you heard my voice. 4 For you cast me into the deep. into the heart of the sea, [e] and the flood enveloped me; all your breakers and your billows passed over me. 5 [f] Then I said, "I am banished from your sight! yet would I again look upon your holy temple." 6 [g] The waters swirled about me, threatening my life; the abyss enveloped me; seaweed clung about my head. 7 [h] Down I went to the roots of the mountains; the bars of the nether world were 11 Then the Lord commanded the fish to spew Jona upon the shore.

CHAPTER 3.

Conversion of Ninive. 1 The word of the Lord came to Jona a second time: 2 "Set out for the great city of Ninive, and announce to it the message that I will tell you." 3 So Jona made ready and went to Ninive, according to the Lord's bidding. Now Ninive was an enormously large city; it took three days to go through it. 4 Jona began his journey through the city, and had gone but a single day's walk announcing, "Forty days more and Ninive shall be destroyed,"* 5 when the people of Ninive believed God; they proclaimed a fast and all of them, great and small, put on sackcloth. l

6 When the news reached the king of Ninive, he rose from his throne, laid aside his robe, covered himself with sackcloth, and sat in the ashes. 7 Then he had this proclaimed throughout Ninive, by decree of the king and his nobles: "Neither man nor beast, neither cattle nor sheep, shall taste anything; they shall not eat, nor shall they drink water. 8 Man and beast shall be covered with sackcloth* and call loudly to God; every man shall turn from his evil way and from the violence he has in hand. 9 m Who knows, God may relent and forgive, and withhold his blazing wrath, so that we shall not perish." 10 When God saw by their actions how they turned from their evil way, he repented of the evil that he had threatened to do to them; he did not carry it out.

Jona's Anger: God's Reproof. 1 But this was greatly displeasing to Jona, and he became angry.* 2 n "I beseech you, Lord," he prayed, "is not this what I said while I was still in my own country? This is why I fled at first to Tharsis. I knew that you are a gracious and merciful God, slow to anger, rich in clemency, loathe to punish. 3 o And now, Lord, please take my life from me; for it is better for me to die than to live." 4 But the Lord asked, "Have you reason to be angry?"

5 Jona then left the city for a place to the east of it, where he built himself a hut and waited under it in the shade, to see what would happen to the city. 6 And when the Lord God provided a gourd plant,* that grew up over Jona's head, giving shade that relieved him of any discomfort, Jona was very happy over the plant. 7 But the next morning at dawn God sent a worm which attacked the plant, so that it withered. 8 And when the sun arose, God sent a burning east wind; and the sun beat upon Jona's head till he became faint. Then he asked for death, saying, "I would be better off dead than alive."

9 But God said to Jona, "Have you reason to be angry over the plant?" "I have reason to be angry," Jona answered, "angry enough to die." 10 *Then the Lord said, "You are concerned over the plant which cost you no labor and which you did not raise; it came up in one night and in one night it perished. 11 And should I not be concerned over Ninive, the great city, in which there are more than a hundred and twenty thousand persons who cannot distinguish their right hand from their left, not to mention the many cattle?"

3, 4: Shall be destroyed: the Hebrew expression reminds the reader of the "overthrowing" of the wicked cities, Sodom and Gomorra, by a special act of God.

3, 8: Beast . . . sackcloth: the animals carried the signs of this repentance, as on occasions of joy they bore garlands.

4, 1: He became angry: because of his narrowly nationalistic vindictiveness, Jona did not wish the Lord to forgive the Ninivites.

4, 6: Gourd plant: the Hebrew word kikayon means here a wide-leafed plant of the cucumber or castor-bean variety.

4, 10f: Jona is selfish in bemoaning his personal loss of a shady gourd plant without any concern over the threat of loss of life to the Ninivites through the destruction of their city. If God in His kindness provided the plant for His prophet without the latter's effort or merit, how much more is He disposed to show love and mercy toward all men, Jew and Gentile, when they repent of their sins and implore His pardon! God's providence is also shown here to extend even to animals.

THE BOOK OF MICHEA

Michea was a contemporary of Isaia. Of his personal life and call we know nothing except that he came from the obscure village of Moreseth in the foothills. His were the broad vistas of the Judean lowland and the distant sea on the western horizon. With burning eloquence he attacked the rich exploiters of the poor, fraudulent merchants, venal judges, corrupt priests and prophets. To the man of the countryside the vices of the nation seemed centered in its capitals, for both Samaria and Jerusalem are singled out for judgment. An interesting notice in Jer 26, 17f informs us that the reform of Ezechia was influenced by the preaching of Michea.

The prophecy may be divided into three parts: I. The impending judgment of the Lord, followed by an exposition of its causes, Israel's sins. Censure of Juda's leaders for betrayal of their responsibility (1, 1—3, 12). II. The glory of the restored Sion. A prince of David's house will rule over a reunited Israel. (St. Matthew's Nativity narrative points to Christ's birth in Bethlehem as the fulfillment of this prophecy.) A remnant shall survive the chastisement of Juda and her adversaries shall be destroyed (4, 1—5, 14). III. The case against Israel, in which the Lord is portrayed as the plaintiff who has maintained fidelity to the covenant. The somber picture closes with a prayer for national restoration and a beautiful expression of trust in God's pardoning mercy (6, 1—7, 20). It should be noted that each of these three divisions begins with reproach and the threat of punishment, and ends on a note of hope and promise.

I: PUNISHMENT OF ISRAEL'S SINS

CHAPTER 1.

Divine Judgment. 1 The word of the Lord which came to Michea of Moreseth in the days of Joatham, Achaz, and Ezechia, kings of Juda: that is, the vision he received concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

2 a Hear, O peoples, all of you, give heed, O earth, and all that fills you! Let the Lord God be witness against you, the Lord from his holy temple!*

3 b For see, the Lord comes forth from his place, he descends and treads upon the heights of the earth. 4 The mountains melt under him and the valleys split open, like wax before the fire, like water poured down a slope.

5 For the crime of Jacob all this comes to pass, and for the sins of the house of Israel. What is the crime of Jacob? Is it not Samaria? And what is the sin of the house of Juda? Is it not Jerusalem? 6 I will make Samaria a stone heap in the field, a place to plant for vineyards; I will throw down into the valley her stones, and lay bare her foundations. 7 c All her idols shall be broken to pieces, all her wages shall be burned in the fire, and all her statues I will destroy. As the wages of a harlot they were gathered, and to the wages of a harlot they shall return.*

8 d For this reason I lament and wail, I go barefoot and naked; I utter lamentation like the jackals, and mourning like the ostriches. 9 There is no remedy for the blow she has been struck; rather, it has come even to Juda, it reaches to the gate of my people, even to Jerusalem.

10 e Publish it not in Geth,* weep not at all! in Beth-aphra roll in the dust. 11 Pass by, you who dwell in Saphir! The inhabitants of Saanan come not forth from their city. The lamentation of Bethesel finds in you its grounds. 12 How can the inhabitants of Maroth hope for good? For evil has come down from the Lord to the gate of Jerusalem. 13 Harness steeds to the chariots, O inhabitants of Lachis; Lachis, the beginning of sin for daughter Sion, because there were in you the crimes of Israel. 14 Therefore you shall give parting gifts to Moreseth-Geth; Beth-achzib is a deception to the kings of Israel. 15 Yet must I bring to you the conqueror, O inhabitants of Maresa; even to Odollam shall go the glory of Israel.

16 Make yourself bald, pluck out your hair,* for the children whom you cherish; let your baldness be as the eagle's, because they are exiled from you.

CHAPTER 2.

Social Evils. 1 Woe to those who plan iniquity, and work out evil on their couches; in the morning light they accomplish it when it lies within their power. 2 They covet fields, and seize them; houses, and they take them; they cheat an owner of his house, a man of his

1, 2: His holy temple: God's heavenly temple; the prophet pictures a theophany (3f).

1, 7: The comparison of the unfaithful people with a prostitute, first found in Osee, is frequent with the prophets; probably ritual prostitution is meant; cf Am 2, 7f; Os 4, 14.

1, 10-15: The Judean cities here named were in the vicinity of Moreseth, the region with which Michea was most familiar. They were to experience divine chastisement. In the Hebrew, wordplays on the names of these cities abound. The text is partly obscure.

1, 16: Shaving the head was a sign of mourning; cf Is 3, 24; Am 8, 10.

inheritance.* 3 Therefore thus says the Lord: Behold, I am planning against this race an evil from which you shall not withdraw your necks; nor shall you walk with head high, for it will be a time of evil.

4 On that day a satire shall be sung over you, and there shall be a plaintive chant: "Our ruin is complete, our fields are portioned out among our captors, the fields of my people are measured out, and no one can get them back!" 5 Thus you shall have no one to mark out boundaries by lot* in the assembly of the Lord.

6 *"Preach not," they preach, "let them not preach of these things!" The shame will not withdraw. 7 How can it be said, O house of Jacob, "Is the Lord short of patience, or are such his deeds?" Do not my words promise good to him who walks uprightly?

8 But of late my people has risen up as an enemy: you have stripped off the mantle covering the tunic of those who go their way in confidence, as though it were spoils of war. 9 The women of my people you drive out from their pleasant houses; from their children you take away forever the honor I gave them."* 10 "Up! Be off, this is no place to rest"; for any trifle you exact a crippling pledge.*

11 If one, acting on impulse, should make the futile claim: "I pour you wine and strong drink as my prophecy," then he would be the prophet of this people.

12 *I will gather you, O Jacob, each and every one, I will assemble all the remnant of Israel; I will group them like a flock in the fold, like a herd in the midst of its corral; they shall not be thrown into panic by men. 13 With a leader to break the path they shall burst open the gate and go out through it; their king shall go through before them, and the Lord at their head.

CHAPTER 3.

Downfall of Present Leaders. 1 And I said: Hear, you leaders of Jacob, rulers of the house of Israel! Is it not your duty to know what is right, 2 f you who hate what is good, and love evil? You who tear their skin from them, and their flesh from their bones! 3 They eat the flesh of my people, and flay their skin from them, and break their bones. They chop them in pieces like flesh in a kettle, and like meat in a caldron. 4 When they cry to the Lord, he shall not answer them; rather shall he hide his face from them at that time, because of the evil they have done.

5 g Thus says the Lord regarding the prophets* who lead my people astray; who, when their teeth have something to bite, announce peace, but when one fails to put something in their mouth, proclaim war against him. 6 h Therefore you shall have night, not vision, darkness, not divination; the sun shall go down upon the prophets, and the day shall be dark for them. 7 Then shall the seers be put to shame, and the diviners confounded; they shall cover their lips, all of them, because there is no answer from God. 8 But as for me, I am filled with power, with the spirit of the Lord, with authority and with might; to declare to Jacob his crimes and to Israel his sins.

9 Hear this, you leaders of the house of Jacob, you rulers of the house of Israel! You who abhor what is just, and pervert all that is right; 10 who build up Sion with bloodshed, and Jerusalem with wickedness! 11 i Her leaders render judgment for a bribe, her priests give decisions for a salary, her prophets divine for money, while they rely on the Lord, saying, "Is not the Lord in the midst of us? No evil can come upon us!" 12 j Therefore, because of you, Sion shall be plowed like a field, and Jerusalem reduced to rubble, and the mount of the temple to a forest ridge.

2, 2: Land monopoly, also denounced by Isaia, was a chronic vice in Juda. To protect the poor against it, a man's inheritance, his ancestral property, was supposed to be inviolate; cf 3 Kgs 21, 1-4; but the wealthy in their greed were enslaving men for their debts and depriving them of their land.

2, 5: To mark out boundaries by lot: an allusion to the initial distribution of the land of Palestine among the Israelites; cf Jos 13-21. The appropriate punishment of those greedy for land will be the loss of their land to their enemies (v 4), a loss that will be irrevocable.

2, 6f: The words in quotation marks are the protestations of the people against the prophet's predictions of doom.

2, 9: The honor I gave them: their dignity as free Israelites.

2, 10: A crippling pledge: Israelite law forbade exacting pledges for loans that would work hardship on the borrower (Ex 22, 25f; Dt 24, 6. 10-13. 17); but the law was habitually violated.

2, 12f: This Messianic passage concerning the restoration after the Babylonian Exile seems out of place here and is probably a later addition.

3, 5-8: Almost all the prophetic books contain oracles against the false prophets. Here Michea accuses them of prophesying for venal motives and determining the prophecy by the price that is paid them; he contrasts his own disinterested preaching of the word of God.

to come the mount of the Lord's house shall be established higher than the mountains;* it shall rise high above the hills, and peoples shall stream to it:[k] [2] Many nations shall come and say, "Come, let us climb the mount of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob, that he may instruct us in his ways, that we may walk in his paths." For from Sion shall go forth instruction, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. [3] He shall judge between many peoples and impose terms on strong and distant nations; they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; one nation shall not raise the sword against another, nor shall they train for war again. [4] [l] Every man shall sit under his own vine or under his own fig tree, undisturbed; for the mouth of the Lord of hosts has spoken. [5] For all the peoples walk each in the name of its god, but we will walk in the name of the Lord, our God, forever and ever.

[6] On that day, says the Lord, I will gather the lame, and I will assemble the outcasts, and those whom I have afflicted.
[7] [m] I will make of the lame a remnant, and of those driven far off a strong nation; and the Lord shall be king over them on Mount Sion, from now on forever. [8] And you, O Magdal-eder,* hillock of daughter Sion! Unto you shall it come:
the former dominion shall be restored,
the kingdom of daughter Jerusalem.

[9] Now why do you cry out so? Are you without a king? Or has your counselor perished, that you are seized with pains like a woman in travail? [10] Writhe in pain, grow faint, O daughter Sion, like a woman in travail; for now shall you go forth from the city and dwell in the fields; to Babylon shall you go, there shall you be rescued. There shall the Lord redeem you from the hand of your enemies.*

[11] How many nations are gathered against you! They say, "Let her be profaned, let our eyes see Sion's downfall!"
[12] But they know not the thoughts of the Lord, nor understand his counsel, when he has gathered them like sheaves on the threshing floor. [13] [n] Arise and thresh, O daughter Sion; your horn I will make iron and your hoofs bronze, that you may crush many peoples; you shall devote their spoils to the Lord, and their riches to the Lord of the whole earth.

Restoration through the Messia. [14] Now fence yourself in, Bat-gader!* "They have laid siege against us!" With the rod they strike on the cheek the ruler of Israel.

[1] But you, Bethlehem-Ephratha* too small to be among the clans of Juda,[o] from you shall come forth for me one who is to be ruler in Israel; whose origin is from of old, from ancient times. [2] [p] (Therefore the Lord will give them up, until the time when she who is to give birth* has borne, and the rest of his brethren shall return to the children of Israel.) [3] He shall stand firm and shepherd his flock by the strength of the Lord, in the majestic name of the Lord, his God; and they shall remain, for now his greatness shall reach to the ends of the earth; [4] he shall be peace.

If Assyria invades our country and treads upon our land, we shall raise against it seven shepherds, eight men of land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nemrod* with the drawn sword;

and we shall be delivered from Assyria, if it invades our land and treads upon our borders.

4, 8: Magdal-eder: "tower of the flock," an ancient place name (cf Gn 35, 21), here used symbolically of Jerusalem.

4, 10: For now . . . your enemies: probably a later addition to the text, when the prediction of exile had been fulfilled in the Babylonian captivity. The prophet sees the Exile as the means whereby God will purify and restore His people.

4, 14: Bat-gader: "house of the fenced-in place," another symbolic name for Jerusalem, then under siege from the Assyrians.

5, 1: In contrast to Bat-gader (Mi 4, 14), where the ruler of Israel, the reigning king, is in peril of his life from the Assyrians, is the tiny city and clan of Bethlehem-Ephratha, from which comes the ancient Davidic dynasty (whose origin is from of old, from ancient times) with its Messianic king, one who is to be ruler in Israel.

5, 2: She who is to give birth: the mother of the Messia; cf Is 7, 14.

5, 4f: This passage, expressing confidence in Juda's ability to deliver itself from Assyria, is in contrast with the preceding Messianic oracle, which ascribes deliverance to the Lord and His agent. Some believe that here the prophet is quoting the words of the defiant men of Juda. The shepherds and men of royal rank are one and the same: warriors capable of routing Assyria. The same kind of numerical progression is used by Amos (1, 3), and elsewhere in the Bible.

the midst of many peoples, like a lion among beasts of the forest, like a young lion among flocks of sheep; when it passes through, it tramples and tears, and there is none to deliver. 8 Your hand shall be lifted above your foes, and all your enemies shall be destroyed.

9 On that day, says the Lord, I will destroy the horses from your midst and ruin your chariots; 10 I will demolish the cities of your land and tear down all your fortresses. 11 I will abolish the means of divination from your use, and there shall no longer be soothsayers among you. 12 q I will abolish your carved images and the sacred pillars from your midst; and you shall no longer adore the works of your hands. 13 I will tear out the sacred poles from your midst, and destroy your cities. 14 I will wreak vengeance in anger and wrath upon the nations that have not hearkened.

III: ADMONITION

CHAPTER 6.

Accusation and Answer. 1 Hear, then, what the Lord says: Arise, present your plea before the mountains, and let the hills hear your voice! r 2 Hear, O mountains, the plea of the Lord, pay attention, O foundations of the earth! For the Lord has a plea against his people, and he enters into trial with Israel.

3 s O my people, what have I done to you, or how have I wearied you? Answer me! 4 t For I brought you up from the land of Egypt, from the place of slavery I released you; and I sent before you Moses, Aaron, and Miriam. 5 u My people, what Moab's King Balac planned, and how Balaam, the son of Beor, answered him . . . from Sattim to Galgal,* that you may know the just deeds of the Lord.

6 *With what shall I come before the Lord, and bow before God most high? v Shall I come before him with holocausts, with calves a year old? 7 Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, with myriad streams of oil? Shall I give my firstborn* for my crime, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? 8 w You have been told, O man, what is good, and what the Lord requires of you: only to do the right and to love goodness, and to walk humbly with your God.

9 Hark! the Lord cries to the city.* [It is wisdom to fear your name!] Hear, O tribe and city council, 12 you whose rich men are full of violence, whose inhabitants speak falsehood with deceitful tongues in their heads! 10 Am I to bear any longer criminal hoarding and the meager epha that is accursed? 11 Shall I acquit criminal balances, bags of false weights?

13 Rather I will begin to strike you with devastation because of your sins. 15 x You shall sow, yet not reap, tread out the olive, yet pour no oil, and the grapes, yet drink no wine. 14 y You shall eat, without being satisfied, food that will leave you empty what you acquire, you cannot save; what you do save, I will deliver up to the sword. 16 You have kept the decrees of Amri,* and all the works of the house of Achab, and you have walked in their counsels; therefore I will deliver you up to ruin, and your citizens to derision; and you shall bear the reproach of the nations.

CHAPTER 7.

Condemnation and Prayer. 1 Alas! I am as when the fruit is gathered, as when the vines have been gleaned; there is no cluster to eat, no early fig that I crave. 2 z The faithful are gone from the earth, among men the upright are no more! 6, 5: From Sattim to Galgal: from the east to the west side of the Jordan; the events described in Jos 3-5 are meant. The text is defective; however, it is evident that this verse continues the remembrance of God's deeds of mercy to Israel, beginning with the Exodus (v 4) and extending to the conquest, deeds which have provoked so little response from His people.

6, 6ff: The people ask how they shall worship the Lord, proposing the various forms of sacrifice. The prophet replies that sacrifice avails nothing without the true spirit of religion. This is one of the best expressions of the prophetic teaching on religion, the preparation for such New Testament passages as Jas 1, 27.

6, 7: Shall I give my first-born: through Chanaanite influence the abominable practice of human sacrifice had been introduced under impious kings (cf 4 Kgs 16, 3; 21, 6).

6, 9: The city: Jerusalem as the embodiment of the crimes of the entire land.

6, 16: Juda has followed the example of the Northern Kingdom epitomized in the semipaganism of Amri and his son Achab (3 Kgs 16, 25-34), copying both the corrupted worship and the social injustice of their reigns.

her mother, the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law, and a man's enemies are those of his household. 7 d But as for me, I will look to the Lord, I will put my trust in God my savior; my God will hear me!

8 *Rejoice not over me, O my enemy!
though I have fallen, I will arise; though I sit in darkness, the Lord is my light. 9
The wrath of the Lord I will endure because I have sinned against him, until he takes up my cause, and establishes my right. He will bring me forth to the light;
I will see his justice. 10 When my enemy sees this, shame shall cover her: she who said to me, "Where is the Lord, thy God?" My eyes shall see her downfall; now shall she be trampled underfoot, like the mire in the streets.

11 *It is the day for building your walls; on that day the boundary shall be taken away. 12 e It is the day; and they shall come to you from Assyria and from Egypt, from Tyre even to the River, from sea to sea, and from mountain to mountain; 13 and the land shall be a waste because of its citizens, as a result of their deeds.

14 *Shepherd your people with your staff, the flock of your inheritance, that dwells apart in a woodland, in the midst of Carmel. Let them feed in Basan and Galaad, as in the days of old; 15 as in the days when you came from the land of Egypt, show us wonderful signs.

16 The nations shall behold and be put to shame, in spite of all their strength; they shall put their hands over their mouths; their ears shall become deaf. 17
They shall lick the dust like the serpent, like reptiles on the ground; they shall come quaking from their fastnesses, trembling in fear of you [the Lord, our God].

18 f Who is there like you, the God who removes guilt and pardons sin for the remnant of his inheritance; who does not persist in anger forever, but delights rather in clemency, 19 and will again have compassion on us, treading underfoot our guilt? You will cast into the depths of the sea all our sins; 20 g you will show faithfulness to Jacob, and grace to Abraham, as you have sworn to our fathers from days of old.

THE BOOK OF NAHUM

Shortly before the fall of Ninive in 612 B. C., Nahum uttered his prophecy against the hated city. To understand the prophet's exultant outburst of joy over the impending destruction it is necessary to recall the savage cruelty of Assyria, which had made it the scourge of the ancient Near East for almost three centuries. The royal inscriptions of Assyria afford the best commentary on the burning denunciation of "the bloody city." In the wake of their conquests, mounds of heads, impaled bodies, enslaved citizens, and avaricious looters testified to the ruthlessness of the Assyrians. Little wonder that Juda joined in the general outburst of joy over the destruction of Ninive!

But Nahum is not a prophet of unrestrained revenge. God's moral government of the world is asserted. Yahweh is the avenger but He is also merciful, a citadel in the day of distress. Ninive's doom was a judgment on the wicked city. Before many years passed, Jerusalem too was to learn the meaning of such a judgment.

The Book is divided as follows: The Lord's Coming in Judgment (1, 2—2, 1. 3). The Imminent Fall of Ninive (2, 2—3, 19).

CHAPTER 1.

1 Oracle about Ninive. The book of the vision of Nahum of Elcos.

The Lord's Coming in Judgment. 2 A jealous and avenging God is the Lord, an avenger is the Lord, and angry; the Lord brings vengeance on his adversaries, and lays up wrath for his enemies; 3 a the Lord is slow to anger, yet great in power, and the Lord never leaves the guilty unpunished. In hurricane and tempest is his path, and clouds are the dust at his feet; 4 b he rebukes the sea and leaves it dry, and all the rivers he dries up. Withered are Basan and Carmel, and the bloom of Lebanon* fades; 5 the mountains quake before him, and the hills dissolve; the earth is laid waste before him, the world and all who dwell in it. 6 c Before his wrath, who can stand firm, and who can face his blazing anger? His fury is poured out like fire, and the rocks are rent asunder before him.* 7 The Lord is good, a refuge on the day of distress; he takes care of those who have recourse to him, 8 when the flood rages; he makes an end of his opponents, and his enemies he pursues with darkness.

9 What are you imputing to the Lord?* It is he who will make an end! The enemy shall not rise a second time; 10 as when a tangle of thornbushes is set aflame, like dry stubble, they shall be utterly consumed. 12 For, says the Lord, be they* ever so many and so vigorous, still they shall be mown down and disappear. Though I have humbled you, I will humble you no more. 13 d Now will I break his yoke from off you, and burst asunder your bonds. 11 From you he came who devised evil against the Lord, the scoundrel planner.*

14 The Lord has commanded regarding you:* no descendant shall come to bear your name; from your temple I will abolish the carved and the molten image; I will make your grave a mockery.

CHAPTER 2.

1 See, upon the mountains there advances the bearer of good news, announcing peace! e Celebrate your feasts, O Juda, fulfill your vows! For nevermore shall you be invaded by the scoundrel; he is completely destroyed. 3 The Lord will restore the vine of Jacob, the pride of Israel, though ravagers have ravaged them and ruined the tendrils.

The Fall of Ninive. 2 The hammer comes up against you;* guard the rampart, keep watch on the road, gird your loins, marshal all your strength! 4 The shields of his warriors are crimsoned, the soldiers colored in scarlet; fiery steel are the chariots on the day of his mustering. The horses are frenzied; 5 the chariots dash madly through the streets and wheel in the squares, looking like firebrands, flashing like lightning bolts. 6 His picked troops are called, ranks break at their charge; to the wall they rush, the mantelet* is set up. 7 The river gates are opened, the palace shudders, 8 its mistress is led forth captive, and her handmaids,* under guard, moaning like doves, beating their breasts. 9 Ninive is like a pool whose waters escape; "Stop! Stop!" but none turns back. 10 "Plunder the silver, plunder the gold!" There is no end to the treasure, to their wealth in precious things of every kind!

11 f Emptiness, desolation, waste; melting hearts and trembling knees, writhing in every frame, every face blanched! 12 Where is the lions' cave, the young lions' den, where the lion* went in and out, and the cub, with no one to disturb them? 13 The lion snatched enough for his cubs, and strangled for his lionesses; he filled his dens with prey, and his caves with plunder. 14 I come against you, says the Lord of hosts; I will consume in smoke your chariots, and the sword shall devour your young lions; your preying on the

1, 9: What are you imputing to the Lord?: the people of Juda are asked what they think God has in mind.

1, 12: They: the enemies of Juda. You: Juda. His yoke: the dominion of the Assyrian king over Juda.

2, 2: The hammer comes up against you: the enemy is about to crush Ninive.

2, 6: Mantelet: a movable shelter protecting the besiegers.

land I will bring to an end, the cry of your lionesses shall be heard no more.

CHAPTER 3.

Ruin Imminent and Inevitable. 1 Woe to the bloody city,[g] all lies, full of plunder, whose looting never stops! 2 The crack of the whip, the rumbling sound of wheels; horses a-gallop, chariots bounding, 3 cavalry charging, the flame of the sword, the flash of the spear, the many slain, the heaping corpses, the endless bodies to stumble upon! 4 b For the many debaucheries of the harlot, fair and charming, a mistress of witchcraft, who enslaved nations with her harlotries, and peoples by her witchcraft: 5 i I am come against you, and I will strip your skirt from you; I will show your nakedness to the nations, to the kingdoms your shame!* 6 I will cast filth upon you, disgrace you and put you to shame; 7 till everyone who sees you runs from you, saying, "Ninive is destroyed; who can pity her? Where can one find any to console her?"

8 j Are you better than No-Amon* that was set among the streams, surrounded by waters, with the flood for her rampart and water her wall? 9 Ethiopia was her strength, and Egypt, and others without end; Phut and the Libyans were her auxiliaries. 10 Yet even she went captive into exile, even her little ones were dashed to pieces at the corner of every street; for her nobles they cast lots, and all her great men were put into chains. 11 k You, too, shall drink of this till you faint away; you, too, shall seek a refuge from the foe. 12 All your fortresses are but fig trees, bearing early figs that fall, when shaken, into the hungry mouth. 13 l See, the troops are women in your midst; to your foes the gates of your land are open wide, fire has consumed their bars. 14 *Draw water for the siege, strengthen your fortresses; go down into the mud and tread the clay, take hold of the brick mold! 15 There the fire shall consume you, the sword shall cut you down.

Multiply like the grasshoppers, multiply like the locusts! 16 Make your couriers more numerous than the stars, your garrisons as many as grasshoppers, and your scribes as locust swarms gathered on the rubble fences on a cold day! Yet when the sun warms them, the grasshoppers will spread their wings and fly, and vanish, no one knows where.

18 Alas! how your shepherds slumber, O king of Assyria, your nobles have gone to rest; your people are scattered upon the mountains, with none to gather them. 19 There is no healing for your hurt, your wound is mortal. All who hear this news of you clap their hands over you; for who has not been overwhelmed, steadily, by your malice?

THE BOOK OF HABACUC

The prophecy dates from the years 605-597 B. C., or between the great Babylonian victory at Carchemish and Nabuchodonosor's invasion of Juda which culminated in the capture of Jerusalem. The situation of Juda was desperate at this time, with political intrigue and idolatry widespread in the small kingdom. The first two chapters consist of a dialogue between the prophet and the Lord. For what may be the first time in Israelite literature, a man questions the ways of God, as Habacuc calls Him to account for His government of the world. To this question God replies that He has prepared a chastising rod, Babylon, which will be the avenging instrument in His hand. There is added the divine assurance that the just Israelite will not perish in the calamities about to be visited on the nation.

The third chapter is a magnificent religious lyric, filled with reminiscences of Israel's past and rich in literary borrowings from the poetry of ancient Chanaan, though still expressing authentic Israelite faith. God appears in all His majestic splendor and executes vengeance on Juda's enemies. The prophecy ends with a joyous profession of confidence in the Lord, the Savior.

CHAPTER 1.

1 The oracle which Habacuc the prophet received in vision.

The Prophet's Complaint and Its Answer. 2 *How long, O Lord? I cry for help but you do not listen! I cry out to you, "Violence!" but you do not intervene. 3 Why do you let me see ruin; why must I look at misery? Destruction and violence are before me; there is strife, and clamorous discord. 4 This is why the law is benumbed, and judgment is never rendered: because the wicked circumvent the just; this is why judgment comes forth perverted.

5 a Look over the nations and see,* and be utterly amazed! For a work is being done in your days that you would not have believed, were it told. 6 For see, I am raising up Chaldea, that bitter and unruly people, that marches the breadth of the land to take dwellings not his own. 7 Terrible and dreadful is he, from himself derive his law and his majesty. 8 Swifter than leopards are his horses, and keener than wolves at evening.* His horses prance, his horsemen come from afar: they fly like the eagle hastening to devour; 9 each comes for the rapine, their combined onset is that of a stormwind that heaps up captives like sand. 10 He scoffs at kings, and princes are his laughingstock; he laughs at any fortress, heaps up a ramp, and conquers it. 11 Then he veers like the wind* and is gone—this culprit who makes his own strength his god!

12 Are you not from eternity, O Lord, my holy God, immortal? O Lord, you have marked him for judgment, O Rock, you have set him up for punishment! 13 Too pure are your eyes to look upon evil, and the sight of misery you cannot endure. Why, then, do you gaze on the faithless in silence while the wicked man devours one more just than himself? 14 You have made man like the fish of the sea, like creeping things without a master. 15 He brings them all up with his hook, he hauls them away with his net, he gathers them in his seine; and so he rejoices and exults. 16 Therefore he sacrifices to his net, and burns incense to his seine; for thanks to them his portion is generous, and his repast sumptuous. 17 Shall he, then, keep on brandishing his sword to slay peoples without mercy?

1 I will stand at my guard post, and station myself upon the rampart,b and keep watch to see what he will say to me, and what answer he will give to my complaint.

2 Then the Lord answered me and said: Write down the vision clearly upon the tablets, so that one can read it readily. 3 For the vision still has its time, presses on to fulfillment, and will not disappoint; if it delays, wait for it, it will surely come, it will not be late.

4 c The rash man has no integrity; but the just man, because of his faith, shall live.* Wealth, too, is treacherous: the proud, unstable man—5 he who opens wide his throat like the nether world, and is insatiable as death, who gathers to himself all the nations, and rallies to himself all the peoples—6 shall not all these take up a taunt against him, satire and epigrams about him, to say:

Woe to him who stores up what is not his: how long can it last! he loads hima Acts 13, 41.—b Ps 84 (85), 9.—c Rom 1, 17; Gal 3, 11; Heb 10, 38.

1, 2-4: Traditionally, these verses have been taken as the prophet's complaint against the internal evils of Juda; the language used is that employed by Amos, Isaia, and Jeremia to condemn the social abuses of their day. In vv 5ff the Lord answers this complaint by indicating the Chaldean empire as His instrument for punishing His people for these sins.

1, 5: Look over the nations and see: after Nabuchodonosor's defeat of Egypt in 605 B. C., there could be little doubt that it was the Chaldean ambition to dominate the entire Near East.

1, 8: Wolves at evening: the wolf is apparently thought of as more rabid and vicious in the evening when setting out for prey (Jer 5, 6; So 3, 3).

1, 11: Veers like the wind: the conquests of the ancient Near East were mainly raiding expeditions to collect tribute. As far as administration of conquered territories was concerned, both the Assyrians and Chaldeans were usually content to install friendly rulers and then depart. This culprit: though the Chaldeans were used by God as the agents of His punishment, this did not diminish their own guilt as ruthless marauders.

1, 12—2, 1: It is generally thought that this complaint is directed against the Chaldeans and their terrible destruction. But it may well be a continuation of Hb 1, 2-4, against the wicked Judaites who have merited God's punishment.

1, 12: O Rock: an ancient title celebrating the Lord's power; cf Ps 17 (18), 32.

1, 15: The he of this and the following verses, to whom is attributed such extensive evil and the destruction of many peoples, may be the wicked of Juda embodied in King Joakim, ally of the powerful Pharao Nechao of Egypt; the devastation wrought by Joakim and Nechao together is condemned.

1, 16: He sacrifices to his net: in v 15 the wicked ruler in question is represented as catching men in a net. This verse alludes to some rite involving the sacrificial veneration of the weapons of war.

2, 4: The just man, because of his faith, shall live: the faith which here enables the virtuous man to survive the impending doom is both a confident belief in God's justice, and patience in awaiting its execution. St. Paul quotes these words (Rom 1, 17; Gal 3, 11; Heb 10, 38) to confirm his teaching that man receives justification and supernatural life through faith in Christ.

self down with debts. 7 Shall not your creditors rise suddenly? Shall not they who make you tremble awake? You shall become their spoil! 8 Because you despoiled many peoples all the rest of the nations shall despoil you; because of men's blood shed, and violence done to the land, to the city and to all who dwell in it.

9 Woe to him who pursues evil gain for his household, setting his nest on high to escape the reach of misfortune! 10 You have devised shame for your household, cutting off many peoples, forfeiting your own life: 11 *For the stone in the wall shall cry out, and the beam in the woodwork shall answer it!

12 d Woe to him who builds a city by bloodshed, and establishes a town by wickedness! 13 e Is not this from the Lord of hosts: peoples toil for the flames,* and nations grow weary for nought! 14 f But the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord's glory as water covers the sea.

15 Woe to you who give your neighbors a flood of your wrath to drink, and make them drunk, till their nakedness is seen! 16 You are filled with shame instead of glory; drink, you too, and stagger! On you shall revert the cup from the Lord's right hand, and utter shame on your glory. 17 For the violence done to Lebanon* shall cover you, and the destruction of the beasts shall terrify you; because of men's blood shed, and violence done to the land, to the city and to all who dwell in it.

19 Woe to him who says to wood, "Awake!" to dumb stone, "Arise!" Can such a thing give oracles? See, it is overlaid with gold and silver, but there is no life breath in it. 18 *Of what avail is the carved image, that its maker should carve it? Or the molten image and lying oracle, that its very maker should trust in it, and make dumb idols? 20 g But the Lord is in his holy temple; silence before him, all the earth!

CHAPTER 3.

1 Prayer of Habacuc, the prophet. To a plaintive tune.*

Canticle. 2 O Lord, I have heard your renown, and feared, O Lord, your work. In the course of the years revive it,* in the course of the years make it known; in your wrath remember compassion!

3 God comes from Theman, the Holy One from Mount Pharan. Covered are the heavens with his glory, and with his praise the earth is filled. 4 His splendor spreads like the light; rays shine forth from beside him, where his power is concealed. 5 Before him goes pestilence, and the plague follows in his steps. 6 He pauses to survey the earth; his look makes the nations tremble. The eternal mountains are shattered, the age-old hills bow low along his ancient ways. 7 I see the tents of Chusan collapse; trembling are the pavilions of the land of Madian.

8 Is your anger against the streams, O Lord? Is your wrath against the streams, your rage against the sea, that you drive the steeds of your victorious chariot? 9 Bared and ready is your bow, filled with arrows is your quiver. Into streams you split the earth; 10 at sight of you the mountains tremble. A torrent of rain descends; the ocean gives forth its roar. The sun forgets to rise, 11 the moon remains in its shelter, at the light of your flying arrows, at the gleam of your flashing spear.b

12 In wrath you bestride the earth, in fury you trample the nations. 13 i You come forth to save your people, to save your anointed one.* You crush the heads of the wicked, you lay bare their bases at the neck. 14 You pierce with your shafts the heads of their princes whose boast would be of devouring the wretched in their lair. 15 You tread the sea with your steeds amid the churning of the deep waters.

16 I hear, and my body trembles; at the

2, 11f: The palaces, built at the expense of gross injustice (vv 6-10), call down vengeance on their builders. This is typical prophetic language for the condemnation of social crimes within Israel and Juda.

2, 13: Peoples toil for the flames: they build only to have fire consume their work, when they build contrary to God's will.

2, 17: The violence done to Lebanon: the spoliation of the cedar forests of Lebanon, used in lavish building projects by the great conquerors; cf Is 14, 8; 37, 24. The destruction of the beasts: the killing off of the wild animals through excessive hunting by the same conquerors; cf Bar 3, 16.

2, 18-20: Idolatrous worship is here shown to be folly by contrasting man-made idols with the majesty of the one true God.

3, 1: A later liturgical rubric. So also the end of v 19.

3, 2: In the course of the years revive it: renew today your wondrous deeds of the past.

3, 3-15: Cf the theophanies in Dt 33, 2f; Jgs 5, 4f; Pss 17 (18), 8-16; 67 (68), 8f; 76 (77), 17-21; 96 (97), 1-5; Na 1, 3-6; etc. Conventional language is employed to describe the appearance of the Lord, as in Ex 19, 16-19.

3, 3: Theman: a region in Edom. Mount Pharan: in the territory of Edom, or the northern part of the Sinaitic peninsula. The Lord is represented as coming from Sinai, where He had appeared to Moses and given Israel the Covenant and the Law.

3, 13: Your anointed one: the theocratic king, the head of God's people.

sound, my lips quiver. Decay invades my bones, my legs tremble beneath me. I await the day of distress that will come upon the people who attack us. 17 For though the fig tree blossom not nor fruit be on the vines, though the yield of the olive fail and the terraces produce no nourishment, though the flocks disappear from the fold and there be no herd in the stalls, 18 i yet will I rejoice in the Lord and exult in my saving God. 19 God, my Lord, is my strength; he makes my feet swift as those of hinds and enables me to go upon the heights.

For the leader; with stringed instruments.

THE BOOK OF SOPHONIA

The title of the prophecy informs us that the ministry of Sophonia took place during the reign of Josia (640-609 B. C.). The protest against the worship of false gods and the condemnation of the pro-Assyrian court ministers who served as regents during Josia's minority allow us to place the work in the first decade of the reign. Accordingly, the prophecy of Sophonia comes rightly before that of Jeremia, who was probably influenced by it in both language and ideas.

The age of Sophonia was a time of religious degradation, when the old idolatries reappeared and men worshiped sun, moon, and stars. Rites completely alien to the pure monotheism taught by Moses flourished in Jerusalem. To the corrupt city Sophonia announced the impending judgment, the Day of the Lord. The prophecy may be divided into three sections, corresponding to the three chapters of the book:

The Day of the Lord: A day of doom. The last few verses of this oracle give the classic description of the Day of the Lord as an overwhelming disaster. The Christian Hymn Dies Irae is based on this passage (1, 2—18).

The Day of the Lord: A day of judgment of the nations, traditional enemies of God's people (2, 1—15).

Reproach and Promise for Jerusalem: Despite Juda's infidelities, the Lord in His mercy will spare a holy remnant, which will finally enjoy peace. The prophecy closes with a hymn of joy sung by the remnant restored to Sion (3, 1—20).

CHAPTER 1.

1 The word of the Lord which came to Sophonia, the son of Chusi, the son of Godolia, the son of Amaria, the son of Hezecia, in the days of Josia, the son of Amon, king of Juda.

The Day of the Lord: A Day of Doom.

2 I will completely sweep away all things from the face of the earth, says the Lord.
3 a I will sweep away man and beast, I will sweep away the birds of the sky, and the fishes of the sea. I will overthrow the wicked; I will destroy mankind from the face of the earth, says the Lord. 4 I will stretch out my hand against Juda, and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; I will destroy from this place the last vestige of Baal, the very names of his priests,
5 b and those who adore the host of heaven* on the roofs, with those who adore the Lord but swear by Melchom; 6 and those who have fallen away from the Lord, and those who do not seek the Lord.

7 Silence in the presence of the Lord God! for near is the day of the Lord, yes, the Lord has prepared a slaughter feast, he has consecrated* his guests. 8 On the day of the Lord's slaughter feast I will punish the princes, and the king's sons, and all that dress in foreign apparel. 9 I will punish, on that day, all who leap over the threshold,* who fill the house of their master with violence and deceit. 10 On that day, says the Lord, a cry will be heard from the Fish Gate, a wail from the New Quarter, loud crashing from the hills. 11 Wail, O inhabitants of the Mortar!* for all the merchants will be destroyed, all who weigh out silver, done away with. 12 At that time I will explore Jerusalem with lamps; I will punish the men who thicken on their lees,* who say in their hearts, "Neither good nor evil can the Lord do." 13 c Their wealth shall be given to pillage and their houses to devastation; they will build houses, but shall not dwell in them, plant vineyards, but not drink their wine. 14 Near is the great day of the Lord, near and very swiftly coming; hark, the day of the Lord! bitter, then, the warrior's cry. 15 d A day of wrath is that day, a day of anguish and distress, a day of destruction and desolation, a day of darkness and gloom, a day of thick black clouds, 16 e a day of trumpet blasts and battle alarm against fortified cities, against battlements on high. 17 I will hem men in till they walk like the blind, because they have sinned against the Lord; and their blood shall be poured out like dust, and their brains like dung. 18 f Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to save them on the day of the Lord's wrath, when in the fire of his jealousy all the earth shall be consumed. For he shall make an end, yes, a sudden end, of all who live on the earth.

CHAPTER 2.

The Day of the Lord: A Day of Judgment. 1 Gather, gather yourselves together, O nation without shame!* 2 Before you are driven away, like chaff that passes on; before there comes upon you the blazing anger of the Lord: before there comes upon you the day of the Lord's anger. 3 Seek the Lord, all you humble of the earth, who have observed his law; seek justice, seek humility; perhaps you may be sheltered on the day of the Lord's anger. 4 g For Gaza shall be forsaken, and Ascalon shall be a waste, Azotus they shall drive out at midday, and Accaron* shall be uprooted. 5 Woe to you who dwell by the seacoast, to the Cretan folk!* The word of the Lord is against you, I will humble you, land of the Philistines, and leave you to perish without an inhabitant! 6 The coastland of the Cretans shall become fields for shepherds, and folds for flocks. 7 The coast shall belong to the remnant of the house of Juda; by the sea they shall pasture. In the houses of Ascalon at evening they shall couch their flocks, for the Lord their God shall visit them, and bring about their restoration.

8 I have heard the revilings uttered by Moab, and the insults of the Ammonites, when they reviled my people and made boasts against their territory. 9 Therefore, as I live, says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, Moab shall become like Sodom, the land of Ammon like Gomorra: a field of nettles and a salt pit and a waste forever. The remnant of my people shall plunder them, the survivors of my nation dispossess them. 10 Such shall be the requital of their pride, because they reviled and boasted against the people of the Lord of hosts. 11 The Lord shall inspire them with fear when he makes all the gods of earth to waste away; then, each from its own place, all the coastlands of the nations shall adore him.

12 You too, O Chusites,* shall be slain by the sword of the Lord. 13 He will stretch out his hand against the north, to destroy Assyria; he will make Ninive a waste, dry as the desert. 14 h In her midst shall settle in droves all the wild life of the hollows; the screech owl and the desert owl shall roost in her columns; their call shall resound from the window, the raven's croak from the doorway. 15 Is this the exultant city* that dwelt secure; that told herself, "There is no other than I!" How has she become a waste, a lair for wild beasts? Whoever passes by her hisses, and shakes his fist!

CHAPTER 3.

Reproach and Promise for Jerusalem. 1 Woe to the city, rebellious and polluted, to the tyrannical city! 2 i She hears no voice, accepts no correction; in the Lord she has not trusted, to her God she has not drawn near. 3 j Her princes in her midst are roaring lions; her judges are wolves of the night that have had no bones to gnaw by morning. 4 k Her prophets are insolent, treacherous men; her priests profane what is holy, and do violence to the law. 5 The Lord within her is just, who does no wrong; morning after morning he renders judgment unfailingly, at dawn.

2, 4: Gaza . . . Ascalon . . . Azotus . . . Accaron: four of the five cities of the Philistine confederation. The fifth city, Geth is not mentioned, perhaps because it was already destroyed.

2, 5: Cretan folk: the Philistines, who came from Crete; see note on Dt 2, 23.

2, 12: Chusites: the Egyptians, at this time under a Chusite or Ethiopian dynasty.

2, 15: The exultant city: Ninive.

6 l I have destroyed nations, their battlements are laid waste; I have made their streets deserted, with no one passing through; their cities are devastated, with no man dwelling in them. 7 I said, "Surely now you will fear me, you will accept correction"; she should not fail to see all I have visited upon her. Yet all the more eagerly have they done all their corrupt deeds. 8 m Therefore, wait for me, says the Lord, against the day when I arise as accuser; for it is my decision to gather together the nations, to assemble the kingdoms, in order to pour out upon them my wrath, all my blazing anger; for in the fire of my jealousy shall all the earth be consumed.

9 For then I will change and purify the lips of the peoples, that they all may call upon the name of the Lord, to serve him with one accord; 10 from beyond the rivers of Ethiopia and as far as the recesses of the North, they shall bring me offerings.

11 On that day you need not be ashamed of all your deeds, your rebellious actions against me; for then will I remove from your midst the proud braggarts, and you shall no longer exalt yourself on my holy mountain. 12 n But I will leave as a remnant in your midst a people humble and lowly, who shall take refuge in the name of the Lord: 13 o the remnant of Israel. They shall do no wrong and speak no lies; nor shall there be found in their mouths a deceitful tongue; they shall pasture and couch their flocks with none to disturb them.

14 p Shout for joy, O daughter Sion! sing joyfully, O Israel! Be glad and exult with all your heart, O daughter Jerusalem! 15 The Lord has removed the judgment against you, he has turned away your enemies; the King of Israel, the Lord, is in your midst, you have no further misfortune to fear. 16 q On that day, it shall be said to Jerusalem: Fear not, O Sion, be not discouraged! 17 The Lord, your God, is in your midst, a mighty savior; he will rejoice over you with gladness, and renew you in his love, he will sing joyfully because of you, 18 as one sings at festivals.

I will remove disaster from among you, so that none may recount your disgrace. 19 r Yes, at that time I will deal with all who oppress you: I will save the lame, and assemble the outcasts; I will give them praise and renown in all the earth, when I bring about their restoration. 20 At that time I will bring you home, and at that time I will gather you; for I will give you renown and praise, among all the peoples of the earth, when I bring about your restoration before your very eyes, says the Lord.

THE BOOK OF AGGAI

Post-exilic prophecy begins with Aggai, who received the word of the Lord in the second year of Darius (520 B. C.). The Jews who returned from the Exile in Babylonia had encountered formidable obstacles in their efforts to re-establish Jewish life in Juda. The Samaritans had succeeded in blocking the rebuilding of the Temple; but after Darius acceded to the throne (522), permission was given to resume the work. At this critical moment, when defeatism and a certain lethargy had overtaken his repatriated countrymen, Aggai came forward with his exhortations to them to complete the great task. The first oracle, an appeal to the Jews, is contained in chapter 1. To this appeal Aggai added a short oracle of encouragement (2, 1-9) for the sake of those who gloomily contrasted the former magnificence of Solomon's Temple with the Second Temple: the Lord would be present in this new abode, and its glory, enhanced by the offerings of the Gentiles, would surpass the ancient splendor. The prophecy may be divided into five oracles: The call to rebuild the Temple. The economic distress so apparent in Juda is due to the Jews' neglect of the Lord while they provide for their own needs (1, 1–15). The future glory of the new Temple, surpassing that of the old (2, 1–9). Unworthiness of a people, who may be Samaritans, to offer sacrifice at the newly restored altar. This oracle is cast in the literary form of a torah, an instruction given the people by a priest (2, 10–14). A promise of immediate blessings, which follows upon the undertaking (chapter 1) to rebuild the Temple (2, 15–19). A pledge to Zorobabel, descendant of David, repository of the Messianic hopes (2, 20–23.)

CHAPTER 1.

Exhortation To Rebuild the Temple of the Lord. 1 On the first day of the sixth month in the second year* of King Darius,

1 Jer 2, 15.—m So 1, 18.—n Os 14, 4.—o Mi 4, 4.—p Za 9, 9.—q Mt 4, 27.—r Mi 4, 6.

the word of the Lord came through the prophet Aggai to the governor of Juda, Zorobabel, son of Salathiel, and to the high priest Josue, son of Josedec: a

2 Thus says the Lord of hosts: This people says: "Not now has the time come to rebuild the house of the Lord." 3 (Then this word of the Lord came through Aggai, the prophet:) 4 b Is it time for you to dwell in your own paneled houses, while this house lies in ruins?*

5 Now thus says the Lord of hosts: Consider your ways! 6 c You have sown much, but have brought in little; you have eaten, but have not been satisfied; you have drunk, but have not been exhilarated; have clothed yourselves, but not been warmed; and he who earned wages earned them for a bag with holes in it.

7 Thus says the Lord of hosts: Consider your ways! 8 Go up into the hill country; bring timber, and build the house that I may take pleasure in it and receive my glory, says the Lord. 9 d You expected much, but it came to little; and what you brought home, I blew away. For what cause? says the Lord of hosts. Because my house lies in ruins, while each of you hurries to his own house. 10 e Therefore the heavens withheld from you their dew, and the earth her crops. 11 And I called for a drought upon the land and upon the mountains; upon the grain, and upon the wine, and upon the oil, and upon all that the ground brings forth; upon men and upon beasts, and upon all that is produced by hand.

12 Then Zorobabel, son of Salathiel, and the high priest Josue, son of Josedec, and all the remnant of the people* listened to the voice of the Lord, their God, and to the words of the prophet Aggai, because the Lord, their God, had sent him, and the people feared because of the Lord. 13 And the Lord's messenger, Aggai, proclaimed to the people as the message of the Lord: I am with you, says the Lord.

14 Then the Lord stirred up the spirit of the governor of Juda, Zorobabel, son of Salathiel, and the spirit of the high priest Josue, son of Josedec, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people, so that they came and set to work on the house of the Lord of hosts, their God, 15 on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month.

CHAPTER 2.

Future Glory of the New Temple. In the second year of King Darius, 1 on the twenty-first day of the seventh month, the word of the Lord came through the prophet Aggai: 2 Tell this to the governor of Juda, Zorobabel, son of Salathiel, and to the high priest Josue, son of Josedec, and to the remnant of the people:

3 Who is left among you that saw this house in its former glory? And how do you see it now? Does it not seem like nothing in your eyes? 4 f But now take courage, Zorobabel, says the Lord, and take courage, Josue, high priest, son of Josedec, and take courage, all you people of the land says the Lord, and work! For I am with you, says the Lord of hosts. 5 g This is the pact that I made with you when you came out of Egypt, and my spirit continues in your midst; do not fear.

6 *For thus says the Lord of hosts: One moment yet, a little while, and I will shake the heavens and the earth, the sea and the dry land.b 7 i I will shake all the nations, and the treasures of all the nations will come in, and I will fill this house with glory, says the Lord of hosts. 8 Mine is the silver and mine the gold says the Lord of hosts. i Greater will be the future glory of this house than the former, says the Lord of hosts; and in this place I will give peace, says the Lord of hosts!

Offerings of the Unclean Rejected. 10 On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, in the second year of King Darius, the word of the Lord came to the prophet Aggai: Thus says the Lord of hosts: 11 k Ask the priests for a decision: 12 *If a man carries sanctified flesh in the fold of his garment and the fold touches bread, or pottage, or wine, or oil, or any other food, do they become sanctified? "No," the priests answered. 13 l Then Ag-

1, 4: The luxury of the homes of the wealthy with their paneled houses contrasts sadly with the ruined state of the Lord's house.

1, 12: The remnant of the people: a technical term in Aggai and Zacharia for the returned exiles.

2, 6-9: From the later period of Ezechiel's preaching onward, the temple became, as here, one of the dominant Messianic themes. Greater will be the future glory of this house than the former: because Christ will enter it.

2, 12ff: According to the ritual concepts of the Jews, uncleanness was more contagious than sacredness. Inasmuch as the people were unclean, their offerings became unclean (Nm 19, 22).

gai said: If a person unclean from contact with a corpse touches any of these, do they become unclean? The priests answered, "They become unclean." 14 Then Aggai continued: So is this people, and so is this nation in my sight, says the Lord: and so are all the works of their hands; and what they offer there is unclean.

Promise of Immediate Blessings.* 15 But now, consider from this day forward. Before there was a stone laid upon a stone in the temple of the Lord, 16 m how did you fare?

When one went to a heap of grain for twenty measures, it would yield but ten· when another went to the vat to draw fifty measures, there would be but twenty. 17 I struck you in all the works of your hands with blight, searing wind, and hail, yet you did not return to me, says the Lord.

18 [Consider from this day forward: from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month.* From the day on which the temple of the Lord was founded, consider!]

19 Indeed, the seed has not sprouted, nor have the vine, the fig, the pomegranate and the olive tree yet borne. From this day, I will bless!

Pledge to Zorobabel. 20 The message of the Lord came a second time to Aggai on the twenty-fourth day of the month:* 21 Tell this to Zorobabel, the governor of Juda: I will shake the heavens and the earth; 22 n I will overthrow the thrones of kingdoms, destroy the power of the kingdoms of the nations. I will overthrow the chariots and their riders, and the riders with their horses shall go down by one another's sword. 23 o On that day, says the Lord of hosts, I will take you, Zorobabel,* son of Salathiel, my servant, says the Lord, and I will set you as a signet ring; for I have chosen you, says the Lord of hosts.

THE BOOK OF ZACHARIA

Zacharia's initial prophecy is dated to 520 B. C., the same year as that in which Aggai received the prophetic call. The first eight chapters of the Book of Zacharia contain oracles which certainly belong to him while the last six (sometimes called "Deutero-Zacharia") represent the work of one or more unknown authors. In the prophecies proper to Zacharia eight symbolic visions are recorded, all meant to promote the work of rebuilding the Temple and to encourage the returned exiles, especially their leaders, Josue and Zorobabel. In the final chapter of this first division Zacharia portrays the Messianic future under the figure of a prosperous land to which the nations come in pilgrimage, eager to follow the God of Israel.

The second part of Zacharia is divided into two sections, each with its own introductory title. The first (9-11) consists of oracles whose historical background, date and authorship are extremely difficult to determine. With 9, 9 begins the Messianic vision of the coming of the Prince of Peace. The verses describing the triumphant appearance of the humble king are taken up by the four Evangelists to describe the entry of Christ into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday. Chapter 12 is introduced by an oracle proclaiming the victory of God's people over the heathen. The prophecy closes by describing, in apocalyptic imagery, the final assault of the enemy on Jerusalem, after which the Messianic age begins.

CHAPTER 1.

Necessity of Conversion. 1 In the second year of Darius, in the eighth month,* the word of the Lord came to the prophet Zacharia,a son of Barachia, son of Addo: 2 The Lord was indeed angry with your fathers. . . . 3 and say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Return to me, says the Lord of hosts, and I will return to you, says the Lord of hosts. 4 b Be not like your fathers whom the former prophets warned: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Turn from your evil ways and from your wicked deeds. But they would not listen or pay attention to me, says the Lord. 5 Your fathers, where are they? And the prophets, can they live forever? 6 c But my words and my decrees, which I en-

2, 20: The month: probably again the sixth month, as in Ag 1, 15 and 2, 18; see note on the latter.

2, 23: This promise to Zorobabel, reversing the punishment of his grandfather (Jer 22, 24), is a continuation of the Messianic hope; cf Za 6, 11f.

trusted to my servants the prophets, did not these overtake your fathers? Then they repented and admitted: "The Lord of hosts has treated us according to our ways and deeds, just as he had determined he would."

The Four Horsemen. 7 In the second year of Darius, on the twenty-fourth day of Sabat, the eleventh month,* the word of the Lord came to the prophet Zacharia, son of Barachia, son of Addo, in the following way: 8 d I had a vision during the night. There appeared the driver of a red horse,* standing among myrtle trees in a shady place, and behind him were red, sorrel, and white horses. 9 Then I asked, "What are these, my lord?"; and the angel who spoke with me answered me, "I will show you what these are." 10 e The man who was standing among the myrtle trees spoke up and said, "These are they whom the Lord has sent to patrol the earth." 11 And they answered the angel of the Lord who was standing among the myrtle trees and said, "We have patrolled the earth, see, the whole earth is tranquil and at rest!"

12 f Then the angel of the Lord spoke out and said, "O Lord of hosts, how long will you be without mercy for Jerusalem and the cities of Juda that have felt your anger these seventy years?"* 13 g To the angel who spoke with me, the Lord replied with comforting words.

14 h And the angel who spoke with me said to me, Proclaim: Thus says the Lord of hosts: I am deeply moved for the sake of Jerusalem and Sion, 15 i and I am exceedingly angry with the complacent nations;* whereas I was but a little angry, they added to the harm. 16 j Therefore, says the Lord: I will turn to Jerusalem in mercy; my house shall be built in it, says the Lord of hosts, and a measuring line* shall be stretched over Jerusalem. 17 k Proclaim further: Thus says the Lord of hosts: My cities shall again overflow with prosperity; the Lord will again comfort Sion, and again choose Jerusalem.

1, 8-11: The driver of a red horse: apparently distinct from the man, or angel of the Lord . . . standing among the myrtle trees, who spoke with the prophet. The four horsemen are sent by God to the four corners of the earth (Za 2, 10), to see if the whole earth is at peace.

1, 12: These seventy years: see note on Jer 25, 1-14.

1, 15: The complacent nations: the neighbors of Juda, especially Edom, which enjoyed their present prosperity and security at Juda's expense.

1, 16: Measuring line: not for devastation, as in Is 34, 11, but for reconstruction.

2, 1-4: Four horns: symbolic of the hostile forces which, from the four corners of the earth, invaded and devastated the land of Juda. Four blacksmiths: the powers used by God to destroy these enemies of His people.

2, 8: That young man: the angel or man with a measuring line of v 5.

2, 10: The land of the north: Babylonia (v 11).

CHAPTER 2.

Four Horns and Four Blacksmiths. 1 I raised my eyes and looked: there were four horns.* 2 Then I asked the angel who spoke with me what these were. He answered me, "These are the horns that scattered Juda and Israel and Jerusalem."

3 Then the Lord showed me four blacksmiths. And I asked, "What are these coming to do?" 4 And he said, "Here are the horns that scattered Juda, so that no man raised his head any more; but these have come to terrify them: to cast down the horns of the nations that raised their horns to scatter the land of Juda."

The New Jerusalem. 5 l Again I raised my eyes and looked: there was a man with a measuring line in his hand. 6 m "Where are you going?" I asked. "To measure Jerusalem," he answered; "to see how great is its width and how great its length."

7 Then the angel who spoke with me advanced, and another angel came out to meet him and said to him, 8 n "Run, tell this to that young man:* People will live in Jerusalem as though in open country, because of the multitude of men and beasts in her midst. 9 But I will be for her an encircling wall of fire, says the Lord, and I will be the glory in her midst."

10 Up, up! Flee from the land of the north,* says the Lord; for I had scattered you to the four winds of heaven, says the Lord. 11 Up, O Sion! Escape, you who dwell with daughter Babylon. 12 o For thus says the Lord of hosts [after, glory, he has sent me] concerning the nations that have plundered you: Whoever touches you touches the apple of my eye. 13 See, I wave my hand over them; they become plunder for their slaves. Thus you shall know that the Lord of hosts has sent me.

14 p Sing and rejoice, O daughter Sion! See, I am coming to dwell among you, says the Lord. 15 Many nations shall join themselves to the Lord on that day, and they shall be his people, and he will dwell among you, and you shall know that the Lord of hosts has sent me to you. 16 The Lord will possess Juda as his portion in the holy land, and he will again choose Jerusalem. 17 Silence, all mankind, in the presence of the Lord! for he stirs forth from his holy dwelling.

CHAPTER 3.

Josue the High Priest. 1 Then he showed me Josue the high priest standing before the angel of the Lord, while Satan stood at his right hand to accuse him.q 2 r And the angel of the Lord said to Satan, "May the Lord rebuke you, Satan; may the Lord who had chosen Jerusalem rebuke you! Is not this man a brand snatched from the fire?"

3 Now Josue was standing before the angel clad in filthy garments.* 4 s He spoke and said to those who were standing before him, "Take off his filthy garments, and clothe him in festal garments." 5 He also said, "Put a clean miter on his head." And they put a clean miter on his head and clothed him with the garments. Then the angel of the Lord, standing, said, "See, I have taken away your guilt."

6 The angel of the Lord then gave Josue this assurance: 7 "Thus says the Lord of hosts: If you walk in my ways and heed my charge, you shall judge my house and keep my courts, and I will give you access among these standing here. 8 t Listen, O Josue, high priest! You and your associates who sit before you are men of good omen.* Yes, I will bring my servant the Shoot. 9 u Look at the stone that I have placed before Josue, one stone with seven facets.* I will engrave its inscription, says the Lord of hosts, and I will take away the guilt of the land in one day. 10 v On that day, says the Lord of hosts, you will invite one another under your vines and fig trees."

4 Then I said to the angel who spoke with me, "What are these things, my lord?" 5 And the angel who spoke with me replied, "Do you not know what these things are?" "No, my lord," I answered. 6 Then he said to me, "This is the Lord's message to Zorobabel: Not by an army, nor by might, but by my spirit, says the Lord of hosts. 7 w What are you, O great mountain?* Before Zorobabel you are but a plain. He shall bring out the capstone amid exclamations of 'Hail, Hail' to it."

8 This word of the Lord then came to me: 9 x The hands of Zorobabel have laid the foundations of this house, and his hands shall finish it; then you shall know that the Lord of hosts has sent me to you. 10 y For even they who are scornful on that day of small beginnings shall rejoice to see the select stone in the hands of Zorobabel. These seven facets are the eyes of the Lord that range over the whole earth.

The Lampstand. 1 Then the angel who spoke with me returned and awakened me, like a man awakened from his sleep. 2 z "What do you see?" he asked me. "I see a lampstand all of gold, with a bowl at the top," I replied; "on it are seven lamps with their tubes, 3 a and beside it are two olive trees, one on the right and the other on the left." 11 I then asked him, "What are these two olive trees at each side of the lampstand?" 12 And again I asked, "What are the two olive tufts which freely pour out fresh oil through the two golden channels?" 13 "Do you not know what these are?" he said to me. "No, my lord," I answered him. 14 He said, "These are the two anointed* who stand by the Lord of the whole earth."

CHAPTER 5.

The Flying Scroll.* 1 Then I raised my eyes again b and saw a scroll flying. 2 "What do you see?" he asked me. I an-

3, 3: Filthy garments: symbolic of mourning for the dead, or of national catastrophe, and implying acknowledgment of guilt (v 5).

3, 8: Men of good omen: the restoration of the priesthood is a sign of the coming of the Messianic times. My servant the Shoot: identified, in the earliest form of Za 6, 11f as the prophet composed it, with Zorobabel, direct descendant of King David and rebuilder of the temple; and, as such, a type of the Messia; cf Jer 23, 5.

3, 9: One stone with seven facets: apparently the same as the select stone of Za 4, 10, which seems to be a precious gem. The seven facets are explained in Za 4, 10 as signifying the Lord's vigilance over the world. I will engrave its inscription: the same Hebrew verb for engrave is used in Ex 28, 9. 11 in regard to the inscriptions on the twelve precious stones of the priestly breastpiece.

4, 7: Great mountain: figure of the obstacles confronting Zorobabel in building the temple. A plain: figure of the ease with which he will overcome these obstacles.

4, 1ff.11-14: The two anointed: literally, "the two sons of oil," Josue, the anointed high priest, and Zorobabel, the anointed prince. Just as the two olive trees in this imagery supply the sacred seven-branched lampstand (cf Ex 25, 31-40) with oil (v 12), so these two men, in ministering to the community, stand by (serve) the Lord.

5, 1-4: The enormous scroll, thirty feet by fifteen (the dimensions in length and breadth of the portico of Solomon's Temple, 3 Kgs 6, 3), contains a list of maledictions on sinners, similar to that in Dt 27, 15-26. The thief and the perjurer represent all sinners, who are expelled from the holy community.

swered, "I see a scroll flying; it is twenty cubits long and ten cubits wide."[3] Then he said to me: "This is the curse which is to go forth over the whole earth; in accordance with it shall every thief be swept away, and in accordance with it shall every perjurer be expelled from here. [4] [c] I will send it forth, says the Lord of hosts, and it shall come into the house of the thief, or into the house of him who perjures himself with my name; it shall lodge within his house, consuming it, timber and stones."

The Flying Bushel.* [5] Then the angel who spoke with me came forward and said to me, "Raise your eyes and see what this is that comes forth." [6] "What is it?" I asked. And he answered, "This is a bushel container coming. This is their guilt in all the land." [7] Then a leaden cover was lifted, and there was a woman sitting inside the bushel. [8] "This is Wickedness," he said; and he thrust her inside the bushel, pushing the leaden cover into the opening. [9] Then I raised my eyes and saw two women coming forth with a wind ruffling their wings, for they had wings like the wings of a stork. As they lifted up the bushel into the air, [10] I said to the angel who spoke with me, "Where are they taking the bushel?" [11] [d] He replied, "To build a temple for it in the land of Senaar; when the temple is ready, they will deposit it there in its place."

Four Chariots. [1] Again I raised my eyes and saw four chariots* coming out from between two mountains; and the mountains were of bronze. [2] [e] The first chariot had red horses, the second chariot black horses, [3] the third chariot white horses, and the fourth chariot spotted horses—all of them strong horses. [4] I asked the angel who spoke with me, "What are these, my lord?" [5] [f] The angel said to me in reply, "These are the four winds of the heavens, which are coming forth after being reviewed by the Lord of all the earth." [6] The chariot with the black horses was turning toward the land of the north, the red and the white horses went after them, and the spotted ones went toward the land of the south. [7] As these strong horses emerged, eager to set about patrolling the earth, he said, "Go, patrol the earth!" Then, as they patrolled the earth, [8] he called out to me and said, "See, they that go forth to the land of the north will make my spirit rest in the land of the north."

The Coronation. [9] This word of the Lord then came to me: [10] Take from the returned captives Holdai, Tobia, Idaia; and go the same day to the house of Josia, son of Sophonia (these had come from Babylon). [11] Silver and gold you shall take, and make a crown; place it on the head of [Josue, son of Josedec, the high priest] Zorobabel.* [12] [g] And say to him: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Here is a man whose name is Shoot, and where he is he shall sprout, and he shall build the temple of the Lord. [13] [h] Yes, he shall build the temple of the Lord, and taking up the royal insignia, he shall sit as ruler upon his throne. The priest shall be at his right hand, and between the two of them there shall be friendly understanding. [14] The crown itself shall be a memorial offering in the temple of the Lord in favor of Holdai, Tobia, Idaia, and the son of Sophonia. [15] [i] And they who are from afar shall come and build the temple of the Lord, and you shall know that the Lord of hosts has sent me to you. And if you heed carefully the voice of the Lord, your God. . . .

CHAPTER 7.

True Fasting. [1] In the fourth year of Darius the king [the word of the Lord came to Zacharia], on the fourth day of Casleu, the ninth month,* [2] Bethel-Sarasar sent Rogammelech and his men to implore favor of the Lord [3] [j] and to ask the priests of the house of the Lord of hosts, and the prophets, "Must I mourn and abstain in the fifth month as I have been

5, 5-11: The woman sealed in the bushel container is a figure of the general corruption of the people of Juda. She is removed from the Holy Land and transported to Senaar, that is, Babylonia, where a dwelling is being prepared for her; this is a symbol of the reign of Wickedness in pagan lands, contrasted with the reign of holiness in the Lord's dwelling on Mount Sion.

6, 1-8: The four chariots represent the angelic hosts sent by the Lord to the four ends of the earth. The chariot with the black horses brings the spirit, i. e., anger of the Lord against the land of the north, Babylonia.

6, 11: Make a crown; place it on the head of [Josue, son of Josedec, the high priest] Zorobabel: According to the current Hebrew text, Josue the high priest is to be crowned. However, since the crown is a sign of royalty, the original text must have had the name of Zorobabel here, not that of Josue. In Za 3, 8 Josue is a different man from the one called the Shoot, and in v 12 it is upon the Shoot that the crown is to be placed.

doing these many years?" [4] Thereupon this word of the Lord of hosts came to me: [5] k Say to all the people of the land and to the priests: When you fasted and mourned in the fifth and in the seventh month these seventy years, was it really for me that you fasted? [6] And when you were eating and drinking, was it not for yourselves that you ate, and for yourselves that you drank? [7] l Were not these the words which the Lord spoke through the former prophets, when Jerusalem and the surrounding cities were inhabited and at peace, when the Negeb and the foothills were inhabited? [8] [This word of the Lord came to Zacharia: [9] m Thus says the Lord of hosts:] Render true judgment, and show kindness and compassion toward each other. [10] n Do not oppress the widow or the orphan, the alien or the poor; do not plot evil against one another in your hearts. [11] o But they refused to listen; they stubbornly turned their backs and stopped their ears so as not to hear. [12] p And they made their hearts diamond-hard so as not to hear the teaching and the message that the Lord of hosts had sent by his spirit through the former prophets. [13] q Then the Lord of hosts in his great anger said that, as they had not listened when he called, so he would not listen when they called, [14] r but would scatter them with a whirlwind among all the nations that they did not know. Thus the land was left desolate after them with no one traveling to and fro; they made the pleasant land into a desert.

CHAPTER 8.

In the Days of the Messia. [1] This word of the Lord of hosts came: Thus says the Lord of hosts: [2] s I am intensely jealous for Sion, stirred to jealous wrath for her. [3] t Thus says the Lord: I will return to Sion, and I will dwell within Jerusalem· Jerusalem shall be called the faithful city, and the mountain of the Lord of hosts, the holy mountain.

[4] Thus says the Lord of hosts: Old men and old women, each with staff in hand because of old age, shall again sit in the streets of Jerusalem. [5] The city shall be filled with boys and girls playing in her streets. [6] Thus says the Lord of hosts: Even if this should seem impossible in the eyes of the remnant of this people, shall it in those days be impossible in my eyes also, says the Lord of hosts? [7] u Thus says the Lord of hosts: Lo, I will rescue my people from the land of the rising sun, and from the land of the setting sun. [8] v I will bring them back to dwell within Jerusalem. They shall be my people, and I will be their God, with faithfulness and justice.

[9] w Thus says the Lord of hosts: Let your hands be strong, you who in these days hear these words spoken by the prophets on the day when the foundation of the house of the Lord of hosts was laid for the building of the temple. [10] For before those days there were no wages for men, or hire for beasts; those who came and went had no security from the enemy, for I set every man against his neighbor. [11] But now I will not deal with the remnant of this people as in former days, says the Lord of hosts, [12] for it is the seedtime of peace: the vine shall yield its fruit, the land shall bear its crops, and the heavens shall give their dew; all these things I will have the remnant of the people possess. [13] x Just as you were a curse among the nations, O house of Juda and house of Israel, so will I save you that you may be a blessing; do not fear, but let your hands be strong.

[14] y Thus says the Lord of hosts: As I determined to harm you when your fathers provoked me to wrath, says the Lord of hosts, and I did not relent, [15] so again in these days I have determined to favor Jerusalem and the house of Juda; do not fear! [16] z These then are the things you should do: Speak the truth to one another; let there be honesty and peace in the judgments at your gates, [17] a and let none of you plot evil against another in his heart, nor love a false oath. For all these things I hate, says the Lord.

[18] This word of the Lord of hosts came to me: [19] Thus says the Lord of hosts: The fast days of the fourth, the fifth, the seventh, and the tenth months* shall become occasions of joy and gladness, cheerful festivals for the house of Juda;

CHAPTER 9.

Invasion by the Lord.* 1 A burden: The word of the Lord is upon the land of Hadrach, and Damascus is its resting place, for the cities of Aram are the Lord's, as are all the tribes of Israel, 2 e Hamath also, on its border, Tyre too, and Sidon, however wise they be. 3 Tyre built herself a stronghold, and heaped up silver like dust, and gold like the mire of the streets. 4 f Lo, the Lord will strip her of her possessions, and smite her power on the sea, and she shall be devoured by fire. 5 Ascalon shall see it and be afraid; Gaza also: she shall be in great anguish; Accaron too, for her hope shall come to nought. The king shall disappear from Gaza, and Ascalon shall not be inhabited, 6 g and the baseborn* shall occupy Azotus. I will destroy the pride of the Philistine 7 and take from his mouth his bloody meat, and his abominations from between his teeth: he also shall become a remnant* for our God, and shall be like a family in Juda, and Accaron shall be like the Jebusites. 8 I will encamp by my house* as a guard that none may pass to and fro; no oppressor shall pass over them again, for now I have regard for their affliction.

Restoration under the Messia. 9 h Rejoice heartily, O daughter Sion, shout for joy, O daughter Jerusalem! See, your king shall come to you; a just savior is he, meek, and riding on an ass, on a colt, the foal of an ass.* 10 i He shall banish the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem; the warrior's bow shall be banished, and he shall proclaim peace to the nations. His dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the River* to the ends of the earth. 11 j As for you, for the blood of your covenant with me,* I will bring forth your prisoners from the dungeon. 12 k In the return to the fortress of the waiting prisoners,* this very day, I will return you double for your exile. 13 For I will bend Juda as my bow, I will arm myself with Ephraim; I will arouse your sons, O Sion, [against your sons, O Yavan,] and I will use you as a warrior's sword.

14 The Lord shall appear over them, and his arrow shall shoot forth as lightning; the Lord God shall sound the trumpet, and come in a storm from the south. 15 The Lord of hosts shall be a shield over them, they shall overcome sling stones and trample them underfoot; they shall drink blood like wine, till they are filled with it like libation bowls, like the corners of the altar. 16 l And the Lord, their God, shall save them on that day, his people, like a flock. For they are the jewels in a crown raised aloft over his land. 17 For what wealth is theirs, and what beauty! grain that makes the youths flourish, and new wine, the maidens!

9, 9: The Messia will come, not as a conquering warrior, but in lowliness and peace. Not like the last kings of Juda, who rode in chariots and on horses (Jer 17, 25; 22, 4), but like the princes of old (Gn 49, 11; Jgs 5, 10; 10, 4), the Messia will ride on an ass. The Evangelists see a literal fulfillment of this prophecy in the Savior's triumphant entry into Jerusalem (Mt 21, 4f; Jn 12, 14f).

grassy fields. 2 n For the teraphim* speak nonsense, the diviners have false visions: deceitful dreams they tell, empty comfort they offer. This is why they wander like sheep, wretched: they have no shepherd. 3 My wrath is kindled against the shepherds, and I will punish the leaders; for the Lord of hosts will visit his flock, the house of Juda, and make them his stately war horse.

4 From him shall come leader and chief, from him warrior's bow and every officer. 5 They shall all be warriors, trampling the mire of the streets in battle; they shall wage war because the Lord is with them, and shall put the horsemen to rout. 6 I will strengthen the house of Juda, the house of Joseph I will save; I will bring them back, because I have mercy on them, they shall be as though I had never cast them off, for I am the Lord, their God, and I will hear them. 7 Then Ephraim shall be valiant men, and their hearts shall be cheered as by wine. Their children shall see it and be glad, their hearts shall rejoice in the Lord.

8 o I will whistle for them to come together, and when I redeem them they will be as numerous as before. 9 I sowed them among the nations, yet in distant lands they remember me; they shall rear their children and return. 10 p I will bring them back from the land of Egypt, and gather them from Assyria. I will bring them into Galaad and into Lebanon, but these shall not suffice them; 11 q I will cross over to Egypt and smite the waves of the sea and all the depths of the Nile shall be dried up. The pride of Assyria shall be cast down, and the scepter of Egypt taken away. 12 r I will strengthen them in the Lord, and they shall walk in his name, says the Lord.

CHAPTER 11.

1 Open your doors, O Lebanon, that the fire may devour your cedars! 2 Wail, you cypress trees, for the cedars are fallen, the mighty have been despoiled. Wail, you oaks of Basan, for the impenetrable forest is cut down! 3 Hark! the wailing of the shepherds, their glory has been ruined. Hark! the roaring of the young lions, the jungle of the Jordan is laid waste.

Allegory of the Shepherds.* 4 Thus said the Lord, my God: Shepherd the flock to be slaughtered. 5 s For they who buy them slay them with impunity; while those who sell them say, "Blessed be the Lord, I have become rich!" Even their own shepherds do not feel for them. 6 (Nor shall I spare the inhabitants of the earth any more, says the Lord. Yes, I will deliver each of them into the power of his neighbor, or into the power of his king; they shall crush the earth, and I will not deliver it out of their power.)

7 t So I became the shepherd of the flock to be slaughtered for the sheep merchants. I took two staffs, one of which I called "Favor," and the other, "Bonds," and I fed the flock. 8 In a single month I did away with the three shepherds. I wearied of them, and they behaved badly toward me. 9 u "I will not feed you," I said. "What is to die, let it die; what is to perish, let it perish, and let those that are left devour one another's flesh."

10 Then I took my staff "Favor" and snapped it asunder, breaking off the covenant which I had made with all peoples; that day it was broken off. 11 The sheep merchants who were watching me understood that this was the word of the Lord. 12 v I said to them, "If it seems good to you, give me my wages; but if not, let it go." And they counted out my wages, thirty pieces of silver. 13 w But the Lord said to me, "Throw it in the treasury, the handsome price at which they valued me." So I took the thirty pieces of silver and threw them into the treasury in the house of the Lord.

14 Then I snapped asunder my other staff, "Bonds," breaking off the brotherhood between Juda and Israel. 15 The Lord said to me: This time take the gear of a foolish shepherd. 16 x For I will raise up a shepherd in the land who will take no note of those that perish, nor seek the 11, 4-17: In this allegory the prophet becomes the good shepherd of God's flock, which is being slaughtered; he is the defender of the people exploited by bad rulers. The three shepherds, rulers in general, are to destroy one another in a short time (a single month). The service of the good shepherd is contemptuously valued at thirty pieces of silver, the legal indemnity (Ex 21, 32) for a gored slave. The prophet is thus a type of Christ, whose mission of salvation to His people was appraised by the Sanhedrists, the false shepherds, at the same base price (Mt 26, 14ff). In the case of the prophet as well as of Christ (Mt 27, 5), the money is thrown into the temple treasury, i. e., paid to God, showing thereby how shamefully His divine love and care are requited.

17 y Woe to my foolish shepherd who forsakes the flock! May the sword fall upon his arm and upon his right eye; let his arm wither away entirely, and his right eye be blind forever!

CHAPTER 12.

Jerusalem God's Instrument.* 1 A burden: the word of the Lord concerning Israel.z Thus says the Lord, who spreads out the heavens, lays the foundations of the earth, and forms the spirit of man within him: 2 a See, I will make Jerusalem a bowl to stupefy all peoples round about. [Juda will be besieged, even Jerusalem.] 3 b On that day I will make Jerusalem a weighty stone for all peoples. All who attempt to lift it shall injure themselves badly, and all the nations of the earth shall be gathered against her. 4 On that day, says the Lord, I will strike every horse with fright, and its rider with madness. I will strike blind all the horses of the peoples, but upon the house of Juda I will open my eyes, 5 and the princes of Juda shall say to themselves, "The inhabitants of Jerusalem have their strength in the Lord of hosts, their God." 6 c On that day I will make the princes of Juda like a brazier of fire in the woodland, and like a burning torch among sheaves, and they shall devour right and left all the surrounding peoples; but Jerusalem shall still abide on its own site. 7 The Lord shall save the tents of Juda first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not be exalted over Juda. 8 d On that day, the Lord will shield the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the weakling among them shall be like David on that day, and the house of David godlike, like an angel of the Lord before them. 9 On that day I will seek the destruction of all nations that come against Jerusalem.

Messianic Jerusalem. 10 e I will pour out on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and petition; and they shall look on him whom they have thrust through, and they shall mourn for him as one mourns for an only son, and they shall grieve over him as one grieves over a first-born.*

11 f On that day the mourning in Jerusalem shall be as great as the mourning of Adadremmon in the plain of Mageddon.* And the land shall mourn, each family apart: 12 the family of the house of David, and their wives; the family of the house of Nathan, and their wives; 13 the family of the house of Levi, and their wives; the family of Semei, and their wives; 14 and all the rest of the families, each family apart, and the wives apart.

CHAPTER 13.

The End of Falsehood. 1 On that day there shall be open to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, a fountain to purify from sin* and uncleanness.g 2 h On that day, says the Lord of hosts, I will destroy the names of the idols from the land, so that they shall be mentioned no more; I will also take away the prophets and the spirit of uncleanness from the land. 3 i If a man still prophesies, his parents, father and mother, shall say to him, "You shall not live, because you have spoken a lie in the name of the Lord." When he prophesies, his parents, father and mother, shall thrust him through.

4 On that day, every prophet shall be ashamed to prophesy his vision, neither shall he assume the hairy mantle* to mislead, but he shall say, 5 j "I am no prophet, I am a tiller of the soil, for I have owned land since my youth." 6 And if anyone asks him, "What are these

12, 1-9: Under the image of the deliverance of Juda and Jerusalem from invading enemies, the prophet foretells the ultimate victory of God's people in the Messianic age.

12, 10: The divine blessings (a spirit of grace and petition) will be poured out on God's people through the intervention of an unnamed sufferer (him whom they have thrust through), similar to the Servant of the Lord in Is 52, 13—53, 12. In Jn 19, 37 the Evangelist sees in this passage a prophecy fulfilled in the piercing of Christ's side.

12, 11: The mourning for the pierced victim in Jerusalem is compared to a lamentation in the plain of Mageddon apparently over a certain personage called Adadremmon. The reference is no longer clear. Both Adad (Hadad) and Remmon were names of the Semitic storm god, often identified with the god Baal. Some see here a reference to the annual mourning by the pagans over the death of the fertility god. According to others, Adadremmon is the name of a place near Mageddon, and the reference would then be to the mourning over the death of King Josia, who was killed in battle there; cf 2 Par 35, 22-25.

13, 1: A fountain to purify from sin: in contrast to the lustral water used in ritual purification; cf Nm 19, 9. 13. 20; 31, 23. The Lord Himself is the fountain of living water (Jer 2, 13); cf Is 12, 2ff.

wounds on your chest?"* he shall answer, "With these I was wounded in the house of my dear ones."

The Song of the Sword. 7 k Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, against the man who is my associate, says the Lord of hosts. Strike the shepherd that the sheep may be dispersed,* and I will turn my hand against the little ones. 8 In all the land, says the Lord, two thirds of them shall be cut off and perish, and one third shall be left. 9 l I will bring the one third through fire, and I will refine them as silver is refined, and I will test them as gold is tested. They shall call upon my name, and I will hear them. I will say, "They are my people," and they shall say, "The Lord is my God."

CHAPTER 14.

The Fight for Jerusalem.* 1 Lo, a day shall come for the Lord when the spoils shall be divided in your midst. 2 And I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem for battle: the city shall be taken, houses plundered, women ravished; half of the city shall go into exile, but the rest of the people shall not be removed from the city. 3 Then the Lord shall go forth and fight against those nations, fighting as on a day of battle. 4 That day his feet shall rest upon the Mount of Olives, which is opposite Jerusalem to the east. The Mount of Olives shall be cleft in two from east to west by a very deep valley, and half of the mountain shall move to the north and half of it to the south. 5 And the valley of the Lord's mountain shall be filled up when the valley of those two mountains reaches its edge; it shall be filled up as it was filled up by the earthquake in the days of King Ozia of Juda. Then the Lord, my God, shall come, and all his holy ones with him.

6 On that day there shall no longer be cold or frost. 7 m There shall be one continuous day, known to the Lord, not day and night, for in the evening time there shall be light.

8 n On that day, living waters shall flow from Jerusalem, half to the eastern sea, and half to the western sea, and it shall be so in summer and in winter. 9 o The Lord shall become king over the whole earth; on that day the Lord shall be the only one, and his name the only one.

10 p And from Geba to Rimmon in the Negeb, all the land shall turn into a plain; but Jerusalem shall remain exalted in its place. From the Gate of Benjamin to the place of the First Gate, to the Corner Gate; and from the Tower of Hananeel to the king's wine presses, 11 q they shall occupy her. Never again shall she be doomed; Jerusalem shall abide in security.

12 And this shall be the plague with which the Lord shall strike all the nations that have fought against Jerusalem: their flesh shall rot while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall rot in their sockets, and their tongues shall rot in their mouths.

13 On that day there shall be among them a great tumult from the Lord: every man shall seize the hand of his neighbor, and the hand of each shall be raised against that of his neighbor. 14 Juda also shall fight against Jerusalem. The riches of all the surrounding nations shall be gathered together, gold, silver, and garments, in great abundance.

15 Similar to this plague shall be the plague upon the horses, mules, camels, asses, and upon all the beasts that are in those camps.

16 r All who are left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall come up year after year to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, and to celebrate the feast of Tabernacles. 17 If any of the families of the earth does not come up to Jerusalem to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, no rain shall fall upon them. 18 And if the family of Egypt does not come up, or enter, upon them shall fall the plague which the Lord will inflict upon all the nations that do not come up to celebrate the feast of Tabernacles. 19 This

13, 6: Wounds on your chest: literally, "wounds between your hands." The false prophets, like the prophet of Baal (3 Kgs 18, 28), apparently inflicted wounds on themselves; to defend himself against the accusation of being a false prophet, a man will deny having inflicted wounds on himself and say instead that he received them at home, "in the house of my dear ones." In the liturgy this text is applied to Christ in an accommodated sense.

13, 7: When the shepherd is killed, the sheep are scattered. In Mt 26, 31 the Evangelist quotes from this verse, in somewhat different form, the words, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered, as said by Christ shortly before His arrest in the Garden of Olives and the flight of the Apostles.

14, 1-21: An apocalyptic description of the Day of the Lord, in which Jerusalem, the figure of God's elect, after much suffering (siege: vv 1ff; riot: v 13; plague vv 12. 15), is rescued by the Lord (vv 4f) and given great blessings (vv 6-11. 14. 16-21).

20 On that day there shall be upon the bells of the horses, "Holy to the Lord." The pots in the house of the Lord shall be as the libation bowls before the altar. 21 s And every pot in Jerusalem and in Juda shall be holy to the Lord of hosts; and all who come to sacrifice shall take them and cook in them. On that day there shall no longer be any merchant in the house of the Lord of hosts.

THE BOOK OF MALACHIA

This work was composed by an anonymous writer shortly before Nehemia's arrival in Jerusalem (445 B. C.). Because of the sharp reproaches he was leveling against the priests and rulers of the people, the author probably wished to conceal his identity. To do this he made a proper name out of the Hebrew expression for "My Messenger" (Malachi), which occurs in 1, 1 and 3, 1. The historical value of the prophecy is considerable in that it gives us a picture of life in the Jewish community returned from Babylon, between the period of Aggai and the reform measures of Ezra and Nehemia. It is likely that the author's trenchant criticism of abuses and religious indifference in the community prepared the way for these necessary reforms.

The chosen people had made a sorry return for divine love. The priests, who should have been leaders, had dishonored God by their blemished sacrifices. In his first chapter, the writer foresees the time when all nations will offer a pure oblation (1, 11) — a prophecy whose fulfillment the Church sees in the Sacrifice of the Mass. The author then turns from priests to people, denouncing their marriages with pagans and their callous repudiation of Israelite wives. Imbued with the rationalist and critical spirit of the times, many had wearied God with the question, "Where is the God of justice?" To this question the prophet replies that the Day of the Lord is coming. But first the forerunner must come, who will prepare the soil for repentance and true worship. The Gospel writers point to John the Baptist as the forerunner ushering in the Messianic age, the true Day of the Lord. When the ground is prepared God will appear, measuring out rewards and punishments and purifying the nation in the furnace of judgment. He will create a new order in which the ultimate triumph of good is inevitable.

CHAPTER 1.

1 An oracle. The word of the Lord to Israel through Malachi.

Israel Preferred to Edom. 2 a I have loved you, says the Lord; but you say, "How have you loved us?" 3 *Was not Esau Jacob's brother? says the Lord: yet I loved Jacob, but hated Esau; b I made his mountains a waste, his heritage a desert for jackals. 4 c If Edom says, "We have been crushed but we will rebuild the ruins," thus says the Lord of hosts: They indeed may build, but I will tear down, and they shall be called the land of guilt, 5 the people with whom the Lord is angry forever. Your own eyes shall see it, and you will say, "Great is the Lord, even beyond the land of Israel." d

Sins of the Priests and Levites. 6 A son honors his father, and a servant fears his master; if then I am a father, where is the honor due to me? And if I am a master, where is the reverence due to me?—So says the Lord of hosts to you, O priests, who despise his name. But you ask, "How have we despised your name?" 7 By offering polluted food on my altar! Then you ask, "How have we polluted it?" By saying the table of the Lord may be slighted! 8 e When you offer a blind animal for sacrifice, is this not evil? When you offer the lame or the sick, is it not evil? Present it to your governor; see if he will accept it, or welcome you, says the Lord of hosts.* 9 So now if you im-

1, 3ff: The thought passes from the person Esau to his descendants, Edom, and from the person Jacob to his descendants, Israel. Loved: preferred; hated: rejected; cf Gn 25, 21ff. St. Paul uses this passage as an example of God's freedom of choice in calling the Gentiles to the faith (Rom 9, 13).

1, 8: The offering in sacrifice of a lame, sick or blind animal was forbidden in the Law (Lv 22, 17-25; Dt 17, 1).

plore God for mercy on us, when you have done the like will he welcome any of you? says the Lord of hosts.

10 *Oh, that one among you would shut the temple gates to keep you from kindling fire on my altar in vain! I have no pleasure in you, says the Lord of hosts; neither will I accept any sacrifice from your hands, 11 f for from the rising of the sun, even to its setting, my name is great among the nations; and everywhere they bring sacrifice to my name, and a pure offering; for great is my name among the nations, says the Lord of hosts. 12 But you behave profanely toward me by thinking the Lord's table and its offering may be polluted, and its food slighted. 13 You also say, "What a burden!" and you scorn it, says the Lord of hosts; you bring in what you seize, or the lame, or the sick; yes, you bring it as a sacrifice. Shall I accept it from your hands? says the Lord. 14 Cursed is the deceiver, who has in his flock a male, but under his vow sacrifices to the Lord a gelding; for a great King am I, says the Lord of hosts, and my name will be feared among the nations.

1 And now, O priests, this commandment is for you: If you do not listen, 2 g and if you do not lay it to heart, to give glory to my name, says the Lord of hosts, I will send a curse upon you and of your blessing I will make a curse. Yes, I have already cursed it, because you do not lay it to heart. 3 Lo, I will deprive you of the shoulder* and I will strew dung in your faces, the dung of your feasts, and you will be carried off with it. 4 h Then you will know that I sent you this commandment because I have a covenant with Levi, says the Lord of hosts. 5 i My covenant with him was one of life and peace; fear I put in him, and he feared me, and stood in awe of my name. 6 j True doctrine was in his mouth, and no dishonesty was found upon his lips; he walked with me in integrity and uprightness, and turned many away from evil. 7 k For the lips of the priest are to keep knowledge, and instruction is to be sought from his mouth, because he is the messenger of the Lord of hosts. 8 But you have turned aside from the way, and have caused many to falter by your instruction; you have made void the covenant of Levi, says the Lord of hosts. 9 I, therefore, have made you contemptible and base before all the people, since you do not keep my ways, but show partiality in your decisions.

Sins of the People. 10 *Have we not all the one Father? Has not the one God created us? Why then do we break faith with each other, violating the covenant of our fathers? l 11 m Juda has broken faith; an abominable thing has been done in Israel and in Jerusalem. Juda has profaned the temple which the Lord loves, and has married an idolatrous woman. 12 May the Lord cut off from the man who does this both witness and advocate out of the tents of Jacob, and anyone to offer sacrifice to the Lord of hosts!

13 This also you do: the altar of the Lord you cover with tears, weeping and groaning, because he no longer regards your sacrifice nor accepts it favorably from your hand; 14 n and you say, "Why is it?"—Because the Lord is witness between you and the wife of your youth, with whom you have broken faith though she is your companion, your betrothed wife. 15 o Did he not make one being, with flesh and spirit: and what does that one require but godly offspring? You must then safeguard life that is your own, and not break faith with the wife of your youth. 16 For I hate divorce, says the Lord, the God of Israel, and covering one's garment with injustice, says the Lord of hosts; you must then safeguard life that is your own, and not break faith.

17 You have wearied the Lord with your words, yet you say, "How have we wearied him?" By your saying, "Every evildoer is good in the sight of the Lord, and he is pleased with him"; or else, "Where is the just God?

1, 10f: The imperfect sacrifices offered without sincerity by the people of Juda are displeasing to the Lord. He will rather be pleased with the offerings of the Gentile nations throughout the world (from the rising of the sun, even to its setting), which anticipate the pure offering to be sacrificed in Messianic times, the universal Sacrifice of the Mass, as we are told by the Council of Trent.

2, 3: I will deprive you of the shoulder: this part of a sacrificial animal, allotted by the Law (Dt 18, 3) to the priests, will be withheld from them.

2, 10-16: Intermarriage of Israelites with foreigners was forbidden according to Dt 7, 1-4. After the Exile this law was strictly enforced (1 Esd 9-10). Foreign marriages are here portrayed as a violation of the covenant (v 10), which made the sacrifices offered by the offenders unacceptable to God (v 13). They were all the more reprehensible when accompanied by the divorce of Israelite wives (vv 14ff). This gradual return to the primitive ideal of the indissolubility of marriage was fully realized in New Testament times through the teaching of Christ; cf Mt 19, 3-12.

CHAPTER 3.

The Messenger of the Covenant. [1] Lo, I am sending my messenger [p] to prepare the way before me;* and suddenly there will come to the temple the Lord whom you seek, and the messenger of the covenant whom you desire. Yes, he is coming, says the Lord of hosts. [2] But who will endure the day of his coming? And who can stand when he appears? For he is like the refiner's fire, or like the fuller's lye.
[3] [q] He will sit refining and purifying [silver], and he will purify the sons of Levi, refining them like gold or like silver that they may offer due sacrifice to the Lord. [4] Then the sacrifice of Juda and Jerusalem will please the Lord, as in the days of old, as in years gone by. [5] I will draw near to you for judgment, and I will be swift to bear witness against the sorcerers, adulterers, and perjurers, those who defraud the hired man of his wages, against those who defraud widows and orphans; those who turn aside the stranger, and those who do not fear me, says
the Lord of hosts.

[6] *Surely I, the Lord, do not change, nor do you cease to be sons of Jacob. [7] [r] Since the days of your fathers you have turned aside from my statutes, and have not kept them. Return to me, and I will return to you, says the Lord of hosts. Yet you say, "How must we return?" [8] [s] Dare a man rob God? Yet you are robbing me!
And you say, "How do we rob you?" In tithes and in offerings! [9] You are indeed accursed, for you, the whole nation, rob me. [10] [t] Bring the whole tithe into the storehouse,* that there may be food in my house, and try me in this, says the Lord of hosts: Shall I not open for you the floodgates of heaven, to pour down blessing upon you without measure? [11] For your sake I will forbid the locust to destroy your crops; and the vine in the field will not be barren, says the Lord of hosts.
[12] Then all nations will call you blessed, for you will be a delightful land, says the Lord of hosts.

[13] You have defied me in word, says the Lord, yet you ask, "What have we spoken against you?" [14] [u] You have said,
"It is vain to serve God, and what do we profit by keeping his command, and going about in penitential dress in awe of the Lord of hosts? [15] Rather must we call the proud blessed; for indeed evildoers prosper, and even tempt God with impunity." [16] [v] Then they who fear the Lord spoke with one another, and the Lord listened attentively; and a record book* was written before him of those who fear the Lord and trust in his name. [17] [w] And they shall be mine, says the Lord of hosts, my own special possession, on the day I take action. And I will have compassion on them, as a man has compassion on his son who serves him. [18]
Then you will again see the distinction between the just and the wicked; between him who serves God, and him who does not serve him. [19] [x] For lo, the day is coming, blazing like an oven, when all the proud and all evildoers will be stubble, and the day that is coming will set them on fire, leaving them neither root nor branch, says the Lord of hosts. [20] [y] But for you who fear my name, there will arise the sun of justice with its healing rays; and you will gambol like calves out of the stall [21] and tread down the wicked; they will become ashes under the soles of your feet, on the day I take action, says
the Lord of hosts.

[22] [z] Remember the law of Moses my servant, which I enjoined upon him on Horeb, the statutes and ordinances for all Israel.

[23] [a] Lo, I will send you Elia,* the prophet, before the day of the Lord comes, the great and terrible day, to turn the hearts of the fathers to their children, and the hearts of the children to their fathers, [24] lest I come and strike the land with doom.

Lo, I will send you Elia, the prophet before the day of the Lord comes, the great and terrible day.*

3, 24: The words in fine print, a repetition of v 23a-d, have been added by the scribes so that the collection of the twelve minor prophets will not end with the threat of doom.

FIRST BOOK OF MACHABEES

The Books of Machabees are so called because they contain the history of the people of God under the command of Judas Machabeus and his brethren. The title Machabeus, from the Hebrew word meaning "Hammer," was given to Judas because of his daring and bravery in battle against the oppressors of the Jews. The two Books of Machabees treat of the persecution of the Jews beginning with the reign of Antiochus IV of Syria (175 B. C.) to the death of the High Priest Simon in 135 B. C. The First Book of Machabees embraces the period between 175 and 135 B. C. The original Hebrew text of the First Book of Machabees has been lost. The book has come down to us in the Greek Septuagint Version, the Bible of the primitive Christian Church. Although both the Jews and Protestants do not regard these books as Sacred Scripture, they have always been so regarded by the Church who has authoritatively and infallibly declared that they belong to the canon of inspired and sacred writings.

PROLOGUE

CHAPTER 1.

Beginning of Hellenism in Palestine. 1 Now [a] it came to pass, after that Alexander the son of Philip the Macedonian, who first reigned in Greece, coming out of the land of Cethim, had overthrown Darius king of the Persians and Medes, 2 he fought many battles, and took the strongholds of all, and slew the kings of the earth. 3 And he went through even to the ends of the earth, and took the spoils of many nations; and the earth was quiet before him. 4 And he gathered a power and a very strong army, and his heart was exalted and lifted up. 5 And he subdued countries of nations, and princes, and they became tributaries to him.

6 And after these things he fell down upon his bed, and knew that he should die. 7 And he called his servants the nobles that were brought up with him from his youth, and he divided his kingdom* among them, while he was yet alive. 8 And Alexander reigned twelve years, and he died.[b]

9 And his servants made themselves kings everyone in his place. 10 And they all put crowns upon themselves after his death, and their sons after them many years, and evils were multiplied in the earth.

I: EPIPHANES AND MATHATHIAS

1. Antiochus IV Persecutes the Jews

11 And there came out of them a wicked root. Antiochus the Illustrious,* the son of King Antiochus, who had been a hostage at Rome, and he reigned in the hundred and thirty-seventh year [c] of the kingdom of the Greeks.

12 In those days there went out of Israel wicked men, and they persuaded many, saying: Let us go, and make a covenant with the heathens that are round about us, for since we departed from them, many evils have befallen us. 13 And the word seemed good in their eyes. 14 And some of the people determined to do this, and went to the king, and he gave them license to do after the ordinances of the heathens.

15 And they built a place of exercise in Jerusalem, according to the laws of the nations. 16 And they made themselves prepuces, and departed from the holy covenant, and joined themselves to the heathens, and were sold to do evil.

17 [d] And the kingdom was established before Antiochus, and he had a mind to reign over the land of Egypt, that he might reign over two kingdoms. 18 And he entered into Egypt with a great multitude, with chariots and elephants, and horsemen, and a great number of ships. 19 And he made war against Ptolemy king of Egypt, but Ptolemy was afraid at his presence, and fled, and many were wounded unto death. 20 And he took the strong cities in the land of Egypt, and he took the spoils of the land of Egypt.

1, 7: Divided his kingdom, etc.: this is otherwise related by Quintus Curtius, though he admits that many were of that opinion. But here we find from the sacred text that he was in error.

1, 11: Antiochus the Illustrious: Epiphanes, the younger son of Antiochus the Great, who usurped the kingdom, to the prejudice of his nephew Demetrius, son of his elder brother Seleucus Philopator. Of the kingdom of the Greeks: counting not from the beginning of the reign of Alexander, but from the first year of Seleucus Nicator.

Antiochus Profanes the Temple. 21 And after Antiochus had ravaged Egypt in the hundred and forty-third year, [e] he returned and went up against Israel. 22 And he went up to Jerusalem with a great multitude. 23 And he proudly entered into the sanctuary, and took away the golden altar, and the candlestick of light, and all the vessels thereof, and the table of proposition, and the pouring vessels, and the vials, and the little mortars of gold, and the veil, and the crowns, and the golden ornament that was before the temple: and he broke them all in pieces. 24 And he took the silver and gold, and the precious vessels; and he took the hidden treasures which he found. And when he had taken all away, he departed into his own country. 25 And he made a great slaughter of men, and spoke very proudly.

26 And there was great mourning in Israel, and in every place where they were. 27 And the princes and the ancients mourned, and the virgins and the young men were made feeble, and the beauty of the women was changed. 28 Every bridegroom took up lamentation, and the bride that sat in the marriage bed, mourned. 29 And the land was moved for the inhabitants thereof, and all the house of Jacob was covered with confusion.

30 And after two full years [f] the king sent the chief collector* of his tributes to the cities of Juda, and he came to Jerusalem with a great multitude. 31 And he spoke to them peaceable words in deceit, and they believed him. 32 And he fell upon the city suddenly, and struck it with a great slaughter, and destroyed much people in Israel. 33 And he took the spoils of the city, and burnt it with fire, and threw down the houses thereof, and the walls thereof round about: 34 and they took the women captive, and the children, and the cattle they possessed.

35 And they built the city of David* with a great and strong wall, and with strong towers, and made it a fortress for them. 36 And they placed there a sinful nation, wicked men, and they fortified themselves therein; and they stored up armor and victuals, and gathered together the spoils of Jerusalem, 37 and laid them up there; and they became a great snare. 38 And this was a place to lie in wait against the sanctuary, and an evil devil* in Israel. 39 And they shed innocent blood round about the sanctuary, and defiled the holy place. 40 And the inhabitants of Jerusalem fled away by reason of them, and the city was made the habitation of strangers, and she became a stranger to her own seed, and her children forsook her. 41 Her sanctuary was desolate like a wilderness, [g] her festival days were turned into mourning, her sabbaths into reproach, her honors were brought to nothing. 42 Her dishonor was increased according to her glory, and her excellency was turned into mourning.

The Edict of Antiochus. 43 [h] And king Antiochus wrote to all his kingdom, that all the people should be one, and everyone should leave his own law. 44 And all nations consented according to the word of king Antiochus. 45 And many of Israel consented to his service, and they sacrificed to idols, and profaned the sabbath.

46 And the king sent letters by the hands of messengers to Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Juda, that they should follow the law of the nations of the earth, 47 and should forbid holocausts and sacrifices, and atonements to be made in the temple of God, 48 and should prohibit the sabbath and the festival days to be celebrated. 49 And he commanded the holy places to be profaned, and the holy people of Israel. 50 And he commanded altars to be built, and temples, and idols, and swine's flesh to be immolated, and unclean beasts. 51 And that they should leave their children uncircumcised, and let their souls be defiled with all uncleannesses and abominations, to the end that they should forget the law, and should change all the justifications of God. 52 And that whosoever would not do according to the word of king Antiochus should be put to death.

53 According to all these words he wrote to his whole kingdom, and he appointed rulers over the people that should force them to do these things. 54 And they commanded the cities of Juda to sacrifice. 55 Then many of the people were gathered to them that had forsaken the law of the Lord, and they committed evils in the land. 56 And they drove away the people of Israel into lurking holes, and into the secret places of fugitives.

57 On the fifteenth day of the month Casleu, in the hundred and forty-fifth year, [i] king Antiochus set up the abominable idol* of desolation upon the altar of God, and they built altars throughout all the cities of Juda round about. 58 And they burnt incense, and sacrificed at the doors of the houses, and in the streets. 59 And they cut in pieces and burnt with fire the books of the law of God. 60 And everyone with whom the books of the testament of the Lord were found, and whosoever observed the law of the Lord, they put to death, according to the edict of the king. 61 Thus by their power did they deal with the people of Israel, that were found in the cities month after month. 62 And on the five and twentieth day of the month they sacrificed upon the altar of the idol that was over against the altar of God.

63 [j] Now the women that circumcised their children were slain according to the commandment of king Antiochus. 64 And they hanged the children about their necks in all their houses; and those that had circumcised them, they put to death. 65 And many of the people of Israel determined with themselves, that they would not eat unclean things: and they chose rather to die than to be defiled with unclean meats. 66 And they would not break the holy law of God, and they were put to death. 67 And there was very great wrath upon the people.

2. Mathathias and His Sons

CHAPTER 2.

Zeal and Success of Mathathias. 1 In those days [k] arose Mathathias the son of John, the son of Simeon, a priest of the sons of Joarib, from Jerusalem, and he abode in the mountain of Modin. 2 And he had five sons: John who was surnamed Gaddis; 3 and Simon, who was surnamed Thasi; 4 and Judas, who was called Machabeus; 5 and Eleazar, who was surnamed Abaron; and Jonathan, who was surnamed Apphus. 6 These saw the evils that were done in the people of Juda, and in Jerusalem.

7 And Mathathias said: Woe is me! Wherefore was I born to see the ruin of my people, and the ruin of the holy city, and to dwell there, when it is given into the hands of the enemies? 8 The holy places are come into the hands of strangers: her temple is become as a man without honor. 9 The vessels of her glory are carried away captive; her old men are murdered in the streets, and her young men are fallen by the sword of the enemies. 10 What nation hath not inherited her kingdom, and gotten of her spoils? 11 All her ornaments are taken away. She that was free is made a slave. 12 And behold our sanctuary, and our beauty, and our glory is laid waste, and the Gentiles have defiled them. 13 To what end then should we live any longer? 14 And Mathathias and his sons rent their garments. and they covered themselves with haircloth, and made great lamentation.

15 And they that were sent from king Antiochus came thither, to compel them that were fled into the city of Modin to sacrifice, and to burn incense, and to depart from the law of God. 16 And many of the people of Israel consented, and came to them, but Mathathias and his sons stood firm. 17 And they that were sent from Antiochus, answering, said to Mathathias: Thou art a ruler, and an honorable and great man in this city, and adorned with sons and brethren. 18 Therefore, come thou first, and obey the king's commandment, as all nations have done, and the men of Juda, and they that remain in Jerusalem; and thou and thy sons shall be in the number of the king's friends, and enriched with gold, and silver, and many presents.

19 Then Mathathias answered, and said with a loud voice: Although all nations obey king Antiochus, so as to depart every man from the service of the law of his fathers, and consent to his commandments, 20 I and my sons and my brethren will obey the law of our fathers. 21 God be merciful unto us. It is not profitable for us to forsake the law and the justices of God. 22 We will not hearken to the words of king Antiochus, neither will we sacrifice, and transgress the commandments of our law, to go another way.

23 Now as he left off speaking these words, there came a certain Jew in the sight of all to sacrifice to the idols upon the altar in the city of Modin, according to the king's commandment. 24 And Mathathias saw and was grieved, and his reins trembled, and his wrath was kindled according to the judgment of the law, and running upon him he slew him upon the altar. 25 Moreover the man whom king Antiochus had sent, who compelled them to sacrifice, he slew at the same time, and pulled down the altar, 26 and showed zeal for the law, l as Phinees did by Zamri the son of Salomi.

Mathathias Flees to the Mountains. 27 And Mathathias cried out in the city with a loud voice, saying: Everyone that hath zeal for the law, and maintaineth the testament, let him follow me. 28 So he and his sons fled into the mountains, and left all that they had in the city. 29 The many that sought after judgment and justice, went down into the desert, 30 and they abode there, they and their children, and their wives, and their cattle, because afflictions increased upon them.

31 And it was told to the king's men, and to the army that was in Jerusalem in the city of David, that certain men who had broken the king's commandment, were gone away into the secret places in the wilderness, and that many were gone after them. 32 And forthwith they went out towards them, and made war against them on the sabbath day, 33 and they said to them: Do you still resist? Come forth, and do according to the edict of king Antiochus, and you shall live. 34 And they said: We will not come forth, neither will we obey the king's edict, to profane the sabbath day. 35 And they made haste to give them battle. 36 But they answered them not, neither did they cast a stone at them, nor stopped up the secret places, 37 saying: Let us all die in our innocency; and heaven and earth shall be witnesses for us, that you put us to death wrongfully. 38 So they gave them battle on the sabbath, and they were slain with their wives, and their children, and their cattle, to the number of a thousand persons. 39 And Mathathias and his friends heard of it, and they mourned for them exceedingly. 40 And every man said to his neighbor: If we shall all do as our brethren have done, and not fight against the heathens for our lives and our justifications, they will now quickly root us out of the earth. 41 And they determined in that day, saying: Whosoever shall come up against us to fight on the sabbath day, we will fight against him; and we will not all die, as our brethren that were slain in the secret places.

42 Then was assembled to them the congregation of the Assideans,* the stoutest of Israel, everyone that had a good will for the law. 43 And all they that fled from the evils joined themselves to them, and were a support to them. 44 And they gathered an army, and slew the sinners in their wrath, and the wicked men in their indignation; and the rest fled to the nations for safety. 45 And Mathathias and his friends went round about, and they threw down the altars. 46 And they circumcised all the children whom they found in the confines of Israel that were uncircumcised; and they did valiantly. 47 And they pursued after the children of pride, and the work prospered in their hands. 48 And they recovered the law out of the hands of the nations, and out of the hands of the kings; and they yielded not the horn* to the sinner.

Last Days of Mathathias. 49 Now the days drew near that Mathathias should die, and he said to his sons: Now hath pride and chastisement gotten strength, and the time of destruction, and the wrath of indignation. 50 Now therefore, O my sons, be ye zealous for the law, and give your lives for the covenant of your fathers. 51 And call to remembrance the works of the fathers, which they have done in their generations; and you shall receive great glory and an everlasting name. 52 m Was not Abraham found faithful in temptation, and it was reputed to him unto justice? 53 n Joseph in the time of his distress kept the commandment, and he was made lord of Egypt. 54 o Phinees our father, by being fervent in the zeal of God, received the covenant of an everlasting priesthood. 55 p Jesus,* whilst he fulfilled the word, was made ruler in Israel. 56 q Caleb, for bearing witness before the congregation, received an inheritance. 57 r David by his mercy obtained the throne of an everlasting kingdom. 58 [s] Elias, while he was full of zeal for the law, was taken up into heaven. 59 [t] Ananias and Azarias and Misael by believing, were delivered out of the flame. 60 [u] Daniel in his innocency was delivered out of the mouth of the lions. 61 And thus consider through all generations, that none that trust in him fail in strength. 62 And fear not the words of a sinful man, for his glory is dung, and worms. 63 Today he is lifted up, and tomorrow he shall not be found, because he is returned into his earth, and his thought is come to nothing. 64 You therefore, my sons, take courage, and behave manfully in the law; for by it you shall be glorious.

65 And behold, I know that your brother Simon is a man of counsel. Give ear to him always, and he shall be a father to you. 66 And Judas Machabeus who is valiant and strong from his youth up, let him be the leader of your army, and he shall manage the war of the people. 67 And you shall take to you all that observe the law; and revenge ye the wrong of your people. 68 Render to the Gentiles their reward, and take heed to the precepts of the law.

69 And he blessed them, and was joined to his fathers. 70 And he died in the hundred and forty-sixth [v] year. And he was buried by his sons in the sepulchres of his fathers in Modin, and all Israel mourned for him with great mourning.

II: JUDAS MACHABEUS

1. Reign of Antiochus IV Epiphanes

CHAPTER 3.

Apollonius and Seron Overthrown. 1 Then his son Judas, called Machabeus, rose up in his stead. 2 And all his brethren helped him, and all they that had joined themselves to his father, and they fought with cheerfulness the battle of Israel. 3 And he got his people great honor, and put on a breastplate as a giant, and girt his warlike armor about him in battles, and protected the camp with his sword.

4 In his acts he was like a lion, and like a lion's whelp roaring for his prey. 5 And he pursued the wicked and sought them out, and them that troubled his people he burnt with fire. 6 And his enemies were driven away for fear of him, and all the workers of iniquity were troubled; and salvation prospered in his hand. 7 And he grieved many kings, and made Jacob glad with his works, and his memory is blessed forever. 8 And he went through the cities of Juda, and destroyed the wicked out of them, and turned away wrath from Israel. 9 And he was renowned even to the utmost part of the earth, and he gathered them that were perishing.

10 And Apollonius gathered together the Gentiles, and a numerous and great army from Samaria, to make war against Israel. 11 And Judas understood it, and went forth to meet him. And he overthrew him, and killed him, and many fell down slain, and the rest fled away. 12 And he took their spoils, and Judas took the sword of Apollonius, and fought with it all his lifetime.

13 And Seron captain of the army of Syria heard that Judas had assembled a company of the faithful, and a congregation with him, 14 and he said: I will get me a name, and will be glorified in the kingdom, and will overthrow Judas and those that are with him, that have despised the edict of the king. 15 And he made himself ready. And the host of the wicked went up with him, strong succours, to be revenged of the children of Israel. 16 And they approached even as far as Bethoron; and Judas went forth to meet him, with a small company. 17 But when they saw the army coming to meet them, they said to Judas: How shall we, being few, be able to fight against so great a multitude and so strong, and we are ready to faint with fasting today? 18 And Judas said: It is an easy matter for many to be shut up in the hands of a few; and there is no difference in the sight of the God of heaven to deliver with a great multitude, or with a small company. 19 For the success of war is not in the multitude of the army, but strength cometh from heaven. 20 They come against us with an insolent multitude and with pride, to destroy us, and our wives, and our children, and to take our spoils. 21 But we will fight for our lives and our laws. 22 And the Lord himself will overthrow them before our face; but as for you, fear them not. 23 And as soon as he had made an end of speaking, he rushed suddenly upon them, and Seron and his host were overthrown before him: 24 and he pursued him by the descent of Bethoron even to the plain, and there fell of them eight hundred men, and the rest fled into the land of the Philistines.

25 And the fear of Judas and of his brethren and the dread of them fell upon all the nations round about them. 26 And his fame came to the king, and all nations told of the battles of Judas.

Antiochus Wishes To Destroy the Jews. 27 Now when king Antiochus heard these words, he was angry in his mind, and he sent and gathered the forces of all his kingdom, an exceeding strong army. 28 And he opened his treasury, and gave out pay to the army for a year, and he commanded them that they should be ready for all things. 29 And he perceived that the money of his treasures failed, and that the tributes of the country were small because of the dissension, and the evil that he had brought upon the land, that he might take away the laws of old times. 30 And he feared that he should not have as fomerly enough for charges and gifts, which he had given before with a liberal hand, for he had abounded more than the kings that had been before him. 31 And he was greatly perplexed in mind, and purposed to go into Persia, and to take tributes of the countries, and to gather much money.

32 And he left Lysias, a nobleman of the blood royal, to oversee the affairs of the kingdom from the river Euphrates even to the river of Egypt, 33 and to bring up his son Antiochus, till he came again. 34 And he delivered to him half the army, and the elephants. And he gave him charge concerning all that he would have done, and concerning the inhabitants of Judea and Jerusalem; 35 and that he should send an army against them, to destroy and root out the strength of Israel and the remnant of Jerusalem and to take away the memory of them from that place; 36 and that he should settle strangers to dwell in all their coasts, and divide their land by lot. 37 w So the king took the half of the army that remained, and went forth from Antioch the chief city of his kingdom in the hundred and forty-seventh year. And he passed over the river Euphrates, and went through the higher countries.

38 Then Lysias chose Ptolemy the son of Dorymenus, and Nicanor, and Gorgias, mighty men of the king's friends. 39 And he sent with them forty thousand men and seven thousand horsemen, to go into the land of Juda, and to destroy it according to the king's orders. 40 So they went forth with all their power, and came and pitched near Emmaus in the plain country. 41 And the merchants of the countries heard the fame of them; and they took silver and gold in abundance, and servants; and they came into the camp to buy the children of Israel for slaves. And there were joined to them the forces of Syria and of the land of the strangers.

Judas Prepares for War. 42 And Judas and his brethren saw that evils were multiplied, and that the armies approached to their borders; and they knew the orders the king had given to destroy the people and utterly abolish them. 43 And they said every man to his neighbor: Let us raise up the low condition of our people, and let us fight for our people and our sanctuary. 44 And the assembly was gathered that they might be ready for battle, and that they might pray, and ask mercy and compassion.

45 Now Jerusalem was not inhabited, but was like a desert: there was none of her children that went in or out, and the sanctuary was trodden down, and the children of strangers were in the castle. There was the habitation of the Gentiles, and joy was taken away from Jacob, and the pipe and harp ceased there.

46 And they assembled together, and came to Maspha over against Jerusalem, for in Maspha was a place of prayer heretofore in Israel. 47 And they fasted that day, and put on haircloth, and put ashes upon their heads, and they rent their garments. 48 And they laid open the books of the law, in which the Gentiles searched for the likeness of their idols; 49 and they brought the priestly ornaments, and the first-fruits and tithes, and stirred up the Nazarites that had fulfilled their days; 50 and they cried with a loud voice toward heaven, saying: What shall we do with these, and whither shall we carry them? 51 For thy holies are trodden down, and

are profaned, and thy priests are in mourning, and are brought low. 52 And behold the nations are come together against us to destroy us. Thou knowest what they intend against us. 53 How shall we be able to stand before their face, unless thou, O God, help us? 54 Then they sounded with trumpets, and cried out with a loud voice.

55 And after this Judas appointed captains over the people, over thousands, and over hundreds, and over fifties, and over tens. 56 x And he said to them that were building houses, or had betrothed wives, or were planting vineyards, or were fearful, that they should return every man to his house, according to the law. 57 So they removed the camp, and pitched on the south side of Emmaus. 58 And Judas said: Gird yourselves, and be valiant men, and be ready against the morning, that you may fight with these nations that are assembled against us to destroy us and our sanctuary. 59 For it is better for us to die in battle than to see the evils of our nation, and of the holies. 60 Nevertheless as it shall be the will of God in heaven, so be it done.

CHAPTER 4.

Judas Routs the King's Army. 1 Then y Gorgias took five thousand men and a thousand of the best horsemen, and they removed out of the camp by night, 2 that they might come upon the camp of the Jews, and strike them suddenly. And the men that were of the castle were their guides. 3 And Judas heard of it, and rose up, he and the valiant men, to attack the king's forces that were in Emmaus. 4 For as yet the army was dispersed* from the camp. 5 And Gorgias came by night into the camp of Judas, and found no man, and he sought them in the mountains, for he said: These men flee from us.

6 And when it was day, Judas showed himself in the plain with three thousand men only, who neither had armor nor swords.* 7 And they saw the camp of the Gentiles that it was strong, and the men in breastplates, and the horsemen round about them, and these were trained up to war. 8 And Judas said to the men that were with him: Fear ye not their multitude, neither be ye afraid of their assault. 9 z Remember in what manner our fathers were saved in the Red Sea, when Pharao pursued them with a great army. 10 And now let us cry to heaven, and the Lord will have mercy on us, and will remember the covenant of our fathers, and will destroy this army before our face this day. 11 And all nations shall know that there is one that redeemeth and delivereth Israel.

12 And the strangers lifted up their eyes, and saw them coming against them. 13 And they went out of the camp to battle, and they that were with Judas sounded the trumpet. 14 And they joined battle: and the Gentiles were routed, and fled into the plain. 15 But all the hindmost of them fell by the sword, and they pursued them as far as Gezeron, and even to the plains of Idumea, and of Azotus, and of Jamnia. And there fell of them to the number of three thousand men.

16 And Judas returned again with his army that followed him, 17 and he said to the people: Be not greedy of the spoils, for there is war before us, 18 and Gorgias and his army are near us in the mountain. But stand ye now against our enemies, and overthrow them, and you shall take the spoils afterwards with safety.

19 And as Judas was speaking these words, behold part of them appeared looking forth from the mountain. 20 And Gorgias saw that his men were put to flight, and that they had set fire to the camp, for the smoke that was seen declared what was done. 21 And when they had seen this, they were seized with great fear, seeing at the same time Judas and his army in the plain ready to fight. 22 So they all fled away into the land of the strangers.

23 And Judas returned to take the spoils of the camp, and they got much gold, and silver, and blue silk, and purple of the sea, and great riches. 24 And returning home they sang a hymn, and blessed God in heaven, because he is good, because his mercy endureth forever. 25 So Israel had a great deliverance that day.

Judas Routs Lysias. 26 And such of the strangers as escaped, went and told Lysias all that had happened. 27 And when he heard these things, he was amazed and discouraged, because things had not succeeded in Israel according to his mind, and as the king had commanded.

28 So the year [a] following Lysias gathered together threescore thousand chosen men, and five thousand horsemen, that he might subdue them. 29 And they came into Judea, and pitched their tents in Bethoron, and Judas met them with ten thousand men.

30 And they saw that the army was strong, and he prayed, and said: Blessed art thou, O Savior of Israel, [b] who didst break the violence of the mighty by the hand of thy servant David, [c] and didst deliver up the camp of the strangers into the hands of Jonathan the son of Saul and of his armorbearer. 31 Shut up this army in the hands of thy people Israel, and let them be confounded in their host and their horsemen. 32 Strike them with fear, and cause the boldness of their strength to languish, and let them quake at their own destruction. 33 Cast them down with the sword of them that love thee, and let all that know thy name, praise thee with hymns.

34 And they joined battle, and there fell of the army of Lysias five thousand men. 35 And when Lysias saw that his men were put to flight, and how bold the Jews were, and that they were ready either to live or to die manfully, he went to Antioch, and chose soldiers, that they might come again into Judea with greater numbers.

Judas Cleanses the Temple. 36 Then Judas and his brethren said: Behold our enemies are discomfited. Let us go up now to cleanse the holy places and to repair them. 37 And all the army assembled together, and they went up into mount Sion. 38 And they saw the sanctuary desolate, and the altar profaned, and the gates burnt, and shrubs growing up in the courts as in a forest or on the mountains, and the chambers joining to the temple, thrown down.[d] 39 And they rent their garments, and made great lamentation, and put ashes on their heads, 40 and they fell down to the ground on their faces, and they sounded with the trumpets of alarms, and they cried towards heaven.

41 Then Judas appointed men to fight against them that were in the castle, till they had cleansed the holy places. 42 And he chose priests without blemish, whose will was set upon the law of God: 43 and they cleansed the holy places, and took away the stones that had been defiled into an unclean place. 44 And he considered about the altar of holocausts that had been profaned, what he should do with it. 45 And a good counsel came into their minds to pull it down, lest it should be a reproach to them, because the Gentiles had defiled it; so they threw it down. 46 And they laid up the stones in the mountain of the temple in a convenient place, till there should come a prophet, and give answer concerning them. 47 And they took whole stones according to the law, and built a new altar according to the former. 48 And they built up the holy places, and the things that were within the temple, and they sanctified the temple and the courts. 49 And they made new holy vessels, and brought in the candlestick, and the altar of incense, and the table into the temple. 50 And they put incense upon the altar, and lighted up the lamps that were upon the candlestick, and they gave light in the temple. 51 And they set the loaves upon the table, and hung up the veils, and finished all the works that they had begun to make.

The Dedication of the Altar. 52 And they arose before the morning on the five and twentieth day of the ninth month (which is the month of Casleu), in the hundred and forty-eighth year.[e] 53 And they offered sacrifice according to the law upon the new altar of holocausts which they had made. 54 According to the time, and according to the day wherein the heathens had defiled it, in the same was it dedicated anew with canticles, and harps, and lutes, and cymbals. 55 And all the people fell upon their faces, and adored, and blessed up to heaven, him that had prospered them.

56 And they kept the dedication of the altar eight days, and they offered holocausts with joy, and sacrifices of salvation, and of praise. 57 And they adorned the front of the temple with crowns of gold and escutcheons, and they renewed the gates, and the chambers, and hanged doors upon them. 58 And there was exceeding great joy among the people, and the reproach of the Gentiles was turned away. 59 f And Judas, and his brethren, and all the church of Israel decreed, that the day of the dedication of the altar should be kept in its season from year to year for eight days, from the five and twentieth day of the month of Casleu, with joy and gladness.

60 They built up also at that time mount Sion, with high walls and strong towers round about, lest the Gentiles should at any time come and tread it down as they did before. 61 And he placed a garrison there to keep it, and he fortified it to secure Bethsura, that the people might have a defense against Idumea.

CHAPTER 5.

War against the Neighboring Peoples. 1 Now it came to pass, when the nations round about heard that the altar and the sanctuary were built up as before, that they were exceeding angry. 2 And they thought to destroy the generation of Jacob that were among them, and they began to kill some of the people, and to persecute them.

3 Then Judas fought against the children of Esau in Idumea, and them that were in Acrabathane, because they beset the Israelites round about, and he made a great slaughter of them. 4 And he remembered the malice of the children of Bean, who were a snare and a stumbling block to the people, by lying in wait for them in the way. 5 And they were shut up by him in towers, and he set upon them, and devoted them to utter destruction, and burnt their towers with fire, and all that were in them.

6 Then he passed over to the children of Ammon, where he found a mighty power and much people, and Timotheus was their captain. 7 And he fought many battles with them, and they were discomfited in their sight, and he smote them. 8 And he took the city of Gazar and her towns, and returned into Judea.

9 And the Gentiles that were in Galaad assembled themselves together against the Israelites that were in their quarters to destroy them, and they fled into the fortress of Datheman. 10 And they sent letters to Judas and his brethren, saying: The heathens that are round about are gathered together against us, to destroy us; 11 and they are preparing to come, and to take the fortress into which we are fled; and Timotheus is the captain of their host. 12 Now therefore come, and deliver us out of their hands, for many of us are slain. 13 And all our brethren that were in the places of Tubin, are killed; and they have carried away their wives and their children captives, and taken their spoils, and they have slain there almost a thousand men. 14 And while they were yet reading these letters, behold there came other messengers out of Galilee with their garments rent, who related according to these words: 15 saying that they of Ptolemais, and of Tyre, and of Sidon, were assembled against them, and all Galilee is filled with strangers, in order to consume us.

16 Now when Judas and the people heard these words, a great assembly met together to consider what they should do for their brethren that were in trouble, and were assaulted by them. 17 And Judas said to Simon his brother: Choose thee men, and go and deliver thy brethren in Galilee, and I and my brother Jonathan will go into the country of Galaad. 18 And he left Joseph, the son of Zacharias, and Azarias captains of the people with the remnant of the army in Judea to keep it. 19 And he commanded them, saying: Take ye the charge of this people, but make no war against the heathens, till we return. 20 Now three thousand men were allotted to Simon to go into Galilee, and eight thousand to Judas to go into the land of Galaad.

21 And Simon went into Galilee, and fought many battles with the heathens; and the heathens were discomfited before his face, and he pursued them even to the gate of Ptolemais. 22 And there fell of the heathens almost three thousand men, and he took the spoils of them. 23 And he took with him those that were in Galilee and in Arbatis with their wives, and children, and all that they had, and he brought them into Judea with great joy.

24 And Judas Machabeus and Jonathan his brother passed over the Jordan, and went three days' journey through the desert. 25 And the Nabutheans met them, and received them in a peaceable manner, and told them all that happened to their brethren in the land of Galaad, 26 and that many of them were shut up in f Jn 10, 22.

Barasa, and in Bosor, and in Alima, and in Casphor, and in Mageth, and in Carnaim, all these strong and great cities; 27 yea, and that they were kept shut up in the rest of the cities of Galaad, and that they had appointed to bring their army on the morrow near to these cities, and to take them and to destroy them all in one day.

The Fortress Is Besieged. 28 Then Judas and his army suddenly turned their march into the desert, to Bosor, and took the city; and he slew every male by the edge of the sword, and took all their spoils, and burnt it with fire. 29 And they removed from thence by night, and went till they came to the fortress. 30 And it came to pass that early in the morning, when they lifted up their eyes, behold there were people without number, carrying ladders and engines to take the fortress, and assault them. 31 And Judas saw that the fight was begun, and the cry of the battle went up to heaven like a trumpet, and a great cry out of the city; 32 and he said to his host: Fight ye today for your brethren. 33 And he came with three companies behind them, and they sounded their trumpets, and cried out in prayer. 34 And the host of Timotheus understood that it was Machabeus, and they fled away before his face; and they made a great slaughter of them, and there fell of them in that day almost eight thousand men. 35 And Judas turned aside to Maspha, and assaulted, and took it, and he slew every male thereof, and took the spoils thereof, and burnt it with fire. 36 From thence he marched, and took Casbon, and Mageth, and Bosor, and the rest of the cities of Galaad.

37 But after this Timotheus gathered another army, and camped over against Raphon beyond the torrent. 38 And Judas sent men to view the army, and they brought him word, saying: All the nations, that are round about us, are assembled unto him an army exceeding great. 39 And they have hired the Arabians to help them, and they have pitched their tents beyond the torrent, ready to come to fight against thee. And Judas went to meet them. 40 And Timotheus said to the captains of his army: When Judas and his army come near the torrent of water, if he pass over unto us first, we shall not be able to withstand him, for he will certainly prevail over us. 41 But if he be afraid to pass over, and camp on the other side of the river, we will pass over to them and shall prevail against him.

42 Now when Judas came near the torrent of water, he set the scribes of the people by the torrent, and commanded them, saying: Suffer no man to stay behind, but let all come to the battle. 43 And he passed over to them first, and all the people after him, and all the heathens were discomfited before them, and they threw away their weapons, and fled to the temple that was in Carnaim. 44 And he took that city, and the temple he burnt with fire, with all things that were therein; and Carnaim was subdued, and could not stand against the face of Judas.

Judas Assaults Ephron. 45 And Judas gathered together all the Israelites that were in the land of Galaad, from the least even to the greatest, and their wives, and children, and an army exceeding great, to come into the land of Juda. 46 And they came as far as Ephron. Now this was a great city situated in the way, strongly fortified, and there was no means to turn from it on the right hand or on the left, but the way was through the midst of it. 47 And they that were in the city shut themselves in, and stopped up the gates with stones; and Judas sent to them with peaceable words, 48 saying: Let us pass through your land, to go into our country, and no man shall hurt you. We will only pass through on foot. But they would not open to them. 49 Then Judas commanded proclamation to be made in the camp, that they should make an assault, every man in the place where he was. 50 And the men of the army drew near, and he assaulted that city all the day and all the night, and the city was delivered into his hands. 51 And they slew every male with the edge of the sword, and he razed the city, and took the spoils thereof, and passed through all the city over them that were slain.

52 Then they passed over the Jordan to the great plain that is over against Bethsan. 53 And Judas gathered together the hindmost, and he exhorted the people all the way through, till they came into the land of Juda. 54 And they went up to mount Sion with joy and gladness, and offered holocausts, because not one of them was slain, till they had returned in peace.

55 Now in the days that Judas and Jonathan were in the land of Galaad, and Simon his brother in Galilee before Ptolemais, 56 Joseph the son of Zacharias, and Azarias, captain of the soldiers, heard of the good success, and the battles that were fought, 57 and he said: Let us also get us a name, and let us go fight against the Gentiles that are round about us. 58 And he gave charge to them that were in his army, and they went towards Jamnia. 59 And Gorgias and his men went out of the city, to give them battle. 60 And Joseph and Azarias were put to flight, and were pursued unto the borders of Judea. And there fell, on that day of the people of Israel about two thousand men, and there was a great overthrow of the people, 61 because they did not hearken to Judas and his brethren, thinking that they should do manfully. 62 But they were not of the seed of those men by whom salvation was brought to Israel. 63 And the men of Juda were magnified exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and of all the nations where their name was heard. 64 And people assembled to them with joyful acclamations.

65 Then Judas and his brethren went forth, and attacked the children of Esau, in the land towards the south, and he took Chebron and her towns, and he burnt the walls thereof and the towers all round it. 66 And he removed his camp to go into the land of the aliens, and he went through Samaria. 67 In that day some priests fell in battle, while desiring to do manfully they went out unadvisedly to fight. 68 And Judas turned to Azotus into the land of the strangers, and he threw down their altars, and he burnt the statues of their gods with fire, and he took the spoils of the cities, and returned into the land of Juda.

CHAPTER 6.

Repentance and Death of Antiochus. 1 Now king Antiochus was going through the higher countries, and he heard that the city of Elymais in Persia was greatly renowned, and abounding in silver and gold, 2 and that there was in it a temple, exceeding rich: and coverings of gold, and breastplates, and shields which king Alexander, son of Philip the Macedonian that reigned first in Greece, had left there. 3 Lo, he came, and sought to take the city and to pillage it, but he was not able, because the design was known to them that were in the city. 4 And they rose up against him in battle, and he fled away from thence, and departed with great sadness, and returned towards Babylonia.

5 And whilst he was in Persia, there came one that told him how the armies that were in the land of Juda were put to flight; 6 and that Lysias went with a very great power, and was put to flight before the face of the Jews, and that they were grown strong by the armor, and power, and store of spoils, which they had gotten out of the camps which they had destroyed; 7 and that they had thrown down the abomination which he had set upon the altar in Jerusalem, and that they had compassed about the sanctuary with high walls as before, and Bethsura also his city.

8 And it came to pass when the king heard these words, that he was struck with fear, and exceedingly moved: and he laid himself down upon his bed, and fell sick for grief, because it had not fallen out to him as he imagined. 9 And he remained there many days, for great grief came more and more upon him, and he made account that he should die.

10 And he called for all his friends, and said to them: Sleep is gone from my eyes, and I am fallen away, and my heart is cast down for anxiety. 11 And I said in my heart: Into how much tribulation am I come, and into what floods of sorrow, wherein now I am: I that was pleasant and beloved in my power! 12 But now I remember the evils that I have done in Jerusalem, from whence also I took away all the spoils of gold and of silver that were in it, and I sent to destroy the inhabitants of Juda without cause. 13 I know therefore that for this cause these evils have found me; and behold I perish with great grief in a strange land.

14 Then he called Philip, one of his friends, and he made him regent over all his kingdom. 15 And he gave him the crown, and his robe, and his ring, that he should go to Antiochus his son, and should bring him up for the kingdom.

16 So king Antiochus died there in the year one hundred and forty-nine.[g]

2. Reign of Antiochus V Eupator

17 And Lysias understood that the king was dead, and he set up Antiochus his son to reign, whom he brought up young, and he called his name Eupator.

18 Now they that were in the castle had shut up the Israelites round about the holy places, and they were continually seeking their hurt, and to strengthen the Gentiles. 19 And Judas purposed to destroy them, and he called together all the people, to besiege them. 20[b] And they came together, and besieged them in the year one hundred and fifty, and they made battering slings and engines. 21 And some of the besieged got out, and some wicked men of Israel joined themselves unto them. 22 And they went to the king, and said: How long dost thou delay to execute the judgment, and to revenge our brethren? 23 We determined to serve thy father and to do according to his orders, and obey his edicts; 24 and for this they of our nation are alienated from us, and have slain as many of us as they could find, and have spoiled our inheritances. 25 Neither have they put forth their hand against us only, but also against all our borders. 26 And behold they have approached this day to the castle of Jerusalem to take it, and they have fortified the stronghold of Bethsura. 27 And unless thou speedily prevent them, they will do greater things than these, and thou shalt not be able to subdue them.

28 Now when the king heard this, he was angry, and he called together all his friends, and the captains of his army, and them that were over the horsemen. 29 There came also to him from other realms, and from the islands of the sea, hired troops. 30 And the number of his army was a hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and thirty-two elephants, trained to battle. 31 And they went through Idumea, and approached to Bethsura, and fought many days, and they made engines; but they sallied forth* and burnt them with fire, and fought manfully.

32 And Judas departed from the castle, and removed the camp to Bethzacharam, over against the king's camp. 33 And the king rose before it was light, and made his troops march on fiercely towards the way of Bethzacharam. And the armies made themselves ready for the battle, and they sounded the trumpets. 34 And they showed the elephants the blood of grapes and mulberries to provoke them to fight. 35 And they distributed the beasts by the legions: and there stood by every elephant a thousand men in coats of mail, and with helmets of brass on their heads; and five hundred horsemen set in order were chosen for every beast. 36 These before the time* wheresoever the beast was, they were there; and whithersoever it went, they went: and they departed not from it. 37 And upon the beast, there were strong wooden towers, which covered everyone of them: and engines upon them, and upon everyone thirty-two valiant men, who fought from above, and an Indian to rule the beast. 38 And the rest of the horsemen he placed on this side and on that side at the two wings, with trumpets to stir up the army, and to hasten them forward that stood thick together in the legions thereof.

39 Now when the sun shone upon the shields of gold, and of brass, the mountains glittered therewith, and they shone like lamps of fire. 40 And part of the king's army was distinguished by the high mountains, and the other part by the low places; and they marched on warily and orderly. 41 And all the inhabitants of the land were moved at the noise of their multitude, and the marching of the company, and the rattling of the armor, for the army was exceeding great and strong.

Death of Eleazar. 42 And Judas and his army drew near for battle: and there fell of the king's army six hundred men. 43 And Eleazar the son of Saura saw one of the beasts harnessed with the king's harness: and it was higher than the other beasts: and it seemed to him that the king was on it. 44 And he exposed himself to deliver his people and to get himself an everlasting name. 45 And he ran up to it boldly in the midst of the legion, killing on the right hand, and on the left, and they fell by him on this side and that side. 46 And he went between the feet of the elephant, and put himself under it: and slew it, and it fell to the ground upon him, and he died there. 47 Then they seeing the strength of the king and the fierceness of his army, turned away from them.

48 But the king's army went up against them to Jerusalem; and the king's army pitched their tents against Judea and mount Sion. 49 And he made peace with them that were in Bethsura; and they came forth out of the city, because they had no victuals, being shut up there, for it was the year of rest to the land. 50 i And the king took Bethsura, and he placed there a garrison to keep it. 51 And he turned his army against the sanctuary for many days, and he set up there battering slings, and engines and instruments to cast fire, and engines to cast stones and javelins, and pieces to shoot arrows, and slings. 52 And they also made engines against their engines, and they fought for many days. 53 But there were no victuals in the city, because it was the seventh year; and such as had stayed in Judea of them that came from among the nations, had eaten the residue of all that which had been stored up. 54 And there remained in the holy places but a few, for the famine had prevailed over them; and they were dispersed every man to his own place.

The King Makes Peace. 55 j Now Lysias heard that Philip, whom king Antiochus while he lived had appointed to bring up his son Antiochus, and to reign, to be king, 56 was returned from Persia, and Media, with the army that went with him, and that he sought to take upon him the affairs of the kingdom. 57 Wherefore he made haste to go, and say to the king and to the captains of the army: We decay daily, and our provisions of victuals is small, and the place that we lay siege to is strong, and it lieth upon us to take order for the affairs of the kingdom. 58 Now therefore let us come to an agreement with these men, and make peace with them and with all their nation. 59 And let us covenant with them, that they may live according to their own laws as before. For because of our despising their laws, they have been provoked, and have done all these things. 60 And the proposal was acceptable in the sight of the king and of the princes. And he sent to them to make peace, and they accepted of it. 61 And the king and the princes swore to them, and they came out of the stronghold. 62 Then the king entered into mount Sion, and saw the strength of the place, and he quickly broke the oath that he had taken, and gave commandment to throw down the wall round about. 63 And he departed in haste, and returned to Antioch, where he found Philip master of the city. And he fought against him, and took the city.

3. Demetrius I Soter

CHAPTER 7.

The Wicked Alcimus: High Priest. 1 In the hundred and fifty-first year k Demetrius the son of Seleucus departed from the city of Rome, and came up with a few men into a city of the seacoast, and reigned there. 2 And it came to pass, as he entered into the house of the kingdom of his fathers, that the army seized upon Antiochus and Lysias, to bring them unto him. 3 And when he knew it, he said: Let me not see their face. 4 So the army slew them. And Demetrius sat upon the throne of his kingdom.

5 And there came to him the wicked and ungodly men of Israel, and Alcimus was at the head of them, who desired to be made high priest. 6 And they accused the people to the king, saying: Judas and his brethren have destroyed all thy friends, and he hath driven us out of our land. 7 Now therefore send some man whom thou trustest, and let him go, and see all the havoc he hath made amongst us, and in the king's lands, and let him punish all his friends and their helpers.

8 Then the king chose Bacchides, one of his friends that ruled beyond the great river in the kingdom, and was faithful to the king, and he sent him 9 to see the havoc that Judas had made. And the wicked Alcimus he made high priest, and commanded him to take revenge upon the children of Israel. 10 And they arose, and came with a great army into the land of Juda, and they sent messengers, and spoke to Judas and his brethren with peaceable words deceitfully. 11 But they gave no heed to their words, for they saw that they were come with a great army.

Deceit of Alcimus and Bacchides. 12 Then there assembled to Alcimus and Bacchides a company of the scribes to require things that are just: 13 and first the Assideans that were among the children of Israel, and they sought peace of them. 14 For they said: One that is a priest of the seed of Aaron is come. He will not deceive us. 15 And he spoke to them peaceably, and he swore to them, saying: We will do you no harm nor your friends. 16 And they believed him. And he took threescore of them, and slew them in one day, according to the word that is written: 17 l The flesh of thy saints, and the blood of them they have shed round about Jerusalem, and there was none to bury them. 18 Then fear and trembling fell upon all the people, for they said: There is no truth nor justice among them, for they have broken the covenant, and the oath which they made.

19 And Bacchides removed the camp from Jerusalem, and pitched in Bethzecha, and he sent, and took many of them that were fled away from him, and some of the people he killed, and threw them into a great pit. 20 Then he committed the country to Alcimus, and left with him troops to help him. So Bacchides went away to the king. 21 But Alcimus did what he could to maintain his chief priesthood. 22 And they that disturbed the people resorted to him, and they got the land of Juda into their power, and did much hurt in Israel. 23 And Judas saw all the evils that Alcimus and they that were with him did to the children of Israel much more than the Gentiles. 24 And he went out into all the coasts of Judea round about, and took vengeance upon the men that had revolted, and they ceased to go forth any more into the country. 25 And Alcimus saw that Judas and they that were with him prevailed; and he knew that he could not stand against them, and he went back to the king, and accused them of many crimes.

Nicanor Is Sent against Judas. 26 m And the king sent Nicanor one of his principal lords, who was a great enemy to Israel, and he commanded him to destroy the people. 27 n And Nicanor came to Jerusalem with a great army, and he sent to Judas and to his brethren deceitfully with friendly words, 28 saying: Let there be no fighting between me and you: I will come with a few men to see your faces with peace. 29 And he came to Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably; and the enemies were prepared to take away Judas by force. 30 And the thing was known to Judas that he was come to him with deceit; and he was much afraid of him, and would not see his face any more. 31 And Nicanor knew that his counsel was discovered, and he went out to fight against Judas near Capharsalama. 32 And there fell of Nicanor's army almost five thousand men, and they fled into the city of David.

33 And after this Nicanor went up into mount Sion, and some of the priests and the people came out to salute him peaceably, and to show him the holocausts that were offered for the king. 34 But he mocked and despised them, and abused them, and he spoke proudly; 35 and swore in anger, saying: Unless Judas and his army be delivered into my hands, as soon as ever I return in peace, I will burn this house. And he went out in a great rage. 36 And the priests went in, and stood before the face of the altar and the temple. And weeping, they said: 37 Thou, O Lord, hast chosen this house for thy name to be called upon therein, that it might be a house of prayer and supplication for thy people. 38 Be avenged of this man and his army, and let them fall by the sword. Remember their blasphemies, and suffer them not to continue any longer.

Judas Slays Nicanor. 39 Then Nicanor went out from Jerusalem, and encamped near to Bethoron, and an army of Syria joined him. 40 But Judas pitched in Adarsa with three thousand men, and Judas prayed, and said: 41 o O Lord, when they that were sent by king Sennacherib blasphemed thee, an angel went out, and slew of them a hundred and eighty-five thousand. 42 Even so destroy this army in our sight today, and let the rest know that he hath spoken ill against thy sanctuary, and judge thou him according to his wickedness. 43 And the armies joined battle on the thirteenth day of the month Adar. And the army of Nicanor was defeated, and he himself was first slain in the battle. 44 And when his army saw that Nicanor was slain, they threw away their weapons, and fled. 45 And they pursued after them one day's journey from Adazer, even till ye come to Gazara, and they sounded the trumpets after them with signals. 46 And they went forth out of all the towns of Judea round about, and they pushed them with the horns,* and they turned again to them, and they were all slain with the sword, and there was not left of them so much as one. 47 And they took the spoils of them for a booty, and they cut off Nicanor's head, and his right hand which he had proudly stretched out, and they brought it and hung it up over against Jerusalem. 48 And the people rejoiced exceedingly, and they spent that day with great joy. 49 And he ordained that this day should be kept every year, being the thirteenth of the month of Adar. 50 And the land of Juda was quiet for a short time.

CHAPTER 8.

The Pax Romana. 1 Now Judas heard of the fame of the Romans, that they are powerful and strong, and willingly agree to all things that are requested of them; and that whosoever have come to them, they have made amity with them, and that they are mighty in power. 2 And they heard* of their battles and their noble acts, which they had done in Galatia, how they had conquered them and brought them under tribute; 3 and how great things they had done in the land of Spain, and that they had brought under their power the mines of silver and of gold that are there, and had gotten possession of all the place by their counsel and patience; 4 and had conquered places that were very far off from them, and kings that came against them from the ends of the earth, and had overthrown them with great slaughter; and the rest pay them tribute every year; 5 and that they had defeated in battle Philip, and Perses the king of the Ceteans* and the rest that had borne arms against them, and had conquered them; 6 and how Antiochus the great king of Asia, who went to fight against them having a hundred and twenty elephants with horsemen, and chariots, and a very great army, was routed by them; 7 and how they took him alive, and appointed to him, that both he and they that should reign after him, should pay a great tribute, and that he should give hostages, and that which was agreed upon, 8 and the country of the Indians, and of the Medes, and of the Lydians, some of their best provinces, and those which they had taken from them they gave to king Eumenes;* 9 and that they who were in Greece had a mind to go and to destroy them, and they had knowledge thereof, 10 and they sent a general against them, and fought with them, and many of them were slain, and they carried away their wives and their children captives, and spoiled them, and took possession of their land, and threw down their walls, and brought them to be their servants unto this day: 11 and the other kingdoms and islands, that at any time had resisted them, they had destroyed and brought under their power. 12 But with their friends, and such as relied upon them, they kept amity, and had conquered kingdoms that were near, and that were far off, for all that heard their name were afraid of them. 13 That whom they had a mind to help to a kingdom, those reigned; and whom they would, they deposed from the kingdom; and they were greatly exalted. 14 And none of all these wore a crown, or was clothed in purple, to be magnified thereby. 15 And that they had made themselves a senate house, and consulted daily three hundred and twenty men that sat in council always for the people, that they might do the things that were right. 16 And that they committed their government to one man* every year, to rule over all their country, and they all obey one, and there is no envy nor jealousy amongst them.

The League with the Romans. 17 So Judas chose Eupolemus the son of John, the son of Jacob, and Jason the son of Eleazar, and he sent them to Rome to make a league of amity and confederacy with them, 18 and that they might take off from them the yoke of the Grecians, for they saw that they oppressed the kingdom of Israel with servitude. 19 And they went to Rome, a very long journey, and they entered into the senate house, and said: 20 Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, and the people of the Jews have sent us to you, to make alliance and peace with you, and that we may be registered your confederates and friends. 21 And the proposal was pleasing in their sight.

22 And this is the copy of the writing that they wrote back again, graven in tables of brass, and sent to Jerusalem, that it might be with them there for a memorial of the peace and alliance: 23 GOOD SUCCESS BE TO THE ROMANS, and to the people of the Jews, by sea and by land forever, and far be the sword and enemy from them. 24 But if there come first any war upon the Romans, or any of their confederates, in all their dominions, 25 the nation of the Jews shall help them according as the time shall direct, with all their heart. 26 Neither shall they give them, whilst they are fighting, or furnish them with wheat, or arms, or money, or ships, as it hath seemed good to the Romans; and they shall obey their orders, without taking anything of them. 27 In like manner also if war shall come first upon the nation of the Jews, the Romans shall help them with all their heart, according as the time shall permit them. 28 And there shall not be given to them that come to their aid, either wheat, or arms, or money, or ships, as it hath seemed good to the Romans; and they shall observe their orders without deceit. 29 According to these articles did the Romans covenant with the people of the Jews. 30 And if after this one party or the other shall have a mind to add to these articles, or take away anything, they may do it at their pleasure; and whatsoever they shall add, or take away, shall be ratified. 31 Moreover concerning the evils that Demetrius the king hath done against them, we have written to him, saying: Why hast thou made thy yoke heavy upon our friends and allies, the Jews? 32 If therefore they come again to us complaining of thee, we will do them justice, and will make war against thee by sea and land.

CHAPTER 9.

Judas Fights against Bacchides. 1 In the meantime when Demetrius heard that Nicanor and his army were fallen in battle, he sent again Bacchides and Alcimus into Judea, and the right wing of his army with them. 2 And they took the road that leadeth to Galgal, and they camped in Masaloth, which is in Arabella; and they made themselves masters of it, and slew many people.

3 In the first month of the hundred and fifty-second year they brought the army to Jerusalem. 4 And they arose, and went to Berea with twenty thousand men and two thousand horsemen.

5 Now Judas had pitched his tents in Laisa, and three thousand chosen men with him. 6 And they saw the multitude of the army that they were many, and they were seized with great fear: and many withdrew themselves out of the camp, and there remained of them no more than eight hundred men. 7 And Judas saw that his army slipped away, and the battle pressed upon him, and his heart was cast down, because he had not time to gather them together, and he was discouraged. 8 Then he said to them that remained: Let us arise, and go against our enemies, if we may be able to fight against them. 9 But they dissuaded him, saying: We shall not be able, but let us save our lives now, and return to our brethren, and then we will fight against them, for we are but few. 10 Then Judas said: God forbid we should do this thing, and flee away from them; but if our time be come, let us die manfully for our brethren, and let us not stain our glory.

11 And the army removed out of the camp, and they stood over against them: and the horsemen were divided into two troops, and the slingers and the archers went before the army, and they that were in the front were all men of valor. 12 And Bacchides was in the right wing, and the legion drew near on two sides, and they sounded the trumpets. 13 And they also that were on Judas' side, even they also cried out, and the earth shook at the noise of the armies; and the battle was fought from morning even unto the evening. 14 And Judas perceived that the stronger part of the army of Bacchides was on the right side, and all the stout of heart came together with him. 15 And the right wing was discomfited by them, and he pursued them even to the mount Azotus. 16 And they that were in the left wing saw that the right wing was discomfited, and they followed after Judas, and them that were with him, at their back. 17 And the battle was hard fought, and there fell many wounded of the one side and of the other. 18 And Judas was slain, and the rest fled away.

19 And Jonathan and Simon took Judas their brother, and buried him in the sepulchre of their fathers in the city of Modin. 20 And all the people of Israel bewailed him with great lamentation, and they mourned for him many days, 21 and said: How is the mighty man fallen, that saved the people of Israel! 22 But the rest of the words of the wars of Judas, and of the noble acts that he did, and of his greatness, are not written, for they were very many.

III: JONATHAN, LEADER OF THE JEWS

1. Demetrius I Soter

23 And it came to pass after the death of Judas, that the wicked began to put forth their heads in all the confines of Israel, and all the workers of iniquity rose up. 24 In those days there was a very great famine, and they and all their country yielded to Bacchides. 25 And Bacchides chose the wicked men, and made them lords of the country. 26 And they sought out and made diligent search after the friends of Judas, and brought them to Bacchides, and he took vengeance of them, and abused them. 27 And there was a great tribulation in Israel, such as was not since the day that there was no prophet seen in Israel.

28 And all the friends of Judas came together, and said to Jonathan: 29 Since thy brother Judas died, there is not a man like him to go forth against our enemies, Bacchides and them that are the enemies of our nation. 30 Now therefore we have chosen thee this day to be our prince, and captain in his stead to fight our battles. 31 So Jonathan took upon him the government at that time, and rose up in the place of Judas his brother.

32 And Bacchides had knowledge of it, and sought to kill him. 33 And Jonathan and Simon his brother knew it, and all that were with them; and they fled into the desert of Thecua, and they pitched by the water of the lake Asphar, 34 and Bacchides understood it, and he came himself with all his army over the Jordan on the sabbath day.

35 And Jonathan sent his brother, a captain of the people, to desire the Nabutheans his friends, that they would lend them their equipage, which was copious. 36 And the children of Jamri came forth out of Madaba, and took John, and all that he had, and went away with them. 37 After this it was told Jonathan, and Simon his brother, that the children of Jambri made a great marriage, and were bringing the bride out of Madaba, the daughter of one of the great princes of Chanaan, with great pomp. 38 And they remembered the blood of John their brother; and they went up, and hid themselves under the covert of the mountain. 39 And they lifted up their eyes, and saw: and behold a tumult, and great preparation; and the bridegroom came forth, and his friends, and his brethren to meet them with timbrels, and musical instruments, and many weapons. 40 And they rose up against them from the place where they lay in ambush, and slew them, and there fell many wounded, and the rest fled into the mountains, and they took all their spoils. 41 And the marriage was turned into mourning, and the noise of their musical instruments into lamentation. 42 And they took revenge for the blood of their brother; and they returned to the bank of the Jordan.

A Thousand Men Slain. 43 And Bacchides heard it, and he came on the sabbath day even to the bank of the Jordan with a great power. 44 And Jonathan said to his company: Let us arise, and fight against our enemies, for it is not now as yesterday, and the day before. 45 For behold the battle is before us, and the water of the Jordan on this side and on that side, and banks, and marshes, and woods; and there is no place for us to turn aside. 46 p Now therefore cry ye to heaven, that ye may be delivered from the hand of your enemies. And they joined battle. 47 And Jonathan stretched forth his hand to strike Bacchides, but he turned away from him backwards. 48 And Jonathan and they that were with him leaped into the Jordan, and swam over the Jordan to them. 49 And there fell of Bacchides' side that day a thousand men. And they returned to Jerusalem.

50 And they built strong cities in Judea, the fortress that was in Jericho, and in Ammaus, and in Bethoron, and in Bethel, and Thamnata, and Phara, and Thopo,

with high walls, and gates, and bars. 51 And he placed garrisons in them, that they might wage war against Israel. 52 And he fortified the city of Bethsura, and Gazara, and the castle, and set garrisons in them and provisions of victuals. 53 And he took the sons of the chief men of the country for hostages, and put them in the castle in Jerusalem in custody.

54 q Now in the year one hundred and fifty-three, the second month, Alcimus commanded the walls of the inner court of the sanctuary to be thrown down, and the works of the prophets to be destroyed; and he began to destroy. 55 At that time Alcimus was struck, and his works were hindered, and his mouth was stopped, and he was taken with a palsy, so that he could no more speak a word, nor give order concerning his house. 56 And Alcimus died at that time in great torment.

57 And Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead, and he returned to the king, and the land was quiet for two years. 58 And all the wicked held a council, saying: Behold Jonathan, and they that are with him, dwell at ease, and without fear. Now therefore let us bring Bacchides hither, and he shall take them all in one night. 59 So they went, and gave him counsel. 60 And he arose to come with a great army, and he sent secretly letters to his adherents that were in Judea, to seize upon Jonathan and them that were with him; but they could not, for their design was known to them. 61 And he apprehended of the men of the country, that were the principal authors of the mischief, fifty men, and slew them. 62 And Jonathan, and Simon, and they that were with him retired into Bethbessen, which is in the desert: and he repaired the breaches thereof, and they fortified it.

Jonathan and Simon in Bethbessen. 63 And when Bacchides knew it he gathered together all his multitude, and sent word to them that were of Judea, 64 and he came, and camped above Bethbessen, and fought against it many days, and made engines. 65 But Jonathan left his brother Simon in the city, and went forth into the country, and came with a number of men, 66 and struck Odares, and his brethren, and the children of Phaseron in their tents; and he began to slay, and to increase in forces. 67 But Simon and they that were with him, sallied out of the city, and burnt the engines. 68 And they fought against Bacchides, and he was discomfited by them; and they afflicted him exceedingly, for his counsel and his enterprise was in vain.

69 And he was angry with the wicked men that had given him counsel to come into their country, and he slew many of them; and he purposed to return with the rest into their country. 70 And Jonathan had knowledge of it and he sent ambassadors to him to make peace with him, and to restore to him the prisoners. 71 And he accepted it willingly, and did according to his words, and swore that he would do him no harm all the days of his life. 72 And he restored to him the prisoners whom he before had taken out of the land of Juda, and he returned and went away into his own country, and he came no more into their borders.

73 So the sword ceased from Israel; and Jonathan dwelt in Machmas and Jonathan began there to judge the people; and he destroyed the wicked out of Israel.

CHAPTER 10.

Alexander Balas as King. 1 Now in the hundred and sixtieth year r Alexander the son of Antiochus, surnamed the Illustrious, came up and took Ptolemais, and they received him, and he reigned there. 2 And king Demetrius heard of it, and gathered together an exceeding great army, and went forth against him to fight.

3 And Demetrius sent a letter to Jonathan with peaceable words, to magnify him. 4 For he said: Let us first make a peace with him, before he make one with Alexander against us. 5 For he will remember all the evils that we have done against him, and against his brother, and against his nation. 6 And he gave him authority to gather together an army and to make arms, and that he should be his confederate; and the hostages that were in the castle, he commanded to be delivered to him.

7 And Jonathan came to Jerusalem, and read the letters in the hearing of all the people, and of them that were in the castle. 8 And they were struck with great fear, because they heard that the king had given him authority to gather together an army. 9 And the hostages were delivered to Jonathan, and he restored them to their parents. 10 And Jonathan dwelt in Jerusalem, and began to build and repair the city. 11 And he ordered workmen to build the walls, and mount Sion round about with square stones for fortification; and so they did. 12 And the strangers that were in the strongholds, which Bacchides had built, fled away. 13 And every man left his place, and departed into his own country. 14 Only in Bethsura there remained some of them, that had forsaken the law and the commandments of God, for this was a place of refuge for them.

15 And king Alexander heard of the promises that Demetrius had made Jonathan: and they told him of the battles and the worthy acts that he and his brethren had done, and the labors that they had endured. 16 And he said: Shall we find such another man? Now therefore we will make him our friend and our confederate. 17 So he wrote a letter, and sent it to him according to these words, saying:

18 King Alexander to his brother Jonathan, greeting. 19 We have heard of thee, that thou art a man of great power, and fit to be our friend. 20 Now therefore we make thee this day high priest of thy nation, and that thou be called the king's friend (and he sent him a purple robe, and a crown of gold), and that thou be of one mind with us in our affairs, and keep friendship with us. 21 Then Jonathan put on the holy vestment in the seventh month, in the year one hundred and threescore, at the feast day of the tabernacles; and he gathered together an army, and made a great number of arms.

Demetrius Seeks the Jews' Friendship. 22 And Demetrius heard these words, and was exceeding sorry, and said: 23 What is this that we have done, that Alexander hath prevented us to gain the friendship of the Jews to strengthen himself? 24 I also will write to them words of request, and offer dignities and gifts, that they may be with me to aid me. 25 And he wrote to them in these words: King Demetrius to the nation of the Jews, greeting. 26 Whereas you have kept covenant with us, and have continued in our friendship, and have not joined with our enemies, we have heard of it and are glad. 27 Wherefore now continue still to keep fidelity towards us, and we will reward you with good things, for what you have done in our behalf. 28 And we will remit to you many charges, and will give you gifts. 29 And now I free you and all the Jews from tributes, and I release you from the customs of salt, and remit the crowns, and the thirds of the seed. 30 And the half of the fruit of trees, which is my share, I leave to you from this day forward, so that it shall not be taken of the land of Juda, and of the three cities that are added thereto out of Samaria and Galilee, from this day forth and forever. 31 And let Jerusalem be holy and free, with the borders thereof; and let the tenths and tributes be for itself. 32 I yield up also the power of the castle that is in Jerusalem, and I give it to the high priest, to place therein such men as he shall choose to keep it. 33 And every soul of the Jews that hath been carried captive from the land of Juda in all my kingdom, I set at liberty freely, that all be discharged from tributes even of their cattle. 34 And I will that all the feasts, and the sabbaths, and the new moons, and the days appointed, and three days before the solemn day, and three days after the solemn day, be all days of immunity and freedom, for all the Jews that are in my kingdom. 35 And no man shall have power to do anything against them, or to molest any of them, in any cause. 36 And let there be enrolled in the king's army to the number of thirty thousand of the Jews; and allowance shall be made them as is due to all the king's forces, and certain of them shall be appointed to be in the fortresses of the great king. 37 And some of them shall be set over the affairs of the kingdom, that are of trust, and let the governors be taken from among themselves, and let them walk in their own laws, as the king hath commanded in the land of Juda. 38 And the three cities that are added to Judea, out of the country of Samaria, let them be accounted with Judea, that they may be under one, and obey no other authority but that of the high priest. 39 Ptolemais, and the confines thereof, I give as a free gift to the holy places, that are in Jerusalem, for the necessary charges of the holy things. 40 And I give every year fifteen thousand sicles of silver out of the king's accounts, of what belongs to me; [41] and all that is above, which they that were over the affairs the years before had not paid, from this time they shall give it to the works of the house. [42] Moreover the five thousand sicles of silver which they received from the account of the holy places every year, shall also belong to the priests that execute the ministry. [43] And whosoever shall flee into the temple that is in Jerusalem, and in all the borders thereof, being indebted to the king for any matter, let them be set at liberty, and all that they have in my kingdom, let them have it free. [44] For the building also, or repairing the works of the holy places, the charges shall be given out of the king's revenues. [45] For the building also of the walls of Jerusalem, and the fortifying thereof round about, the charges shall be given out of the king's account, as also for the building of the walls in Judea.

[46] Now when Jonathan and the people heard these words, [s] they gave no credit to them nor received them, because they remembered the great evil that he had done in Israel, for he had afflicted them exceedingly. [47] And their inclinations were towards Alexander, because he had been the chief promoter of peace in their regard, and him they always helped.

[48] [t] And king Alexander gathered together a great army, and moved his camp near to Demetrius. [49] And the two kings joined battle, and the army of Demetrius fled away, and Alexander pursued after him, and pressed them close. [50] And the battle was hard fought till the sun went down; and Demetrius was slain that day.

2. Alexander I Balas

Jonathan Is Honored by the King. [51] And Alexander sent ambassadors to Ptolemy* king of Egypt, with words to this effect, saying: [52] Forasmuch as I am returned into my kingdom, and am set in the throne of my ancestors, and have gotten the dominion, and have overthrown Demetrius, and possessed our country, [53] and have joined battle with him, and both he and his army have been destroyed by us, and we are placed in the throne of his kingdom; [54] now therefore let us make friendship one with another; and give me now thy daughter to wife, and I will be thy son-in-law, and I will give both thee and her gifts worthy of thee. [55] And king Ptolemy answered, saying: Happy is the day wherein thou didst return to the land of thy fathers, and sattest in the throne of their kingdom. [56] And now I will do to thee as thou hast written; but meet me at Ptolemais, that we may see one another, and I may give her to thee as thou hast said. [57] So Ptolemy went out of Egypt, with Cleopatra his daughter, and he came to Ptolemais in the hundred and sixty-second year.[u] [58] And king Alexander met him, and he gave him his daughter Cleopatra; and he celebrated her marriage at Ptolemais with great glory, after the manner of kings. [59] And king Alexander wrote to Jonathan, that he should come and meet him. [60] And he went honorably to Ptolemais, and he met there the two kings, and he gave them much silver, and gold, and presents; and he found favor in their sight. [61] And some pestilent men of Israel, men of a wicked life, assembled themselves against him to accuse him; and the king gave no heed to them. [62] And he commanded that Jonathan's garments should be taken off, and that he should be clothed with purple; and they did so. And the king made him sit by himself. [63] And he said to his princes: Go out with him into the midst of the city, and make proclamation, that no man complain against him of any matter, and that no man trouble him for any manner of cause. [64] So when his accusers saw his glory proclaimed and him clothed with purple, they all fled away. [65] And the king magnified him, and enrolled him amongst his chief friends, and made him governor and partaker of his dominion. [66] And Jonathan returned into Jerusalem with peace and joy.

The Army of Demetrius II. [67] [v] In the year one hundred and sixty-five Demetrius the son of Demetrius came from Crete into the land of his fathers. [68] And king Alexander heard of it, and was much troubled, and returned to Antioch.

[69] And king Demetrius made Apollonius his general, who was governor of Celesyria. And he gathered together a great army, and came to Jamnia, and he sent to Jonathan the high priest, [70] saying: Thou alone standest against us, and I am laughed at, and reproached, because thou showest thy power against us in the mountains. 71 Now therefore if thou trustest in thy forces, come down to us into the plain, and there let us try one another, for with me is the strength of war. 72 Ask, and learn who I am, and the rest that help me, who also say that your foot cannot stand before our face, for thy fathers have twice been put to flight in their own land. 73 And now how wilt thou be able to abide the horsemen, and so great an army in the plain, where there is no stone, nor rock, nor place to flee to?

74 Now when Jonathan heard the words of Apollonius, he was moved in his mind, and he chose ten thousand men, and went out of Jerusalem, and Simon his brother met him to help him. 75 And they pitched their tents near Joppe, but they shut him out of the city, because a garrison of Apollonius was in Joppe, and he laid siege to it. 76 And they that were in the city being affrighted, opened the gates to him, so Jonathan took Joppe. 77 And Apollonius heard of it, and he took three thousand horsemen and a great army. 78 And he went to Azotus as one that was making a journey, and immediately he went forth into the plain, because he had a great number of horsemen, and he trusted in them. And Jonathan followed after him to Azotus, and they joined battle. 79 And Apollonius left privately in the camp a thousand horsemen behind them. 80 And Jonathan knew that there was an ambush behind him, and they surrounded his army, and cast darts at the people from morning till evening. 81 But the people stood still, as Jonathan had commanded them, and so their horses were fatigued. 82 Then Simon drew forth his army, and attacked the legion, for the horsemen were wearied, and they were discomfited by him, and fled. 83 And they that were scattered about the plain, fled into Azotus, and went into Bethdagon, their idol's temple, there to save themselves. 84 But Jonathan set fire to Azotus, and the cities that were round about it, and took the spoils of them, and the temple of Dagon; and all them that were fled into it, he burnt with fire. 85 So they that were slain by the sword, with them that were burnt, were almost eight thousand men. 86 And Jonathan removed his army from thence, and camped against Ascalon; and they went out of the city to meet him with great honor. 87 And Jonathan returned into Jerusalem with his people, having many spoils.

88 And it came to pass, when Alexander the king heard these words, that he honored Jonathan yet more. 89 And he sent him a buckle of gold, as the custom is, to be given to such as are of the royal blood. And he gave him Accaron and all the borders thereof in possession.

CHAPTER 11.

Ptolemy VI Wages War. 1 And w the king of Egypt gathered together an army, like the sand that lieth upon the seashore, and many ships; and he sought to get the kingdom of Alexander by deceit, and join it to his own kingdom. 2 And he went out into Syria with peaceable words, and they opened to him the cities, and met him: for king Alexander had ordered them to go forth to meet him, because he was his father-in-law.

3 Now when Ptolemy entered into the cities, he put garrisons of soldiers in every city. 4 And when he came near to Azotus, they showed him the temple of Dagon that was burnt with fire, and Azotus and the suburbs thereof that were destroyed, and the bodies that were cast abroad, and the graves of them that were slain in the battle, which they had made near the way. 5 And they told the king that Jonathan had done these things, to make him odious, but the king held his peace. 6 And Jonathan came to meet the king at Joppe with glory, and they saluted one another, and they lodged there. 7 And Jonathan went with the king as far as the river, called Eleutherus, and he returned into Jerusalem.

8 And king Ptolemy got the dominion of the cities by the seaside, even to Seleucia, and he devised evil designs against Alexander. 9 And he sent ambassadors to Demetrius, saying: Come, let us make a league between us, and I will give thee my daughter whom Alexander hath, and thou shalt reign in the kingdom of thy father. 10 For I repent that I have given him my daughter, for he hath sought to kill me. 11 And he slandered him, because he coveted his kingdom. 12 And he took away his daughter, and gave her to Demetrius, and alienated himself from Alexander, and his enmities were made manifest. 13 And Ptolemy entered into Antioch, and set two crowns upon his head, that of Egypt and that of Asia. 14 Now king Alexander was in Cilicia at that time, because they that were in those places had rebelled. 15 x And when Alexander heard of it, he came to give him battle, and king Ptolemy brought forth his army and met him with a strong power, and put him to flight. 16 And Alexander fled into Arabia, there to be protected; and king Ptolemy was exalted. 17 And Zabdiel the Arabian took off Alexander's head, and sent it to Ptolemy. 18 And king Ptolemy died the third day after. And they that were in the strongholds were destroyed by them that were within the camp.

3. Demetrius II Nicator

19 y And Demetrius reigned in the hundred and sixty-seventh year. 20 In those days Jonathan gathered together them that were in Judea, to take the castle that was in Jerusalem; and they made many engines of war against it. 21 Then some wicked men that hated their own nation, went away to king Demetrius, and told him that Jonathan was besieging the castle. 22 And when he heard it, he was angry, and forthwith he came to Ptolemais, and wrote to Jonathan that he should not besiege the castle, but should come to him in haste, and speak to him. 23 But when Jonathan heard this, he bade them besiege it still, and he chose some of the ancients of Israel, and of the priests, and put himself in danger. 24 And he took gold, and silver, and raiment, and many other presents, and went to the king of Ptolemais, and he found favor in his sight. 25 And certain wicked men of his nation made complaints against him. 26 And the king treated him as his predecessors had done before; and he exalted him in the sight of all his friends. 27 And he confirmed him in the high priesthood and all the honors he had before, and he made him the chief of his friends.

28 And Jonathan requested of the king that he would make Judea free from tribute, and the three governments, and Samaria, and the confines thereof, and he promised him three hundred talents. 29 And the king consented, and he wrote letters to Jonathan of all these things to this effect: 30 King Demetrius to his brother Jonathan, and to the nation of the Jews, greeting. 31 We send you here a copy of the letter which we have written to Lasthenes our parent concerning you, that you might know it.

King Demetrius Writes to Lasthenes. 32 King Demetrius to Lasthenes his parent, greeting. 33 We have determined to do good to the nation of the Jews who are our friends, and keep the things that are just with us, for their good will which they bear towards us. 34 We have ratified therefore unto them all the borders of Judea, and the three cities, *Apherema, Lydda, and Ramatha, which are added to Judea out of Samaria, and all their confines, to bé set apart to all them that sacrifice in Jerusalem, instead of the payments which the king received of them every year, and for the fruits of the land, and of the trees. 35 And as for other things that belonged to us of the tithes, and of the tributes, from this time we discharge them of them, the saltpans also; and the crowns that were presented to us. 36 We give all to them, and nothing hereof shall be revoked from this time forth and forever. 37 Now therefore see that thou make a copy of these things, and let it be given to Jonathan, and set upon the holy mountain in a conspicuous place.

38 And king Demetrius seeing that the land was quiet before him, and nothing resisted him, sent away all his forces, every man to his own place, except the foreign army, which he had drawn together from the islands of the nations. So all the troops of his fathers hated him. 39 Now there was one Tryphon who had been of Alexander's party before, who seeing that all the army murmured against Demetrius, went to Emalchuel the Arabian, who brought up Antiochus the son of Alexander. 40 And he pressed him much to deliver him to him, that he might be king in his father's place; and he told him all that Demetrius had done, and how his soldiers hated him. And he remained there many days.

41 And Jonathan sent to king Demetrius, desiring that he would cast out them that were in the castle in Jerusalem, and those that were in the strongholds, because they fought against Israel. 42 And Demetrius sent to Jonathan, saying: I will not only do this for thee and for thy people, but I will greatly honor thee and thy nation, when opportunity shall serve. 43 Now therefore thou shalt do well if thou send me men to help me, for all my army is gone from me.

The Jews Rescue Demetrius. 44 And Jonathan sent him three thousand valiant men to Antioch, and they came to the king, and the king was very glad of their coming. 45 And they that were of the city assembled themselves together, to the number of a hundred and twenty thousand men, and would have killed the king. 46 And the king fled into the palace, and they of the city kept the passages of the city, and began to fight. 47 And the king called the Jews to his assistance; and they came to him all at once, and they all dispersed themselves through the city. 48 And they slew in that day a hundred thousand men, and they set fire to the city, and got many spoils that day, and delivered the king. 49 And they that were of the city saw that the Jews had got the city as they would; and they were discouraged in their mind, and cried to the king, making supplication, and saying: 50 Grant us peace, and let the Jews cease from assaulting us and the city. 51 And they threw down their arms and made peace, and the Jews were glorified in the sight of the king, and in the sight of all that were in his realm, and were renowned throughout the kingdom, and returned to Jerusalem with many spoils. 52 So king Demetrius sat in the throne of his kingdom, and the land was quiet before him. 53 And he falsified all whatsoever he had said, and alienated himself from Jonathan, and did not reward him according to the benefits he had received from him, but gave him great trouble.

4. Antiochus VI Dionysus

54 And after this Tryphon returned and with him Antiochus the young boy, who was made king, and put on the diadem. 55 And there assembled unto him all the bands which Demetrius had sent away, and they fought against Demetrius, who turned his back and fled. 56 And Tryphon took the elephants, and made himself master of Antioch.

57 And young Antiochus wrote to Jonathan, saying: I confirm thee in the high priesthood, and I appoint thee ruler over the four cities, and to be one of the king's friends. 58 And he sent him vessels of gold for his service, and he gave him leave to drink in gold, and to be clothed in purple, and to wear a golden buckle. 59 And he made his brother Simon governor from the borders of Tyre even to the confines of Egypt.

The Exploits of Jonathan. 60 Then Jonathan went forth and passed through the cities beyond the river; and all the forces of Syria gathered themselves to him to help him, and he came to Ascalon, and they met him honorably out of the city. 61 And he went from thence to Gaza, and they that were in Gaza shut him out. And he besieged it, and burnt all the suburbs round about, and took the spoils. 62 And the men of Gaza made supplication to Jonathan, and he gave them the right hand. And he took their sons for hostages, and sent them to Jerusalem, and he went through the country as far as Damascus.

63 And Jonathan heard that the generals of Demetrius were come treacherously to Cades, which is in Galilee, with a great army, purposing to remove him from the affairs of the kingdom. 64 And he went against them, but left his brother Simon in the country. 65 And Simon encamped against Bethsura, and assaulted it many days, and shut them up. 66 And they desired him to make peace, and he granted it them. And he cast them out from thence, and took the city, and placed a garrison in it.

67 And Jonathan and his army encamped by the water of Genesar, and before it was light they were ready in the plain of Asor. 68 And behold the army of the strangers met him in the plain, and they laid an ambush for him in the mountains, but he went out against them. 69 And they that lay in ambush rose out of their places, and joined battle. 70 And all that were on Jonathan's side fled, and none was left of them but Mathathias the son of Absalom and Judas the son of Calphi, chief captain of the army. 71 And Jonathan rent his garments, and cast earth upon his head, and prayed. 72 And Jonathan turned again to them to battle, and he put them to flight, and they fought. 73 And they of his side that fled saw this, and they turned again to him, and they all with him pursued the enemies even to Cades to their own camp, and they came even thither. 74 And there fell of the aliens in that day three thousand men; and Jonathan returned to Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 12.

Jonathan Renews the Roman League. 1 And Jonathan saw that the time served him, and he chose certain men and sent them to Rome, to confirm and to renew the amity with them. 2 And he sent letters to the Spartans, and to other places according to the same form. 3 And they went to Rome, and entered into the senate house, and said: Jonathan the high priest and the nation of the Jews have sent us to renew the amity and alliance as it was before. 4 And they gave them letters to their governors in every place, to conduct them into the land of Juda with peace.

5 And this is a copy of the letters which Jonathan wrote to the Spartans: 6 Jonathan the high priest, and the ancients of the nation, and the priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews, to the Spartans, their brethren, greeting. 7 There were letters sent long ago to Onias the high priest from Arius who reigned then among you, to signify that you are our brethren, as the copy here underwritten doth specify. 8 And Onias received the ambassador with honor, and received the letters wherein there was mention made of the alliance and amity. 9 We, though we needed none of these things, having for our comfort the holy books that are in our hands, 10 chose rather to send to you to renew the brotherhood and friendship, lest we should become strangers to you altogether, for there is a long time passed since you sent to us. 11 We therefore at all times without ceasing, both in our festivals, and other days, wherein it is convenient, remember you in the sacrifices that we offer, and in our observances, as it is meet and becoming to remember brethren. 12 And we rejoice at your glory. 13 But we have had many troubles and wars on every side, and the kings that are round about us, have fought against us. 14 But we would not be troublesome to you, nor to the rest of our allies and friends in these wars. 15 For we have had help from heaven, and we have been delivered, and our enemies are humbled. 16 We have chosen therefore Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater the son of Jason, and have sent them to the Romans to renew with them the former amity and alliance. 17 And we have commanded them to go also to you, and to salute you, and to deliver you our letters, concerning the renewing of our brotherhood. 18 And now you shall do well to give us an answer hereto.

19 And this is the copy of the letter which he had sent to Onias: 20 Arius king of the Spartans to Onias the high priest, greeting. 21 It is found in writing concerning the Spartans and the Jews, that they are brethren, and that they are of the stock of Abraham. 22 And now since this is come to our knowledge, you do well to write to us of your prosperity. 23 And we also have written back to you: That our cattle and our possessions are yours; and yours, ours. We therefore have commanded that these things should be told you.

Jonathan Protects His People. 24 Now Jonathan heard that the generals of Demetrius were come again with a greater army than before to fight against him. 25 So he went out from Jerusalem, and met them in the land of Amath, for he gave them no time to enter into his country. 26 And he sent spies into their camp, and they came back and brought him word that they designed to come upon them in the night. 27 And when the sun was set, Jonathan commanded his men to watch, and to be in arms all night long ready to fight, and he set sentinels round about the camp. 28 And the enemies heard that Jonathan and his men were ready for battle, and they were struck with fear and dread in their heart; and they kindled fires in their camp. 29 But Jonathan and they that were with him knew it not till the morning, for they saw the lights burning. 30 And Jonathan pursued after them, but overtook them not, for they had passed the river Eleutherus.

31 And Jonathan turned upon the Arabians that are called Zabadeans, and he defeated them, and took the spoils of them. 32 And he went forward, and came to Damascus, and passed through all that country.

33 Simon also went forth, and came as far as Ascalon and the neighboring fortresses, and he turned aside to Joppe, and took possession of it 34 (for he heard that they designed to deliver the hold to them that took part with Demetrius), and he put a garrison there to keep it.

35 And Jonathan came back, and called together the ancients of the people, and he took a resolution with them to build fortresses in Judea, 36 and to build up walls in Jerusalem, and raise a mound between the castle and the city, to separate it from the city, that so it might have no communication, and that they might neither buy nor sell. 37 And they came together to build up the city, for the wall that was upon the brook towards the east was broken down, and he repaired that which is called Caphetetha. 38 And Simon built Adiada in Sephela, and fortified it, and set up gates and bars.

Jonathan Deceived and Imprisoned. 39 [z] Now when Tryphon had conceived a design to make himself king of Asia, and to take the crown, and to stretch out his hand against king Antiochus, 40 fearing lest Jonathan would not suffer him, but would fight against him, he sought to seize upon him, and to kill him. So he rose up and came to Bethsan. 41 And Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand men chosen for battle, and came to Bethsan.

42 Now when Tryphon saw that Jonathan came with a great army, he durst not stretch forth his hand against him, 43 but received him with honor, and commended him to all his friends, and gave him presents, and he commanded his troops to obey him, as himself. 44 And he said to Jonathan: Why hast thou troubled all the people, whereas we have no war? 45 Now therefore send them back to their own houses, and choose thee a few men that may be with thee, and come with me to Ptolemais, and I will deliver it to thee, and the rest of the strongholds, and the army, and all that have any charge, and I will return and go away, for this is the cause of my coming.

46 And Jonathan believed him, and did as he said, and sent away his army, and they departed into the land of Juda. 47 But he kept with him three thousand men, of whom he sent two thousand into Galilee, and one thousand went with him. 48 Now as soon as Jonathan entered into Ptolemais, they of Ptolemais shut the gates of the city, and took him, and all them that came in with him they slew with the sword.

49 Then Tryphon sent an army and horsemen into Galilee, and into the great plain to destroy all Jonathan's company. 50 But they, when they understood that Jonathan and all that were with him were taken and slain, encouraged one another, and went out ready for battle. 51 Then they that had come after them, seeing that they stood for their lives, returned back. 52 Whereupon they all came peaceably into the land of Juda. And they bewailed Jonathan, and them that had been with him, exceedingly; and Israel mourned with great lamentation. 53 Then all the heathens that were round about them, sought to destroy them. For they said: 54 They have no prince, nor any to help them. Now therefore let us make war upon them, and take away the memory of them from amongst men.

IV: SIMON, LEADER OF THE JEWS

1. Reign of Antiochus VI Dionysus

CHAPTER 13.

Tryphon's Perfidy. 1 Now Simon heard that Tryphon was gathering together a very great army to invade the land of Juda and to destroy it. 2 And seeing that the people was in dread and in fear, he went up to Jerusalem, and assembled the people, 3 and exhorted them, saying: You know what great battles I and my brethren, and the house of my father, have fought for the laws, and the sanctuary, and the distresses that we have seen, 4 by reason whereof all my brethren have lost their lives for Israel's sake, and I am left alone. 5 And now far be it from me to spare my life in any time of trouble, for I am not better than my brethren. 6 I will avenge then my nation and the sanctuary, and our children, and wives, for all the heathens are gathered together to destroy us out of mere malice.

7 And the spirit of the people was enkindled as soon as they heard these words. 8 And they answered with a loud voice, saying: Thou art our leader in the place of Judas, and Jonathan thy brother. 9 z 143 B.C.

Fight thou our battles, and we will do whatsoever thou shalt say to us.

10 So gathering together all the men of war, he made haste to finish all the walls of Jerusalem, and he fortified it round about. 11 And he sent Jonathan the son of Absalom and with him a new army into Joppe, and he cast out them that were in it, and himself remained there.

12 And Tryphon removed from Ptolemais with a great army to invade the land of Juda, and Jonathan was with him in custody. 13 But Simon pitched in Addus, over against the plain. 14 And when Tryphon understood that Simon was risen up in the place of his brother Jonathan, and that he meant to join battle with him, he sent messengers to him, 15 saying: We have detained thy brother Jonathan for the money that he owed in the king's account, by reason of the affairs which he had the management of. 16 But now send a hundred talents of silver, and his two sons for hostages, that when he is set at liberty he may not revolt from us, and we will release him.

17 Now Simon knew that he spoke deceitfully to him, nevertheless he ordered the money and the children to be sent, lest he should bring upon himself a great hatred of the people of Israel, who might have said: 18 Because he sent not the money and the children, therefore is he lost. 19 So he sent the children and the hundred talents; and he lied, and did not let Jonathan go.

Tryphon Slays Jonathan. 20 And after this Tryphon entered within the country to destroy it: and they went about by the way that leadeth to Ador. And Simon and his army marched to every place whithersoever they went.* 21 And they that were in the castle, sent messengers to Tryphon, that he should make haste to come through the desert, and send them victuals. 22 And Tryhon made ready all his horsemen to come that night; but there fell a very great snow, and he came not into the country of Galaad. 23 And when he approached to Bascama, he slew Jonathan and his sons there. 24 And Tryphon returned, and went into his own country.

25 And Simon sent and took the bones of Jonathan his brother, and buried them in Modin, in the city of his fathers. 26 And all Israel bewailed him with great lamentation: and they mourned for him many days. 27 And Simon built over the sepulchre of his father and of his brethren a building lofty to the sight, of polished stone behind and before. 28 And he set up seven pyramids one against another for his father and his mother, and his four brethren. 29 And round about these he set great pillars, and upon the pillars arms for a perpetual memory; and by the arms ships carved, which might be seen by all that sailed on the sea. 30 This is the sepulchre that he made in Modin even unto this day.

2. Tryphon and Demetrius II

31 But Tryphon when he was upon a journey with the young king Antiochus, treacherously slew him. 32 And he reigned in his place, and put on the crown of Asia, and brought great evils upon the land.

33 And Simon built up the strongholds of Judea, fortifying them with high towers, and great walls, and gates, and bars; and he stored up victuals in the fortresses.

34 And Simon chose men and sent to king Demetrius, to the end that he should grant an immunity to the land, for all that Tryphon did was to spoil. 35 And king Demetrius in answer to this request, wrote a letter in this manner: 36 King Demetrius to Simon the high priest, and friend of kings, and to the ancients, and to the nation of the Jews, greeting. 37 The golden crown, and the palm, which you sent, we have received, and we are ready to make a firm peace with you, and to write to the king's chief officers to release you the things that we have released. 38 For all that we have decreed in your favor shall stand in force. The strongholds that you have built, shall be your own. 39 And as for any oversight or fault committed unto this day, we forgive it, and the crown which you owed; and if any other thing were taxed in Jerusalem, now let it not be taxed. 40 And if any of you be fit to be enrolled among ours, let them be enrolled, and let there be peace between us.

41 a In the year one hundred and seventy the yoke of the Gentiles was taken off from Israel. 42 And the people of Israel began to write in the instruments and public records: The first year under Simon the high priest, the great captain and prince of the Jews.

Gaza and Temple of Jerusalem Taken. 43 In those days Simon besieged Gaza, and camped round about it, and he made engines, and set them to the city, and he struck one tower, and took it. 44 And they that were within the engine leaped into the city; and there was a great uproar in the city. 45 And they that were in the city went up with their wives and children upon the wall, with their garments rent, and they cried with a loud voice, beseeching Simon to grant them peace. 46 And they said: Deal not with us according to our evil deeds, but according to thy mercy. 47 And Simon being moved, did not destroy them, but yet he cast them out of the city, and cleansed the houses wherein there had been idols, and then he entered into it with hymns, blessing the Lord. 48 And having cast out of it all uncleanness, he placed in it men that should observe the law. And he fortified it, and made it his habitation.

49 But they that were in the castle of Jerusalem were hindered from going out and coming into the country, and from buying and selling; and they were straitened with hunger, and many of them perished through famine. 50 And they cried to Simon for peace, and he granted it to them. And he cast them out from thence, and cleansed the castle from uncleannesses. 51 [b] And they entered into it the three and twentieth day of the second month, in the year one hundred and seventy-one, with thanksgiving and branches of palm trees, and harps, and cymbals, and psalteries, and hymns, and canticles, because the great enemy was destroyed out of Israel. 52 And he ordained that these days should be kept every year with gladness. 53 And he fortified the mountain of the temple that was near the castle, and he dwelt there himself, and they that were with him.

54 And Simon saw that John his son was a valiant man for war, and he made him captain of all the forces, and he dwelt in Gazara.

CHAPTER 14.

King of Persia Captures Demetrius II. 1 In the year [c] one hundred and seventy-two, king Demetrius assembled his army, and went into Media to get him succors to fight against Tryphon. 2 And Arsaces the king of Persia and Media heard that Demetrius was entered within his borders, and he sent one of his princes to take him alive, and bring him to him. 3 And he went and defeated the army of Demetrius, and took him, and brought him to Arsaces, and he put him into custody.

4 And all the land of Juda was at rest all the days of Simon, and he sought the good of his nation, and his power and his glory pleased them well all his days. 5 And with all his glory he took Joppe for a haven, and made an entrance to the isles of the sea. 6 And he enlarged the bounds of his nation, and made himself master of the country. 7 And he gathered together a great number of captives, and had the dominion of Gazara, and of Bethsura, and of the castle, and took away all uncleanness out of it, and there was none that resisted him. 8 And every man tilled his land with peace, and the land of Juda yielded her increase, and the trees of the fields their fruit. 9 The ancient men sat all in the streets, and treated together of the good things of the land, and the young men put on them glory and the robes of war. 10 And he provided victuals for the cities, and he appointed that they should be furnished with ammunition, so that the fame of his glory was renowned even to the end of the earth. 11 He made peace in the land, and Israel rejoiced with great joy. 12 And every man sat under his vine and under his fig tree, and there was none to make them afraid. 13 There was none left in the land to fight against them: kings were discomfited in those days. 14 And he strengthened all those of his people that were brought low, and he sought the law, and took away every unjust and wicked man. 15 He glorified the sanctuary, and multiplied the vessels of the holy places.

16 And it was heard at Rome, and as far as Sparta, that Jonathan was dead, and they were very sorry. 17 But when they heard that Simon his brother was made high priest in his place, and was possessed of all the country and the cities therein, [18] they wrote to him in tables of brass to renew the friendship and alliance which they had made with Judas and with Jonathan, his brethren. [19] And they were read before the assembly in Jerusalem.

And this is the copy of the letters that the Spartans sent: [20] The princes and the cities of the Spartans to Simon the high priest, and to the ancients, and the priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews their brethren, greeting. [21] The ambassadors that were sent to our people have told us of your glory, and honor, and joy, and we rejoiced at their coming. [22] And we registered what was said by them in the councils of the people in this manner: Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater the son of Jason, ambassadors of the Jews, came to us to renew the former friendship with us. [23] And it pleased the people to receive the men honorably, and to put a copy of their words in the public records, to be a memorial to the people of the Spartans. And we have written a copy of them to Simon the high priest.

Simon: Prince and High Priest. And when the people of Rome had heard [25] these words, they said: What thanks shall we give to Simon and his sons? [26] For he hath restored his brethren, and hath driven away in fight the enemies of Israel from them. And they decreed him liberty, and registered it in tables of brass, and set it upon pillars in mount Sion.

[27] And this is a copy of the writing: The eighteenth day of the month Elul, in the year[d] one hundred and seventy-two, being the third year under Simon the high priest at Asaramel, [28] in a great assembly of the priests, and of the people, and the princes of the nation, and the ancients of the country, these things were notified: Forasmuch as there have often been wars in our country, [29] and Simon, the son of Mathathias of the children of Jarib, and his brethren have put themselves in danger, and resisted the enemies of their nation, for the maintenance of their holy places, and the law, and have raised their nation to great glory. [30] And Jonathan gathered together his nation, and was made their high priest, and he was laid to his people. [31] And their enemies desired to tread down and destroy their country, and to stretch forth their hands against their holy places. [32] Then Simon resisted and fought for his nation, and laid out much of his money, and armed the valiant men of his nation, and gave them wages: [33] and he fortified the cities of Judea, and Bethsura that lieth in the borders of Judea, where the armor of the enemies was before: and he placed there a garrison of Jews. [34] And he fortified Joppe which lieth by the sea, and Gazara, which bordereth upon Azotus, wherein the enemies dwelt before, and he placed Jews here, and furnished them with all things convenient for their reparation. [35] And the people seeing the acts of Simon, and to what glory he meant to bring his nation, made him their prince and high priest, because he had done all these things, and for the justice and faith which he kept to his nation, and for that he sought by all means to advance his people.

[36] And in his days things prospered in his hands, so that the heathens were taken away out of their country, and they also that were in the city of David in Jerusalem in the castle, out of which they issued forth, and profaned all places round about the sanctuary, and did much evil to its purity: [37] and he placed therein Jews for the defense of the country and of the city, and he raised up the walls of Jerusalem. [38] And king Demetrius confirmed him in the high priesthood. [39] According to these things he made him his friend, and glorified him with great glory. [40] For he had heard that the Romans had called the Jews their friends, and confederates and brethren, and that they had received Simon's ambassadors with honor; [41] and that the Jews and their priests had consented that he should be their prince and high priest forever, till there should arise a faithful prophet; [42] and that he should be chief over them, and that he should have the charge of the sanctuary, and that he should appoint rulers over their works, and over the country, and over the armor, and over the strongholds; [43] and that he should have care of the holy places, and that he should be obeyed by all, and that all the writings in the country should be made in his name, and that he should be clothed with purple and gold; 44 and that it should not be lawful for any of the people, or of the priests, to disannul any of these things, or to gainsay his words, or to call together an assembly in the country without him; or to be clothed with purple, or to wear a buckle of gold; 45 and whosoever shall do otherwise, or shall make void any of these things, shall be punished.

46 And it pleased all the people to establish Simon, and to do according to these words. 47 And Simon accepted thereof, and was well pleased to execute the office of the high priesthood, and to be captain and prince of the nation of the Jews, and of the priests, and to be chief over all.

48 And they commanded that this writing should be put in tables of brass, and that they should be set up within the compass of the sanctuary, in a conspicuous place. 49 And that a copy thereof should be put in the treasury, that Simon and his sons may have it.

3. Tryphon and Antiochus VII Sidetes

CHAPTER 15.

Antiochus Honors Simon. 1 And king Antiochus the son of Demetrius sent letters from the isles of the sea to Simon the priest and prince of the nation of the Jews, and to all the people. 2 And the contents were these: King Antiochus to Simon the high priest, and to the nation of the Jews, greeting. 3 Forasmuch as certain pestilent men have usurped the kingdom of our fathers, and my purpose is to challenge the kingdom, and to restore it to its former estate, and I have chosen a great army, and have built ships of war. 4 And I design to go through the country that I may take revenge of them that have destroyed our country, and that have made many cities desolate in my realm. 5 Now therefore I confirm unto thee all the oblations which all the kings before me remitted to thee, and what other gifts soever they remitted to thee. 6 And I give thee leave to coin thy own money in thy country. 7 And let Jerusalem be holy and free, and all the armor that hath been made, and the fortresses which thou hast built, and which thou keepest in thy hands, let them remain to thee. 8 And all that is due to the king, and what should be the king's hereafter, from this present and forever, is forgiven thee. 9 And when we shall have recovered our kingdom, we will glorify thee, and thy nation, and the temple with great glory, so that your glory shall be made manifest in all the earth.

15 And Numenius, and they that had been with him, came from the city of Rome, having letters written to the kings, and countries, the contents whereof were these: 16 Lucius the consul of the Romans, to king Ptolemy,* greeting. 17 The ambassadors of the Jews our friends came to us, to renew the former friendship and alliance, being sent from Simon the high priest and the people of the Jews. 18 And they brought also a shield of gold of a thousand pounds. 19 It hath seemed good therefore to us to write to the kings and countries, that they should do them no harm, nor fight against them, their cities, or countries, and that they should give no aid to them that fight against them. 20 And it hath seemed good to us to receive the shield of them. 21 If therefore any pestilent men are fled out of their country to you, deliver them to Simon the high priest, that he may punish them according to their law.

22 These same things were written to king Demetrius, and to Attalus,* and to Ariarathes, and to Arsaces, 23 and to all the countries; and to Lampsacus, and to the Spartans, and to Delus, and Myndus, and Sicyon, and Caria, and Samus, and Pamphylia, and Lycia, and Alicarnassus, and Cos, and Side, and Aradus, and Rhodes, and Phaselis, and Gortyna, and Gnidus, and Cyprus, and Cyrene. 24 And they wrote a copy thereof to Simon the high priest, and to the people of the Jews.

Antiochus Quarrels with Simon. 25 But king Antiochus moved his camp to Dora the second time, assaulting it continually, and making engines; and he shut up Tryphon, that he could not go out. 26 And Simon sent to him two thousand chosen men to aid him, silver also, and gold, and abundance of furniture. 27 And he would not receive them, but broke all the covenant that he had made with him before, and alienated himself from him.

28 And he sent to him Athenobius one of his friends to treat with him, saying: You hold Joppe, and Gazara, and the castle that is in Jerusalem, which are cities of my kingdom: 29 their borders you have wasted, and you have made great havoc in the land, and have got the dominion of many places in my kingdom. 30 Now therefore deliver up the cities that you have taken, and the tributes of the places whereof you have gotten the dominion without the borders of Judea. 31 But if not, give me for them five hundred talents of silver, and for the havoc that you have made, and the tributes of the cities other five hundred talents, or else we will come and fight against you. 32 So Athenobius the king's friend came to Jerusalem, and saw the glory of Simon and his magnificence in gold, and silver, and his great equipage, and he was astonished, and told him the king's words.

33 And Simon answered him, and said to him: We have neither taken other men's land, neither do we hold that which is other men's, but the inheritance of our fathers, which was for some time unjustly possessed by our enemies. 34 But we having opportunity claim the inheritance of our fathers. 35 And as to thy complaints concerning Joppe and Gazara, they did great harm to the people, and to our country. Yet for these we will give a hundred talents. And Athenobius answered him not a word, 36 but returning in a rage to the king, made report to him of these words, and of the glory of Simon, and of all that he had seen, and the king was exceeding angry.

37 And Tryphon fled away by ship to Orthosias. 38 And the king appointed Cendebeus captain of the seacoast, and gave him an army of footmen and horsemen. 39 And he commanded him to march with his army towards Judea; and he commanded him to build up Gedor, and to fortify the gates of the city, and to war against the people. But the king himself pursued after Tryphon.

40 And Cendebeus came to Jamnia, and began to provoke the people, and to ravage Judea, and to take the people prisoners and to kill, and to build Gedor. 41 And he placed there horsemen and an army, that they might issue forth, and make incursions upon the ways of Judea, as the king had commanded him.

CHAPTER 16.

Sons of Simon Defeat Antiochus. 1 Then John* came up from Gazara, and told Simon his father what Cendebeus had done against their people. 2 And Simon called his two eldest sons, Judas and John, and said to them: I and my brethren, and my father's house, have fought against the enemies of Israel from our youth even to this day; and things have prospered so well in our hands that we have delivered Israel oftentimes. 3 And now I am old, but be you instead of me and my brethren, and go out and fight for our nation, and the help from heaven be with you.

4 Then he chose out of the country twenty thousand fighting men and horsemen, and they went forth against Cendebeus, and they rested in Modin. 5 And they arose in the morning, and went into the plain: and behold a very great army of footmen and horsemen came against them, and there was a running river between them. 6 And he* and his people pitched their camp over against them, and he saw that the people were afraid to go over the river, so he went over first. Then the men seeing him, passed over after him. 7 And he divided the people, and set the horsemen in the midst of the footmen, but the horsemen of the enemies were very numerous. 8

16, 1: John: he was afterwards surnamed Hircanus, and succeeded his father in both his dignities of high priest and prince. He conquered the Edomites and obliged them to a conformity with the Jews in religion, and destroyed the schismatical temple of the Samaritans.

16, 6: He: John.

And they sounded the holy trumpets, and Cendebeus and his army were put to flight, and there fell many of them wounded, and the rest fled into the stronghold. 9 At that time Judas, John's brother was wounded, but John pursued after them, till he came to Cedron,* which he had built. 10 And they fled even to the towers that were in the fields of Azotus, and he burnt them with fire. And there fell of them two thousand men, and he returned into Judea in peace.

Ptolemy Slays Simon and His Sons. 11 Now Ptolemy the son of Abobus was appointed captain in the plain of Jericho, and he had abundance of silver and gold, 12 for he was son-in-law of the high priest. 13 And his heart was lifted up; and he designed to make himself master of the country, and he purposed treachery against Simon and his sons, to destroy them.

14 Now Simon, as he was going through the cities that were in the country of Judea, and taking care for the good ordering of them, went down to Jericho, he and Mathathias and Judas his sons, in the year one hundred and seventy-seven, the eleventh month; the same is the month Sabath. 15 And the son of Abobus received him deceitfully into a little fortress that is called Doch, which he had built, and he made them a great feast, and hid men there. 16 And when Simon and his sons had drunk plentifully, Ptolemy and his men rose up and took their weapons, and entered into the banqueting place, and slew him, and his two sons, and some of his servants. 17 And he committed a great treachery in Israel, and rendered evil for good.

18 And Ptolemy wrote these things, and sent to the king that he should send him an army to aid him, and he would deliver him the country, and their cities, and tributes. 19 And he sent others to Gazara to kill John; and to the tribunes he sent letters to come to him, and that he would give them silver, and gold, and gifts. 20 And he sent others to take Jerusalem, and the mountain of the temple.

21 Now one running before, told John in Gazara that his father and his brethren were slain, and that he hath sent men to kill thee also. 22 But when he heard it he was exceedingly afraid, and he apprehended the men that came to kill him, and he put them to death, for he knew that they sought to ruin him.

23 And as concerning the rest of the acts of John, and his wars, and the worthy deeds which he bravely achieved, and the building of the walls which he made, and the things that he did: 24 behold these are written in the book of the days of his priesthood, from the time that he was made high priest after his father.

16, 9: Cedron: otherwise called Cedon, the city that Cendebeus was fortifying.

SECOND BOOK OF MACHABEES

The Second Book of Machabees is not a continuation of the history contained in the first Book. It relates many of the same facts more at large, and adds other remarkable particulars, omitted in the first Book, concerning the state of the Jews, both before and during the persecution of Antiochus. The author, who is not the same as that of the first Book, has given (as we learn from Chap 2, 20, etc.) a short abstract of what Jason of Cyrene had written in the five volumes concerning Judas and his brethren. He wrote in Greek, and begins with two letters sent by the Jews of Jerusalem to their brethren in Egypt.

PROLOGUE

CHAPTER 1.

Two Letters of the Jews at Jerusalem. 1 To the brethren the Jews that are throughout Egypt, the brethren, the Jews that are in Jerusalem and in the land of Judea send health and good peace. 2 May God be gracious to you, and remember his covenant that he made with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful servants; 3 and give you all a heart to worship him, and to do his will with a great heart, and a willing mind. 4 May he open your heart in his law and in his commandments, and send you peace. 5 May he hear your prayers, and be reconciled unto you, and never forsake you in the evil time. 6 And now here we are praying for you.

7 When Demetrius reigned, in the year [a] one hundred and sixty-nine, we Jews wrote to you, in the trouble and violence that came upon us in those years, after Jason withdrew himself from the holy land, and from the kingdom. 8 They burnt the gate, and shed innocent blood. Then we prayed to the Lord, and were heard, and we offered sacrifices and fine flour, and lighted the lamps, and set forth the loaves. 9 And now celebrate ye the days of Scenopegia* in the month of Casleu.

10 In the year [b] one hundred and eighty-eight, the people that is at Jerusalem, and in Judea, and the senate, and Judas, to Aristobolus, the preceptor of king Ptolemy, who is of the stock of the anointed priests, and to the Jews that are in Egypt, health and welfare. 11 Having been delivered by God out of great dangers, we give him great thanks, forasmuch as we have been in war with such a king.* 12 For he made numbers of men swarm out of Persia that have fought against us and the holy city. 13 For when the leader himself was in Persia, and with him a very great army, he fell in the temple of Nanea,* being deceived by the counsel of the priests of Nanea. 14 For Antiochus, with his friends, came to the place as though he would marry her, and that he might receive great sums of money under the title of a dowry. 15 And when the priests of Nanea had set it forth, and he with a small company had entered into the compass of the temple, they shut the temple. 16 When Antiochus was come in, and opening a secret entrance of the temple, they cast stones and slew the leader, and them that were with him, and hewed them in pieces, and cutting off their heads they threw them forth. 17 Blessed be God in all things, who hath delivered up the wicked.

1, 9: Scenopegia: the Encenia, or feast of the dedication of the altar, called here Scenopegia, or feast of tabernacles, from being celebrated with the like solemnity.

1, 11: Such a king: Antiochus Sidetes, who warred against the Jews, while Simon was yet alive (1 Mc 15, 39), and afterwards besieged Jerusalem under John Hircanus. Judas here mentioned, v 10, is not Judas Machabeus, who died in the year 188 of the kingdom of the Greeks, but either Judas the eldest son of John Hircanus, or Judas the Essene, renowned for the gift of prophecy.

1, 19: Persia: Babylonia, called here Persia, from being afterwards a part of the Persian empire.

18 Therefore whereas we purpose to keep the purification of the temple on the five and twentieth day of the month of Casleu, we thought it necessary to signify it to you, that you also may keep the day of Scenopegia, and the day of the fire, that was given when Nehemias offered sacrifice, after the temple and the altar was built. 19 For when our fathers were led into Persia,* the priests that then were worshippers of God took privately the fire from the altar, and hid it in a valley where there was a deep pit without water, and there they kept it safe, so that the place was unknown to all men. 20 But when many years had passed, and it pleased God that Nehemias should be sent by the king of Persia, he sent some of the posterity of those priests that had hid it, to seek for the fire; and as they told us, they found no fire, but thick water. 21 Then he bade them draw it up, and bring it to him. And the priest Nehemias commanded the sacrifices that were laid on, to be sprinkled with the same water, both the wood and the things that were laid upon it. 22 And when this was done, and the time came that the sun shone out, which before was in a cloud, there was a great fire kindled, so that all wondered. 23 And all the priests made prayer, while the sacrifice was consuming, Jonathan beginning, and the rest answering.

24 And the prayer of Nehemias was after this manner: O Lord God, Creator of all things, dreadful and strong, just and merciful, who alone art the good king, 25 who alone art gracious, who alone art just, and almighty, and eternal, who deliverest Israel from all evil, who didst choose the fathers and didst sanctify them: 26 receive the sacrifice for all thy people Israel, and preserve thy own portion, and sanctify it. 27 Gather together our scattered people, deliver them that are slaves to the Gentiles, and look upon them that are despised and abhorred, that the Gentiles may know that thou art our God. 28 Punish them that oppress us, and that treat us injuriously with pride. 29 Establish thy people in thy holy place,[c] as Moses hath spoken. 30 And the priests sang hymns till the sacrifice was consumed.

31 And when the sacrifice was consumed, Nehemias commanded the water that was left to be poured out upon the great stones; 32 which being done, there was kindled a flame from them, but it was consumed by the light that shined from the altar. 33 And when this matter became public, it was told to the king of Persia, that in the place where the priests that were led away had hid the fire, there appeared water with which Nehemias and they that were with him had purified the sacrifices. 34 And the king considering, and diligently examining the matter, made a temple* for it, that he might prove what had happened. 35 And when he had proved it, he gave the priests many goods and divers presents, and he took and distributed them to them with his own hand. 36 And Nehemias called this place Nephthar, which is interpreted purification. But many call it Nephi.

CHAPTER 2.

The Hidden Ark during the Captivity. 1 Now it is found in the descriptions* of Jeremias the prophet, that he commanded them that went into captivity, to take the fire, as it hath been signified, and how he gave charge to them that were carried away into captivity. 2 And how he gave them the law that they should not forget the commandments of the Lord, and that they should not err in their minds, seeing the idols of gold and silver, and the ornaments of them. 3 And with other such like speeches, he exhorted them that they would not remove the law from their heart. 4 It was also contained in the same writing, how the prophet, being warned by God, commanded that the tabernacle and the ark should accompany him, till he came forth to the mountain d where Moses went up, and saw the inheritance of God. 5 And when Jeremias came thither he found a hollow cave, and he carried in thither the tabernacle, and the ark, and the altar of incense, and so stopped the door. 6 Then some of them that followed him, came up to mark the place, but they could not find it. 7 And when Jeremias perceived it, he blamed them, saying: The place shall be unknown, till God gather together the congregation of the people, and receive them to mercy. 8 And then the Lord will show these things, and the majesty of the Lord shall appear, and there shall be a cloud as it was also showed to Moses, e and he showed it when Solomon prayed that the place might be sanctified to the great God.

9 For he treated wisdom in a magnificent manner; and like a wise man, he offered the sacrifice of the dedication, and of the finishing of the temple. 10 f And as Moses prayed to the Lord, and fire came down from heaven, and consumed the holocaust, g so Solomon also prayed, and fire came down from heaven and consumed the holocaust. 11 And Moses said: h Because the sin offering was not eaten, it was consumed. 12 So Solomon also celebrated the dedication eight days.

13 And these same things were set down in the memoirs and commentaries of Nehemias: and how he made a library, and gathered together out of the countries the books both of the prophets and of David, and the epistles of the kings, and concerning the holy gifts. 14 And in like manner Judas also gathered together all such things as were lost by the war we had, and they are in our possession. 15 Wherefore if you want these things, send some that may fetch them to you.

16 As we are then about to celebrate the purification* we have written unto you, and you shall do well if you keep the same days. 17 And we hope that God who hath delivered his people, and hath rendered to all the inheritance, and the kingdom, and the priesthood, and the sanctuary, 18 i as he promised in the law, will shortly have mercy upon us, and will gather us together from every land under heaven into the holy place. 19 For he hath delivered us out of great perils, and hath cleansed the place.

Preface of the Author. 20 Now as concerning Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, and the purification of the great temple, and the dedication of the altar; 21 as also the wars against Antiochus the Illustrious, and his son Eupator; 22 and the manifestations which came from heaven to them that behaved themselves manfully on the behalf of the Jews, so that, being but a few, they made themselves masters of the whole country, and put to flight the barbarous multitude, [23] and recovered again the most renowned temple in all the world, and delivered the city, and restored the laws that were abolished, the Lord with all clemency showing mercy to them, [24] and all such things as have been comprised in five books by Jason of Cyrene, we have attempted to abridge in one book. [25] For considering the multitude of books, and the difficulty that they find that desire to undertake the narrations of histories, because of the multitude of the matter, [26] we have taken care for those indeed that are willing to read, that it might be a pleasure of mind; and for the studious, that they may more easily commit to memory; and that all that read might receive profit. [27] And as to ourselves indeed, in undertaking this work of abridging, we have taken in hand no easy task,* yea rather a business full of watching and sweat. [28] But as they that prepare a feast, and seek to satisfy the will of others, for the sake of many we willingly undergo the labor. [29] Leaving to the authors the exact handling of every particular, and as for ourselves, according to the plan proposed, studying to be brief. [30] For as the master builder of a new house must have care of the whole building, but he that taketh care to paint it, must seek out fit things for the adorning of it, so must it be judged for us. [31] For to collect all that is to be known, to put the discourse in order, and curiously to discuss every particular point, is the duty of the author of a history. [32] But to pursue brevity of speech, and to avoid nice declarations of things, is to be granted to him that maketh an abridgment. [33] Here then we will begin the narration. Let this be enough by way of a preface, for it is a foolish thing to make a long prologue, and to be short in the story itself.

I: THE PERSECUTION OF THE JEWS

1. Seleucus IV Philopator

CHAPTER 3.

An Attempt To Plunder the Temple. [1] Therefore when the holy city was inhabited with all peace, and the laws as yet were very well kept, because of the godliness of Onias the high priest, and the hatred his soul had of evil, [2] it came to pass that even the kings themselves and the princes esteemed the place worthy of the highest honor, and glorified the temple with very great gifts, [3] so that Seleucus* king of Asia allowed out of his revenues all the charges belonging to the ministry of the sacrifices.

[4] But one Simon of the tribe of Benjamin, who was appointed overseer of the temple, strove in opposition to the high priest, to bring about some unjust thing in the city. [5] And when he could not overcome Onias, he went to Apollonius the son of Tharseas, who at that time was governor of Celesyria and Phœnicia, [6] and told him that the treasury in Jerusalem was full of immense sums of money, and the common store was infinite, which did not belong to the account of the sacrifices; and that it was possible to bring all into the king's hands.

[7] Now when Apollonius had given the king notice concerning the money that he was told of, he called for Heliodorus, who had the charge over his affairs, and sent him with commission to bring him the foresaid money. [8] So Heliodorus forthwith began his journey, under a color of visiting the cities of Celesyria and Phœnicia, but indeed to fulfill the king's purpose.

[9] And when he was come to Jerusalem, and had been courteously received in the city by the high priest, he told him what information had been given concerning the money, and declared the cause for which he was come, and asked if these things were so indeed. [10] Then the high priest told him that these were sums deposited, and provisions for the subsistence of the widows and the fatherless; [11] and that some part of that which wicked Simon had given intelligence of, belonged to Hircanus son of Tobias, a man of great dignity, and that the whole was four hundred talents of silver, and two hundred of gold; [12] but that to deceive them who had trusted to the place and temple which is honored throughout the whole world, for the reverence and holiness of it, was a thing which could not by any means be done. 13 But he, by reason of the orders he had received from the king, said that by all means the money must be carried to the king.

14 So on the day he had appointed, Heliodorus entered in to order this matter. But there was no small terror throughout the whole city. 15 And the priests prostrated themselves before the altar in their priests' vestments, and called upon him from heaven, who made the law concerning things given to be kept, that he would preserve them safe for them that had deposited them. 16 Now whosoever saw the countenance of the high priest, was wounded in heart, for his face and the changing of his color declared the inward sorrow of his mind. 17 For the man was so compassed with sadness and horror of the body, that it was manifest to them that beheld him, what sorrow he had in his heart. 18 Others also came flocking together out of their houses, praying and making public supplication, because the place was like to come into contempt. 19 And the women, girded with haircloth about their breasts, came together in the streets. And the virgins also that were shut up, came forth, some to Onias, and some to the walls, and others looked out of the windows. 20 And all holding up their hands towards heaven, made supplication. 21 For the expectation of the mixed multitude, and of the high priest who was in an agony, would have moved anyone to pity. 22 And these indeed called upon almighty God, to preserve the things that had been committed to them, safe and sure for those that had committed them.

Heliodorus Is Struck by God. 23 But Heliodorus executed that which he had resolved on, himself being present in the same place with his guard about the treasury. 24 But the spirit of the almighty God gave a great evidence of his presence, so that all that had presumed to obey him, falling down by the power of God, were struck with fainting and dread. 25 For there appeared to them a horse with a terrible rider upon him, adorned with a very rich covering; and he ran fiercely and struck Heliodorus with his fore feet, and he that sat upon him seemed to have armor of gold. 26 Moreover there appeared two other young men beautiful and strong, bright and glorious, and in comely apparel, who stood by him on either side, and scourged him without ceasing with many stripes. 27 And Heliodorus suddenly fell to the ground, and they took him up covered with great darkness, and having put him into a litter they carried him out. 28 So he that came with many servants, and all his guard into the aforesaid treasury, was carried out, no one being able to help him, the manifest power of God being known. 29 And he indeed by the power of God lay speechless, and without all hope of recovery. 30 But they praised the Lord because he had glorified his place; and the temple, that a little before was full of fear and trouble, when the almighty Lord appeared, was filled with joy and gladness.

31 Then some of the friends of Heliodorus forthwith begged of Onias, that he would call upon the Most High to grant him his life, who was ready to give up the ghost. 32 So the high priest considering that the king might perhaps suspect that some mischief had been done to Heliodorus by the Jews, offered a sacrifice of health for the recovery of the man. 33 And when the high priest was praying, the same young men in the same clothing stood by Heliodorus, and said to him: Give thanks to Onias the priest, because for his sake the Lord hath granted thee life. 34 And thou having been scourged by God, declare unto all men the great works and the power of God. And having spoken thus, they appeared no more.

35 So Heliodorus after he had offered a sacrifice to God, and made great vows to him that had granted him life, and given thanks to Onias, taking his troops with him, returned to the king. 36 And he testified to all men the works of the great God, which he had seen with his own eyes.

37 And when the king asked Heliodorus, who might be a fit man to be sent yet once more to Jerusalem, he said: 38 If thou hast any enemy or traitor to thy kingdom, send him thither, and thou shalt receive him again scourged, if so be he escape, for there is undoubtedly in that place a certain power of God. 39 For he that hath his dwelling in the heavens, is the visitor and protector of that place, and he striketh and destroyeth them that come to do evil to it. 40 And the things concerning Heliodorus and the keeping of the treasury fell out in this manner.

CHAPTER 4.

Onias Is Accused of Treachery. 1 But Simon, of whom we spoke before, who was the betrayer of the money and of his country, spoke ill of Onias, as though he had incited Heliodorus to do these things, and had been the promoter of evils. 2 And he presumed to call him a traitor to the kingdom, who provided for the city, and defended his nation, and was zealous for the law of God. 3 But when the enmities proceeded so far, that murders also were committed by some of Simon's friends, 4 Onias considering the danger of this contention, and that Apollonius, who was the governor of Celesyria and Phœnicia, was outrageous, which increased the malice of Simon, went to the king, 5 not to be an accuser of his countrymen, but with a view to the common good of all the people. 6 For he saw that, except the king took care, it was impossible that matters should be settled in peace, or that Simon would cease from his folly.

2. Antiochus IV Epiphanes

7 But after the death of Seleucus, when Antiochus, who was called the Illustrious, had taken possession of the kingdom, Jason the brother of Onias ambitiously sought the high priesthood, 8 j and went to the king, promising him three hundred and sixty talents of silver, and out of other revenues fourscore talents. 9 Besides this he promised also a hundred and fifty more, if he might have license to set him up a place for exercise and a place for youth, and to entitle them that were at Jerusalem, Antiochians. 10 Which when the king had granted, and he had gotten the rule into his hands, forthwith he began to bring over his countrymen to the fashion of the heathens. 11 And abolishing those things which had been decreed of special favor by the kings in behalf of the Jews, by the means of John the father of that Eupolemus, who went ambassador to Rome to make amity and alliance, he disannulled the lawful ordinances of the citizens, and brought in fashions that were perverse. 12 For he had the boldness to set up, k under the very castle, a place of exercise, and to put all the choicest youths in brothel houses. 13 Now this was not the beginning, but an increase and progress of heathenish and foreign manners, through the abominable and unheard-of wickedness of Jason, that impious wretch and no priest, 14 insomuch that the priests were not now occupied about the offices of the altar, but despising the temple and neglecting the sacrifices, hastened to be partakers of the games, and of the unlawful allowance thereof, and of the exercise of the discus. 15 And setting nought by the honors of their fathers, they esteemed the Grecian glories for the best: 16 for the sake of which they incurred a dangerous contention, and followed earnestly their ordinances, and in all things they coveted to be like them, who were their enemies and murderers. 17 For acting wickedly against the laws of God doth not pass unpunished, but this the time following will declare.

18 Now when the game that was used every fifth year was kept at Tyre, the king being present, 19 the wicked Jason sent from Jerusalem sinful men to carry three hundred didrachmas of silver for the sacrifice of Hercules; but the bearers thereof desired it might not be bestowed on the sacrifices, because it was not necessary, but might be deputed for other charges. 20 So the money was appointed by him that sent it to the sacrifice of Hercules; but because of them that carried it was employed for the making of galleys.

21 Now when Apollonius the son of Mnestheus was sent into Egypt to treat with the nobles of king Philometor, and Antiochus understood that he was wholly excluded from the affairs of the kingdom, consulting his own interest, he departed thence and came to Joppe, and from thence to Jerusalem, 22 where he was received in a magnificent manner by Jason and the city, and came in with torch lights and with praises, and from thence he returned with his army into Phœnicia.

Menelaus Is Made High Priest. 23 Three years afterwards Jason sent Menelaus, brother of the aforesaid Simon, to carry money to the king, and to bring answers from him concerning certain necessary affairs. 24 But he being recommended to the king, when he had magnified the appearance of his power, got the high priesthood for himself, by offering more than Jason by three hundred talents of silver.

j 175 B. C.—k 1 Mc 1, 15.

25 So having received the king's mandate, he returned bringing nothing worthy of the high priesthood, but having the mind of a cruel tyrant and the rage of a savage beast. 26 Then Jason, who had undermined his own brother, being himself undermined, was driven out a fugitive into the country of the Ammonites.

27 So Menelaus got the principality; but as for the money he had promised to the king, he took no care, when Sostratus the governor of the castle called for it, 28 for to him appertained the gathering of the taxes; wherefore they were both called before the king. 29 And Menelaus was removed from the priesthood, Lysimachus his brother succeeding, and Sostratus was made governor of the Cyprians.

30 When these things were in doing, it fell out that they of Tharsus and Mallos raised a sedition, because they were given for a gift to Antiochis, the king's concubine. 31 The king therefore went in all haste to appease them, leaving Andronicus, one of his nobles, for his deputy.

32 Then Menelaus supposing that he had found a convenient time, having stolen certain vessels of gold out of the temple, gave them to Andronicus, and others he had sold at Tyre, and in the neighboring cities; 33 which when Onias understood most certainly, he reproved him, keeping himself in a safe place at Antioch beside Daphne. 34 Whereupon Menelaus coming to Andronicus, desired him to kill Onias. And he went to Onias, and gave him his right hand with an oath, and (though he were suspected by him), persuaded him to come forth out of the sanctuary, and immediately slew him, without any regard to justice. 35 For which cause not only the Jews, but also the other nations, conceived indignation, and were much grieved for the unjust murder of so great a man.

36 And when the king was come back from the places of Cilicia, the Jews that were at Antioch and also the Greeks went to him, complaining of the unjust murder of Onias. 37 Antiochus therefore was grieved in his mind for Onias, and being moved to pity, shed tears, remembering the sobriety and modesty of the deceased. 38 And being inflamed to anger, he commanded Andronicus to be stripped of his purple, and to be led about through all the city; and that in the same place wherein he had committed the impiety against Onias, the sacrilegious wretch should be put to death, the Lord repaying him his deserved punishment.

39 Now when many sacrileges had been committed by Lysimachus in the temple by the counsel of Menelaus, and the rumor of it was spread abroad, the multitude gathered themselves together against Lysimachus, a great quantity of gold being already carried away. 40 Wherefore the multitude making an insurrection, and their minds being filled with anger, Lysimachus armed about three thousand men, and began to use violence, one Tyrannus being captain, a man far gone both in age and in madness. 41 But when they perceived the attempt of Lysimachus, some caught up stones, some strong clubs, and some threw ashes upon Lysimachus, 42 and many of them were wounded, and some struck down to the ground, but all were put to flight. And as for the sacrilegious fellow himself, they slew him beside the treasury.

43 Now concerning these matters, an accusation was laid against Menelaus. 44 And when the king was come to Tyre, three men were sent from the ancients to plead the cause before him. 45 But Menelaus being convicted, promised Ptolemy* to give him much money to persuade the king to favor him. 46 So Ptolemy went to the king in a certain court where he was, as it were to cool himself, and brought him to be of another mind. 47 So Menelaus who was guilty of all the evil, was acquitted by him of the accusations. And those poor men, who, if they had pleaded their cause even before Scythians, should have been judged innocent, were condemned to death. 48 Thus they that prosecuted the cause for the city, and for the people, and the sacred vessels, did soon suffer unjust punishment. 49 Wherefore even the Tyrians being moved with indignation, were liberal towards their burial. 50 And so through the covetousness of them that were in power, Menelaus continued in authority, increasing in malice to the betraying of the citizens.

CHAPTER 5.

Jason's Wickedness and End. 1 At the same time Antiochus prepared for a second journey into Egypt. 2 And it came to pass that through the whole city of Jerusalem for the space of forty days there were seen horsemen running in the air, in gilded raiment, and armed with spears, like bands of soldiers; 3 and horses set in order by ranks, running one against another, with the shaking of shields, and a multitude of men in helmets, with drawn swords, and casting of darts, and glittering of golden armor, and of harnesses of all sorts. 4 Wherefore all men prayed that these prodigies might turn to good.

5 Now when there was gone forth a false rumor, as though Antiochus had been dead, Jason taking with him no fewer than a thousand men, suddenly assaulted the city; and though the citizens ran together to the wall, the city at length was taken, and Menelaus fled into the castle. 6 But Jason slew his countrymen without mercy, not considering that prosperity against one's own kindred is a very great evil, thinking they had been enemies, and not citizens, whom he conquered. 7 Yet he did not get the principality, but received confusion at the end for the reward of his treachery, and fled again into the country of the Ammonites.

8 At the last having been shut up by Aretas the king of the Arabians, in order for his destruction, flying from city to city, hated by all men, as a forsaker of the laws, and execrable, as an enemy of his country and countrymen, he was thrust out into Egypt. 9 And he that had driven many out of their country, perished in a strange land, going to Lacedemon, as if for kindred sake he should have refuge there. 10 But he that had cast out many unburied, was himself cast forth both unlamented and unburied, neither having foreign burial, nor being partaker of the sepulchre of his fathers.

Jerusalem Taken and Temple Plundered. 11 Now when these things were done, the king suspected that the Jews would forsake the alliance. Whereupon departing out of Egypt with a furious mind, he took the city by force of arms, 12 and commanded the soldiers to kill and not to spare any that came in their way, and to go up into the houses to slay. 13 Thus there was a slaughter of young and old, a destruction of women and children, and killing of virgins and infants. 14 And there were slain in the space of three whole days fourscore thousand, forty thousand were made prisoners, and as many sold.

15 But this was not enough; he presumed also to enter into the temple, the most holy in all the world, Menelaus, that traitor to the laws and to his country, being his guide. 16 And taking in his wicked hands the holy vessels, which were given by other kings and cities for the ornament and the glory of the place, he unworthily handled and profaned them. 17 Thus Antiochus going astray in mind, did not consider that God was angry for a while, because of the sins of the inhabitants of the city, and therefore this contempt had happened to the place. 18 Otherwise had they not been involved in many sins, l as Heliodorus, who was sent by king Seleucus to rob the treasury, so this man also, as soon as he had come, had been forthwith scourged, and put back from his presumption. 19 But God did not choose the people for the place's sake, but the place for the people's sake. 20 And therefore the place also itself was made partaker of the evils of the people; but afterwards shall communicate in the good things thereof, and as it was forsaken in the wrath of almighty God, shall be exalted again with great glory, when the great Lord shall be reconciled.

21 So when Antiochus had taken away out of the temple a thousand and eight hundred talents, he went back in all haste to Antioch, thinking through pride that he might now make the land navigable, and the sea passable on foot, such was the haughtiness of his mind. 22 He left also governors to afflict the people: at Jerusalem, Philip, a Phrygian by birth, but in manners more barbarous than he that set him there: 23 and in Gazarim, Andronicus and Menelaus, who bore a more heavy hand upon the citizens than the rest.

24 And whereas he was set against the Jews, he sent that hateful prince Apollonius with an army of two and twenty thousand men, commanding him to kill all that were of perfect age, and to sell the women and the younger sort, 25 who when he was come to Jerusalem, pretending peace, rested till the holy day of the sabbath, and then the Jews keeping holiday, he commanded his men to take arms. 26 And he slew all that were come forth to see; and running through the city with armed men, he destroyed a very great multitude. 27 But Judas Machabeus, who was the tenth, had withdrawn himself into a desert place, and there lived amongst wild beasts in the mountains with his company; and they continued feeding on herbs, that they might not be partakers of the pollution.

CHAPTER 6.

Antiochus Abolishes the Jewish Law. 1 But not long after the king sent a certain old man of Antioch, to compel the Jews to depart from the laws of their fathers and of God, 2 and to defile the temple that was in Jerusalem, and to call it the temple of Jupiter Olympius; and that in Gazarim* of Jupiter Hospitalis, according as they were that inhabited the place. 3 And very bad was the invasion of evils and grievous to all. 4 For the temple was full of the riot and revellings of the Gentiles, and of men lying with lewd women. And women thrust themselves of their accord into the holy places, and brought in things that were not lawful. 5 The altar also was filled with unlawful things, which were forbidden by the laws. 6 And neither were the sabbaths kept, nor the solemn days of the fathers observed, neither did any man plainly profess himself to be a Jew. 7 But they were led by bitter constraint on the king's birthday to the sacrifices; and when the feast of Bacchus was kept, they were compelled to go about crowned with ivy in honor of Bacchus. 8 And there went out a decree into the neighboring cities of the Gentiles, by the suggestion of the Ptolemeans, that they also should act in like manner against the Jews, to oblige them to sacrifice; 9 and whosoever would not conform themselves to the ways of the Gentiles, should be put to death. Then was misery to be seen. 10 m For two women were accused to have circumcised their children, whom, when they had openly led about through the city with the infants hanging at their breasts, they threw down headlong from the walls. 11 And others that had met together in caves that were near, and were keeping the sabbath day privately, being discovered by Philip,* were burnt with fire, because they made a conscience to help themselves with their hands, by reason of the religious observance of the day.

12 Now I beseech those that shall read this book, that they be not shocked at these calamities, but that they consider the things that happened, not as being for the destruction, but for the correction of our nation. 13 For it is a token of great goodness when sinners are not suffered to go on in their ways for a long time, but are presently punished. 14 For, not as with other nations (whom the Lord patiently expecteth, that when the day of judgment shall come, he may punish them in the fullness of their sins), 15 doth he also deal with us, so as to suffer our sins to come to their height, and then take vengeance on us. 16 And therefore he never withdraweth his mercy from us, but though he chastise his people with adversity, he forsaketh them not. 17 But let this suffice in a few words for a warning to the readers. And now we must come to the narration.

Eleazar Is Martyred. 18 Eleazar one of the chief of the scribes, a man advanced in years, and of a comely countenance, was pressed to open his mouth to eat swine's flesh. 19 But he, choosing rather a most glorious death than a hateful life, went forward voluntarily to the torment. 20 And considering in what manner he was come to it, patiently bearing, he determined not to do any unlawful things for the love of life. 21 But they that stood by, being moved with wicked pity,* for the old friendship they had with the man, taking him aside, desired that flesh might be brought, which it was lawful for him to eat, that he might make as if he had eaten, as the king had commanded, of the flesh of the sacrifice; 22 that by so doing he might be delivered from death. And for the sake of their old friendship with the man they did him this courtesy. 23 But he began to consider the dignity of his age, and his ancient years, and the inbred honor of his grey head, and his good life and conversation from a child; and he answered without delay, according to the ordinances of the holy law made by God, saying, that he would rather be sent into the other world. 24 For it doth not become our age, said he, to dissemble. Whereby many young persons might think that Eleazar, at the age of fourscore and ten years, was gone over to the life of the heathens. 25 And so they, through my dissimulation, and for a little time of a corruptible life, should be deceived, and hereby I should bring a stain and a curse upon my old age. 26 For though, for the present time, I should be delivered from the punishments of men, yet should I not escape the hand of the Almighty neither alive nor dead. 27 Wherefore by departing manfully out of this life, I shall show myself worthy of my old age, 28 and I shall leave an example of fortitude to young men, if with a ready mind and constancy I suffer an honorable death, for the most venerable and most holy laws. And having spoken thus, he was forthwith carried to execution.

29 And they that led him, and had been a little before more mild, were changed to wrath for the words he had spoken, which they thought were uttered out of arrogancy. 30 But when he was now ready to die with the stripes, he groaned, and said: O Lord, who hast the holy knowledge, thou knowest manifestly that whereas I might be delivered from death, I suffer grievous pains in body, but in soul am well content to suffer these things because I fear thee. 31 Thus did this man die, leaving not only to young men, but also to the whole nation, the memory of his death for an example of virtue and fortitude.

Mother and Seven Sons Martyred. 1 It came to pass also, that seven brethren, together with their mother, were apprehended, and compelled by the king to eat swine's flesh against the law, for which end they were tormented with whips and scourges. 2 But one of them, who was the eldest, said thus: What wouldst thou ask, or learn of us? We are ready to die rather than to transgress the laws of God, received from our fathers. 3 Then the king being angry commanded fryingpans and brazen caldrons to be made hot, which forthwith being heated, 4 he commanded to cut out the tongue of him that had spoken first, and the skin of his head being drawn off, to chop off also the extremities of his hands and feet, the rest of his brethren and his mother looking on. 5 And when he was now maimed in all parts, he commanded him, being yet alive, to be brought to the fire, and to be fried in the fryingpan. And while he was suffering therein long torments, the rest, together with the mother, exhorted one another to die manfully, 6 saying: The Lord God will look upon the truth, and will take pleasure in us, n as Moses declared in the profession of the canticle: And in his servants he will take pleasure.

7 So when the first was dead after this manner, they brought the next to make him a mockingstock. And when they had pulled off the skin of his head with the hair, they asked him if he would eat, before he were punished throughout the whole body in every limb. 8 But he answered in his own language, and said: I will not do it. Wherefore he also in the next place received the torments of the first; 9 and when he was at the last gasp, he said thus: Thou indeed, O most wicked man, destroyest us out of this present life, but the King of the world will raise us up, who die for his laws, in the resurrection of eternal life.

10 After him the third was made a mockingstock, and when he was required, he quickly put forth his tongue, and courageously stretched out his hands, 11 and said with confidence: These I have from heaven, but for the laws of God I now despise them, because I hope to receive them again from him. 12 So that the king, and they that were with him, wondered at the young man's courage, because he esteemed the torments as nothing.

13 And after he was thus dead, they tormented the fourth in the like manner. 14 And when he was now ready to die, he spoke thus: It is better, being put to death by men, to look for hope from God, to be raised up again by him, for, as to thee, thou shalt have no resurrection unto life.

15 And when they had brought the fifth, they tormented him. But he looking upon the king, 16 said: Whereas thou hast power among men, though thou art corruptible, thou dost what thou wilt, but think not that our nation is forsaken by God. 17 But stay patiently a while, and thou shalt see his great power, in what manner he will torment thee and thy seed.

18 After him they brought the sixth, and he being ready to die, spoke thus: Be not deceived without cause, for we suffer these things for ourselves, having sinned against our God, and things worthy of admiration are done to us. 19 But do not think that thou shalt escape unpunished, for that thou hast attempted to fight against God.

20 Now the mother was to be admired above measure, and worthy to be remembered by good men, who beheld her seven sons slain in the space of one day, and bore it with a good courage, for the hope that she had in God. 21 And she bravely exhorted every one of them in her own language, being filled with wisdom. And joining a man's heart to a woman's thought, 22 she said to them: I know not how you were formed in my womb, for I neither gave you breath, nor soul, nor life, neither did I frame the limbs of every one of you. 23 But the Creator of the world, that formed the nativity of man, and that found out the origin of all, he will restore to you again in his mercy both breath and life, as now you despise yourselves for the sake of his laws. 24 Now Antiochus, thinking himself despised, and withal despising the voice of the upbraider, when the youngest was yet alive, did not only exhort him by words, but also assured him with an oath that he would make him a rich and a happy man, and, if he would turn from the laws of his fathers, would take him for a friend, and furnish him with things necessary. 25 But when the young man was not moved with these things, the king called the mother, and counselled her to deal with the young man to save his life. 26 And when he had exhorted her with many words, she promised that she would counsel her son. 27 So bending herself towards him, mocking the cruel tyrant, she said in her own language: My son, have pity upon me, that bore thee nine months in my womb, and gave thee suck three years, and nourished thee, and brought thee up unto this age. 28 I beseech thee, my son, look upon heaven and earth, and all that is in them, and consider that God made them out of nothing, and mankind also, 29 so thou shalt not fear this tormentor, but being made a worthy partner with thy brethren, receive death, that in that mercy I may receive thee again with thy brethren.

30 While she was yet speaking these words, the young man said: For whom do you stay? I will not obey the commandment of the king, but the commandment of the law, which was given us by Moses. 31 But thou that has been the author of all mischief against the Hebrews, shalt not escape the hand of God. 32 For we suffer thus for our sins. 33 And though the Lord our God is angry with us a little while for our chastisement and correction, yet he will be reconciled again to his servants. 34 But thou, O wicked and of all men most flagitious, be not lifted up without cause with vain hopes whilst thou art raging against his servants. 35 For thou hast not yet escaped the judgment of the almighty God, who beholdeth all things. 36 For my brethren, having now undergone a short pain, are under the covenant of eternal life; but thou by the judgment of God shalt receive just punishment for thy pride. 37 But I, like my brethren, offer up my life and my body for the laws of our fathers, calling upon God to be speedily merciful to our nation, and that thou by torments and stripes mayest confess that he alone is God. 38 But in me and in my brethren the wrath of the Almighty, which hath justly been brought upon all our nation, shall cease. 39 Then the king being incensed with anger, raged against him more cruelly than all the rest, taking it grievously that he was mocked. 40 So this man also died undefiled, wholly trusting in the Lord.

41 And last of all after the sons the mother also was consumed. 42 But now there is enough said of the sacrifices, and of the excessive cruelties.

II: THE VICTORIES OF THE JEWS

1. Antiochus IV Epiphanes

CHAPTER 8.

Judas Machabeus and His Victories. 1 But Judas Machabeus, and they that were with him, went privately into the towns, and calling together their kinsmen and friends, and taking unto them such as continued in the Jews' religion, they assembled six thousand men. 2 And they called upon the Lord that he would look upon his people that was trodden down by all, and would have pity on the temple that was defiled by the wicked; 3 that he would have pity also upon the city that was destroyed, that was ready to be made even with the ground, and would hear the voice of the blood that cried to him; 4 that he would remember also the most unjust deaths of innocent children, and the blasphemies offered to his name, and would show his indignation on this occasion. 5 Now when Machabeus had gathered a multitude, he could not be withstood by the heathens, for the wrath of the Lord was turned into mercy. 6 So coming unawares upon the towns and cities, he set them on fire, and taking possession of the most commodious places, he made no small slaughter of the enemies; 7 and especially in the nights he went upon these expeditions, and the fame of his valor was spread abroad everywhere.

8 Then Philip, seeing* that the man gained ground by little and little, and that things for the most part succeeded prosperously with him, wrote to Ptolemy the governor of Celesyria and Phœnicia, to send aid to the king's affairs. 9 And he with all speed sent Nicanor the son of Patroclus, one of his special friends, giving him no fewer than twenty thousand* armed men of different nations, to root out the whole race of the Jews, joining also with him Gorgias, a good soldier and of great experience in matters of war. 10 And Nicanor purposed to raise for the king the tribute of two thousand talents, that was to be given to the Romans, by making so much money of the captive Jews. 11 Wherefore he sent immediately to the cities upon the seacoast, to invite men together to buy up the Jewish slaves, promising that they should have ninety slaves for one talent, not reflecting on the vengeance, which was to follow him from the Almighty.

12 Now when Judas found that Nicanor was coming, he imparted to the Jews that were with him, that the enemy was at hand. 13 And some of them being afraid, and distrusting the justice of God, fled away. 14 Others sold all that they had left, and withal besought the Lord, that he would deliver them from the wicked Nicanor, who had sold them before he came near them; 15 and if not for their sakes, yet for the covenant that he had made with their fathers, and for the sake of his holy and glorious name that was invoked upon them. 16 But Machabeus calling together seven thousand* that were with him, exhorted them not to be reconciled to the enemies, nor to fear the multitude of the enemies who came wrongfully against them, but to fight manfully, 17 setting before their eyes the injury they had unjustly done the holy place, and also the injury they had done to the city, which had been shamefully abused, besides their destroying the ordinances of the fathers. 18 For, said he, they trust in their weapons, and in their boldness, but we trust in the Almighty Lord, who at a beck can utterly destroy both them that come against us and the whole world. 19 Moreover he put them in mind also of the helps their fathers had received from God, o and how under Sennacherib a hundred and eighty-five thousand had been destroyed, 20 and of the battle that they had fought against the Galatians* in Babylonia, how they, being in all but six thousand, when it came to the point, and the Macedonians their companions were at a stand, slew a hundred and twenty thousand, because of the help they had from heaven, and for this they received many favors. 21 With these words they were greatly encouraged, and disposed even to die for the laws and their country.

22 So he appointed his brethren captains over each division of his army, Simon, and Joseph, and Jonathan, giving to each one fifteen hundred men. 23 And after the holy Book had been read to them by Esdras, and he had given them for a watchword, The Help of God, him-

8, 9: Twenty thousand: the whole number of the forces sent at that time into Judea, was forty thousand footmen, and seven thousand horsemen, 1 Mc 3, 30. But only twenty thousand are here taken notice of, because there were no more with Nicanor at the time of the battle.

8, 16: Seven thousand: in the Greek it is six thousand. But then three thousand of them had no arms. 1 Mc 4, 6.

self leading the first band, he joined battle with Nicanor. 24 And the Almighty being their helper, they slew above nine thousand* men; and having wounded and disabled the greater part of Nicanor's army, they obliged them to fly. 25 And they took the money of them that came to buy them, and they pursued them on every side. 26 But they came back for want of time, for it was the day before the sabbath, and therefore they did not continue the pursuit. 27 But when they had gathered together their arms and their spoils, they kept the sabbath, blessing the Lord who had delivered them that day, distilling the beginning of mercy upon them. 28 Then after the sabbath they divided the spoils to the feeble and the orphans and the widows, and the rest they took for themselves and their servants. 29 When this was done, and they had all made a common supplication, they besought the merciful Lord to be reconciled to his servants unto the end.

The Spoils Are Divided. 30 Moreover they slew above twenty thousand of them that were with Timotheus and Bacchides who fought against them, and they made themselves masters of the high strongholds: and they divided amongst them many spoils, giving equal portions to the feeble, the fatherless and the widows, yea and the aged also. 31 And when they had carefully gathered together their arms, they laid them all up in convenient places, and the residue of their spoils they carried to Jerusalem. 32 They slew also Philarches who was with Timotheus, a wicked man, who had many ways afflicted the Jews. 33 And when they kept the feast of the victory at Jerusalem, they burnt Callisthenes, that had set fire to the holy gates, who had taken refuge in a certain house, rendering to him a worthy reward for his impieties.

34 But as for that most wicked man Nicanor, who had brought a thousand merchants to the sale of the Jews, 35 being through the help of the Lord brought down by them, of whom he had made no account, laying aside his garment of glory*, fleeing through the midland country, he came alone to Antioch, being rendered very unhappy by the destruction of his army. 36 And he that had promised to levy the tribute for the Romans by the means of the captives of Jerusalem, now professed that the Jews had God for their protector, and therefore they could not be hurt, because they followed the laws appointed by him.

CHAPTER 9.

The Wretched End of Antiochus. 1 At that time Antiochus returned with dishonor out of Persia. 2 For he had entered into the city called Persepolis,* and attempted to rob the temple, and to oppress the city; but the multitude running together to arms, put them to flight. And so it fell out that Antiochus being put to flight returned with disgrace.

3 Now when he was come about Ecbatana, he received the news of what had happened to Nicanor and Timotheus. 4 And swelling with anger he thought to revenge upon the Jews the injury done by them that had put him to flight. And therefore he commanded his chariot to be driven, without stopping in his journey, the judgment of heaven urging him forward, because he had spoken so proudly, that he would come to Jerusalem, and make it a common burying place of the Jews.

5 p But the Lord the God of Israel, that seeth all things, struck him with an incurable and an invisible plague. For as soon as he had ended these words, a dreadful pain in his bowels came upon him, and bitter torments of the inner parts. 6 And indeed very justly, seeing he had tormented the bowels of others with many and new torments, albeit he by no means ceased from his malice. 7 Moreover being filled with pride, breathing out fire in his rage against the Jews, and commanding the matter to be hastened, it happened as he was going with violence that he fell from the chariot, so that his limbs were much pained by a grievous bruising of the body. 8 Thus he that seemed to himself to command even the waves of the sea, being proud above the condition of man, and to weigh the heights of the mountains in a balance, now being cast down to the ground, was carried in a litter, bearing witness to the manifest power of God in himself, [9] so that worms swarmed out of the body of this man, and whilst he lived in sorrow and pain, his flesh fell off, and the filthiness of his smell was noisome to the army. [10] And the man that thought a little before he could reach to the stars of heaven, no man could endure to carry, for the intolerable stench.

[11] And by this means, being brought from his great pride, he began to come to the knowledge of himself, being admonished by the scourge of God, his pains increasing every moment. [12] And when he himself could not now abide his own stench, he spoke thus: It is just to be subject to God, and that a mortal man should not equal himself to God. [13] Then this wicked man prayed to the Lord, of whom he was not like to obtain mercy.* [14] And the city, to which he was going in haste to lay it even with the ground and to make it a common burying place, he now desireth to make free. [15] And the Jews whom he said he would not account worthy to be so much as buried, but would give them up to be devoured by the birds and wild beasts, and would utterly destroy them with their children, he now promiseth to make equal with the Athenians. [16] The holy temple also which before he had spoiled, he promiseth to adorn with goodly gifts, and to multiply the holy vessels, and to allow out of his revenues the charges pertaining to the sacrifices. [17] Yea also, that he would become a Jew himself, and would go through every place of the earth, and declare the power of God.

Antiochus Writes to the Jews. [18] But his pains not ceasing (for the just judgment of God was come upon him), despairing of life he wrote to the Jews in the manner of a supplication a letter in these words: [19] To his very good subjects the Jews, Antiochus king and ruler wisheth much health, and welfare, and happiness. [20] If you and your children are well, and if all matters go with you to your mind, we give very great thanks. [21] As for me, being infirm, but yet kindly remembering you, returning out of the places of Persia, and being taken with a grievous disease, I thought it necessary to take care for the common good; [22] not distrusting my life, but having great hope to escape the sickness. [23] But considering that my father also, at what time [q] he led an army into the higher countries, appointed who should reign after him, [24] to the end that if anything contrary to expectation should fall out, or any bad tidings should be brought, they that were in the countries, knowing to whom the whole government was left, might not be troubled; [25] moreover, considering that neighboring princes and borderers wait for opportunities, and expect what shall be the event, I have appointed my son Antiochus king, whom I often recommended to many of you, when I went into the higher provinces, and I have written to him what I have joined here below. [26] I pray you therefore, and request of you, that remembering favors both public and private, you will every man of you continue to be faithful to me and to my son. [27] For I trust that he will behave with moderation and humanity, and following my intentions, will be gracious unto you.

[28] Thus the murderer and blasphemer, being grievously struck, as himself had treated others, [r] died a miserable death in a strange country among the mountains. [29] But Philip that was brought up with him, carried away his body; and out of fear of the son of Antiochus, went into Egypt to Ptolemy Philometor.

CHAPTER 10.

Judas Purifies the Temple and City. [1] But Machabeus,[s] and they that were with him, by the protection of the Lord, recovered the temple and the city again. [2] But he threw down the altars which the heathens had set up in the streets, as also the temples of the idols. [3] And having purified the temple, they made another altar; and taking fire out of the fiery stones, they offered sacrifices after two years, and set forth incense, and lamps, and the loaves of proposition. [4] And when they had done these things, they besought the Lord, lying prostrate on the ground, that they might no more fall into such evils; but if they should at any time sin, that they might be chastised by him more gently, and not be delivered up to barbarians and blasphemous men. [5] Now upon the same day that the temple had been polluted by the strangers, on the very same day it was cleansed again, to wit, on the five and twentieth day of the month of Casleu.

6 And they kept eight days with joy, after the manner of the feast of the tabernacles, remembering that not long before they had kept the feast of the tabernacles when they were in the mountains, and in dens like wild beasts. 7 Therefore they now carried boughs, and green branches, and palms for him that had given them good success in cleansing his place. 8 And they ordained by a common statute, and decree, that all the nation of the Jews should keep those days every year.

9 And this was the end of Antiochus that was called the Illustrious.

2. Antiochus V Eupator

10 But now we will relate the acts of Eupator the son of that wicked Antiochus, abridging the account of the evils that happened in the wars. 11 For when he was come to the crown, he appointed over the affairs of his realm one Lysias, general of the army of Phœnicia and Syria. 12 For Ptolemy that was called Macer, was determined to be strictly just to the Jews, and especially by reason of the wrong that had been done them, and to deal peaceably with them. 13 But being accused for this to Eupator by his friends, and being oftentimes called traitor, because he had left Cyprus which Philometer had committed to him, and coming over to Antiochus the Illustrious, had revolted also from him, he put an end to his life by poison.

14 But Gorgias, who was governor of the holds, taking with him the strangers, often fought against the Jews. 15 And the Jews* that occupied the most commodious hold received those that were driven out of Jerusalem, and attempted to make war.

16 Then they that were with Machabeus, beseeching the Lord by prayers to be their helper, made a strong attack upon the strongholds of the Idumeans; 17 and assaulting them with great force, won the holds, killed them that came in the way, and slew altogether no fewer than twenty thousand. 18 And whereas some were fled into very strong towers, having all manner of provision to sustain a siege, 19 Machabeus left Simon and Joseph and Zacheus, and them that were with them in sufficient number to besiege them, and departed to those expeditions which urged more. 20 Now they that were with Simon, being led with covetousness, were persuaded for the sake of money by some that were in the towers; and taking seventy thousand didrachmas, let some of them escape. 21 But when it was told Machabeus what was done, he assembled the rulers of the people, and accused those men that they had sold their brethren for money, having let their adversaries escape. 22 So he put these traitors to death, and forthwith took the two towers. 23 And having good success in arms and in all things he took in hand, he slew more than twenty thousand in the two holds.

24 But Timotheus who before had been overcome by the Jews, [t] having called together a multitude of foreign troops, and assembled horsemen out of Asia, came as though he would take Judea by force of arms. 25 But Machabeus and they that were with him, when he drew near, prayed to the Lord, sprinkling earth upon their heads and girding their loins with haircloth. 26 And lying prostrate at the foot of the altar, besought him to be merciful to them, and to be an enemy to their enemies, and an adversary to their adversaries, as the law saith. 27 And so after prayer taking their arms, they went forth further from the city, and when they were come very near the enemies they rested. 28 But as soon as the sun was risen both sides joined battle: the one part having with their valor the Lord for a surety of victory and success, but the other side making their rage their leader in battle. 29 But when they were in the heat of the engagement there appeared to the enemies from heaven five men upon horses, comely with golden bridles, conducting the Jews, 30 two of whom took Machabeus between them, and covered him on every side with their arms, and kept him safe, but cast darts and fireballs against the enemy, so that they fell down, being both confounded with blindness, and filled with trouble. 31 And there were slain twenty thousand five hundred, and six hundred horsemen. 32 But Timotheus fled into Gazara a stronghold, where Chereas was governor.

33 Then Machabeus, and they that were with him, cheerfully laid siege to the fortress four days. 34 But they that were within, trusting to the strength of the place, blasphemed exceedingly, and cast forth abominable words. 35 But when the fifth day appeared, twenty young men of them that were with Machabeus, inflamed in their minds because of the blasphemy, approached manfully to the wall, and pushing forward with fierce courage got up upon it. 36 Moreover others also getting up after them, went to set fire to the towers and the gates, and to burn the blasphemers alive. 37 And having for two days together pillaged and sacked the fortress, they killed Timotheus,* who was found hid in a certain place. They slew also his brother Chereas, and Apollophanes. 38 And when this was done, they blessed the Lord with hymns and thanksgiving, who had done great things in Israel, and given them the victory.

CHAPTER 11.

Lysias Is Overthrown by Judas. 1 A short [u] time after this Lysias the king's lieutenant and cousin, who had chief charge over all the affairs, being greatly displeased with what had happened, 2 gathered together fourscore thousand men and all the horsemen, and came against the Jews, thinking to take the city, and make it a habitation of the Gentiles, 3 and to make a gain of the temple, as of the other temples of the Gentiles, and to set the high priesthood to sale every year; 4 never considering the power of God, but puffed up in mind, and trusting in the multitude of his foot soldiers, and the thousands of his horsemen, and his fourscore elephants.

5 So he came into Judea, and approaching to Bethsura, which was in a narrow place, the space of five furlongs from Jerusalem, he laid siege to that fortress.

6 But when Machabeus and they that were with him understood that the strongholds were besieged, they and all the people besought the Lord with lamentations and tears, that he would send a good angel to save Israel. 7 Then Machabeus himself, first taking his arms, exhorted the rest to expose themselves together with him to the danger, and to succor their brethren. 8 And when they were going forth together with a willing mind, there appeared at Jerusalem a horseman going before them in white clothing, with golden armor, shaking a spear. 9 Then they all together blessed the merciful Lord, and took great courage, being ready to break through not only men, but also the fiercest beasts, and walls of iron. 10 So they went on courageously, having a helper from heaven, and the Lord who showed mercy to them. 11 And rushing violently upon the enemy, like lions, they slew of them eleven thousand footmen, and one thousand six hundred horsemen; 12 and put all the rest to flight, and many of them being wounded, escaped naked. Yea, and Lysias himself fled away shamefully, and escaped.

13 And as he was a man of understanding, considering with himself the loss he had suffered, and perceiving that the Hebrews could not be overcome, because they relied upon the help of the almighty God, he sent to them, 14 and promised that he would agree to all things that are just, and that he would persuade the king to be their friend. 15 Then Machabeus consented to the request of Lysias, providing for the common good in all things, and whatsoever Machabeus wrote to Lysias concerning the Jews, the king allowed of.

16 For there were letters written to the Jews from Lysias, to this effect: Lysias to the people of the Jews, greeting. 17 John and Abesalom who were sent from you, delivering your writings, requested that I would accomplish those things which were signified by them. 18 Therefore whatsoever things could be reported to the king I have represented to him, and he hath granted as much as the matter permitted. 19 If therefore you will keep yourselves loyal in affairs, hereafter also I will endeavor to be a means of your good. 20 But as concerning other particulars, I have given orders by word both to these, and to them that are sent by me, to commune with you. 21 Fare ye well. In the year* one hundred and forty-eight, [v] the four and twentieth day of the month of Dioscorus.

The Letter to Lysias. 22 But the king's letter contained these words: King Antiochus to Lysias his brother, greeting. 23 Our father being translated amongst the gods, we are desirous that they that are in our realm should live quietly, and apply themselves diligently to their own concerns. 24 And we have heard that the Jews would not consent to my father to turn to the rites of the Greeks, but that they would keep to their own manner of living, and therefore that they request us to allow them to live after their own laws. 25 Wherefore being desirous that this nation also should be at rest, we have ordained and decreed, that the temple should be restored to them, and that they may live according to the custom of their ancestors. 26 Thou shalt do well therefore to send to them, and grant them peace, that our pleasure being known, they may be of good comfort, and look to their own affairs.

27 But the king's letter to the Jews was in this manner: King Antiochus to the senate of the Jews, and to the rest of the Jews, greeting. 28 If you are well, you are as we desire; we ourselves also are well. 29 Menelaus came to us, saying that you desired to come down to your countrymen, that are with us. 30 We grant therefore a safe conduct to all that come and go, until the thirtieth day of the month of Xanthicus, 31 that the Jews may use their own kind of meats, and their own laws as before, and that none of them any manner of ways be molested for things which have been done by ignorance. 32 And we have sent also Menelaus to speak to you. 33 Fare ye well. In the year [w] one hundred and forty-eight, the fifteenth day of the month of Xanthicus.

34 The Romans also sent them a letter to this effect: Quintus Memmius, and Titus Manilius, ambassadors of the Romans, to the people of the Jews, greeting. 35 Whatsoever Lysias the king's cousin hath granted you, we also have granted. 36 But touching such things as he thought should be referred to the king, after you have diligently conferred among yourselves, send someone forthwith, that we may decree as it is convenient for you, for we are going to Antioch. 37 And therefore make haste to write back, that we may know of what mind you are. 38 Fare ye well. In the year one hundred and forty eight, the fifteenth day of the month of Xanthicus.

Neighbors Molest the Jews. 1 When these covenants were made,[x] Lysias went to the king, and the Jews gave themselves to husbandry. 2 But they that were behind, namely, Timotheus and Apollonius the son of Genneus, also Hieronymus, and Demophon, and besides them Nicanor the governor of Cyprus, would not suffer them to live in peace, and to be quiet.

3 The men of Joppe also were guilty of this kind of wickedness: they desired the Jews who dwelt among them to go with their wives and children into the boats, which they had prepared, as though they had no enmity to them. 4 Which when they had consented to, according to the common decree of the city, suspecting nothing because of the peace, when they were gone forth into the deep, they drowned no fewer than two hundred of them. 5 But as soon as Judas heard of this cruelty done to his countrymen, he commanded the men that were with him. And after having called upon God the just judge, 6 he came against those murderers of his brethren, and set the haven on fire in the night, burnt the boats, and slew with the sword them that escaped from the fire. 7 And when he had done these things in this manner, he departed as if he would return again, and root out all the Joppites.

8 But when he understood that the men of Jamnia also designed to do in like manner to the Jews that dwelt among them, 9 he came upon the Jamnites also by night, and set the haven on fire with the ships, so that the light of the fire was seen at Jerusalem two hundred and forty furlongs off.

10 And when they were now gone from thence nine furlongs, and were marching towards Timotheus, five thousand footmen and five hundred horsemen of the Arabians set upon them. 11 And after a hard fight, in which by the help of God they got the victory, the rest of the Arabians being overcome, besought Judas for peace, promising to give him pastures, and to assist him in other things. 12 And Judas thinking that they might be profitable indeed in many things, promised them peace, and after having joined hands, they departed to their tents.

13 He also laid siege to a certain strong city, encompassed with bridges and walls, and inhabited by multitudes of different nations, the name of which is Casphin. 14 But they that were within it, trusting in the strength of the walls and the provision of victuals, behaved in a more negligent manner, and provoked Judas with railing and blaspheming, and uttering such words as were not to be spoken. 15 But Machabeus calling upon the great Lord of the world, who without any rams* or engines of war threw down the walls of Jericho [y] in the time of Josue, fiercely assaulted the walls. 16 And having taken the city by the will of the Lord, he made an unspeakable slaughter, so that a pool adjoining of two furlongs broad seemed to run with the blood of the slain.

17 From thence they departed seven hundred and fifty furlongs, and came to Characa to the Jews that are called Tubianites. 18 But as for Timotheus, they found him not in those places, for before he had dispatched anything he went back, having left a very strong garrison in a certain hold. 19 But Dositheus and Sosipater, who were captains with Machabeus, slew them that were left by Timotheus in the hold, to the number of ten thousand men.

20 And Machabeus having set in order about him six thousand men, and divided them by bands, went forth against Timotheus, who had with him a hundred and twenty thousand footmen, and two thousand five hundred horsemen. 21 Now when Timotheus had knowledge of the coming of Judas, he sent the women and children and the other baggage before him into a fortress, called Carnion; for it was impregnable and hard to come at, by reason of the straitness of the places. 22 But when the first band of Judas came in sight, the enemies were struck with fear, by the presence of God who seeth all things, and they were put to flight one from another, so that they were often thrown down by their own companions, and wounded with the strokes of their own swords. 23 But Judas was vehemently earnest in punishing the profane, of whom he slew thirty thousand men. 24 And Timotheus himself fell into the hands of the band of Dositheus and Sosipater, and with many prayers he besought them to let him go with his life, because he had the parents and brethren of many of the Jews, who, by his death, might happen to be deceived. 25 And when he had given his faith that he would restore them according to the agreement, they let him go without hurt, for the saving of their brethren.

26 Then Judas went away to Carnion, where he slew five and twenty thousand persons. 27 [z] And after he had put to flight and destroyed these, he removed his army to Ephron, a strong city, wherein there dwelt a multitude of divers nations, and stout young men standing upon the walls made a vigorous resistance. And in this place there were many engines of war, and a provision of darts. 28 But when they had invocated the Almighty, who with his power breaketh the strength of the enemies, they took the city, and slew five and twenty thousand of them that were within.

29 From thence they departed to Scythopolis,* which lieth six hundred furlongs from Jerusalem. 30 But the Jews that were among the Scythopolitans testifying that they were used kindly by them, and that even in the times of their adversity they had treated them with humanity, 31 they gave them thanks, exhorting them to be still friendly to their nation, and so they came to Jerusalem, the feast of the weeks being at hand.

32 And after Pentecost they marched against Gorgias the governor of Idumea. 33 And he came out with three thousand footmen, and four hundred horsemen. 34 And when they had joined battle, it happened that a few of the Jews were slain. 35 But Dositheus, a horseman, one of Bacenor's band, a valiant man, took hold of Gorgias, and when he would have taken him alive, a certain horseman of the Thracians came upon him, and cut off his shoulder, and so Gorgias escaped to Maresa. 36 But when they that were with Esdrin had fought long, and were weary, Judas called upon the Lord to be their helper, and leader of the battle. 37 Then beginning in his own language, and singing hymns with a loud voice, he put Gorgias' soldiers to flight.

Sacrifices and Prayers for the Dead. 38 So Judas having gathered together his army, came into the city Odollam. And when the seventh day came, they purified themselves according to the custom, and kept the sabbath in the same place. 39 And the day following, Judas came with his company to take away the bodies of them that were slain, and to bury them with their kinsmen in the sepulchres of their fathers. 40 And they found under the coats of the slain some of the donaries* of the idols of Jamnia, which the law forbiddeth to the Jews, so that all plainly saw that for this cause they were slain. 41 Then they all blessed the just judgment of the Lord, who had discovered the things that were hidden. 42 And so betaking themselves to prayers, they besought him that the sin which had been committed might be forgotten. But the most valiant Judas exhorted the people to keep themselves from sin, forasmuch as they saw before their eyes what had happened, because of the sins of those that were slain. 43 And making a gathering, he sent twelve thousand drachmas of silver to Jerusalem for sacrifice to be offered for the sins of the dead, thinking well and religiously concerning the resurrection. 44 (For if he had not hoped that they that were slain should rise again, it would have seemed superfluous and vain to pray for the dead.) 45 And because he considered that they who had fallen asleep with godliness,* had great grace laid up for them, 46 it is therefore a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead,* that they may be loosed from sins.

CHAPTER 13.

Antiochus Invades Judea. 1 In the year one hundred and forty-nine,[a] Judas understood that Antiochus Eupator was coming with a multitude against Judea, 2 and with him Lysias the regent, who had charge over the affairs of the realm, having with him a hundred and ten thousand* footmen, five thousand horsemen, twenty-two elephants, and three hundred chariots armed with hooks.

Menelaus Is Put to Death. 3 Menelaus also joined himself with them, and with great deceitfulness besought Antiochus, not for the welfare of his country, but in hopes that he should be appointed chief ruler. 4 But the King of kings stirred up the mind of Antiochus against the sinner, and upon Lysias suggesting that he was the cause of all the evils, he commanded (as the custom is with them) that he should be apprehended and put to death in the same place. 5 Now there was in that place a tower fifty cubits high, having a heap of ashes on every side: this had a prospect steep down. 6 From thence he commanded the sacrilegious wretch to be thrown down into the ashes, all men thrusting him forward unto death. 7 And by such a law it happened that Menelaus the transgressor of the law was put to death, not having so much as burial in the earth. 8 And indeed very justly, for insomuch as he had committed many sins against the altar of God, the fire and ashes of which were holy, he was condemned to die in ashes.

9 But the king, with his mind full of rage, came on to show himself worse to the Jews than his father was. 10 Which, when Judas understood, he commanded the people to call upon the Lord day and night, that as he had always done, so now also he would help them, 11 because they were afraid to be deprived of the law, and of their country, and of 12, 45: With godliness: Judas hoped that these men who died fighting for the cause of God and religion, might find mercy: either because of ignorance of sin or through repentance at death.

12, 46: It is therefore a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead: a clear proof of the practice of praying for the dead under the old law, which was then strictly observed by the Jews, and consequently could not be introduced at that time by Judas, their chief and high priest, if it had not been always their custom.

the holy temple: and that he would not suffer the people, that had of late taken breath for a little while, to be again in subjection to blasphemous nations. 12 So when they had all done this together, and had craved mercy of the Lord with weeping and fasting, lying prostrate on the ground for three days continually, Judas exhorted them to make themselves ready. 13 But he with the ancients determined, before the king should bring his army into Judea and make himself master of the city, to go out, and to commit the event of the thing to the judgment of the Lord. 14 So committing all to God, the creator of the world, and having exhorted his people to fight manfully, and to stand up even to death for the laws, the temple, the city, their country, and citizens, he placed his army about Modin. 15 And having given his company for a watchword, The Victory of God, with most valiant chosen young men, he set upon the king's quarter by night, and slew four thousand men in the camp, and the greatest of the elephants, with them that had been upon him; 16 and having filled the camp of the enemies with exceeding great fear and tumult, they went off with good success. 17 Now this was done at the break of day, by the protection and help of the Lord.

18 But the king having taken a taste of the hardiness of the Jews, attempted to take the strong places by policy. 19 And he marched with his army to Bethsura, which was a stronghold of the Jews; but he was repulsed, he failed, he lost his men.

20 Now Judas sent necessaries to them that were within. 21 But Rhodocus, one of the Jew's army, disclosed the secrets to the enemies, so he was sought out, and taken up, and put in prison. 22 Again the king treated with them that were in Bethsura: gave his right hand, took theirs, and went away.

23 He fought with Judas, and was overcome. And when he understood that Philip, who had been left over the affairs, had rebelled at Antioch, he was in a consternation of mind, and entreating the Jews and yielding to them, he swore to all things that seemed reasonable, and being reconciled, offered sacrifices, honored the temple, and left gifts. 24 He embraced Machabeus, and made him governor and prince from Ptolemais unto the Gerrenians. 25 But when he was come to Ptolemais, the men of that city were much displeased with the conditions of the peace, being angry for fear they should break the covenant. 26 Then Lysias went up to the judgment seat, and set forth the reason, and appeased the people, and returned to Antioch. And thus matters went with regard to the king's coming and his return.

3. Demetrius I Soter

CHAPTER 14.

Friendship of Nicanor and Judas. 1 But after the space of three years[b] Judas, and they that were with him, understood that Demetrius the son of Selencus was come up with a great power and a navy by the haven of Tripolis to places proper for his purpose, 2 and had made himself master of the countries against Antiochus, and his general Lysias. 3 Now one Alcimus, who had been chief priest,* but had willfully defiled himself in the time of mingling with the heathens, seeing that there was no safety for him nor access to the altar, 4 came to king Demetrius in the year[c] one hundred and fifty, presenting unto him a crown of gold and a palm, and besides these some boughs which seemed to belong to the temple. And that day indeed he held his peace. 5 But having gotten a convenient time to further his madness, being called to counsel by Demetrius, and asked what the Jews relied upon, and what were their counsels, 6 he answered thereunto: They among the Jews that are called Assideans, of whom Judas Machabeus is captain, nourish wars, and raise seditions, and will not suffer the realm to be in peace. 7 For I also being deprived of my ancestors' glory (I mean of the high priesthood) am now come hither: 8 principally indeed out of fidelity to the king's interests,

b 162 B. C.—c 161 B. C.

14, 3: Now one Alcimus, who had been chief priest: though a descendant of Aaron, Alcimus was incapable of the office of high priest because of his apostasy; nevertheless king Antiochus Eupator appointed him in place of the high priest, (See above 1 Mc 7, 9) just as Menelaus had been appointed before him by Antiochus (ch 4). Neither of them were truly high priests; for the true high priesthood was the function of the Machabees, also Aaronites, strict adherents of their religion, and ordained according to the rites prescribed in the law of Moses. Mingling with the heathens: i.e., in their idolatrous worship.

but in the next place also to provide for the good of my countrymen, for all our nation suffereth much from the evil proceedings of those men. 9 Wherefore, O king, seeing thou knowest all these things, take care, I beseech thee, both of the country and of our nation, according to thy humanity which is known to all men. 10 For as long as Judas liveth, it is not possible that the state should be quiet.

11 Now when this man had spoken to this effect, the rest also of the king's friends, who were enemies of Judas, incensed Demetrius against him. 12 And forthwith he sent Nicanor, the commander over the elephants, governor into Judea, 13 giving him a charge to take Judas himself, and disperse all them that were with him, and to make Alcimus the high priest of the great temple. 14 Then the Gentiles who had fled out of Judea from Judas, came to Nicanor by flocks, thinking the miseries and calamities of the Jews to be the welfare of their affairs.

15 Now when the Jews heard of Nicanor's coming, and that the nations were assembled against them, they cast earth upon their heads, and made supplication to him who chose his people to keep them forever, and who protected his portion by evident signs. 16 Then at the commandment of their captain, they forthwith removed from the place where they were, and went to the town of Dessau, to meet them.

17 Now Simon the brother of Judas had joined battle with Nicanor, but was frightened with the sudden coming of the adversaries. 18 Nevertheless Nicanor hearing of the valor of Judas' companions, and the greatness of courage with which they fought for their country, was afraid to try the matter by the sword. 19 Wherefore he sent Posidonius, and Theodotius, and Matthias before to present and receive the right hands. 20 And when there had been a consultation thereupon, and the captain had acquainted the multitude with it, they were all of one mind to consent to covenants. 21 So they appointed a day upon which they might commune together by themselves; and seats were brought out, and set for each one. 22 But Judas ordered men to be ready in convenient places, lest some mischief might be suddenly practised by the enemies. So they made an agreeable conference. 23 And Nicanor abode in Jerusalem, and did no wrong, but sent away the flocks of the multitudes that had been gathered together. 24 And Judas was always dear to him from the heart, and he was well affected to the man. 25 And he desired him to marry a wife, and to have children. So he married: he lived quietly, and they lived in common.

Nicanor and Judas Become Enemies. 26 But Alcimus seeing the love they had one to another, and the covenants, came to Demetrius, and told him that Nicanor assented to the foreign interest, for that he meant to make Judas, who was a traitor to the kingdom, his successor. 27 Then the king being in a rage and provoked with this man's wicked accusations, wrote to Nicanor, signifying that he was greatly displeased with the covenant of friendship, and that he commanded him nevertheless to send Machabeus prisoner in all haste to Antioch. 28 When this was known, Nicanor was in a consternation, and took it grievously that he should make void the articles that were agreed upon, having received no injury from the man. 29 But because he could not oppose the king, he watched an opportunity to comply with the orders. 30 But when Machabeus perceived that Nicanor was more stern to him, and that when they met together as usual he behaved himself in a rough manner, and was sensible that this rough behavior came not of good, he gathered together a few of his men, and hid himself from Nicanor. 31 But he finding himself notably prevented by the man, came to the great and holy temple, and commanded the priests that were offering the accustomed sacrifices, to deliver him the man. 32 And when they swore unto him that they knew not where the man was whom he sought, he stretched out his hand to the temple, 33 and swore, saying: Unless you deliver Judas prisoner to me, I will lay this temple of God even with the ground, and will beat down the altar, and I will dedicate this temple to Bacchus. 34 And when he had spoken thus, he departed. But the priests stretching forth their hands to heaven, called upon him that was ever the defender of their nation, saying in this manner: 35 Thou, O Lord of all things, who wantest nothing, wast pleased that the temple of thy habitation should be amongst us. 36 Therefore now, O Lord, the Holy of all Holies, keep this house forever undefiled which was lately cleansed.

37 Now Razias, one of the ancients of Jerusalem, was accused to Nicanor, a man that was a lover of the city and of good report, who for his affection was called the father of the Jews. 38 This man, for a long time, had held fast his purpose of keeping himself pure in the Jews' religion, and was ready to expose his body and life, that he might persevere therein. 39 So Nicanor, being willing to declare the hatred that he bore the Jews, sent five hundred soldiers to take him; 40 for he thought by ensnaring him to hurt the Jews very much. 41 Now as the multitude sought to rush into his house, and to break open the door, and to set fire to it, when he was ready to be taken, he struck himself* with his sword, 42 choosing to die nobly rather than to fall into the hands of the wicked, and to suffer abuses unbecoming his noble birth. 43 But whereas through haste he missed of giving himself a sure wound, and the crowd was breaking into the doors, he ran boldly to the wall, and manfully threw himself down to the crowd. 44 But they quickly making room for his fall, he came upon the midst of the neck.* 45 And as he had yet breath in him, being inflamed in mind he arose; and while his blood ran down with a great stream, and he was grievously wounded, he ran through the crowd; 46 and standing upon a steep rock, when he was now almost without blood, grasping his bowels with both hands, he cast them upon the throng, calling upon the Lord of life and spirit, to restore these to him again. And so he departed this life.

CHAPTER 15.

Judas' Victory over Nicanor. 1 But [d] when Nicanor understood that Judas was in the places of Samaria, he purposed to set upon him with all violence on the sabbath day. 2 And when the Jews that were constrained to follow him, said: Do not act so fiercely and barbarously, but give honor to the day that is sanctified, and reverence him that beholdeth all things, 3 that unhappy man asked if there were a mighty One in heaven, that had commanded the sabbath day to be kept. 4 And when they answered: There is the living Lord himself in heaven, the mighty One, that commanded the seventh day to be kept; 5 then he said: And I am mighty upon the earth, and I command to take arms, and to do the king's business. Nevertheless he prevailed not to accomplish his design.

6 So Nicanor being puffed up with exceeding great pride, thought to set up a public monument of his victory over Judas. 7 But Machabeus ever trusted with all hope that God would help them. 8 And he exhorted his people not to fear the coming of the nations, but to remember the help they had before received from heaven, and now to hope for victory from the Almighty. 9 And speaking to them out of the law and the prophets, and withal putting them in mind of the battles they had fought before, he made them more cheerful. 10 Then after he had encouraged them, he showed withal the falsehood of the Gentiles, and their breach of oaths. 11 So he armed every one of them, not with defense of shield and spear, but with very good speeches and exhortations, and told them a dream worthy to be believed, whereby he rejoiced them all.

12 Now the vision was in this manner: Onias who had been high priest, a good and virtuous man, modest in his looks, gentle in his manners, and graceful in his speech, and who from a child was exercised in virtues, holding up his hands, prayed for all the people of the Jews. 13 After this there appeared also another man, admirable for age and glory, and environed with great beauty and majesty. 14 Then Onias answering, said: This is a lover of his brethren and of the people of Israel: this is he that prayeth much for the people and for all the holy city, Jeremias the prophet of God. 15 Whereupon Jeremias stretched forth his right hand,

14, 41: He struck himself, etc.: St. Augustine (Epist. 61 ad Dulcitium, et lib. 2, cap. 23, ad Epist. 2 Gaud.) says that the Holy Scripture relates the fact of Razias but does not praise it, and that either it was not well done by him, or at least not proper in this time of grace.

14, 44: He came upon the midst of the neck, Venit per mediam cervicem: In the Greek it is keneona, which signifies a void place, where there is no building.

and gave to Judas a sword of gold, saying: 16 Take this holy sword a gift from God, wherewith thou shalt overthrow the adversaries of my people Israel.

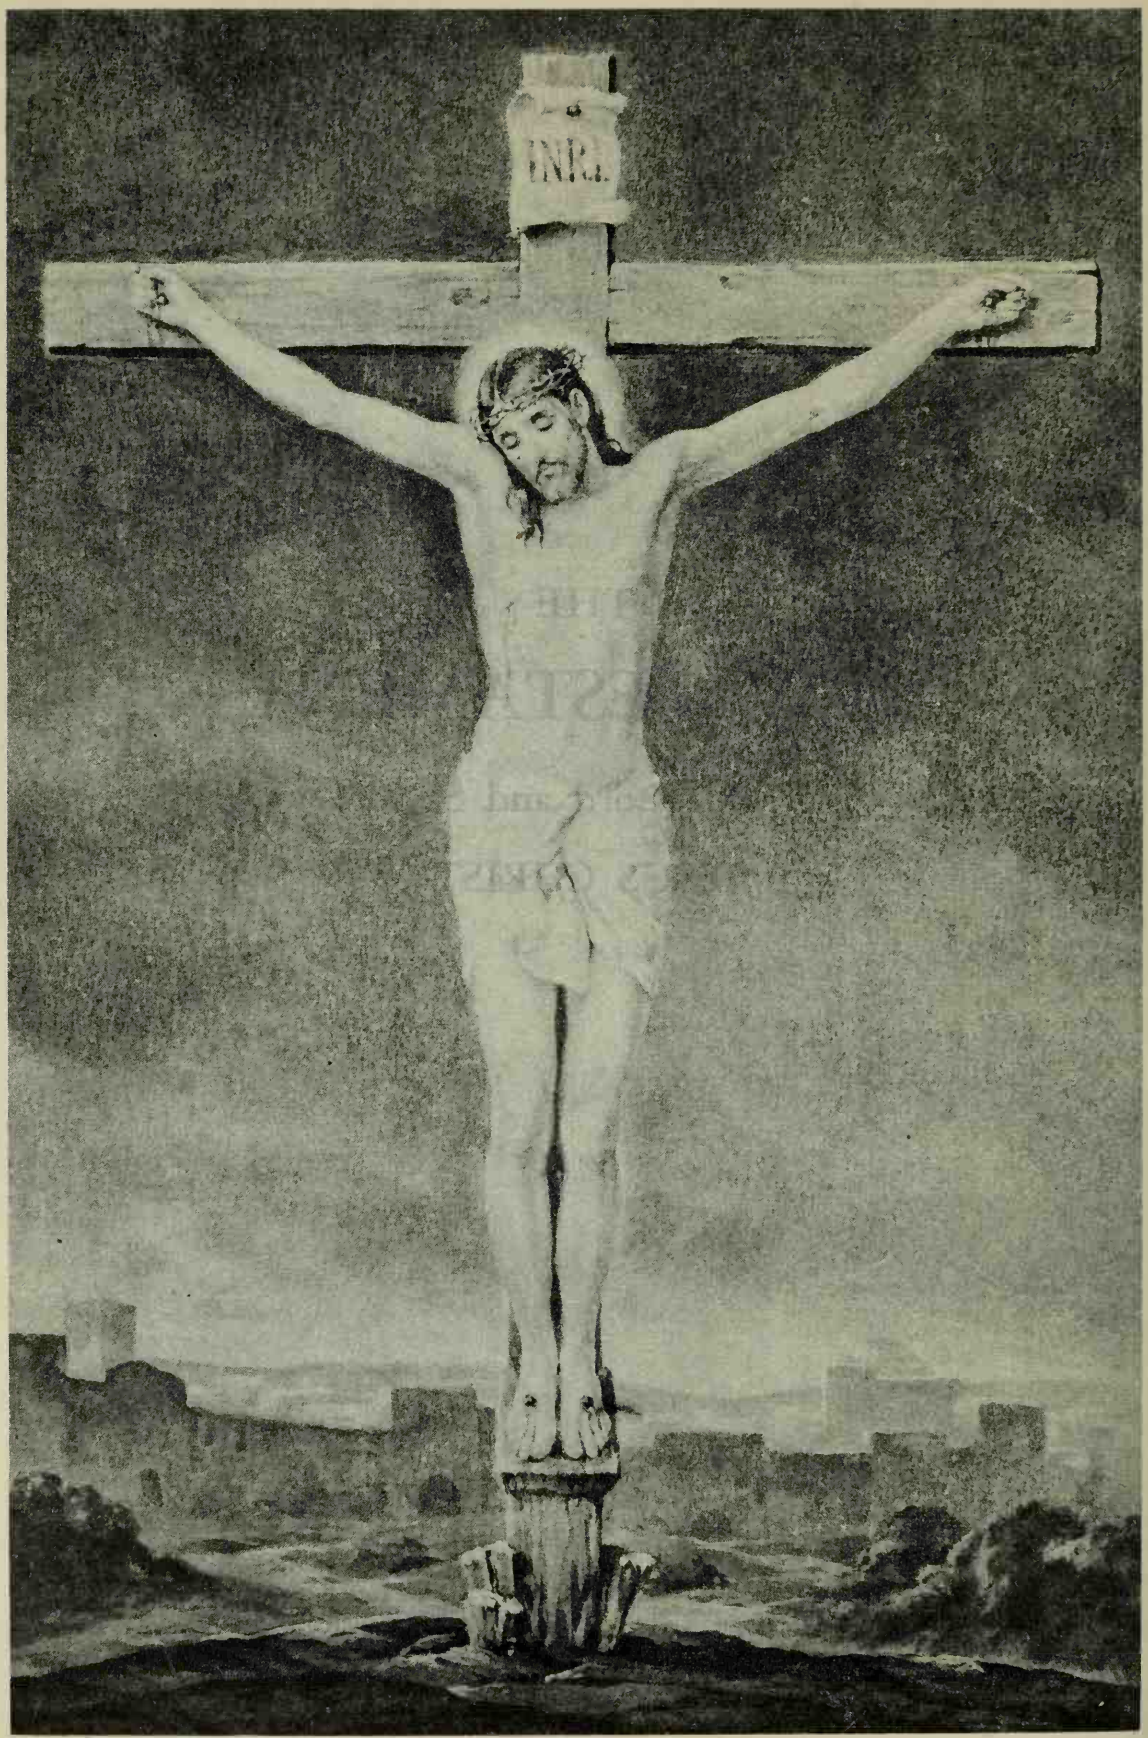
17 Thus being exhorted with the words of Judas, which were very good, and proper to stir up the courage and strengthen the hearts of the young men, they resolved to fight and to set upon them manfully, that valor might decide the matter, because the holy city and the temple were in danger. 18 For their concern was less for their wives, and children, and for their brethren, and kinsfolks; but their greatest and principal fear was for the holiness of the temple. 19 And they also that were in the city, had no little concern for them that were to be engaged in battle.

20 And now when all expected that judgment would be given, and the enemies were at hand, and the army was set in array, the beasts and the horsemen ranged in convenient places, 21 Machabeus considering the coming of the multitude, and the divers preparations of armor, and the fierceness of the beasts, stretching out his hands to heaven, called upon the Lord that worketh wonders, who giveth victory to them that are worthy, not according to the power of their arms, but according as it seemeth good to him. 22 And in his prayer he said after this manner: [e] Thou, O Lord, who didst send thy angel in the time of Ezechias king of Juda, and didst kill a hundred and eighty-five thousand of the army of Sennacherib, 23 send now also, O Lord of heaven, thy good angel before us, for the fear and dread of the greatness of thy arm, 24 that they may be afraid, who come with blasphemy against thy holy people. And thus he concluded his prayer.

25 But Nicanor, and they that were with him came forward with trumpets and songs. 26 But Judas, and they that were with him, encountered them, calling upon God by prayers. 27 So fighting with their hearts, they slew no less than five and thirty thousand, being greatly cheered with the presence of God.

28 And when the battle was over, and they were returning with joy, they understood that Nicanor was slain in his armor. 29 Then making a shout, and a great noise, they blessed the almighty Lord in their own language.

30 And Judas, who was altogether ready, in body and mind, to die for his countrymen, commanded that Nicanor's head and his hand with the shoulder should be cut off, and carried to Jerusalem. 31 And when he was come thither, having called together his countrymen and the priests to the altar, he sent also for them that were in the castle, 32 and showing them the head of Nicanor, and the wicked hand which he had stretched out with proud boasts against the holy house of the almighty God, 33 he commanded also that the tongue of the wicked Nicanor should be cut out and given by pieces to birds, and the hand of the furious man to be hung up over against their hands, but praying to the Lord with the temple. 34 Then all blessed the Lord of heaven, saying: Blessed be he that hath kept his own place undefiled. 35 And he hung up Nicanor's head in the top of the castle, that it might be an evident and manifest sign of the help of God. 36 And they all ordained by a common decree by no means to let this day pass without solemnity, 37 but to celebrate the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, called, in the Syrian language, the day before Mardochia's day.



The conclusion. 38 So these things being done with relation to Nicanor, and from that time the city being possessed by the Hebrews, I also will here make an end of my narration. 39 Which if I have done well, and as it becometh the history, it is what I desired; but if not so perfectly,* it must be pardoned me. 40 For as it is hurtful to drink always wine, or always water, but pleasant to use sometimes the one, and sometimes the other, so if the speech be always nicely framed, it will not be grateful to the readers. But here it shall be ended.

e 2 Mc 8, 19.

15, 39: If not so perfectly, etc.: this is not said with regard to the truth of the narration; but with regard to the style and manner of writing which in the sacred penmen is not always the most accurate. See St. Paul, 2 Cor 11, 6.

THE FOUR GOSPELS

The Latin word commonly used for Gospel is evangelium, a term derived from the Greek. In the New Testament it means the glad news of salvation, first brought to earth by the Son of God, and afterwards delivered by word of mouth to the world by the Apostles. About the end of the first century or the beginning of the second, this word was applied to the book containing this glad news, and their authors were called "evangelists." The English word to express this Latin evangelium is "Gospel," from the Anglo-Saxon godspel, an abbreviated form of good-spell, i.e., "good tidings."

Though many non-inspired, or apocryphal, gospels eventually made their appearance from the earliest period of ecclesiastical history, only four Gospels were recognized as inspired and canonical. They contain the Gospel in four forms, or as the oldest titles express it, the Gospel according to Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. St. Irenaeus, writing during the latter half of the second century, points out that our four Gospels were the only recognized ones: "It is not possible that the Gospels can be either more or fewer in number than they are." Origen tersely sums up the teaching of the Church for the first half of the third century when he says, "The Church has four Gospels, heretics have many more."

The four evangelists and their Gospels were believed to have been prefigured by the four living creatures mentioned in the vision of Ezechiel (1, 10). Explanations varied, but the opinion of St. Jerome is now the prevailing one. St. Matthew is symbolized by the "man," because he commences his Gospel with Christ's earthly ancestry and stresses His human and kingly character. St. Mark is represented by the "lion," because he starts his Gospel with St. John the Baptist, "the voice of one crying in the desert," and emphasizes the miraculous powers of the Savior. St. Luke is typified by the "ox," the animal of sacrifice, because he begins with the history of Zachary, the priest, offering sacrifice to God, and accentuates the universal priesthood of Christ. St. John is expressed by the "eagle," because from the very beginning of his Gospel he soars above the things of the earth and time and dwells upon the divine origin and nature of Jesus.

The titles prefixed to the four Gospels, though not original, are of early date. They are mentioned in the latter part of the second century in the churches of Lyons, Rome and Alexandria. Thus one can reasonably conclude that they were added to the Gospels during the first half of the second century. These titles indicate the human or secondary authors and not that the Gospels were written merely according to the preaching, mind or authority of St. Matthew, St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John.

Our present order of St. Matthew, St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John is chronological and sanctioned by tradition. The first three, though distinct in many ways, show a striking resemblance in content and form. They adopt a simple and convenient plan for the life of Jesus, the arrangement of which appears summarily in the preaching of St. Peter (Acts 10, 37-41): 1. His preparation for His ministry; 2. His preaching in Galilee; 3. His journey from Galilee to Jerusalem; 4. The last week in Jerusalem, together with His Passion, Death and Resurrection. Hence they are called the "Synoptists" and their writings, the "Synoptic Gospels," because, whenever they are placed in parallel columns or are otherwise compared, they give us at a glance the same general view of our Lord's life. The fourth Gospel, on the contrary, written at the close of the first century, contains much new material, but in certain parts, either common or related to the Synoptic Gospels, St. John supplements them and thus prevents a false interpretation of their writings.

THE HOLY GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST ACCORDING TO SAINT MATTHEW

St. Matthew, one of the twelve Apostles, is the author of the first Gospel. This has been the constant tradition of the Church and is confirmed by the Gospel itself. He was the son of Alpheus and was called to be an Apostle while sitting in the tax-collector's place at Capharnaum. Before his conversion he was a publican, i.e., a tax-collector by profession. He is to be identified with the "Levi" of Mark and Luke. His apostolic activity was at first restricted to the communities of Palestine. Nothing definite is known about his later life. There is a tradition that points to Ethiopia as his field of labor; other traditions make mention of Parthia and Persia. It is likewise uncertain whether he died a natural death or received the crown of martyrdom. His feast is celebrated on September 21.

His Gospel was written to fill a sorely felt want for his fellow-countrymen, both believers and unbelievers. For the former it served as a token of his regard and as an encouragement in the trial to come, especially the danger of falling back to Judaism; for the latter it was designed to convince them that the Messias had come in the Person of Jesus, our Lord, in whom all the promises of the messianic kingdom embracing all people had been fulfilled in a spiritual rather than in a carnal way: "My kingdom is not of this world." His Gospel, then, answered the question put by the disciples of St. John the Baptist, "Art thou he who is come, or shall we look for another?"

Writing for his countrymen of Palestine, St. Matthew composed his Gospel in his native Aramaic, the "Hebrew tongue" mentioned in the Gospel and the Acts of the Apostles. Soon afterwards, about the time of the persecution of Herod Agrippa I in 42 A.D., he took his departure for other lands. Another tradition places the composition of his Gospel either between the time of this departure and the Council of Jerusalem, i.e., between 42 A.D. and 50 A.D., or even later. Definitely, however, the Gospel itself, depicting the Holy City with its altar and temple as still existing, and without any reference to the fulfillment of our Lord's prophecy, shows that it was written before the destruction of the city by the Romans (70 A.D.), and this internal evidence confirms the early traditions.

The Gospel was soon translated into Greek—possibly during the lifetime of St. Matthew or a little later; certainly before the close of the first century. The original has been lost in the course of time. The Greek text, however, is in substantial conformity with the original. St. Matthew's Gospel, then, was the only book of the New Testament written in a language other than the Greek common to the people of the Empire.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO SAINT MATTHEW

Prelude: The Coming of The Savior

CHAPTER 1.

Genealogy of Jesus. 1 The book of the origin of Jesus* Christ, the Son of David,[a] the son of Abraham. 2 Abraham[b] begot Isaac, Isaac begot Jacob, Jacob begot Judas and his brethren. 3 Judas[c] begot Phares and Zara of Thamar, Phares begot Esron, Esron begot Aram. 4 And Aram begot Aminadab,[d] Aminadab begot Naasson, Naasson begot Salmon. 5 Salmon begot Booz of Rahab. Booz[e] begot Obed of Ruth, Obed begot Jesse, Jesse begot David the King.

6 [f] And David the king begot Solomon of the former wife of Urias. 7 Solomon begot Roboam,[g] Roboam begot Abia, Abia begot Asa. 8 And Asa begot Josaphat,[h] Josaphat begot Joram, Joram begot Ozias.* 9 And Ozias[i] begot Joatham, Joatham begot Achaz, Achaz begot Ezechias. 10 And Ezechias[j] begot Manasses, Manasses begot Amon, Amon begot Josias. 11 And Josias[k] begot Jechonias and his brethren at the time of the carrying away to Babylon.

12 And after the carrying away to Babylon Jechonias begot Salathiel, Salathiel begot Zorobabel. 13 And Zorobabel begot Abiud, Abiud begot Eliachim, Eliachim begot Azor. 14 And Azor begot Sadoc, Sadoc begot Achim, Achim begot Eliud. 15 And Eliud begot Eleazar, Eleazar begot Matthan, Matthan begot Jacob. 16 And Jacob begot Joseph,* the husband of Mary, and of her was born Jesus who is called Christ.

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations;* and from David to the carrying away to Babylon fourteen generations; and from the carrying away to Babylon to Christ fourteen generations.

The Virgin Birth. 18 Now the origin of Christ was in this wise. When Mary his mother had been betrothed to Joseph, before they came together, she was found to be with child by the Holy Spirit. 19 But Joseph her husband, being a just man,* and not wishing to expose her to reproach, was minded to put her away privately. 20 But while he thought on these things, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream, saying, [l] "Do not be afraid, Joseph, son of David, to take to thee Mary thy wife, for that which is begotten in her is of the Holy Spirit. 21 And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he shall save his people from their sins." 22 Now all this came to pass that what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet might be fulfilled, 23 Behold,[m] *the virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son; and they shall call his name Emmanuel; which is, interpreted, "God with us." 24 So Joseph, arising from sleep, did as the angel of the Lord had commanded him, and took unto him his wife. 25 And he did not know her till * she brought forth her firstborn son. And he called his name Jesus.

CHAPTER 2.

The Magi. 1 Now* when Jesus [n] was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days

1, 1: Jesus is the Greek and Latin form of the late Hebrew and Aramaic name Jeshua, meaning "The Lord is salvation." The name of the Hebrew leader Joshua also takes the Greek form Jesus in Acts 7, 45; Heb 4, 8; Jude 5; in these our Savior is not the subject. Christ: in v 17 and elsewhere, a title, from the Greek Christos, which translates the Hebrew Mashiah, "Anointed One," specially applied to the expected representative of God on earth. St. Matthew in v 1 uses "Jesus Christ" as a proper name, as was customary in later Christian circles. Cf Jn 1, 17; Phil 2, 11.

1, 8: Joram begot Ozias: not directly but with three generations intervening. Cf 4 Kgs 8, 24-26; 11, 12; 12, 1. 20f; 2 Par 25, 25—26, 1.

1, 16: The genealogy is that of Joseph, the legal father of Jesus. Mary also belonged to the house of David. This is not affirmed in the Gospels, but it is presupposed by such texts as Rom 1, 3; 2 Tim 2, 8. It is also the affirmation of tradition. Thus St. Justin Martyr speaks of Mary as a "virgin of the race of David," in his "Dialogue with Trypho," XIII, 1.

1, 17: Fourteen generations: in the second series (7-11) if "Joakim" precedes Jechonias, as in some MSS, or if the latter is counted twice.

1, 19: Supposing only a natural explanation of her condition, Joseph, as just, might not proceed to marriage before the law, while his conviction of her innocence made him unwilling to expose her to reproach. Private divorce without a stated reason seemed the only solution; cf Dt 24, 1.

1, 23: This and many other citations from the Old Testament are set off in italics because of their importance.

1, 25: Till the word may mark a point of time up to which a state, an action or inaction continues, without implying any change thereafter; see Ps 109 (110), 1; Mt 12, 20; 1 Tim 4, 13. Firstborn does not imply that Mary ever bore another child. Among the Jews this title belonged to an only child (if a son) to mark his rights and duties under the Law (Ex 13, 2; Nm 8, 17). Popular language also applied it thus, as shown by the Greek inscription on a Hebrew tomb of this same period. Thus the apostolic doctrine of Mary's perpetual virginity is in no way denied by these words.

2, 1-12: The first-fruits of the Gentiles seek the newborn king of the Jews, and pay Him honor as Christ and God.

of King Herod, behold, Magi came from the East to Jerusalem, [2] saying, "Where is he that is born king of the Jews? For we have seen his star * in the East and have come to worship him." [3] But when King Herod heard this, he was troubled, and so was all Jerusalem with him. [4] And gathering together all the chief priests and Scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Christ was to be born. [5] And they said to him, "In Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by the prophet,[6] o And thou, Bethlehem, of the land of Juda, art by no means least among the princes of Juda; for from thee shall come forth a leader who shall rule my people Israel."

[7] Then Herod summoned the Magi secretly, and carefully ascertained from them the time when the star had appeared to them. [8] And sending them to Bethlehem, he said, "Go and make careful inquiry concerning the child, and when you have found him, bring me word, that I too may go and worship him."

[9] Now they, having heard the king, went their way. And behold, the star that they had seen in the East went before them, until it came and stood over the place where the child was. [10] And when they saw the star they rejoiced exceedingly. [11] And entering the house, they found the child with Mary his mother, and falling down they worshipped him. And opening their treasures they offered him gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. [12] And being warned in a dream not to return to Herod, they went back to their own country by another way.

The Flight into Egypt. [13] But when they had departed, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph, saying, "Arise, and take the child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and remain there until I tell thee. For Herod will seek the child to destroy him." [14] So he arose, and took the child and his mother by night, and withdrew into Egypt, [15] and remained there until the death of Herod; that what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet might be fulfilled, p Out of Egypt I called my son.

o Mi 5, 2. p Os 11, 1. q 17f: Jer 31, 15. r 1-12: Mk 1, 2-8. Lk 3, 2-18. s Is 40, 3.

2, 2: His star perhaps a miraculously governed meteor, star or comet.

3, 2: The kingdom of heaven more familiar to Jews, this is Matthew's usual expression for the "kingdom of God" found elsewhere in the New Test. Cf Dn 2, 44; and 7, 13f.

The Innocents. [16] Then Herod, seeing that he had been tricked by the Magi, was exceedingly angry; and he sent and slew all the boys in Bethlehem and all its neighborhood who were two years old or under, according to the time that he had carefully ascertained from the Magi. [17] q Then was fulfilled what was spoken through Jeremias the prophet, [18] A voice was heard in Rama, weeping and loud lamentation; Rachel weeping for her children, and she would not be comforted, because they are no more.

The Return to Nazareth. [19] But when Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, [20] saying, "Arise, and take the child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel, for those who sought the child's life are dead." [21] So he arose and took the child and his mother, and went into the land of Israel. [22] But hearing that Archelaus was reigning in Judea in place of his father Herod, he was afraid to go there; and being warned in a dream, he withdrew into the region of Galilee. [23] And he went and settled in a town called Nazareth; that there might be fulfilled what was spoken through the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene.

I: THE PUBLIC MINISTRY OF JESUS

CHAPTER 3.

John the Baptist. [1] Now in those days [r] John the Baptist came, preaching in the desert of Judea, [2] and saying, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven * is at hand." [3] For this is he who was spoken of through Isaias the prophet, when he said, [s] The voice of one crying in the desert, "Make ready the way of the Lord, make straight his paths." [4] But John himself had a garment of camel's hair and a leathern girdle about his loins, and his food was locusts and wild honey. [5] Then there went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region about the Jordan; [6] and they were baptized by him in the Jordan, confessing their sins.

[7] But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said to them, "Brood of vipers! who has shown you how to flee from the wrath to come? [8] Bring forth therefore fruit befitting repentance, [9] and do not think to say within yourselves, [t] 'We have Abraham for our father'; for I say to you that God is able out of these stones to raise up children to Abraham. [10] For even now the axe is laid at the root of the trees; every tree therefore that is not bringing forth good fruit is to be cut down and thrown into the fire. [11] [u] I indeed baptize you with water, for repentance. But he who is coming after me is mightier than I, whose sandals I am not worthy to bear. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire. [12] His winnowing fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly clean out his threshing floor, and will gather his wheat into the barn; but the chaff he will burn up with unquenchable fire."

The Baptism of Jesus. [13] [v] Then Jesus came from Galilee to John, at the Jordan, to be baptized by him. [14] And John was for hindering him, and said, "It is I who ought to be baptized by thee, and dost thou come to me?" [15] But Jesus answered and said to him, "Let it be so now, for so it becomes us to fulfill all justice." Then he permitted him. [16] And when Jesus had been baptized, he immediately came up from the water. And behold, the heavens were opened to him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending as a dove and coming upon him. [17] And behold, a voice from the heavens said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

The Temptation. [1] Then Jesus [w] was led into the desert by the Spirit, to be tempted by the devil. [2] And after fasting forty days and forty nights, he was hungry. [3] And the tempter came and said to him, "If thou art the Son of God, command that these stones become loaves of bread." [4] But he answered and said, "It is written, [x] Not by bread alone does man live, but by every word that comes forth from the mouth of God."

[5] Then the devil took him into the holy city and set him on the pinnacle of the temple, [6] and said to him, "If thou art the Son of God, throw thyself down; for it is written, [y] He will give his angels charge concerning thee; and upon their hands they shall bear thee up, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone." [7] Jesus said to him, "It is written further, [z] Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

[8] Again, the devil took him to a very high mountain, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them. [9] And he said to him, "All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me." [10] Then Jesus said to him, "Begone, Satan! for it is written, [a] The Lord thy God shalt thou worship and him only shalt thou serve." [11] Then the devil left him; and behold, angels came and ministered to him.

II

Jesus in Capharnaum. [12] Now when he heard that John had been delivered up, [b] he withdrew into Galilee. [13] And leaving the town of Nazareth, he came and dwelt in Capharnaum, which is by the sea, in the territory of Zabulon and Nephthalim; [14] that what was spoken through Isaias the prophet might be fulfilled; [15] [c] Land of Zabulon and land of Nephthalim, by the way to the sea, beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles: [16] The people who sat in darkness have seen a great light; and upon those who sat in the region and shadow of death, a light has arisen. [17] From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

The First Disciples Called. [18] As he was walking by the sea of Galilee, he saw [d] two brothers, Simon, who is called Peter, and his brother Andrew, casting a net into the sea (for they were fishermen). [19] And he said to them, "Come, follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." [20] And at once they left the nets, and followed him. [21] And going farther on, he saw two other brothers, James the son of Zebedee, and his brother John, in a boat with Zebedee their father, mending their nets; and he called them. [22] And immediately they left their nets and their father, and followed him.

Mission of Preaching and Miracles. [23] And [e] Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every sickness among the people. [24] And his fame spread into all Syria; and they brought to him all the sick suffering from various diseases and torments, those possessed, and lunatics, and paralytics; and he cured them. 25 And large crowds f followed him from Galilee and Decapolis and Jerusalem and Judea, and from beyond the Jordan.

III

CHAPTER 5.

The Beatitudes. 1 And seeing the crowds, he went up the mountain. And when he was seated, his disciples came to him. 2 And opening his mouth he taught them, saying,

3 g "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

4 h Blessed are the meek, for they shall possess the earth.

5 i Blessed are they who mourn, for they shall be comforted.

6 Blessed are they who hunger and thirst for justice, for they shall be satisfied.

7 Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy.

8 j Blessed are the clean of heart,* for they shall see God.

9 Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called children of God.

10 k Blessed are they who suffer persecution for justice' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

11 Blessed are you when men reproach you, and persecute you, and, speaking falsely, say all manner of evil against you, for my sake.

12 Rejoice and exult, because your reward is great in heaven; for so did they persecute the prophets who were before you.

The Disciples Compared to Salt and Light. 13 "You are the salt of the earth; l but if the salt loses its strength, what shall it be salted with? It is no longer of any use but to be thrown out and trodden underfoot by men.

14 "You are the light of the world. A city set on a mountain cannot be hidden. 15 m Neither do men light a lamp and put it under the measure, but upon the lampstand, so as to give light to all in the house. 16 Even so let your light shine before men, in order that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven.

The Old Law and the New. 17 "Do not think that I have come to destroy the Law or the Prophets. I have not come to destroy, but to fulfill. 18 n For amen * I say to you, till heaven and earth pass away, not one jot or one tittle shall be lost from the Law till all things have been accomplished. 19 Therefore whoever does away with one of these least commandments, and so teaches men, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever carries them out and teaches them, he shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. 20 For I say to you that unless your justice exceeds that of the Scribes and Pharisees, you shall not enter the kingdom of heaven.

Against Anger. 21 "You have heard that it was said to the ancients, o 'Thou shalt not kill'; and that whoever shall kill shall be liable to judgment.* 22 But I say to you that everyone who is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment; and whoever says to his brother, 'Raca,' *shall be liable to the Sanhedrin; and whoever says, 'Thou fool!', shall be liable to the fire of Gehenna. 23 Therefore, if thou art offering thy gift at the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother has anything against thee, 24 leave thy gift before the altar and go first to be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. 25 Come to terms p with thy opponent quickly while thou art with him on the way: lest thy opponent deliver thee to the judge, and the judge to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. 26 Amen I say to thee, thou wilt not come out from it until thou hast paid the last penny.

Chastity of Mind and Body. 27 "You have heard that it was said to the ancients. q 'Thou shalt not commit adultery.' 28 But I say to you that anyone who so much as looks with lust at a woman has already committed adultery with her in his heart.

29 "So if thy right eye r is an occasion of sin to thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee; for it is better for thee that

5, 8: The clean of heart: those free from sin and single-hearted.

5, 18: Amen: a Hebrew word meaning "firmly" or "surely," prefixed by Christ to statements of especial solemnity.

5, 21: To judgment: by the local court.

5, 22: Raca: means "empty-headed." Fool: seems to denote a rebel against God; cf Ps 13 (14), 1. Gehenna: originally the "Valley of Hinnom," where the bodies of criminals were burnt after execution of sentence. In the New Testament the name is usually applied to hell.

one of thy members should perish than that thy whole body should be thrown into hell. 30 And if thy right hand is an occasion of sin to thee, cut it off and cast it from thee; for it is better for thee that one of thy members should be lost than that thy whole body should go into hell.

Divorce. 31 "It was said, moreover, [s] 'Whoever puts away his wife, let him give her a written notice of dismissal.' 32 But I say to you *that everyone who puts away his wife, save on account of immorality, [t] causes her to commit adultery; and he who marries a woman who has been put away commits adultery.

Concerning Oaths. 33 "Again, you have heard that it was said to the ancients, [u] 'Thou shalt not swear falsely, but fulfill thy oaths to the Lord.' 34 But I say to you not to swear at all: neither by heaven, for it is the throne of God; 35 nor by the earth, for it is his footstool; [v] nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. 36 Neither do thou swear by thy head, for thou canst not make one hair white or black. 37 But let your speech be, [w] 'Yes, yes'; 'No, no'; and whatever is beyond these comes from the evil one.

The New Law of Talion. 38 "You have heard that it was said, [x] 'An eye for an eye,' and, 'A tooth for a tooth.' 39 But I say to you not to resist the evildoer [y]; on the contrary, if someone strike thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also; 40 and if anyone would go to law with thee and take thy tunic, let him take thy cloak as well; 41 and whoever forces thee to go for one mile, go with him two. 42 To him who asks of thee, give; [z] and from him who would borrow of thee, do not turn away.

The Love of Enemies. 43 "You have heard that it was said, [a] 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and shalt hate thy enemy.' 44 But I say to you, love your enemies, do good to those who hate you,* and pray for those who persecute and calumniate you, 45 so that you may be children of your Father in heaven, who makes his sun to rise on the good and the evil, and sends rain on the just and the unjust. 46 For if you love those that love you, what reward shall you have? Do not even the publicans do that? 47 And if you salute your brethren only, what are you doing more than others? Do not even the Gentiles do that? 48 You therefore are to be perfect, even as your heavenly Father is perfect.

CHAPTER 6.

Purity of Intention. 1 "Take heed not to do your good before men, in order to be seen by them; otherwise you shall have no reward with your Father in heaven.

Almsgiving. 2 "Therefore when thou givest alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and streets, in order that they may be honored by men. Amen I say to you, they have received their reward. 3 But when thou givest alms, do not let thy left hand know what thy right hand is doing, 4 so that thy alms may be given in secret; and thy Father, who sees in secret, will reward thee.

Prayer. 5 "Again, when you pray, you shall not be like the hypocrites, who love to pray standing* in the synagogues and at the street corners, in order that they may be seen by men. Amen I say to you, they have received their reward. 6 But when thou prayest, go into thy room, and closing thy door, pray to thy Father in secret; and thy Father, who sees in secret, will reward thee.

7 "But in praying, do not multiply words, as the Gentiles do; for they think that by saying a great deal, they will be heard. 8 So do not be like them; for your Father knows what you need before you ask him. 9 In this manner therefore shall you pray:

[b] 'Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.
10 Thy kingdom come, thy will be done
on earth, as it is in heaven.
11 Give us this day our daily* bread.

5, 32: Cf Mt 19, 9. Unfaithfulness justifies separation from bed and board, but the bond of marriage remains unbroken. This truth is clear enough from the conclusion of this verse, and still clearer in Mk 10, 11; Lk 16, 18; Rom 7, 2; 1 Cor 7, 10f. 39.

5, 44: Do good to those who hate you: wanting in the best Greek sources, as are also the words and calumniate. After love your enemies, some Greek and other ancient sources add: "bless those who curse you."

6, 5: Though kneeling for prayer was not unknown among the Jews (3 Kgs 8, 54; 19, 18; Dn 6, 10; Lk 22, 41; Acts 9, 40), the common practice was to pray standing erect (1 Kgs 1, 26; Mk 11, 25; Lk 18, 11).

6, 11: Daily: found in some codices of the Vulgate, for "super-substantial," and the Greek original of this word is translated "daily" in Lk 11, 3.

12 And forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors.
13 And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.'

14 For 'if you forgive men their offenses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you your offenses. 15 But if you do not forgive men, neither will your Father forgive you your offenses.

Fasting. 16 "And when you fast do not look gloomy like the hypocrites, who disfigure their faces in order to appear to men as fasting. Amen I say to you, they have received their reward. 17 But thou, when thou dost fast, anoint thy head and wash thy face, 18 so that thou mayest not be seen fasting by men, but by thy Father, who is in secret; and thy Father, who sees in secret, will reward thee.

True Riches. 19 "Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where rust and moth consume, d and where thieves break in and steal; 20 but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither rust nor moth consumes, nor thieves break in and steal. 21 For where thy treasure is, there also will thy heart be.

22 "The lamp of the body is the eye. e If thy eye be sound, thy whole body will be full of light. 23 But if thy eye be evil, thy whole body will be full of darkness. Therefore if the light that is in thee is darkness, how great is the darkness itself!

24 "No man can serve two masters; f for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will stand by the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon.*

Trust in God. 25 "Therefore I say to you, do not be anxious for your life, g what you shall eat; nor yet for your body, what you shall put on. Is not the life a greater thing than the food, and the body than the clothing? 26 Look at the birds of the air: they do not sow, or reap, or gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are not you of much more value than they? 27 But which of you by being anxious about it can add to his stature a single cubit?

28 "And as for clothing, why are you anxious? Consider how the lilies of the field grow; they neither toil nor spin, 29 yet I say to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these. 30 But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which flourishes today but tomorrow is thrown into the oven, how much more you, O you of little faith!

31 "Therefore do not be anxious, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or, 'What shall we drink?' or, 'What are we to put on?' 32 (for after all these things the Gentiles seek); for your Father knows that you need all these things. 33 But seek first the kingdom of God and his justice, and all these things shall be given you besides. 34 Therefore do not be anxious about tomorrow; for tomorrow will have anxieties of its own. Sufficient for the day is its own trouble.

CHAPTER 7.

Avoiding Judgments. 1 "Do not judge, h that you may not be judged. 2 For with what judgment you judge, you shall be judged; and with what measure you measure, it shall be measured to you. 3 But why dost thou see the speck in thy brother's eye, i and yet dost not consider the beam in thy own eye? 4 Or how canst thou say to thy brother, 'Let me cast out the speck from thy eye'; and behold, there is a beam in thy own eye? 5 Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam from thy own eye, and then thou wilt see clearly to cast out the speck from thy brother's eye.

6 "Do not give to dogs what is holy, neither cast your pearls before swine, or they will trample them under their feet and turn and tear you.

Power of Prayer. 7 "Ask, and it shall be given you; j seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you. 8 For everyone who asks, receives; and he who seeks, finds; and to him who knocks, it shall be opened. 9 Or what man is there among you, who, if his son asks him for a loaf, will hand him a stone; 10 or if he asks for a fish, will hand him a serpent? 11 Therefore, if you, evil as you are, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give good things to those who ask him!

The Golden Rule. 12 "Therefore all that you wish men to do to you, k even so do you also to them; for this is the Law and the Prophets.

Obstacles to Virtue. 13 "Enter by the narrow gate. l For wide is the gate and broad is the way that leads to destruction, and many there are who enter that way. 14 How narrow the gate and close the way that leads to life! And few there are who find it.

15 "Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly are ravenous wolves. 16 By their fruits you will know them. Do men gather grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles? 17 Even so, every good tree bears m good fruit, but the bad tree bears bad fruit. 18 A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit. 19 Every tree n that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. 20 Therefore, by their fruits you will know them.

21 "Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven; but he who does the will of my Father in heaven shall enter the kingdom of heaven. 22 Many will say to me in that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in thy name, and cast out devils in thy name, and work many miracles in thy name?' 23 And then I will declare to them, 'I never knew you. o Depart from me, you workers of iniquity!'

Conclusion of the Sermon. 24 "Everyone therefore who hears these my words p and acts upon them, shall be likened to a wise man who built his house on rock. 25 And the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, but it did not fall, because it was founded on rock. 26 And everyone who hears these my words and does not act upon them, shall be likened to a foolish man who built his house on sand. 27 And the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, and it fell, and was utterly ruined."

Epilogue. 28 And it came to pass when Jesus had finished these words, that the crowds were astonished at his teaching; 29 for he was teaching them as one having authority, and not as their Scribes and Pharisees.

CHAPTER 8.

A Leper. 1 Now when he had come down from the mountain, great crowds followed him. 2 And behold, a leper came up and worshipped him, saying, "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." 3 And stretching forth his hand Jesus touched him, saying, "I will; be thou made clean." And immediately his leprosy was cleansed. 4 And Jesus said to him, q "See thou tell no one; but go, r show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a witness to them."

The Centurion's Servant. 5 Now s when he had entered Capharnaum, there came to him a centurion who entreated him, 6 saying, "Lord, my servant is lying sick in the house, paralyzed, and is grievously afflicted." 7 Jesus said to him, "I will come and cure him." 8 But in answer the centurion said, "Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof; but only say the word, and my servant will be healed. 9 For I too am a man subject to authority, and have soldiers subject to me; and I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes; and to another, 'Come,' and he comes; and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he does it."

10 And when Jesus heard this, he marvelled,* and said to those who were following him, "Amen I say to you, I have not found such great faith in Israel. 11 And I tell you that many will come from the east and from the west, and will feast with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, 12 but the children of the kingdom will be put forth into the darkness outside; t there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth." 13 Then Jesus said to the centurion, "Go thy way; as thou hast believed, so be it done to thee." And the servant was healed in that hour.

Peter's Mother-in-law. 14 And u when Jesus had come into Peter's house, he saw Peter's mother-in-law lying in bed, sick with a fever. 15 And he touched her hand, and the fever left her; and she rose and began to wait on them.

Other Miracles. 16 Now when it was evening, they brought to him many who were possessed, and he cast out the spirits with a word, and cured all who were sick; 17 that what was spoken Sacrifice to Follow Christ. 18 But when Jesus saw great crowds about him, he gave orders to go across the sea. 19 Then a Scribe came and said to him, [w] "Master, I will follow thee wherever thou goest." 20 But Jesus said to him, "The foxes have dens, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." 21 And another, who was one of his disciples, said to him, "Lord, let me first go and bury my father." 22 But Jesus said to him, "Follow me,* and leave the dead to bury their own dead."

The Storm on the Lake. 23 Then [x] he got into a boat, and his disciples followed him. 24 And behold, there arose a great storm on the sea, so that the boat was covered by the waves; but he was asleep. 25 So they came and woke him, saying, "Lord, save us! we are perishing!" 26 But he said to them, "Why are you fearful, O you of little faith?" Then he arose and rebuked the wind and the sea, and there came a great calm. 27 And the men marvelled, saying, "What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

Expulsion of the Devils in Gerasa. 28 Now [y] when he had come to the other side, to the country of the Gerasenes,* there met him two men who were possessed, coming from the tombs, so exceedingly fierce that no one could pass by that way. 29 And behold, they cried out, saying, "What have we to do with thee, Son of God? Hast thou come here to torment us before the time?"

30 Now not far from them there was a herd of many swine, feeding. 31 And the devils kept entreating him, saying, "If thou cast us out, send us into the herd of swine." 32 And he said to them, "Go!" And they came out and entered into the swine; and behold, the whole herd rushed down the cliff into the sea, and perished in the water. 33 But the swineherds fled, and going away into the town, they reported everything, and what had befallen the men possessed by demons. 34 And behold, all the town came out to meet Jesus; and on seeing him they entreated him to depart from their district.

CHAPTER 9.

A Paralytic at Capharnaum. 1 And [z] getting into a boat, he crossed over and came to his own town. 2 And behold, they brought to him a paralytic lying on a pallet. And Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic, "Take courage, son; thy sins are forgiven thee." 3 And behold, some of the Scribes said within themselves, "This man blasphemes." 4 And Jesus, knowing their thoughts, said, "Why do you harbor evil thoughts in your hearts? 5 For which is easier, to say, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' or to say, 'Arise, and walk'? 6 But that you may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins"—then he said to the paralytic—"Arise, take up thy pallet and go to thy house." 7 And he arose, and went away to his house. 8 But when the crowds saw it, they were struck with fear, and glorified God who had given such power to men.

The Call of Matthew. 9 Now [a] as Jesus passed on from there, he saw a man named Matthew sitting in the tax-collector's place, and said to him, "Follow me." And he arose and followed him. 10 And it came to pass as he was at table in the house, that, behold, many publicans and sinners came to the table with Jesus and his disciples. 11 And the Pharisees [b] seeing it, said to his disciples, "Why does your master eat with publicans and sinners?" 12 But Jesus heard it, and said, "It is not the healthy who need a physician, but they who are sick. 13 But go, and learn what this means: [c] 'I desire mercy, and not sacrifice.' For I have come to call sinners, not the just."

The Question of Fasting. 14 At [d] that time the disciples of John came to him, saying, "Why do we and the Pharisees often fast, whereas thy disciples do not fast?" 15 And Jesus said to them, "Can the wedding guests mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them? But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then they will fast. 16 And no one puts a patch of raw cloth on an old garment, for the patch tears away from the garment, and a worse rent is made. 17 Nor do people pour new wine into old wine-skins, else the skins burst, the wine is spilt, and the skins are ruined. But they put new wine into fresh skins, and both are saved."

The Ruler's Daughter; the Woman with a Hemorrhage. 18 As [e] he was saying this to them, behold, a ruler came up and worshipped him, saying, "My daughter has just now died; but come and lay thy hand upon her, and she will return to life." 19 And Jesus arose and followed him, and so did his disciples.

20 Now a woman who for twelve years had been suffering from hemorrhage, came up behind him and touched the tassel of his cloak, 21 saying to herself, [f] "If I touch but his cloak I shall be saved." 22 But Jesus, turning and seeing her, said, "Take courage, daughter; thy faith has saved thee." And the woman was restored to health from that moment.

23 And when Jesus came to the ruler's house, and saw the flute players and the crowd making a din, he said, 24 "Begone, the girl is asleep, not dead." And they laughed him to scorn. 25 But when the crowd had been put out, he went in and took her by the hand; and the girl arose. 26 And the report of this spread throughout all that district.

Two Blind Men. 27 Now as Jesus was passing on from there, two blind men followed him, crying out and saying, "Have pity on us, Son of David!" 28 And when he had reached the house, the blind men came to him. And Jesus said to them, "Do you believe that I can do this to you?" They answered him, "Yes, Lord." 29 Then he touched their eyes, saying, "Let it be done to you according to your faith." 30 And their eyes were opened. And Jesus strictly charged them, saying, "See that no one knows of this!" 31 But they went out and spread his fame abroad throughout all that district.

A Dumb Demoniac. 32 Now as they were going out, [g] behold, there was brought to him a dumb man possessed by a devil. 33 And when the devil had been cast out, the dumb man spoke; and the crowds marvelled, saying, "Never has the like been seen in Israel." 34 But the Pharisees said, "By the prince of devils he casts out devils."

The Mission of the Apostles. 35 And Jesus was going about all the towns and villages, [i] teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and curing every kind of disease and infirmity. 36 But seeing the crowds, he was moved with compassion for them, [h] because they were bewildered and dejected, like sheep without a shepherd. 37 Then he said to his disciples, [i] "The harvest indeed is great, but the laborers are few. 38 Pray therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest."

CHAPTER 10.

1 Then [j] having summoned his twelve disciples, he gave them power over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to cure every kind of disease and infirmity.

2 Now these are the names of the twelve apostles: [k] first Simon, who is called Peter,* and his brother Andrew; 3 James the son of Zebedee, and his brother John; Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alpheus, and Thaddeus; 4 Simon the Cananean,* and Judas Iscariot, he who betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, having instructed them thus: "Do not go in the direction of the Gentiles, nor enter the towns* of Samaritans; 6 but go rather [l] to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. 7 And as you go, preach the message, 'The kingdom of heaven is at hand!' 8 Cure the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out devils. Freely you have received, freely give. 9 Do not keep gold, or silver, or money* in your girdles, 10 no wallet for your journey, nor two tunics, nor sandals, nor staff;* for the laborer deserves his living.

11 "And whatever town or village you enter, inquire who in it is worthy; and 10, 4: Cananean: the surname of Simon has no connection with the tribal name "Canaanite," but is the Hebrew source of the Greek word for "zealot" (cf Mk 3, 18; Lk 6, 15; Acts 1, 13), denoting a member of a class conspicuous in its opposition to foreign power.

10, 5: Towns: the Greek text has "a town."

10, 9: Money: in the Greek, "brass."

stay there until you leave. 12 As you enter the house, salute it.* 13 If then that house be worthy, your peace will come upon it; but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you. 14 And whoever does not receive you, or listen to your words—go forth outside that house or town, and shake off the dust from your feet. 15 Amen I say to you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for that town.

Opposition Foretold. 16 "Behold, I am sending you forth like sheep in the midst of wolves. Be therefore wise as serpents, and guileless as doves. 17 But beware of men; for they will deliver you up to councils, and scourge you in their synagogues, 18 and you will be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a witness to them and to the Gentiles. 19 But when they deliver you up, do not be anxious how or what you are to speak; for what you are to speak will be given you in that hour. 20 For it is not you who are speaking, but the Spirit of your Father who speaks through you. 21 And brother will hand over brother to death, and the father his child; children will rise up against parents and put them to death. 22 And you will be hated [m] by all for my name's sake; but he who has persevered to the end will be saved. 23 When they persecute you in one town, flee to another. Amen I say to you, you will not have gone through the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

24 "No disciple [n] is above his teacher, nor is the servant above his master. 25 It is enough for the disciple to be like his teacher, and for the servant to be like his master. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, [o] how much more those of his household!

26 "Therefore do not be afraid of them. [p] For there is nothing concealed that will not be disclosed, and nothing hidden that will not be made known. 27 What I tell you in darkness, speak it in the light; and what you hear whispered, preach it on the housetops. 28 And do not be afraid of those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul. But rather be afraid of him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell. 29 Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? And yet not one of them will fall to the ground without your Father's leave. 30 But as for you, the very hairs of your head are all numbered. 31 Therefore do not be afraid; you are of more value than many sparrows.

32 "Therefore, everyone who acknowledges me before men, I also will acknowledge him before my Father in heaven. 33 But whoever disowns me before men, [q] I in turn will disown him before my Father in heaven.

34 "Do not think that I have come to send peace [r] upon the earth; I have come to bring a sword, not peace. 35 For I have come to set a man at variance with his father, [s] and a daughter with her mother, and a daughter-in-law with her mother-in-law; 36 and a man's enemies will be those of his own household. 37 He [t] who loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and he who loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. 38 And he who does not take up his cross and follow me, is not worthy of me. 39 He who finds his life will lose it, [u] and he who loses his life for my sake, will find it.

40 "He who receives you, receives me; [v] and he who receives me, receives him who sent me. 41 He who receives* a prophet because he is a prophet, shall receive a prophet's reward; and he who receives a just man because he is a just man, shall receive a just man's reward. 42 And [w] whoever gives to one of these little ones but a cup of cold water to drink because he is a disciple, amen I say to you, he shall not lose his reward."

CHAPTER 11.

The Baptist's Deputation. 1 Now it came to pass when Jesus had finished giving instructions to his twelve disciples, that he passed on from there to teach and preach in their towns. 2 But [x] when John had heard in prison of the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples 3 to say * to him, "Art thou he who is to come, or shall we look for another?" 4 And Jesus answer-

10, 12: After salute it, the words, "saying, Peace to this house," are added in many Greek and some Latin MSS.

10, 41: To do anything for one of Christ's disciples is to do it for Christ. The union of Christ and the members of His mystical body is very close; in a way they are identified.

11, 2f: Sent two . . . to say: the Greek reads, "sending through his disciples, said."

ing said to them, "Go and report to John what you have heard and seen: [5] the [y] blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead rise, the poor have the gospel preached to them. [6] And blessed is he who is not scandalized in me." *

Christ's Witness Concerning John. [7] Then, as they went away, Jesus began to say to the crowds concerning John, "What did you go out to the desert to see? A reed shaken by the wind? [8] But what did you go out to see? A man clothed in soft garments? Behold, those who wear soft garments are in the houses of kings. [9] But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. [10] This is he of whom it is written, [z] Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, who shall make ready thy way before thee.

[11] "Amen I say to you, among those born of women there has not risen a greater than John the Baptist; yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. [12] But from the days of John the Baptist until now [a] the kingdom of heaven has been enduring violent assault, and the violent have been seizing it by force. [13] For all the Prophets and the Law have prophesied until John. [14] And if you are willing to receive it, [b] he is Elias who was to come. [15] He who has ears to hear, let him hear.

[16] "But to what shall I liken this generation? It is like children sitting in the market place, [17] who call to their companions, and say, 'We have piped to you, and you have not danced; we have sung dirges, and you have not mourned.' [18] For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, 'He has a devil!' [19] The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, 'Behold a glutton and a wine-drinker, a friend of publicans and sinners!' And wisdom is justified by her children." *

The Impenitent Towns. [20] Then he began to reproach the towns in which most of his miracles were worked, because they had not repented. [21] [c] "Woe to thee, Corozain! woe to thee, Bethsaida! For if in Tyre and Sidon had been worked the miracles that have been worked in you, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. [22] But I tell you, it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon on the day of judgment than for you. [23] And thou, Capharnaum, shalt thou be exalted to heaven? Thou shalt be thrust down to hell! For if the miracles had been worked in Sodom that have been worked in thee, it would have remained to this day. [24] But I tell you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom on the day of judgment than for thee."

Jesus Draws Men Gently to Himself. [25] At that time Jesus spoke and said, [d] "I praise thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou didst hide these things from the wise and prudent, and didst reveal them to little ones. [26] Yes, Father, for such was thy good pleasure. [27] All things have been delivered to me by my Father; [e] and no one knows the Son except the Father; nor does anyone know the Father except the Son, and him to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.

[28] "Come to me, all you who labor and are burdened, and I will give you rest. [29] Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me, for I am meek and humble of heart; [f] and you will find rest for your souls. [30] For my yoke [g] is easy, and my burden light."

CHAPTER 12.

The Disciples Pluck Grain on the Sabbath. [1] At that time [h] Jesus went through the standing grain on the Sabbath; and his disciples being hungry, began to pluck ears of grain and to eat. [2] But the Pharisees, when they saw it, said to him, "Thy disciples are doing what it is not lawful for them to do on the Sabbath." [3] But he said to them, "Have you not read [i] what David did when he and those with him were hungry? [4] how he entered the house of God, and ate the loaves of proposition which neither he nor those with him could lawfully eat, [j] but only the priests? [5] Or have you not read in the [k] Law, that on the Sabbath days the priests in the temple break the Sabbath and are guiltless? [6] But I tell you that one greater than the temple is here. [7] But if you knew what this means, 'I desire mercy, and not [l] sacrifice,' you would never have condemned

11, 6: Scandalized in me: i.e., hindered from conceiving the truth concerning Christ.

11, 19: By her children: the Greek reads "by her works."

the innocent; [8] for the Son of Man is Lord * even of the Sabbath."

A Man with a Withered Hand. [9] And when he had passed on from that place he entered their synagogue. [10] And [m] behold, a man with a withered hand was there. And they asked him, saying, "Is it lawful to cure on the Sabbath?" that they might accuse him. [11] But he said to them, [n] "What man is there among you who, if he has a single sheep and it falls into a pit on the Sabbath will not take hold of it and lift it out? [12] How much better is a man than a sheep! Therefore, it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath." [13] Then he said to the man, "Stretch forth thy hand." And he stretched it forth, and it was restored, as sound as the other. [14] But the Pharisees * went out and took counsel against him, how they might do away with him.

The Mercy of Jesus. [15] Then, knowing this, Jesus withdrew * from the place; [o] and many followed him and he cured them all, [16] and warned them not to make him known; [17] that what was spoken through Isaias the prophet might be fulfilled, who said, [18] Behold, [p] my servant, whom I have chosen, my beloved in whom my soul is well pleased: I will put my Spirit upon him, and he will declare judgment to the Gentiles. [19] He will not wrangle, nor cry aloud, neither will anyone hear his voice in the streets. [20] A bruised reed he will not break, and a smoking wick he will not quench, till he send forth judgment unto victory; [21] and in his name will the Gentiles hope.

Blasphemy of the Pharisees. [22] Then there was brought to him a possessed man who was blind and dumb; [q] and he cured him so that he spoke and saw. [23] And all the crowds were amazed, and they said, "Can this be the Son of David?" [24] But the Pharisees, [r] hearing this, said, * "This man does not cast out devils except by Beelzebub, the prince of devils."

[25] And knowing their thoughts Jesus said to them, [s] "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and every city or house divided against itself will not stand. [26] And if Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then shall his kingdom stand? [27] And if I cast out devils by Beelzebub, by whom do your children cast them out? Therefore they shall be your judges. [28] But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God has come * upon you. [29] Or, how can anyone enter the strong man's house, and plunder his goods, unless he first binds the strong man? Then he will plunder his house. [30] He who is not with me is against me, [t] and he who does not gather with me scatters.

[31] "Therefore I say to you, [u] that every kind of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven to men; but the blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven. [32] And whoever speaks a word against the Son of Man, it shall be forgiven him; but whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit,* it will not be forgiven him, either in this world or in the world to come. [33] Either make the tree good and its fruit good, [v] or make the tree bad and its fruit bad; for by the fruit the tree is known. [34] You brood of vipers, how can you speak good things, when you are evil? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks. [35] The good man from his good treasure brings forth good things; and the evil man from his evil treasure brings forth evil things. [36] But I tell you, that of every idle word * men speak, they shall give account on the day of judgment. [37] For by thy words thou wilt be justified, and by thy words thou wilt be condemned."

The Sign of Jonas. [38] Then certain of the Scribes and Pharisees answered him, 12, 14: Cf Mk 3, 6. The Pharisees combine with the Herodians to put Jesus to death.

12, 15-21: Jesus withdrew: He doubtless gave up synagogue preaching for a time. The prohibition against making known His miracles, usually to be accounted for by His desire to avoid the over-excitement which kept people from giving proper attention to His preaching, was probably due in this case to the wish of avoiding conflict with the Pharisees. His meekness recalls to St. Matthew the messianic prediction about the Servant of the Lord, in Is 42, 1-4.

12, 24: The Scribes who charged that our Lord's supernatural works were to be attributed to the devil were from Jerusalem, according to Mk 3, 22.

12, 28: The kingdom of God has come: the victory of Jesus over the demons indicated that He was the Messias. The king was already gathering His people.

12, 32: The sin against the Holy Spirit is to ascribe to the devil the works of the Holy Spirit. One who thus attacks directly this source of all grace rejects the source of salvation. It is morally impossible that he should ever meet the conditions for absolution.

saying, "Master, we would see a sign from thee." 39 But he answered and said to them, [w] "An evil and adulterous generation demands a sign,* and no sign shall be given it but the sign of Jonas the prophet. 40 For even as Jonas was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights, so will the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. 41 The men of [x] Nineve will rise up in the judgment with this generation and will condemn it; for they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, a greater than Jonas is here. 42 The queen of the South will rise up in the judgment with this generation and will condemn it; [y] for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

43 [z] "But when the unclean spirit has gone out of a man, he roams through dry places in search of rest, and finds none. 44 Then he says, 'I will return to my house which I left'; and when he has come to it, he finds the place unoccupied, swept and decorated. 45 Then he goes and takes with him seven other spirits more evil than himself, and they enter in and dwell there; [a] and the last state of that man becomes worse than the first. So shall it be with this evil generation also."

Jesus and His Brethren. 46 While he was still speaking [b] to the crowds, his mother and his brethren were standing outside, seeking to speak to him. 47 And someone said to him, "Behold, thy mother and thy brethren are standing outside, seeking thee." 48 But he answered and said to him who told him, "Who is my mother and who are my brethren?" 49 And stretching forth his hand towards his disciples, he said, "Behold my mother and my brethren! 50 For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven, he is my brother and sister and mother."

CHAPTER 13.

1 On that day Jesus left the house and was sitting by the water's edge. 2 And as [c] great crowds gathered about him, he got into a boat and sat down. And all the crowd stood on the shore.

Parable of the Sower. 3 And he spoke to them many things in parables, saying, "Behold, the sower went out to sow. 4 And as he sowed, some seeds fell by the wayside, and the birds came and ate them up. 5 And other seeds fell upon rocky ground, where they had not much earth; and they sprang up at once, because they had no depth of earth; 6 but when the sun rose they were scorched, and because they had no root they withered away. 7 And other seeds fell among thorns; and the thorns grew up and choked them. 8 And other seeds fell upon good ground, and yielded fruit, some a hundredfold, some sixtyfold, and some thirtyfold. 9 He who has ears to hear, let him hear!"

10 And the disciples came up and said to him, "Why dost thou speak to them in parables?" 11 And he answered and said, "To you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given. 12 For [d] to him who has shall be given, and he shall have abundance;* but from him who does not have, even that which he has shall be taken away. 13 This is why I speak to them in parables, because seeing they do not see, and hearing they do not hear, neither do they understand. 14 In them is being fulfilled the prophecy of Isaias, who says, [e] Hearing you will hear, but not understand; and seeing you will see, but not perceive. 15 For the heart of this people has been hardened, and with their ears they have been hard of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their mind, and be converted, and I heal them.

16 "But blessed are your eyes, for they see; [f] and your ears, for they hear. 17 For amen I say to you, many prophets and just men have longed to see what you see, and they have not seen it; and to hear what you hear, and they have not heard it.

18 "Hear, therefore, the parable [g] of the sower. 19 When anyone hears the word of the kingdom, but does not understand it, the wicked one comes and snatches away what has been sown in his heart. This is he who was sown by the wayside. 20 And the one sown on rocky ground, that is he who hears the word and receives it immediately with joy; 21 yet he has no root in himself, but continues only for a time, and when trouble and persecution come because of the word, he at once falls away. 22 And the one sown among the thorns, that is he who listens to the word; but the care of this world and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and it is made fruitless. 23 And the one sown upon good ground, that is he who hears the word and understands it; he bears fruit and yields in one case a hundredfold, in another sixtyfold, and in another thirtyfold."

The Weeds. 24 Another parable [h] he set before them, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is like a man who sowed good seed in his field; 25 but while men were asleep, his enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and went away. 26 And when the blade sprang up and brought forth fruit, then the weeds appeared as well. 27 And the servants of the householder came and said to him, 'Sir, didst thou not sow good seed in thy field? How then does it have weeds?' 28 He said to them, 'An enemy has done this.' And the servants said to him, 'Wilt thou have us go and gather them up?' 29 'No,' he said, 'lest in gathering the weeds you root up the wheat along with them. 30 Let both grow together until the harvest; and at harvest time I will say to the reapers: Gather up the weeds first and bind them in bundles to burn; but gather the wheat into my barn.' "

The Mustard Seed and the Leaven. 31 Another parable [i] he set before them, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field. 32 This indeed is the smallest of all the seeds; but when it grows up it is larger than any herb and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air come and dwell in its branches."

33 He told them another parable: [j] "The kingdom of heaven is like leaven, which a woman took and buried in three measures of flour, until all of it was leavened."

34 All these things Jesus spoke to the crowds in parables, and without parables he did not speak to them; 35 that what was spoken through the prophet might be fulfilled, [k] I will open my mouth in parables, I will utter things hidden since the foundation of the world.

Explanation of the Parable of the Weeds. 36 Then he left the crowds and went into the house.[l] And his disciples came to him, saying, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds in the field." 37 So answering them he said, "He who sows the good seed is the Son of Man. 38 The field is the world; the good seed, the sons of the kingdom; the weeds, the sons of the wicked one; 39 and the enemy who sowed them is the devil. [m] But the harvest is the end of the world, and the reapers are the angels. 40 Therefore, just as the weeds are gathered up and burnt with fire, so will it be at the end of the world. 41 The Son of Man will send forth his angels, and they will gather out of his kingdom all scandals and those who work iniquity, 42 and cast them into the furnace of fire, where there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth. 43 Then [n] the just will shine forth like the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He who has ears to hear, let him hear.

The Treasure and the Pearl. 44 "The kingdom of heaven is like a treasure hidden in a field; he who finds it hides it, and in his joy goes and sells all that he has and buys that field.

45 "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant in search of fine pearls. 46 When he finds a single pearl of great price, he goes and sells all that he has and buys it.

Parable of the Net. 47 "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net cast into the sea that gathered in fish of every kind. 48 When it was filled, they hauled it out, and sitting down on the beach, they gathered the good fish into vessels, but threw away the bad. 49 So will it be at the end of the world. The angels will go out and separate the wicked from among the just, 50 and will cast them into the furnace of fire, where there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.

Conclusion. 51 "Have you understood all these things?" They said to him, "Yes." 52 And he said to them, "So then, every Scribe instructed in the kingdom of heaven is like a householder who brings forth from his storeroom things new and old."

Jesus at Nazareth. 53 And it came to pass when Jesus had finished these parables, that he set out from that place. 54 And when he had come to his own country, [o] he began to teach them in their synagogues, so that they were astonished, and said, "How did this man come by this wisdom and these miracles? 55 Is not this the carpenter's son? [p] Is not his mother called Mary, and his brethren James and Joseph and Simon and Jude? 56 And his sisters, are they not all with us? Then where did he get all this?" 57 And they took offense at him.* But Jesus said to them, "A prophet is not without honor except in his own country, and in his own house." 58 And because of their unbelief, he did not work many miracles there.

CHAPTER 14.

Death of the Baptist. 1 At that time [q] Herod the tetrarch heard about the fame of Jesus, 2 and he said to his servants, "This is John the Baptist; he has risen from the dead, and that is why miraculous powers are working through him."

3 For Herod [r] had taken John, and bound him, and put him in prison, because of Herodias, his brother's wife. 4 For John had said to him, [s] "It is not lawful for thee to have her." 5 And he would have liked to put him to death, but he feared the people, [t] because they regarded him as a prophet.

6 But on Herod's birthday, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod. 7 Whereupon he promised with an oath to give her whatever she might ask of him. 8 Then she, at her mother's prompting, said, "Give me here on a dish the head of John the Baptist." 9 And grieved as he was, the king, because of his oath and his guests, commanded it to be given. 10 He sent and had John beheaded in the prison. 11 And his head was brought on a dish and given to the girl, who carrried it to her mother. 12 His disciples came, took away his body, and buried it. And they went and told Jesus.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand. 13 When Jesus heard this, he withdrew by boat to a desert place apart; [u] but the crowds heard of it and followed him on foot from the towns. 14 And when he landed, he saw a large crowd, and out of compassion for them he cured their sick. 15 Now when it was evening, his disciples came to him, saying, "This is a desert place and the hour is already late; send the crowds away, so that they may go into the villages and buy themselves food."

16 But Jesus said to them, "They do not need to go away; you yourselves give them some food." 17 They answered him, "We have here only five loaves and two fishes." 18 He said to them, "Bring them here to me."

19 And when he had ordered the crowd to recline on the grass, he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. 20 And all ate and were satisfied; and they gathered up what was left over, twelve baskets full of fragments. 21 Now the number of those who had eaten was five thousand men, without counting women and children.

Jesus Walks on the Water. 22 And [v] immediately afterwards he made his disciples get into the boat and cross the sea ahead of him, while he dismissed the crowd. 23 And when he had dismissed the crowd, he went up the mountain by himself to pray. And when it was late, he was there alone, 24 but the boat was in the midst of the sea, buffeted by the waves, for the wind was against them. 25 But in the fourth watch of the night he came to them, walking upon the sea. 26 And they, seeing him walking upon the sea, were greatly alarmed, and exclaimed, "It is a ghost!" And they cried out for fear. 27 Then Jesus immediately spoke to them, saying, "Take courage; it is I, do not be afraid."

28 But Peter answered him and said, "Lord, if it is thou, bid me come to thee over the water." 29 And he said, "Come." Then Peter got out of the boat and walked on the water to come to Jesus. 30 But seeing the wind was strong, he was afraid; and as he began to sink he cried out, saying, "Lord, save me!" 31 And Jesus at once stretched forth his hand and took hold of him, saying to him, "O thou of little faith, why didst thou doubt?" [32]And when they got into the boat, the wind fell. [33] But they who were in the boat came and worshipped him, saying, "Truly thou art the Son of God."

Other Miracles. [34] And crossing over, they came to the land at Genesar.[w] [35] The inhabitants of that place, as soon as they recognized him, sent into that whole country, and brought to him all the sick, [36] and they entreated him to let them touch but the tassel of his cloak; and all who touched it were saved.

CHAPTER 15.

Jesus and the Pharisees. [1] Then Scribes and Pharisees from Jerusalem came to him, [x] saying, [2] "Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the ancients? For they do not wash their hands when they take food." [3] But he answered and said to them, "And why do you transgress the commandment of God because of your tradition? [4] For God said, [y] 'Honor thy father and thy mother'; and, 'Let him who curses father or mother be put to death.' [5] But you say, 'Whoever shall say to his father or mother, "Any support thou mightest have had from me is dedicated to God," [6] does not have to honor his father or his mother.' So you have made void the commandment of God by your tradition. [7] Hypocrites, well did Isaias prophesy of you, saying, [8] [z]

This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me; [9] and in vain do they worship me, teaching as doctrine the precepts of men."

[10] Then he called the crowd to him, and said to them, "Hear, and understand. [11] What * goes into the mouth does not defile a man; but it is what comes out of the mouth that defiles a man." [12] Then his disciples came up and said to him, "Dost thou know that the Pharisees have taken offense at hearing this saying?" [13] But he answered and said, [a] "Every plant that my heavenly Father has not planted will be rooted up. [14] Let them alone; [b] they are blind guides of blind men. But if a blind man guide a blind man, both fall into a pit."

[15] But Peter spoke to him, saying, "Explain to us this parable." [16]And he said, "Are you also even yet without understanding? [17] Do you not realize that whatever enters the mouth passes into the belly and is cast out into the drain? [18] But the things that proceed out of the mouth come from the heart, and it is they that defile a man. [19] For out of the heart come evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, immorality, thefts, false witness, blasphemies. [20] These are the things that defile a man; but to eat with unwashed hands does not defile a man."

IV

The Canaanite Woman. [21] And leaving there, [c] Jesus retired to the district of Tyre and Sidon. [22] And behold, a Canaanite woman came out of that territory and cried out to him, saying, "Have pity on me, O Lord, Son of David! My daughter is sorely beset by a devil." [23] He answered her not a word. And his disciples came up and besought him, saying, "Send her away, for she is crying after us." [24] But he answered and said, * "I was not sent [d] except to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." [25] But she came and worshipped him, saying, "Lord, help me!" [26] He said in answer, "It is not fair to take the children's bread and to cast it to the dogs." [27] But she said, "Yes, Lord; for even the dogs eat of the crumbs that fall from their masters' table." [28] Then Jesus answered and said to her, "O woman, great is thy faith! Let it be done to thee as thou wilt." And her daughter was healed from that moment.

Jesus Heals the Suffering. [29] And when Jesus had departed from there, he went along the sea of Galilee; [e] and he went up the mountain and sat there. [30]And great crowds [f] came to him, bringing with them the dumb, the blind, the lame, the maimed, and many others; and they set them down at his feet, and he cured them; [31] so that the crowds marvelled to see the dumb speak, the lame walk, and the blind see. And they glorified the God of Israel.

Jesus Feeds Four Thousand. [32] Then Jesus called together his disciples and said, [g] "I have compassion on the crowd, for they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat; and I am unwilling to send them away fasting, lest they faint on the way." 33 And the disciples said to him, "But in a desert, where are we to get enough loaves to satisfy so great a crowd?" 34 Jesus said to them, "How many loaves have you?" And they said, "Seven, and a few little fishes."

35 And he bade the crowd recline on the ground. 36 Then taking the seven loaves and the fishes, he gave thanks, broke them and gave them to his disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowd. 37 And they all ate and were satisfied; and they took up what was left of the fragments, seven full baskets. 38 Now those who had eaten were four thousand men, apart from children and women.

39 When he had dismissed the crowd, he got into the boat, and came into the district of Magedan.

CHAPTER 16.

The Pharisees and Sadducees Ask a Sign. 1 And the Pharisees and Sadducees came to him to test him, [h] and they asked him to show them a sign from heaven. 2 But answering them he said, [i] "When it is evening you say, 'The weather will be fair, for the sky is red.' 3 And in the morning you say, 'It will be stormy today, for the sky is red and lowering.' 4 You know then how to read the face of the sky, but cannot read the signs of the times! [j] An evil and adulterous generation demands a sign, and no sign shall be given it but the sign of Jonas." And he left them and went away.

The Leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees. 5 And when his disciples crossed the sea, they found that they had forgotten to bring bread. 6 And he said to them, [k] "Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees!" 7 But they began to argue among themselves, saying, "We have brought no bread." 8 But Jesus knowing this, said, "You of little faith, why do you argue among yourselves that you have no bread? 9 Do you not yet understand, nor remember the five loaves [l] among five thousand men, and how many baskets you took up? 10 [m] Nor the seven loaves among four thousand, and how many large baskets you took up? 11 Why do you not understand that it was not of bread I said to you, 'Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees'?" 12 Then they understood that he bade them beware not of the leaven of bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

Peter's Confession. 13 Now Jesus, having come into the district of Caesarea [n] Philippi, began to ask his disciples, saying, "Who do men say the Son of Man is?" 14 But they said, "Some say, John the Baptist; and others, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets." 15 He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" 16 Simon Peter answered and said, [o] "Thou art the Christ, * the Son of the living God." 17 Then Jesus answered and said, "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona, * for flesh and blood has not revealed this to thee, but my Father in heaven. 18 And I say to thee, [p] thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church,* and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. 19 And I will give thee the keys * of the kingdom of heaven; [q] and whatever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." 20 Then he strictly charged his disciples to tell no one * that he was Jesus the Christ.

16, 16f: From the declaration that Peter's knowledge of the nature of Jesus was revealed by the Father, we may be sure that he was not speaking of adoptive sonship when he called Jesus the Son of the living God. For him the Messiahship is transcendent, the Messias is divine.

16, 17: Bar-Jona: "son of Jona." Jona is most likely an abridged form of Johanan—John. Peter, in Greek Petros, is a masculine form from Petra, "rock." In Aramaic the name meaning "rock" is Kepha; in Greek it took on the form Kephas.

16, 18: In the Gospels the word Church is used only here and in Mt 18, 17. In the Old Testament it designated the assembly of Israel. Here in speaking of His Church our Lord means a society of men united to serve God as He had taught them to do. Compared with an edifice, it is said to rest on a rock as did the house of the wise man of Mt 7, 24. The rock was Peter. Of course the strength of the foundation comes from Christ.

The gates of hell: hostile, evil powers. Their aggressive force will struggle in vain against the Church. She shall never be overcome; she is indefectible. And since she has the office of teacher (cf Mt 28, 16-20), and since she would be overcome if error prevailed, she is infallible.

16, 19: Keys: a symbol of authority. Peter has the power to admit into the Church and to exclude therefrom. Nor is he merely the porter; he has complete power within the Church. "To bind and loose" seems to have been used by the Jews in the sense of to forbid or to permit; but Mt 18, 18 as well as the present context requires a more comprehensive meaning. In heaven God ratifies the decisions which Peter makes on earth, in the name of Christ.

16, 20: Jesus still maintains the secret of His real character. On account of the prevalent views concerning the Messias and His kingdom, there was great danger that the people would think that He was to set up an earthly reign.

disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things [r] from the elders and Scribes and chief priests, and be put to death, and on the third day rise again. 22 And Peter taking him aside, began to chide him, saying, "Far be it from thee, O Lord; this will never happen to thee." 23 He turned and said to Peter, "Get behind me, satan, thou art a scandal to me; for thou dost not mind the things of God, but those of men."

The Doctrine of the Cross. 24 Then Jesus said to his disciples, [s] "If anyone wishes to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. 25 For [t] he who would save his life will lose it; but he who loses his life for my sake will find it. 26 For what does it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, but suffer the loss of his own soul? Or what will a man give in exchange for his soul? 27 For the Son of Man is to come with his angels in the glory of his Father, and then [u] he will render to everyone according to his conduct. 28 Amen I say to you, there are some of those standing here who will not taste death, till they have seen the Son of Man coming in his kingdom." *

CHAPTER 17.

Jesus Transfigured. 1 Now [v] after six days Jesus took Peter, James and his brother John, and led them up a high mountain by themselves, 2 and was transfigured before them. And his face shone as the sun, and his garments became white as snow. 3 And behold, there appeared to them Moses and Elias talking together with him. 4 Then Peter addressed Jesus, saying, "Lord, it is good for us to be here. If thou wilt, let us set up three tents here, one for thee, one for Moses, and one for Elias." 5 As he was still speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them, [w] and behold, a voice out of the cloud said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear him." 6 And on hearing it the disciples fell on their faces and were exceedingly afraid. 7 And Jesus came near and touched them, and said to them, "Arise, and do not be afraid." 8 But lifting up their eyes, they saw no one but Jesus only.

On the Coming of Elias. 9 And as they were coming down from the mountain, [x] Jesus cautioned them, saying, "Tell the vision to no one, till the Son of Man has risen from the dead." 10 And the disciples asked him, saying, "Why then do the Scribes say that Elias must come first?" 11 But he answered and said, [y] "Elias indeed is to come and will restore all things. 12 But I say to you [z] that Elias has come already, and they do not know him, but did to him whatever they wished. So also shall the Son of Man suffer at their hands." 13 Then the disciples understood that he had spoken to them of John the Baptist.

A Possessed Boy. 14 And [a] when he had come to the crowd, a man approached him and threw himself on his knees before him, saying, "Lord, have pity on my son, for he is a lunatic, and suffers severely; for often he falls into the fire, and often into the water. 15 And I brought him to thy disciples, but they could not cure him."

16 Jesus answered and said, "O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I put up with you? Bring him here to me." 17 And Jesus rebuked him; and the devil went out of him; and from that moment the boy was cured.

18 Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, "Why could not we cast it out?" 19 He said to them, "Because of your little faith; for amen I say to you, [b] if you have faith like a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, * 'Remove from here'; and it will remove. And nothing will be impossible to you. 20 But this kind can be cast out only by prayer and fasting."

The Second Prediction of the Passion. 21 Now while they were together in Galilee, Jesus said to them, [c] "The Son of Man is to be betrayed into the hands of men, 22 and they will kill him; and on the third day he will rise again." And they were exceedingly sorry.

16, 28: This saying should not be regarded as closely connected with the preceding saying about the Lord's coming in glory. It is introduced in Mk 8, 39 by the formula, "He also said to them." Here there is question not of Jesus' coming in glory but of another coming which establishes His kingdom on earth, probably that of Pentecost.

17, 19: The hyperbole seems to be traditional. Job says that God "removes the mountains" (Jb 9, 5); and in the Psalms we read that "mountains plunge" (Ps 45 (46), 3).

Paying the Temple Tax. 23 And when they had come to Capharnaum, those who were collecting the didrachma came to Peter and said, "Does your Master not pay the didrachma?" 24 He said, "Yes." But when he had entered the house, Jesus spoke first, saying, "What dost thou think, Simon? From whom do the kings of the earth receive tribute or customs; from their own sons, or from others?" 25 And he said, "From others." Jesus said to him, "The sons then are * exempt. 26 But that we may not give offense to them, go to the sea and cast a hook, and take the first fish that comes up. And opening its mouth thou wilt find a stater; take that and give it to them for me and for thee."

CHAPTER 18.

Against Ambition. 1 At that hour [d] the disciples came to Jesus, saying, * "Who then is greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" 2 And Jesus called a little child to him, set him in their midst, 3 and said, "Amen I say to you, unless you turn and become like little children, [e] you will not enter into the kingdom of heaven. 4 Whoever, therefore, humbles himself as this little child, he is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

Avoiding Scandal. 5 "And whoever receives one such little child for my sake, receives me. 6 But [f] whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it were better for him to have a great millstone hung around his neck, and to be drowned in the depths of the sea.

7 "Woe to the world because of scandals! For it must needs be that scandals come, but woe to the man through whom scandal does come! 8 And [g] if thy hand or thy foot is an occasion of sin to thee, cut it off and cast it from thee! It is better for thee to enter life maimed or lame, than, having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the everlasting fire. 9 And if thy eye is an occasion of sin to thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee! It is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, than, having two eyes, to be cast into hell-fire.

The Lost Sheep. 10 "See that you do not despise one of these little ones; for I tell you, [h] their angels in heaven always behold the face of my Father in heaven. 11 For [i] the Son of Man came to save what was lost. 12 What do you think? [j] If a man have a hundred sheep, and one of them stray, will he not leave the ninety-nine in the mountains, and go in search of the one that has strayed? 13 And if he happen to find it, amen I say to you, he rejoices over it more than over the ninety-nine that did not go astray. 14 Even so, it is not the will of your Father in heaven that a single one of these little ones should perish.

Fraternal Correction. 15 "But if thy brother sin against thee, [k] go and show him his fault, between thee and him alone. If he listen to thee, thou hast won thy brother. 16 But if he do not listen to thee, take with thee one or two more so that [l] on the word of two or three witnesses every word may be confirmed. 17 And [m] if he refuse to hear them, appeal to the Church, but if he refuse to hear even the Church, let him be to thee as the heathen and the publican. 18 Amen I say to you, [n] whatever you bind *on earth shall be bound also in heaven; and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed also in heaven.

The Power of United Prayer. 19 *"I say to you further, that if two of you shall agree on earth about anything at all for which they ask, it shall be done for them by my Father in heaven. 20 For where two or three are gathered together for my sake, there am I in the midst of them."

The Unmerciful Servant. 21 Then Peter came up to him and said, [o] "Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Up to seven times?" 22 Jesus said to him, "I do not say to thee seven times, but * seventy times seven.

23 "This is why the kingdom of heaven is likened to a king who desired to settle accounts with his servants. 24 And when he had begun the settlement, one was brought to him who owed him ten thousand talents. 25 And as he had no means

17, 24-26: Ex 30, 13 required the paying of this tax for the temple. Our Lord as Son of God might claim exemption; He submits to the Law only to avoid scandal.

18, 1-14: In the Church, our Lord's disciples must avoid scandal and practise humility; they must have zeal for the conversion of sinners.

18, 18: To the Apostles as a body is given a part of the power granted to Peter (Mt 16, 19). There will be no conflict of authority, since Peter is the head of the Church, including the Apostles, he alone having received "the keys of the kingdom of heaven."

of paying, his master ordered him to be sold, with his wife and children and all that he had, and payment to be made. 26 But the servant fell down and besought him, saying, 'Have patience with me and I will pay thee all!' 27 And moved with compassion, the master of that servant released him, and forgave him the debt.

28 "But as that servant went out, he met one of his fellow-servants who owed him a hundred denarii, and he laid hold of him and throttled him, saying, 'Pay what thou owest.' 29 His fellow-servant therefore fell down and began to entreat him, saying, 'Have patience with me and I will pay thee all.' 30 But he would not; but went away and cast him into prison until he should pay what was due.

31 "His fellow-servants therefore, seeing what had happened, were very much saddened, and they went and informed their master of what had taken place. 32 Then his master called him, and said to him, 'Wicked servant! I forgave thee all the debt, because thou didst entreat me. 33 Shouldst not thou also have had pity on thy fellow-servant, even as I had pity on thee?' 34 And his master, being angry, handed him over to the torturers until he should pay all that was due to him. 35 So also my heavenly Father will do to you, [p] if you do not each forgive your brothers from your hearts."

CHAPTER 19.

1 And it came to pass * when Jesus had brought these words to a close, that he departed from Galilee [q] and came to the district of Judea beyond the Jordan. 2 And great crowds followed him, and he cured them there.

19, 1-9: Divorce is forbidden; cf Mt 5, 32.

19, 10-12: Continence practised in view of the kingdom of God is better than the married life.

19, 16: Jesus raises the mind of the young ruler to the One who is supremely good and the source of all goodness. He does not reveal to him that He Himself is God, but neither does He deny it. In the parallel texts, Mk 10, 17 and Lk 18, 18, our Lord asks, "Why dost thou call me good?", which creates a theological difficulty not found in Matthew's Gospel: Jesus apparently disclaims being good and consequently being God. But He does not really disclaim goodness, even according to Mark and Luke; He simply takes into account the mind of the young man who has as yet no idea that Jesus is absolute goodness. Life: not the life of heaven only, but the life of grace here on earth.

The Question of Divorce. 3 And there came to him some Pharisees, testing him, and saying, "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for any cause?" 4 But he answered and said to them, "Have you not read that the Creator, [r] from the beginning, made them male and female, and said, 5 For this cause [s] a man shall leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh? 6 Therefore now they are no longer two, but one flesh. What therefore God has joined together, let no man put asunder." 7 They said to him, [t] "Why then did Moses command to give a written notice of dismissal, and to put her away?" 8 He said to them, "Because Moses, by reason of the hardness of your heart, permitted you to put away your wives; but it was not so from the beginning. 9 And I say to you, that whoever puts away his wife, except for immorality, [u] and marries another, commits adultery; and he who marries a woman who has been put away commits adultery."

10 * His disciples said to him, "If the case of a man with his wife is so, it is not expedient to marry." 11 And he said, "Not all can accept this teaching; but those to whom it has been given. 12 For there are eunuchs who were born so from their mother's womb; and there are eunuchs who were made so by men; and there are eunuchs who have made themselves so for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Let him accept it who can."

Jesus Blesses the Children. 13 Little children [v] were brought to him then that he might lay his hands on them and pray; but the disciples rebuked them. 14 But Jesus said to them, [w] "Let the * little children be, and do not hinder them from coming to me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." 15 And when he had laid his hands on them, he departed from that place.

The Danger of Riches. 16 And behold, [x] a certain man came to him and said, * "Good Master, what good work shall I do to have eternal life?" 17 He said to him, "Why dost thou ask me about what is good? One there is who is good, and he is God. But if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." 18 He said to him, "Which?" And Jesus said, [y] Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness. 19 Honor thy father and mother. And, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. 20 The young man said to him, "All these I have kept; what is yet wanting to me?" 21 Jesus said to him, "If thou wilt be perfect, go, sell what thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me." 22 But when the young man heard the saying, he went away sad, for he had great possessions.

23 But Jesus said to his disciples, "Amen I say to you, with difficulty will a rich man enter the kingdom of heaven. 24 * And further I say to you, it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven." 25 The disciples, hearing this, were exceedingly astonished, and said, "Who then can be saved?" 26 And looking upon them, Jesus said to them, "With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible."

27 Then Peter addressed him, saying, "Behold, we have left all and followed thee; what then shall we have?" 28 And Jesus said to them, "Amen I say to you that you who have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man shall sit on the throne of his glory, shall also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. 29 And everyone who has left house, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold,* and shall possess life everlasting. 30 But many who are first [z] now will be last, and many who are last now will be first.

Parable of the Laborers in the Vineyard. 1 "For the kingdom of heaven is like a householder who went out early in the morning to hire laborers * for his vineyard. 2 And having agreed with the laborers for a denarius a day, he sent them into his vineyard. 3 And about the third hour,* he went out and saw others standing in the market place idle; 4 and he said to them, 'Go you also into the vineyard, and I will give you whatever is just.' 5 So they went. And again he went out about the sixth, and about the ninth hour, and did as before. 6 But about the eleventh hour he went out and found others standing about, and he said to them, 'Why do you stand here all day idle?' 7 They said to him, 'Because no man has hired us.' He said to them, 'Go you also into the vineyard.' 8 But when evening had come, the owner of the vineyard said to his steward, 'Call the laborers, and pay them their wages, beginning from the last even to the first.' 9 Now when they of the eleventh hour came, they received each a denarius. 10 And when the first in their turn came, they thought that they would receive more; but they also received each his denarius. 11 And on receiving it, they began to murmur against the householder, 12 saying, 'These last have worked a single hour, and thou hast put them on a level with us, who have borne the burden of the day's heat.' 13 But answering one of them, he said, 'Friend, I do thee no injustice; didst thou not agree with me for a denarius? 14 Take what is thine and go; I choose to give to this last even as to thee. 15 Have I not a right to do what I choose? Or art thou envious because I am generous?' 16 Even [a] so the last shall be first, and the first last; for many are called, but few are chosen."

The Third Prediction of the Passion. 17 And as Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside by themselves, and said to them, 18 "Behold, [b] we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and the Scribes; and they will condemn him to death, 19 and will deliver him to the Gentiles to be mocked and scourged and crucified; and on the third day he will rise again."

The Mother of James and John. 20 Then

19, 24: Our Lord expresses in a paradoxical way the idea that it is very difficult for a rich man to be saved; v 26 shows that it is not impossible with the help of God.

19, 29: A hundredfold: According to St. Jerome, spiritual goods.

20, 1-16: The laborers in the vineyard all receive the same reward, a denarius. God is master of His gifts and His grace may make one who has served Him only for a short time as worthy of supernatural rewards as one who has borne the burden of the day and the heat. However, our Lord does not seem here to be speaking of the individual rewards of heaven. The parable refers to the call of the Gentiles to share in the spiritual privileges of Israel. Many are called, but few are chosen: the words appear to refer to the Jews, of whom relatively few came into the Church. According to the best authorities, the saying should not be here; it is taken from Mt 22, 14.

20, 3. 5. 6: About the third . . . sixth . . . ninth . . . eleventh hour: i.e., about nine o'clock . . . noon . . . three . . . five o'clock.

* the mother of the sons of Zebedee came to him with her sons; [c] and worshipping, she made a request of him. 21 He said to her, "What dost thou want?" She said to him, "Command that these my two sons may sit, one at thy right hand and one at thy left hand, in thy kingdom." 22 But Jesus answered and said, "You do not know what you are asking for. Can you drink of the cup of which I am about to drink?" They said to him, "We can." 23 He said to them, "Of my cup you shall indeed drink; but as for sitting at my right hand and at my left, that is not mine to give you, but it belongs to those for whom it has been prepared by my Father."

24 And when the ten heard this, they were indignant at the two brothers. 25 But Jesus called them to him, and said, [d] "You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great men exercise authority over them. 26 Not so is it among you. On the contrary, whoever wishes to become great among you shall be your servant; 27 and whoever wishes to be first among you shall be your slave; 28 even [e] as the Son of Man has not come to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many."

The Blind Men at Jericho. 29 And [f] as they were leaving Jericho, a great crowd followed him. 30 And behold, two blind men sitting by the wayside heard that Jesus was passing by, and cried out, saying, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!" 31 And the crowd angrily tried to silence them. But they cried out all the louder, saying, "Lord, have mercy on us, Son of David!" 32 Then Jesus stopped, and called them, and said, "What will you have me do for you?" 33 They said to him, "Lord, that our eyes be opened." 34 And Jesus, moved with compassion for them, touched their eyes; and at once they received their sight, and followed him.

20, 20-23: James and John shall partake of our Lord's chalice, that is of His suffering (cf Mt 26, 29). But it does not belong to Him as the Messias, the envoy sent by the Father, to allot places in the kingdom. As God, His action in this matter is the same as that of the Father.

21, 9: Son of David: the title is clearly messianic; for the first time our Lord permits a public manifestation in honor of Himself as the Messias. Hosanna, addressed to God, means "Save us, we pray." The word, however, seems to have been used as a joyous exclamation of welcome.

VI

CHAPTER 21.

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem. 1 And when [g] they drew near to Jerusalem, and came to Bethphage, on the Mount of Olives, then Jesus sent two disciples, 2 saying to them, "Go into the village opposite you, and immediately you will find an ass tied, and a colt with her; loose them and bring them to me. 3 And if anyone say anything to you, you shall say that the Lord has need of them, and immediately he will send them." 4 Now this was done that what was spoken through the prophet might be fulfilled, 5 [h] Tell the daughter of Sion: Behold, thy king comes to thee, meek and seated upon an ass, and upon a colt, the foal of a beast of burden.

6 So the disciples went and did as Jesus had directed them. 7 And they brought the ass and the colt, laid their cloaks on them, and made him sit thereon. 8 And most of the crowd spread their cloaks upon the road, while others were cutting branches from the trees, and strewing them on the road. 9 And the crowds that went before him, and those that followed, kept crying out, saying, [i] *Hosanna to the Son of David! * Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest!* 10 And when he entered Jerusalem, all the city was thrown into commotion, saying, "Who is this?" 11 But the crowds kept on saying, "This is Jesus the prophet from Nazareth of Galilee."

Cleansing of the Temple. 12 And [j] Jesus entered the temple of God, and cast out all those who were selling and buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money-changers and the seats of those who sold the doves. 13 And he said to them, "It is written, [k] My house shall be called a house of prayer; but you have made it a den of thieves."

14 And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he healed them. 15 But the chief priests and the Scribes, seeing the wonderful deeds that he did, and the children crying out in the temple, and saying, "Hosanna to the Son of David," were indignant, 16 and said to him, [l] "Dost thou hear what these are saying?" And Jesus said to them, "Yes; have you never read, Out of the mouth of infants and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?"

17 And leaving them, he went out of the city to Bethany and he stayed there.

Jesus Curses a Fig Tree. 18 Now in the morning, on his way back to the city, he felt hungry. 19 And [m] seeing a fig tree by the wayside,* he came up to it, and found nothing on it but leaves; and he said to it, "May no fruit ever come from thee henceforward forever!" And immediately the fig tree withered up.

20 And upon seeing this the disciples marvelled, saying, "How did it come to wither up immediately?" 21 But Jesus answered and said to them, "Amen I say to you, if you have faith and do not waver, not only will you do what I have done to the fig tree, but even if you shall say to this mountain, 'Arise, and hurl thyself into the sea,' it shall be done. 22 And [n] all things whatever you ask for in prayer, believing, you shall receive."

The Authority of Jesus. 23 And when he had come into the temple, the chief priests and elders of the people came to him as he was teaching, and said, [o] "By what authority dost thou do these things? And who gave thee this authority?" 24 Jesus answered and said to them, "I also will ask you one question, and if you answer me this, I in turn will tell you by what authority I do these things. 25 Whence was the baptism of John? from heaven, or from men?" But they began to argue among themselves, saying, 26 "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say to us, 'Why then did you not believe him?' But if we say, 'From men,' we fear the people, [p] for all regard John as a prophet." 27 And they answered Jesus and said, "We do not know." Then he in turn said to them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things.

Parable of the Two Sons. 28 "But what do you think? A man had two sons; and he came to the first and said, 'Son, go and work today in my vineyard.' 29 But he answered and said, 'I will not'; but afterwards he regretted it and went. 30 And he came to the other and spoke in the same manner. And this one answered, 'I go, sir'; but he did not go. 31 Which of the two did the father's will?" They said, "The first." Jesus said to them, "Amen I say to you, the publicans and harlots are entering the kingdom of God before you. 32 For John came to you in the way of justice, and you did not believe him. But the publicans and the harlots believed him; whereas you, seeing it, did not even repent afterwards, that you might believe him.

Parable of the Vine-dressers. 33 "Hear another parable. [q] There was a man, a householder, who planted a vineyard, and put a hedge about it, and dug a wine vat in it, and built a tower; then he let it out to vine-dressers, and went abroad. 34 But when the fruit season drew near, he sent his servants to the vine-dressers to receive his fruits. 35 And the vine-dressers seized his servants, and beat one, killed another, and stoned another. 36 Again he sent another party of servants more numerous than the first; and they did the same to these. 37 Finally he sent his son * to them, saying, "They will respect my son.'

38 "But the vine-dressers, on seeing the son, said among themselves, [r] 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and we shall have his inheritance.' 39 So they seized him, cast him out of the vineyard, and killed him. 40 When, therefore, the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those vine-dressers?" 41 They said to him, "He will utterly destroy those evil men, and will let out the vineyard to other vine-dressers, who will render to him the fruits in their seasons."

42 Jesus said to them, "Did you never read in the Scriptures, [s] The stone which the builders rejected, has become the corner stone; by the Lord this has been done, and it is wonderful in our eyes? 43 Therefore I say to you, that the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and will be given to a people yielding its fruits. 44 And he who falls on this stone will be broken to pieces; but upon whomever it falls, it will grind him to powder."

45 And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they knew that he was speaking about them. 46 And though they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the people, because they regarded him as a prophet.

CHAPTER 22.

The Marriage Feast. 1 And Jesus addressed them, and spoke to them again in parables,* 2 saying, [t] "The kingdom of heaven is like a king who made a marriage feast for his son. 3 And he sent his servants to call in those invited to the marriage feast, but they would not come. 4 Again he sent out other servants, saying, 'Tell those who are invited, Behold, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and fatlings are killed, and everything is ready; come to the marriage feast.' 5 But they made light of it, and went off, one to his farm, and another to his business; 6 and the rest laid hold of his servants, treated them shamefully, and killed them.

7 "But when the king heard of it, he was angry; and he sent his armies, destroyed those murderers, and burnt their city. 8 Then he said to his servants, 'The marriage feast indeed is ready, but those who were invited were not worthy; 9 go therefore to the crossroads, and invite to the marriage feast whomever you shall find.' 10 And his servants went out into the roads, and gathered all whom they found, both good and bad; and the marriage feast was filled with guests.

11 "Now the king went in to see the guests, and he saw there a man who had not on a wedding garment. 12 And he said to him, 'Friend, how didst thou come in here without a wedding garment?' But he was speechless. 13 Then the king said to the attendants, [u] 'Bind his hands and feet and cast him forth into the darkness outside, where there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.' 14 For many are called, but few are chosen."

Tribute to Caesar. 15 Then the Pharisees [v] went and took counsel how they might trap him in his talk. 16 And they sent to him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, "Master, we know that thou art truthful, and that thou teachest the way of God in truth, and that thou carest naught for any man; for thou dost not regard the person of men. 17 Tell us, therefore, what dost thou think: Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar, or not?" 18 But Jesus, knowing their wickedness, said, "Why do you test me, you hypocrites? 19 Show me the coin of the tribute." So they offered him a denarius. 20 Then Jesus said to them, "Whose are this image and the inscription?" 21 They said to him, * "Caesar's." Then he said to them, [w] "Render, therefore, to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." 22 And hearing this they marvelled, and leaving him went off.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection. 23 On that same day some of the Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, [x] came to him, and questioned him, 24 saying, "Master, Moses said, [y] 'If a man die without having a son, his brother shall marry the widow and raise up issue to his brother.' 25 Now there were among us seven brothers. And the first, after having married a wife, died, and having no issue, left his wife to his brother. 26 In like manner the second, and the third down to the seventh. 27 And last of all the woman also died. 28 At the resurrection, therefore, of which of the seven will she be the wife? For they all had her."

29 But Jesus answered and said to them, "You err because you know neither the Scriptures nor the power of God. 30 For at the resurrection they will neither marry nor be given in marriage, but will be as angels of God in heaven. 31 But as to the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was spoken to you by God, saying, 32 [z] I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? He is not the God of the dead, but of the living." 33 And when the crowds heard this, they marvelled at his teaching.

The Great Commandment. 34 But the Pharisees, hearing that he had silenced the Sadducees, [a] gathered together. 35 And one of them, a doctor of the Law, putting him to the test, asked him, 36 'Master, which is the great commandment in the Law?" 37 Jesus said to him, [b] "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole mind. 38 This is the greatest and the first commandment. 39 And the second is like it, [c] Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. 40 On these two commandments depend the whole Law and the Prophets."

The Son of David. 41 Now while the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus questioned them, 42 saying, [d] "What do you think of the Christ? Whose son is he?" They said to him, "David's." 43 He said to them, "How then does David in the Spirit call him Lord, saying, 44 [e] The Lord said to my Lord: Sit thou at my right hand, till I make thy enemies thy footstool? 45 If David, therefore, calls him 'Lord,' * how is he his son?" 46 And no one could answer him a word; neither did anyone dare from that day forth to ask him any more questions.

CHAPTER 23.

Hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees. 1 Then Jesus spoke to the crowds and to his disciples, 2 saying, * "The Scribes and the Pharisees have sat on the chair of Moses. 3 All things, therefore, that they command you, observe and do. But do not act according to their works; for they talk but do nothing. 4 [f] And they bind together heavy and oppressive burdens, and lay them on men's shoulders; * but not with one finger of their own do they choose to move them. 5 In fact, all their works they do in order to be seen by men; [g] for they widen their phylacteries,* and enlarge their tassels, 6 [h] and love the first place at suppers and the front seats in the synagogues, 7 and greetings in the market place, and to be called by men 'Rabbi.' * 8 But do not you be called 'Rabbi'; [i] for one is your Master,* and all you are brothers. 9 And call no one on earth your father; [j] for one is your Father, who is in heaven. 10 Neither be called masters; for one only is your Master, the Christ. 11 He who is greatest among you shall be your servant. 12 And whoever exalts himself shall be humbled, [k] and whoever humbles himself shall be exalted.

Woe to the Scribes and Pharisees. 13 "But woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! [l] because you shut the kingdom of heaven against men. For you yourselves do not go in, nor do you allow those going in to enter.

14 * ["Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because you devour the houses of widows, praying long prayers. For this you shall receive a greater judgment.]

15 "Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because you traverse sea and land to make one convert; and when he has become one, you make him twofold more a son of hell than yourselves.

16 "Woe to you, blind guides, who say, * 'Whoever swears by the temple, it is nothing; but whoever swears by the gold of the temple, he is bound.' 17 You blind fools! for which is greater, the gold, or the temple which sanctifies the gold? 18 'And whoever swears by the altar, it is nothing; but whoever swears by the gift that is upon it, he is bound.' 19 Blind ones! for which is greater, the gift, or the altar which sanctifies the gift? 20 Therefore he who swears by the altar swears by it, and by all things that are on it; 21 and he who swears by the temple swears by it, and by him who dwells in it. 22 And he who swears by heaven swears by the throne of God, and by him who sits upon it.

23 [m] "Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees,* hypocrites! because you pay tithes on mint and anise and cummin, and have left undone the weightier matters of the Law, right judgment and mercy and faith. These things you ought to have done, while not leaving the others undone. 24 Blind guides, who strain out the gnat but swallow the camel!

22, 45: David's son is David's Lord: there is implied a claim to divinity.

23, 2: The Jews, including our Lord's disciples, must conform to the Law of Moses for the time being, when it is proclaimed by the Scribes and Pharisees. The teaching of our Lord elsewhere makes it clear that His disciples need not comply with rabbinic tradition.

23, 4: By their casuistry the Scribes and Pharisees exempt themselves from much that is burdensome to others.

23, 5: Phylacteries: little boxes containing Scripture texts which were bound to the forehead and left arm when the Jews were saying their prayers. A misinterpretation of the Law made them think they were obliged to wear them. The fringes, tassels attached to the cloak, were prescribed by Nm 15, 37-41; Dt 22, 12.

23, 7: Rabbi: means "my master."

23, 8-11: It would be blameworthy for Christians to give or receive such titles as "master," "father," "doctor," without recognizing that one is "father in Christ," that is, in union with and subordination to our Lord and to the Father.

23, 14: Apparently this verse did not belong to the original Gospel of St. Matthew. It is omitted by the better Greek and some Vulgate MSS.

23, 16-22: Our Lord refutes rabbinic distinctions about the formulas of an oath.

23, 23-28: The Pharisees, who were so strict about external observances, were not sufficiently concerned about the inner life.

hypocrites! because you clean the outside of the cup and the dish, but within they are full of robbery and uncleanness. 26 Thou blind Pharisee! clean first the inside of the cup and of the dish, that the outside too may be clean.

27 "Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because you are like whited sepulchres, which outwardly appear to men beautiful, but within are full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness. 28 So you also outwardly appear just to men, but within you are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.

29 "Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! you who build the sepulchres of the prophets, and adorn the tombs of the just, 30 and say, 'If we had lived in the days of our fathers, we would not have been their accomplices in the blood of the prophets.' 31 Thus you are witnesses * against yourselves that you are the sons of those who killed the prophets.

32 "You also fill up the measure of your fathers. 33 n Serpents, brood of vipers, how are you to escape the judgment of hell? 34 Therefore, behold, I send you prophets, and wise men, and scribes; and some of them you will put to death, and crucify, and some you will scourge in your synagogues, and persecute from town to town; 35 that upon you may come all the just blood that has been shed on the earth, o from the blood of Abel the just unto the blood of Zacharias the son of Barachias, whom you killed between the temple and the altar. 36 Amen I say to you, all these things will come upon this generation.

23, 31-39: Persons are rewarded and punished only for their own actions; but the Pharisees shared in the dispositions of those who killed the prophets. They would persecute the Apostles and the other messengers of Christ. They would also associate themselves with the crime which Jerusalem would commit against the Savior. Their temple would be desolate, abandoned by God. The Jews would not see Christ henceforth until they should say, Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord. It is probably upon this saying that St. Paul (Rom 11, 31) predicts the conversion of the Jewish nation.

24, 2: Not only would the temple be abandoned by God, but it would be completely destroyed.

24, 4-14: This passage probably refers not to the time which precedes the destruction of Jerusalem but to the whole period which precedes the Second Coming. That it will be of considerable duration is indicated by the statement that the Gospel will be preached to the whole world. Vv 15-20 refer to the destruction of Jerusalem. The account of our Lord's discourse by St. Matthew (and St. Mark in a parallel passage) does not make it clear whether vv 21-22 refer to Jerusalem or to the tribulation which precedes the Second Coming.

37 p "Jerusalem, Jerusalem! thou who killest the prophets, and stonest those who are sent to thee! How often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen gathers her young under her wings, but thou wouldst not! 38 Behold, your house is left to you desolate. 39 For I say to you, you shall not see me henceforth until you shall say, 'Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!' "

CHAPTER 24.

Destruction of Jerusalem and End of the World. 1 And q Jesus left the temple and was going away, when his disciples came forward to show him the buildings of the temple. 2 But he answered and said to them, "Do you see all these things? Amen I say to you, r there will not be left here one stone * upon another that will not be thrown down."

3 And as he was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to him privately, saying, "Tell us, when are these things to happen, and what will be the sign of thy coming and of the end of the world?"

4 And in answer Jesus said to them,* "Take care that no one leads you astray. 5 For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am the Christ,' and they will lead many astray. 6 For you shall hear of wars and rumors of wars. Take care that you do not be alarmed, for these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. 7 For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be pestilences and famines and earthquakes in various places. 8 But all these things are the beginnings of sorrows.

9 "Then they will deliver you up to tribulation, s and will put you to death; and you will be hated by all nations for my name's sake. 10 And then many will fall away, and will betray one another, and will hate one another. 11 And many false prophets will arise, and will lead many astray. 12 And because iniquity will abound, the charity of the many will grow cold. 13 But whoever perseveres to the end, he shall be saved. 14 And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world, for a witness to all nations; and then will come the end.

Destruction of Jerusalem. 15 "Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation,* which was spoken of by Daniel t the prophet, standing in the holy place— let him who reads understand— [16] then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; [17] and let him who is on the housetop not go down to take anything from his house; [18] and let him who is in the field not turn back to take his cloak. [19] But woe to those who are with child,* or have infants at the breast in those days! [20] But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on the Sabbath. [21] For then there will be great tribulation, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, nor will be. [22] And unless those days had been shortened, no living creature would be saved. But for the sake of the elect those days will be shortened.

The Signs of the Last Day. [23] "Then u if anyone say to you, 'Behold,* here is the Christ,' or, 'There he is,' do not believe it. [24] For false christs and false prophets will arise, and will show great signs and wonders, so as to lead astray, if possible, even the elect. [25] Behold, I have told it to you beforehand. [26] If therefore they say to you, 'Behold, he is in the desert,' do not go forth; 'Behold, he is in the inner chambers,' do not believe it. [27] For as the lightning comes forth from the east and shines even to the west, so also will the coming of the Son of Man be. [28] Wherever v the body is, *there will the eagles be gathered together.

[29] "But w immediately after the tribulation of those days, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give her light, and the stars will fall from heaven, and the powers of heaven will be shaken. [30] And then will appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven; and then will all tribes of the earth mourn, x and they will see the Son of Man coming upon the clouds of heaven with great power and majesty. [31] And y he will send forth his angels with a trumpet and a great sound, and they will gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of the heavens to the other.

Jerusalem's Impending Destruction. [32] "Now *from the fig tree learn this parable. When its branch is now tender, and the leaves break forth, you know that summer is near. [33] Even so, when you see all these things, know that it is near, even at the door. [34] Amen I say to you, this generation will not pass away till all these things have been accomplished. [35] Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

The Need of Watchfulness. [36] "But of that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, but the Father only. [37] And as it was in the days of Noe,z even so will be the coming of the Son of Man. [38] For as in the days before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage until the day when Noe entered the ark, [39] and they did not understand until the flood came and swept them all away; even so will be the coming of the Son of Man.

[40] "Then two men will be in the field; one will be taken, and one will be left. [41] Two women will be grinding at the millstone; one will be taken, and one will be left.

Exhortation to Vigilance. [42] "Watch therefore, for you do not know at what hour your Lord is to come. [43] But of this be assured, that if the householder had known at what hour a the thief was coming, he would certainly have watched, and not have let his house be broken into. [44] Therefore you also must be ready, be-

24, 15: The abomination of desolation: cf Dn 9, 27; 11, 31; 12, 11. In 1 Mc 1, 57 an application of the prophecy is found in the setting up of a statue of Jupiter in the temple. The prophecy will be fulfilled a second time for Jerusalem but not necessarily in the same way. St. Luke sees "the abomination of desolation" in the army which surrounded and destroyed Jerusalem.

24, 19f: The flight from the doomed city would be particularly hard on mothers with child. Winter would make the flight very difficult. The Christians of Jerusalem, who would still be following the Jewish Law, would not feel free to take flight on a Sabbath.

24, 23-31: The description of the Second Coming is given partly in figurative words of Scripture, as in Is 13. The language is not all to be taken literally; but it is hard to say where the figure ends. The sign of the Son of Man is probably the cross.

24, 28: As birds of prey gather at the place where the body is, so will men be gathered to Christ for the judgment.

24, 32-36: This passage seems at first sight, on account of its immediately preceding context, to refer to the Second Coming as well as to the destruction of Jerusalem; and so the words of our Lord, This generation will not pass away till all these things have been accomplished, would promise the Second Coming before the death of many of those then living. But He does not actually make this promise, for He says explicitly that no one knows, not even Himself (with a knowledge He may communicate), when it will come. That day: in the Bible, this predicted day always refers to the day of judgment. This generation: may mean that the Jewish nation would survive to the end of the world. The expression does not always necessarily refer to contemporaries. And despite their position, the words may be referred to the destruction of Jerusalem. The signs announcing it would enable the Christians to flee, whereas the end of the world was to come suddenly and there would be no escape from the calamities which preceded it.

cause at an hour that you do not expect, the Son of Man will come. 45 Who, dost thou think, is the faithful and prudent servant whom his master has set over his household to give them their food in due time? 46 Blessed [b] is that servant whom his master, when he comes, shall find so doing. 47 Amen I say to you, he will set him over all his goods. 48 But if that wicked servant says to himself, 'My master delays his coming,' 49 and begins to beat his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with drunkards, 50 the master of that servant will come on a day he does not expect, and in an hour he does not know, 51 and will cut him asunder and make him share the lot of the hypocrites. [c] There will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.

Parable of the Ten Virgins. 1 "Then will the kingdom of heaven be like ten virgins [d] who took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom* and the bride. 2 Five of them were foolish and five wise. 3 But the five foolish, when they took their lamps, took no oil with them, 4 while the wise did take oil in their vessels with the lamps. 5 Then as the bridegroom was long in coming, they all became drowsy and slept. 6 And at midnight a cry arose, 'Behold, the bridegroom is coming, go forth to meet him!' 7 Then all those virgins arose and trimmed their lamps. 8 And the foolish said to the wise, 'Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.' 9 The wise answered, saying, 'Lest there may not be enough for us and for you, go rather to those who sell it, and buy some for yourselves.'

10 "Now while they were gone to buy it, the bridegroom came; and those who were ready went in with him to the marriage feast, and the door was shut. 11 Finally there came also the other virgins, who said, 'Sir, sir, open the door for us!' 12 But he answered and said, 'Amen I say to you, I do not know you.' 13 Watch [e] therefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour.

Parable of the Talents. 14 "For it is like a man going abroad,[f] who called his servants and handed over his goods to them. 15 And to one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one, to each according to his particular ability, and then he went on his journey. 16 And he who had received the five talents went and traded with them, and gained five more. 17 In like manner, he who had received the two gained two more. 18 But he who had received the one went away and dug in the earth and hid his master's money.

19 "Then after a long time the master of those servants came and settled accounts with them. 20 And he who had received the five talents came and brought five other talents, saying, 'Master, thou didst hand over to me five talents; behold, I have gained five others in addition.' 21 His master said to him, 'Well done, good and faithful servant; because thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many; enter into the joy of thy master.'

22 "And he also who had received the two talents came and said, 'Master, thou didst hand over to me two talents; behold, I have gained two more.' 23 His master said to him, 'Well done, good and faithful servant; because thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many; enter into the joy of thy master.'

24 "But he who had received the one talent came and said, 'Master, I know that thou art a stern man; thou reapest where thou hast not sowed and gatherest where thou hast not winnowed; 25 and as I was afraid, I went away and hid thy talent in the earth; behold, thou hast what is thine.' 26 But his master answered and said to him, 'Wicked and slothful servant! thou didst know that I reap where I do not sow, and gather where I have not winnowed? 27 Thou shouldst therefore have entrusted my money to the bankers, and on my return I should have got back my own with interest. 28 Take away therefore the talent from him, and give it to him who has the ten talents. 29 For to everyone who has shall be given, and he shall have abundance; [g] but from him who does not have, even that which he seems to have shall be taken away. 30 But as for the unprofitable servant, cast him forth into the darkness outside, where there will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth.'

25, 1: To meet the bridegroom: the additional words, and the bride, are wanting in the best MSS.

The Last Judgment. 31 "But when the Son of Man shall come in his majesty, and all the angels with him, then he will sit on the throne of his glory; 32 and before him will be gathered all the nations, and he will separate them one from another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; 33 and he will set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

34 "Then the king will say to those on his right hand, 'Come, blessed of my Father, take possession of the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; 35 for [h] I was hungry and you gave me to eat; I was thirsty and you gave me to drink; I was a stranger and you took me in; 36 naked and you covered me; [i] sick and you visited me; I was in prison and you came to me.' 37 Then the just will answer him, saying, 'Lord, when did we see thee hungry, and feed thee; or thirsty, and give thee drink? 38 And when did we see thee a stranger, and take thee in; or naked, and clothe thee? 39 Or when did we see thee sick, or in prison, and come to thee?' 40 And answering the king will say to them, 'Amen I say to you, as long as you did it for one of these, the least of my brethren, you did it for me.'

41 "Then he will say to those on his left hand, [j] 'Depart from me, accursed ones, into the everlasting fire which was prepared for the devil and his angels. 42 For I was hungry, and you did not give me to eat; I was thirsty and you gave me no drink; 43 I was a stranger and you did not take me in; naked, and you did not clothe me; sick, and in prison, and you did not visit me.' 44 Then they also will answer and say, 'Lord, when did we see thee hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister to thee?' 45 Then he will answer them saying, 'Amen I say to you, as long as you did not do it for one of these least ones, you did not do it for me.' 46 And [k] these will go into everlasting punishment, but the just into everlasting life."

II: THE PASSION, DEATH AND RESURRECTION

1. The Last Supper

CHAPTER 26.

1 And it came to pass when Jesus had finished all these words, that he said to his disciples, 2 "You know that after two days *the Passover will be here; [l] and the Son of Man will be delivered up to be crucified."

The Council. 3 Then the chief priests and the elders of the people gathered together in the court of the high priest, who was called Caiphas, 4 and they took counsel together how they might seize Jesus by stealth and put him to death. 5 But they said, "Not on the feast, or there might be a riot among the people."

The Anointing at Bethany. 6 Now when Jesus was in Bethany, [m] in the house* of Simon the leper, 7 a woman came up to him with an alabaster jar of precious ointment, and she poured it on his head, as he reclined at table. 8 But when the disciples saw this, they were indignant, and said, "To what purpose is this waste? 9 for this might have been sold for much and given to the poor."

10 But Jesus, perceiving it, said to them, "Why do you trouble the woman? She has done me a good turn. 11 For the poor you have always with you, but you do not always have me. 12 For in pouring this ointment on my body, she has done it for my burial. 13 Amen I say to you, wherever in the whole world this gospel is preached, this also that she has done shall be told in memory of her."

The Betrayal. 14 Then one of the Twelve, called Judas Iscariot, [n] went to the chief priests, 15 and said to them, "What are you willing to give me for delivering him to you?" But they assigned him thirty pieces of silver. 16 And from then on he sought out an opportunity to betray him.

Preparation. 17 Now [o] on the first day of the Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Jesus and said, "Where dost thou want us to prepare for thee to eat the passover?" 18 But Jesus said, "Go into the city to a certain man, and say to him, 'The Master says, My time is near at hand; at thy house I am keeping the Passover with my disciples.'" 19 And the disciples did as Jesus bade them, and prepared the passover.

26, 2: Wednesday.

26, 6-13: The supper is that spoken of in Jn 12, 1-8, which took place six days before the Passover. The evangelist places it here to bring together the narratives of the anointing and of the betrayal of Judas.

The Betrayer. 20 Now [p] when evening arrived, he reclined at table with the twelve disciples. 21 And while they were eating, he said, "Amen I say to you, one of you will betray me." 22 And being very much saddened they began each to say, "Is it I, Lord?" 23 But he answered and said, "He who dips his hand into the dish with me, he will betray me. 24 The Son of Man [q] indeed goes his way, as it is written of him; but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It were better for that man if he had not been born." 25 And Judas who betrayed him answered and said, "Is it I, Rabbi?" He said to him, "Thou hast said it."

The Holy Eucharist. 26 And [r] while they were at supper,* Jesus took bread, and blessed and broke, and gave it to his disciples, and said, "Take and eat; this is my body." 27 And taking a cup, he gave thanks and gave it to them, saying, "All of you drink of this; 28 [s] for this is my blood of the new covenant, which is being shed for many unto the forgiveness of sins. 29 But I say to you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I shall drink it new with you in the kingdom of my Father."

Peter's Denials Predicted. 30 And [t] after reciting a hymn, they went out to Mount Olivet. 31 Then Jesus said to them, "You will all be scandalized this night because of me; for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered. 32 [u] But after I have risen, I will go before you into Galilee." 33 But Peter answered and said to him, "Even though all shall be scandalized because of thee, I will never be scandalized." 34 Jesus said to him, [v] "Amen I say to thee, this very night, before a cock crows, thou wilt deny me three times." 35 Peter said to him, "Even if I should have to die with thee, I will not deny thee!" And all the disciples said the same thing.

2. The Passion and Death of Jesus

The Agony in the Garden. 36 Then Jesus came with them to a country place called [w] Gethsemani, and he said to his disciples, "Sit down here, while I go over yonder and pray." 37 And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and he began to be saddened and exceedingly troubled. 38 Then he said to them, "My soul is sad, even unto death. Wait here and watch with me." 39 And going forward a little, he fell prostrate and prayed, saying, "Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass away from me; yet not as I will, but as thou willest."

40 Then he came to the disciples and found them sleeping. And he said to Peter, "Could you not, then, watch one hour with me? 41 Watch and pray, that you may not enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." 42 Again a second time he went away and prayed, saying, "My Father, if this cup cannot pass away unless I drink it, thy will be done." 43 And he came again and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. 44 And leaving them he went back again, and prayed a third time, saying the same words over. 45 Then he came to his disciples, and said to them, "Sleep on now, and take your rest! Behold, the hour is at hand when the Son of Man will be betrayed into the hands of sinners. 46 Rise, let us go. Behold, he who betrays me is at hand."

Jesus Arrested. 47 And while he was yet speaking, behold Judas, [x] one of the Twelve, came and with him a great crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and elders of the people. 48 Now his betrayer had given them a sign, saying, "Whomever I kiss, that is he; lay hold of him." 49 And he went straight up to Jesus and said, "Hail, Rabbi!" and kissed him. 50 And Jesus said to him, "Friend, for what purpose hast thou come?" Then they came forward and set hands on Jesus and took him.

51 And behold, *one of those who were with Jesus reached out his hand, drew his sword, and struck the servant of the high priest, cutting off his ear. 52 Then Jesus said to him, "Put back thy sword into its place; [y] for all those who take the sword will perish by the sword. 53 Or dost thou suppose that I cannot entreat my Father, and he will even now furnish me with more than twelve legions of angels? 54 How then are the Scriptures to be fulfilled, [z] that thus it must take place?"

26, 26: The Last Supper was on Thursday evening.

26, 51: Cf Jn 18, 10. The servant's name was Malchus; it was Peter who cut off his ear.

55 In that hour Jesus said to the crowds, "As against a robber you have come out, with swords and clubs, to seize me. I sat daily with you in the temple teaching, and you did not lay hands on me." 56 Now all this was done that the Scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples left him and fled.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin. 57 Now those who had taken Jesus [a] led him away to Caiphas the high priest, where the Scribes and the elders had gathered together. 58 But Peter was following him at a distance, even to the courtyard of the high priest, and he went in and sat with the attendants to see the end. 59 Now the chief priests and all the Sanhedrin were seeking false witness against Jesus, that they might put him to death, 60 but they found none, though many false witnesses came forward. But last of all two false witnesses came forward, 61 and said, [b] "This man said, 'I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to rebuild it after three days.'"

62 Then the high priest, standing up, said to him, "Dost thou make no answer to the things that these men prefer against thee?" 63 But Jesus kept silence. [c] And the high priest said to him, "I adjure thee by the living God that thou tell us whether thou art the Christ, the Son of God." 64 Jesus said to him, "Thou hast said it. Nevertheless, I say to you, [d] hereafter you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power and coming upon the clouds of heaven."

65 Then the high priest tore his garments, saying, "He has blasphemed; what further need have we of witnesses? Behold, now you have heard the blasphemy. 66 What do you think?" And they answered and said, "He is liable to death." 67 Then they spat [e] in his face and buffeted him; while others struck his face with the palms of their hands, 68 saying, "Prophesy to us, O Christ! who is it that struck thee?"

Peter's Denial. 69 Now Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard; [f] and a maidservant came up to him and said, "Thou also wast with Jesus the Galilean." 70 But he denied it before them all, saying, "I do not know what thou art saying." 71 And when he had gone out to the gateway, another maid saw him, and said to those who were there, "This man also was with Jesus of Nazareth." 72 And again he denied it with an oath, "I do not know the man!" 73 And after a little while the bystanders came up and said to Peter, "Surely thou also art one of them, for even thy speech betrays thee." 74 Then he began to curse and to swear that he did not know the man. And at that moment a cock crowed. 75 And Peter remembered the word that Jesus had said, "Before a cock crows, thou wilt deny me three times." And he went out and wept bitterly.

CHAPTER 27.

1 Now when morning came all the chief priests and the elders of the people took counsel together against Jesus in order to put him to death. [g] 2 And they bound him and led him away, [h] and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the *procurator.

The End of Judas. 3 Then Judas, who betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders, 4 saying, "I have sinned in betraying innocent blood." But they said, "What is that to us? See to it thyself." 5 And he flung the pieces of silver into the temple, and withdrew; [i] and went away and hanged himself with a halter.

6 And the chief priests took the pieces of silver, and said, "It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, seeing that it is the price of blood." 7 And after they had consulted together, they bought with them the potter's field, as a burial place for strangers. 8 For this reason that field has been called even to this day, Haceldama, that is, the Field of Blood. 9 Then what was spoken through Jeremias the prophet was fulfilled, [j] And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him who was priced, upon whom the children of Israel set a price; 10 and they gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord directed me.

Jesus before Pilate. 11 Now Jesus stood before the procurator, [k] and the procurator asked him, saying, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" Jesus said to him, "Thou sayest it." 12 And when he was accused by the chief priests and the elders, he made no answer. 13 Then Pilate said to him, "Dost thou not hear how many things they prefer against thee?" 14 But he did not answer him a single word, so that the procurator wondered exceedingly.

15 Now at festival time [l] the procurator used to release to the crowd a prisoner, whomever they would. 16 Now he had at that time a notorious prisoner called Barabbas. 17 Therefore, when they had gathered together, Pilate said, "Whom do you wish that I release to you? Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ?" 18 For he knew that they had delivered him up out of envy. 19 Now, as he was sitting on the judgment-seat, his wife sent to him, saying, "Have nothing to do with that just man, for I have suffered many things in a dream today because of him." 20 [m] But the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to destroy Jesus. 21 But the procurator addressed them, and said to them, "Which of the two do you wish that I release to you?" And they said, "Barabbas." 22 Pilate said to them, "What then am I to do with Jesus who is called Christ?" 23 They all said, "Let him be crucified!" The procurator said to them. "Why, what evil has he done?" But they kept crying out the more, saying, "Let him be crucified!"

24 Now Pilate, seeing that he was doing no good, but rather that a riot was breaking out, took water and washed his hands in sight of the crowd, saying, "I am innocent of the blood of this just man; see to it yourselves." 25 And all the people answered and said, "His blood be on us and on our children."

The Scourging and Crowning. 26 Then he released to them Barabbas; but Jesus he scourged and delivered to them to be crucified. 27 Then the soldiers of the procurator took Jesus into the praetorium, [n] and gathered together about him the whole cohort. 28 And they stripped him and put on him a scarlet cloak; 29 and plaiting a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed into his right hand; and bending the knee before him they mocked him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" 30 And they spat on him, and took the reed and kept striking him on the head.

The Way of the Cross. 31 And when they had mocked him, they took the cloak off him and put his own garments on him, and led him away to crucify him. 32 Now as they went out, they found a man of Cyrene named Simon; [o] him they forced to take up his cross. 33 And [p] they came to the place called Golgotha, that is, the Place of the Skull.

The Crucifixion. 34 And they gave him wine to drink mixed with gall; but when he had tasted it, he would not drink. 35 And after they had crucified him, they divided his garments, casting lots, [to fulfill what was spoken through the prophet, [q] *They divided my garments among them, and upon my vesture they cast lots.] 36 And sitting down they kept watch over him. 37 And they put above his head the charge against him, written, THIS IS JESUS, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 Then two robbers were crucified with him, one on his right hand and one on his left. 39 Now the passers-by were jeering at him, [r] shaking their heads, 40 and saying, [s] "Thou who destroyest the temple, and in three days buildest it up again, save thyself! If thou art the Son of God, come down from the cross!" 41 In like manner, the chief priests with the Scribes and the elders, mocking, said, 42 "He saved others, himself he cannot save! [t] If he is the King of Israel, let him come down now from the cross, and we will believe him. 43 He trusted in God; [u] let him deliver him now, if he wants him; for he said, 'I am the Son of God.'" 44 And the robbers also, who were crucified with him, reproached him in the same way.

The Death of Jesus. 45 Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour. 46 But about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, [v] "Eli, Eli, lema sabacthani," * that is, "My God, my 27, 46: The words of our Lord were a quotation of Ps 21 (22), 2. Taken in their context they do not express anything like despair. They do, however, express a poignant sense of dereliction.

God, why hast thou forsaken me?" [47] And some of the bystanders on hearing this said, "This man is calling Elias." [48] And immediately one of them ran and, taking a sponge, soaked it in common wine, put it on a reed and offered it to him to drink. [49] But the rest said, "Wait, let us see whether Elias is coming to save him." [50] But Jesus again cried out with a loud voice, and gave up his spirit.

[51] And [w] behold, the curtain of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom; and the earth quaked, and the rocks were rent, [52] and the tombs were opened, and many bodies of the saints who had fallen asleep arose; [53] and coming forth out of the tombs after his resurrection, they came into the holy city, and appeared to many. [54] Now when the centurion,[x] and those who were with him keeping guard over Jesus, saw the earthquake and the things that were happening, they were very much afraid, and they said, "Truly he was the Son of God." [55] And many women were there, looking on from a distance, who had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering to him. [56] Among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

The Burial. [57] Now when it was evening, there came a certain rich man of Arimathea,[y] Joseph by name, who was himself a disciple of Jesus. [58] He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Then Pilate ordered the body to be given up. [59] And Joseph taking the body, wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, [60] and laid it in his new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock. Then he rolled a large stone to the entrance of the tomb, and departed. [61] But Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were there, sitting opposite the sepulchre.

Precautions of the Chief Priests. [62] And the next day, which was the one after the Day of Preparation,* the chief priests and the Pharisees went in a body to Pilate, [63] saying, "Sir, we have remembered how that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, 'After three days I will rise again.' [64] Give orders, therefore, that the sepulchre be guarded until the third day, or else his disciples may come and steal him away, and say to the people, 'He has risen from the dead'; and the last imposture will be worse than the first." [65] Pilate said to them, "You have a guard; go, guard it as well as you know how." [66] So they went and made the sepulchre secure, sealing the stone, and setting the guard.

3. The Resurrection of Jesus

CHAPTER 28

The Women at the Grave. Now late in the night[z] of the Sabbath, as the first day of the week began to dawn, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to see the sepulchre. [2] And behold, there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord came down from heaven, and drawing near rolled back the stone, and sat upon it. [3] His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment like snow. [4] And for fear of him the guards were terrified, and became like dead men. [5] But the angel spoke and said to the women, "Do not be afraid; for I know that you seek Jesus, who was crucified. [6] He is not here, for he has risen even as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord was laid. [7] And go quickly, tell his disciples that he has risen; and behold, he goes before you into Galilee; there you shall see him. Behold, I have foretold it to you." [8] And they departed quickly from the tomb in fear and great joy, and ran to tell his disciples. [9] And behold, Jesus met them, saying, "Hail!" And they came up and embraced his feet and worshipped him. [10] Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid; go, take word to my brethren that they are to set out for Galilee; there they shall see me."

The Guards and the Chief Priests. [11] Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city and reported to the chief priests all that had happened. [12] And when they had assembled with the elders, and had consulted together, they gave much money to the soldiers, [13] telling them, "Say, 'His disciples came by night and stole him while we were sleeping.' [14] And if the procurator hears of this, we will persuade him and keep you out of trouble." [15] And they took the money, and did as they were instructed; and this story has been spread abroad among the Jews even to the present day.

28, 16-20: St. Matthew's last words are the climax of his Gospel; Christ sends forth His Apostles to conquer the world and make all men His disciples.

THE HOLY GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST ACCORDING TO SAINT MARK

The second Gospel was written by St. Mark who, in the New Testament, is sometimes called John Mark. Both he and his mother, Mary, were highly esteemed in the early Church, and his mother's house in Jerusalem served as a meeting place for Christians there. He was associated with St. Paul and St. Barnabas (who was Mark's cousin) on their missionary journey through the island of Cyprus. Later he accompanied St. Barnabas alone. We know also that he was in Rome with St. Peter and with St. Paul. Tradition ascribes to him the founding of the Church in Alexandria. His feast falls on April 25.

It is historically certain that St. Mark wrote the second Gospel, that he wrote it in Rome sometime before the year 60 A.D., that he wrote it in Greek for the Gentile converts to Christianity. Tradition tells us that St. Mark was requested by the Romans to set down the teachings of St. Peter. This seems to be confirmed by the position which St. Peter has in this Gospel. In this way the second Gospel is a record of the life of Jesus as seen through the eyes of the Prince of the Apostles.

St. Mark's purpose is to show to the Romans that Jesus is the Savior, and that He is divine. To this end he attends more to the miracles of our Lord than to His sermons, giving only a few of the parables at length. The author, however, gives in some detail the events he narrates, and leaves the impression of an eyewitness. His language is simple, and yet earnest and full of charm.

I: THE PUBLIC MINISTRY OF JESUS

I

CHAPTER 1.

John the Baptist. 1 The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God.* 2 As it is written in Isaias the prophet, [a] Behold, I send my messenger before thee,[b] who shall prepare thy way, 3 [c] the voice of one crying in the desert, "Make ready the way of the Lord, make straight his paths," 4 there came John in the desert, baptizing and preaching a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins. 5 And all the country of Judea went out to him, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and they were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins. 6 And John was clothed in camel's hair, with a leathern girdle about his loins, and he ate locusts and wild honey. And he preached, saying, 7 "One mightier than I is coming after me, the strap of whose sandals I am not worthy to stoop down and loose. 8 I have baptized you with water, but he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit."

The Baptism of Jesus. 9 And it came to pass in those days, [d] that Jesus came from Nazareth in Galilee and was baptized by John in the Jordan. 10 And immediately on coming up from the water

1, 1: Son of God: the Jews sometimes used the term figuratively of one standing in a special relationship to God. Hence when Jesus is called the Son of God in the Synoptic Gospels, it does not necessarily imply His divinity. However, it does imply the divinity of the Messias here, since St. Mark believed in that divinity, and speaks here in his own name.

he saw the heavens opened and the Spirit, as a dove, descending and remaining upon him. 11 And there came a voice from the heavens, [e] "Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleased."

The Temptation. 12 And immediately the Spirit [f] drove him forth into the desert. 13 And he was in the desert forty days and forty nights, being tempted the while by Satan, and was with the wild beasts, and the angels ministered to him.

II

In Galilee. 14 And after John had been delivered up, [g] Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, 15 and saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand. Repent and believe in the gospel."

The First Disciples Called. 16 And passing along by the sea of Galilee, he [h] saw Simon and his brother Andrew, casting their nets into the sea (for they were fishermen). 17 And Jesus said to them, "Come, follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." 18 And at once they left the nets, and followed him. 19 And going on a little farther, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and his brother John; they also were in their boat mending the nets. 20 Immediately he called them. And they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men, and followed him.

21 And they entered Capharnaum. [i] And immediately on the Sabbath he went into the synagogue and began to teach them. 22 And they were astonished at his teaching; [j] for he was teaching them as one having authority,* and not as the Scribes.

The Cure of a Demoniac. 23 Now in their synagogue there was a man with an unclean spirit, and he cried out, 24 saying, "What have we to do with thee, Jesus of Nazareth? Hast thou come to destroy us? I know who thou art, the Holy One of God." 25 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Hold thy peace, and go out of the man." 26 And the unclean spirit, convulsing him and crying out with a loud voice, went out of him. 27 And they were all amazed, so that they inquired among themselves, saying, "What is this? What new doctrine is this? For with authority he commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey him." 28 And rumor concerning him went forth immediately into all the region round about Galilee.

Peter's Mother-in-law. 29 And as soon as they came out of the synagogue, [k] they, with James and John, came* to the house of Simon and Andrew. 30 Now Simon's mother-in-law was keeping her bed sick with a fever, and they immediately told him about her. 31 And drawing near, he took her by the hand and raised her up; and the fever left her at once, and she began to wait on them.

Other Miracles. 32 Now when it was evening, and the sun had set, they brought to him all who were ill and who were possessed. 33 And the whole town had gathered together at the door. 34 And he cured many who were afflicted with various diseases, and cast out many devils; and he did not permit them to speak, because they knew him.

35 And rising up long before daybreak, he went out and departed into a desert place, and there he prayed. 36 And Simon, and those who were with him, followed him. 37 And they found him and said to him, "They are all seeking thee." 38 And he said to them, "Let us go into the neighboring villages and towns, that there also I may preach. For this is why I have come." 39 And he was preaching in their synagogues, and throughout all Galilee, and casting out devils.

A Leper. 40 And a leper came to him, [l] entreating him; and kneeling down he said, "If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." 41 And Jesus, having compassion on him, stretched forth his hand and touched him, and said to him, "I will; be thou made clean." 42 And when he had spoken, immediately the leprosy left him, and he was made clean. 43 Then he strictly charged him, and immediately drove him away. 44 And he said to him. "See thou tell no one; but go, show thyself to the high priest,* and offer for thy purification [m] the things that Moses commanded, for a witness to them." 45 But he went out, and began to publish and to spread abroad the fact, so that Jesus could no longer openly enter a town, but remained outside in desert places. And they kept coming to him from every direction.

CHAPTER 2.

A Paralytic at Capharnaum. 1 And [n] after some days, he again entered Capharnaum 2 and it was reported that he was at home. And many gathered together, so that there was no longer room, not even around the door. 3 And he spoke the word to them. And they came, bringing to him a paralytic, carried by four. 4 And since they could not bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, they stripped off the roof where he was, and, having made an opening, they let down the pallet on which the paralytic was lying. 5 And Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic, "Son, thy sins are forgiven thee."

6 Now some of the Scribes were sitting there and reasoning in their hearts, 7 "Why does this man speak thus? He blasphemes. [o] Who can forgive sins, but only God?" 8 And at once Jesus, knowing in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselves, said to them, "Why are you arguing these things in your hearts? 9 Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' or to say, 'Arise, and take up thy pallet, and walk'? 10 But that you may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the paralytic— 11 "I say to thee, arise, take up thy pallet, and go to thy house." 12 And immediately he arose and, taking up his pallet, went forth in the sight of all, so that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, "Never did we see the like."

The Call of Levi. 13 And he went forth again by the water's edge, and all the crowd kept coming to him, and he taught them. 14 [p] And as he was passing along, he saw Levi, the son of Alpheus, sitting in the tax-collector's place, and he said to him, "Follow me." And he arose and followed him. 15 And it came to pass as he was at table in Levi's house, that many publicans and sinners were at table with Jesus and his disciples, for there were many and they also followed him. 16 And the Scribes and the Pharisees, seeing that he ate with sinners and publicans, said to his disciples, "Why does your master eat and drink with publicans and sinners?" 17 And Jesus heard this, and said to them, "It is not the healthy who need a physician, but they who are sick. For I have not come to call the just, but sinners."

The Question of Fasting. 18 And the disciples of John and the Pharisees were fasting. And they came, and said to him, [q] "Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, whereas thy disciples do not fast?" 19 And Jesus said to them, "Can the wedding guests fast as long as the bridegroom is with them? 20 As long as they have the bridegroom with them they cannot fast. But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then they will fast on that day. 21 No one sews a patch of raw cloth on an old garment; else the new patch tears away from the old, and a worse rent is made. 22 And no one pours new wine into old wine-skins; else the wine will burst the skins, and the wine is spilt, and the skins will be ruined. But new wine must be put into fresh skins."

The Disciples Pluck Grain on the Sabbath. 23 And it came to pass again as he was going through the standing grain on the Sabbath, [r] that his disciples began, as they went along, to pluck the ears of grain. 24 But the Pharisees* said to him, "Behold, why are they doing what is not lawful on the Sabbath?" 25 And he said to them, "Have you never read what David did when he and those who were with him were in need, and hungry? 26 how he entered the house of God,* when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the loaves of proposition, [s] which he could not lawfully eat, but only the priests? and how he gave them to those who were with him?" 27 And he said to them, "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. 28 Therefore the Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath."

2, 24: The Pharisees insisted on an extreme observance of the Sabbath rest and condemned even necessary work on that day.

2, 26: Jesus here cites an incident from the life of King David (1 Kgs 21, 6), when dire necessity compelled him to violate the letter of the Law (Lv 24, 9). The passage in Kings which tells of this incident names Achimelech as the high priest, whereas St. Mark says it took place under the high priest Abiathar. Abiathar was present and succeeded his father Achimelech shortly afterwards. His name occurs frequently in the history of David and was connected with David's in current synchronism.

CHAPTER 3.

A Man with a Withered Hand. 1 And [t] again he entered the synagogue. And a man with a withered hand was there. 2 And they were watching him, whether he cured on the Sabbath, that they might accuse him. 3 And he said to the man with the withered hand, "Stand forth in the midst." 4 And he said to them, "Is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good, or to do evil? to save a life, or to destroy it?" But they kept silence. 5 And looking round upon them with anger, and being grieved at the blindness of their hearts, he said to the man, "Stretch forth thy hand." And he stretched it forth, and his hand was restored. 6 But the Pharisees went out and immediately took counsel with the Herodians* against him, how they might do away with him.

The Mercy of Jesus. 7 And [u] Jesus with his disciples withdrew to the sea; and there followed him a large crowd from Galilee and Judea, 8 and from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond the Jordan. And of those about Tyre and Sidon, a large crowd, hearing what he was doing, came to him. 9 And he told his disciples to have a small boat in readiness for him, because of the crowd, lest they should throng him. 10 For he healed many, so that as many as had ailments were pressing upon him to touch him. 11 And the unclean spirits, whenever they beheld him, fell down before him and cried out, saying, 12 "Thou art the Son of God." And he charged them strictly not to make him known.

The Choice of the Twelve. 13 And [v] going up a mountain, he called to him men of his own choosing, and they came to him. 14 And he appointed twelve that they might be with him and that he might send them forth to preach. 15 To them he gave power to cure sicknesses and to cast out devils. 16 There were Simon, to whom he gave the name Peter; 17 and James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James (these he surnamed Boanerges, that is, Sons of Thunder); 18 and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alpheus, and Thaddeus, and Simon the Cananean, 19 and Judas Iscariot, he who betrayed him.

Blasphemy of the Scribes. 20 And they came to the house, and again a crowd gathered so that they could not so much as take their food. 21 But when his own people had heard of it, they went out to lay hold of him, for they said, * "He has gone mad." 22 And the Scribes who had come down from Jerusalem said, [w] "He has Beelzebub," and, "By the prince of devils he casts out devils." 23 And he called them together, and said to them in parables, "How can Satan cast out Satan? 24 And if a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. 25 And if a house is divided against itself, that house cannot stand. 26 And if Satan has risen up against himself, he is divided, and cannot stand, but is at an end. 27 But no one can enter the strong man's house and plunder his goods, unless he first binds the strong man. Then he will plunder his house.

28 "Amen I say to you, that all sins shall be forgiven to the sons of men, and the blasphemies wherewith they may blaspheme; 29 but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit never has forgiveness,* but will be guilty of an everlasting sin." 30 For they said, "He has an unclean spirit."

Jesus and His Brethren. 31 And [x] his mother and his brethren* came, and standing outside, they sent to him, calling him. 32 Now a crowd was sitting about him, and they said to him, "Behold, thy mother and thy brethren are outside, seeking thee." 33 And he answered and said to them, "Who are my mother and my brethren?" 34 And looking round on those who were sitting about him, he said, "Behold my mother and my brethren. 35 For whoever does the will of God, he is my brother and sister and mother."

3, 21: Our Lord's relatives did not yet believe in Him (cf Jn 7, 5). However, it is not clear that they said, "He has gone mad." The Greek text means, "He was beside himself." The Blessed Virgin was with them on this occasion (vv 31-35), but she had no misconception of His nature and mission.

3, 29: Cf note on Mt 12, 32.

3, 31: Brethren: relatives of Jesus, not blood brothers. This wider use of the term was common among the Jews. Jesus does not disclaim the bonds of physical relationship, but He seizes the opportunity to give a lesson on the greater dignity of spiritual relationship. Cf Lk 11, 27f. St. Augustine says that Mary was more blessed in that she believed in Christ than in that she had given Him birth ("De virginibus," III).

CHAPTER 4.

Parable of the Sower. 1 And [y] again he began to teach by the water's edge. And as a great crowd gathered about him, he got into a boat and sat on board. And all the crowd remained on land facing the sea.

2 And he taught them many things in parables, and he said to them in his instruction, 3 "Hear! Behold, the sower went out to sow. 4 And as he sowed, some seed fell by the wayside, and the birds came and ate it up. 5 And other seed fell upon rocky ground, where it had not much earth; and it sprang up at once, because it had no depth of earth; 6 but when the sun rose it was scorched, and because it had no root it withered away. 7 And other seed fell among thorns; and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it yielded no fruit. 8 And other seed fell upon good ground, and yielded fruit that grew up, made increase and produced, one thirty, another sixty, and another a hundred-fold." 9 Then he said, "He who has ears to hear, let him hear."

10 And when he was alone, those who were with him and the Twelve asked him about the parables. 11 And he said to them, "To you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God; but to those outside, all things are treated in parables, 12 that [z] Seeing they may see, but not perceive; and hearing they may hear, but not understand; lest perhaps at any time they should be converted, and their sins be forgiven them.*"

13 And he said to them, [a] "Do you not know this parable? How then will you understand all the parables? 14 The sower sows the word. 15 And those by the wayside are they in whom the word is sown; as soon as they have heard, Satan at once comes and takes away the word that has been sown in their hearts. 16 And those likewise who are sown on the rocky ground are they who, when they have heard the word, receive it immediately with joy; 17 and they have no root in themselves, but continue only for a time. then, when trouble and persecution come because of the word. they at once fall away. 18 And those who are sown among the thorns are they who listen to the word; 19 but the cares of the world, [b] and the deceitfulness of riches, and the desires about other things, entering in, choke the word, and it is made fruitless. 20 And those who are sown upon good ground are they who hear the word, and welcome it, and yield fruit, one thirty, another sixty, and another a hundred-fold."

Purpose of This Teaching. 21 And he said to them, [c] "Is a lamp brought to be put under the measure, or under the couch? Is it not rather to be put upon the lampstand? 22 For there is nothing hidden that will not be made [d] manifest; nor is anything concealed that will not come to light. 23 If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear." 24 And he said to them, [e] "Take heed what you hear. With what measure you measure, it shall be measured to you, and more shall be given to you. 25 For to him who has shall be given; [f] and from him who does not have, even that which he has shall be taken away."

Seed Grows of Itself. 26 And he said, "Thus is the kingdom of God, as though a man should cast seed into the earth, 27 then sleep and rise, night and day, and the seed should sprout and grow without his knowing it. 28 For of itself the earth bears the crop, first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear. 29 But when the fruit is ripe, immediately he puts in the sickle because the harvest has come."

The Mustard Seed. 30 And he said, [g] "To what shall we liken the kingdom of God; or to what parable shall we compare it? 31 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when sown upon the earth, is the smallest of all the seeds upon the earth; 32 yet when it is sown, it grows up and becomes larger than any herb, and puts out great branches. so that the birds of the air can dwell beneath its shade."

33 And in many such parables he spoke the word to them. according as they were able to understand it; 34 but without a parable he did not speak to them. But privately he explained all things to his disciples.

The Storm on the Lake. 35 And he said to them on that day, when evening had come, [h] "Let us cross over to the other side." 36 And sending away the crowd, they took him just as he was, in the boat; and there were other boats with him. 37 And there arose a great *squall, and the waves were beating into the boat, so that the boat was now filling. 38 And he himself was in the stern of the boat, on the cushion, asleep. And they woke him and said to him, "Master, does it not concern thee that we are perishing?" 39 Then rising up, he rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, "Peace, be still!" And the wind fell and there came a great calm. 40 And he said to them, "Why are you fearful? Are you still without faith?" And they feared exceedingly and said to one another, "Who, then, is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

CHAPTER 5.

Expulsion of the Devils in Gerasa. 1 And i they came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the Gerasenes; 2 and as soon as he stepped out of the boat, there met him from the tombs a man with an unclean spirit.* 3 This man lived in the tombs and no one could any longer bind him, even with chains; 4 for often he had been bound with fetters and chains, and he had rent the chains asunder and broken the fetters into pieces. And no one was able to control him. 5 And constantly, night and day, he was in the tombs and on the mountains, howling and gashing himself with stones.

6 And when he saw Jesus from afar, he ran and worshipped him, 7 and crying out with a loud voice, he said, "What have I to do with thee, Jesus, Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, do not torment me!" 8 For he was saying to him, "Go out of the man, thou unclean spirit."

9 And he asked him, "What is thy name?" And he said to him, "My name is Legion, for we are many." 10 And he entreated him earnestly not to drive them out of the country.

11 Now a great herd of swine was there on the mountain-side, feeding. 12 And the spirits kept entreating him, saying, "Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them." 13 And Jesus immediately gave them leave. And the unclean spirits came out and entered into the swine; and the herd, in number about two thousand, rushed down with great violence into the sea, and were drowned in the sea.

14 But the swineherds fled and reported it in the town and in the country; and people came out to see what had happened. 15 And they came to Jesus, and saw the man who had been afflicted by the devil, sitting clothed and in his right mind; and they were afraid. 16 And those who had seen it reported to them how it had happened to the possessed man, and about the swine. 17 And they began to entreat him to depart from their district.

18 And as Jesus was getting into the boat, the man who had been afflicted by the devil began to entreat him that he might remain with him. 19 And he did not allow him, but said to him, "Go home to thy relatives, and tell them all that the Lord has done for thee, and how he has had mercy on thee." 20 And he departed, and began to publish in the Decapolis all that Jesus had done for him. And all marvelled.

The Daughter of Jairus; the Woman with a Hemorrhage. 21 And when Jesus had again crossed over in the boat to the other side, a great crowd gathered together to him; and he was at the water's edge. 22 And j there came one of the rulers of the synagogue named Jairus. And seeing Jesus, he fell at his feet, 23 and entreated him much saying, "My daughter is at the point of death; come, lay thy hands upon her, that she may be saved and live."

24 And he went away with him, and a great crowd was following him and pressing upon him. 25 And there was a woman who for twelve years had had a hemorrhage, 26 and had suffered much at the hands of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and found no benefit, but rather grew worse. 27 Hearing about Jesus, she came up behind him in the crowd and touched his cloak. 28 For she said, "If I touch but his cloak, I shall be saved." 29 And at once the flow of her blood was dried up, and she felt in her body that she was healed of her affliction.

30 And Jesus, instantly perceiving in himself that power had gone forth from him, turned to the crowd, and said, "Who touched my cloak?" 31 And his disciples said to him, "Thou seest the crowd pressing upon thee, and dost thou say, 'Who touched me?'" 32 And he was looking round to see her who had done this. 33 But the woman, fearing and trembling, knowing what had happened within her, came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth. 34 But he said to her, [k] "Daughter, thy faith has saved thee. Go in peace, and be thou healed of thy affliction."

35 While he was yet speaking, there came some from the house of the ruler of the synagogue, saying, "Thy daughter is dead. Why dost thou trouble the Master further?" 36 But Jesus, having heard what was being said, said to the ruler of the synagogue, "Do not be afraid, only have faith." 37 And he allowed no one to follow him except Peter and James, and John the brother of James.

38 And they came to the house of the ruler of the synagogue and he saw a tumult, people weeping and wailing greatly. 39 And going in he said to them, "Why do you make this din, and weep? The girl is asleep, not dead." 40 And they laughed him to scorn. But he, putting them all out, took the father and mother of the girl and those who were with him, and entered in where the girl was lying. 41 And taking the girl by the hand, he said to her, "Talitha cumi," which is interpreted, "Girl, I say to thee, arise." 42 And the girl rose up immediately and began to walk; she was twelve years old. And they were utterly amazed. 43 And he charged them strictly that no one should know of it and directed that something be given her to eat.

CHAPTER 6.

Jesus at Nazareth. 1 And leaving that place, [l] he went into his own country, and his disciples followed him. 2 And when the Sabbath had come, he began to teach in the synagogue. And many, when they heard him, were astonished at his doctrine, saying, "Where did he get all this?" and, "What is this wisdom that is given to him?" and, "What mean such miracles wrought by his hands? 3 Is not this the carpenter, [m] the son of Mary, the brother of James, Joseph, Jude, and Simon? And are not also his sisters* here with us?" And they took offense at him. 4 And Jesus said to them, [n] "A prophet is not without honor except in his own country, and among his own kindred, and in his own house." 5 And he could not work any miracle there, beyond curing a few sick people by laying his hands upon them. 6 And he marvelled because of their unbelief.

The Mission of the Apostles. And he made a circuit of the villages, teaching. 7 [o] And he summoned the Twelve and began to send them forth two by two; and he gave them power over the unclean spirits. 8 And he instructed them to take nothing* for their journey, but a staff only—no wallet, no bread, no money in their girdle; 9 but [p] to wear sandals, and not to put on two tunics. 10 And he said to them, "Wherever you enter into a house, stay there until you leave the place. 11 And whoever does not receive you, or listen to you—[q] go forth from there, and shake off the dust from your feet for a witness against them." 12 And going forth, they preached that men should repent, 13 and they cast out many devils, and [r] anointed with oil many sick people, and healed them.

Death of the Baptist. 14 And King Herod [s] heard of him, for his name had become well known;* and he kept saying, "John the Baptist has risen from the dead, and that is why miraculous powers are working through him." 15 But others were saying, "It is Elias." But others were saying, "It is a prophet, like one of the prophets." 16 But when Herod heard of this, he said, "It is John whom I beheaded; he has risen from the dead."

17 For [t] Herod himself had sent and taken John, and bound him in prison, because of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, whom he had married. 18 For John had said to Herod, [u] "It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife." 19 But Herodias laid snares for him, and would have liked to put him to death, but she could not. 20 For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a just and holy man, and protected him; and when he heard him talk, he did many things, and he liked to hear him.

21 And a favorable day came when Herod on his birthday gave a banquet to the officials, tribunes and chief men of Galilee. 22 And Herodias' own daughter having come in and danced, she pleased Herod and his guests. And the king said to the girl, "Ask of me what thou willest, and I will give it to thee." 23 And he swore to her, "Whatever thou dost ask, I will give thee, even though it be the half of my kingdom." 24 Then she went out and said to her mother, "What am I to ask for?" And she said, "The head of John the Baptist." 25 And she came in at once with haste to the king, and asked, saying, "I want thee right away to give me on a dish the head of John the Baptist." 26 And grieved as he was, the king, because of his oath and his guests, was unwilling to displease her.* 27 But sending an executioner, he commanded that his head be brought on a dish. Then he beheaded him in the prison, 28 and brought his head on a dish, and gave it to the girl, and the girl gave it to her mother. 29 His disciples, hearing of it, came and took away his body, and laid it in a tomb.

Return of the Disciples. 30 And the apostles came together to meet Jesus and reported to him all that they had done and taught. 31 And he said to them, [v] "Come apart into a desert place and rest a while." For there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure even to eat. 32 And they got into the boat and went off to a desert place [w] apart. 33 And many saw them leaving and recognized them;* and from all the towns they hurried on foot to the place, and got there ahead of them.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand. 34 And when he landed, [x] Jesus saw a large crowd, and had compassion on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd. And he began to teach them many things.* 35 Now when the day was far spent, his disciples came, saying, "This is a desert place and the hour is already late; 36 send them away, so that they may go to the hamlets and villages round about and buy themselves food to eat."

37 But he answered and said to them, "You yourselves give them some food." And they said to him, "Are we to go and buy two hundred denarii worth of bread and give them to eat?" 38 And he said to them, "How many loaves have you? Go and see." When they had found out, they said, "Five, and two fishes."

39 And he ordered them to make all the people recline in groups on the green grass. 40 And they reclined in groups of hundreds and of fifties. 41 And he took the five loaves and the two fishes and, looking up to heaven, blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before the people; and the two fishes he divided among them all. 42 And all ate and were satisfied; 43 and they gathered up what was left over, twelve baskets full of fragments, besides what was left over of the fishes. 44 Now those who had eaten were five thousand men.

Jesus Walks on the Water. 45 And immediately afterwards [y] he made his disciples get into the boat and cross the sea ahead of him to Bethsaida, while he himself dismissed the crowd. 46 And when he had dismissed them, he went away to the mountain to pray. 47 And when it was late, the ship was in the midst of the sea, and he alone on the land. 48 And seeing them straining at the oars, for the wind was against them, about the fourth watch of the night he came to them, walking upon the sea, and he would have passed by them. 49 But they, seeing him walking upon the sea, thought it was a ghost, and cried out. 50 For they all saw him, and were troubled. Then he immediately spoke to them, and said to them, "Take courage; it is I, do not be afraid." 51 And he got into the boat with them, and the wind fell. And they were utterly beside themselves with astonishment, 52 for they had not understood about the loaves, because their heart was blinded.

Other Miracles. 53 And [z] crossing over, they came to the land at Genesareth and moored the boat. 54 And when they had gotten out of the boat, the people at once recognized him; 55 and they hurried through that whole country, and began to bring the sick on their pallets, wherever they heard he was. 56 And wherever he went, into village or hamlet or town,

Jesus and the Pharisees. 1 And [a] the Pharisees and some of the Scribes who had come from Jerusalem gathered about him. 2 And when they saw that some of his disciples were eating bread with defiled (that is, unwashed) hands, they found fault. 3 For the Pharisees and all the Jews do not eat without frequent washing of hands, holding the tradition* of the ancients. 4 And when they come from the market, they do not eat without washing first. And there have been handed down to them many other things to observe: washing of cups and pots, and brazen vessels and beds. 5 So the Pharisees and Scribes asked him, "Why do not thy disciples walk according to the tradition of the ancients, instead of eating bread with defiled hands?" 6 But answering he said to them, "Well did Isaias prophesy of you hypocrites, as it is written, [b] This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me; 7 and in vain do they worship me, teaching as doctrine the precepts of men. 8 For, letting go the commandment of God, you hold fast the tradition of men, the washing of pots and of cups; and many other things you do like to these."

9 And he said to them, "Well do you nullify the commandment of God, that you may keep your own tradition! 10 For Moses said, [c] Honor thy father and thy mother; and, Let him who curses father or mother be put to death. 11 But you say, 'Let a man say to his father or his mother, "Any support thou mightest have had from me is Corban" '* (that is given to God). 12 And you do not allow him to do anything further for his father or mother. 13 You make void the commandment of God by your tradition, which you have handed down; and many suchlike things you do."

14 Then he called the crowd to him again, and said to them, "Hear me, all of you, and understand. 15 There is nothing outside a man that, entering into him, can defile him; but the things that come out of a man, these are what defile a man. 16 If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear."

17 And when he had entered the house away from the crowd, his disciples began to ask him about the parable. 18 And he said to them, "Are you also, then, without understanding? Do you not realize that nothing from outside, by entering a man, can defile him? 19 For it does not enter his heart, but his belly, and passes out into the drain." Thus he declared all foods clean.* 20 "And," he said, "the things that come out of a man are what defile a man. 21 For from within, out of the heart of men, come evil thoughts, adulteries, immorality, murders, 22 thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, shamelessness, jealousy, blasphemy, pride, foolishness. 23 All these evil things come from within, and defile a man."

The Canaanite Woman. 24 And he arose and departed from there for the district of Tyre and Sidon. And he entered a house, and wanted no one to know it, but he could not keep it secret. 25 For immediately a woman, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit, on hearing of him, came in and fell down at his feet. 26 Now the woman was a Gentile, a Syrophoenician by birth. And she besought him to cast the devil out of her daughter. 27 But he said to her, * "Let the children first have their fill, for it is not fair to take the children's bread and to cast it to the dogs." 28 But she answered and said to him, "Yes, Lord; for even the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs." 29 And he said to her, "Because of this answer, go thy way; the devil has gone out of thy daughter." 30 And when she went to her house, she found the girl lying upon the bed, and the devil gone.

7, 3: It was characteristic of the Pharisees to insist on the binding force of traditional interpretations of the Law, which they termed the "traditions of the ancients," even at the expense of the Law itself. This resulted in frequent frustration of the Law and laid unbearable burdens upon the law-abiding Jew.

7, 11: Corban: a gift to God which could be put to no other use. A son could evade giving support to his parents by declaring Corban what might have been given them. Jesus here illustrates how the Pharisees' teaching frustrated the Law of Moses.

7, 19: The Mosaic Law prohibited certain foods and thereby declared them legally unclean.

7, 27: Jesus repeatedly pointed out that the Messias had come to bring the kingdom of God first to the children of Israel.

Galilee, through the midst of the district of Decapolis. 32 And [e] they brought to him one deaf and dumb, and entreated him to lay his hand upon him. 33 And taking him aside from the crowd, he put his fingers into the man's ears, and spitting, he touched his tongue. 34 And looking up to heaven, he sighed, and said to him, "Ephpheta," that is, "Be thou opened." 35 And his ears were at once opened, and the bond of his tongue was loosed, and he began to speak correctly. 36 And he charged them to tell no one. But the more he charged them, so much the more did they continue to publish it. 37 And so much the more did they wonder, saying, "He has done all things well. He has made both the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak."

CHAPTER 8.

Jesus Feeds Four Thousand. 1 In those [f] days when again there was a great crowd, and they had nothing to eat, he called his disciples together and said to them, 2 "I have compassion on the crowd, for behold, they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat; 3 and if I send them away to their homes fasting, they will faint on the way, for some of them have come from a distance." 4 And his disciples answered him, "How will anyone be able to satisfy these with bread, here in a desert?" 5 He asked them, "How many loaves have you?" And they said, "Seven."

6 And he bade the crowd recline on the ground. Then taking the seven loaves, he gave thanks, broke them and gave them to his disciples to distribute; and they set them before the crowd. 7 And they had a few little fishes; and he blessed them, and ordered them to be distributed. 8 And they ate and were satisfied; and they took up what was left of the fragments, seven baskets. 9 Now those who had eaten were about four thousand. And he dismissed them.

The Pharisees Ask a Sign. 10 And immediately getting into the boat with his disciples, he came into the district of Dalmanutha. 11 And [g] the Pharisees came forth, and began to dispute with him, demanding from him a sign from heaven, to test him. 12 And sighing deeply in spirit, he said, "Why does this generation demand a sign? Amen I say to you, a sign shall not be given* to this generation."

The Leaven of the Pharisees. 13 And he left them, and getting back into the boat, crossed the sea. 14 And they had forgotten to bring bread, and they had but one loaf with them in the boat. 15 And he began to charge them, saying, "Take heed; beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod!" 16 And they began to argue among themselves, saying, "We have no bread." 17 But Jesus knowing this, said to them, "Why do you argue because you have no bread? Do you not yet perceive, nor understand? Is your heart still blinded? 18 Though you have eyes do you not see, and though you have ears do you not hear? And do you not remember? 19 [h] When I broke the five loaves among five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments did you take up?" They said to him, "Twelve." 20 "And when I broke the seven loaves among four thousand, how many large baskets of fragments did you take up?" They said, "Seven." 21 And he said to them, "How is it that you do not yet understand?"

A Blind Man at Bethsaida. 22 And they came to Bethsaida and they brought him a blind man and entreated him to touch him. 23 And taking the blind man by the hand, he led him forth outside the village; and applying spittle to his eyes, he laid his hands upon him, and asked him if he saw anything. 24 And the man looked up, and said, "I see men as though they were trees, but walking about." 25 Then again he laid his hands upon the man's eyes, and he began to see, and was restored so that he saw all things plainly. 26 And he sent him to his house, saying, "Go to thy house, and if thou enter the village, tell nobody."

Peter's Confession. 27 And [i] Jesus and his disciples went out into the villages of Caesarea Philippi; and on the way he asked his disciples, saying to them, "Who do men say that I am?" 28 They answered him, saying, "John the Baptist; others, Elias; and others, one of the prophets." 29 Then he said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" Peter answered and said to him, "Thou art the Christ." * [30] And he strictly charged them to say nothing about him to anyone.

Passion and Resurrection Foretold. [31] And he began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things, [j] and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and Scribes, and be put to death, and after three days rise again. [32] And what he said he spoke openly. And Peter taking him aside, began to chide him. [33] But he, turning and seeing his disciples, rebuked Peter, saying, "Get behind me, satan, for thou dost not mind the things of God, but those of men."

The Doctrine of the Cross. [34] And calling the crowd together with his disciples, he said to them, [k] "If anyone wishes to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. [35] For he who would save his life will lose it; but he who loses his life for my sake and for the gospel's sake will save it. [36] For what does it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, but suffer the loss of his own soul? [37] Or what will a man give in exchange for his soul? [38] For [l] whoever is ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him will the Son of Man also be ashamed when he comes with the holy angels in the glory of his Father." [39] And he said to them, "Amen I say to you, there are some of those standing here who will not taste death,* till they have seen the kingdom of God coming in power."

CHAPTER 9.

Jesus Transfigured. [1] Now [m] after six days Jesus took Peter, James and John, and led them up a high mountain off by themselves, and was transfigured before them. [2] And his garments became shining, exceedingly white as snow, as no fuller on earth can whiten. [3] And there appeared to them Elias with Moses, and they were talking with Jesus. [4] And Peter addressed Jesus, saying, "Rabbi, it is good for us to be here. And let us set up three tents, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias." [5] For he did not know what to say, for they were struck with fear. [6] And there came a cloud overshadowing them, and there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, "This is my beloved Son; hear him." [7] And suddenly looking round, they no longer saw anyone with them but only Jesus.

On the Coming of Elias. [8] And [n] as they were coming down from the mountain, he cautioned them to tell no one what they had seen, except when the Son of Man should have risen from the dead. [9] And they kept what he said to themselves, discussing with one another what the words, "When he shall have risen from the dead," might mean. [10] And they asked him, saying, "Why then do the Pharisees and Scribes say that Elias must come first?" [11] But he answered and said to them, * "Elias is to come first and will restore all things. But how then [o] is it written of the Son of Man, that he should suffer many things and be despised? [12] But I say to you that Elias has come, and they did to him whatever they wished, as it is written of him."

A Possessed Boy. [13] And on coming to his disciples, he saw a great crowd around them, and the Scribes arguing with them. [14] And immediately all the crowd, on seeing him, were amazed and struck with fear, and running up, began to greet him. [15] And he asked them, "What are you arguing about among yourselves?" [16] And one of the crowd answering, said, [p] "Master, I have brought to thee my son, who has a dumb spirit; [17] and wherever it seizes him it throws him down, and he foams and grinds his teeth; and he is wasting away. And I told thy disciples to cast it out, but they could not."

[18] And he answered and said to them, "O unbelieving generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I put up with you? Bring him to me." [19] And they brought him to him; and the spirit, when it saw Jesus, immediately threw the boy into convulsions, and he fell down on the ground, and rolled about foaming at the mouth. [20] So he asked his father, "How long is it since this has come upon him?" And he said, "From his infancy. [21] Oftentimes it has thrown him into the fire and into the waters to destroy him.

8, 29: Peter definitely proclaims his faith in Jesus as the Messias. In a parallel passage St. Matthew reports him as saying, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

8, 39: Who will not taste death, i.e., even in the lifetime of some of His listeners He will manifest the power of His kingdom.

9, 11: Jesus refers to the Jewish tradition that Elias was to come as precursor of the messianic age, and explains that he has come in the person of the Baptist.

But if thou canst do anything, have compassion on us and help us." 22 But Jesus said to him, "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him who believes." 23 At once the father of the boy cried out, and said with tears, "I do believe; help my unbelief."

24 Now when Jesus saw that a crowd was rapidly gathering, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to it, "Thou deaf and dumb spirit, I command thee, go out of him and enter him no more." 25 And crying out and violently convulsing him, it went out of him, and he became like one dead, so that many said, "He is dead." 26 But Jesus took him by the hand, and raised him and he stood up.

27 And when he had come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, "Why could not we cast it out?" 28 And he said to them, "This kind can be cast out in no way except by prayer and fasting."

The Second Prediction of the Passion. 29 And leaving that place, they were passing through Galilee, and he did not wish anyone to know it. 30 For he was teaching his disciples, and saying to them, [q] "The Son of Man is to be betrayed into the hands of men, and they will kill him; and having been killed, he will rise again on the third day." 31 But they did not understand the saying, and were afraid to ask him.

Against Ambition and Envy. 32 And they came to Capharnaum. When he was at home, he asked them, "What were you arguing about on the way?" 33 But they kept silence, for on the way they had discussed with one another [r] which of them was the greatest. 34 And sitting down, he called the Twelve and said to them, "If any man wishes to be first, he shall be last of all, and servant of all." 35 And he took a little child, and set him in their midst, and taking him into his arms, he said to them, 36 "Whoever receives one such little child for my sake, receives me; and whoever receives me, receives not me but him who sent me."

37 John [s] said to him, "Master, we saw a man who was not one of our followers casting out devils in thy name, and we forbade him." 38 But Jesus said, "Do not forbid him, [t] because there is no one who shall work a miracle in my name, and forthwith be able to speak ill of me. 39 For he who is not against you is for you. 40 For [u] whoever gives you a cup of water to drink in my name, because you are Christ's, amen I say to you, he shall not lose his reward.

Avoiding Scandal. 41 "And [v] whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it were better for him if a great millstone were hung about his neck, and he were thrown into the sea. 42 If [w] thy hand is an occasion of sin to thee, cut it off!* It is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than, having two hands, to go into hell, into the unquenchable fire, 43 * 'Where their worm dies not, and the fire is not quenched.' [x] 44 And if thy foot is an occasion of sin to thee, cut it off! It is better for thee to enter into life everlasting lame, than, having two feet, to be cast into the hell of unquenchable fire, 45 'Where their worm dies not, and the fire is not quenched.' 46 And if thy eye is an occasion of sin to thee, pluck it out! It is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than, having two eyes, to be cast into hellfire, 47 'Where their worm dies not, and the fire is not quenched.' 48 For [y] everyone shall be salted with fire, and every victim shall be salted. 49 Salt is good; [z] but if the salt becomes insipid, what shall you season it with? Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace with one another."

CHAPTER 10.

1 And leaving that place,[a] he came to the district of Judea beyond the Jordan, and crowds again flocked to him. And as had been his custom, he again began to teach them.

The Question of Divorce. 2 And some Pharisees coming up asked him, testing him, "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife?" 3 But he answered and said to them, "What did Moses command you?" 4 They said, "Moses permitted us to write a notice of dismissal, [b] and to put her away." * [5] But Jesus said to them, "By reason of the hardness of your heart he wrote you that commandment. [6] But from the beginning of creation [c] God made them male and female. [7] 'For this cause [d] a man shall leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife, [8] and the two shall become one flesh.' Therefore now they are no longer two, but one flesh. [9] What therefore God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

[10] And in the house, his disciples again asked him concerning this. [11] And he said to them, "Whoever puts away his wife and marries another, commits adultery against her; [12] and if the wife puts away her husband, and marries another, [e] she commits adultery."

Jesus Blesses the Children. [13] And they were bringing little children to him [f] that he might touch them; but the disciples rebuked those who brought them. [14] But when Jesus saw them, he was indignant, and said to them, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for of such is the kingdom of God. [15] Amen I say to you, whoever does not accept the kingdom of God as a little child will not enter into it." [16] And he put his arms about them, and laying his hands upon them, he began to bless them.

The Danger of Riches. [17] And as he was going forth on his journey, a certain man running up fell upon his knees before him, and asked him, [g] "Good Master, what shall I do to gain eternal life?" [18] But Jesus said to him, "Why dost thou call me good? No one is good but only God. [19] Thou knowest the [h] commandments: Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness. Thou shalt not defraud. Honor thy father and mother." [20] And he answered and said, "Master, all these I have kept ever since I was a child." [21] And Jesus, looking upon him, loved him, and said to him, "One thing is lacking to thee; go, sell whatever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me." [22] But his face fell at the saying, and he went away sad, for he had great possessions.

[23] And Jesus looking round, said to his disciples, "With what difficulty will they who have riches enter the kingdom of God!" [24] But the disciples were amazed at his word. But Jesus again addressed them, saying, "Children, with what difficulty will they who trust in riches enter the kingdom of God! [25] It is easier* for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." [26] But they were astonished the more, saying among themselves, "Who then can be saved?" [27] And looking upon them, Jesus said, "With men it is impossible, but not with God; for all things are possible with God."

[28] Peter began to say to him, "Behold, we have left all and followed thee." [29] Answering, Jesus said, "Amen I say to you, *there is no one who has left house or brothers, or sisters, or mother, or father, or children, or lands, for my sake and for the gospel's sake, [30] who shall not receive now in the present time a hundredfold as much, houses, and brothers, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands—along with persecutions, and in the age to come life everlasting. [31] But [i] many who are first now will be last, and many who are last now will be first."

The Third Prediction of the Passion. [32] They were now on their way, going up to Jerusalem; and Jesus was walking on in front of them, and they were in dismay, and those who followed were afraid. [i] And again taking the Twelve, he began to tell them what would happen to him, saying, [33] "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and the Scribes; and they will condemn him to death, and will deliver him to the Gentiles; [34] and they will mock him, and spit upon him, and scourge him, and put him to death; and on the third day he will rise again."

came to him, saying, "Master, we want thee to do for us whatever we ask." 36 But he said to them, "What do you want me to do for you?" 37 And they said, "Grant to us that we may sit, one at thy right hand and the other at thy left hand, in thy glory." 38 But Jesus said to them, "You do not know what you are asking for. Can you drink of the cup of which I drink, or be baptized with the baptism with which I am to be baptized?" 39 And they said to him, "We can." * And Jesus said to them, "Of the cup that I drink, you shall drink; and with the baptism with which I am to be baptized, you shall be baptized; 40 but as for sitting at my right hand or at my left, that is not mine to give, but it belongs to those for whom it has been prepared."

41 And when the ten heard this, they were at first indignant at James and John. 42 But Jesus called them and said to them, l "You know that those who are regarded as rulers among the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great men exercise authority over them. 43 But it is not so among you. On the contrary, whoever wishes to become great shall be your servant; 44 and whoever wishes to be first among you shall be the slave of all; 45 for the Son of Man also has not come to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many."

The Blind Bartimeus. 46 And m they came to Jericho. And as he was leaving Jericho with his disciples and a very great crowd, Bartimeus, a blind man, the son of Timeus, was sitting by the wayside, begging. 47 And hearing that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out and say, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" 48 And many angrily tried to silence him. But he cried out all the louder, "Son of David, have mercy on me!" 49 Then Jesus stopped and commanded that he should be called. And they called the blind man and said to him, "Take courage. Get up, he is calling thee." 50 And throwing off his cloak, he sprang to his feet and came to him. 51 And Jesus addressed him, saying, "What wouldst thou have me do for thee?" And the blind man said to him, "Rabboni, that I may see." 52 And Jesus said to him, "Go thy way, thy faith has saved thee." And at once he received his sight, and followed him along the road.

CHAPTER 11.

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem. 1 And n when they drew near to Jerusalem and to Bethany, at the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples, 2 and said to them, "Go into the village opposite you, and immediately on entering it you will find a colt tied, upon which no man has yet sat; loose it, and bring it. 3 And if anyone say to you, 'What are you doing?' you shall say that the Lord has need of it, and immediately he will send it here."

4 And they went their way and found a colt tied at a door outside in the street, and they loosed it. 5 And some of the bystanders said to them, "What are you doing, loosing the colt?" 6 But they answered them as Jesus had told them to do, and they let them go.

7 And they brought the colt to Jesus, and threw their cloaks over it, and he sat upon it. 8 And many spread their cloaks upon the road, while others were cutting branches from the trees, and strewing them on the road. 9 And those who went before him, and those who followed, kept crying out, saying, 10 o Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord! Blessed is the kingdom of our father David that comes! Hosanna in the highest! 11 And p he went into Jerusalem, into the temple. And when he had looked round upon all things, then, as it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the Twelve.

Jesus Curses a Fig Tree. 12 And q the next day, after they had left Bethany, he felt hungry. 13 And seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to see if he might find anything on it. But when he came up to it, he found nothing but leaves; for it was not the season for figs. 14 Then he spoke to it saying, "May no one ever eat fruit of thee henceforward forever." * And his disciples heard.

Cleansing of the Temple. 15 And r they came to Jerusalem. And he entered the temple, and began to cast out those who were selling and buying* in the temple; and he overturned the tables of the money-changers and the seats of those who sold the doves. 16 He would not allow anyone to carry a vessel through the temple. 17 And he began to teach, saying to them, "Is it not written, [s] My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations? But you have made it a den of thieves."

18 And the chief priests and the Scribes heard it, and they sought a way to destroy him; for they were afraid of him, because all the crowd were astonished at his teaching. 19 And when it was evening he went out of the city.

20 And [t] as they passed by in the morning, they saw the fig tree withered from the roots. 21 And Peter, remembering, said to him, "Rabbi, behold, the fig tree that thou didst curse is withered up." 22 But Jesus answered and said to them, "Have faith in God. 23 Amen I say to you, whoever says to this mountain, 'Arise, and hurl thyself into the sea,' and does not waver in his heart, but believes that whatever he says will be done, it shall be done for him. 24 Therefore [u] I say to you, all things whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you shall receive, and they shall come to you. 25 And [v] when you stand up to pray, forgive whatever you have against anyone, that your Father in heaven may also forgive you your offenses. 26 *But if you do not forgive, neither will your Father in heaven forgive you your offenses."

The Authority of Jesus. 27 And [w] they came back to Jerusalem. And as he was walking in the temple, the chief priests and the Scribes and the elders came to him, 28 and said to him, "By what authority dost thou do these things?" and, "Who gave thee this authority to do these things?" 29 But Jesus answered and said to them, "I also will ask you one question, and answer me; then I will tell you by what authority I do these things. 30 Was the baptism of John from heaven, or from men? Answer me." 31 But they began to argue among themselves, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why then did you not believe him?' 32 But if we say, 'From men' "—they feared the people; for all regarded John as really a prophet. 33 And they answered Jesus and said, "We do not know." And Jesus answering, said to them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things."

CHAPTER 12.

Parable of the Vine-dressers. 1 And [x] he began to speak to them in parables.* "A man planted a vineyard, and put a hedge about it, and dug a wine vat, and built a tower; then he let it out to vine-dressers, and went abroad. 2 And at the proper time he sent a servant to the vine-dressers to receive from the vine-dressers some of the fruit of the vineyard; 3 but they seized him, and beat him, and sent him away empty-handed. 4 And again he sent another servant to them; but this one they wounded in the head and treated shamefully. 5 And again he sent another, and him they killed, and many others; beating some, and killing some. 6 Now he still had one left, a beloved son; and him he sent to them last of all, saying, 'They will respect my son.' 7 "But the vine-dressers said to one another, 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.' 8 So they seized him and killed him, and cast him out of the vineyard. 9 What therefore will the owner of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the vine-dressers, and will give the vineyard to others. 10 And have you not read this Scripture: [y] The stone which the builders rejected, has become the corner stone; 11 by the Lord this has been done, and it is wonderful in our eyes?" 12 And they sought to lay hands on him, but they feared the crowd; for they knew that he had aimed this parable at them. And leaving him, they went their way.

Tribute to Caesar. 13 And [z] they sent to him certain of the Pharisees and Herodians, that they might trap him in his talk. 14 And they came and said to him, "Master, we know that thou art truthful, and that thou carest naught for any man; for thou dost not regard the person of men, but dost teach the way of God in truth. Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar; or shall we not give it?" 15 But knowing their craftiness, he said to them, "Why do you test me? Bring me a denarius to look at." 16 So they brought one. Then he said to them, "Whose are this image and the inscription?" They said to him, "Caesar's." 17 And Jesus answered and said to them, [a] "Render, therefore, to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." And they marvelled at him.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection. 18 And there came to him Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, and they began to question him, saying, 19 "Master, Moses has written for us that [b] 'if a man's brother die, leaving a wife but no children, his brother shall take the widow and raise up issue to his brother.' * 20 Now there were seven brothers. And the first took a wife, and dying, left no issue. 21 And the second took her, and died, without leaving issue either; and the third likewise. 22 And the seven took her in the same way, and left no issue. Last of all the woman also died. 23 At the resurrection, therefore, when they rise, of which of them will she be wife? For the seven had her as wife."

24 And Jesus answered and said to them, "Is not this why you err—because you know neither the Scriptures nor the power of God? 25 For when they rise from the dead, they will neither marry nor be given in marriage, but are as angels in heaven. 26 But as to the dead rising, have you not read in the book of Moses about the Bush, how God spoke to him, saying, [c] I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? 27 He is not the God of the dead, but of the living. You are therefore entirely wrong."

The Great Commandment. 28 And [d] one of the Scribes came forward who had heard them disputing together; and seeing that he had answered them well, he asked him which was the first commandment of all. 29 But Jesus answered him, "The first commandment of all is, [e] Hear, O Israel! The Lord our God is one God; 30 and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole mind, and with thy whole strength. This is the first commandment. 31 And the second is like it, [f] Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. There is no other commandment greater than these." 32 And the Scribe said to him, "Well answered, Master, thou hast said truly that he is one and that there is no other besides him; 33 and that he should be loved with the whole heart, and with the whole understanding, and with the whole soul, and with one's whole strength; and that to love one's neighbor as oneself is a greater thing than all holocausts and sacrifices." 34 And Jesus, seeing that he had answered wisely, said to him, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God." And no one after that ventured to ask him questions.

The Son of David. 35 And [g] while Jesus was teaching in the temple, he addressed them, saying, "How do the Scribes say that the Christ is the Son of David? 36 For David himself says, by the Holy Spirit, [h] The Lord said to my Lord: Sit thou at my right hand, till I make thy enemies thy footstool. 37 David himself, therefore, calls him 'Lord'; how, then, is he his son?" And the mass of the common people liked to hear him.

Hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees. 38 And [i] in the course of his teaching he said to them, "Beware of the Scribes, who like to walk about in long robes, and to be greeted in the market place, 39 and to have the front seats in the synagogues and the first places at suppers; 40 who devour the houses of the widows, making pretense of long prayers. These shall receive a heavier sentence."

The Widow's Mite. 41 And [j] Jesus sat down opposite the treasury, and observed how the crowd were putting money into the treasury; and many rich people were putting in large sums. 42 And there came one poor widow, and she put in two mites, which make a quadrans. 43 And he called his disciples together, and said to them, "Amen I say to you, this poor widow has put in more than all those who have been putting money into the treasury. 44 For they all have put in out of their abundance; but she out of her want has put in all that she had—all that she had to live on."

Destruction of Jerusalem and End of the World. 1 And [k] as he was going out of the temple, one of his disciples said to him, "Master, look, what wonderful stones and buildings!" 2 *And Jesus answered and said to him, "Dost thou see all these great buildings? There will not be left one stone upon another that will not be thrown down."

3 And as he was sitting on the Mount of Olives, opposite the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew asked him privately, 4 "Tell us, when are these things to happen, and what will be the sign when all these things will begin to come to pass?"

5 And in answer Jesus began to say to them, [l] "Take care that no one leads you astray. 6 For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am he'; and they will lead many astray. 7 But when you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed; for they must come to pass, but the end is not yet. 8 For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be earthquakes in various places, and famines. These things are the beginning of sorrows.

9 "But be on your guard. For they will deliver you up to councils, and you will be beaten in synagogues, and you will stand before governors and kings for my sake, for a witness to them. 10 And the gospel must first be preached to all the nations. 11 And [m] when they lead you away to deliver you up, do not be anxious beforehand what you are to speak; but speak whatever is given you in that hour. For it is not you who are speaking, but the Holy Spirit. 12 And brother will hand over brother to death, and the father his child; children will rise up against parents and put them to death. 13 And you will be hated by all for my name's sake; but he who has persevered to the end will be saved.

Destruction of Jerusalem. 14 "And when you see the abomination of desolation, [n] standing where it ought not—let him who reads understand—then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; 15 and let him who is on the housetop not go down and enter to take anything from his house; 16 and let him who is in the field not turn back to take his cloak. 17 But woe to those who are with child, or have infants at the breast in those days! 18 But pray that these things may not happen in winter. 19 For in those days will be tribulations, such as have not been from the beginning of the creation which God created until now, nor will be. 20 And unless the Lord had shortened the days, no living creature would be saved. But for the sake of the elect whom he has chosen, he has shortened the days.

The Signs of the Last Day. 21 "And then, if anyone say to you, 'Behold, here is the Christ; behold, there he is,' do not believe it. 22 For false christs and false prophets will arise, and will show signs and wonders, so as to lead astray, if possible, even the elect. 23 Be on your guard, therefore; behold, I have told you all things beforehand.

24 "But [o] in those days, after that tribulation, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give her light, 25 and the stars of heaven will be falling, and the powers that are in heaven will be shaken. 26 And then they will see the Son of Man coming upon clouds with great power and majesty. 27 And then he will send forth his angels, and will gather his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost parts of the earth to the uttermost parts of heaven.

Jerusalem's Impending Destruction. 28 "Now from the fig tree learn this parable. When its branch is now tender, and the leaves break forth, you know that summer is near. 29 Even so, when you see these things coming to pass, know that it is near, even at the door. 30 Amen I say to you, this generation will not pass away till all these things have been accomplished. 31 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

The Need of Watchfulness. 32 "But of that day or hour no one knows, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but the Father only. 33 Take heed, watch and pray, for you do not know when the time is: 34 just as a man, [p] when he leaves home to journey abroad, puts his servants in charge, to each his work, and

CHAPTER 14.

1. The Last Supper

The Council. 1 Now it was two days [b] before the Passover and the feast of the Unleavened Bread; the chief priests and the Scribes were seeking how they might seize him by stealth and put him to death; 2 for they said, "Not on the feast,* or there might be a riot among the people."

The Anointing at Bethany. 3 And [r] when he was at Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, and was reclining at table, there came a woman with an alabaster jar of ointment, genuine nard of great value; and breaking the alabaster jar, she poured it on his head. 4 But there were some who were indignant among themselves, and said, "To what purpose has this waste of the ointment been made? 5 for this ointment might have been sold for more than three hundred denarii, and given to the poor." And they grumbled at her.

6 But Jesus said, "Let her be. Why do you trouble her? She has done me a good turn. 7 For the poor you have always with you, and whenever you want you can do good to them; but you do not always have me. 8 She has done what she could; she has anointed my body in preparation for burial. 9 Amen I say to you, wherever in the whole world this gospel is preached, this also that she has done shall be told in memory of her."

The Betrayal. 10 And Judas Iscariot, [s] one of the Twelve, went to the chief priests to betray him to them. 11 And they, when they heard it, were glad, and promised to give him money. And he sought out an opportunity to betray him.

Preparation. 12 And on the first day of the Unleavened Bread, [t] when it was customary for them to sacrifice the passover, the disciples said to him, "Where dost thou want us to go and prepare for thee to eat the passover?" 13 And he sent two of his disciples, and said to them, "Go into the city, and there will meet you a man carrying a pitcher of water; follow him. 14 And wherever he enters, say to the master of the house, 'The Master says, "Where is my guest chamber, that I may eat the passover there with my disciples?"' 15 And he will show you a large upper room furnished; there make ready for us." 16 And his disciples went forth, and came into the city, and found just as he had told them; and they prepared the passover.

The Betrayer. 17 Now when evening arrived, [u] he came with the Twelve. 18 And while they were at the table eating, Jesus said, "Amen I say to you, one of you will betray me—one who is eating with me." 19 But they began to be sad, and to say to him one by one, "Is it I?" 20 But he said to them, "It is one of the Twelve, who dips into the dish with me. 21 The Son of Man indeed goes his way, [v] as it is written of him; but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It were better for that man if he had not been born."

The Holy Eucharist. 22 And [w] while they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessing it, he broke and gave it to them, and said, "Take; this is my body." 23 And taking a cup and giving thanks, he gave it to them, and they all drank of it; 24 and he said to them, "This is my blood of the new covenant, which is being shed for many. 25 Amen I say to you, that I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I shall drink it new in the kingdom of God."

Peter's Denials Predicted. 26 And [x] after reciting a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives. 27 And Jesus said to them, [y] "You will all be scandalized this night; for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered. 28 But after I have risen, I will go before you into Galilee." 29 But Peter said to him, "Even though all shall be scandalized, yet not I." 30 Jesus said to him, "Amen I say to thee, today, this very night, before a cock crows twice, thou wilt deny me three times." 31 But he went on speaking more vehemently, "Even if I should have to die with thee, I will not deny thee!" And they all said the same thing.

2. The Passion and Death of Jesus

The Agony in the Garden. 32 And they came [z] to a country place called Gethsemani, and he said to his disciples, "Sit down here, while I pray." 33 And he took with him Peter and James and John, and he began to feel dread and to be exceedingly troubled. 34 And he said to them, "My soul is sad, even unto death. Wait here and watch." 35 And going forward a little, he fell on the ground, and began to pray that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him; 36 and he said, "Abba, Father, all things are possible to thee. Remove this cup from me; yet not what I will, but what thou willest."

37 Then he came and found them sleeping. And he said to Peter, "Simon, dost thou sleep? Couldst thou not watch one hour? 38 Watch and pray, that you may not enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." 39 And again he went away and prayed, saying the same words over. 40 And he came again and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. And they did not know what answer to make to him. 41 And he came the third time, and said to them, "Sleep on now, and take your rest! It is enough; the hour has come. Behold, the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. 42 Rise, let us go. Behold, he who will betray me is at hand."

Jesus Arrested. 43 And [a] while he was yet speaking, Judas Iscariot, one of the Twelve, came and with him a great crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and the Scribes and the elders. 44 Now his betrayer had given them a sign, saying, "Whomever I kiss, that is he; lay hold of him, and lead him safely away." 45 And when he came, he went straight up to him, and said, "Rabbi!" and kissed him. 46 And they seized him and held him.

47 But one of the bystanders drew his sword, and struck the servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear. 48 And Jesus, addressing them, said, "As against a robber you have come out, with swords and clubs, to seize me. 49 I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and you did not lay hands on me. But it is so that the Scriptures may be fulfilled."

50 Then all his disciples left him and fled. 51 And a certain young man was following him, having a linen cloth wrapped about his naked body, and they seized him. 52 But leaving the linen cloth behind, he fled away from them naked.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin. 53 And [b] they led Jesus away to the high priest; and all the priests and the Scribes and the elders* gathered together. 54 But Peter followed him at a distance, even to the courtyard of the high priest, and was sitting with the attendants at the fire and warming himself. 55 Now the chief priests and all the Sanhedrin were seeking witness against Jesus, that they might put him to death, but they found none. 56 For while many bore false witness against him, their evidence did not agree. 57 And some stood up and bore false witness against him, saying, 58 "We ourselves have heard him say, [c] 'I will destroy this temple built by hands, and after three days I will build another, not built by hands.'" 59 And even then their evidence did not agree.

60 Then the high priest, standing up in their midst, asked Jesus, saying, "Dost thou make no answer to the things that these men prefer against thee?" 61 But he kept silence, and made no answer. Again the high priest began to ask him, and said to him, "Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed One?" 62 And Jesus said to him, [d] "I am. And you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power and coming with the clouds of heaven."

63 But the high priest tore his garments and said, "What further need have we of witnesses? 64 You have heard the blasphemy. What do you think?" And they all condemned him as liable to death. 65 And some began to spit on him, and to blindfold him, and to buffet him, and to say to him, "Prophesy." And the attendants struck him with blows of their hands.

14, 53: Jesus was first cited before the Sanhedrin, the highest ecclesiastical and civil court of the Jews. Here He was unjustly condemned for blasphemy, but the court could not execute the death penalty. Hence Jesus was sent to Pilate, who alone had the power to inflict it.

Peter's Denial. 66 And [e] while Peter was below in the courtyard, there came one of the maidservants of the high priest; 67 and seeing Peter warming himself, she looked closely at him and said, "Thou also wast with Jesus of Nazareth." 68 But he denied it, saying, "I neither know nor understand what thou art saying." And he went outside into the vestibule; and the cock crowed. 69 And the maidservant, seeing him again, began to say to the bystanders, "This is one of them." 70 But again he denied it. And after a little while the bystanders again said to Peter, "Surely thou art one of them, for thou art also a Galilean." 71 But he began to curse and to swear: "I do not know this man you are talking about." 72 And at that moment a cock crowed a second time. [f] And Peter remembered the word that Jesus had said to him, "Before a cock crows twice, thou wilt deny me three times." And he began to weep.

CHAPTER 15.

Jesus before Pilate. 1 And [g] as soon as it was morning, the chief priests held a consultation with the elders, the Scribes and the whole Sanhedrin. And they bound Jesus and led him away, and delivered him to Pilate. 2 And [h] Pilate asked him, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" And he answered him and said, "Thou sayest it." 3 And the chief priests accused him of many things. 4 And Pilate again asked him, saying, "Hast thou no answer to make? Behold how many things they accuse thee of." 5 But Jesus made no further answer, so that Pilate wondered.

6 Now [i] at festival time he used to release to them one of the prisoners, whomever they had petitioned for. 7 Now there was a man called Barabbas imprisoned with some rioters, one who in the riot had committed murder. 8 And the crowd came up, and began to ask that he do for them as he was wont. 9 But Pilate addressed them, saying, "Do you wish that I release to you the king of the Jews?" 10 For he knew that the chief priests had delivered him up out of envy. 11 But the chief priests stirred up the crowd to have him release Barabbas for them instead. 12 But Pilate again spoke and said to them, "What then do you want me to do to the king of the Jews?" 13 But they cried out again, "Crucify him!" 14 But Pilate said to them, "Why, what evil has he done?" But they kept crying out the more, "Crucify him!"

The Scourging and Crowning. 15 So Pilate, wishing to satisfy the crowd, released to them Barabbas; but Jesus he scourged and delivered to be crucified. 16 Now [j] the soldiers led him away into the courtyard of the praetorium, and they called together the whole cohort. 17 And they clothed him in purple, and plaiting a crown of thorns, they put it upon him, 18 and began to greet him, "Hail, King of the Jews!" 19 And they kept striking him on the head with a reed, and spitting upon him; and bending their knees, they did homage to him.

The Way of the Cross. 20 And when they had mocked him, they took the purple off him and put his own garments on him, and led him out to crucify him. 21 And [k] they forced a certain passer-by, Simon of Cyrene, coming from the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to take up his cross. 22 And [l] they brought him to the place called Golgotha, which translated, is the Place of the Skull.

The Crucifixion. 23 And they gave him wine to drink mixed with myrrh; but he did not take it. 24 Then they crucified him, and divided his garments, casting lots for them to see what each should take. 25 Now it was the third hour and they crucified him. 26 And the inscription bearing the charge against him was, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

27 And they crucified two robbers with him, one on his right hand and one on his left. 28 And the Scripture was fulfilled, which says, [m] And he was reckoned among the wicked. 29 And [n] the passers-by were jeering at him, shaking their heads, and saying, "Aha, thou who destroyest the temple, and in three days buildest it up again; 30 come down from the cross, and save thyself!" 31 In like manner, the chief priests with the Scribes said in mockery to one another, "He saved others, himself he cannot save! 32 Let the Christ, the King of Israel, come down now from the cross, that we may see and believe." And they who were crucified with him reproached him.

The Death of Jesus. 33 And when the sixth hour came, there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour. 34 And at the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, [o] "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabacthani?" which, translated, is, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" 35 And some of the bystanders on hearing this said, "Behold, he is calling Elias." 36 But someone ran, soaked a sponge in common wine, put it on a reed and offered it to him to drink, saying, "Wait, let us see whether Elias is coming to take him down." 37 But Jesus cried out with a loud voice, and expired.

38 And the curtain of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom. 39 Now [p] when the centurion, who stood facing him, saw how he had thus cried out and expired, he said, "Truly this man was the Son of God." 40 And [q] some women were also there, looking on from a distance. Among them were Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James the Less and of Joseph, and Salome. 41 These used to accompany him and minister to him when he was in Galilee—besides many other women who had come with him to Jerusalem.

The Burial. 42 Now [r] when it was evening, as it was the Day of Preparation, that is, the eve of the Sabbath, 43 there came Joseph of Arimathea, a councillor of high rank, who was himself looking for the kingdom of God. And he went in boldly to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. 44 But Pilate wondered whether he had already died. And sending for the centurion, he asked him whether he was already dead. 45 And when he learned from the centurion that he was, he granted the body to Joseph. 46 And Joseph bought a linen cloth, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen cloth, and laid him in a tomb which had been hewn out of a rock. Then he rolled a stone to the entrance of the tomb. 47 But Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joseph were looking on and saw where he was laid.

3. The Resurrection of Jesus

CHAPTER 16.

The Women at the Grave. 1 And when the Sabbath was past, [s] Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome, bought spices, that they might go and anoint him. 2 And very early on the first day of the week, they came to the tomb, when the sun had just risen. 3 And they were saying to one another, "Who will roll the stone back from the entrance of the tomb for us?" 4 And looking up they saw that the stone had been rolled back, for it was very large. 5 But on entering the tomb, [t] they saw a young man sitting at the right side, clothed in a white robe, and they were amazed. 6 He said to them, "Do not be terrified. You are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He has risen, he is not here. Behold the place where they laid him. 7 But go, tell his disciples and Peter that he goes before you into Galilee; there you shall see him, [u] as he told you." 8 And they departed and fled from the tomb, for trembling and fear had seized them; and they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid.

Apparitions of Jesus. 9 Now [v] when he had risen from the dead early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils. 10 She went and brought word to those who had been with him, as they were mourning and weeping. 11 And they, hearing that he was alive and had been seen by her, did not believe it.

12 After [w] this he was manifested in another form to two of them, as they were walking on their way into the country. 13 And they went and brought word to the rest, and even then they did not believe.

Commission of the Apostles. 14 At length he appeared to the Eleven as they were at table; and he upbraided them for their lack of faith and hardness of heart, in that they had not believed those who had seen him after he had risen. 15 And he said to them, "Go into the whole world and preach the gospel to every creature. 16 He who believes and is baptized shall be saved, but he who does not believe shall be condemned. 17 And these signs shall attend those who believe: in my name they shall cast out devils; [x] they shall speak in new tongues; 18 they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands upon the sick and they shall get well."

4. The Ascension of Jesus

19 So then the Lord, [y] after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven, and sits at the right hand of God. 20 But they went forth and preached everywhere, while the Lord worked with them and confirmed the preaching by the signs that followed.* Amen.

y Lk 24, 50-53.

16, 20: Followed: signs not only followed, but endorsed and established, the truth of their preaching.

THE HOLY GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST ACCORDING TO SAINT LUKE

St. Luke was born at Antioch, Syria, according to the Church historian Eusebius. He was a Gentile by birth (Col 4, 10-14) and a physician by profession (Col. 4, 14). According to a legend of the sixth centry he was also a painter. He was one of the earliest converts to the faith and later became the missionary companion of St. Paul, whom he accompanied on part of the second and third missionary journeys (Acts 16, 10-17; 20, 5–21, 17) and attended during the Caesarean (Acts 24, 23) and Roman captivities (Acts 27–28; Col 4, 14). Little is known with certainty of his subsequent life.

The unanimous tradition of the Church ascribes the third Gospel to St. Luke. Allusions to and citations from the Gospel are most frequent in early Christian writings, and even heretics made diligent use of this inspired book. The Gospel itself shows that its author was a person of literary powers, a physician and a companion of St. Paul.

This Gospel was written before the destruction of Jerusalem, 70 A.D., for it does not refer to the fulfillment of Christ's prophecy. Since the Acts of the Apostles closes its narrative with the year 63 or 64 A.D., the Gospel of St. Luke, his first book, must have been written prior to 63 A.D.

Little is known with certainty about the place of composition. Some of the ancient authors suggest Achaia (Greece); some of the manuscripts mention Alexandria or Macedonia; while modern writers also defend Caesarea, Ephesus or Rome.

The Gospel is addressed to a certain Theophilus, a man of conspicuous rank or office. Indirectly, however, this Sacred Writing was intended for the Gentile converts. The purpose of the Gospel is clearly indicated in the prologue (1, 1-4). These converts from paganism had received instruction before Baptism. St. Luke wishes now to give them a deeper and more accurate knowledge of the truths of their religion, and at the same time to show them on what a firm basis their faith is founded. There are some characteristic features that are accentuated more by St. Luke than by the other evangelists. Many of these show the influence of St. Paul. The theme of the universality of salvation can be considered as running through the Gospel. Divine forgiveness and salvation are offered to all. The Gospel also sharply contrasts the position of pagan and Jewish womanhood, and presents many types of womanhood to its readers. The subject of prayer is also stressed. Not only does the evangelist record more frequently than the others Christ as an example of prayer, but also His instructions on prayer. As an artist St. Luke shows his skill in portraying living characters and he has remained an inspiration to painters for centuries. As a historian he is comparable with the great Greek and Latin writers. In his Gospel there is a steady movement of events from Nazareth to Jerusalem, whereas in the Acts it is from Jerusalem to Rome.

Prologue

CHAPTER 1.

1 Inasmuch as many have undertaken to draw up a [a] narrative concerning the things that have been fulfilled among us, 2 even as they who from the beginning were eyewitnesses and ministers of the word have handed them down to us, 3 I also have determined, after following up all things carefully from the very first, to write for thee, most excellent Theophilus, an orderly account, 4 that thou mayest understand the certainty of the words in which thou hast been instructed.

Prelude: The Coming of The Savior

Annunciation of the Baptist. 5 In the days of Herod, king of Judea, there was a certain priest named Zachary, [b] of the course of Abia; and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. 6 Both were just before God, walking blamelessly in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord. 7 But they had no son, for Elizabeth was barren; and they were both advanced in years.

8 Now it came to pass, while he was officiating in the order of his course as priest before God, 9 according to the custom of the priest's office, that he was chosen by lot* to enter the temple of the Lord to burn [c] incense. 10 And the whole multitude of the people were praying outside at the hour of incense. 11 And there appeared to him an angel of the Lord, standing at the right of the altar of incense. 12 And Zachary, seeing him, was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13 But the angel said to him, "Do not be afraid, Zachary, for thy petition has been heard, and thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son and thou shalt call his name John. 14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth. 15 For he shall be great before the Lord; he shall drink no wine or strong drink, and shall be filled with the Holy Spirit even from his mother's womb. 16 And he shall bring back to the Lord their God many of the children of Israel, 17 and he shall himself go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, [d] to turn the hearts of fathers to their children and the incredulous to the wisdom of the just; to prepare for the Lord a perfect people."

18 And Zachary said to the angel: "How shall I know this? For I am an old man and my wife is advanced in years."

1, 9: It was customary for the priestly class whose week it was to serve in the temple, to cast lots daily for the performance of the various functions. To offer incense upon the altar in the holy place was considered a singular privilege.

1, 25: Among the Jews childlessness was considered a reproach.

1, 28: Blessed . . . women: omitted in some notable MSS. It is rightly placed on the lips of Elizabeth in v 42.

1, 34: Mary did not doubt, as did Zachary, that the angel's words would be fulfilled, but prudently inquired how this would be accomplished, since she had firmly resolved to remain a virgin. The angel explained to her that her conception would be produced by the Holy Spirit and the power of the Most High.

19 And the angel answered and said to him, "I am Gabriel, who stand in the presence of God; and I have been sent to speak to thee and to bring thee this good news. 20 And behold, thou shalt be dumb and unable to speak until the day when these things come to pass, because thou hast not believed my words, which will be fulfilled in their proper time."

21 And the people were waiting for Zachary, and they wondered at his tarrying so long in the temple. 22 But when he did come out he could not speak to them, and they realized that he had seen a vision in the temple. And he kept making signs to them, but he remained dumb.

23 And it came to pass, when the days of his service were completed, that he departed to his own house. 24 Now after these days Elizabeth his wife conceived, and she secluded herself for five months, saying, 25 "Thus has the Lord dealt with me in the days when he deigned to take away my reproach* among men."

Annunciation of the Savior. 26 Now in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a town of Galilee called Nazareth, 27 to a virgin betrothed to a man named Joseph, of the house of David, and the virgin's name was Mary. 28 And when the angel had come to her, he said, "Hail, full of grace, the Lord is with thee. Blessed art thou among women." * 29 When she had heard him she was troubled at his word, and kept pondering what manner of greeting this might be.

30 And the angel said to her, "Do not be afraid, Mary, for thou hast found grace with God. 31 [e] Behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb and shalt bring forth a son; and thou shalt call his name Jesus. 32 He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give him the throne of David his father, and [f] he shall be king over the house of Jacob forever; 33 and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

34 But Mary said to the angel, "How shall this happen, since I do not know man?" *

35 And the angel answered and said to her, "The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee and the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee; and therefore the Holy One to be born shall be called the Son of God. 36 And behold, Elizabeth thy kinswoman also has conceived a son in her old age, and she who was called barren is now in her sixth month; 37 for nothing shall be impossible with God."

38 But Mary said, "Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it done to me according to thy word." And the angel departed from her.

The Visitation. 39 Now in those days Mary arose and went with haste into the hill country, to a town of Juda. 40 And she entered the house of Zachary and saluted Elizabeth. 41 And it came to pass, when Elizabeth heard the greeting of Mary, that the babe in her womb leapt. And Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit, 42 and cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Blessed art thou among women and blessed is the fruit of thy womb! 43 And how have I deserved that the mother of my Lord should come to me? 44 For behold, the moment that the sound of thy greeting came to my ears, the babe in my womb leapt for joy. 45 And blessed is she who has believed, because the things promised her by the Lord shall be accomplished."

46 And Mary said,*

"My soul magnifies the Lord,[g] and 47 my spirit rejoices in God my Savior;
48 Because he has regarded the lowliness[h] of his handmaid;
for, behold, henceforth all generations shall call me blessed;
49 Because he who is mighty has done great things for me, and holy is his name;
50 And his mercy is from generation to generation[i] on those who fear him.
51 He has shown might with his arm,[j] he has scattered the proud in the conceit of their heart.
52 He has put down the mighty from their thrones,[k]
and has exalted the lowly.
53 He has filled the hungry with good things, and the rich he has sent away empty.[l]
54 He has given help to Israel, his servant,[m] mindful of his mercy—55 Even as he spoke to our fathers—to Abraham[n] and to his posterity forever."

56 And Mary remained with her about three months and returned to her own house.

Birth of the Baptist. 57 Now Elizabeth's time was fulfilled that she should be delivered, and she brought forth a son. 58 And her neighbors and kinsfolk heard that the Lord had magnified his mercy towards her, and they rejoiced with her. 59 And it came to pass on the eighth day, that they came to circumcise the child, and they were going to call him by his father's name, Zachary. 60 And his mother answered and said, "Not so, but he shall be called John."

61 And they said to her, "There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name." 62 And they kept inquiring by signs of his father what he would have him called. 63 And asking for a writing-tablet he wrote the words, "John is his name." And they all marvelled. 64 And immediately his mouth was opened and his tongue loosed, and he began to speak, blessing God. 65 And fear came on all their neighbors; and all these things were spoken abroad in all the hill country of Judea. 66 And all who heard them laid them up in their heart, saying, "What then will this child be?" For the hand of the Lord was with him. 67 And Zachary his father was filled with the Holy Spirit, and prophesied, saying,

68 "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel,* because he has visited and wrought redemption[o] for his people, 69 And has raised up a horn[p] of salvation* for us, in the house of David his servant, 70 As he promised through the mouth of from the hand[r] of all who hate us.

wherewith the Orient* from on high has visited us,[v]

80 And the child grew and became strong in spirit; and was in the deserts until the day of his manifestation to Israel.

CHAPTER 2.

The Birth of Jesus. 1 Now it came to pass in those days, that a decree went forth from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. 2 This first census* took place while Cyrinus was governor of Syria. 3 And all were going, each to his own town, to register.

4 And Joseph also went from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem [x]—because he was of the house and family of David—5 to register, * together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child. 6 And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled. 7 *And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

The Shepherds at the Crib. 8 And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night. 9 And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round about them, and they feared exceedingly.

10 And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; 11 for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you, who is Christ the Lord. 12 And this shall be a sign to you: you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger." 13 And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, 14 "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

15 And it came to pass, when the angels had departed from them into heaven, that the shepherds were saying to one another, "Let us go over to Bethlehem and see this thing that has come to pass, which the Lord has made known to us."

16 So they went with haste, and they found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger. 17 And when they had seen, they understood what had been told them concerning this child. 18 And all who heard marvelled at the things told them by the shepherds. 19 But Mary kept in mind all these things, pondering them in her heart. 20 And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all that they had heard and seen, even as it was spoken to them.

Circumcision and Presentation. 21 And when eight days were fulfilled for his circumcision, his name was called Jesus, [y] the name given him by the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22 And when the days of her purification [z] were fulfilled according to the Law of Moses, * they took him up to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord— 23 as it is written [a] in the Law of the Lord,

1, 78: The Orient: Just as the natural sun rises over the earth and dissipates darkness, so too the spiritual sun, Jesus Christ, has come to dispel the darkness of error and sin. In the Old Testament He is referred to as the rising light (Is 9, 1f), and in St. John's Gospel He is declared to be the light of the world (Jn 9, 5).

2, 2: Besides this census, St. Luke mentions another (Acts 5, 37) which took place A. D. 5-6, immediately after the deposition of Archelaus.

2, 5: Apparently Mary, who at this time was married to St. Joseph, was also obliged to be registered.

2, 7: Cf Mt 1, 25.

2, 22: According to the Mosaic Law (Lv 12, 3ff), a mother was unclean for seven days after the birth of a son and then had to remain at home for another thirty-three days.

Every male that opens the womb shall be called holy to the Lord—24 and to offer a sacrifice according to what is said [b] in the Law of the Lord, "a pair of turtle-doves or two young pigeons."

25 And behold, there was in Jerusalem a man named Simeon, and this man was just and devout, looking for the consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit was upon him. 26 And it had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he should not see death before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. 27 And he came by inspiration of the Spirit into the temple. And when his parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him according to the custom of the Law, 28 he also received him into his arms and blessed God, saying,

29 "Now thou dost dismiss thy servant, O Lord, according to thy word, in peace;
30 Because my eyes have seen thy salvation,
31 which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples:
32 A light of revelation to the Gentiles, and a glory for thy people Israel."

33 And his father and mother were marvelling at the things spoken concerning him. 34 And Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary his mother, [c] "Behold, this child is destined for the fall and for the rise of many in Israel, and for a sign that shall be contradicted. 35 And thy own soul a sword shall pierce, that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed."

36 There was also Anna, a prophetess, daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser. She was of a great age, having lived with her husband seven years from her maidenhood, 37 and by herself as a widow to eighty-four years. She never left the temple, with fastings and prayers worshipping night and day. 38 And coming up at that very hour, she began to give praise to the Lord, and spoke of him to all who were awaiting the redemption of Jerusalem.

39 And when they had fulfilled all things prescribed in the Law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, into their own town of Nazareth. 40 And the child grew and became strong. He was full of wisdom and the grace of God was upon him.

The Child Jesus in the Temple. 41 And his parents were wont to go every year to Jerusalem [d] at the Feast of the Passover. 42 And when he was twelve years old,* they went up to Jerusalem according to the custom of the feast. 43 And after they had fulfilled the days, when they were returning, the boy Jesus remained in Jerusalem, and his parents did not know it. 44 But thinking that he was in the caravan, they had come a day's journey before it occurred to them to look for him among their relatives and acquaintances. 45 And not finding him, they returned to Jerusalem in search of him.

46 And it came to pass after three days, that they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the teachers, listening to them and asking them questions. 47 And all who were listening to him were amazed at his understanding and his answers. 48 And when they saw him, they were astonished. And his mother said to him, "Son, why hast thou done so to us? Behold, in sorrow thy father and I have been seeking thee."

49 And he said to them, "How is it that you sought me? Did you not know that I must be about my Father's business?" 50 And they did not understand the word that he spoke to them.

51 And he went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was subject to them; and his mother kept all these things carefully in her heart. 52 And Jesus advanced in wisdom* and age and grace before God and men.

I: THE PUBLIC MINISTRY OF JESUS

I
CHAPTER 3.

John the Baptist. 1 Now in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar, when Pontius Pilate was procurator of Judea, and Herod tetrarch of Galilee, and Philip his brother tetrarch of the district of Iturea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene, 2 during the

2, 42: With the completion of his thirteenth year a young Jew became "a son of the Law" and was obliged to the observance of the entire Law. Jewish parents familiarized their sons with the major duties of the Law a year or two before this obligation began.

2, 52: As God, our Lord has infinite knowledge; as man, He had from the beginning the greatest possible infused knowledge and also the beatific vision. His human mind, however, could advance in experimental knowledge, which is only acquired through the medium of mental faculties and bodily senses.

high priesthood of Annas and Caiphas, the word of God came to John, the son of Zachary, in the desert. 3 And [e] he went into all the region about the Jordan, preaching a baptism* of repentance for the forgiveness of sins, 4 as it is written in the book of the words of Isaias the prophet, [f] The voice of one crying in the desert, "Make ready the way of the Lord, make straight his paths. 5 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low, and the crooked ways shall be made straight, and the rough ways smooth; 6 and all mankind shall see the salvation of God."

7 He said therefore to the crowds that went out to be baptized by him, "Brood of vipers! who has shown you how to flee from the wrath to come? 8 Bring forth therefore fruits befitting repentance, and do not begin to say, 'We have Abraham for our father'; for I say to you that God is able out of these stones to raise up children to Abraham. 9 For even now the axe is laid at the root of the trees; every tree, therefore, that is not bringing forth fruit is to be cut down and thrown into the fire."

10 And the crowds asked him, saying, "What then are we to do?" 11 And he answered and said to them, [g] "Let him who has two tunics share with him who has none; and let him who has food do likewise."

12 And publicans also came to be baptized, and they said to him, "Master, what are we to do?" 13 But he said to them, "Exact no more than what has been appointed you."

14 And soldiers also asked him, saying, "And we—what are we to do?" And he said to them, "Plunder no one, accuse no one falsely, and be content with your pay."

15 Now as the people were in expectation, and all were wondering in their hearts about John, [h] whether perhaps he might be the Christ, 16 John addressed them, saying to all, [i] "I indeed baptize you with water. But one mightier than I is coming, the strap of whose sandals I am not worthy to loose. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit* and with fire. 17 His winnowing fan [j] is in his hand, and he will clean out his threshing floor, and will gather the wheat into his barn; but the chaff he will burn up with unquenchable fire." * 18 So with many different exhortations he kept on preaching the gospel to the people.

19 But Herod the tetrarch, [k] being reproved by him concerning Herodias, his brother's wife, and concerning all the evil things that Herod had done, 20 crowned all this by shutting up John in prison.

The Baptism of Jesus. 21 Now [l] it came to pass when all the people had been baptized, Jesus also having been baptized and being in prayer, that heaven was opened, 22 and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in bodily form as a dove, and a voice came from heaven, [m] "Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleased."

Genealogy of Jesus. 23 * And Jesus himself, when he began his work, was about thirty years of age, being—as was supposed—the son of Joseph, [n] the son of Heli, the son of Matthat, 24 the son of Levi, the son of Melchi, the son of Janne, the son of Joseph, 25 the son of Matthathias, the son of Amos, the son of Naum, the son of Esli, the son of Nagge, 26 the son of Maath, the son of Matthathias, the son of Semei, the son of Josech, the son of Joda, 27 the son of Joanna, the son of Resa, the son of Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, [o] the son of Neri, 28 the son of Melchi, the son of Addi, the son of Cosam, the son of Elmadam, the son of Her, 29 the son of Jesus, the son of Eliezer, the son of Jorim, the son of Matthat, the son of Levi, 30 the son of Simeon, the son of Judas, the son of Joseph, the son of Jona, the son of Eliachim, 31 the son of Melea, the son of Menna, the son of Matthata, the son of Nathan, [p] the son of David, 32 the son [q] of Jesse, the son of Obed, the son of Booz, the son of Salmon, the son of Naasson, 33 the son of Aminadab, the son of Aram, the son of Esron, the son of 3, 3: The baptism of John was not a sacrament, but a symbol of repentance, by which the recipient expressed his sorrow for his sins and his desire for internal purification. Thus he was prepared for the true remission of his sins.

3, 16: The Messias will baptize with the Holy Spirit and with fire; cf Mal 3, 2. His action, symbolized by purifying fire, will be more penetrating and powerful than that of John.

3, 17: Here Jesus is described in His capacity as judge. In this verse fire does not symbolize an agent of purification, as in v 16, but rather a destructive agency.

3, 23-38: In St. Matthew the genealogy descends from Abraham to Jesus, whereas in St. Luke it ascends from Jesus to Adam. Both evangelists give the genealogy of St. Joseph, but according to different relationships.

CHAPTER 4.

The Temptation. 1 Now Jesus, [t] full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan, and was led by the Spirit about the desert 2 for forty days, being tempted the while by the devil. And he ate nothing those days; and when they were completed he was hungry.

3 And the devil said to him, "If thou art the Son of God, command that this stone become a loaf of bread." 4 And Jesus answered him, "It is written, [u] Not by bread alone shall man live, but by every word of God."

5 And the devil led him up, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. 6 And he said to him, "To thee will I give all this power and their glory; for to me they have been delivered, and to whomever I will I give them. 7 Therefore if thou wilt worship before me, the whole shall be thine." 8 And Jesus answered and said to him, "It is written, [v] The Lord thy God shalt thou worship, and him only shalt thou serve."

9 Then he led him to Jerusalem and set him on the pinnacle of the temple and said to him, "If thou art the Son of God, throw thyself down from here; 10 for it is written, [w] He will give his angels charge concerning thee, to preserve thee; 11 and, Upon their hands they shall bear thee up, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."

12 And Jesus answered and said to him, "It is said, [x] Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." 13 And when the devil had tried every temptation, he departed from him for a while.

II

Jesus at Nazareth. 14 And Jesus returned [y] in the power of the Spirit into Galilee; and the fame of him went out through the whole country. 15 And he taught in their synagogues, and was honored by all.

16 And he came to Nazareth, [z] where he had been brought up; and according to his custom, he entered the synagogue on the Sabbath and stood up to read. 17 And the volume of Isaias the prophet was handed to him. And after he opened the volume, he found the place where it was written, 18 [a] The Spirit of the Lord is upon me because he has anointed me; to bring good news to the poor he has sent me, 19 to proclaim to the captives release, and sight to the blind; to set at liberty the oppressed, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of recompense.

20 And closing the volume, he gave it back to the attendant and sat down. And the eyes of all in the synagogue were gazing on him. 21 But he began to say to them, "Today this Scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing." 22 And all bore him witness, and marvelled at the words of grace that came from his mouth. And they said, "Is not this Joseph's son?"

23 And he said to them, "You will surely quote me this proverb, 'Physician, cure thyself! Whatever things we have heard of as done in Capharnaum, do here also in thy own country!' " 24 But he said, "Amen I say to you, no prophet is acceptable in his own country. 25 In truth I say to you, there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elias, when heaven was shut up for three years and six months, and a great famine came over all the land; 26 and to none of them was Elias sent, but rather to a widowed woman [b] in Sarepta of Sidon. 27 And there were many lepers in Israel in the time of Eliseus the prophet; and not one of them was cleansed, [c] but only Naaman the Syrian."

28 And all in the synagogue, as they heard these things, were filled with wrath. 29 And they rose up and put him forth out of the town, and led him to the brow of the hill, on which their town was built, that they might throw him down headlong. 30 But he, passing through their midst, went his way.

31 And [d] he went down to Capharnaum, a town of Galilee. And there he was teaching them on the Sabbath. 32 And they were astonished at his teaching, for his word was with authority.

The Cure of a Demoniac. 33 Now in the synagogue there was a man possessed by an unclean devil, and he cried out with a loud voice, 34 saying, "Let us alone! What have we to do with thee, Jesus of Nazareth? Hast thou come to destroy us? I know thee, who thou art, the Holy One of God." 35 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Hold thy peace, and go out of him." And when the devil had thrown him down into the midst, he went out of him, without harming him at all. 36 And amazement came upon all, and they discussed it with one another, saying, "What is this word? For with authority and power he commands the unclean spirits, and they come out." 37 And rumor concerning him went forth into every place of the region roundabout.

Peter's Mother-in-law. 38 But he rose from the synagogue and entered Simon's house. [e] Now Simon's mother-in-law was suffering from a great fever, and they besought him for her. 39 And standing over her he rebuked the fever, and it left her; and she rose at once and began to wait on them.

Other Miracles. 40 Now when the sun was setting, all who had persons sick with various diseases brought them to him. And he laid his hands upon each of them and cured them. 41 And devils also came forth from many, crying out and saying, "Thou art the Son of God." And he rebuked them, and did not permit them to speak, because they knew that he was the Christ.

42 Now when it was day, he went out and departed into a desert place. [f] And the crowds were seeking after him, and they came to him, and tried to detain him, that he might not depart from them. 43 But he said to them, "To the other towns also I must proclaim the kingdom of God, for this is why I have been sent." 44 And he was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee.

5, 14: Through this offering the people knew that the leper had been declared cleansed by the priest and could communicate again with them.

CHAPTER 5.

The First Disciples Called. 1 Now [g] it came to pass, while the crowds were pressing upon him to hear the word of God, that he was standing by Lake Genesareth. 2 And he saw two boats moored by the lake, but the fishermen had left them and were washing their nets. 3 And getting into one of the boats, the one that was Simon's, he asked him to put out a little from the land. And sitting down, he began to teach the crowds from the boat. 4 But when he had ceased speaking, he said to Simon, "Put out into the deep, and lower your nets for a catch."

5 And Simon answered and said to him, "Master, the whole night through we have toiled and have taken nothing; but at thy word I will lower the net." 6 And when they had done so, they enclosed a great number of fishes, but their net was breaking. 7 And they beckoned to their comrades in the other boat to come and help them. And they came and filled both the boats, so that they began to sink.

8 But when Simon Peter saw this, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord." 9 For he and all who were with him were amazed at the catch of fish they had made; 10 and so were also James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. And Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid; henceforth thou shalt catch men." 11 And when they had brought their boats to land, they left all and followed him.

A Leper. 12 And it came to pass, [h] while he was in one of the towns, that, behold, there was a man full of leprosy. And when he saw Jesus he fell on his face and besought him, saying, "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." 13 And stretching forth his hand he touched him, saying, "I will; be thou made clean." And immediately the leprosy left him. 14 And he charged him to tell no man, but, [i] "Go, show thyself to the priest, and offer the gift for thy purification, as Moses commanded, for a witness to them." *

15 But so much the more the tidings spread concerning him, and great crowds gathered together to hear him and to be cured of their sicknesses. 16 But he himself was in retirement in the desert, and in prayer.

17 And it came to pass j on one of the days, that he sat teaching. And there were Pharisees and teachers of the Law sitting by, who had come out of every village of Galilee and Judea and out of Jerusalem. And the power of the Lord was present to heal them.

A Paralytic at Capharnaum. 18 And behold, some men were carrying upon a pallet a man who was paralyzed, and they were trying to bring him in and to lay him before him. 19 And as they found no way of bringing him in, because of the crowd, they went up onto the roof and lowered him through the tiles, with his pallet, into the midst before Jesus. 20 And seeing their faith, he said, "Man, thy sins are forgiven thee."

21 And the Scribes and Pharisees began to argue, saying, "Who is this man who speaks blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God only?" 22 But Jesus, knowing their thoughts, answered and said to them, "Why are you arguing in your hearts? 23 Which is easier, to say, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' or to say, 'Arise and walk'? 24 But that you may know that the Son of Man has power on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the paralytic—"I say to thee, arise, take up thy pallet and go to thy house."

25 And immediately he arose before them, took up what he had been lying on, and went away to his house, glorifying God. 26 And astonishment seized upon them all, and they glorified God and were filled with fear, saying, "We have seen wonderful things today."

The Call of Levi. 27 And k after this he went forth; and he saw a publican, named Levi, sitting in the tax-collector's place, and he said to him, "Follow me." 28 And leaving all things, he arose and followed him. 29 And Levi gave a great feast for him at his house; and there was a great gathering of publicans and of others, who were at the table with them. 30 And the Pharisees and their Scribes were grumbling, saying to his disciples, "Why do you eat and drink with publicans and sinners?" 31 And Jesus answered and said to them, "It is not the healthy who need a physician, but they who are sick. 32 I have not come to call the just, but sinners, to repentance."

The Question of Fasting. 33 Now they said to him, "Why do the disciples of John fast often and make supplications, and likewise those of the Pharisees, whereas thy disciples eat and drink?" 34 He said to them, "Can you make the wedding guests fast *as long as the bridegroom is with them? 35 But the days will come—and when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, then they will fast in those days."

36 And he spoke a parable also to them, * "No one puts a patch from a new garment on an old garment; else not only does he tear the new one, but the patch from the new garment does not match the old. 37 And no one pours new wine into old wine-skins; else the new wine will burst the skins, and will be spilt itself, and the skins ruined. 38 But new wine must be put into fresh skins, and both are saved.* 39 And no man after drinking old wine immediately desires new; for he says, 'The old is better.'"

CHAPTER 6.

The Disciples Pluck Grain on the Sabbath. 1 Now l it came to pass on the second first Sabbath,* that he was going through standing grain, and his disciples were plucking and eating the ears of grain, rubbing them with their hands. 2 But some of the Pharisees said to them, "Why are you doing what is not lawful on the Sabbath?" 3 And Jesus answered and said to them, "Have you not, then, read what David did when he and those with him were hungry? 4 how m he entered the house of God, and took, ate, and gave to those who were with him, the loaves of proposition, which no one may lawfully eat except the priests?" 5

5, 34f: Jesus is the bridegroom (cf Jn 3, 29), and His wedding guests (literally, children of the bridegroom) are His disciples. It is repugnant to Jewish custom to think of fasting and mourning during the period of the wedding festivities. But when He is taken away from them, then His disciples will fittingly fast and mourn.

5, 36-39: In these two similes Jesus refers to the differences between the old dispensation, which was coming to an end, and the new order, which was foretold by the prophets and which He began to establish. These two orders are incompatible and cannot be made to match.

5, 38: And both are saved: missing in the better Greek MSS.

6, 1: The second first Sabbath: missing in some of the better Greek MSS. Its meaning is not known.

And he said to them, "The Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath."

A Man With a Withered Hand. 6 And [n] it came to pass on another Sabbath, that he entered the synagogue and taught. And a man was there and his right hand was withered. 7 And the Scribes and the Pharisees were watching whether he cured on the Sabbath, that they might find how to accuse him. 8 But he knew their thoughts, and he said to the man with the withered hand, "Arise and stand forth in the midst." And he arose and stood forth. 9 But Jesus said to them, "I ask you, is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good, or to do evil? to save a life, or to destroy it?" 10 And having looked around upon them all, he said to the man, "Stretch forth thy hand." And he stretched it forth, and his hand was restored. 11 But they were filled with fury, and began to discuss among themselves what they should do to Jesus.

The Choice of the Twelve. 12 Now [o] it came to pass in those days, that he went out to the mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. 13 And when day broke, he summoned his disciples; and from these he chose twelve (whom he also named apostles): 14 Simon, whom he named Peter, and his brother Andrew; James and John; Philip and Bartholomew; 15 Matthew and Thomas; James the son of Alpheus, and Simon called the Zealot; 16 Jude the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, who turned traitor.

The Sermon on the Mount: The Scene. 17 And coming down with them, he took his stand on a level stretch, with a crowd of his disciples, and a great multitude of people from all Judea and Jerusalem, and the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, 18 who came to listen to him and to be healed of their diseases. And those who were troubled with unclean spirits were cured. 19 And all the crowd were trying to touch him, for power went forth from him and healed all.

The Beatitudes and Woes. 20 [p] And he lifted up his eyes to his disciples, and said, "Blessed are you poor, for yours is the kingdom of God. 21 Blessed are you who hunger now, for you shall be satisfied. Blessed are you who weep now, for you shall laugh. 22 Blessed shall you be when men hate you, and when they shut you out, and reproach you, and reject your name as evil, because of the Son of Man. 23 Rejoice on that day and exult, for behold your reward is great in heaven. For in the selfsame manner their fathers used to treat the prophets. 24 [q] But woe to you rich! for you are now having your comfort. 25 [r] Woe to you who are filled! for you shall hunger. Woe to you who laugh now! for you shall mourn and weep. 26 Woe to you when all men speak well of you! In the selfsame manner their fathers used to treat the prophets.*

The Rules of Charity. 27 "But I say to you who are listening: [s] Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you. 28 Bless those who curse you, pray for those who calumniate you. 29 And to him who strikes thee on the one cheek, offer the other also;[t] and from him who takes away thy cloak, do not withhold thy tunic either. 30 Give to everyone who asks of thee, and from him who takes away thy goods, ask no return. 31 And even as you wish men to do to you, [u] so also do you to them. 32 And [v] if you love those who love you, what merit have you? For even sinners love those who love them. 33 And if you do good to those who do good to you, what merit have you? For even sinners do that. 34 And [w] if you lend to those from whom you hope to receive in return, what merit have you? For even sinners lend to sinners that they may get back as much in return. 35 But love your enemies, and do good, and lend, not hoping for any return, and your reward shall be great, and you shall be children of the Most High, for he is kind towards the ungrateful and evil. 36 Be merciful, therefore, even as your Father is merciful.

37 "Do not judge, and you shall not be judged; [x] do not condemn, and you shall not be condemned. Forgive, and you shall be forgiven; 38 give, and it shall be given to you; [y] good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, shall they pour into your lap. For with what measure you measure, it shall be measured to you."

6, 26: The prophets alluded to are the false prophets, as is evident from the Greek text.

Self-examination. 39 And he spoke a parable also to them, "Can a blind man guide a blind man? Will not both fall into a pit? 40 No disciple is above his teacher; [z] but when perfected, everyone will be like his teacher. 41 But why dost thou see the speck in thy brother's eye, [a] and yet dost not consider the beam in thy own eye? 42 And how canst thou say to thy brother, 'Brother, let me cast out the speck from thy eye,' while thou thyself dost not see the beam in thy own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam from thy own eye, and then thou wilt see clearly to cast out the speck from thy brother's eye.

43 "For [b] there is no good tree that bears bad fruit, nor is there a bad tree that bears good fruit. 44 For every tree is known by its fruit. For from thorns men do not gather figs, neither from a bramble do they harvest grapes. 45 The good man from the good treasure of his heart brings forth that which is good; and the evil man from the evil treasure brings forth that which is evil. For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks.

Conclusion of the Sermon. 46 "But [c] why do you call me, 'Lord, Lord,' and do not practise the things that I say? 47 Everyone [d] who comes to me and hears my words and acts upon them, I will show you what he is like: 48 he is like a man building a house, who dug deep and laid a foundation upon rock. And when a flood came, the stream broke against that house and could not shake it; because it was founded on rock. 49 But he who has heard my words and has not acted upon them is like a man who built his house upon the ground without a foundation; against which the stream broke and straightway it fell in, and great was the wreck of that house."

CHAPTER 7.

The Centurion's Servant. 1 When [e] he had finished all his discourse in the hearing of the people, he entered Capharnaum. 2 Now a servant of a certain centurion, to whom he was dear, was sick to the point of death. 3 And the centurion, hearing of Jesus, sent to him elders of the Jews, beseeching him to come and save his servant. 4 And when they came to Jesus, they entreated him earnestly, saying to him, "He is worthy that thou shouldst do this for him, 5 for he loves our nation and himself has built us our synagogue."

6 So Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to say to him, "Lord, do not trouble thyself, for I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof; 7 this is why I did not think myself worthy to come to thee. But say the word, and my servant will be healed. 8 For I too am a man subject to authority, and have soldiers subject to me; and I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes; and to another, 'Come,' and he comes; and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he does it."

9 Now when Jesus heard this, he marvelled, and turning to the crowd that followed him, said, "Amen I say to you, not even in Israel have I found such great faith." 10 And when the messengers returned to the house, they found the servant in good health who had been ill.

The Widow's Son. 11 And it came to pass soon afterwards, that he went to a town called Naim; and his disciples and a large crowd went with him. 12 And as he drew near the gate of the town, behold, a dead man was being carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow; and a large gathering from the town was with her. 13 And the Lord, seeing her, had compassion on her, and said to her, "Do not weep." 14 And he went up and touched the stretcher; and the bearers stood still. And he said, "Young man, I say to thee, arise." 15 And he who was dead, sat up, and began to speak. And he gave him to his mother.

16 But fear seized upon all, and they began to glorify God, saying, [f] "A great prophet has risen among us," and "God has visited his people." 17 And this report concerning him went forth throughout the whole of Judea, and all the country roundabout.

The Baptist's Deputation. 18 And [g] John's disciples brought him word of all these things. 19 And John summoned two of his disciples and sent them to the Lord, saying, "Art thou he who is to come, or shall we look for another?" *

7, 19: The Baptist asked this question for the benefit of his disciples and the people. He wished to convince them fully that Jesus was the Messias.

20 And when the men had come to him, they said, "John the Baptist has sent us to thee, saying, 'Art thou he who is to come, or shall we look for another?' " 21
In that very hour he cured many of diseases, afflictions and evil spirits, and to many who were blind he granted sight.
22 And he answered and said to them,
"Go and report to John what you have heard and seen: [h] the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead rise, the poor have the gospel preached to them. 23 And blessed is he who is not scandalized in me."

Christ's Witness Concerning John. 24 Then, as the messengers of John left, he began to say to the crowds concerning John, "What did you go out to the desert to see? A reed shaken by the wind? 25
But what did you go out to see? A man clothed in soft garments? Behold, those who wear fine clothes and live in luxury are in the houses of kings. 26 But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes,
I tell you, and more than a prophet. 27
This is he of whom it is written, [i] *Behold,
I send my messenger before thy face, who shall make ready thy way before thee.* 28 I say to you, among those born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist; yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he."

29 And when they had heard him, all the people and the publicans justified God,* having been baptized with the baptism of John. 30 But the Pharisees and the lawyers, not having been baptized by him, brought to naught God's purpose concerning themselves.

The Stubborn Children. 31 "To what then shall I liken the men of this generation? And what are they like? 32 They are like children sitting in the market place, calling to one another and saying,
We have piped to you, and you have not danced; we have sung dirges, and you have not wept.' 33 For [j] John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, 'He has a devil.' 34
The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and you say, 'Behold a man who is a glutton, and a wine-drinker, a friend of publicans and sinners!' 35 And wisdom is justified by all her children." *

The Penitent Woman. 36 Now one of the Pharisees asked him to dine with him;
so he went into the house of the Pharisee and reclined at table. 37 And behold, [k] a woman in the town who was a sinner, upon learning that he was at table in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster jar of ointment; 38 and standing behind him at his feet, she began to bathe his feet with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with ointment.

39 Now when the Pharisee, who had invited him, saw it, he said to himself,
"This man, were he a prophet, would surely know who and what manner of woman this is who is touching him, for she is a sinner."

40 And Jesus answered and said to him,
"Simon, I have something to say to thee."
And he said, "Master, speak." 41 "A certain money-lender had two debtors; the one owed five hundred denarii, the other fifty. 42 As they had no means of paying, he forgave them both. Which of them, therefore, will love him more?" 43 Simon answered and said, "He, I suppose, to whom he forgave more." And he said to him, "Thou hast judged rightly." 44 And turning to the woman, he said to Simon, "Dost thou see this woman? I came into thy house; thou gavest me no water for my feet; but she has bathed my feet with tears, and has wiped them with her hair.
45 Thou gavest me no kiss; but she, from the moment she entered,* has not ceased to kiss my feet. 46 Thou didst not anoint my head with oil; but she has anointed my feet with ointment. 47 Wherefore I say to thee, her sins, many as they are, shall be forgiven her, because she has loved much. But he to whom little is forgiven loves little."* 48 And he said to her, [l] "Thy sins are forgiven." 49 And they who were at table with him began to say within themselves, "Who is this man, who even forgives sins?" 50 But he

7, 29: Justified God: acknowledged in their baptism the mercy of God manifest in the Baptist's preaching.

7, 35: The Pharisees and the lawyers were dissatisfied with the greater austerity of John as well as the more ordinary conduct of Jesus, who ate and drank with sinners and publicans. Yet those who followed either John or Jesus found true wisdom or a divine plan in their different methods.

said to the woman, "Thy faith has saved thee; go in peace."

CHAPTER 8.

The Ministering Women. 1 And it came to pass afterwards, that he was journeying through towns and villages, preaching and proclaiming the good news of the kingdom of God. And with him were the Twelve, 2 and certain women who had been cured of evil spirits and infirmities: [m] Mary, who is called the Magdalene, from whom seven devils had gone out, 3 and Joanna, the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, who used to provide for them out of their means.

Parable of the Sower. 4 Now [n] when a very great crowd was gathering together and men from every town were resorting to him, he said in a parable: 5 "The sower went out to sow his seed. And as he sowed, some seed fell by the wayside and was trodden under foot, and the birds of the air ate it up. 6 And other seed fell upon the rock, and as soon as it had sprung up it withered away, because it had no moisture. 7 And other seed fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up with it and choked it. 8 And other seed fell upon good ground, and sprang up and yielded fruit a hundredfold." As he said these things he cried out, "He who has ears to hear, let him hear!"

9 But his disciples then began to ask him what this parable [o] meant. 10 He said to them, [p] "To you it is given to know the mystery* of the kingdom of God, but to the rest in parables, that 'Seeing they may not see, and hearing they may not understand.'

11 "Now the parable is this: the seed is the word of God. 12 And those by the wayside are they who have heard; then the devil comes and takes away the word from their heart, that they may not believe and be saved. 13 Now those upon the rock are they who, when they have heard, receive the word with joy; and these have no root, but believe for a while, and in time of temptation fall away. 14 And that which fell among the thorns, these are they who have heard, and as they go their way are choked by the cares and riches and pleasures of life, and their fruit does not ripen. 15 But that upon good ground, these are they who, with a right and good heart, having heard the word, hold it fast, and bear fruit in patience.

Purpose of This Teaching. 16 "Now [q] no one, when he has lighted a lamp, covers it with a vessel, or puts it under a couch, but he puts it upon a lamp-stand, that they who enter may see the light. 17 For [r] there is nothing hidden that will not be made manifest;* nor anything concealed that will not be known and come to light. 18 Take heed, therefore, how you hear; [s] for to him who has shall be given; and from him who does not have, even what he thinks he has shall be taken away."

Jesus and His Brethren. 19 Now [t] his mother and brethren came to him; and they could not get to him because of the crowd. 20 And it was told him, "Thy mother and thy brethren are standing outside, wishing to see thee." 21 But he answered and said to them, "My mother and my brethren are they who hear the word of God, and act upon it." *

The Storm on the Lake. 22 Now [u] it came to pass on one of those days, that he and his disciples got into a boat, and he said to them, "Let us cross over to the other side of the lake." And they put out to sea. 23 But as they were sailing, he fell asleep. And a squall swept down upon the lake, and they were filling and were in peril. 24 So they came and woke him, saying, "Master, we are perishing." Then he arose and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water; and they ceased, and there came a calm. 25 And he said to them, "Where is your faith?" But they were afraid, and marvelled, saying to one another, "Who, then, is this, that he commands even the winds and the sea, and they obey him?"

Expulsion of the Devils in Gerasa. 26 And they sailed to the country of the Gerasenes,[v] which is opposite Galilee. 27

8, 10: To the followers of Jesus, full knowledge of the sublime mysteries of the messianic kingdom is given, whereas the others, such as the Pharisees, Scribes and great masses of incredulous people, must be content with the figurative discourse.

8, 17: Jesus admonishes His disciples that the truths of salvation, which He had privately explained to them, must be made known to the world.

8, 21: Spiritual relationship is more noble and higher than carnal relationship. In this spiritual relationship, His Blessed Mother shared more perfectly than any other creature.

Now when he landed, there met him a certain man who for a long time was possessed by a devil, and wore no clothes, and lived in the tombs, not in a house. 28 And when he saw Jesus, he fell down before him, and crying out with a loud voice said, "What have I to do with thee, Jesus, Son of the most high God? I pray thee, do not torment me." 29 For he was charging the unclean spirit to go forth from the man. For many times it had laid hold of him; and he was bound with chains and fetters, and kept under guard, but he would break the bonds asunder, and be driven by the devil into the deserts.

30 And Jesus asked him, saying, "What is thy name?" And he said, "Legion," because many devils had entered into him. 31 And they entreated him not to command them to depart into the abyss.

32 Now a herd of many swine* was there, feeding on the mountain-side. And they kept entreating him to give them leave to enter into them. And he gave them leave. 33 And the devils came out from the man and entered into the swine; and the herd rushed down the cliff into the lake and were drowned.

34 And when the swineherds saw what had happened, they fled and reported it in the town and in the country; 35 and people came out to see what had happened. And they came to Jesus, and found the man from whom the devils had gone out sitting at his feet, clothed and in his right mind; and they were afraid. 36 And those also who had seen it reported to them how he had been saved from Legion. 37 And all the people of the Gerasene district besought him to depart from them; for they were seized with great fear.

And he got into a boat and went back. 38 But the man [w] from whom the devils had gone out prayed him that he might remain with him. But Jesus sent him away, saying, 39 "Return to thy house, and tell all that God has done for thee." And he departed, publishing throughout the whole town all that Jesus had done for him.

The Daughter of Jairus; the Woman with a Hemorrhage. 40 Now it came to pass when Jesus had returned, that the crowd welcomed him, for they were all waiting for him. 41 And behold, there came a man named Jairus, [x] and he was a ruler of the synagogue; and falling at the feet of Jesus, he entreated him to come to his house, 42 for he had an only daughter about twelve years of age, and she was dying.

And it happened as he went that he was pressed upon by the crowds. 43 And a certain woman who for twelve years had had a hemorrhage, and had spent all her means on physicians, but could not be cured by anyone, 44 came up behind him and touched the tassel of his cloak; and at once her hemorrhage ceased.

45 And Jesus said, "Who touched me?" But as all were denying it, Peter, and those who were with him, said, "Master, the crowds throng and press upon thee, and dost thou say, 'Who touched me?' " 46 But Jesus said, "Someone touched me; for I perceived that power had gone forth from me." 47 But the woman, seeing that she had not escaped notice, came up trembling, and falling down at his feet, declared in the presence of all the people why she had touched him, and how she had been healed instantly. 48 And he said to her, "Daughter, thy faith has saved thee; go in peace."

49 While he was yet speaking, there came one from the house of the ruler of the synagogue, saying to him, "Thy daughter is dead; do not trouble him." 50 But Jesus on hearing this word answered the father of the girl, "Do not be afraid; only have faith and she shall be saved."

51 And when he came to the house, he allowed no one to enter with him, except Peter and James and John, and the girl's father and mother. 52 And all were weeping and mourning for her. But he said, "Do not weep; she is asleep, not dead." 53 And they laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead. 54 But he, taking her by the hand, cried out, saying, "Girl, arise!" 55 And her spirit returned, and she rose up immediately. And he directed that something be given her to eat. 56 And her parents were amazed, but he charged them to tell no one what had happened.

w 38f: Mk 5, 18-20.—x 41-56: Mt 9, 18-26; Mk 5, 22-43.

8, 32: He granted the devils permission to enter the swine, thereby showing His Apostles the reality of demoniac possession and expulsion, the power of Satan as well as the dependence of the devil upon the permissive will of God and upon His own superior power.

CHAPTER 9.

The Mission of the Apostles. 1 Then [y] having summoned the twelve apostles, he gave them power and authority over all the devils, and to cure diseases. 2 And he sent them forth to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick. 3 And he said to them, [z] "Take nothing for your journey, neither staff, nor wallet, nor bread, nor money; neither have two tunics. 4 And whatever house you enter, stay there, and do not leave the place.* 5 And whoever does not receive you—go forth from that town, and shake off even the dust [a] from your feet for a witness against them." 6 And going forth, they went about from village to village, preaching the gospel and working cures everywhere.

7 Now [b] Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was being done by him, and was much perplexed, because it was said 8 by some, "John has risen from the dead"; and by some, "Elias has appeared"; and by others, "One of the prophets of old has risen again." 9 But Herod said, "John I beheaded; but who is this about whom I hear such things?" And he endeavored to see him.

10 And the apostles [c] on their return reported to him all that they had done. And taking them with him, he withdrew apart to a desert place, which belongs to Bethsaida. 11 But the crowds on learning it followed him. And he welcomed them, and spoke to them of the kingdom of God, and those in need of cure he healed.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand. 12 Now the day began to decline; and the Twelve came up and said to him, "Send the crowds away, so that they may go into the villages and farms roundabout and find lodging and provisions, for we are in a desert place here." 13 But he said to them, "You yourselves give them some food." And they said, "We have not more than five loaves and two fishes, unless we are to go and buy food for all this crowd." 14 For there were about five thousand men present.

Then he said to his disciples, "Make them recline in groups of fifties." 15 And they did so, and made them all recline. 16 And he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, blessed them and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before the crowds. 17 And all ate and were satisfied; and what was left over to them was gathered up, twelve baskets of fragments.

Peter's Confession; Passion and Resurrection Foretold. 18 And it came to pass [d] as he was praying in private, that his disciples also were with him, and he asked them, saying, "Who do the crowds say that I am?" 19 And they answered and said, "John the Baptist; and others, Elias; and others, that one of the ancient prophets has risen again."

20 And he said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" Simon Peter answered and said, "The Christ of God." 21 But he strictly charged them, and commanded them not to tell* this to anyone, 22 saying, [e] "The Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and Scribes, and be put to death, and on the third day rise again."

The Doctrine of the Cross. 23 And he said to all, [f] "If anyone wishes to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me. 24 For he who would save his life will lose it; but he who loses his life for my sake will save it. 25 For what does it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, but ruin or lose himself? 26 For whoever is ashamed of me and my words, of him will the Son of Man be ashamed when he comes in his glory and that of the Father and of the holy angels. 27 But I say to you truly, there are some of those standing here who will not taste death, till they have seen the kingdom of God."

Jesus Transfigured. 28 Now it came to pass [g] about eight days after these words, that he took Peter, James and John and went up the mountain to pray. 29 And as he prayed, the appearance of his countenance was changed, and his raiment became a radiant white. 30 And behold, two men were talking with him. And these were Moses and Elias, 31 who, appearing in glory, spoke of his death, which he was about to fulfill in Jerusalem.

32 Now Peter and his companions were heavy with sleep. But when they were fully awake, they saw his glory and the two men who were standing with him. 33 And it came to pass as they were parting from him, that Peter said to Jesus, "Master, it is good for us to be here. And let us set up three tents, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias," not knowing what he said. 34 But as he was speaking thus, there came a cloud and overshadowed them; and they were afraid as they entered the cloud. 35 And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, [b] "This is my beloved Son; hear him." 36 And after the voice had passed, Jesus was found alone. And they kept silence and told no one at that time any of these things that they had seen.

A Possessed Boy. 37 Now it came to pass [i] on the following day, when they came down from the mountain, that a large crowd met him. 38 And behold, a man from the crowd cried out, saying, "Master, I pray thee to look at my son, for he is my only child; 39 and behold, a spirit seizes him and he suddenly cries out; and it throws him down and convulses him so that he foams, and bruising him sorely, it scarcely leaves him. 40 And I prayed thy disciples to cast it out, but they could not."

41 But Jesus answered and said, "O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you and put up with you? Bring thy son here to me." 42 And as he was yet coming near, the devil cast him down and threw him into convulsions. 43 But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit and healed the boy, and restored him to his father. 44 And all were astounded at the majesty of God.

The Second Prediction of the Passion. But while all marvelled at all the things that he was doing, he said to his disciples, [j] "Store up these words in your minds: the Son of Man is to be betrayed into the hands of men." 45 But they did not understand this saying, and it was hidden from them, that they might not perceive it; and they were afraid to ask him about this saying.

Against Ambition and Envy. 46 Now a discussion [k] arose among them, which of them was the greatest. 47 But Jesus, knowing the reasoning of their heart, took a little child and set him at his side, 48 and said to them, "Whoever receives this little child for my sake, receives me; and whoever receives me, receives him who sent me. For he who is the least among you, he is the greatest."

49 But John answered and said, [l] "Master, we saw a man casting out devils in thy name, and we forbade him, because he does not follow with us." 50 And Jesus said to him, "Do not forbid him; for he who is not against you is for you."

The Unfriendly Samaritans. 51 Now it came to pass, when the days had come for him to be taken up, that he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, 52 and sent messengers before him. And they went and entered a Samaritan town to make ready for him, 53 and they did not receive him, because his face was set for Jerusalem.* 54 But when his disciples James and John saw this, they said, "Lord, wilt thou that we bid fire come down from heaven and consume them?"

55 But he turned and rebuked them, *saying, "You do not know of what manner of spirit you are; 56 for the Son of Man [m] did not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." And they went to another village.

Sacrifice to Follow Christ. 57 And it came to pass [n] as they went on their journey, that a man said to him, "I will follow thee wherever thou goest." 58 And Jesus said to him, "The foxes have dens, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head."

59 And he said to another, "Follow me." But he said, "Lord, let me first go and bury my father." 60 But Jesus said to him, "Let the dead bury their dead, but do thou go and proclaim the kingdom of God." 61 And another said, "I will follow thee, Lord; but let me first bid farewell to those at home." 62 Jesus said to him, "No one, having put his hand to the

The Seventy-two Disciples. 1 Now after this the Lord appointed seventy-two others, and sent them forth two by two before him into every town and place where he himself was about to come. 2 And he said to them, [o] "The harvest indeed is great, but the laborers are few. Pray therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest.

3 "Go. [p] Behold, I send you forth as lambs in the midst of wolves. 4 Carry [q] neither purse, nor wallet, nor sandals, and greet no one* on the way. 5 Whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house!' 6 And if a son of peace be there, your peace will rest upon him; but if not, it will return to you. 7 And remain in the same house, eating and drinking what they have; [r] for the laborer deserves his wages. Do not go from house to house. 8 And whatever town you enter, and they receive you, eat what is set before you, 9 and cure the sick who are there, and say to them, 'The kingdom of God is at hand for you.' 10 But whatever town you enter, and they do not receive you—go out into its streets and say, 11 'Even [s] the dust from your town that cleaves to us we shake off against you; yet know this, that the kingdom of God is at hand.' 12 I say to you, that it will be more tolerable for Sodom in that day than for that town.

The Impenitent Towns. 13 "Woe [t] to thee, Corozain! woe to thee, Bethsaida! For if in Tyre and Sidon had been worked the miracles that have been worked in you, they would have repented long ago, sitting in sackcloth and ashes. 14 But it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment than for you. 15 And thou, Capharnaum, shalt thou be exalted to heaven? Thou shalt be thrust down to hell.

16 "He who hears you, hears me;[u] and he who rejects you, rejects me; and he who rejects me, rejects him who sent me."

Return of the Disciples. 17 Now the seventy-two returned with joy, saying, "Lord, even the devils are subject to us in thy name." 18 But he said to them, "I was watching Satan fall as lightning from heaven. 19 Behold, I have given you power to tread upon serpents and scorpions, and over all the might of the enemy; and nothing shall hurt you. 20 But do not rejoice in this, that the spirits are subject to you; rejoice rather in this, that your names are written in heaven."

Jesus Draws Men Gently to Himself. 21 In that very hour [v] he rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and said, "I praise thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou didst hide these things from the wise and prudent, and didst reveal them to little ones.* Yes, Father, for such was thy good pleasure. 22 All things have been delivered to me by my Father; and no one knows who the Son is except the Father, and who the Father is except the Son, and him to whom the Son chooses to reveal him."

23 And turning to his disciples *he said, [w] "Blessed are the eyes that see what you see! 24 For I say to you, many prophets and kings have desired to see what you see, and they have not seen it; and to hear what you hear, and they have not heard it."

The Great Commandment: The Good Samaritan. 25 And behold, [x] a certain lawyer got up to test him, saying, "Master, what must I do to gain eternal life?" 26 But he said to him, "What is written in the Law? How dost thou read?" 27 He answered and said, [y] Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole strength, and with thy whole mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. 28 And he said to him, "Thou hast answered rightly; do this and thou shalt live." 29 But he, wishing to justify himself, said to Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?"

30 Jesus answered, "A certain man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and he fell in with robbers, who after 9, 62: Undivided attention is required of the disciples of Jesus.

10, 4: The disciples are not to spend much unnecessary time in long oriental salutations, but are rather to devote themselves without delay and distraction to their higher calling.

10, 21f: The truths of the kingdom of God are hidden from the worldly-wise and prudent, but revealed to the spiritually humble and docile. The uniqueness of Christ's Sonship (i.e., His equal power and perfection with the Father) is among these revealed truths.

both stripping him and beating him went their way, leaving him half-dead. 31 But, as it happened, a certain priest was going down the same way, and when he saw him, he passed by. 32 And likewise a Levite also, when he was near the place and saw him, passed by. 33 But a certain Samaritan as he journeyed came upon him, and seeing him, was moved with compassion. 34 And he went up to him and bound up his wounds, pouring on oil and wine. And setting him on his own beast, he brought him to an inn and took care of him. 35 And the next day he took out two denarii and gave them to the innkeeper and said, 'Take care of him; and whatever more thou spendest, I, on my way back, will repay thee.'

36 "Which of these three, in thy opinion, proved himself neighbor to him who fell among the robbers?" 37 And he said, * "He who took pity on him." And Jesus said to him, "Go and do thou also in like manner."

Martha and Mary. 38 Now it came to pass as they were on their journey, that he entered a certain village; and a woman named Martha welcomed him to her house. 39 And she had a sister called Mary, who also seated herself at the Lord's feet, and listened to his word. 40 But Martha was busy about much serving. And she came up and said, "Lord, is it no concern of thine that my sister has left me to serve alone? Tell her therefore to help me."

41 But the Lord answered and said to her, "Martha, Martha, thou art anxious and troubled about many things; 42 and yet only one thing is needful.* Mary has chosen the best part, and it will not be taken away from her."

CHAPTER 11.

Lessons on Prayer. 1 And it came to pass as he was praying in a certain place, that when he ceased, one of his disciples said to him, "Lord, teach us to pray, even as John also taught his disciples." 2 And he said to them, [z] "When you pray, say: * 'Father, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come! 3 Give us this day our daily bread, 4 and forgive us our sins, for we also forgive everyone who is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation.' "

5 And he said to them, *"Which of you shall have a friend and shall go to him in the middle of the night and say to him, 'Friend, lend me three loaves, 6 for a friend of mine has just come to me from a journey, and I have nothing to set before him'; 7 and he from within should answer and say, 'Do not disturb me; the door is now shut, and my children and I are in bed; I cannot get up and give to thee'?

8 "I say to you, although he will not get up and give to him because he is his friend, yet because of his persistence he will get up and give him all he needs. 9 And I say to you, [a] ask, and it shall be given to you; seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you. 10 For everyone who asks receives; and he who seeks finds; and to him who knocks it shall be opened. 11 But if one of you asks his father for a loaf, will he hand him a stone? or for a fish, will he for a fish hand him a serpent? 12 or if he asks for an egg, will he hand him a scorpion? 13 Therefore, if you, evil as you are, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Good Spirit* to those who ask him!"

Blasphemy of the Pharisees. 14 And [b] he was casting out a devil, and the same was dumb; and when he had cast out the devil, the dumb man spoke. And the crowds marvelled. 15 But some of them said, "By Beelzebub, the prince of devils, he casts out devils." 16 And others, to test him, demanded from him a sign from heaven.

17 But he, seeing their thoughts, said to them: [c] "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and house will fall upon house. 18 If, then, Satan also is divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? Because you say that I cast out devils by Beelzebub. 19 Now, if I cast out devils by Beelzebub, by whom do your children* cast them out? Therefore they shall be your judges. 20 But if I

10, 37: Every man is our neighbor.

10, 42: And yet only one thing is needful: the reading of some notable Greek MSS is: "Few things are needed or only one."

11, 5-13: Our prayers must be said with confidence and perseverance.

cast out devils by the finger of God, then the kingdom of God has come upon you. 21 When the strong man, fully armed, guards his courtyard, his property is undisturbed. 22 But if a stronger than he attacks and overcomes him, he will take away all his weapons that he relied upon, and will divide his spoils. 23 He who is not with me is against me; and he who does not gather with me scatters.

24 "When the unclean spirit has gone out of a man,* he roams through waterless places in search of rest; and finding none, he says, 'I will return to my house which I left.' 25 And when he has come to it, he finds the place swept. 26 Then he goes and takes seven other spirits more evil than himself, and they enter in and dwell there; and the last state of that man becomes worse than the first."

The Praise of Mary. 27 Now it came to pass as he was saying these things, that a certain woman from the crowd lifted up her voice and said to him, "Blessed is the womb that bore thee, and the breasts that nursed thee." 28 But he said, "Rather, blessed are they who hear the word of God and keep it."

The Sign of Jonas. 29 And as the crowds were gathering together, he began to say, [d] "This generation is an evil generation: it demands a sign, and no sign shall be given it but the sign of Jonas. 30 For even as Jonas was a sign to the Ninevites, so will also the Son of Man be to this generation. 31 The [e] queen of the South will rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation and will condemn them; for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and behold, a greater than Solomon is here. 32 The men of Nineve will rise up in the judgment with this generation and will condemn it; [f] for they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

A Lesson from a Lamp. 33 "No one lights a lamp [g] and puts it in a cellar or even under the measure, but upon the lamp-stand, that they who enter in may see the light. 34 The [h] lamp of thy body is thy eye. If thy eye be sound, thy whole body will be full of light. But if it be evil, thy body also will be full of darkness. 35 Take care, therefore, that the light that is in thee is not darkness. 36 If, then, thy whole body is full of light, having no part in darkness, it will all be illumined,* as when a bright lamp illumines thee."

Denunciation of the Pharisees. 37 Now after he had spoken, a Pharisee asked him to dine with him. And he went in and reclined at table. 38 But the Pharisee began to ponder and ask himself why he had not washed before dinner.

39 But the Lord said to him, [i] "Now you Pharisees clean the outside of the cup and the dish, but within you are full of robbery and wickedness. 40 Foolish ones! did not he who made the outside make the inside too? 41 Nevertheless, give that which remains as alms; and behold, all things are clean* to you.

42 "But woe to you Pharisees! because you pay tithes on mint and rue and every herb and disregard justice and the love of God. But these things you ought to have done, while not leaving the others undone. 43 Woe to you Pharisees! because you love the front seats in the synagogues and greetings in the market place. 44 Woe to you! [j] because you are like hidden tombs, over which men walk unaware."

Denunciation of the Lawyers. 45 But one of the lawyers, answering, said to him, "Master, in saying these things, thou insultest us also." 46 But he said, [k] "Woe to you lawyers also! because you load men with oppressive burdens and you yourselves with one of your fingers do not touch the burdens. 47 Woe to you! for you build the tombs of the prophets, whereas your fathers killed them. 48 So then you are witnesses and approve the deeds of your fathers; for they indeed killed them, and you build their tombs. 49 For this reason also the wisdom of God* has said, [l] 'I will send them prophets and apostles; and some of them they will put to death and persecute, 50 that the blood of all the prophets that has been shed from the foundation of the 11, 36: A soul completely illuminated by the truths proposed by Jesus has no further need of a special sign to recognize truth and goodness.

11, 41: Worldly possessions should be used for good purposes; the hearts of the Pharisees as well as their vessels will be clean, if they use them so.

Yes, I say to you, it shall be required of this generation. 52 Woe to you lawyers! because you have taken away the key of knowledge;* you have not entered yourselves and those who were entering you have hindered."

53 After he had said these things to them,* the Pharisees and the lawyers began to press him hard and to provoke him to speak on many things, 54 setting traps for him and plotting to seize upon something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

CHAPTER 12.

The Leaven of the Pharisees. 1 Now when immense crowds had gathered together, so that they were treading on one another, he began to say to his disciples, [n] "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. 2 But there is nothing [o] concealed that will not be disclosed, and nothing hidden that will not be made known. 3 For what you have said in darkness will be said in the light; and what you have whispered in the inner chambers will be preached on the housetops.

Encouragement in Persecution. 4 "But I say to you, my friends: Do not be afraid of those who kill the body, and after that have nothing more that they can do. 5 But I will show you whom you shall be afraid of; be afraid of him who, after he has killed, has power to cast into hell. 6 Yes, I say to you, be afraid of him. Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings? And yet not one of them is forgotten before God. 7 Yes, the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Therefore do not be afraid, you are of more value than many sparrows.

8 "And I say to you, [p] everyone who acknowledges me before men, him will the Son of Man also acknowledge before the angels of God. 9 But whoever disowns me before men will be disowned before the angels of God. 10 And [q] everyone who speaks a word against the Son of Man, it shall be forgiven him; but to him who blasphemes against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven.

11 "And when they bring you before the synagogues and the magistrates and the authorities, do not be anxious how or wherewith you shall defend yourselves, or what you shall say, 12 for the Holy Spirit will teach you in that very hour what you ought to say."

A Warning against Avarice. 13 Now one out of the crowd said to him, "Master, tell my brother to divide the inheritance with me." 14 But he said to him, * "Man, who has appointed me a judge or arbitrator over you?" 15 And he said to them, "Take heed and guard yourselves from all covetousness, for a man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions."

16 But he spoke a parable to them, saying, "The land of a certain rich man brought forth abundant crops. 17 And he began to take thought within himself, saying, 'What shall I do, for I have no room to store my crops?' 18 And he said, 'I will do this: I will pull down my barns and build larger ones, and there I will store up all my grain and my goods. 19 And I will say to my soul, [r] Soul, thou hast many goods things laid up for many years; take thy ease, eat, drink, be merry.' 20 But God said to him, 'Thou fool, this night do they demand thy soul of thee; and the things that thou hast provided, whose will they be?' 21 So is he who lays up treasure for himself, and is not rich as regards God."

Trust in God. 22 But he said to his disciples, [s] "Therefore I say to you, do not be anxious for your life, what you shall eat; nor yet for your body, what you shall put on. 23 The life is a greater thing than the food, and the body than the clothing. 24 Consider the ravens: they neither sow nor reap, they have neither storeroom nor barn; yet God feeds them. Of how much more value are you than they! 25 But which of you by being anxious about it can add to his stature a single cubit? 26 Therefore if you are not able to do even a very little thing, why are you anxious concerning the rest?

11, 53: After he had said these things to them: the reading in the better Greek MSS is: "And after he had departed from there."

12, 14: St. Ambrose has well said in commenting upon this passage: "He rightly refuses to settle earthly differences who has come to reveal heavenly secrets."

27 "Consider how the lilies grow; they neither toil nor spin, yet I say to you that not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these. 28 But if God so clothes the grass which flourishes in the field today but tomorrow is thrown into the oven, how much more you, O you of little faith!

29 "And as for you, do not seek what you shall eat, or what you shall drink; and do not exalt yourselves 30 (for after all these things the nations of the world seek); but your Father knows that you need these things. 31 But seek the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be given you besides.

32 "Do not be afraid, little flock, for it has pleased your Father to give you the kingdom. 33 Sell t what you have and give alms. Make for yourselves purses that do not grow old, a treasure unfailing in heaven, where neither thief draws near nor moth destroys. 34 For where your treasure is, there also will your heart be.

The Watchful Servants. 35 "Let your loins be girt about and your lamps burning, 36 and you yourselves like men waiting for their master's return u from the wedding; so that when he comes and knocks, they may straightway open to him. 37 Blessed are those servants whom the master, on his return, shall find watching. Amen I say to you, he will gird himself, and will make them recline at table, and will come and serve them. 38
And if he comes in the second watch, and if in the third, and finds them so,
blessed are those servants!

39 "But v of this be assured, that if the householder had known at what hour the thief was coming, he would certainly have watched, and not have let his house be broken into. 40 You also must be ready, w because at an hour that you do not expect, the Son of Man is coming."

41 And Peter said to him, "Lord, dost thou speak this parable for us or for all alike?"

Exhortation to Vigilance. 42 And the Lord said, x "Who, dost thou think, is the faithful and prudent steward whom the master will set over his household to give them their ration of grain in due time? 43 Blessed is that servant whom his master, when he comes, shall find so doing. 44 Truly I say to you, he will set him over all his goods. 45 But if that servant says to himself, 'My master delays his coming,' and begins to beat the men-servants and the maids, and to eat and drink, and to get drunk, 46 the master of that servant will come on a day he does not expect, and in an hour he does not know, and will cut him asunder and make him share the lot of the unfaithful.
47 But that servant who knew his master's will, and did not make ready for him and did not act according to his will, will be beaten with many stripes. 48 Whereas he who did not know it, but did things deserving of stripes, will be beaten with few.
But of everyone to whom much has been given, much will be required; and of him to whom they have entrusted much, they will demand the more.

The Necessity of Struggle. 49 "I have come to cast fire* upon the earth, and what will I but that it be kindled? 50 But I have a baptism to be baptized with;
and how distressed I am until it is accomplished! 51 Do y you think that I came to give peace upon the earth? No, I tell you, but division. 52 For henceforth in one house five will be divided, three against two, and two against three. 53 They will be divided, father against son and son against his father; mother against daughter and daughter against the mother; mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law and daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law."

Time for Reconciliation. 54 And he said also to the crowds, z "When you see a cloud rising in the west, you say at once,
'A shower is coming,' and so it comes to pass. 55 And when you see the south wind blow, you say, 'There will be a scorching heat,' and so it comes to pass. 56 You hypocrites! you know how to judge the face of the sky and of the earth; but how is it that you do not judge this time?
57 But why even of yourselves do you not judge what is right?

58 "And a when thou art going with thy opponent to the ruler, take pains to be quit of him on the way; lest he deliver thee to the judge, and the judge to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison. 59 I say to thee, thou wilt not

CHAPTER 13.

The Necessity of Repentance. 1 Now there came at that very time some who brought him word about the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices.

2 And he answered and said to them, "Do you think that these Galileans were worse sinners than all the other Galileans, because they have suffered such things? 3 I tell you, no; but unless you repent, you will all perish in the same manner. 4 Or those eighteen upon whom the tower of Siloe fell and killed them: do you think that they were more guilty than all the other dwellers in Jerusalem? 5 I tell you, no; but unless you repent, you will all perish in the same manner."

A Barren Fig Tree. 6 And he spoke this parable: "A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came seeking fruit thereon, and found none. 7 And he said to the vine-dresser, 'Behold, for three years now I have come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and I find none. Cut it down, therefore; why does it still encumber the ground?' 8 But he answered him and said, 'Sir, let it alone this year too, till I dig around it and manure it. 9 Perhaps it may bear fruit; but if not, then afterwards thou shalt cut it down.' "

A Stooped Woman. 10 Now he was teaching in one of their synagogues on the Sabbath. 11 And behold, there was a woman who for eighteen years had had a sickness caused by a spirit; and she was bent over and utterly unable to look upwards. 12 When Jesus saw her, he called her to him and said to her, "Woman, thou art delivered from thy infirmity." 13 And he laid his hands upon her, and instantly she was made straight, and glorified God.

14 But the ruler of the synagogue, indignant that Jesus had cured on the Sabbath, addressed the crowd, saying, "There are six days in which one ought to work; on these therefore come and be cured, and not on the Sabbath." 15 But the Lord answered him and said, "Hypocrites! does not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox or ass from the manger, and lead it forth to water? 16 And this woman, daughter of Abraham as she is, whom Satan has bound, lo, for eighteen years, ought not she to be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath?"

17 And as he said these things, all his adversaries were put to shame; and the entire crowd rejoiced at all the glorious things that were done by him.

The Mustard Seed. 18 He said therefore, b "What is the kingdom of God like, and to what shall I liken it? 19 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and cast into his own garden; and it grew and became a large tree, and the birds of the air dwelt in its branches."

The Leaven. 20 And again he said, c "To what shall I liken the kingdom of God? 21 It is like leaven, which a woman took and buried in three measures of flour, until all of it was leavened."

The Narrow Gate. 22 And he passed on through towns and villages, teaching and making his way towards Jerusalem. 23 But someone said to him, "Lord, are only a few to be saved?"

But he said to them, 24 "Strive d to enter by the narrow gate; for many, I tell you, will seek to enter and will not be able. 25 But e when the master of the house has entered and shut the door, you will begin to stand outside and knock at the door, saying, 'Lord, open for us!' And he shall say to you in answer, 'I do not know where you are from.' 26 Then you shall begin to say, 'We ate and drank in thy presence, and thou didst teach in our streets.' 27 And he shall say to you, f 'I do not know where you are from. Depart from me, all you workers of iniquity.' 28 There will be the weeping, and the gnashing of teeth, when you shall see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, but you yourselves cast forth outside. 29 And they will come from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south, and will feast in the kingdom of God. 30 And behold, there are those last who will be first, g and there are those first who will be last."*

Jesus and Herod. 31 On that same day certain Pharisees came up, saying to him, "Depart and be on thy way, for Herod wants to kill thee." 32 And he said to them, "Go and say to that fox, 'Behold,

I cast out devils and perform cures today and tomorrow, and the third day I am to end my course. 33 Nevertheless, I must go my way today and tomorrow and the next day, for it cannot be that a prophet perish outside Jerusalem.'

34 "Jerusalem,[b] Jerusalem, thou who killest the prophets, and stonest those who are sent to thee! how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen gathers her young under her wings, but thou wouldst not! 35 Behold, your house is left to you. And I say to you, you shall not see me until the time comes when you shall say, 'Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!' "

CHAPTER 14.

A Man with Dropsy. 1 And it came to pass, when he entered the house of one of the rulers of the Pharisees on the Sabbath to take food, that they watched him. 2 And behold, there was a certain man before him who had the dropsy. 3 And Jesus asked the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, "Is it lawful to cure on the Sabbath?"

4 But they remained silent. And he took and healed him and let him go. 5 Then addressing them, he said, "Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fall into a pit, and will not immediately draw him up on the Sabbath?" 6 And they could give him no answer to these things.

The Last Seat. 7 But he also spoke a parable to those invited, observing how they were choosing the first places at table, and he said to them, 8 "When thou art invited to a wedding feast, do not recline in the first place, lest perhaps one more distinguished than thou have been invited by him, 9 and he who invited thee and him come and say to thee, 'Make room for this man'; and then thou begin with shame to take the last place. 10 But when thou art invited, go and recline in the last place; that when he who invited thee comes in, he may say to thee, [i] 'Friend, go up higher!' Then thou wilt be honored in the presence of all who are at table with thee. 11 For [j] everyone who exalts himself shall be humbled, and he who humbles himself shall be exalted."

Poor Guests. 12 But he also said to him who had invited him, "When thou givest a dinner or a supper, do not invite thy friends, or thy brethren, or thy relatives, or thy rich neighbors, lest perhaps they also invite thee in return, and a recompense be made to thee. 13 But [k] when thou givest a feast, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind; 14 and blessed shalt thou be, because they have nothing to repay thee with; for thou shalt be repaid at the resurrection of the just."

Parable of a Great Supper. 15 Now when one of those who were at table with him had heard this, he said to him, "Blessed is he who shall feast in the kingdom of God."

16 But he said to him, [l] "A certain man gave a great supper, and he invited many. 17 And he sent his servant at supper time to tell those invited to come, for everything is now ready. 18 And they all with one accord began to excuse themselves. The first said to him, 'I have bought a farm, and I must go out and see it; I pray thee hold me excused.' 19 And another said, 'I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am on my way to try them; I pray thee hold me excused.' 20 And another said, 'I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.'

21 "And the servant returned, and reported these things to his master. Then the master of the house was angry and said to his servant, 'Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in here the poor, and the crippled, and the blind, and the lame.' 22 And the servant said, 'Sir, thy order has been carried out, and still there is room.' 23 Then the master said to the servant, 'Go out into the highways and hedges, and make them come in, so that my house may be filled. 24 For I tell you that none of those who were invited shall taste of my supper.' "

Following of Christ. 25 Now great crowds were going along with him. And he turned and said to them, 26 "If anyone comes to me [m] and does not hate* his father and mother, and wife and children, and brothers and sisters, yes, and even his own life, he cannot be my disciple. 27 And he who does not carry his cross and follow me, [n] cannot be my disciple.

14, 26: Hate: i.e., love less. Jesus does not command us to have a feeling of hatred towards our relatives, but teaches that we should pay no attention to their requests if these are detrimental to our spiritual welfare.

28 "For which of you, wishing to build a tower, does not sit down first and calculate the outlays that are necessary, whether he has the means to complete it?
29 Lest, after he has laid the foundation and is not able to finish, all who behold begin to mock him, 30 saying, 'This man began to build and was not able to finish!' 31 "Or what king setting out to engage in battle with another king, does not sit down first and consider whether he is able with ten thousand men to meet him who with twenty thousand is coming against him? 32 Or else, whilst the other is yet at a distance, he sends a delegation and asks the terms of peace. 33 So, therefore, every one of you who does not renounce all that he possesses, cannot be my disciple.
34 "Salt is good; [o] but if even the salt loses its strength, what shall it be seasoned with? 35 It is fit neither for the land nor for the manure heap, but must be thrown out. He who has ears to hear, let him hear."

CHAPTER 15.

The Lost Sheep. 1 Now the publicans and sinners were drawing near to him to listen to him. 2 And the Pharisees and the Scribes murmured, saying, "This man welcomes sinners and eats with them."
3 But he spoke to them this [p] parable, saying, 4 "What man of you having a hundred sheep, and losing one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the desert, and go after that which is lost, until he finds it? 5 And when he has found it, he lays it upon his shoulders rejoicing. 6 And on coming home he calls together his friends and neighbors, saying to them, 'Rejoice with me, because I have found my sheep that was lost.' 7 I say to you that, even so, there will be joy in heaven over one sinner who repents, more than over ninety-nine just who have no need of repentance.

The Lost Coin. 8 "Or what woman, having ten drachmas, if she loses one drachma, does not light a lamp and sweep the house and search carefully until she finds it? 9 And when she has found it, she calls together her friends and neighbors, saying, 'Rejoice with me, for I have found the drachma that I had lost.'
10 Even so, I say to you, there will be joy among the angels of God over one sinner who repents."

The Prodigal Son. 11 And he said, "A certain man had two sons. 12 And the younger of them said to his father,
'Father, give me the share of the property that falls to me.' And he divided his means between them.
13 "And not many days later, the younger son gathered up all his wealth, and took his journey into a far country;
and there he squandered his fortune in loose living. 14 And after he had spent all, there came a grievous famine over that country, and he began himself to suffer want. 15 And he went and joined one of the citizens of that country, who sent him to his farm to feed swine. 16 And he longed to fill himself with the pods that the swine were eating, but no one offered to give them to him.
17 "But when he came to himself, he said, 'How many hired men in my father's house have bread in abundance, while I am perishing here with hunger! 18 I will get up and go to my father, and will say to him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee. 19 I am no longer worthy to be called thy son; make me as one of thy hired men.' 20 And he arose and went to his father.
"But while he was yet a long way off, his father saw him and was moved with compassion, and ran and fell upon his neck and kissed him. 21 And the son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee. I am no longer worthy to be called thy son.' 22 But the father said to his servants, 'Fetch quickly the best robe and put it on him, and give him a ring for his finger and sandals for his feet; 23 and bring out the fattened calf and kill it, and let us eat and make merry; 24 because this my son was dead, and has come to life again; he was lost, and is found.' And they began to make merry.
25 "Now his elder son was in the field; and as he came and drew near to the house, he heard music and dancing.
26 And calling one of the servants he inquired what this meant. 27 And he said to him, 'Thy brother has come, and thy father has killed the fattened calf, because he has got him back safe.' 28 But he was angered and would not go in.

o Mt 5, 13; Mk 9, 49.—p 4-7: Mt 18, 12-14.

"His father, therefore, came out and began to entreat him. 29 But he answered and said to his father, 'Behold, these many years I have been serving thee, and have never transgressed one of thy commands; and yet thou hast never given me a kid that I might make merry with my friends. 30 But when this thy son comes, who has devoured his means with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fattened calf.'

31 "But he said to him, 'Son, thou art always with me, and all that is mine is thine; 32 but we were bound to make merry and rejoice, for this thy brother was dead, and has come to life; he was lost, and is found.'"

CHAPTER 16.

The Unjust Steward. 1 And he said also to his disciples, "There was a certain rich man who had a steward, who was reported to him as squandering his possessions. 2 And he called him and said to him, 'What is this that I hear of thee? Make an accounting of thy stewardship, for thou canst be steward no longer.'

3 "And the steward said within himself, 'What shall I do, seeing that my master is taking away the stewardship from me? To dig I am not able; to beg I am ashamed. 4 I know what I shall do, that when I am removed from my stewardship they may receive me into their houses.' 5 And he summoned each of his master's debtors and said to the first, 'How much dost thou owe my master?' 6 And he said, 'A hundred jars* of oil.' He said to him, 'Take thy bond and sit down at once and write fifty.' 7 Then he said to another, 'How much dost thou owe?' He said, 'A hundred kors of wheat.' He said to him, 'Take thy bond and write eighty.'

8 "And the master commended the unjust steward,* in that he had acted prudently; for the children of this world, in relation to their own generation, are more prudent than the children of the light. 9 And I say to you, make friends for yourselves with the mammon of wickedness, so that when you fail* they may receive you into the everlasting dwellings.

10 "He who is faithful in a very little thing is faithful also in much; and he who is unjust in a very little thing is unjust also in much. 11 Therefore, if in the case of the wicked mammon you have not proved faithful, who will entrust to you what is true? 12 And if in the case of what belongs to another you have not proved faithful, who will give you what is your own? 13 No servant can serve two masters; [q] for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will stand by the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon."

Pretenses of the Pharisees. 14 Now the Pharisees, who were fond of money, were listening to all these things, and they began to sneer at him. 15 And he said to them, "You are they who declare yourselves just in the sight of men, but God knows your heart; for that which is exalted in the sight of men is an abomination before God. 16 Until John came, [r] there were the Law and the Prophets; since then the kingdom of God is being preached, and everyone is forcing his way into it. 17 Yet it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for one tittle of the Law to fail.

18 "Everyone [s] who puts away his wife and marries another commits adultery; and he who marries a woman who has been put away from her husband commits adultery.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. 19 "There was a certain rich man who used to clothe himself in purple and fine linen, and who feasted every day in splendid fashion. 20 And there was a certain poor man, named Lazarus, who lay at his gate, covered with sores, 21 and longing to be filled with the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table; even the dogs would come and lick his sores. 22 And it came to pass that the poor man died and was borne away by the angels into Abraham's bosom; but the rich man also died and was buried in hell.* 23 And lifting up his eyes, being in torments, he saw Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom. 24 And he cried out and said, 'Father Abraham, have pity on me, and send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.

25 "But Abraham said to him, 'Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime hast received good things, and Lazarus in like manner evil things; but now here he is comforted whereas thou art tormented. 26 And besides all that, between us and you a great gulf is fixed, so that they who wish to pass over from this side to you cannot, and they cannot cross from your side to us.'

27 "And he said, 'Then, father, I beseech thee to send him to my father's house, 28 for I have five brothers, that he may testify to them, lest they too come into this place of torments.' 29 And Abraham said to him, 'They have Moses and the Prophets: let them hearken to them.' 30 But he answered, 'No, father Abraham, but if someone from the dead goes to them, they will repent.' 31 But he said to him, 'If they do not hearken to Moses and the Prophets, they will not believe even if someone rises from the dead.' "

CHAPTER 17.

Avoiding Scandal. 1 And he said to his disciples, [t] "It is impossible that scandals should not come; but woe to him through whom they come! 2 It were better for him if a millstone were hung about his neck and he were thrown into the sea, than that he should cause one of these little ones to sin.

Forgiveness of Injuries. 3 "Take heed to yourselves. [u] If thy brother sin, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him. 4 And if seven times in the day he sin against thee, and seven times in the day turn back to thee, saying, 'I repent,' forgive him."

Efficacy of Faith. 5 And the apostles said to the Lord, "Increase our faith." 6 And the Lord answered, [v] "If you have faith even like a mustard seed, you will say to this mulberry tree, 'Be uprooted and be planted in the sea,' and it will obey you.

The Unprofitable Servant. 7 "But which of you is there, having a servant plowing or tending sheep, who will say to him on his return from the field, 'Come at once and recline at table!' 8 But will he not say to him, 'Prepare my supper, and gird thyself and serve me till I have eaten and drunk; and afterwards thou thyself shalt eat and drink'? 9 Does he thank that servant for doing what he commanded him? 10 I do not think so. Even so you also, when you have done everything that was commanded you, say, 'We are unprofitable servants; we have done what it was our duty to do.' "

Ten Lepers. 11 And it came to pass as he was going to Jerusalem, that he was passing between Samaria and Galilee. 12 And as he was entering a certain village, there met him ten lepers, who stood afar off 13 and lifted up their voice, crying, "Jesus, master, have pity on us." 14 And when he saw them he said, [w] "Go, show yourselves to the priests." And it came to pass as they were on their way, that they were made clean. 15 But one of them, seeing that he was made clean, returned, with a loud voice glorifying God, 16 and he fell on his face at his feet, giving thanks; and he was a Samaritan.

17 But Jesus answered and said, "Were not the ten made clean? But where are the nine? 18 Has no one been found to return and give glory to God except this foreigner?" 19 And he said to him, "Arise, go thy way, for thy faith has saved thee."

Coming of the Kingdom of God. 20 And on being asked by the Pharisees, "When is the kingdom of God coming?" he answered and said to them, "The kingdom of God comes unawares. 21 Neither will they say, 'Behold, here it is,' or 'Behold, there it is.' For behold, the kingdom of God is within you."*

22 But he said to the disciples, "The days will come when you will long to see one day of the Son of Man, and will not see it. 23 And [x] they will say to you, 'Behold, here he is; behold, there he is.' Do not go, nor follow after them. 24 For as the lightning when it lightens flashes from one end of the sky to the other, so will the Son of Man be in his day. 25 But first he must suffer many things and be rejected by this generation.

26 "And as it came to pass in the days of Noe, [y] even so will it be in the days of the Son of Man. 27 They were eating and drinking, they were marrying and giving in marriage, until the day when Noe entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all. 28 Or as it came to pass in the days of Lot: they were eating and drinking, they were buying and selling, they were planting and building; 29 but [z] on the day that Lot went out from Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all. 30 In the same wise will it be on the day that the Son of Man is revealed. 31 In that hour let him who is on the housetop and his goods in the house, not go down to take them away; and likewise let him who is in the field not turn back. 32 Remember Lot's wife. 33 Whoever [a] tries to save his life will lose it; and whoever loses it will preserve it. 34 I say to you, on that night there will be [b] two on one bed; one will be taken, and the other will be left. 35 Two women will be grinding together; one will be taken, and the other will be left. Two men* will be in the field; one will be taken, and the other will be left."

36 And they answered and said to him, "Where, Lord?" 37 He said to them. "Wherever the body is, there will the eagles be gathered together."

CHAPTER 18.

The Godless Judge. 1 And he also told them [c] a parable—that they must always pray and not lose heart—2 saying, "There was a judge in a certain town who did not fear God and did not respect man. 3 Now there was a certain widow in that town, and she kept coming to him, saying, 'Do me justice against my adversary.' 4 And he would not for a long time. But afterwards he said within himself, 'Although I do not fear God, nor even respect man, 5 yet because this widow bothers me, I will do her justice, lest by her continual coming she finally wear me out.' "

6 And the Lord said, "Hear what the unjust judge says; 7 and will not God avenge his elect, who cry to him day and night? And will he be slow to act in their case? 8 I tell you that he will avenge them quickly. Yet when the Son of Man comes, will he find, do you think, faith on the earth?"

The Pharisee and the Publican. 9 But he spoke this parable also to some who trusted in themselves as being just and despised others. 10 "Two men went up to the temple to pray, the one a Pharisee and the other a publican. 11 The Pharisee stood and began to pray thus within himself: 'O God, I thank thee that I am not like the rest of men, robbers, dishonest, adulterers, or even like this publican. 12 I fast twice a week; I pay tithes of all that I possess.' 13 But the publican, standing afar off, would not so much as lift up his eyes to heaven, but kept striking his breast, saying, 'O God, be merciful to me the sinner!'

14 "I tell you, this man went back to his home justified rather than the other; [d] for everyone who exalts himself shall be humbled, and he who humbles himself shall be exalted."

Jesus Blesses the Children. 15 Now [e] they were bringing the babes also to him that he might touch them; but when the disciples saw it, they rebuked them. 16 But Jesus called them together and said, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for of such is the kingdom of God. 17 Amen I say to you, whoever does not accept the kingdom of God as a little child will not enter into it."

The Danger of Riches. 18 And [f] a certain ruler asked him, saying, "Good Master, what shall I do to gain eternal life?" 19 But Jesus said to him, "Why dost thou call me good? No one is good but only God. 20 Thou knowest the commandments: [g] Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness. Honor thy father and mother." 21 And he said, "All these I have kept ever since I was a child." 22 But when Jesus heard this, he said to him, "One thing is still lacking to thee; sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me." 23 When he heard these things, he was much grieved, for he was very rich.

24 But Jesus, seeing him become sad, said, "With what difficulty will they who have riches enter the kingdom of God!

25 For it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." 26 And they who heard it said, "Who then can be saved?" 27 He said to them, "Things that are impossible with men are possible with God."

28 And Peter said, "Behold, we have left all and followed thee." 29 And he said to them, "Amen I say to you, there is no one who has left house, or parents, or brothers, or wife, or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, 30 who shall not receive much more in the present time, and in the age to come life everlasting."

The Third Prediction of the Passion. 31 But Jesus taking to himself the Twelve said to them, [h] "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and all things that have been written by the prophets concerning the Son of Man will be accomplished. 32 For he will be delivered to the Gentiles, and will be mocked and scourged and spit upon; 33 and after they have scourged him, they will put him to death; and on the third day he will rise again."

34 And they understood none of these things and this saying was hidden from them, neither did they get to know the things that were being said.

VI

A Blind Man at Jericho. 35 Now it came to pass [i] as he drew near to Jericho, that a certain blind man was sitting by the wayside, begging; 36 but hearing a crowd passing by, he inquired what this might be. 37 And they told him that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by. 38 And he cried out, saying, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" 39 And they who went in front angrily tried to silence him. But he cried out all the louder, "Son of David, have mercy on me!" 40 Then Jesus stopped and commanded that he should be brought to him. And when he drew near, he asked him, 41 saying, "What wouldst thou have me do for thee?" And he said, "Lord, that I may see." 42 And Jesus said to him, "Receive thy sight, thy faith has saved thee." 43 And at once he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God. And all the people upon seeing it gave praise to God.

19, 11-27: Not only the crowds but also the disciples thought Jesus would immediately establish in Jerusalem the temporal messianic kingdom and proclaim His royalty publicly. Through this parable Jesus intimated that considerable time would elapse before the establishment of the glorious phase of His kingdom. In the meantime His disciples should work for Him, and thus prepare for the judgment.

CHAPTER 19.

Zacchaeus the Publican. 1 And he entered and was passing through Jericho. 2 And behold there was a man named Zacchaeus; and he was a leading publican, and he was rich. 3 And he was trying to see Jesus, who he was, but could not, on account of the crowd, because he was small of stature. 4 So he ran on ahead and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him, for he was going to pass that way.

5 And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up and saw him, and said to him, "Zacchaeus, make haste and come down; for, I must stay in thy house today."

6 And he made haste and came down, and welcomed him joyfully. 7 And upon seeing it all began to murmur, saying, "He has gone to be the guest of a man who is a sinner." 8 But Zacchaeus stood and said to the Lord, "Behold, Lord, I give one-half of my possessions to the poor, and if I have defrauded anyone of anything, I restore it fourfold." 9 Jesus said to him, "Today salvation has come to this house, since he, too, is a son of Abraham. 10 For [j] the Son of Man came to seek and to save what was lost."

Parable of the Gold Pieces. 11 *Now as they were listening to these things, he went on to speak a parable, because he was near Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God was going to appear immediately.

12 He said therefore, [k] "A certain nobleman went into a far country to obtain for himself a kingdom and then return. 13 And having summoned ten of his servants, he gave them ten gold pieces and said to them, 'Trade till I come.'

14 "But his citizens hated him; and they sent a delegation after him to say, 'We do not wish this man to be king over us.' 15 And it came to pass when he had returned, after receiving the kingdom, that he ordered the servants to whom he had given the money to be called to him in order that he might learn how much each one had made by trading.

16 "And the first came, saying, 'Lord, thy gold piece* has earned ten gold pieces.' 17 And he said to him, 'Well done, good servant; because thou hast been faithful in a very little, thou shalt have authority over ten towns.'

18 "Then the second came, saying, 'Lord, thy gold piece has made five gold pieces.' 19 And he said to him, 'Be thou also over five towns.'

20 "And another came, saying, 'Lord, behold thy gold piece, which I have kept laid up in a napkin; 21 for I feared thee, because thou art a stern man. Thou takest up what thou didst not lay down, and thou reapest what thou didst not sow.' 22 He said to him, 'Out of thy own mouth I judge thee, thou wicked servant. Thou knewest that I am a stern man, taking up what I did not lay down and reaping what I did not sow. 23 Why, then, didst thou not put my money in a bank, so that I on my return might have gotten it with interest?' 24 And he said to the bystanders, 'Take away the gold piece from him, and give it to him who has the ten gold pieces.' 25 But they said to him, 'Lord, he has ten gold pieces.'

26 "I say to you [l] that to everyone who has shall be given; but from him who does not have, even that which he has shall be taken away. 27 But as for these my enemies, who did not want me to be king over them, bring them here and slay them in my presence."

28 And when he had said these things, he went ahead, going up to Jerusalem.

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem. 29 And it came to pass, [m] when he drew near to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mountain called Olivet, that he sent two of his disciples, 30 saying, "Go into the village opposite; on entering it you will find a colt of an ass tied, upon which no man ever yet sat; loose it and bring it. 31 And if anyone ask you, 'Why are you loosing it?' you shall answer him thus, 'Because the Lord has need of it.'"

32 And they who were sent went away and found the colt standing, even as he had told them. 33 And as they were loosing the colt, its owners said to them, "Why are you loosing the colt?" 34 And they replied, "Because the Lord has need of it."

35 And they brought it to Jesus, and throwing their cloaks over the colt they set Jesus on it. 36 And as he went, they kept spreading their cloaks upon the road. 37 And when he was drawing near, being by now at the descent of the Mount of Olives, the whole company of the disciples began to rejoice and to praise God with a loud voice for all the miracles that they had seen, 38 saying, "Blessed is he who comes as king, in the name of the Lord! Peace in heaven, and glory in the highest!"

39 And some of the Pharisees from the crowds said to him, "Master, rebuke thy disciples." 40 He said to them, "I tell you that if these keep silence, the stones will cry out."

41 And when he drew near and saw the city,[n] he wept over it, saying, 42 "If thou hadst known, in this thy day, even thou, the things that are for thy peace! But now they are hidden from thy eyes. 43 For days will come upon thee when thy enemies will throw up a rampart about thee, and surround thee and shut thee in on every side, 44 and will dash thee to the ground and thy children within thee, [o] and will not leave in thee one stone upon another, because thou hast not known the time of thy visitation."

Cleansing of the Temple. 45 And [p] he entered the temple, and began to cast out those who were selling and buying in it, 46 saying to them, "It is written, [q] My house is a house of prayer, but you have made it a den of thieves."

47 And he was teaching daily in the temple. But the chief priests and the Scribes and the leading men of the people sought to destroy him; 48 but they found nothing that they could do to him, for all the people hung upon his words.

CHAPTER 20.

The Authority of Jesus. 1 And [r] it came to pass on one of the days, as he was teaching the people in the temple and preaching the gospel, that the chief priests and Scribes together with the elders came up 2 and spoke to him, saying, "Tell us, by what authority dost thou do these things? Or who is it that gave thee this authority?" 3 But he answered and said to them, "I also will ask you one question. Answer me: 4 was the baptism of John from heaven, or from men?" 5 But they began to argue among themselves, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why then did you not believe him?' 6 But if we say, 'From men,' all the people will stone us; for they are convinced that John was a prophet." 7 And they answered that they did not know whence it was. 8 Then Jesus said to them, "Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things."

Parable of the Vine-dressers. 9 But he began to speak to the people this parable: [s] "A man planted a vineyard, and let it out to vine-dressers, and went abroad for a long time. 10 And at the proper time he sent a servant to the vine-dressers, that they might give him part of the fruit of the vineyard; but they beat him and sent him away empty-handed. 11 And he sent yet a second servant; but him also they beat, and treated shamefully and sent away empty-handed. 12 And he sent yet a third; but him also they wounded and cast out. 13 But the owner of the vineyard said, 'What shall I do? I will send my beloved son; perhaps when they see him, they will respect him.'

14 "But the vine-dressers, on seeing him, argued with one another, saying, 'This is the heir; let us kill him, that the inheritance may become ours.' 15 So they cast him out of the vineyard and killed him. What therefore will the owner of the vineyard do to them? 16 He will come and destroy those vine-dressers, and will give the vineyard to others."

Upon hearing this, they said to him, "By no means." 17 But he looked on them and said, "What then is this that is written, [t] The stone which the builders rejected, has become the corner stone? 18 Everyone who falls upon that stone will be broken to pieces; but upon whomever it falls, it will grind him to powder."

19 And the chief priests and the Scribes sought to lay hands on him that very hour, but they feared the people; for they knew that he had aimed this parable at them.

Tribute to Caesar. 20 So watching their [u] opportunity, they sent forth spies, who should pretend to be just men, that they might trap him in his talk and deliver him up to the ruling power and to the authority of the procurator. 21 And they asked him, saying, "Master, we know that thou speakest and teachest rightly, and showest no favor to any, but teachest the way of God in truth. 22 Is it lawful for us to give tribute to Caesar, or not?" 23 But knowing their craftiness, he said to them, "Why do you test me? 24 Show me a denarius. Whose image and inscription does it bear?" Answering they said, "Caesar's." 25 And he said to them, [v] "Render, therefore, to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." 26 And they could not take hold of what he said before the people; and marvelling at his answer, they kept silence.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection. 27 Now there came to him certain of the Sadducees, who say that there is no resurrection, and they questioned him, 28 saying, "Master, Moses has written for us: [w] 'If a man's brother die, having a wife, and he be childless, his brother shall take the widow and raise up issue to his brother.' 29 Now there were seven brothers. And the first took a wife and died childless. 30 And the next took her and he also died childless. 31 Then the third took her; and in like manner all seven, and they died without leaving children. 32 Last of all the woman also died. 33 At the resurrection, therefore, of which of them will she be wife? For the seven had her as wife."

34 And Jesus said to them, "The children of this world marry and are given in marriage. 35 But those who shall be accounted worthy of that world and of the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor take wives. 36 For neither shall they be able to die any more, for they are equal to the angels, and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection. 37 But that the dead rise, even Moses showed in the passage about the Bush, [x] when he calls the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. 38 Now he is not the God of the dead, but of the living, for all live to him."

39 And certain of the Scribes answered and said, "Master, thou hast said well." 40 And they did not dare to question him any further.

The Son of David. 41 But he said to them, [y] "How do they say that the Christ is the Son of David? 42 For David himself says in the Book of Psalms, The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, 43 till I make thy enemies thy footstool. 44 David therefore calls him 'Lord'; how, then, is he his son?"

Hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees. 45 And in the hearing of all the people he said [z] to his disciples, 46 "Beware of the Scribes, who like to walk about in long robes, and love greetings in the market place, and front seats in the synagogues and first places at suppers; 47 who devour the houses of the widows, making pretense of long prayers. These shall receive a heavier sentence."

CHAPTER 21.

The Widow's Mite. 1 But [a] looking up he saw the rich who were putting their gifts into the treasury. 2 And he saw also a certain poor widow putting in two mites. 3 And he said, "Truly I say to you, this poor widow has put in more than all. 4 For all these out of their abundance have put in as gifts to God; but she out of her want has put in all that she had to live on."

Destruction of Jerusalem and End of the World. 5 And as some were saying of the temple that it was adorned with beautiful stones and offerings, he said, 6 "As for these things that you behold, [b] the days will come in which there will not be left one stone upon another that will not be thrown down." 7 And they asked him, saying, "Master, when are these things to happen, and what will be the sign when these things will begin to come to pass?"

8 And he said, "Take care not to be led astray. For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am he,' and, 'The time is at hand.' Do not, therefore, go after them. 9 But when you hear of wars and insurrections, do not be terrified; these things must first come to pass, but the end will not be at once." 10 Then he said to them, "Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; 11 and there will be great earthquakes in various places, and pestilences and famines, and there will be terrors and great signs from heaven.

12 "But before all these things they will arrest [c] you and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues and prisons, dragging you before kings and governors for my name's sake. 13 It shall lead to your bearing witness. 14 Resolve therefore in your hearts not to meditate beforehand how you are to make your defense. 15 For I myself will give you utterance and wisdom, which all your adversaries will not be able to resist or gainsay. 16 But you will be delivered up by your parents and brothers and relatives and friends; and some of you they will put to death. 17 And you will be hated by all for my name's sake; 18 yet not a hair of your head shall perish. 19 By your patience you will win your souls.

Destruction of Jerusalem. 20 "And [d] when you see Jerusalem being surrounded by an army, then know that her desolation is at hand. 21 Then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; and let those who are in her midst go out, and let those who are in the country not enter her. 22 For these are days of vengeance, that all things that are written may be fulfilled. 23 But woe to those who are with child, or have infants at the breast in those days! For there will be great distress over the land, and wrath upon this people. 24 And they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led away as captives to all the nations. And Jerusalem will be trodden down by the Gentiles, until the times of the nations be fulfilled.

The Signs of the Last Day. 25 "And there will be signs [e] in the sun and moon and stars, and upon the earth distress of nations bewildered by the roaring of sea and waves; 26 men fainting for fear and for expectation of the things that are coming on the world; for the powers of heaven will be shaken. 27 And then they will see the Son of Man coming upon a cloud with great power and majesty. 28 But when these things begin to come to pass, look up, and lift up Jerusalem's Impending Destruction. 29 And he spoke to them a parable. "Behold the fig tree, and all the trees. 30 When they now put forth their buds, you know that summer is near. 31 Even so, when you see these things coming to pass, know that the kingdom of God is near. 32 Amen I say to you, this generation will not pass away till all things have been accomplished. 33 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

The Need of Watchfulness. 34 "But take heed to yourselves, lest your hearts be overburdened with self-indulgence and drunkenness and the cares of this life, and that day come upon you suddenly 35 as a snare. For come it will upon all who dwell on the face of all the earth. 36 Watch, then, praying at all times, that you may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that are to be, and to stand before the Son of Man."

37 Now in the daytime he was teaching in the temple; but as for the nights, he would go out and pass them on the mountain called Olivet. 38 And all the people came to him early in the morning in the temple, to hear him.

II: THE PASSION, DEATH AND RESURRECTION

1. The Last Supper

CHAPTER 22.

The Council and the Betrayal. 1 Now [g] the feast of the Unleavened Bread, which is called the Passover, was drawing near, 2 and the chief priests and the Scribes were seeking how they might put him to death, for they feared the people.

3 But Satan [h] entered into Judas, surnamed Iscariot, one of the Twelve. 4 And he went away and discussed with the chief priests and the captains, how he might betray him to them. 5 And they were glad, and agreed to give him money. 6 He accordingly promised, and sought out an opportunity to betray him without a disturbance.

Preparation. 7 Now [i] the day of the Unleavened Bread came, on which the passover had to be sacrificed. 8 And he sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and prepare for us the passover that we may eat it." 9 But they said, "Where dost thou want us to prepare it?" 10 And he said to them, "Behold, on your entering the city, there will meet you a man carrying a pitcher of water; follow him into the house into which he goes. 11 And you shall say to the master of the house, 'The Master says to thee, "Where is the guest chamber, that I may eat the passover there with my disciples?" ' 12 And he will show you a large upper room furnished; there make ready." 13 And they went, and found just as he had told them; and they prepared the passover.

The Holy Eucharist. 14 And when the hour had come, he reclined at table, and the twelve apostles with him. 15 And he said to them, "I have greatly desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer; 16 for I say to you that I will eat of it no more, *until it has been fulfilled in the kingdom of God." 17 And having taken a cup, he gave thanks and said, "Take this and share it among you; 18 for I say to you that I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God comes."

19 And [j] having taken bread, he gave thanks and broke, and gave it to them, saying, "This is my body, which is being given for you; do this in remembrance of me." 20 In like manner he took also the cup after the supper, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which shall be shed for you.*

The Betrayer. 21 "But behold, [k] the hand of him who betrays me is with me on the table. 22 For the Son of Man indeed goes his way, [l] as it has been determined; yet woe to that man by whom he will be betrayed." 23 And they began to inquire among themselves which of them it might be that was about to do this.

Contention among the Apostles. 24 Now there arose also a dispute among them, which of them was reputed to be the greatest. 25 But he said to them, [m] "The kings of the Gentiles lord it over them, and they who exercise authority over them are called Benefactors. 26 But not so with you. On the contrary, let him who is greatest among you become as the youngest, and him who is the chief as the servant. 27 For which is the greater, he who reclines at table, or he who serves? Is it not he who reclines? But I am in your midst as he who serves. 28 But you are they who have continued with me in my trials. 29 And I appoint to you a kingdom, even as my Father has appointed to me, 30 that you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom: and you shall sit upon thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

Peter's Denials Predicted. 31 And the Lord said, "Simon, Simon, behold, Satan has desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat. 32 But I have prayed for thee,* that thy faith may not fail; and do thou, when once thou hast turned again, strengthen thy brethren." 33 But he said to him, "Lord, with thee I am ready to go both to prison and to death!" 34 But he said, [n] "I tell thee, Peter, a cock will not crow this day, until thou hast denied three times that thou knowest me."

And he said to them, 35 "When [o] I sent you forth without purse or wallet or sandals, did you lack anything?" 36 And they said, "Nothing." Then he said to them, "But now, let him who has a purse take it, and likewise a wallet; and let him who has no sword sell his tunic and buy one.* 37 For I say to you that this which is written must yet be fulfilled in me, [p] And he was reckoned among the wicked. For that which concerns me is at its end." 38 And they said, "Lord, behold, here are two swords." And he said to them, "Enough."

2. The Passion and Death of Jesus

The Agony in the Garden. 39 And he came out [q] and went, according to his custom, to the Mount of Olives, and the disciples also followed him. 40 But when he was at the place, he said to them, "Pray, that you may not enter into temptation." 41 And [r] he himself withdrew from them about a stone's throw, and kneeling down, he began to pray, 42 saying, "Father, if thou art willing, remove this cup from me; yet not my will but thine be done." 43 And there appeared to him an angel from heaven to strengthen him. And falling into an agony he prayed the more earnestly, 44 and his sweat became as drops of blood running down upon the ground. 45 And rising from prayer he came to the disciples, and found them sleeping for sorrow. 46 And he said to them, "Why do you sleep? Rise and pray, that you may not enter into temptation."

Jesus Arrested. 47 And [s] while he was yet speaking, behold, a crowd came; and he who was called Judas, one of the Twelve, was going before them, and he drew near to Jesus to kiss him. 48 But Jesus said to him, "Judas, dost thou betray the Son of Man with a kiss?"

49 But when they who were about him saw what would follow, they said to him, "Lord, shall we strike with the sword?" 50 And one of them struck the servant of the high priest and cut off his right ear. 51 But Jesus answered and said, "Bear with them thus far." And he touched his ear and healed him. 52 But Jesus said to the chief priests and captains of the temple and elders, who had come against him, "As against a robber have you come out, with swords and clubs. 53 When I was daily with you in the temple, you did not stretch forth your hands against me. But this is your hour, and the power of darkness."

Peter's Denial. 54 Now [t] having seized him, they led him away to the high priest's house; but Peter was following at a distance. 55 And [u] when they had kindled a fire in the middle of the courtyard, and were seated together, Peter was in their midst. 56 But a certain maidservant saw him sitting at the blaze, and after gazing upon him she said, "This man too was with him." 57 But he denied him, saying, "Woman, I do not know him." 58 And after a little while someone else saw him and said, "Thou, too, art one of them." But Peter said, "Man, I am not." 59 And about an hour later another insisted, saying, "Surely this man, too, was with him, for he also is a Galilean." 60 But Peter said, "Man, I do not know what thou sayest." And at that moment, while he was yet speaking, a cock crowed. 61 And the Lord turned and looked upon Peter. And Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he said, [v] "Before a cock crows, thou wilt deny me three times." 62 And Peter went out and wept bitterly.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin. 63 And the men who had him in custody began to mock him and beat him. 64 And they blindfolded him, and kept striking his face and asking him, saying, "Prophesy, who is it that struck thee?" 65 And [w] many other things they kept saying against him, reviling him.

66 And [x] as soon as day broke, the elders of the people and the chief priests and Scribes gathered together; and they led him away into their Sanhedrin, saying, "If thou art the Christ, tell us." 67 And he said to them, "If I tell you, you will not believe me; 68 and if I question you, you will not answer me, or let me go. 69 But henceforth, the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the power of God."

70 And they all said, "Art thou, then, the Son of God?" He answered, "You yourselves say that I am." 71 And they said, "What further need have we of witness? For we have heard it ourselves from his own mouth."

CHAPTER 23.

Jesus before Pilate. 1 And the whole assemblage rose, and took him before Pilate. 2 And they began to accuse him, saying, "We have found this man perverting our nation, [y] and forbidding the payment of taxes to Caesar, and saying that he is Christ a king." 3 So Pilate [z] asked him, saying, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" And he answered him and said, "Thou sayest it." 4 And Pilate said to the chief priests and to the crowds, "I find no guilt in this man."

5 But they persisted, saying, "He is stirring up the people, teaching throughout all Judea, and beginning from Galilee even to this place." 6 But Pilate, hearing Galilee, asked whether the man was a Galilean. 7 And learning that he belonged to Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him back to Herod, who likewise was in Jerusalem in those days.

Jesus before Herod. 8 Now when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceedingly glad; for he had been a long time desirous to see him, because he had heard so much about him, and he was hoping to see some miracle done by him. 9 Now he put many questions to him, but he made him no answer.

10 Now the chief priests and Scribes were standing by, vehemently accusing him. 11 But Herod, with his soldiery, treated him with contempt and mocked him, arraying him in a bright robe, and sent him back to Pilate. 12 And Herod and Pilate became friends that very day; whereas previously they had been at enmity with each other.

Jesus Again before Pilate. 13 And Pilate called together the chief priests and the rulers and the people, 14 and said to them, [a] "You have brought before me this man, as one who perverts the people; and behold, I upon examining him in your presence have found no guilt in this man as touching those things of which you accuse him. 15 Neither has Herod; *for I sent you back to him, and behold, nothing deserving of death has been committed by him. 16 I will therefore chastise him and release him."

17 Now at festival time it was necessary for him to release to them one prisoner. 18 But the whole mob cried out together, saying, [b] "Away with this man, and release to us Barabbas!"— 19 one who had been thrown into prison for a certain riot that had occurred in the city, and for murder. 20 But Pilate spoke to them again, wishing to release Jesus. 21 But they kept shouting, saying, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" 22 And he said to them a third time, "Why, what evil has this man done? I find no crime deserving of death in him. I will therefore chastise him and release him."

23 But they persisted with loud cries, demanding that he should be crucified; and their cries prevailed. 24 And Pilate pronounced sentence that what they asked for should be done. 25 So he released to them him who for murder and riot had been put in prison, for whom they were asking; but Jesus he delivered to their will.

The Way of the Cross. 26 And [c] as they led him away, they laid hold of a certain Simon of Cyrene, coming from the country, and upon him they laid the cross to bear it after Jesus. 27 Now there was following him a great crowd of the people, and of women, who were bewailing and lamenting him. 28 But Jesus turning to them said, "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children. 29 For behold, days are coming in which men will say, 'Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bore, and breasts that never nursed.' 30 Then they will begin to say to the mountains, [d] 'Fall upon us,' and to the hills, 'Cover us!' 31 For if in the case of green wood they do these things, what is to happen in the case of the dry?" 32 Now there were also two other malefactors led to execution with him.

The Crucifixion. 33 And [e] when they came to the place called the Skull, they crucified him there, and the robbers, one on his right hand and the other on his left. 34 And Jesus said, "Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing." Now in dividing his garments, they cast lots.

35 And the people stood looking on; and the rulers with them kept sneering at him, saying, "He saved others; let him save himself, if he is the Christ, the chosen one of God." 36 And the soldiers also mocked him, coming to him and offering him common wine, 37 and saying, "If thou art the King of the Jews, save thyself!"

38 And there was also an inscription written over him in Greek and Latin and Hebrew letters, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

39 Now one of those robbers who were hanged was abusing him, saying, "If thou art the Christ, save thyself and us!" 40 But the other in answer rebuked him and said, "Dost not even thou fear God, seeing that thou art under the same sentence? 41 And we indeed justly, for we are receiving what our deeds deserved; but this man has done nothing wrong." 42 And he said to Jesus, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." 43 And Jesus said to him, "Amen I say to thee, this day thou shalt be with me in paradise." *

The Death of Jesus. 44 It was now about the sixth hour, and there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour. 45 And the sun was darkened, and the curtain of the temple was torn in the middle. 46 And Jesus cried out with a loud voice and said, [f] "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." And having said this, he expired.

47 Now when the centurion saw what had happened, he glorified God, saying, "Truly this was a just man." 48 And all the crowd that collected for the sight, when they beheld what things had happened, began to return beating their breasts. 49 But all his acquaintances, and the women who had followed him from Galilee, were standing at a distance looking on.

The Burial. 50 And behold, [g] there was a man named Joseph, a councillor, a good and just man— 51 he had not been party to their plan of action—of Arimathea, a town of Judea, who was himself looking for the kingdom of God. 52 He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. 53 And he took him down, and wrapped him in a linen cloth, and laid him in a rock-hewn tomb where no one had ever yet been laid. 54 And it was Preparation Day, and the Sabbath was drawing on. 55 And the women who had come with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the tomb, and how his body was laid. 56 And they went back and prepared spices and ointments. And on the Sabbath they rested, in accordance with the commandment.

The Women at the Grave. 1 But [h] on the first day of the week at early dawn, they came to the tomb, taking the spices that they had prepared, 2 and they found the stone rolled back from the tomb. 3 But on entering, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus. 4 And it came to pass, while they were wondering what to make of this, that, behold, two men stood trayed into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and on the third day rise."

8 And they remembered his words. 9
And having returned from the tomb, they reported all these things to the Eleven, and to all the rest. 10 Now, it was Mary Magdalene and Joanna and Mary, the mother of James, and the other women who were with them, who were telling these things to the apostles. 11 But this tale seemed to them to be nonsense, and they did not believe the women.

12 But Peter arose and ran to the tomb; and stooping down, he saw the linen cloths laid there; and he went away wondering to himself at what had come to pass.

Emmaus. 13 And behold, i two of them were going that very day to a village named Emmaus, which is sixty stadia* from Jerusalem. 14 And they were talking to each other about all these things that had happened. 15 And it came to pass, while they were conversing and arguing together, that Jesus himself also drew near and went along with them; 16 but their eyes were held, that they should not recognize him. 17 And he said to them, "What words are these that you are exchanging as you walk and are sad?"

18 But one of them, named Cleophas, answered and said to him, "Art thou the only stranger in Jerusalem who does not know the things that have happened there in these days?" 19 And he said to them,
"What things?"

And they said to him, "Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a prophet, mighty in work and word before God and all the people; 20 and how our chief priests and rulers delivered him up to be sentenced to death, and crucified him. 21
But we were hoping that it was he who should redeem Israel. Yes, and besides all this, today is the third day since these things came to pass. 22 And moreover, certain women of our company, who were at the tomb before it was light, astounded us, 23 and not finding his body, they came, saying that they had also seen a vision of angels, who said that he is alive. 24 So some of our company went to the tomb, and found it even as the women had said, but him they did not see."

25 But he said to them, "O foolish ones and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken! 26 Did not the Christ have to suffer these things before entering into his glory?" 27 And beginning then with Moses and with all the Prophets, he interpreted to them in all the Scriptures the things referring to himself.

28 And they drew near to the village to which they were going, and he acted as though he were going on. 29 And they urged him, saying, "Stay with us, for it is getting towards evening, and the day is now far spent." And he went in with them. 30 And it came to pass when he reclined at table with them, that he took the bread and blessed and broke and began handing it to them. 31 And their eyes were opened, and they recognized him; and he vanished from their sight. 32 And they said to each other, "Was not our heart burning within us while he was speaking on the road and explaining to us the Scriptures?"

33 And rising up that very hour, they returned to Jerusalem, where they found the Eleven gathered together and those who were with them, 34 saying, "The Lord has risen indeed, and has appeared to Simon." 35 And they themselves began to relate what had happened on the journey, and how they recognized him in the breaking of the bread.

Jesus Appears to the Eleven. 36 Now
k while they were talking of these things, Jesus stood in their midst, and said to them, "Peace to you! It is I, do not be afraid." 37 But they were startled and panic-stricken, and thought that they saw a spirit.

38 And he said to them, "Why are you disturbed, and why do doubts arise in your hearts? 39 See my hands and feet, that it is I myself. Feel me and see; for a spirit does not have flesh and bones, as you see I have." 40 And having said this, he showed them his hands and his feet. 41 But as they still disbelieved and marvelled for joy, he said, "Have you anything here to eat?" 42 And they offered him a piece of broiled fish and a honeycomb. 43 And when he had eaten in their presence, he took what remained and gave it to them.

The Last Instructions of Jesus. 44 And he said to them, "These are the words which I spoke to you while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled that are written in the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms concerning me." 45 Then he opened their minds, that they might understand the Scriptures. 46 And he said to them, [l] "Thus it is written; and thus the Christ should suffer, and should rise again from the dead on the third day; 47 and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name to all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem. 48 And [m] you yourselves are witnesses of these things. 49 And [n] I send forth upon you the promise of my Father. But wait here in the city, until you are clothed with power from on high."

4. The Ascension of Jesus

50 Now he led them out [o] towards Bethany, and he lifted up his hands and blessed them. 51 And it came to pass as he blessed them, that he parted from them and was carried up into heaven. 52 And they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy. 53 And they were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.

THE HOLY GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST ACCORDING TO SAINT JOHN

St. John, "the disciple whom Jesus loved," was the last to write his Gospel. He was a young man when first called to the apostolate and lived to an advanced old age. At Ephesus, where he lived till about the year 100 A. D., he wrote the Gospel at the request of the Elders.

John and James were the sons of Zebedee, of the town of Bethsaida. They were fishermen by trade. They had attached themselves as disciples to John the Baptist, and from him learned that Jesus was the Messias. They were among the first whom Jesus invited to follow Him, and later were called to be with Him permanently. They were among the chosen Twelve. With Peter, they were permitted to share some of the more hidden experiences of their Master.

John was particularly intimate with Jesus, as his title of "beloved disciple" and his position at the Last Supper clearly show. To him our Lord entrusted the care of the Blessed Virgin. We do not wonder, therefore, that he was able to reach such spiritual heights in his Gospel, or that tradition has assigned to him the symbol of the eagle.

The purpose of the Gospel is stated in 20, 31: ". . . that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in his name." To establish this truth, the evangelist recounts certain of our Lord's miracles, and the teachings which were associated with them. He assumes that his readers know the Synoptic Gospels, and in some points completes their narrative. But all other possible motives of the Gospel are subordinate to his main theme, which he unfolds with convincing force.

Prologue*

CHAPTER 1.

The Word in Himself. 1 In the beginning [a] was the Word, and the Word was with God; and the Word was God. 2 He was in the beginning with God. 3 All things were [b] made through him, and without him was made nothing that has been made. 4 In him was life,[c] and the life was the light of men. 5 And the light* shines in the darkness; and the darkness [d] grasped it not.

The Word's Mission. 6 There was a man, [e] one sent from God, whose name was John. 7 This man came as a witness, to bear witness concerning the light, that all might believe through him. 8 He was not himself the light, but was to bear witness to the light. 9 It was the true light that enlightens every man who comes into the world. 10 He was in the world, and the world was made through him, and the world knew him not. 11 He came unto his own, and his own received him not. 12 But to as many as received him he gave the power of becoming sons [f] of God; to those who believe in his name: 13 Who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of [g] God.

1, 1: In this prologue to his Gospel, St. John indicates that he is about to give an exposition of the divine nature and mission of Jesus. To represent His eternal existence with the Father, St. John employs the term Word. It is so used only by St. Jn (1, 1. 14; 1 Jn 1, 1; Ap 19, 13), and designates the Son as a kind of intellectual emanation from the Father (St. Thomas). He enjoys the divine nature and yet is distinct from the Father. It was this eternal divine Person who became man in order to reveal God to us, and to accomplish our redemption.

1, 5: Light is God's revelation and grace; Darkness is man's sinful nature. Shines: i.e., is always in the world, in both the past and the present. Grasped: this may refer to man's failure to appreciate the light. Cf Jn 1, 10. The Greek term can convey the idea of the darkness not restraining the light.

1, 14: Dwelt: the Greek term has the meaning "he pitched his tent among us." Grace: the fullness of the supernatural life. Truth: the fullness of divine wisdom and knowledge. Grace and Truth are often used in the Old Testament as qualities of the divine nature, and have the meaning of "loving-kindness" and "fidelity." Here they modify "glory."

1, 16: Grace for grace: a continuous flow of graces from Christ to man, with implication of increasing abundance.

1, 20: This denial is essential to the nature of the Baptist's testimony. The negative and positive statement of it is a Semitic manner of emphasis.

1, 21: Elias . . . Prophet: the expected Messias was known as "the Prophet," from Dt 18, 18. Elias was generally looked for as His precursor.

1, 24: The Pharisees may have constituted another group than John's first questioners.

1, 28: Bethany: note that this was "beyond the Jordan," and is not to be confused with Bethany near Jerusalem, the home of Martha and Mary.

The Word Incarnate. 14 And the Word [b] was made flesh, and dwelt* among us. And we saw his glory—glory as of the only-begotten of the Father—full of grace and of truth. 15 John bore [i] witness concerning him, and cried, "This was he of whom I said, 'He who is to come after me has been set above me, because he was before me.'" 16 And of his fullness we have all received, grace for grace.* 17 For the Law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. 18 No one has at any time seen God. The only-begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, he has revealed him.

I: THE PUBLIC MINISTRY OF JESUS

I

The Witness of John the Baptist. 19 And this is the witness of John, when the Jews sent to him from Jerusalem priests and Levites to ask him, "Who art thou?" 20 And he acknowledged and did not deny; and he acknowledged, "I am not the Christ."* 21 And they asked him, "What then? Art thou Elias?" And he said, "I am not." "Art thou the Prophet?"* And he answered, "No."

22 They therefore said to him, "Who art thou? that we may give an answer to those who sent us. What hast thou to say of thyself?" 23 He said, [j] I am the voice of one crying in the desert, "Make straight the way of the Lord," as said Isaias the prophet.

24 And they who had been sent were from among the Pharisees.* 25 And they asked him, and said to him, "Why, then, dost thou baptize, if thou art not the Christ, nor Elias, nor the Prophet?" 26 John said to them in answer, [k] "I baptize with water; but in the midst of you there has stood one whom you do not know. 27 He it is who is to come after me, who has been set above me, the strap of whose sandal I am not worthy to loose."

28 These things took place at Bethany,* beyond the Jordan, where John was baptizing.

29 The next day John saw Jesus coming to him, and he said, "Behold, the lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world! 30 This is he of whom I said, 'After me there comes one who has been set above me, because he was before me.'

31 And I did not know him. But that he may be known to Israel, for this reason have I come baptizing with water."

32 And John bore witness, saying, l "I beheld the Spirit descending as a dove from heaven, and it abode upon him.
33 And I did not know him. But he who sent me to baptize with water said to me,
'He upon whom thou wilt see the Spirit descending, and abiding upon him, he it is who baptizes with the Holy Spirit.'
34 And I have seen and have borne witness that this is the son of God."

The First Disciples. 35 Again the next day John was standing there, and two of his disciples. 36 And looking upon Jesus as he walked by, he said, "Behold the lamb of God!" 37 And the two disciples* heard him speak, and they followed Jesus.

38 But Jesus turned round, and seeing them following him, said to them, "What is it you seek?" They said to him, "Rabbi (which interpreted means Master), where dwellest thou?" 39 He said to them,
"Come and see." They came and saw where he was staying; and they stayed with him that day. It was about the tenth hour.

40 Now Andrew, the brother of Simon
Peter, was one of the two who had heard John and had followed him. 41 He found first his brother Simon and said to him,
*"We have found the Messias m (which interpreted is Christ)." 42 And he led him to Jesus. But Jesus, looking upon him, said, n "Thou art Simon, the son of John; thou shalt be called Cephas* (which interpreted is Peter)."

43 The next day he was about to leave for Galilee, and he found Philip. And Jesus said to him, "Follow me." 44 Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the town of Andrew and Peter.

45 Philip found Nathanael, and said to him, "We have found him of whom Moses in the Law and the Prophets wrote, Jesus the son of Joseph of Nazareth." 46 And Nathanael said to him, "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" Philip said to him, "Come and see."

47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and said of him, "Behold a true Israelite in whom there is no guile!" 48 Nathanael said to him, "Whence knowest thou me?"
Jesus answered and said to him, "Before Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee." 49 Nathanael answered him and said, o "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God, thou art King of Israel."

50 Answering, Jesus said to him, "Because I said to thee that I saw thee under the fig tree, thou dost believe. Greater things than these shalt thou see." 51 And he said to him, "Amen, amen, I say to you, you shall see heaven opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man."

CHAPTER 2.

The Marriage Feast at Cana. 1 And on the third day* a marriage took place at Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there. 2 Now Jesus too was invited to the marriage, and also his disciples.
3 And the wine having run short, the mother of Jesus said to him, "They have no wine." 4 And Jesus said to her, "What wouldst thou have me do,* woman? My hour has not yet come." 5 His mother said to the attendants, "Do whatever he tells you."

6 Now six stone water-jars were placed there, after the Jewish manner of purification, each holding two or three measures. 7 Jesus said to them, "Fill the jars with water." And they filled them to the brim. 8 And Jesus said to them, "Draw out now, and take to the chief steward."
And they took it to him.

9 Now when the chief steward had tasted the water after it had become wine, not knowing whence it was (though the attendants who had drawn the water knew), the chief steward called the bride-

1, 37: Two disciples: from v 40 we know that one of these was Andrew. The other was John the Evangelist, who thus generally hides his identity throughout the Gospel.

1, 41: The Messias: in Greek Christos means "the Anointed One." It was under this name that the expected Redeemer was known from the prophecies in Is 61, 1; Dn 9, 21.

1, 42: Cephas: in Aramaic this name means "rock," in Greek Petros. For the significance of this change of name cf Mt 4, 18; 16, 18.

2, 1: The third day: probably from the call of Nathanael. Cana: probably in Lower Galilee, some five miles north and east of Nazareth.

2, 4: What wouldst thou have me do: literally, "What to me and to thee," is an expression which can vary in meaning with its context, and with the speaker's tone of voice. It occurs several times in the Old and New Testaments, practically always implying dissent. Though there may be some disagreement in it even here, the circumstances show that it was not a rebuke. Woman: an honorable address in the language spoken by our Lord. My hour: could be said of any critical period in one's life. Here it is used of the opening of Christ's public ministry, or of that ministry as a whole.

groom, [10] and said to him, "Every man at first sets forth the good wine, and when they have drunk freely, then that which is poorer. But thou hast kept the good wine until now."

[11] This first of his signs* Jesus worked at Cana of Galilee; and he manifested his glory, and his disciples believed in him. [12] After this [p] he went down to Capharnaum, he and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples. And they stayed there but a few days.

Cleansing of the Temple. [13] Now [q] the Passover of the Jews was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. [14] And he found in the temple men selling oxen, sheep and doves, and money-changers at their tables. [15] And making a kind of whip of cords, he drove them all out of the temple, also the sheep and oxen, and he poured out the money of the changers and overturned the tables. [16] And to them who were selling the doves he said, "Take these things away, and do not make the house of my Father a house of business." [17] And his disciples remembered that it is written, [r] The zeal for thy house has eaten me up.

[18] The Jews* therefore answered and said to him, "What sign dost thou show us, seeing that thou dost these things?" [19] In answer Jesus said to them, [s] "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." [20] The Jews therefore said, "Forty-six years has this temple been in building, and wilt thou raise it up in three days?" [21] But he was speaking of the temple of his body. [22] When, accordingly, he had risen from the dead,[t] his disciples remembered that he had said this, and they believed the Scripture and the word that Jesus had spoken.

[23] Now when he was at Jerusalem for the feast of the Passover, many believed* in his name, seeing the signs that he was working. [24] But Jesus did not trust himself to them, in that he knew all men, [25] and because [u] he had no need that anyone should bear witness concerning man, for he himself knew what was in man.

CHAPTER 3.

Nicodemus. [1] Now [v] there was a certain man among the Pharisees, Nicodemus by name, a ruler* of the Jews. [2] This man came to Jesus at night, and said to him, "Rabbi, we know that thou hast come a teacher from God, for no one can work these signs that thou workest unless God be with him." [3] Jesus answered and said to him, [w] "Amen, amen, I say to thee, unless a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." [4] Nicodemus said to him, "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born again?"

[5] Jesus answered, "Amen, amen, I say to thee, unless a man be born again of water and the Spirit,* he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. [6] That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. [7] Do not wonder that I said to thee, 'You must be born again.' [8] The wind blows where it will, and thou hearest its sound but dost not know where it comes from or where it goes. So is everyone who is born of the Spirit."*

[9] Nicodemus answered and said to him, "How can these things be?"

[10] Answering him, Jesus said, "Thou art a teacher in Israel and dost not know these things? [11] Amen, amen, I say to thee, we speak of what we know, and we bear witness to what we have seen; and our witness you do not receive. [12] If I have spoken of earthly things to you, and you do not believe, how will you believe if I speak to you of heavenly things? [13] And no one has ascended into heaven except him who has descended from heaven: the Son of Man who is in heaven.*

2, 11: Signs: St. John speaks always of Christ's miracles as "signs" or "works." We retain the term "sign," but it is to be understood in the same sense as "miracle" in the Synoptic Gospels.

2, 18: The Jews: here, as generally in the Gospel of St. John, are the officials of Judaism. They held authority in such matters as are here described, and they asked a sign of Christ in justification of His apparent usurpation of that authority.

2, 23-25: The faith of those attracted to Christ was imperfect, and He knew it. Hence He did not reveal Himself to them (Chrysostom), or admit them to a more intimate understanding of His teaching and Person. The conversation with Nicodemus grows out of this situation.

3, 1: Ruler: i.e., a leader in the community; perhaps also a member of the Sanhedrin. Cf Jn 7, 50f.

3, 5: The word "Holy" is added to Spirit in the Clementine Vulgate.

3, 8: This brief parable indicates to Nicodemus that there are mysteries even in familiar natural forces. Hence he need not be surprised if the truths of the supernatural order appear mysterious.

3, 13: Who is in heaven: these words are wanting in the best Greek codices. The thought is in accord with Jn 1, 18: Christ's Incarnation did not remove Him from the presence of the Father.

14 "And [x] as Moses lifted up the serpent in the desert, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up, 15 that those who believe in him may not perish, but may have life everlasting."

16 For [y] God so loved the world that he gave his only-begotten Son, that those who believe in him may not perish, but may have life everlasting. 17 For God did not send his Son into the world in order to judge the world, but that the world might be saved through him. 18 He who believes in him is not judged; but he who does not believe is already judged, because he does not believe in the name of the only-begotten Son of God. 19 Now this is the judgment: The light has come into the world, yet men have loved the darkness rather than the light, for their works were evil. 20 For everyone who does evil hates the light, and does not come to the light, that his deeds may not be exposed. 21 But he who does the truth comes to the light that his deeds may be made manifest, for they have been performed in God.

The Witness of John the Baptist. 22
After these things Jesus and his disciples came into the land of Judea, and he stayed there with them and baptized.
23 Now John was also baptizing in Aennon,* near Salim, for there was much water there. And the people came and were baptized. 24 For [z] John had not yet been put into prison.

25 Now there arose a discussion about purification between some of John's disciples and the Jews.* 26 And they came to John and said to him, "Rabbi, he who was with thee beyond the Jordan, to whom thou hast borne witness, behold he baptizes and all are coming to him."

27 John answered and said, "No one can receive anything unless it is given to him from heaven. 28 You yourselves bear me witness [a] that I said, 'I am not the Christ but have been sent before him.'
29 He who has the bride is the bridegroom; but the friend of the bridegroom, who stands and hears him, rejoices exceedingly at the voice of the bridegroom.
This my joy, therefore, is made full. 30 He must increase, but I must decrease."

31 *He who comes from above is over all. He who is from the earth belongs to earth, and of the earth he speaks. He who comes from heaven is over all. 32
And he bears witness to that which he has seen and heard, and his witness no one receives. 33 He who receives his witness has set his seal on this, that God is true. 34 For he whom God has sent speaks the words of God, for not by measure does God give the Spirit. 35 The Father loves the Son, and has given all things into his hands. 36 He who believes in the Son has everlasting life; he who is unbelieving towards the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God rests upon him.

CHAPTER 4.

The Samaritan Woman. 1 When, therefore, Jesus knew that the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John—2 although Jesus himself did not baptize, but his disciples—3 he left Judea and went again into Galilee. 4 Now he had to pass through Samaria.*

5 He came, [b] accordingly, to a town of Samaria called Sichar, near the field that Jacob gave to his son Joseph. 6 Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus therefore, wearied as he was from the journey, was sitting at the well. It was about the sixth hour. 7 There came a Samaritan woman to draw water.

Jesus said to her, "Give me to drink"; 8 for his disciples had gone away into the town to buy food. 9 The Samaritan woman therefore said to him, "How is it that thou, although thou art a Jew,[c] dost ask drink of me, who am a Samaritan woman?" For Jews do not associate with Samaritans.

10 Jesus answered and said to her, "If thou didst know the gift of God, and who it is who says to thee, 'Give me to drink,' thou, perhaps, wouldst have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water." 11 The woman said to him,
"Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with,
and the well is deep. Whence then hast thou living water? 12 Art thou greater than our father Jacob who gave us the well, and drank from it, himself, and his sons, and his flocks?" 13 In answer Jesus said to her, "Everyone who drinks of this water will thirst again. He, however, who drinks of the water that I will give him shall never thirst; 14 but the water that I will give him shall become in him a fountain of water, springing up unto life everlasting." 15 The woman said to him, "Sir, give me this water that I may not thirst, or come here to draw."

16 Jesus said to her, "Go, call thy husband and come here." 17 The woman answered and said, "I have no husband." Jesus said to her, "Thou hast said well, 'I have no husband,' 18 for thou hast had five husbands, and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband. In this thou hast spoken truly."

19 The woman said to him, "Sir, I see that thou art a prophet. 20 Our fathers worshipped on this mountain, [d] but you say that at Jerusalem is the place where one ought to worship." 21 Jesus said to her, "Woman, believe me, the hour is coming when neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem will you worship the Father. 22 You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, for salvation is from the Jews. 23 But the hour is coming, and is now here, when the true worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth.* For the Father also seeks such to worship him. 24 God is spirit, and they who worship him must worship in spirit and in truth."

25 The woman said to him, "I know that Messias* is coming (who is called Christ), and when he comes he will tell us all things." 26 Jesus said to her, "I who speak with thee am he."

27 And at this point his disciples came; and they wondered that he was speaking with a woman.* Yet no one said, "What dost thou seek?" or, "Why dost thou speak with her?" 28 The woman therefore left her water-jar and went away into the town, and said to the people, 29 "Come and see a man who has told me all that I have ever done. Can he be the Christ?" 30 They went forth from the town and came to meet him. 31 Meanwhile, his disciples besought him, saying, "Rabbi, eat." 32 But he said to them, "I have food to eat of which you do not know." 33 The disciples therefore said to one another, "Has someone brought him something to eat?"

34 Jesus said to them, "My food is to do the will of him who sent me, to accomplish his work. 35 Do you not say, 'There are yet four months, and then comes the harvest'? Well, I say to you, lift up your eyes and behold that the fields are already white for the harvest. 36 And he who reaps* receives a wage, and gathers fruit unto life everlasting, so that the sower and the reaper may rejoice together. 37 For herein is the proverb true, 'One sows, another reaps.' 38 I have sent you to reap that on which you have not labored. Others have labored, and you have entered into their labors."

39 Now many of the Samaritans of that town believed in him because of the word of the woman who bore witness, "He told me all that I have ever done." 40 When, therefore, the Samaritans had come to him, they besought him to stay there; and he stayed two days. 41 And far more believed because of his word. 42 And they said to the woman, "We no longer believe because of what thou hast said, for we have heard for ourselves and we know that this is in truth the Savior of the world."

43 Now [e] after two days he departed from that place and went into Galilee, 44 for [f] Jesus himself bore witness that a prophet receives no honor in his own country. 45 When, therefore, he had come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, having seen all that he had done in Jerusalem during the feast, for they also had gone to the feast.

The Official's Son. 46 He came again, therefore, to Cana of Galilee, [g] where he had made the water wine. And there was a certain royal official whose son was lying sick at Capharnaum. 47 When he heard that Jesus had come from Judea into Galilee, he went to him and besought him to come down and heal his son, for he was at the point of death.

48 Jesus therefore said to him, "Unless you see signs and wonders, you do not believe." 49 The royal official said to him, "Sir, come down before my child dies." 50 Jesus said to him, "Go thy way, thy son lives."

The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him, and departed. 51 But even as he was now going down, his servants met him and brought word saying that his son lived. 52 He asked of them therefore the hour in which he had got better. And they told him, "Yesterday, at the seventh hour, the fever left him." 53 The father knew then that it was at that very hour in which Jesus had said to him, "Thy son lives." And he himself believed, and his whole household.

54 This was a second sign that Jesus worked when coming from Judea into Galilee.

The Cure at the Pool of Bethsaida. 1 After this there was a feast [b] of the Jews,* and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. 2 Now there is at Jerusalem, by the Sheepgate, a pool called in Hebrew Bethsaida, having five porticoes. 3 In these were lying a great multitude of the sick, blind, lame, and those with shrivelled limbs, *waiting for the moving of the water. 4 For an angel of the Lord used to come down at certain times into the pool, and the water was troubled. And the first to go down into the pool after the troubling of the water was cured of whatever infirmity he had.

5 Now a certain man was there who had been thirty-eight years under his infirmity. 6 When Jesus saw him lying there, and knew that he had been in this state a long time, he said to him, "Dost thou want to get well?" 7 The sick man answered him, "Sir, I have no one to put me into the pool when the water is stirred; for while I am coming, another steps down before me." 8 Jesus said to him, [i] "Rise, take up thy pallet and walk." 9 And at once the man was cured. And he took up his pallet and began to walk. Now that day was a Sabbath.

10 The Jews therefore said to him who had been healed, "It is the Sabbath; thou art not allowed to take up thy pallet." 11 He answered them, "He who made me well said to me, 'Take up thy pallet and walk.'" 12 They asked him then, "Who is the man who said to thee, 'Take up thy pallet and walk'?" 13 But the man who had been healed did not know who it was, for Jesus had quietly gone away, since there was a crowd in the place.

14 Afterwards Jesus found him in the temple, and said to him, "Behold, thou art cured. Sin no more, lest something worse befall thee." 15 The man went away and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had healed him.

16 And [j] this is why the Jews kept persecuting Jesus, because he did such things on the Sabbath. 17 Jesus, however, answered them, "My Father works even until now, and I work." 18 This, then, is why the Jews were the more anxious to put him to death;[k] because he not only broke the Sabbath, but also called God his own Father, making himself equal to God.

Christ's Claim to Divinity. 19 In answer therefore Jesus said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, the Son can do nothing of himself, but only what he sees the Father doing. For whatever he does, this the Son also does in like manner. 20 For the Father loves the Son, and shows him all that he himself does. And greater works than these he will show him, that you may wonder. 21 For [l] as the Father raises the dead and gives them life, even so the Son also gives life to whom he will. 22 For neither does the Father judge any man, but all judgment he has given to the Son, 23 that all men may honor the Son even as they honor the Father. He who does not honor the Son, does not honor the Father who sent him.

24 "Amen, amen, I say to you, he who hears my word, and believes him who sent me, has life everlasting, and does not come to judgment, but has passed from death to life.

5: Some authors hold that originally the order of these chapters was 4, 6, 5, 7. The main reason for this opinion is that the scene of 4 and 6 is Galilee; while that of 5 and 7 is Judea. The MSS evidence supports the existing order.

25 "Amen, amen, I say to you, the hour is coming, and now is here, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear shall live. 26 For as the Father has life in himself, even so he has given to the Son also to have life in himself; 27 and he has granted him power to render judgment, because he is Son of Man. 28 Do not wonder at this, for the hour is coming in which all who are in the tombs shall hear the voice of the Son of God. 29 And they who have done good shall come forth unto resurrection of life; but they who have done evil unto resurrection of judgment. 30 Of myself I can do nothing. As I hear, I judge, and my judgment is just because I seek not my own will, but the will of him who sent me.

Justification of Christ's Claims. 31 "If I bear witness concerning myself, my witness is not true. 32 There is another who bears witness concerning me, and I know that the witness that he bears concerning me is true. 33 You have sent to John, and he has borne witness [m] to the truth. 34 I however do not receive the witness of man, but I say these things that you may be saved. 35 He was the lamp, burning and shining; and you desired to rejoice for a while in his light.

36 "The witness, however, that I have is greater than that of John. For the works which the Father has given me to accomplish, these very works that I do, bear witness to me, that the Father has sent me. 37 And the Father himself, who has sent me, has borne witness [n] to me. But you have never heard his voice, or seen his face. 38 And you have not his word abiding in you, since you do not believe him whom he has sent. 39 You search the Scriptures, because in them you think that you have life everlasting. And it is they that bear witness to me, 40 yet you are not willing to come to me that you may have life.

41 "I do not receive glory from men. 42 But I know that you have not the love of God in you. 43 I have come in the name of my Father, and you do not receive me. If another come in his own name, him you will receive. 44 How can you believe who receive glory from one another,[o] and do not seek the glory which is from the only God? 45 Do not think that I shall accuse you to the Father. There is one who accuses you, Moses, in whom you hope. 46 For if you believed Moses you would believe me also,[p] for he wrote of me. 47 But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe my words?"

CHAPTER 6.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand. 1 After [q] this Jesus went away to the other side of the sea of Galilee, which is that of Tiberias. 2 And there followed him a great crowd, because they witnessed the signs he worked on those who were sick. 3 Jesus therefore went up the mountain, and sat there with his disciples.

4 Now the Passover, the feast [r] of the Jews, was near. 5 When, therefore, Jesus had lifted up his eyes and seen that a very great crowd had come to him, he said to Philip, "Whence shall we buy bread that these may eat?" 6 But he said this to try him, for he himself knew what he would do.

7 Philip answered him, "Two hundred denarii worth of bread is not enough for them, that each one may receive a little." 8 One of his disciples, Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, said to him, 9 "There is a young boy here who has five barley loaves and two fishes; but what are these among so many?" 10 Jesus then said, "Make the people recline."

Now there was much grass in the place. The men therefore reclined, in number about five thousand. 11 Jesus then took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, distributed them to those reclining; and likewise the fishes, as much as they wished. 12 But when they were filled, he said to his disciples, "Gather the fragments that are left over, lest they be wasted." 13 They therefore gathered them up; and they filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves left over by those who had eaten.

14 When the people, therefore, had seen the sign which Jesus had worked, they said, "This is indeed the Prophet who is to come into the world." 15 So when Jesus perceived that they would come to take him by force and make him king,[s] he fled again to the mountain, himself alone.

Jesus Walks on the Water. 16 Now when evening had come, his disciples went down to the sea. 17 And getting into a boat, they went across the sea towards Capharnaum. And it was already dark, but Jesus had not come to them. 18 Now the sea was rising, because a strong wind was blowing. 19 But after they had rowed some twenty-five or thirty stadia, they beheld Jesus walking upon the sea, and drawing near to the boat; and they were frightened. 20 But he said to them, "It is I, do not be afraid." 21 They desired therefore to take him into the boat; and immediately the boat was at the land towards which they were going.

The Discourse on the Eucharist. 22 The next day, the crowd which had remained on the other side of the sea observed that there had been but one boat at that place, and that Jesus had not gone into the boat with his disciples, but that his disciples had departed alone. 23 But other boats from Tiberias came near the place where they had eaten the bread, when the Lord gave thanks. 24 When therefore the crowd perceived that Jesus was not there, nor his disciples, they themselves got into the boats and came to Capharnaum, seeking Jesus. 25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said to him, "Rabbi, when didst thou come here?"

26 Jesus answered them and said, "Amen, amen, I say to you, you seek me, not because you have seen signs, but because you have eaten of the loaves and have been filled. 27 Do not labor for the food that perishes, but for that which endures unto life everlasting, which the Son of Man will give you. For upon him the Father, God himself, has set his seal."

28 They said therefore to him, "What are we to do that we may perform the works of God?" 29 In answer Jesus said to them, "This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he has sent." 30 They said therefore to him, "What sign, then, dost thou, that we may see and believe thee? What work dost thou perform? 31 Our fathers ate the manna in the desert, even as it is written, [t] Bread from heaven he gave them to eat."

32 Jesus then said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, Moses did not give you the bread from heaven, but my Father gives you the true bread from heaven. 33 For the bread of God is that which comes down from heaven and gives life to the world."

34 They said therefore to him, "Lord, give us always this bread."

35 But Jesus said to them, [u] "I am the bread of life. He who comes to me shall not hunger, and he who believes in me shall never thirst. 36 But I have told you that you have seen me and you do not believe. 37 All that the Father gives to me shall come to me, and him who comes to me I will not cast out. 38 For I have come down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of him who sent me. 39 Now this is the will of him who sent me,[v] the Father, that I should lose nothing of what he has given me, but that I should raise it up on the last day. 40 For this is the will of my Father who sent me, that whoever beholds the Son, and believes in him, shall have everlasting life, and I will raise him up on the last day."

41 The Jews therefore murmured about him because he had said, "I am the bread that has come down from heaven." 42 And they kept saying, "Is this not Jesus the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How, then, does he say, 'I have come down from heaven'?"

43 In answer therefore Jesus said to them, "Do not murmur among yourselves. 44 No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draw him, and I will raise him up on the last day. 45 It is written in the Prophets, [w] And they all shall be taught of God. Everyone who has listened to the Father, and has learned, comes to me; 46 not that anyone has seen the Father except him who is from God, he has seen the Father. 47 Amen, amen, I say to you, he who believes in me has life everlasting.

48 "I am the bread of life. 49 Your fathers ate the manna in the desert, and have died. 50 This is the bread that comes down from heaven, so that if anyone eat of it he will not die. 51 I am the living bread that has come down from heaven. 52 If anyone eat of this bread he shall live forever; and the bread that I will give is my flesh for the life of the world."

t Ex 16, 15f; Ps 77 (78), 25f; I Cor 10, 3.—u Jn 6, 41. 48f. 51; 4, 14; 7, 37.—v Jn 6, 40. 44. 55; 11, 24.—w Is 54, 13; Jer 31, 33f.

53 The Jews on that account argued with one another, saying, "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?"

54 Jesus therefore said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, you shall not have life in you. 55 He who eats my flesh and drinks my blood has life everlasting and I will raise him up on the last day. 56 For my flesh is food indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. 57 He who eats my flesh, and drinks my blood, abides in me and I in him. 58 As the living Father has sent me, and as I live because of the Father, so he who eats me, he also shall live because of me. 59 This is the bread that has come down from heaven; not as your fathers ate the manna, and died. He who eats this bread shall live forever." 60 These things he said when teaching in the synagogue at Capharnaum.

61 Many of his disciples therefore, when they heard this, said, "This is a hard saying. Who can listen to it?" 62 But Jesus, knowing in himself that his disciples were murmuring at this, said to them, "Does this scandalize you? 63 What then if you should see the Son of Man ascending where he was before? 64 It is the spirit that gives life; the flesh profits nothing. The words that I have spoken to you are spirit and life. 65 But there are some among you who do not believe." For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were who did not believe, and who it was who should betray [x] him.

66 And he said, "This is why I have said to you, 'No one can come to me unless he is enabled to do so by my Father.'" 67 From this time many of his disciples turned back and no longer went about with him.

68 Jesus therefore said to the Twelve, "Do you also wish to go away?" 69 Simon Peter therefore answered, [y] "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast words of everlasting life, 70 and we have come to believe and to know that thou art the Christ, the Son of God."*

71 Jesus answered them, [z] "Have I not chosen you, the Twelve? Yet one of you is a devil." 72 Now he was speaking of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon; for he it was, though one of the Twelve, who would betray him.

CHAPTER 7.

Jesus Goes Secretly to the Feast of Tabernacles. 1 Now after these things [a] Jesus went about in Galilee, for he did not wish to go about in Judea because the Jews were seeking to put him to death. 2 Now the [b] Jewish feast of Tabernacles was at hand. 3 His brethren therefore said to him, "Leave here and go into Judea that thy disciples also may see the works that thou dost; 4 for no one does a thing in secret if he wants to be publicly known. If thou dost these things, manifest thyself to the world." 5 For not even his brethren believed in him.

6 Jesus therefore said to them, "My time has not yet come, but your time is always at hand. 7 The world [c] cannot hate you, but it hates me because I bear witness concerning it, that its works are evil. 8 As for you, go up to the feast, but I do not go up to this feast, for my time is not yet fulfilled."

9 When he had said these things he stayed on in Galilee. 10 But as soon as his brethren had gone up to the feast, then he also went up, not publicly, but as it were privately.

11 The Jews therefore were looking for him at the feast, and were saying, "Where is he?" 12 And there was much whispered comment among the crowd concerning him. For some were saying, "He is a good man." But others were saying, "No, rather he seduces the crowd." 13 Yet for fear of the Jews [d] no one spoke openly of him.

14 When, however, the feast* was already half over, Jesus went up into the temple and began to teach. 15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, "How does this man come by learning,* since he has not studied?"

The Source of Christ's Teachings. 16 Jesus answered them and said, "My teach-

7, 14: The feast of Tabernacles lasted eight days. This appearance of Christ in the temple would then be on the 4th or 5th day.

ing is not my own, but his who sent me.
17 If anyone desires to do his will, he will know of the teaching whether it is from God, or whether I speak on my own authority. 18 He who speaks on his own authority seeks his own glory. But he who seeks the glory of the one who sent him is truthful, and there is no injustice in him. 19 Did not Moses give you the Law, and none of you observes the Law?
20 Why [e] do you seek to put me to death?"
The crowd answered and said, "Thou hast a devil. Who seeks to put thee to death?"

21 Jesus answered and said to them,
"One work* I did and you all wonder.
22 For this reason Moses gave you the circumcision"*—not that it is from Moses, but from the fathers—"and on a Sabbath you circumcize a man. 23 If [f] a man receives circumcision on a Sabbath, that the Law of Moses may not be broken, are you indignant with me because I made a whole man well on a Sabbath?
24 Judge not by appearances but give just judgment."

Christ's Origin. 25 Some therefore of the people of Jerusalem were saying, "Is not this the man they seek to kill? 26 And behold, he speaks openly and they say nothing to him. Can it be that the rulers have really come to know that this is the Christ? 27 Yet we know where this man is from; but when the Christ comes, no one will know where he is from."

28 Jesus therefore, while teaching in the temple, cried out and said, "You both know me,* and know where I am from.
Yet I have not come of myself, but he is true who has sent me, whom you do not know. 29 I know him because I am from him, and he has sent me."

30 They wanted therefore to seize him, but no one laid hands on him because his hour had not yet come. 31 Many of the people, however, believed in him, and they kept saying, [g] "When the Christ comes will he work more signs than this man works?" 32 The Pharisees heard the crowd whispering these things about him, and the rulers* and Pharisees sent attendants to seize him.

33 Jesus then said, [h] "Yet a little while I am with you, and then I go to him who sent me. 34 You will seek me and will not find me; [i] and where I am you cannot come." 35 The Jews therefore said among themselves, "Where is he going that we shall not find him? Will he go to those dispersed among the Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles? 36 What is this statement that he has made, 'You will seek me and will not find me, and where I am you cannot come'?"

37 Now on the last, the great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried out, saying, "If anyone thirst, let him come to me and drink. 38 He who believes in me, as the Scripture says, [j] From within him there shall flow rivers of living water." 39 He said this, however, of the Spirit [k] whom they who believed in him were to receive; for the Spirit had not yet been given, since Jesus had not yet been glorified.

40 Some of the crowd, therefore, when they had heard these words, said, "This is truly the Prophet." 41 Others said,
"This is the Christ." Some, however, said, 42 "Can the Christ come from Galilee? [l] Does not the Scripture say that it is of the offspring of David, and from Bethlehem, the village where David lived, that the Christ is to come?" 43 So there arose a division among the crowd because of him. 44 And some of them wanted to seize him, but no one laid hands on him.

45 The attendants therefore came to the chief priests and Pharisees; and these said to them, "Why have you not brought him?" 46 The attendants answered, "Never has man spoken as this man." 47 The Pharisees then answered them, "Have you also been led astray? 48 Has any one of the rulers believed in him, or any of the Pharisees? 49 But this crowd, which does not know the Law, is accursed."

50 Nicodemus, [m] he who had come to him at night, who was one of them, said to them, 51 "Does our Law judge a man unless it first give him a hearing, [n] and know what he does?" 52 They answered

CHAPTER 8.

The Adulteress. 1 But Jesus went to the Mount of Olives. 2 And at daybreak he came again into the temple, and all the people came to him; and sitting down he began to teach them.

3 Now the Scribes and Pharisees brought a woman caught in adultery, [o] and setting her in the midst, 4 said to him, "Master, this woman has just now been caught in adultery. 5 And in the Law Moses commanded us to stone such persons. What, therefore, dost thou say?" 6 Now they were saying this to test him, in order that they might be able to accuse him. But Jesus, stooping down, began to write with his finger on the ground.*

7 But when they continued asking him, he raised himself and said to them, [p] "Let him who is without sin among you be the first to cast a stone at her." 8 And again stooping down, he began to write on the ground. 9 But hearing this, they went away, one by one, beginning with the eldest. And Jesus remained alone, with the woman standing in the midst.

10 And Jesus, raising himself, said to her, "Woman, where are they? Has no one condemned thee?" 11 She said, "No one, Lord." Then Jesus said, "Neither will I condemn thee. Go thy way, and from now on sin [q] no more."

The Light of the World. 12 Again, therefore, Jesus spoke to them, saying, [r] "I am the light of the world. He who follows me does not walk in the darkness, but will have the light of life." 13 The Pharisees therefore said to him, "Thou bearest witness to thyself. Thy witness is not true."

14 Jesus answered and said to them, "Even if I bear witness to myself, my witness is true, because I know where I came from and where I go. But you do not know where I came from or where I go. 15 You judge according to the flesh; I judge no one. 16 And even if I do judge, my judgment is true, because I am not alone, but with me is he who sent me, the Father. 17 And in your Law it is written [s] that the witness of two persons is true. 18 It is I who bear witness to myself, and he who sent me, the Father, bears witness to me."

19 They therefore said to him, "Where is thy father?" Jesus answered, "You know neither me nor my Father. If you knew me, you would then know my Father also."

20 Jesus spoke these words in the treasury,* while teaching in the temple.[t] And no one seized him, because his hour had not yet come.

The Son of God. 21 Again, [u] therefore, Jesus said to them, "I go, and you will seek me, and in your sin you will die. Where I go you cannot come." 22 The Jews therefore kept saying, "Will he kill himself, since he says, 'Where I go you cannot come'?"

23 And he said to them, [v] "You are from below, I am from above. You are of this world, I am not of this world. 24 Therefore I said to you that you will die in your sins; for if you do not believe that I am he,* you will die in your sin."

25 They therefore said to him, "Who art thou?" Jesus said to them, "Why do I speak to you at all!* 26 I have many things to speak and to judge concerning you; but he who sent me is true, and the things that I heard from him, these I speak in the world." 27 And they did not understand that he was speaking to them about the Father.

28 Jesus therefore said to them, [w] "When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am he, and that of myself I do nothing: but that I preach only what the Father has taught me. 29 And he who sent me is with me; he has not left me alone, because I do always the things that are pleasing to him." 30 When [x] he was speaking these things, many believed in him.

8, 20: Treasury: a room off the Court of the Women in the temple.

8, 24: I am he: i.e., the Messias.

8, 25: Why do I . . . : The Clementine Vulgate reads, "I am the beginning, I who speak with you." The reading adopted here is that of the critical Vulgate, which agrees better with the Greek. The Greek text is also taken to mean. "Even that which I tell you from the beginning"; or, "I am indeed that which I tell you."

The Children of Abraham. 31 Jesus therefore said to the Jews who had come to believe in him, "If you abide in my word, you shall be my disciples indeed, 32 and you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." 33 They answered him, * "We are the children of Abraham,[y] and we have never yet been slaves to anyone. How sayest thou, 'You shall be free'?"

34 Jesus answered them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, everyone who commits sin is a slave of sin. 35 But the slave does not abide in the house forever; the son abides there forever. 36 If therefore the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed. 37 I know that you are the children of Abraham; but you seek to kill me because my word takes no hold among you. 38 I speak what I have seen with the Father; and you do what you have seen with your father."

39 They answered and said to him, "Abraham is our father." Jesus said to them, "If you are the children of Abraham, do the works of Abraham. 40 But as it is, you are seeking to kill me, one who has spoken the truth to you which I have heard from God. That is not what Abraham did.* 41 You are doing the works of your father." They therefore said to him, "We have not been born of fornication; we have one Father, God."

42 Jesus therefore said to them, "If God were your Father, you would surely love me. For from God I came forth and have come; for neither have I come of myself, but he sent me. 43 Why do you not understand my speech? Because you cannot listen to my word. 44 The father[z] from whom you are is the devil,* and the desires of your father it is your will to do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and has not stood in the truth because there is no truth in him. When he tells a lie he speaks from his very nature, for he is a liar and the father of lies. 45 But because I speak the truth you do not believe me. 46 Which of you can convict me of sin? If I speak the truth, why do you not believe me? 47 He who is of God hears the words of God. The reason why you do not hear is that you are not of God."

Christ and Abraham. 48 The Jews therefore in answer said to him, "Are we not right in saying that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?" 49 Jesus answered, "I have not a devil, but I honor my Father, and you dishonor me. 50 Yet I do not seek my own glory; there is one who seeks and who judges. 51 Amen, amen,[a] I say to you, if anyone keep my word, he will never see death."

52 The Jews therefore said, "Now we know that thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets, and thou sayest, 'If anyone keep my word he will never taste death.' 53 Art thou greater than our father Abraham, who is dead? And the prophets are dead. Whom dost thou make thyself?"

54 Jesus answered, "If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing. It is my Father who glorifies me, of whom you say that he is your God. 55 And you do not know him,[b] but I know him. And if I say that I do not know him, I shall be like you, a liar. But I know him, and I keep his word. 56 Abraham your father rejoiced that he was to see my day. He saw it* and was glad." 57 The Jews therefore said to him, "Thou are not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?" 58 Jesus said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, [c] before Abraham came to be, I am." * 59 They therefore took up stones to cast at him; but Jesus hid himself, and went out from the temple.

CHAPTER 9.

The Man Born Blind. 1 And as he was passing by, he saw a man blind from birth. 2 And his disciples asked him, "Rabbi, who has sinned,* this man or his parents, that he should be born blind?" 3 Jesus answered, "Neither has this man sinned, nor his parents, but the works[d]

8, 33: This objection is characteristic of the officials of Judaism. Hence St. Augustine observes that its authors were "not they who had already believed, but they in the crowd who were not yet believing."

8, 40: Cf Gn 18. Abraham listened with all respect to the angels who were sent to him.

8, 44: Literally: "You are from the father, the devil." He is described as the father of lies. They also are strangers to the truth revealed to them by Christ, and in this is made evident their relationship to the devil.

8, 56: He saw it: Abraham can be said to have seen Christ's day either in faith and prophetic vision, or from his place in limbo when Christ was born.

8, 58: I am: the use of the present emphasizes His eternal existence. Further, cf Ex 3, 14.

9, 2f: Some rabbis held that an unborn child could sin. All were agreed that the sins of a parent could be visited upon the child. Hence the question. But in this case neither is true. God permitted this evil, resulting from natural and by no means unusual causes, in order to manifest His divine power.

of God were to be made manifest in him. 4 I must do the works of him who sent me [e] while it is day; night is coming, when no one can work. 5 As long as I am in the world I am the light of the world."

6 When he had said these things, he spat [f] on the ground and made clay with the spittle, and spread the clay over his eyes, 7 and said to him, "Go, wash in the pool of Siloe (which is interpreted 'sent')." So he went away, and washed, and returned seeing. 8 The neighbors therefore and they who were wont to see him before as a beggar, began saying, "Is not this he who used to sit and beg?" Some said, "It is he." 9 But others said, "By no means, he only resembles him." Yet the man declared, "I am he."

10 They therefore said to him, "How were thy eyes opened?" 11 He answered, "The man who is called Jesus made clay and anointed my eyes, and said to me, 'Go to the pool of Siloe and wash.' And I went and washed, and I see." 12 And they said to him, "Where is he?" He said, "I do not know."

13 They took him who had been blind to the Pharisees. 14 Now it was a Sabbath on which Jesus made the clay and opened his eyes. 15 Again, therefore, the Pharisees asked him how he received his sight. But he said to them, "He put clay upon my eyes, and I washed, and I see."

16 Therefore some of the Pharisees said, "This man is not from God, for he does not keep the Sabbath." But others said, "How can a man who is a sinner work these signs?" And there was a division among them. 17 Again therefore they said to the blind man, "What dost thou say of him who opened thy eyes?" But he said, "He is a prophet."

18 The Jews therefore did not believe of him that he had been blind and had got his sight, until they called the parents of the one who had gained his sight, 19 and questioned them, saying, "Is this your son, of whom you say that he was born blind? How then does he now see?" 20 His parents answered them and said, "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind; 21 but how he now sees we do not know, or who opened his eyes we ourselves do not know. Ask him; he is of age, let him speak for himself." 22 These things [g] his parents said because they feared the Jews. For already the Jews had agreed that if anyone were to confess him to be the Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue. 23 This is why his parents said, "He is of age; question him."

24 They therefore called a second time the man who had been blind, and said to him, "Give glory to God! We ourselves know that this man is a sinner." 25 He therefore said, "Whether he is a sinner, I do not know. One thing I do know, that whereas I was blind, now I see." 26 They therefore said to him, "What did he do to thee? How did he open thy eyes?" 27 He answered them, "I have told you already, and you have heard.* Why would you hear again? Would you also become his disciples?" 28 They heaped abuse on him therefore, and said, "Thou art his disciple, but we are disciples of Moses. 29 We know that God spoke to Moses; but as for this man, we do not know where he is from." 30 In answer the man said to them, "Why, herein is the marvel, that you do not know where he is from, and yet he opened my eyes. 31 Now we know that God does not hear sinners; but if anyone is a worshipper of God, and does his will, him he hears. 32 Not from the beginning of the world* has it been heard that anyone opened the eyes of a man born blind. 33 If this man were not from God, he could do nothing." 34 They answered and said to him, [h] "Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us?" And they turned him out.

35 Jesus heard that they had turned him out, and when he had found him, said to him, "Dost thou believe in the Son of God?" 36 He answered and said, "Who is he, Lord, that I may believe in him?" 37 And Jesus said to him, "Thou hast both seen him, and he it is who speaks with thee." 38 And he said, "I believe, Lord." And falling down, he worshipped him.

39 And Jesus said, [i] "For judgment have I come into this world, that they who do not see may see, and they who see may become blind." 40 And [j] some of the Pharisees who were with him heard this, and they said to him, "Are we also blind?" 41 Jesus said to them, "If you were blind, you would not have sin. But now that you say, 'We see,' your sin remains."

CHAPTER 10.

The Good Shepherd. 1 "Amen, amen, I say to you, he who enters not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbs up another way, is a thief and a robber. 2 But he who enters by the door is shepherd of the sheep. 3 To this man the gatekeeper opens, and the sheep hear his voice, and he calls his own sheep by name and leads them forth. 4 And when he has let out his own sheep, he goes before them; and the sheep follow him because they know his voice. 5 But a stranger they will not follow, but will flee from him, because they do not know the voice of strangers."

6 This parable Jesus spoke to them, but they did not understand what he was saying to them.

7 Again, therefore, Jesus said to them, "Amen, amen, I say to you, I am the door of the sheep. 8 All whoever have come* are thieves and robbers; but the sheep have not heard them. 9 I am the door. If anyone enter by me he shall be safe,* and shall go in and out, and shall find pastures. 10 The [k] thief comes only to steal, and slay, and destroy. I came that they may have life, and have it more abundantly.

11 "I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd lays down his life for his sheep. 12 But the hireling, who is not a shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, sees the wolf coming and leaves the sheep and flees. And the wolf snatches and scatters the sheep; 13 but the hireling flees because he is a hireling, and has no concern for the sheep.

14 "I am the good shepherd, and I know mine and mine know me, 15 even as the Father knows me and I know the Father; and I lay down my life for my sheep. 16 And other sheep I have that are not of this fold. Them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice, and there shall be one fold* and [l] one shepherd. 17 For this reason the Father loves me, [m] because I lay down my life that I may take it up again. 18 No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have the power [n] to lay it down, and I have the power to take it up again. Such is the command I have received from my Father."

19 Again [o] there arose a division among the Jews because of these words. 20 Many of them were saying, "He has a devil and is mad. Why do you listen to him?" 21 Others were saying, "These are not the words of one who has a devil. Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?"

At the Feast of the Dedication. 22 Now [p] there took place at Jerusalem the feast of the Dedication; and it was winter. 23 And [q] Jesus was walking in the temple, in Solomon's portico.* 24 The Jews therefore gathered round him, and said to him, "How long dost thou keep us in suspense?* If thou art the Christ, tell us openly."

25 Jesus answered them, [r] "I tell you and you do not believe. The works that I do in the name of my Father, these bear witness concerning me. 26 But [s] you do not believe because you are not of my sheep. 27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them and they follow me. 28 And [t] I give them everlasting life; and they shall never perish, neither shall anyone snatch them out of my hand. 29 What my Father has given me is greater than all;* and no one is able to snatch anything out of the hand of my Father. 30 I and [u] the Father are one."

31 The [v] Jews therefore took up stones to stone him. 32 Jesus answered them, "Many good works have I shown you from my Father. For which of these works do you stone me?" 33 The Jews answered him, [w] "Not for a good work do we stone thee, but for blasphemy, and because thou, being a man, makest thyself God."

34 Jesus answered them, [x] "Is it not written in your Law, I said you are

10, 16: One fold: the Greek text has "one flock." This is a better reading, although the sense remains the same: the union of Jew and Gentile in Christ's Church.

*gods? [35] If he called them gods to whom the word of God was addressed (and the Scripture cannot be broken), [36] do you say of him [y] whom the Father has made holy and sent into the world, 'Thou blasphemest,' because I said, 'I am the Son of God'? [37] If I do not perform the works of my Father, do not believe me. [38] But [z] if I do perform them, and if you are not willing to believe me, believe the works, that you may know and believe that the Father is in me and I in the Father."

[39] They sought therefore to seize him; and he went forth out of their hands.

Jesus in Perea. [40] And [a] again he went away beyond the Jordan, to the place where John was at first baptizing; and there he stayed. [41] And many came to him; and they were saying, "John indeed worked no sign. [42] All things, however, that John said of this man were true." And many believed in him.

CHAPTER 11.

The Raising of Lazarus. [1] Now [b] a certain man was sick, Lazarus of Bethany, the village of Mary and her sister Martha. [2] Now [c] it was Mary who anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet dry with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick. [3] The sisters therefore sent to him, saying, "Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick."

[4] But when Jesus heard this, he said to them, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that through it the Son of God may be glorified." [5] Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister Mary, and Lazarus. [6] So when he heard that he was sick, he remained two more days in the same place. [7] Then afterwards he said to his disciples, "Let us go again into Judea."

[8] The disciples said to him, [d] "Rabbi, just now the Jews were seeking to stone thee; and dost thou go there again?" [9] Jesus answered, * "Are there not twelve hours in the day? If a man walks in the day, he does not stumble, because he sees the light of this world. [10] But [e] if he walks in the night, he stumbles, because the light is not in him."

[11] These things he spoke, and after this he said to them, "Lazarus, our friend, sleeps. But I go that I may wake him from sleep." [12] His disciples therefore said, "Lord, if he sleeps, he will be safe." [13] Now Jesus had spoken of his death, but they thought he was speaking of the repose of sleep. [14] So then Jesus said to them plainly, "Lazarus is dead; [15] and I rejoice on your account that I was not there, that you may believe. But let us go to him." [16] Thomas, [f] who is called the Twin, said therefore to his fellow-disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

[17] Jesus therefore came and found him already four days in the tomb. [18] Now Bethany was close to Jerusalem, some fifteen stadia distant. [19] And many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary, to comfort them on account of their brother. [20] When, therefore, Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went to meet him. But Mary remained at home.

[21] Martha therefore said to Jesus, "Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother would not have died. [22] But even now I know that whatever thou shalt ask of God, God will give it to thee."

[23] Jesus said to her, "Thy brother shall rise." [24] Martha said to him, [g] "I know that he will rise at the resurrection, on the last day." [25] Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in me, even if he die, shall live; [26] and whoever lives and believes in me, shall never die. Dost thou believe this?" [27] She said to him, [h] "Yes, Lord, I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, who hast come into the world."

[28] And when she had said this, she went away and quietly called Mary her sister, saying, "The Master is here and calls thee." [29] As soon as she heard this, she rose quickly and came to him, [30] for Jesus had not yet come into the village, but was still at the place where Martha had met him.

[31] When, therefore, the Jews, who were with her in the house and were comforting her, saw Mary rise up quickly and go out, they followed her, saying, "She is going to the tomb to weep there."

32 When, therefore, Mary came where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell at his feet, and said to him, "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother would not have died." 33 When, therefore, Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who had come with her weeping, he groaned in spirit and was troubled,* 34 and said, "Where have you laid him?" They said to him, "Lord, come and see." 35 And Jesus [i] wept. 36 The Jews therefore said, "See how he loved him." 37 But some of them said, "Could not he who opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that this man should not die?"

38 Jesus therefore, again groaning in himself, came to the tomb. Now it was a cave, and a stone was laid against it. 39 Jesus said, "Take away the stone." Martha, the sister of him who was dead, said to him, "Lord, by this time he is already decayed, for he is dead four days." 40 Jesus said to her, "Have I not told thee that if thou believe thou shalt behold the glory of God?" 41 They therefore removed the stone. And Jesus, raising his eyes, said, "Father, I give thee thanks that thou hast heard me. 42 Yet I knew that thou always hearest me; [j] but because of the people who stand round, I spoke, that they may believe that thou hast sent me." 43 When he had said this, he cried out with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come forth!" 44 And at once he who had been dead came forth, bound feet and hands with bandages, and his face was tied up with a cloth. Jesus said to them, "Unbind him, and let him go."

The Council. 45 Many therefore of the Jews who had come to Mary, and had seen what he did, believed in him. 46 But some of them went away to the Pharisees, and told them the things that Jesus had done.

47 The chief priests and the Pharisees therefore gathered together a council, and said, "What are we doing?* for this man is working many signs. 48 If we let him alone as he is, all will believe in him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place and our nation." * 49 But one of them, Caiphas, [k] being high priest that year, said to them, "You know nothing at all; 50 nor do you reflect that it is expedient for us that one man die for the people, instead of the whole nation perishing." 51 This, however, he said not of himself; but being high priest* that year, he prophesied that Jesus was to die for the nation; 52 and not only for the nation, but that he might gather into one [l] the children of God who were scattered abroad. 53 So from that day forth their plan was to put him to death.

Jesus in Ephrem. 54 Jesus therefore no longer went about openly among the Jews, but withdrew to the district near the desert, to a town called Ephrem;* and there he stayed with his disciples.

55 Now the Passover [m] of the Jews was at hand; and many from the country went up to Jerusalem before the Passover, in order to purify themselves. 56 And they were looking for Jesus. And as they stood in the temple they were saying to one another, "What do you think, that he is not coming to the feast?" But the chief priests and Pharisees had given orders that, if anyone knew where he was, he should report it, so that they might seize him.

CHAPTER 12.

The Anointing at Bethany. 1 Jesus [n] therefore, six days before the Passover, came to Bethany where Lazarus, whom Jesus had raised to life, [o] had died. 2 And they made him a supper there; and Martha served, while Lazarus was one of those reclining at table with him.

3 Mary therefore took a pound of ointment, genuine nard of great value, and anointed [p] the feet of Jesus, and with her hair wiped his feet dry. And the house was filled with the odor of the ointment. 4 Then one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, he who was about to betray him, said, 5 "Why was this ointment not sold for three hundred denarii, and given to the poor?" 6 Now he said this, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and holding the purse, used to take what was put in it. 7 Jesus therefore said, "Let her be—that she may keep* it for the day of my burial. 8 For the poor you have always with you, but you do not always have me."

9 Now the great crowd of the Jews learned that he was there; and they came, not only because of Jesus, but that they might see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. 10 But the chief priests planned to put Lazarus to death also. 11 For on his account many of the Jews began to leave them and to believe in Jesus.

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem. 12 Now [q] the next day, the great crowd which had come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, 13 took the branches of palms* and went forth to meet him. And they cried out, [r] "Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord, the king of Israel!"

14 And Jesus found a young ass, and sat upon it, as it is written, 15 [s] Fear not, daughter of Sion; behold, thy king comes, sitting upon the colt of an ass.

16 These things [t] his disciples did not at first understand. But when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written about him, and that they had done these things to him.

17 The crowd therefore, which was with him when he called Lazarus from the tomb and raised him from the dead, bore witness to him.* 18 And the reason why the crowd also went to meet him was that they heard that he had worked this sign. 19 The Pharisees therefore said among themselves, "Do you see that we avail nothing?* Behold, the entire world has gone after him!"

12, 7: . . . that she may keep: the sentence is elliptical. Various suggestions have been made for its completion. "She did not sell it that she may keep it . . ." The sense seems to be: "this is not a prodigal expenditure of the precious ointment, but an anointing in preparation for my burial."

12, 13: Branches of palms were usually brought up from Jericho for use as decorations during the feast.

12, 17f: From the words they were chanting, it was evident that the people recognized Christ as the Messias.

12, 19: Can be read with more force: "You see that we avail nothing . . ."

12, 23ff: These words were not addressed to the Gentiles.

12, 27: Troubled: this emotion is human fear and sadness, occasioned by the impending Passion. St. Thomas calls this scene a brief anticipation of the Agony in the Garden.

Last Words of Jesus to the People. 20 Now there were certain Gentiles among those who had gone up to worship on the feast. 21 These [u] therefore approached Philip, who was from Bethsaida of Galilee, and asked him, saying, "Sir, we wish to see Jesus." 22 Philip [v] came and told Andrew; again, Andrew and Philip spoke to Jesus.

23 But Jesus answered them,* [w] "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified. 24 Amen, amen, I say to you, unless the grain of wheat falls into the ground and dies, 25 it remains alone. But if it dies, it brings forth much fruit. He who loves his life, loses it; and he who hates his life in this world, keeps it unto life everlasting. 26 If [x] anyone serves me, let him follow me; and where I am there also shall my servant be. If anyone serves me, my Father will honor him.

27 "Now my soul is troubled.* And what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour! No, this is why I came to this hour. 28 Father, glorify thy name!" There came therefore a voice from heaven, "I have both glorified it, and I will glorify it again." 29 Then the crowd which was standing round and had heard, said that it had thundered. Others said, "An angel has spoken to him." 30 Jesus answered and said, [y] "Not for me did this voice come, but for you.

31 "Now [z] is the judgment of the world; now will the prince of the world be cast out. 32 And I, [a] if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all things to myself." 33 Now he said this signifying by what death he was to die. 34 The crowd answered him, [b] "We have heard from the Law that the Christ abides forever. And how canst thou say, 'The Son of Man must be lifted up'? Who is this Son of Man?" 35 Jesus therefore said to them, [c] "Yet a little while the light is among you. Walk while you have the light, that darkness may not overtake you. He who walks in the darkness does not know where he goes. 36 While you have the light, believe in the light, that you may become sons of light."

These things Jesus spoke, and he went away and hid himself from them.

Incredulity. 37 Now though he had worked so many signs in their presence, they did not believe in him; 38 that the word which the prophet Isaias spoke might be fulfilled, [d] Lord, who has believed our report, and to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed? [39] This is why they could not believe,* because Isaias said again, [40] He [e] has blinded their eyes, and hardened their hearts; lest they see with their eyes, and understand with their mind, and be converted, and I heal them. [41] Isaias [f] said these things when he saw his glory and spoke of him.

[42] And yet, [g] even among the rulers, many believed in him; but because of the Pharisees they did not acknowledge it, lest they should be put out of the synagogue. [43] For [h] they loved the glory of men* more than the glory of God.

[44] But Jesus cried out, and said, [i] "He who believes in me, believes not in me but in him who sent me. [45] And [j] he who sees me, sees him who sent me. [46] I have come a light into the world, that whoever believes in me may not remain in the darkness. [47] And [k] if anyone hears my words, and does not keep them, it is not I who judge him; for I have not come to judge the world, but to save the world. [48] He [l] who rejects me, and does not accept my words, has one to condemn him. The word that I have spoken will condemn him on the last day. [49] For [m] I have not spoken on my own authority, but he who sent me, the Father, has commanded me what I should say, and what I should declare. [50] And [n] I know that his commandment is everlasting life. The things, therefore, that I speak, I speak as the Father has bidden me."

II: THE PASSION, DEATH AND RESURRECTION

1. The Last Supper

CHAPTER 13.

The Washing of the Feet. [1] Before [o] the feast of the Passover, Jesus, knowing that the hour had come for him to pass out of this world to the Father, having loved his own who were in the world, loved them to the end.

[2] And during the supper,* the devil having already put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon, to betray him, Jesus, [3] knowing [p] that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he had come forth from God and was going to God, [4] rose from the supper and laid aside his garments, and taking a towel girded himself. [5] Then he poured water into the basin and began to wash the feet of the disciples, and to dry them with the towel with which he was girded.

[6] He came, then, to Simon Peter. And Peter said to him, "Lord, dost thou wash my feet?" [7] Jesus answered and said to him, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter." [8] Peter said to him, "Thou shalt never wash my feet!" Jesus answered him, "If I do not wash thee, thou shalt have no part with me." [9] Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head!" [10] Jesus said to him, "He [q] who has bathed needs only to wash,* and he is clean all over. And you are clean, but not all." [11] For [r] he knew who it was that would betray him. This is why he said, "You are not all clean."

[12] Now after he had washed their feet and put on his garments, when he had reclined again, he said to them, "Do you know what I have done to you? [13] You [s] call me Master and Lord, and you say well, for so I am. [14] If, therefore, I the Lord and Master have washed your feet, you also ought to wash the feet of one another. [15] For I have given you an example, that as I have done to you, so you also should do. [16] Amen, amen, [t] I say to you, no servant is greater than his master, nor is one who is sent greater than he who sent him. [17] If you know these things, blessed shall you be if you do them. [18] I do not speak of you all. I know whom I have chosen; but that the Scripture may be fulfilled, [u] He who eats bread with me has lifted up his heel against me. [19] I tell you now [v] before it comes to pass, that when it has come to pass you may believe that I am he. [20] Amen, amen, [w] I say to you, he who re-

12, 39: They could not believe: faith is a gift of God which often cannot be received because of an obstacle which man puts in its way. The obstacle here is their obstinacy. Isaias had foretold this. Cf Is 6, 9f.

12, 43: Cf Jn 5, 44. They preferred rather the approval of man than to render due glory to God.

13, 2: During the supper: or, "When the supper was finished." Both readings are well attested, but the context shows that the meal was at least resumed. Cf vv 12. 16.

13, 10: Needs only to wash: the words "his feet" are added here in some MSS. If we retain them, the sense is: He who has bathed, on returning home needs only to wash the dust from his feet. Or it might also mean that the liturgical and social requirements are satisfied with this partial bathing.

ceives anyone I send, receives me; and he who receives me, receives him who sent me."

The Betrayer. 21 When Jesus had said these things he was troubled* in spirit, and said solemnly, [x] "Amen, amen, I say to you, one of you will betray me." 22 The disciples therefore looked at one another, uncertain of whom he was speaking.

23 Now one of his disciples,[y] he whom Jesus loved, was reclining at Jesus' bosom.* 24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, and said to him, "Who is it of whom he speaks?" 25 He therefore, leaning back upon the bosom of Jesus, said to him, "Lord, who is it?" 26 Jesus answered, "It is he for whom I shall dip the bread, and give it to him." And when he had dipped the bread, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon. 27 And after the morsel, Satan entered into him.* And Jesus said to him, [z] "What thou dost, do quickly." 28 But none of those at the table understood why he said this to him. 29 For some thought that because Judas held the purse, Jesus had said to him, "Buy the things we need for the feast"; or that [a] he should give something to the poor. 30 When, therefore, he had received the morsel, he went out quickly. Now it was night.

The New Commandment. 31 When, therefore, he had gone out, Jesus said, "Now is the Son of Man glorified, and God is glorified in him. 32 If [b] God is glorified in him, God will also glorify him in himself, and will glorify him at once.

33 "Little children, yet a little while I am with you. [c] You will seek me, and, as I said to the Jews, 'Where I go you cannot come,' so to you also I say it now. 34 A [d] new commandment I give you, that you love one another: that as I have loved you, you also love one another. 35 By this will all men know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

Peter's Denials Predicted. 36 Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, where art thou going?" Jesus answered, "Where I am going [e] thou canst not follow me now, but thou shalt follow later." 37 Peter said to him, "Why can I not follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thee." 38 Jesus answered him, "Wilt thou lay down thy life for me? Amen, amen, I say to thee, the cock will not crow [f] before thou dost deny me thrice."

CHAPTER 14.

A Word of Comfort. 1 "Let not your heart be [g] troubled. You believe in God, believe also in me. 2 In my Father's house there are many mansions. Were it not so, I should have told you, because I go to prepare a place for you. 3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I am coming again, and I will take you to myself; that where I am, there you also may be. 4 And where I go you know, and the way you know."

5 Thomas said to him, "Lord, we do not know where thou art going, and how can we know the way?" 6 Jesus said to him, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father but through me. 7 If you had known me,* you would also have known my Father. And henceforth you do know him, and you have seen him."

8 Philip said to him, "Lord, show us the Father and it is enough for us." 9 Jesus said to him, [h] "Have I been so long a time with you, and you have not known me? Philip, he who sees me sees also the Father. How canst thou say, 'Show us the Father'? 10 Dost thou not believe that I am in the Father and the Father in me? The words that I speak to you I speak not on my own authority. But the Father dwelling in me, it is he who does the works. 11 Do you believe that I am in the Father and the Father in me? 12 Otherwise believe because of the works [i] themselves. Amen, amen, I say to you, he who believes in me, the works that I do he also shall do, and greater than these he shall do, because I am going to the Father. 13 And whatever you ask in my name,[j] that I will do, in order that the 13, 23: At Jesus' bosom: John reclined at the right of Jesus. He thus had only to lean back and his head rested on our Lord's breast. This fact is often mentioned as evidence that John was "the beloved disciple."

13, 27: Satan entered into him: Judas now gave himself entirely into the power of Satan (St. Thomas). It probably marks a definite decision on the part of Judas to carry out the betrayal of his Master at once.

14, 7: If you had known me: the meaning is rather encouragement than censure. Their present imperfect knowledge will later be elevated to a better understanding.

Father may be glorified in the Son. 14 If you ask me anything in my name, I will do it.

15 "If [k] you love me, keep my commandments. 16 And I will ask the Father and he will give you another Advocate* to dwell [l] with you forever, 17 the Spirit of truth [m] whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees him nor knows him. But you shall know him, because he will dwell with you, and be in you.

18 "I will not leave you orphans; I will come to you. 19 Yet a little while and the world no longer sees me. But you see me,* for I live and you shall live. 20 In [n] that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. 21 He who has my commandments and keeps them, he it is who loves me. But he who loves me will be loved by my Father, and I will love him and manifest myself to him."

22 Judas, not the Iscariot, said to him, "Lord, how is it that thou art about to manifest thyself to us, and not to the world?" 23 Jesus answered and said to him, "If anyone love me, he will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our abode with him. 24 He who does not love me does not keep my words. And the word that you have heard is not mine, but the Father's who sent me.

25 "These things I have spoken to you while yet dwelling with you. 26 But the Advocate, the [o] Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and bring to your mind whatever I have said to you.

27 "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give to you; not as the world gives do I give to you. Do not let your heart be troubled, or be afraid. 28 You have heard me say to you, 'I go away and I am coming to you.' If you loved me, you would indeed rejoice that I am going to the Father, for the Father is greater than I. 29 And now [p] I have told you before it comes to pass, that when it has come to pass you may believe. 30 I will no longer speak much with you, for the prince of the world [q] is coming, and in me he has nothing.* 31 But he comes that the world may know that I love the Father, and that I do as the Father has commanded me. Arise, let us go from here."

CHAPTER 15.

Union with Christ. 1 "I am the true vine, and my Father is the vine-dresser. 2 Every branch in me that bears no fruit he will take away; and every branch that bears fruit he will cleanse, that it may bear more fruit. 3 You are already clean because of the word that I have spoken to you. 4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself unless it remain on the vine, so neither can you unless you abide in me. 5 I am the vine, you are the branches.[r] He who abides in me, and I in him, he bears much fruit; for without me you can do nothing. 6 If anyone does not abide in me, he shall be cast outside as the branch and wither; and they shall gather them up and cast them into the fire,[s] and they shall burn. 7 If you abide in me, and if my words abide in you, ask whatever you will [t] and it shall be done to you. 8 In this is my Father glorified, that you may bear very much fruit, and become my disciples. 9 As the Father has loved me, I also have loved you.[u] Abide in my love. 10 If you keep my commandments you will abide in my love, [v] as I also have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. 11 These things I have spoken to you that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be made full.

12 "This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. 13 Greater love than this no one has, that one lay down his life for his friends. 14 You are my friends if you do the things I command you. 15 No longer do I call you servants, because the servant does not know what his master does. But I have called you friends, because all things that I have heard from my Father I have made known to you. 16 You have not chosen me, [w] but I have chosen you, and have appointed you that you should go

14, 16: Advocate: or Paraclete. The latter is a Greek term which is better rendered into English by Advocate or Intercessor. Cf 1 Jn 2, 1. The function of the One thus designated is protection, assistance, defense. The thought of Consoler is not wanting from the context (St. Thomas, St. Jerome, St. Augustine).

14, 19: But you see me: i.e., the world will not see me, but you will see me.

14, 30f: In me he has nothing: i.e., he has no claim on me or power over me. The success of the powers of darkness in the death of Christ was only apparent. This was permitted to show Christ's perfect correspondence with the will of the Father. On this rested His triumph over sin and death.

and bear fruit, and that your fruit should remain; that whatever you ask the Father in my name he may give you. 17 These things I command you, that you may love one another.

The World's Hatred. 18 [x] "If the world hates you, know that it has hated me before you. 19 If you were of the world,[y] the world would love what is its own. But because you are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hates you. 20 Remember the word that I have spoken to you: [z] No servant is greater than his master. If they have persecuted me, they will persecute you also; if they have kept my word, they will keep yours also. 21 But all these things they will do to you for my name's sake, [a] because they do not know him who sent me. 22 If I had not come and spoken to them, they would have no sin. But now they have no excuse* for their sin. 23 He [b] who hates me hates my Father also. 24 If I had not done among them works such as no one else has done, they would have no sin. But now they have seen,[c] and have hated* both me and my Father; 25 but that the word written in their Law may be fulfilled, [d] They have hated me without cause.

26 "But [e] when the Advocate has come, whom I will send you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who proceeds from the Father, he will bear witness concerning me. 27 And you also bear witness,[f] because from the beginning you are with me."

CHAPTER 16.

Persecution Predicted. 1 "These things I have spoken to you that you may not be scandalized. 2 They [g] will expel you from the synagogues. Yes, the hour is coming for everyone who kills you to think that he is offering worship to God. 3 And these things they will do because they have not known the Father nor me. 4 But [h] these things I have spoken to you, that when the time for them has come you may remember that I told you. These things, however, I did not tell you from the beginning, because I was with you.

The Role of the Advocate. 5 "And now I am going to him who sent me, and no one of you asks me, 'Where art thou going?' 6 But because I have spoken to you these things, sorrow has filled your heart. 7 But I speak the truth to you; it is expedient for you that I depart. For if I do not go, the Advocate [i] will not come to you; but if I go, I will send him to you. 8 And when he has come he will convict the world of sin, and of justice, and of judgment: 9 of sin, because they do not believe in me; 10 of justice, because I go to the Father, and you will see me no more; 11 and of judgment, because the prince of this world has already been judged.

12 "Many things yet I have to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. 13 But when he, the Spirit of truth,[j] has come, he will teach you all the truth. For he will not speak on his own authority, but whatever he will hear he will speak, and the things that are to come he will declare to you. 14 He will glorify me, because he will receive of what is mine and declare it to you. 15 All things that the Father has are mine.[k] That is why I have said that he will receive of what is mine, and will declare it to you. 16 A little while and you shall see me no longer; and again a little while and you shall see me, because I go to the Father."

17 Some of his disciples therefore said to one another, "What is this he says to us, 'A little while and you shall not see me, and again a little while and you shall see me'; and, 'I go to the Father'?" 18 They kept saying therefore, "What is this 'little while' of which he speaks? We do not know what he is saying."

19 But Jesus knew that they wanted to ask him, and he said to them, "You inquire about this among yourselves because I said, 'A little while and you shall not see me, and again a little while and you shall see me.' 20 Amen, amen, I say to you, that you shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice; and you shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy. 21 A woman about to give birth [l] has sorrow, because her hour has come. But when she has brought forth the child, she no longer remembers the anguish for her joy that a man is born into the world. 22 And you therefore have sorrow now; but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no one shall take from you. 23 And in that day you shall ask me nothing. [m] Amen, amen, I say to you, if you ask the Father anything in my name, he will give it to you. 24 Hitherto you have not asked anything in my name. Ask, and you shall receive, that your joy may be full.

25 "These things I have spoken to you in parables.* The hour is coming when I will no longer speak to you in parables, but will speak to you plainly of the Father. 26 In that day you shall ask in my name; and I do not say to you that I will ask the Father for you, 27 for the Father himself loves you because you have loved me, and have believed that I came forth from God. 28 I came forth from the Father and have come into the world. Again I leave the world and go to the Father."

29 His disciples said to him, "Behold, now thou speakest plainly, and utterest no parable. 30 Now we know that thou knowest all things, and dost not need [n] that anyone should question thee. For this reason* we believe that thou camest forth from God."

31 Jesus answered them, "Do you now believe? 32 Behold, [o] the hour is coming, and has already come, for you to be scattered, each one to his own house, and to leave me alone. But I am not alone, because the Father is with me. 33 These things I have spoken to you that in me you may have peace.[p] In the world you will have affliction. But take courage, I have overcome the world."

CHAPTER 17.

Christ's Priestly Prayer for Unity. 1 These things Jesus spoke; and raising his eyes to heaven, he said, [q] "Father, the hour has come! Glorify thy Son, that thy Son may glorify thee, 2 even [r] as thou hast given him power over all flesh, in order that to all thou hast given him he may give everlasting life.* 3 Now this is everlasting life, that they may know thee, the only true God, and him whom thou hast sent, Jesus Christ. 4 I have glorified thee on earth; I have accomplished the work that thou hast given me to do. 5 And now do thou, Father, glorify me with thyself, with the glory that I had with thee before the world existed.

6 "I have manifested thy name to the men whom thou hast given me out of the world. They were thine, and thou hast given them to me, and they have kept thy word. 7 Now they have learnt that whatever thou hast given me is from thee; 8 because the words that thou hast given me I have given to them. And they have received them, and have known of a truth that I came forth from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.

9 "I pray [s] for them; not for the world do I pray, but for those whom thou hast given me, because they are thine; 10 and all things that are mine are thine,[t] and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them. 11 And I am no longer in the world, but these are in the world, and I am coming to thee. Holy Father, keep in thy name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one even as we are. 12 While I was with them, I kept them in thy name. [u] Those whom thou hast given me I guarded; and not one of them perished except the son of perdition, in order that the Scripture might be fulfilled. 13 But now I am coming to thee; and these things I speak in the world, in order that they may have my joy made full in themselves. 14 I have given them thy word; and the world has hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. 15 I do not pray that thou take them out of the world, but that thou keep them from evil. 16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. 17 Sanctify them in the truth. Thy word is truth. 18 Even as thou hast sent me into the world,[v] so I also have

16, 25: Parables: the parable or proverb, in Hebrew called Mashal, was a simile used to illustrate higher truths. There was some obscurity in all parables. For the present Christ's words were above the understanding of the Apostles.

16, 30f: For this reason: now that our Lord speaks more plainly, they understand better, and also believe. But He hastens to warn them that their faith is to be put to further test.

17, 2: Christ glorifies the Father by faithfully accomplishing His mission. But He also glorifies Him in another way: by raising man to a state in which he also can glorify God both here and in heaven. To this end the Father has given power over all men to the Son, to open for them a way to eternal life.

sent them into the world. 19 And for them
I sanctify myself,* that they also may be sanctified in truth.

20 "Yet not for these only do I pray, but for those also who through their word are to believe in me, 21 that all may be one, even as thou, Father, in me and I in thee; [w] that they also may be one in us, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. 22 And the glory *that thou hast given me, I have given to them, that they may be one, even as we are one: 23
I in them and thou in me; that they may be perfected in unity, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and that thou hast loved them even as thou hast loved me.

24 "Father, I will that where I am, they also whom thou hast given me may be with me; [x] in order that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me, because thou hast loved me before the creation of the world. 25 Just Father, the world has not known thee, but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me. 26 And I have made known to them thy name, and will make it known, in order that the love with which thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them."

2. The Passion and Death of Jesus

CHAPTER 18.

Jesus Arrested. 1 After saying these things, [y] Jesus went forth with his disciples beyond the torrent of Cedron, where there was a garden into which he and his disciples entered. 2 Now [z] Judas, who betrayed him, also knew the place, since Jesus had often met there together with his disciples. 3 Judas, then, taking the cohort,* and attendants from the chief priests and Pharisees, came there with lanterns, and torches, and weapons.

4 Jesus therefore knowing all that was to come upon him,[a] went forth and said to them, "Whom do you seek?" 5 They answered him, "Jesus of Nazareth." Jesus said to them, "I am he." Now Judas, who betrayed him, was also standing with them. 6 When, therefore, he said to them,
"I am he," they drew back and fell to the ground. 7 So he asked them again,
"Whom do you seek?" And they said,
"Jesus of Nazareth." 8 Jesus answered, "I have told you that I am he. If, therefore, you seek me, let these go their way."
9 That the word which he said might be fulfilled, [b] "Of those whom thou hast given me, I have not lost one."

10 Simon Peter therefore, having a sword, drew it and struck the servant of the high priest and cut off his right ear.
Now the servant's name was Malchus.
11 Jesus therefore said to Peter, "Put up thy sword into the scabbard. Shall I not drink the cup that the Father has given me?"

Peter's Denial. 12 The cohort therefore and the tribune and the attendants of the Jews seized [c] Jesus and bound him. 13 And they brought him to Annas first,* for he was the father-in-law of Caiphas, who was the high priest that year. 14 Now it was Caiphas [d] who had given the counsel to the Jews that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.

15 But Simon Peter [e] was following Jesus, and so was another disciple. Now that disciple was known to the high priest, and he entered with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest. 16 But Peter was standing outside at the gate. So the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out and spoke to the portress, and brought Peter in.

17 The maid, who was portress, said therefore to Peter, "Art thou also one of this man's disciples?" He said, "I am not." 18 Now the servants and attendants were standing at a coal fire and warming themselves, for it was cold. And Peter also was with them, standing and warming himself.

19 The high priest therefore questioned
Jesus concerning his disciples, and concerning his teaching. 20 Jesus answered him, "I have spoken openly [f] to the world;

17, 19: Sanctify myself: by offering Himself as a victim to be immolated. That they also may be sanctified: that they also may be set aside for God's work. In truth: i.e., "in contrast to all human purpose"; or for that truth which is to be the object of their mission, as it is of Christ's.

17, 22: Glory: cf Jn 1, 12. 14. What Christ conferred upon His disciples was something of the divine nature, a further aspect of the principle of unity.

18, 3: . . . the cohort: a military division of some 500 to 600 men. The term was also used for any part of the cohort stationed in Jerusalem during the feasts.

18, 13: Annas had been high priest and, although deposed, still wielded great influence. He was deeply interested in this affair. It is conjectured that he occupied the same residence as Caiphas. The inquisition described in vv 19-24, and the denials of Peter, are to be associated with the trial conducted by Caiphas.

I have always taught in the synagogue and in the temple, where all the Jews gather, and in secret I have said nothing. 21 Why dost thou question me? Question those who have heard what I spoke to them; behold, these know what I have said."

22 Now when he had said these things, one of the attendants who was standing by struck [g] Jesus a blow, saying, "Is that the way thou dost answer the high priest?" 23 Jesus answered him, "If I have spoken ill, bear witness to the evil; but if well, why dost thou strike me?"

24 And Annas* sent him bound to Caiphas, the high priest.

25 But Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They therefore said to him, "Art thou also one of his disciples?" He denied it, and said, "I am not." 26 One of the servants of the high priest, a relative of him whose ear Peter had cut off, said, "Did I not see thee in the garden with him?" 27 Again, therefore, Peter denied it; and at that moment a cock crowed.

Jesus before Pilate. 28 They therefore [h] led Jesus from Caiphas to the praetorium. Now it was early morning, and they themselves did not enter the praetorium, that they might not be defiled, but might eat the passover.

29 Pilate therefore went outside to them, and said, "What accusation do you bring against this man?" 30 They said to him in answer, "If he were not a criminal we should not have handed him over to thee." 31 Pilate therefore said to them, "Take him yourselves, and judge him according to your law." The Jews, then, said to him, "It is not lawful for us to put anyone to death." 32 This [i] was in fulfilment of what Jesus had said, indicating the manner of his death.

33 Pilate therefore again entered into the praetorium, and he summoned Jesus, and said to him, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" 34 Jesus answered, "Dost thou say this of thyself, or have others told thee of me?" 35 Pilate answered, "Am I a Jew? Thy own people and the chief priests have delivered thee [j] to me. What hast thou done?" 36 Jesus answered, "My kingdom is not of this world. If my kingdom were of this world, my followers would have fought that I might not be delivered to the Jews. But, as it is, my kingdom is not from here." 37 Pilate therefore said to him, "Thou art then a king?" Jesus answered, "Thou sayest it; I am a king. This is why I was born, and why I have come into the world, to bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth [k] hears my voice." 38 Pilate said to him, "What is truth?"*

And when he had said this, he went outside to the Jews again, and said to them, "I find no guilt in him. 39 But you have a custom that I should release someone to you at the Passover. Do you wish, therefore, that I release to you the king of the Jews?" 40 They all therefore cried out again, "Not this man, but Barabbas!" Now Barabbas was a robber.

CHAPTER 19.

The Scourging and Crowning. 1 Pilate, then, [l] took Jesus and had him scourged. 2 And the soldiers, plaiting a crown of thorns, put it upon his head, and arrayed him in a purple cloak. 3 And they kept coming to him and saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" and striking [m] him.

4 Pilate therefore again went outside and said to them, "Behold, [n] I bring him out to you, that you may know that I find no guilt in him." 5 Jesus therefore came forth, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple cloak. And he said to them, "Behold, the man!" 6 [o] When, therefore, the chief priests and the attendants saw him, they cried out, saying, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" Pilate said to them, "Take him yourselves and crucify him, for I find no guilt in him." 7 The Jews answered him, [p] "We have a Law, and according to that Law he must die, because he has made himself Son of God."

8 Now when Pilate heard this statement, he feared the more. 9 And he again went back into the praetorium, and said to Jesus, [q] "Where art thou from?" But Jesus gave him no answer. 10 Pilate therefore said to him, "Dost thou not speak to me? Dost thou not know that I have power to crucify thee, and that I have power to release thee?" 11 Jesus answered, 18, 24: If the preceding inquisition was conducted before Annas, then St. John omits the trial of Christ as narrated by the Synoptics.

18, 38: What is truth?: the question reflects the speculative skepticism of the time.

"Thou wouldst have no power at all over me were it not given thee from above. Therefore, he who betrayed me to thee has the greater sin."*

12 And from then on Pilate was looking for a way to release him. But the Jews cried out, saying, "If thou release this man, thou art no friend of Caesar; for everyone who makes himself king [r] sets himself against Caesar."

13 Pilate therefore, when he heard these words, brought Jesus outside, and sat down on the judgment-seat,* at a place called Lithostrotos, but in Hebrew, Gabbatha. 14 Now it was [s] the Preparation Day* for the Passover, about the sixth hour. And he said to the Jews, "Behold, your king!" 15 But they cried out, "Away with him! Away with him! [t] Crucify him!" Pilate said to them, "Shall I crucify your king?" The chief priests answered, "We have no king but Caesar." 16 Then he handed him over to them to be crucified. And so they took Jesus and led him away.

The Crucifixion. 17 And [u] bearing the cross for himself,* he went forth to the place called the Skull, in Hebrew, Golgotha, 18 where they crucified him, and with him two others, one on each side and Jesus in the center.

19 And Pilate also wrote an inscription and had it put on the cross. And there was written, JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS. 20 Many of the Jews therefore read this inscription, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and it was written in Hebrew, in Greek and in Latin. 21 The chief priests of the Jews said therefore to Pilate, "Do not write, 'The King of the Jews,' but, 'He said, I am the King of the Jews.'" 22 Pilate answered, "What I have written, I have written."*

23 The soldiers therefore, when they had crucified him, took his garments and made of them four parts, to each soldier a part, and also the tunic. Now the tunic was without seam, woven in one piece from the top. 24 They therefore said to one another, "Let us not tear it, but let us cast lots for it, to see whose it shall be." That the Scripture might be fulfilled which says, [v] They divided my garments among them; and for my vesture they cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did.

The Death of Jesus. 25 Now there were standing by the cross of Jesus his mother and his mother's sister, Mary of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene. 26 When [w] Jesus, therefore, saw his mother and the disciple standing by, whom he loved, he said to his mother, "Woman, behold, thy son." 27 Then he said to the disciple, "Behold, thy mother." And from that hour the disciple took her into his home.

28 After this Jesus, [x] knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, said, "I thirst." 29 Now there was standing there a vessel full of common wine; and having put a sponge soaked with the wine on a stalk of hyssop, they put it to his mouth. 30 Therefore, when Jesus had taken the wine, [y] he said, "It is consummated!" And bowing his head, he gave up his spirit.

The Burial. 31 The Jews therefore, since it was the Preparation Day, in order that the bodies might not remain upon the cross [z] on the Sabbath (for that Sabbath was a solemn day), besought Pilate that their legs might be broken,* and that they might be taken away. 32 The soldiers therefore came and broke the legs of the first, and of the other, who had been crucified with him. 33 But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs; 34 but one of the soldiers opened his side* with 19, 11: Has the greater sin: in condemning Christ, Pilate was guilty of a sin against justice. Caiphas, however, sinned against both religion and justice. Pilate's offense was modified by his great fear and weakness. Caiphas shared the malice of the Jewish officials. Some hold the reference is to Judas.

19, 13: Judgment-seat: a rostrum or curule chair from which such sentences were officially pronounced. Lithostrotos: a stone pavement which, from Gabbatha (an elevated or cleared space), we may judge was a courtyard outside the praetorium.

19, 14: Preparation Day: the day before the Passover or before the Sabbath. Sixth hour: i.e., about noon.

19, 17: And bearing the cross for himself: this was according to custom. From Mt 27, 32 (and parallels) we learn that soon after setting out on the Way of the Cross Christ had to receive help. The Skull: the sense also of Golgotha, so called because of the shape of the rock, according to a common opinion.

19, 22: I have written: i.e., will remain written.

19, 31: That their legs might be broken: this practice, known as the crurifragium, was a painful method of causing death. It was used when there was any reason for hastening the death of the crucified.

19, 34: Opened his side: the Greek text has "pierced." Blood and water: this phenomenon was considered a miracle by Origen. The Fathers generally see in it a deeper meaning: the sacred mysteries issuing from the side of Christ, the birth of the Church as Eve was taken from the side of Adam, etc. The fact may be explained naturally as the effect of the piercing of the pericardial sinus. Still it is generally accepted as miraculous.

a lance, and immediately there came out [a] blood and water.

35 And he who saw it has borne witness,[b] and his witness is true; and he knows that he tells the truth, that you also may believe. 36 For these things came to pass that the Scripture might be fulfilled, [c] Not a bone of him shall you break. 37 And again another Scripture says, [d] They shall look upon him whom they have pierced.

38 Now [e] after these things Joseph of Arimathea, because he was a disciple of Jesus (although for fear of the Jews a secret one), besought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus. And Pilate gave permission. He came, therefore, and took away the body of Jesus. 39 And there also came Nicodemus ([f] who at first had come to Jesus by night), bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes,* in weight about a hundred pounds. 40 They therefore took the body of Jesus and wrapped it in linen cloths with the spices, after the Jewish manner of preparing for burial. 41 Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb in which no one had yet been laid. 42 There, accordingly, because of the Preparation Day of the Jews, for the tomb was close at hand, they laid Jesus.

3. The Resurrection of Jesus

CHAPTER 20.

Mary Magdalene. 1 Now [g] on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene came early to the tomb, while it was still dark, and she saw the stone taken away from the tomb. 2 She ran therefore and came to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple whom Jesus loved,[b] and said to them, "They have taken the Lord from the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid him."

3 Peter therefore went out, and the other disciple, and they went to the tomb. 4 The two were running together, and the other disciple ran on before, faster than Peter, and came first to the tomb. 5 And stooping down he saw the linen cloths [i] lying there, yet he did not enter. 6 Simon Peter therefore came following him, and he went into the tomb, and saw the linen cloths lying there, 7 and the handkerchief which had been about his head, not lying with the linen cloths, but folded in a place by itself. 8 Then the other disciple also went in, who had come first to the tomb. And he saw and believed; 9 for as yet they did not understand the Scripture, that he must rise from [j] the dead. 10 The disciples therefore went away again to their home.

11 But Mary was standing outside weeping at the tomb. So, as she wept, she stooped down and looked into the tomb, 12 and saw two angels in white sitting, one at the head and one at the feet, where the body of Jesus had been laid. 13 They said to her, "Woman, why art thou weeping?" She said to them, "Because they have taken away my Lord, [k] and I do not know where they have laid him."

14 When she had said this she turned round and beheld Jesus standing there,[l] and she did not know that it was Jesus. 15 Jesus said to her, "Woman, why art thou weeping? Whom dost thou seek?" She, thinking that he was the gardener, said to him, "Sir, if thou hast removed him, tell me where thou hast laid him and I will take him away."

16 Jesus said to her, "Mary!" Turning, she said to him, [m] "Rabboni!" (that is to say, Master). 17 Jesus said to her, "Do not touch me,* for I have not yet ascended to my Father, but go to my brethren [n] and say to them, 'I ascend to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God.' "

18 Mary Magdalene came, and announced to the disciples, "I have seen the Lord, and these things he said to me."

The Disciples. 19 When [o] it was late that same day, the first of the week, though the doors where the disciples gathered had been closed for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst and said to them, "Peace be to you!" 20 And when he had said this, he showed them his hands and his side. The disciples therefore rejoiced at the sight of the Lord.

20, 17: Do not touch me: in her joy Mary had cast herself at Christ's feet, embracing them in her reverent affection. But he tells her not to delay thus, "but go, tell my brethren," etc. The reference to the Ascension is parenthetic.

21 He therefore said to them again, "Peace be to you! As the Father has sent me,[p] I also send you." 22 When he had said this, he breathed upon them, and said to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit; 23 whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained."

Thomas. 24 Now Thomas,[q] one of the Twelve, called the Twin, was not with them when Jesus came. 25 The other disciples therefore said to him, "We have seen the Lord." But he said to them, "Unless I see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the place of the nails, and put my hand into his side,[r] I will not believe."

26 And after eight days, his disciples were again inside, and Thomas with them. Jesus came, the doors being closed, and stood in their midst, and said, "Peace be to you!" 27 Then he said to Thomas, "Bring here thy finger, and see my hands; and bring here thy hand, and put it into my side; and be not unbelieving, but believing." 28 Thomas answered and said to him, "My Lord and my God!" 29 Jesus said to him, "Because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed. Blessed are they who have not seen, and yet have believed."

The Evangelist's Epilogue. 30 Many other signs[s] also Jesus worked in the sight of his disciples, which are not written in this book. 31 But these are written[t] that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in his name.

CHAPTER 21.

The Manifestation in Galilee. 1 After these things, Jesus manifested himself[u] again at the sea of Tiberias. Now he manifested himself in this way. 2 There were together Simon Peter and Thomas, called the Twin, and[v] Nathanael, from Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples. 3 Simon Peter said to them, "I am going fishing." They said to him, "We also are going with thee." And they went out and got into the boat. And that night they caught nothing. 4 But when day was breaking, Jesus stood on the beach; yet the disciples did not know that it was Jesus. 5 Then Jesus said to them, "Young men, have you any fish?" They answered him, "No." 6 He said to them, "Cast the net to the right of the boat and you will find them." They cast therefore, and now they were unable to draw it up for the great number of fishes. 7 The disciple whom Jesus loved said therefore to Peter, "It is the Lord." Simon Peter therefore, hearing that it was the Lord, girt his tunic* about him, for he was stripped,[w] and threw himself into the sea. 8 But the other disciples came with the boat (for they were not far from land, only about two hundred cubits off) dragging the net full of fishes.

9 When, therefore, they had landed, they saw a fire ready, and a fish laid upon it, and bread. 10 Jesus said to them, "Bring here some of the fishes that you caught just now." 11 Simon Peter went aboard and hauled the net onto the land full of large fishes, one hundred and fifty-three in number. And though there were so many, the net was not torn. 12 Jesus said to them, "Come and breakfast." And none of those reclining* dared ask him, "Who art thou?" knowing that it was the Lord. 13 And Jesus came and took the bread, and gave it to them, and likewise the fish. 14 This is now the third time that Jesus appeared to the disciples after he had risen from the dead.

The Primacy of Peter. 15 When, therefore, they had breakfasted, Jesus said to Simon Peter, "Simon, son of John, dost thou love me more than these do?" He said to him, "Yes, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." He said to him, "Feed my lambs." 16 He said to him a second time, "Simon, son of John, dost thou love me?" He said to him, "Yes, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." He said to him, "Feed my lambs." 17 A third time he said to him, "Simon, son of John, dost thou love me?" Peter was grieved because he said to him for the third time, "Dost thou love me?" And he said to him, "Lord, thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee." He said to him, "Feed my sheep."

18 "Amen, amen, I say to thee, when thou wast young thou didst gird thyself and walk where thou wouldst. But when thou art old thou wilt stretch forth thy hands, and another will gird thee, and lead thee where thou wouldst not." 19 Now [x] this he said to signify by what manner of death he should glorify God. And having spoken thus, he said to him, "Follow me."

20 Turning round, Peter saw following them the disciple whom Jesus loved,[y] the one who, at the supper, had leaned back upon his breast and said, "Lord, who is it that will betray thee?" 21 Peter therefore, seeing him, said to Jesus, "Lord, and what of this man?" 22 Jesus said to him, "If I wish him to remain until I come, what is it to thee? Do thou follow me." 23 This saying therefore went abroad among the brethren, that that disciple was not to die. But Jesus had not said to him, "He is not to die"; but rather, "If I wish him to remain until I come, what is it to thee?"

Second Epilogue. 24 This is the disciple who bears witness[z] concerning these things, and who has written these things, and we know* that his witness is true. 25 There are, however, [a] many other things that Jesus did; but if every one of these should be written, not even the world itself, I think, could hold the books that would have to be written. Amen.

21, 24: And we know: the plural is probably St. John speaking for himself and the Christian community. In Jn 1, 14. 16 he also associates others with himself. It is not the editorial "we." Some think that it is the elders of Ephesus attesting the veracity of the Gospel, but this is less likely.

THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

This book was written about 63 A. D. by St. Luke, the author of the third Gospel. It ends with the statement that St. Paul preached in Rome for two years while still under arrest. St. Luke had been with him on the voyage from Palestine to Rome, since the account of this voyage is given in the first person plural, and he was still with him, as is clear from the Epistle to Philemon, when the Apostle was confident of soon being released. From this final statement it appears that the book dates from the close of the two years' imprisonment (63 A.D.), but before St. Paul's acquittal.

Beginning with our Lord's farewell instructions to the Apostles just before His Ascension, it first narrates the chief events in the history of the infant Church up to about the year 42, when St. Peter definitely departed from Palestine. A feature of the latter part of this period was the new policy of preaching the Gospel to the Gentiles. From this point the Acts traces the spread of the Church, principally through the missionary journeys of St. Paul, and closes with a short account of his labors in Rome. In this way it covers a period of about thirty-five years from the Ascension to the second year of St. Paul's imprisonment. Keeping to the main course of events as showing the growth of the Church, it is silent about the internal development of the churches after their establishment; many of these internal details are recorded in the Epistles of St. Paul, but without in any way contradicting the general facts given by St. Luke.

The Acts is a necessary and beautiful supplement to the history of the Gospels, describing with great accuracy and literary charm the fulfillment of our Lord's promise to send the Holy Spirit to sanctify and guide His Church, and so it has aptly been called the Gospel of the Holy Spirit.

Prelude

CHAPTER 1.

The Ascension. 1 In the former* book, O Theophilus, I spoke of all that Jesus did and taught from the beginning 2 until the day on which he was taken up, after he had given commandments through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen. 3 To them also he showed himself alive after his passion by many

1, 1: As the comparison here is merely between the Gospel of St. Luke and the Acts, the Greek "first" is translated by "former."

proofs,* during forty days appearing to them and speaking of the kingdom of God. 4 And while eating* with them,[a] he charged them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father, "of which you have heard," said he, "by my mouth; 5 for John indeed baptized with water, but you shall be baptized* with the Holy Spirit not many days hence."

6 They* therefore who had come together began to ask him, saying, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?"

7 But he said to them, "It is not for you to know the times or dates which the Father* has fixed by his own authority; 8 but [b] you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you, and you shall be witnesses for me in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria and even to the very ends of the earth."

9 And when he had said this, he was lifted up before their eyes, and a cloud took him out of their sight. 10 And while they were gazing up to heaven as he went, behold, two men* stood by them in white garments, 11 and said to them, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking up to heaven? This Jesus who has been taken up from you into heaven, shall come in the same way* as you have seen him going up to heaven."

12 Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day's journey.* 13 And when they had entered the city, they mounted to the upper room where were staying Peter and John, James and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James the son of Alpheus,* and Simon the Zealot, and Jude the brother of James. 14 All these with one mind continued steadfastly in prayer with the women and Mary, the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.*

Matthias Chosen. 15 In those days Peter stood up in the midst of the brethren (now the number of persons met together was about a hundred and twenty), and he said, 16 "Brethren, the Scripture must be fulfilled [c] which the Holy Spirit declared before by the mouth of David concerning Judas, who was the guide of those who arrested Jesus; 17 inasmuch as he had been numbered among us and was allotted his share in this ministry. 18 And he indeed bought a field with the price of his iniquity and, being hanged,* burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out. 19 And it became known to all the residents of Jerusalem, so that the field came to be called in their language Haceldama, that is, the Field of Blood. 20 For it is written in the book of Psalms, [d] Let their habitation become desolate and let there be none to dwell in it. And, His ministry let another take.

21 "Therefore, of these men who have been in our company all the time that the Lord Jesus moved among us, 22 from John's baptism until the day that he was taken up from us, of these one must become a witness with us of his resurrection."

23 And they put forward two: Joseph, called Barsabbas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias. 24 And they prayed and said, "Thou, Lord, who knowest the hearts of all, show which of these two thou hast chosen 25 to take the place in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas fell away to go to his own place."

26 And they drew lots between them, and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

1, 3: Proofs: the apparitions of our Lord, together with His words and actions, which served to establish the reality of His Resurrection. Speaking: in Greek, "speaking the things concerning the kingdom of God"; these instructions were a direct preparation for their work in establishing and guiding the Church.

1, 4: Eating: in some MSS and translations, "being assembled together." Promise: the Holy Spirit who had been promised to them.

1, 5: You shall be baptized: not the sacrament of Baptism, which they had already undoubtedly received, but the fuller outpouring of the Holy Spirit on Pentecost.

1, 6: They: the persons of v 4; after eating with them, our Lord led them towards the place of the Ascension on Mount Olivet (Lk 24, 50). Restore: they are thinking only of the external splendor and power of the ancient political kingdom, according to some Catholic writers. But it is altogether likely that the Apostles at this time had a more spiritual view of the kingdom, though this view was still imperfect.

1, 7: The answer indicates that the kingdom they had asked about was that of which He was the King.

1, 10: Two men: angels in human form.

1, 11: In the same way: on the clouds.

1, 12: Sabbath day's journey: about two-thirds of a mile.

1, 13: The relationship of James and Alpheus, and of Jude and James, is not indicated in the text.

1, 14: Brethren: relatives, probably cousins.

1, 18f: May be a parenthesis inserted in the speech by St. Luke; the explanation of the word "Haceldama" would not have been necessary for St. Peter's hearers. Judas hanged himself (Mt 27, 5) and then fell to the ground when the rope or branch broke. Being hanged: in Greek, "having fallen forward"; or perhaps, "having swollen up."

I: THE CHURCH IN PALESTINE AND SYRIA

1. Growth of the Church in Jerusalem

CHAPTER 2.

Descent of the Holy Spirit. 1 And when the days of Pentecost were drawing to a close, they were all together in one place.* 2 And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a violent wind blowing, and it filled the whole house where they were sitting. 3 And there appeared to them parted tongues* as of fire, which settled upon each of them. 4 [e] And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in foreign tongues,* even as the Holy Spirit prompted them to speak.

5 Now there were staying at Jerusalem devout Jews from every nation under heaven. 6 And when this sound* was heard, the multitude gathered and were bewildered in mind, because each heard them speaking in his own language. 7 But they were all amazed and marvelled, saying, "Behold, are not all these that are speaking Galileans? 8 And how have we heard each his own language in which he was born? 9 Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and inhabitants of Mesopotamia, Judea, and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, 10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and visitors from Rome, 11 Jews also and proselytes, Cretans and Arabians, we have heard them speaking in our own languages of the wonderful works of God."*

12 And all were amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, "What does this mean?" 13 But others said in mockery, "They are full of new wine."

Peter's Discourse. 14 But Peter, standing up with the Eleven, lifted up his voice and spoke out to them: "Men of Judea and all you who dwell in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and give ear to my words. 15 These men are not drunk, as you suppose, for it is only the third hour* of the day. 16 But this is what was spoken through the prophet Joel: 17 [f] And it shall come to pass in the last days, says the Lord, that I will pour forth of my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams. 18 And moreover upon my servants and upon my handmaids in those days will I pour forth of my spirit, and they shall prophesy. 19 And I will show wonders in the heavens above and signs on the earth beneath, blood and fire and vapor of smoke. 20 The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the day of the Lord comes, the great and manifest day. 21 And [g] it shall come to pass that whoever calls upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved.

22 "Men of Israel, hear these words. Jesus of Nazareth was a man approved by God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did through him in the midst of you, as you yourselves know. 23 Him, when delivered up by the settled purpose and foreknowledge of God, you have crucified* and slain by the hands of wicked men. 24 But God has raised him up, having loosed the sorrows of hell,* because it was not possible that he should be held fast by it. 25 For David says with reference to him, [h] I saw the Lord before me always, because he is at my right hand, lest I be moved. 26 This is why my heart has made merry and my tongue has rejoiced; moreover my flesh also will rest in hope, 27 because thou wilt not abandon my soul to hell, neither wilt thou let thy Holy One undergo decay. 28 Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou wilt fill me with joy in thy presence.

29 "Brethren, let me say to you freely of the patriarch David [i] that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this very day. 30 Therefore, since he was a prophet and knew that God [j] 'had

2, 1: Days: in Greek, "day"; the feast of Pentecost was celebrated on the last day of the period of fifty days after the Passover. The feast began at sunset of what we call the previous day.

2, 3: Parted tongues: in Greek, "tongues distributing themselves," as from a central source.

2, 4: Foreign tongues: languages unknown to the speakers. Literally, "different tongues," i.e., different from their own speech.

2, 6: Sound: that of v 2, "as of a violent wind." Language: in Greek, "in his own dialect."

2, 11: Works of God: they uttered exclamations of joyful praise, not words of instruction.

2, 15: Third hour: nine in the morning, since the hours were counted from sunrise at about six.

2, 23: Crucified: according to the Greek and most Latin MSS, affigentes, "fastening to (the cross)." The affligentes ("afflicting") of our Clementine Latin Bible appears to be a corruption of affigentes, attested not only by the original text but by good Latin texts.

2, 24: Hell: limbo, where the souls of the just awaited the redemption; in Greek, "death." In both readings the thought is of all that makes death grievous, beginning with the state of separation of soul and body.

sworn to him with an oath that of the fruit of his loins one should sit upon his throne,' 31 he, forseeing it, spoke of the resurrection of the Christ. [k] For neither was he abandoned to hell, nor did his flesh undergo decay. 32 This Jesus God has raised up, and we are all witnesses of it. 33 Therefore, exalted* by the right hand of God, and receiving from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he has poured forth this Spirit which you see and hear. 34 For David did not ascend into heaven, but he says himself, [l] The Lord said to my Lord: Sit thou at my right hand, 35 until I make thy enemies thy footstool."

36 "Therefore, let all the house of Israel know most assuredly that God has made* both Lord and Christ, this Jesus whom you crucified."

The Result. 37 Now on hearing this they were pierced to the heart and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, "Brethren, what shall we do?"

38 But Peter said to them, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins; and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. 39 For to you is the promise and to your children and to all who are far off,* even to all whom the Lord our God calls to himself."

40 And with very many other words he bore witness, and exhorted them, saying,
"Save yourselves from this perverse generation."

41 Now they who received his word were baptized, and there were added that day about three thousand souls.

Fervor of the Early Church. 42 And they continued steadfastly in the teaching of the apostles and in the communion* of the breaking of the bread and in the prayers. 43 And fear came upon every soul; many wonders also and signs were done by means of the apostles in Jerusalem, and great fear came upon all.
44 And all who believed were together and held all things in common,* 45 and would sell their possessions and goods and distribute them among all according as anyone had need. 46 And continuing daily with one accord in the temple,* and breaking bread in their houses, they took their food with gladness and simplicity of heart, 47 praising God and being in favor with all the people. And day by day* the Lord added to their company such as were to be saved.

CHAPTER 3.

A Lame Beggar. 1 Now Peter and John were going up into the temple at the ninth hour* of prayer. 2 And a certain man who had been lame from his mother's womb, was being carried by, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple called the Beautiful,* that he might ask alms of those going into the temple. 3 And he, seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked for an alms. 4 But Peter, gazing upon him with John, said, "Look at us." 5 And he looked at them earnestly, hoping to receive something from them.
6 But Peter said, "Silver and gold I have none; but what I have, that I give thee.
In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, arise and walk."

7 And taking him by the right hand, he raised him up, and immediately his feet and ankles became strong. 8 And leaping up, he stood and began to walk, and went with them into the temple,
walking and leaping and praising God.
9 And all the people saw him walking and praising God. 10 And they recognized him as the man who used to sit for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple, and they were filled with wonder and amaze-

2, 33: Exalted: at the Ascension, when the sacred humanity received its full glorification in heaven. Promise: the Holy Spirit as promised. As man Christ, now in heavenly glory, receives the fulfilment of the promise concerning the sending of the Holy Spirit. Christ sends the Holy Spirit and this effusion of the Spirit brought about what was heard and seen.

2, 36: Made manifestly proved the divinity of our Lord and His office as Messias. By the Resurrection and Ascension Jesus enters on the perfect glory belonging to Him and is proved to be the Son of God and the Messias (Christ).

2, 39: Far off: the Gentiles; the Church is universal.

2, 42: Communion, etc.: in Greek, "in the fellowship" (the Church as a distinct society), "in the breaking of bread" (the Eucharist). In the prayers: certain prayers said in common or already taught them by the Apostles; a liturgy was developing.

2, 44: In common all were ready to help the needy and, as occasion demanded, they even sold their possessions to do so; this spirit of fraternal charity is widely different from modern Communism.

2, 46: The temple: there was to be no sudden break with the past, but the disciples had their own sacrifice, the Eucharist, in their houses where they also took their evening meal beforehand, as our Lord did at the institution of the Eucharist. Some take "breaking bread" in the sense of an ordinary meal, and not, as in v 42, in the sense of the Eucharist.

2, 47: Day by day, etc., literally, "increased daily together those who were being saved"; in Greek, "added the saved day by day together," i.e., daily joined new converts to the community of Christians.

3, 1: Ninth hour: about three in the afternoon, the time of the evening sacrifice.

3, 2: Beautiful: probably the gate from the Court of the Gentiles to the Court of the Women.

ment at what had happened to him.

11 Now as he clung to Peter and John, all the people ran to them in the portico called Solomon's,* greatly wondering.

Peter's Discourse. 12 But when Peter saw it, he said to the people: "Men of Israel, why do you marvel at this, or why do you stare at us, as though by any power or holiness* of our own we had made this man walk? 13 The God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified his Son* Jesus, whom you indeed delivered up and disowned before the face of Pilate, when he had decided that he should be released. 14 But [m] you disowned the Holy and Just One, and asked that a murderer should be granted to you; 15 but the author of life you killed, whom God has raised up from the dead; whereof we are witnesses. 16 And it is his name, by means of faith in his name,* that has made strong this man whom you behold and recognize; moreover it is the faith that comes through Jesus that has given him the perfect health you all see.

17 "And now, brethren, I know that you acted in ignorance, as did also your rulers. 18 But in this way God fulfilled what he had announced beforehand by the mouth of all the prophets,* namely, that his Christ should suffer. 19 Repent therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out 20 in order that,* when the times of refreshment shall come from the presence of the Lord, he may send him who has been preached to you, Jesus Christ. 21 For heaven indeed must receive him until the times of the restoration of all things of which God has spoken by the mouth of his holy prophets who have been from of old. 22 For Moses said, [n] The Lord your God shall raise up to you a prophet from among your brethren, as he raised up me; to him you shall hearken in all things that he shall speak to you.* 23 And it shall be that every soul that will not hearken to that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people. 24 And all the prophets who have spoken, from Samuel onwards, have also announced these days. 25 You are the children of the prophets and of the covenant that God made with your fathers, saying to Abraham, [o] And in thy offspring shall all the families of the earth be blessed. 26 To you first God, raising up his Son,* has sent him to bless you, that everyone may turn from his wickedness.

CHAPTER 4.

Arrest and Release of Peter and John.
1 Now while they were speaking to the people, the priests and the officer* of the temple and the Sadducees came upon them, 2 being grieved because they were teaching the people and proclaiming in the case of Jesus the resurrection from the dead. 3 And they set hands upon them and placed them in custody till the next day; for it was already evening. 4 But many of those who had heard the word believed, and the number of the men came to be five thousand.

5 Now it came to pass on the morrow that their rulers and elders and Scribes were gathered together in Jerusalem 6 with Annas,* the high priest, and Cai-phas and John and Alexander and as many as belonged to the high priestly family. 7 And setting them in the midst, they began to inquire, "By what authority or in what name have you done this?"

8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, "Rulers of the people and elders, 9 if we are on trial today about a good work done to a cripple, as to how this man has been cured, 10 be it known to all of you and to all the people of Israel that in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom you crucified, whom God has raised from the dead, even in 3, 11: Solomon's: the colonnade running along the eastern side of the temple.

3, 12: Holiness: the Clementine Vulgate reads "ability."

3, 13: Son: the Greek word may mean either "son" or "servant"; "servant" is probably intended here because of the reference in v 18 to the "suffering servant" of Is 53, i.e., the Messias.

3, 16: Faith in Christ (in the name of Christ) is the true explanation of the miracle.

3, 18: All the prophets: the prophets as a group. The suffering is most fully described in Ps 21 (22) and in Is 53.

3, 20: In order that, etc.: in Greek, "in order that times of refreshment may come from the presence of the Lord and he may send the Christ appointed beforehand for you, Jesus." The times of refreshment are the same as the times of the restoration in the next verse. Cf 2 Pt 3, 11-13.

3, 22: As he raised up me, or "like me": both Christ and Moses were mediators between God and man; on the superiority of Christ to Moses as mediator see Heb 3, 1-6. Some Vulgate MSS read: "brethren, you shall hear him as you hear me."

3, 26: Son; cf note on Acts 3, 13.

4, 1: The officer: a priest, next in dignity to the high priest, who had general charge of the temple. Most of the priests were Sadducees, one of whose doctrines was a denial of the resurrection of the dead.

4, 6: Annas, though deposed by the Romans in favor of his son-in-law Caiphas, was still head of the high-priestly family and was probably looked upon by the Jews as the true high priest since, according to the Law, the office was held for life.

this name does he stand here before you, sound. 11 This is [p] The stone that was rejected by you, the builders, which has become the corner stone. 12 Neither is there salvation in any other. For there is no other name under heaven given to men by which we must be saved."

13 Now seeing the boldness of Peter and John, and finding that they were uneducated and ordinary* men, they began to marvel, and to recognize them as having been with Jesus. 14 And seeing the man who had been cured standing with them, they could say nothing in reply. 15 So they ordered them to withdraw from the council chamber; and they conferred together, 16 saying, "What shall we do with these men? For that indeed an evident miracle has been done by them is manifest to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it. 17 But lest it spread further among the people, let us warn them to speak no more about this name to any man." 18 And summoning them, they charged them not to speak or to teach at all in the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answered and said to them, "Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you rather than to God, decide for yourselves. 20 For we cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard." 21 But they, after threatening them, let them go, not finding any way of punishing them, because of the people; for all were glorifying* what had come to pass. 22 For the man upon whom this miraculous cure had been done was more than forty years old.

Thanksgiving. 23 Now after their dismissal, they came to their companions and reported all that the chief priests and the elders had said to them. 24 But they, when they heard it, lifted up their voice with one accord to God and said, "Lord, it is thou who didst make heaven and earth and the sea and all that is in them, 25 who didst say by the Holy Spirit through the mouth of our father David, thy servant, [q] Why did the Gentiles rage and the peoples plan vain things? 26 The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers assembled together against the Lord and against his Christ. 27 For of a truth there assembled together in this city against thy holy servant Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, Herod and Pontius Pilate with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel, 28 to do what thy hand and thy counsel decreed to be done. 29 And now, Lord, take note of their threats, and grant to thy servants to speak thy word with all boldness, 30 while thou stretchest forth thy hand to cures and signs and wonders to be wrought by the name of thy holy servant Jesus."

31 And when they had prayed, the place where they had assembled was shaken, and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and spoke the word of God with boldness.

Manner of Life of Christians. 32 Now the multitude of the believers were of one heart and one soul, and not one of them said that anything he possessed was his own, but they had all things in common.* 33 And with great power the apostles gave testimony to the resurrection of Jesus Christ our Lord; and great grace was in them all. 34 Nor was there anyone among them in want. For those who owned lands or houses would sell them and bring the price of what they sold 35 and lay it at the feet of the apostles, and distribution was made to each, according as any one had need. 36 Now Joseph, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas (which is translated Son of Consolation), a Levite and a native of Cyprus, 37 sold the field that he had, and brought the price and laid it at the feet of the apostles.

CHAPTER 5.

Ananias and Sapphira. 1 A man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a piece of land 2 and by fraud kept back part of the price of the land, with the connivance of his wife, and bringing a part only, laid it at the feet of the apostles. 3 But Peter said, "Ananias, why has Satan tempted thy heart, that thou shouldst lie

4, 13: Uneducated and ordinary: not trained in the rabbinical traditions, and having no authority to teach.

4, 21: Glorifying, etc.: in Greek, "glorifying God on account of what had come to pass." In Latin, literally, "glorifying what had been done in that which had come to pass."

4, 32: In common: as in Acts 2, 44, while they still held private property, all were ready to use it for those in want, and the more fervent went to the extent of selling their possessions in whole or in part and turning over the proceeds to a fund for the poor. That this latter practice was not obligatory or general, even in Jerusalem, is clear from the special mention of Barnabas in v 36, and from Acts 5, 4, where Ananias is reminded that he need not have sold his land, and that, if he did, he need not have given the money to the Apostles.

to the Holy Spirit and by fraud keep back part of the price of the land? 4 While it yet remained, did it not remain thine; and after it was sold, was not the money at thy disposal? Why hast thou conceived this thing in thy heart? Thou has not lied to men, but to God." 5 And Ananias, hearing these words, fell down and expired. And great fear came upon all who heard of it. 6 And the young men got up and removed him* and, carrying him out, buried him.

7 About three hours later his wife, not knowing what had happened, came in. 8 And Peter said to her, "Tell me, did you sell the land for so much?" And she said, "Yes, for so much." 9 And Peter said to her, "Why have you agreed to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? Behold the feet of those who have buried thy husband are at the door, and they will carry thee out." 10 And she fell down immediately at his feet and expired. And the young men, coming in, found her dead, and carrying her out they buried her beside her husband. 11 And great fear came upon the whole church and upon all who heard of this.

Miracles. 12 Now by the hands of the apostles many signs and wonders were done among the people. And with one accord they all would meet in Solomon's portico; 13 but of the rest,* no one dared to associate with them, yet the people made much of them. 14 And the multitude of men and women who believed in the Lord increased still more, 15 so that they carried the sick into the streets and laid them on beds and pallets that, when Peter passed, his shadow at least might fall on some of them. 16 And there came also multitudes from the towns near Jerusalem, bringing the sick and those troubled with unclean spirits, and they were all cured.

Arrest of the Apostles. 17 But the high priest rose up, and all those who were with him (that is the party of the Sadducees), and being filled with jealousy 18 seized the apostles and put them in the public prison. 19 But during the night an angel of the Lord opened the doors of the prison and led them out, and said, 20 "Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life." 21 And when they heard this, they went into the temple about daybreak and began to teach.

But the chief priest and his party came and they called together the Sanhedrin and all the elders of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought. 22 But when the officers came and, opening the prison,* did not find them there, they returned and reported, 23 saying, "The prison indeed we found securely locked, and the guards standing before the doors, but on opening it we found no one inside." 24 Now when the officer of the temple and the chief priests heard these words, they were much perplexed concerning them as to what might come of this. 25 But someone came and told them, "Behold, the men whom you put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people." 26 Then the captain went off with the officers and brought them without violence, for they feared the people lest they should be stoned.

27 And having brought them, they set them before the Sanhedrin. And the high priest questioned them, 28 saying, "We strictly charged you not to teach in this name, and behold, you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and want to bring this man's blood upon us."

29 But Peter and the apostles answered and said, "We must obey God rather than men. 30 The God of our fathers raised Jesus, whom you put to death, hanging him on a tree. 31 Him God exalted with his right hand to be Prince* and Savior, to grant repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins. 32 And we are witnesses of these things, and so is the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to all who obey him."

33 But they, when they heard this, were cut to the heart and wanted to slay them.

34 But there stood up one in the Sanhedrin, a Pharisee named Gamaliel, a teacher of the Law respected by all the people, and he ordered that the men be put outside for a little while. 35 And he said to them, "Men of Israel, take care what you are about to do to these men.

5, 13: The rest, the people: refer to the same persons, i.e., those not converted. They were afraid of the Jewish authorities.

5, 22: And, opening, etc.: in Greek, "they did not find them in the prison and, returning, they reported, saying."

5, 31: Prince: in Greek, "Author"; Christ is the Author or Founder of salvation.

36 For some time ago there rose up Theodas, claiming to be somebody, and a number of men, about four hundred, joined him; but he was slain, and all his followers were dispersed and he was brought to nothing. 37 After him rose up Judas the Galilean in the days of the census and drew some people after him; he too perished, and all his followers were scattered abroad. 38 So now I say to you, keep away from these men and let them alone. For if this plan or work is of men, it will be overthrown; 39 but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow it. Else perhaps you may find yourselves fighting even against God."

And they agreed with him, 40 and, calling in the apostles and having them scourged, they charged them not to speak in the name of Jesus, and then let them go. 41 So they departed from the presence of the Sanhedrin, rejoicing that they had been counted worthy to suffer disgrace for the name of Jesus. 42 And they did not for a single day cease teaching and preaching in the temple and from house to house the good news of Jesus as the Christ.

CHAPTER 6.

The Deacons. 1 Now in those days, as the number of the disciples was increasing, there arose a murmuring among the Hellenists* against the Hebrews that their widows were being neglected in the daily ministration. 2 So the Twelve called together the multitude of the disciples and said, "It is not desirable that we should forsake the word of God and serve at tables. 3 Therefore, brethren, select from among you seven men of good reputation, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, that we may put them in charge of this work. 4 But we will devote ourselves to prayer and to the ministry of the word." 5 And the plan met the approval of the whole multitude, and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit, and Philip and Prochorus and Nicanor and Timon and Parmenas and Nicholas, a proselyte from Antioch. 6 These they set before the apostles, and after they had prayed they laid their hands upon them. 7 And the word of the Lord continued to spread, and the number of the disciples increased rapidly in Jerusalem; a large number also of the priests accepted the faith.

Stephen's Arrest. 8 Now Stephen, full of grace and power, was working great wonders and signs among the people. 9 But there arose some from the synagogue which is called that of the Freedmen, and of the Cyrenians and of the Alexandrians and of those from Cilicia and the province of Asia, disputing with Stephen. 10 And they were not able to withstand the wisdom and the Spirit who spoke.* 11 Then they bribed men to say they had heard him speaking blasphemous words against Moses and against God.

12 And they stirred up the people and the elders and the Scribes, and, running together, they seized him and brought him to the Sanhedrin. 13 And they brought forward false witnesses to say, "This man never ceases speaking words against the Holy Place and the Law; 14 for we have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place and will change the traditions which Moses handed down to us." 15 Then all who sat in the Sanhedrin, gazing upon him, saw his face as though it were the face of an angel.

Stephen's Discourse: the Patriarchs. 1 And the high priest said, "Are these things so?"

2 Then he said, "Brethren and fathers, hear. The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he settled in Haran, 3 and said to him, [r] 'Go forth from thy country and from thy kindred, and come into the land that I will show thee.' 4 Then he went forth from the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. From there, after the death of his father, God removed him into this land where you now dwell. 5 And he gave him no property in it, not even a foot of land, but he promised 'to give it for a possession to him and to his offspring after him,' when as yet he had no son. 6 And God said, [s] His offspring shall sojourn in a strange country, and they shall enslave and oppress them four hundred years. 7 And the nation to which they have been in bondage, I will judge, said God, and afterwards they shall go forth and shall worship me in this place. 8 And [t] he gave him the covenant of circumcision, and so he begot Isaac and circumcised him on the eighth day; and Isaac begot Jacob, and Jacob the twelve patriarchs.

Joseph. 9 "Out of jealousy the patriarchs [u] sold Joseph into Egypt, but God was with him 10 and rescued him from all his tribulations, [v] and gave him favor and wisdom 'in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he made him governor over Egypt and over all his household.' 11 Now there came a famine over all Egypt and Canaan, and great tribulation, and our fathers found no food. 12 But [w] when Jacob heard that there was grain in Egypt, he sent our fathers there a first time, 13 and [x] on their second visit Joseph was recognized by his brothers, and his family became known to Pharaoh. 14 And Joseph sent for his father Jacob and all his kindred, seventy-five souls in all. 15 And [y] Jacob went down to Egypt, and he and our fathers died 16 and were taken to Sichem and laid in the tomb [z] which Abraham bought for a sum of silver from the sons of Hemor, the son of Sichem.*

Moses. 17 "Now when the time of the promise drew near that God had made to Abraham, [a] the people increased and multiplied in Egypt 18 till 'another king arose in Egypt who knew nothing of Joseph.' 19 He dealt craftily with our race and oppressed our fathers by forcing them to expose their infants so that they might not live. 20 At [b] this time Moses was born, and he was acceptable to God; he was nourished three months in his father's house, 21 and when he was exposed, Pharaoh's daughter adopted him and brought him up as her own son. 22 And Moses was instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and he was mighty in his words and in his deeds. 23 And when he was forty years old, it occurred to him to visit his brethren, the children of Israel. 24 And [c] when he had seen one of them being imposed upon, he defended him and, striking down the Egyptian, he avenged him who was being ill-treated. 25 Now, he thought that the brethren understood that by his hand God was giving them deliverance; but they did not understand. 26 The next day [d] he came across them fighting and he tried to reconcile them in peace, saying, 'Men, you are brethren; why do you injure each other?' 27 But the man who was wronging his neighbor thrust him aside, saying, 'Who has appointed thee ruler and judge over us? 28 Dost thou mean to kill me as thou didst the Egyptian yesterday?' 29 At those words Moses fled, and lived for a time in the land of Madian, where he begot two sons.

30 "When forty years had passed, [e] there appeared to him in the desert of Mount Sinai an angel in a flame of fire in a bush. 31 But when Moses saw it, he marvelled at the sight; but as he drew near to look, there came the voice of the Lord, saying, 32 'I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob.' And Moses trembled and did not dare to look. 33 Then the Lord said to him, 'Remove the sandals from thy feet, for the place where thou art standing is holy ground. 34 I have seen all the oppression of my people in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and I have come down to deliver them. And now come, I will send thee to Egypt.'

35 "This Moses whom they disowned, saying, 'Who has made thee ruler and judge?'—him God sent to be ruler and redeemer, with the help of the angel who appeared to him in the bush. 36 This is he who led them out, [f] working wonders and signs in the land of Egypt and in the Red Sea and in the desert, forty years. 37 This is the Moses who said to the children of Israel, [g] 'God will raise up to you a prophet from among your brethren, as he raised up me;* to him shall you hearken.' 38 This is he [h] who was in the assembly in the wilderness with the angel who spoke to him on Mount Sinai, and with our fathers, and he received the words of life to give to us. 39 But our fathers would not obey him, but thrust him aside and in their hearts turned back to Egypt, 40 saying to Aaron, [i] 'Make us gods to go before us. As for this Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him.' 41 And they made a calf in those days and offered sacrifice to the idol and rejoiced in the works of their own hands. 42 But God turned and gave them up to serve the host of heaven, even as it is written in the book of the Prophets: i Did you offer victims and sacrifices to me for forty years in the desert, O house of Israel? 43 Why, you took up with you the tabernacle of Moloch and the star of your god Rempham, images that you made to worship. And I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

The Temple. 44 * "Our fathers had in the desert the tent of the testimony, as God arranged when he k told Moses to make it according to the model that he had seen. 45 This tent l also our fathers inherited, and they brought it here with them when under Josue they took possession of the territory of the Gentiles that God drove out before our fathers; and it remained down to the time of David. 46 He found favor before God m and asked that he might find a dwelling place for the God of Jacob. 47 But Solomon n built him a house. 48 Yet not in houses made by hands o does the Most High dwell, even as the prophet says, 49 p The heaven is my throne, and the earth a footstool for my feet. What house will you build me, says the Lord, or what shall be the place of my resting? 50 Did not my hand make all this?

Conclusion. 51 "Stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ear, you always oppose the Holy Spirit; as your fathers did, so you do also. 52 Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? And they killed those who foretold the coming of the Just One, of whom you have now been the betrayers and murderers, 53 you who received the Law as an ordinance of angels and did not keep it."

Stephen's Martyrdom. 54 Now as they heard these things, they were cut to the heart and gnashed their teeth at him. 55 But he, being full of the Holy Spirit, looked up to heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God; 56 and he said, "Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God." 57 But they cried out with a loud voice and stopped their ears and rushed upon him all together. 58 And they cast him out of the city and stoned him. And the witnesses laid down their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul. 59 And while they were stoning Stephen he prayed and said, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." 60 And falling on his knees, he cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Lord, do not lay this sin against them." And with these words he fell asleep.* And Saul approved of his death.

CHAPTER 8.

Persecution. 1 Now there broke out on that day a great persecution against the Church in Jerusalem, and all except the apostles were scattered abroad throughout the land of Judea and Samaria. 2 And devout men took care of Stephen's burial and made great lamentation over him. 3 But Saul was harassing the Church; entering house after house, and dragging out men and women, he committed them to prison.

2. The Church in Judea and Samaria

Samaria. 4 Now those who were scattered abroad went about preaching the word. 5 And Philip* went down to the city of Samaria and preached the Christ to them. 6 And the crowds with one accord gave heed to what was said by Philip, listening to him and seeing the miracles that he worked. 7 For unclean spirits,* crying with a loud voice, went out of many possessed persons, and many paralytics and cripples were cured. 8 So there was great joy in that city.

9 Now a man named Simon had previously been practising sorcery in that city and astounding the people of Samaria, claiming to be someone great; 10 and all from least to greatest listened to him, saying, "This man is the power of God, which is called great." 11 And they gave heed to him because for a long time he had bewitched them with his sorceries. 12 But when they believed Philip as he preached* the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. 13 And Simon also himself believed, and after his baptism attached himself to Philip; and at sight of the signs and exceedingly great miracles being wrought, he was amazed.

14 Now when the apostles in Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent to them Peter and John. 15 On their arrival they prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Spirit;* 16 for as yet he had not come upon any of them, but they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. 17 Then they laid their hands on them and they received the Holy Spirit. 18 But when Simon saw that the Holy Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles' hands he offered them money, 19 saying, "Give me also this power, so that anyone on whom I lay my hands may receive the Holy Spirit."

But Peter said to him, 20 "Thy money go to destruction with thee,* because thou hast thought that the gift of God could be purchased with money. 21 Thou hast no part or lot in this matter; for thy heart is not right before God. 22 Repent therefore of this wickedness of thine and pray to God, that perhaps this thought of thy heart may be forgiven thee; 23 for I see thou art in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity." 24 But Simon answered, "Do you pray for me to the Lord, that nothing of what you have said may happen to me."

25 So they, after bearing witness and preaching the gospel of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the gospel to many Samaritan villages.

An Ethiopian. 26 But an angel of the Lord spoke to Philip, saying, "Arise and go south to the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza." (This road is desert.) 27 And he arose and went. And behold, an Ethiopian, a eunuch, a minister of queen Candace of Ethiopia, who was in charge of all her treasures, had come to Jerusalem to worship 28 and was returning, sitting in his carriage and reading the prophet Isaias. 29 And the Spirit said to Philip, "Go near and keep close to this carriage." 30 And Philip, running up, heard him reading the prophet Isaias, and he said, "Dost thou then understand what thou art reading?" 31 But he said, "Why, how can I, unless someone shows me?" And he asked Philip to get up and sit with him.

32 Now the passage of Scripture which he was reading was this: [q] He was led like a sheep to slaughter; and just as a lamb dumb before its shearer, so did he not open his mouth. 33 In humiliation his judgment was denied him; who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth. 34 And the eunuch answered Philip and said, "I pray thee, of whom is the prophet saying this? Of himself or of someone else?"

35 Then Philip opened his mouth and, beginning from this Scripture, preached Jesus to him. 36 And as they went along the road, they came to some water; and the eunuch said, "See, here is water; what is there to prevent my being baptized?" 37 [And Philip said, "If thou dost believe with all thy heart, thou mayest." And he answered, and said, "I believe Jesus Christ to be the Son of God."] 38 And he ordered the carriage to stop; and both Philip and the eunuch went down into the water, and he baptized him. 39 But when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord took Philip away, and the eunuch saw him no more, but he went on his way rejoicing. 40 But Philip was found in Azotus, and passing through he preached the gospel to all the cities till he came to Caesarea.

CHAPTER 9.

The Vision of Saul. 1 But Saul,[r] still breathing threats of slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest 2 and asked him for letters to the synagogues at Damascus, that if he found any men or women belonging to this Way,* he might bring them in bonds to Jerusalem. 3 And [s] as he went on his journey, it came to pass that he drew near to Damascus, when suddenly a light from heaven shone round about him; 4 and falling to the ground, he heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul, why dost thou persecute me?" 5 And he said,

"Who art thou, Lord?" And he said, "I am Jesus, whom thou art persecuting. [It is hard for thee to kick against the goad."
6 And he, trembling and amazed, said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" And the Lord said to him,*] "Arise and go into the city, and it will be told thee what thou must do." 7 Now the men who journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing indeed the voice, but seeing no one. 8 And Saul arose from the ground, but when his eyes were opened, he could see nothing. And leading him by the hand, they brought him into Damascus. 9 And for three days he could not see, and he neither ate nor drank.

Saul's Baptism. 10 Now there was in Damascus a certain disciple named Ananias, and the Lord said to him in a vision, "Ananias." And he said, "Here I am, Lord." 11 And the Lord said to him,
"Arise and go to the street called Straight and ask at the house of Judas for a man of Tarsus named Saul. For behold, he is praying." 12 (And he saw a man named Ananias come in and lay his hands upon him that he might recover his sight.) 13 But Ananias answered, "Lord, I have heard from many about this man, how much evil he has done to thy saints in Jerusalem. 14 And here too he has authority from the high priests to arrest all who invoke thy name." 15 But the Lord said to him, "Go, for this man is a chosen vessel to me, to carry my name among nations and kings and the children of Israel. 16 For I will show him how much he must suffer for my name."

17 So Ananias departed and entered the house, and laying his hands upon him, he said, "Brother Saul, the Lord has sent me – Jesus, who appeared to thee on thy journey – that thou mayest recover thy sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit." 18 And straightway there fell from his eyes something like scales, and he recovered his sight, and arose, and was baptized. 19 And after taking some food, he regained his strength.

Saul's Zeal. Now for some days he joined the disciples in Damascus, 20 and straightway in the synagogues he began to preach that Jesus is the Son of God.
21 And all who heard him were amazed and said, "Is not this he who used to make havoc in Jerusalem of those who called upon this name, and who has come here for the purpose of taking them in bonds to the chief priests?"

22 But Saul grew all the stronger and confounded the Jews who were living in Damascus, proving that this is the Christ.

23 But as time passed on the Jews made a plot to kill him. 24 But their plot became known to Saul. † They were even guarding the gates both day and night in order to kill him; 25 but his disciples took him by night and let him down over the wall, lowering him in a basket.

26 Now on his arrival at Jerusalem he tried to join the disciples, and they were all afraid of him, not believing that he was a disciple. 27 But Barnabas took him and brought him to the apostles, and he told them how on his journey he had seen the Lord, that the Lord had spoken to him, and how in Damascus he had acted boldly in the name of Jesus. 28 And he moved freely among them in Jerusalem, acting boldly in the name of the Lord; 29 he also spoke and disputed with the Hellenists; but they sought to kill him.
30 When the brethren got to know this, they took him down to Caesarea and sent him away to Tarsus.

Peter Visits the Churches. 31 Now throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria the Church was in peace and was being built up, walking in fear of the Lord, and it was filled with the consolation of the Holy Spirit. 32 And it came to pass that Peter, while visiting all the saints, came to those living at Lydda.
33 And he found there a certain man named Aeneas who had kept his bed eight years, being a paralytic. 34 And Peter said to him, "Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals thee; get up and make thy bed."
And straightway he got up. 35 And all who lived at Lydda and in Sharon saw him, and they turned to the Lord.

36 Now at Joppa there was a certain disciple named Tabitha (which is trans-

And all the widows stood about him weeping and showing him the tunics and cloaks which Dorcas used to make for them. 40 But Peter, putting them all out, knelt down and prayed; and turning to the body, he said, "Tabitha, arise." And she opened her eyes and, seeing Peter, she sat up. 41 Then Peter gave her his hand and raised her up; and calling the saints and the widows, he gave her back to them alive. 42 And it became known all over Joppa, and many believed in the Lord. 43 And it came to pass that he stayed some time in Joppa at the house of one Simon, a tanner.

3. Spread of the Church to the Gentiles

CHAPTER 10.

Cornelius: the Visions. 1 Now there was in Caesarea a man named Cornelius, a centurion of the cohort called Italian; 2 he was devout and God-fearing,* as was all his household, giving much alms to the people and praying to God continually. 3 About the ninth hour of the day he saw distinctly in a vision an angel of God come in to him and say to him, "Cornelius." 4 And he, gazing at him in terror, said, "What is it, Lord?" And he said to him, "Thy prayers and thy alms have gone up* and been remembered in the sight of God. 5 And now send men to Joppa and fetch one Simon, surnamed Peter; 6 he is lodging with Simon, a tanner who has a house by the seaside."* 7 When the angel who was speaking to him had departed, he called two of his servants, and a God-fearing soldier from among his personal attendants, 8 and after telling them the whole story sent them to Joppa.

9 Now the next day, while they were still on their journey and were just drawing near to the city, Peter went up to the roof to pray, about the sixth hour; 10 but he got very hungry, and wanted something to eat. But while they were getting it ready, he fell into an ecstasy, 11 and saw heaven standing open and a certain vessel coming down like a great sheet, let down by the four corners from heaven to the earth; 12 and in it were all the four-footed beasts and creeping things of the earth, and birds of the air. 13 And there came a voice to him, "Arise, Peter, kill and eat." 14 But Peter said, "Far be it from me, Lord, for never did I eat anything common or unclean." 15 And there came a voice a second time to him, "What God has cleansed, do not thou call common."* 16 Now this happened three times, and straightway the vessel was taken up into heaven.

17 Now while Peter was still wondering as to what the vision he had had might mean, behold, the men sent by Cornelius stood at the door, inquiring for Simon's house; 18 and they called out to ask whether Simon, surnamed Peter, was staying there. 19 But while Peter was pondering over the vision, the Spirit said to him, "Behold, three men are looking for thee. 20 Arise, therefore, go down and depart with them without any hesitation, for I have sent them." 21 So Peter went down to the men and said, "Behold, I am the man you are asking for; what is the reason for your coming?" 22 And they said, "Cornelius, a centurion, a just and God-fearing man, to whom the whole nation of the Jews bears witness, has been directed by a holy angel to fetch thee to his house and to hear words from thee." 23 So he invited them in and entertained them.

Peter Meets Cornelius. 24 And the next day he arose and started off with them, and certain of the brethren from Joppa accompanied him. The following day he reached Caesarea. Now Cornelius was waiting for them, having invited in his relatives and his intimate friends. 25 And as Peter entered, Cornelius met him and, falling at his feet, made obeisance to him. 26 But Peter raised him up, saying, "Get up, I myself also am a man." 27 And as he talked with him, he went in and found many assembled, [28] and he said to them, "You know it is not permissible for a Jew to associate with a foreigner or to visit him; but God has shown me that I should not call any man common or unclean; [29] therefore I came without hesitation when I was sent for. I ask, therefore, why you have sent for me."

[30] And Cornelius said, "Three days ago,* at this very hour, I was praying in my house at the ninth hour, and behold, a man stood before me in shining garments, and said, [31] 'Cornelius, thy prayer has been heard and thy alms have been remembered in the sight of God. [32] Send therefore to Joppa and call Simon, surnamed Peter; he is lodging in the house of Simon, a tanner, by the sea.' [33] Immediately therefore I sent to thee, and thou hast very kindly come. Now, therefore, we are all present in thy sight* to hear whatever has been commanded thee by the Lord."

Peter's Discourse. [34] But Peter began, and said, "Now I really understand [u] that God is not a respecter of persons, [35] but in every nation he who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him. [36] He sent his word to the children of Israel, preaching peace through Jesus Christ (who is Lord of all). [37] You know what took place throughout Judea; [v] for he began in Galilee after the baptism preached by John: [38] how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power, and he went about doing good and healing all who were in the power of the devil; for God was with him. [39] And we are witnesses of all that he did in the country of the Jews and in Jerusalem; and yet they killed him, hanging him on a tree. [40] But God raised him on the third day and caused him to be plainly seen, [41] not by all the people, but by witnesses designated beforehand by God, that is, by us, who ate and drank with him after he had risen from the dead. [42] And he charged us to preach to the people and to testify that he it is who has been appointed by God to be judge of the living and of the dead. [43] To him [w] all the prophets bear witness, that through his name all who believe in him may receive forgiveness of sins."

The Baptism. [44] While Peter was still speaking these words, the Holy Spirit came upon all who were listening to his message. [45] And the faithful of the circumcision, who had come with Peter, were amazed, because on the Gentiles also the grace of the Holy Spirit had been poured forth; [46] for they heard them speaking in tongues* and magnifying God. [47] Then Peter answered, "Can anyone refuse the water to baptize these, seeing that they have received the Holy Spirit just as we did?" [48] And he ordered them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then they besought him to stay on there a few days.

CHAPTER 11.

Explanation at Jerusalem. [1] Now the apostles and the brethren all over Judea heard that the Gentiles also had received the word of God. [2] But when Peter went up to Jerusalem, they of the circumcision found fault with him, [3] saying, "Why didst thou visit men uncircumcized and eat with them?"

[4] Then Peter began to explain the matter to them in order, saying, [5] "I was praying in the city of Joppa and while in ecstasy I had a vision, a certain vessel coming down something like a great sheet, let down from heaven by its four corners, and it came right down to me. [6] And gazing upon it, I began to observe, and I saw the four-footed creatures of the earth, and the wild beasts and the creeping things, and the birds of the air. [7] And I also heard a voice saying to me, 'Arise, Peter, kill and eat.' [8] And I said, 'By no means, Lord, for nothing common or unclean has ever entered my mouth.' [9] But the voice answered a second time, 'What God has cleansed, do not thou call common.' [10] This happened three times, and then it was all drawn up back into heaven. [11] And behold, immediately three men came to the house where I was, having been sent from Caesarea to me; [12] and the Spirit bade me not to hesitate to go with them. And these six brethren also went with me, and we entered the man's house. [13] And he told us how he had seen the angel in his house stand and say to him, 'Send to Joppa and fetch Simon, surnamed Peter; 14 he will speak to thee words by which thou shalt be saved, thou and all thy household.' 15 But when I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them, just as it did upon us at the beginning. 16 And I remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said, x 'John indeed baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit.' 17 Therefore, if God gave to them the same grace as he gave to us who believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I that I should be able to interfere with God?" 18 On hearing this they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, "Therefore to the Gentiles also God has given repentance unto life."

The Converts at Antioch. 19 Now those who had been dispersed by the persecution that had broken out over Stephen, went all the way to Phoenicia and Cyprus and Antioch, speaking the word to none except to Jews only. 20 But some of them were Cyprians and Cyreneans, who on reaching Antioch began to speak to the Greeks* also, preaching the Lord Jesus. 21 And the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed and turned to the Lord. 22 And news concerning them came to the ears of the church in Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas as far as Antioch. 23 Now when he came and saw the grace of God, he rejoiced and exhorted them all to continue in the Lord with steadfast heart; 24 for he was a good man and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith. And a great multitude was added to the Lord. 25 And he went forth to Tarsus to look for Saul, and on finding him he brought him to Antioch. 26 And for a whole year they took part in the meetings of the church and taught a great multitude. And it was in Antioch that the disciples were first called "Christians."

27 Now in those days some prophets from Jerusalem came down to Antioch, 28 and one of them named Agabus got up and revealed through the Spirit that there would be a great famine all over the world. The famine occurred in the reign of Claudius.* 29 So the disciples, each according to his means, determined to send relief to the brethren dwelling in Judea. 30 And this they did, sending it to the presbyters* by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

Conclusion: Persecution of the Church by Herod Agrippa

CHAPTER 12.

Peter in Prison. 1 Now at this time* Herod the king set hands on certain members of the Church to persecute them. 2 He killed James the brother of John with the sword, 3 and seeing that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to arrest Peter also, during the days of the Unleavened Bread.* 4 After arresting him he cast him into prison, committing the custody of him to four guards of soldiers, four in each guard, intending to bring him forth to the people after the Passover. 5 So Peter was being kept in the prison; but prayer was being made to God for him by the Church without ceasing.

His Deliverance. 6 Now when Herod was about to bring him forth, that same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains, and outside the door sentries guarded the prison. 7 And behold, an angel of the Lord stood beside him, and a light shone in the room; and he struck Peter on the side and woke him, saying, "Get up quickly." The chains dropped from his hands. 8 And the angel said to him, "Gird thyself and put on thy sandals." And he did so; and he said to him, "Wrap thy cloak about thee and follow me."

9 And he followed him out, without knowing that what was being done by the angel was real, for he thought he was having a vision. 10 They passed through the first and second guard and came to the iron gate that leads into the city; and this opened to them of its own accord. And they went out, and passed on through one street, and straightway the angel left him. 11 Then Peter

But here and in the rest of Acts, and in many of the Epistles, it designates the priests who held office as rulers of the early Church. "Presbyter" also distinguishes these priests from the Jewish "elders."

came to himself, and he said, "Now I know for certain that the Lord has sent his angel and rescued me from the power of Herod and from all that the Jewish people were expecting."

12 When he realized his situation, he went to the house of Mary, the mother of John who was surnamed Mark, where many had gathered together and were praying. 13 When he knocked at the outer door, a maid named Rhoda came to answer it. 14 And as soon as she recognized Peter's voice, in her joy she did not open the gate, but ran in and announced that Peter was standing before the gate. 15 But they said to her, "Thou art mad." But she insisted that it was so. Then they said, "It is his angel."* 16 But Peter continued knocking; and when they opened, they saw him and were amazed. 17 But he motioned to them with his hand to be quiet, and related how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, "Tell this to James* and to the brethren." And he departed, and went to another place.

Herod Punished. 18 Now when morning came, there was no little stir among the soldiers as to what had become of Peter. 19 When Herod had searched for him and had not found him, he examined the guards and ordered them to be put to death; then he went down from Judea to Caesarea and stayed there.

20 Now he was very angry with the Tyrians and Sidonians; but they came to him in a body and, having won over Blastus, the king's chamberlain, they asked for peace, because their country depended on him for its food supply.

21 So a day was fixed and on it Herod, arrayed in kingly apparel, sat in the judgment-seat and began to address them. 22 And the people shouted, "It is the voice of a god, and not of a man." 23 But immediately an angel of the Lord struck him down, because he had not given the honor to God; and he was eaten by worms, and died.

24 But the word of the Lord continued to grow and spread. 25 Now Barnabas and Saul, when they had fulfilled their mission,[y] returned from Jerusalem, taking with them John, who was surnamed Mark.

THE MISSIONARY JOURNEYS OF ST. PAUL

1. First Missionary Journey

CHAPTER 13.

Antioch. 1 Now in the church at Antioch there were prophets and teachers, among whom were Barnabas and Simon,* called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manahen the foster-brother of Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. 2 And as they were ministering* to the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Set apart for me Saul and Barnabas unto the work to which I have called them." 3 Then having fasted and prayed and laid their hands upon them,* they let them go.

Cyprus. 4 So they, sent forth by the Holy Spirit, went to Seleucia and from there sailed to Cyprus. 5 On their arrival at Salamis they began to preach the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews; and they had also John* as assistant. 6 They went, passing through the whole island as far as Paphos, and there they came across a Jewish magician and false prophet named Bar-Jesus,* 7 who was attached to the proconsul Sergius Paulus, a man of discernment. He sent for Barnabas and Saul, and sought to hear the word of God; 8 but Elymas, the sorcerer (for so his name is translated), opposed them, trying to turn away the proconsul from the faith. 9 But Saul* (also called Paul), filled with the Holy Spirit, gazed at him 10 and said, "O full of all guile and of all deceit, son of the devil, enemy of all justice, wilt thou not cease to make crooked the straight ways of the Lord? 11 And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a time." And instantly there fell upon him a mist of darkness, and he groped about for someone to lead him by the hand. 12 Then the proconsul, seeing what had happened, believed* and was astonished at the Lord's teaching.

In the Greek, Barnabas, Simon and Lucius are grouped together; Manahen and Saul are in a second group. The former are perhaps the prophets, the latter the teachers.

13, 5: John: St. Mark.

Antioch in Pisidia. 13 Putting to sea from Paphos, Paul and his companions came to Perge in Pamphylia; but John left them and returned to Jerusalem. 14 But they passed through Perge* and reached the Pisidian Antioch; and entering the synagogue on the Sabbath, they sat down. 15 After the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the rulers of the synagogue sent to them, saying, "Brethren, if you have any word of exhortation for the people, speak."

Paul's Discourse. 16 Then Paul arose, and motioning with his hand for silence, said, "Israelites and you who fear God, hearken. 17 The God of the people of Israel [z] chose our fathers and exalted the people when they were sojourners in the land of Egypt, and with uplifted arm led them forth out of it. 18 And [a] for a period of forty years he bore with their ways* in the desert, 19 and after destroying seven nations in the land of Canaan, [b] he divided their land among them by lot 20 after about four hundred and fifty years. [c] After that he gave them judges, until the time of Samuel the prophet. 21 Then they demanded [d] a king, and God gave them Saul, the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, for forty years. 22 And removing him, [e] he raised up David to be their king, and to him he bore witness and said, 'I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man after my heart, who will do all that I desire.'

23 "From his offspring, God [f] according to promise brought to Israel a Savior, Jesus; 24 John having first preached [g] before his coming a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. 25 And when John was coming to the end of his career, he would say, [h] 'I am not he whom you suppose me to be; but behold, there comes one after me, the sandals of whose feet I am not worthy to loose.' 26 Brethren, children of the race of Abraham, and all among you who fear God, to you the word of this salvation has been sent. 27 For the inhabitants of Jerusalem and its rulers, not knowing him and the utterances of the prophets which are read every Sabbath, fulfilled them by sentencing him; 28 and though they found no ground for putting him to death,[i] they asked of Pilate permission to kill him. 29 And when they had carried out all that had been written concerning him, they took him down from the tree and laid him in a tomb. 30 But [j] God raised him from the dead on the third day; and he was seen during many days by those 31 who had come up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem; and they are now witnesses for him to the people.

32 "So we now bring you the good news that the promise made to our fathers, 33 God has fulfilled to our children, in raising up Jesus, as also it is written in the second Psalm, [k] Thou art my son, this day have I begotten thee. 34 And to show that he has raised him up from the dead, never again to return to decay, he has said thus, [l] I will give you the holy and sure promises of David. 35 Because he says also in another Psalm, [m] Thou wilt not let thy Holy One undergo decay.

36 "For David, after he had in his own generation served God's purposes, fell asleep [n] and was laid among his fathers and did undergo decay; 37 but he whom God raised to life did not undergo it. 38 Be it known therefore to you, brethren, that through him forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you, 39 and in him everyone who believes is acquitted of all the things of which you could not be acquitted by the Law of Moses. 40 Beware, therefore, that what is said in the Prophets may not prove true of you, 41 [o] Behold, you despisers, then wonder and perish, because I work a work in your days, a work which you will not believe, if anyone relates it to you."

42 Now as they were going out, the people asked to have all this said to them on the following Sabbath. 43 And after the synagogue had broken up, many of the Jews and the worshipping converts went away with Paul and Barnabas, and they talked with them and urged them to hold fast to the grace of God. 44 And the next Sabbath almost the whole city gathered to hear the word of the Lord. 45 But on seeing the crowds, the Jews were filled with jealousy and contradicted what was said by Paul, and blasphemed. 46 Then Paul and Barnabas spoke out plainly: "It was necessary that the word of God should be spoken to you first, but since you reject it and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, behold, we now turn to the Gentiles. 47 For so the Lord has commanded us, p I have set thee for a light to the Gentiles, to be a means of salvation to the very ends of the earth."

48 On hearing this the Gentiles were delighted, and glorified the word of the Lord, and all who were destined for eternal life believed. 49 And the word of the Lord spread throughout the whole country. 50 But the Jews incited the worshipping women of rank and the chief men of the city, and stirred up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas and drove them from their district. 51 But they shook off q the dust of their feet in protest against them and went to Iconium. 52 And the disciples continued to be filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

CHAPTER 14.

Iconium. 1 Now it came to pass at Iconium that they went in the same way into the synagogue of the Jews and so spoke that a great multitude of Jews and of Greeks believed. 2 But the disbelieving Jews stirred up and poisoned the minds of the Gentiles against the brethren. 3 They stayed a long time, therefore, acting fearlessly in the Lord, who gave testimony to the word of his grace by permitting signs and wonders to be done by their hands. 4 But the people of the city were divided, some siding with the Jews and some with the apostles. 5 But when there was a movement on the part of the Gentiles and of the Jews with their rulers to insult and stone them, 6 hearing of it, they escaped to the Lycaonian cities, Lystra and Derbe, and the whole country round about, and there they went on preaching the gospel.

Lystra. 7 And in Lystra a certain man used to sit whose feet were crippled. He had been lame from his very birth, and had never been able to walk. 8 He listened to Paul as he spoke; when Paul, gazing at him and seeing that he had faith to be cured, 9 said with a loud voice, "Stand upright on thy feet." And he sprang up and began to walk.

10 Then the crowds, seeing what Paul had done, lifted up their voice saying in the Lycaonian language, "The gods have come down to us in the likeness of men." 11 And they called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercury, because he was the chief speaker. 12 And the priest of the Jupiter* that stood at the entrance to the city brought oxen and garlands to the gateways, and with the people would have offered sacrifice. 13 But on hearing of this, the apostles Barnabas and Paul rushed into the crowd, tearing their clothes, 14 and shouting, "Men, why are you doing this? We also are mortals, human beings like you, bringing to you the good news that you should turn from these vain things to the living God r who made heaven and earth and the sea and all things that are in them. 15 In the generations that are past he let all the nations follow their own ways; 16 and yet he did not leave himself without testimony, bestowing blessings, giving rains from heaven and fruitful seasons, filling your hearts with food and gladness." 17 And even with these words they could hardly restrain the crowds from offering sacrifice to them.

18 But some Jews arrived from Antioch and Iconium; and after winning over the crowds, they stoned Paul and dragged him outside the city, thinking that he was dead. 19 But the disciples gathered round him and he got up and re-entered the city.

Derbe; the Return. The next day he set out with Barnabas for Derbe. 20 After preaching the gospel to that city and teaching many, they returned to Lystra and Iconium and Antioch, 21 reassuring the disciples and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and reminding them that through many tribulations we must enter the kingdom of God. 22 And when they had appointed presbyters for them in each church, with prayer and fasting, they commended them to the Lord in whom they had believed. 23 Crossing Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia, 24 and after speaking the word of the Lord in Perge they went down to Attalia, 25 and [s] from there they sailed back to Antioch, where they had first been entrusted to the grace of God for the work which they had now finished. 26 On their arrival they called the church together and reported all that God had done with them, and how he had opened to the Gentiles a door of faith. 27 And they stayed no little time with the disciples.

Dissension at Antioch. 1 But some came down from Judea and began to teach the brethren, saying, "Unless you be circumcised [t] after the manner of Moses, you cannot be saved." 2 And when no little objection was made against them by Paul and Barnabas, they decided that Paul and Barnabas and certain others of them* should go up to the apostles and presbyters at Jerusalem about this question. 3 So they, sent on their way by the church, passed through Phoenicia and Samaria, relating the conversion of the Gentiles, and they caused great rejoicing among all the brethren. 4 On arriving at Jerusalem they were welcomed by the church and the apostles and the presbyters, and they proclaimed all that God had done with them. 5 But some of the Pharisees' sect, who had accepted the faith, got up and said, "They must be circumcized and also told to observe the Law of Moses."

Peter's Decision. 6 So the apostles and the presbyters had a meeting to look into this matter. 7 And after a long debate, Peter got up and said to them, [u] "Brethren, you know that in early days God made choice among us, that through my mouth the Gentiles should hear the word of the gospel and believe. 8 And God, who knows the heart, bore witness by [v] giving them the Holy Spirit just as he did to us; 9 and he made no distinction between us and them, but cleansed their hearts by faith. 10 Why then do you now try to test God by putting on the neck of the disciples a yoke which neither our fathers nor we have been able to bear?* 11 But we believe that we are saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they are."

12 Then the whole meeting quieted down and listened while Barnabas and Paul told of the great signs and wonders that God had done among the Gentiles through them.

Advice from James. 13 After these had finished speaking, James made this answer, saying, "Brethren, listen to me. 14 Simon has told how God first visited the Gentiles to take from among them a people to bear his name. 15 And with this the words of the prophets agree, as it is written, 16 [w] After these things I will return and will rebuild the tabernacle of David which has fallen down, and the ruins thereof I will rebuild, and I will set it up; 17 that the rest of mankind [x] may seek after the Lord, and all the nations upon whom my name is invoked, says the Lord, who does these things. 18 To the Lord was his own work known from the beginning of the world.

19 Therefore my judgment is not to disquiet those who from among the Gentiles are turning to the Lord; 20 but to send them written instructions to abstain from anything that has been contaminated by idols and from immorality* and from anything strangled and from blood. 21 For Moses for generations past has had his preachers in every city in the synagogues, where he is read aloud every Sabbath."*

The Decision. 22 Then the apostles and the presbyters with the whole church decided to select representatives and to send them to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas. These were Judas, surnamed Barsabbas, and Silas, leading men among the brethren. 23 They were bearers of the following letter:

"The brethren who are apostles and presbyters send greeting to the brethren of Gentile origin in Antioch and Syria and Cicilia. 24 As we have heard that some of our number have disturbed you with their teaching, unsettling your minds, persons to whom we had given no instruction, 25 we have decided, being assembled together, to select representatives and send them to you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul: 26 men who have pledged their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. 27 We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who themselves also by word of mouth will give you the same message. 28 For the Holy Spirit and we have decided to lay no further burden upon you but this indispensable one, 29 that you abstain from things sacrificed to idols and from blood and from what is strangled and from immorality; keep yourselves from these things, and you will get on well. Farewell."

30 So the delegates went down to Antioch and, gathering the community together, they delivered the letter. 31 And they, having read it, were delighted with the encouragement it gave them. 32 As Judas and Silas were themselves prophets, they exhorted the brethren with many words and strengthened them. 33 After spending some time there, they were let go by the brethren with a greeting to those who had sent them. 34 [*Silas however decided to stay there, and so Judas departed alone for Jerusalem.] 35 But Paul and Barnabas stayed on in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others.

2. Second Missionary Journey

Paul and Barnabas Separate. 36 Now some time after Paul said to Barnabas, "Let us return and visit the brethren in all the cities where we have preached the word of the Lord, to see how they are doing." 37 But Barnabas wanted to take with them John also, who was surnamed Mark. 38 But Paul asked that he, inasmuch as he had deserted them in Pamphylia instead of going on with them to their work, should not again be taken along. 39 And a sharp contention sprang up so that they separated from each other, and Barnabas took Mark and sailed for Cyprus. 40 But Paul chose Silas and set out, the brethren commending him to the grace of the Lord; 41 and he travelled through Syria and Cilicia, and strengthened the churches [*and commanded them to keep the precepts of the apostles and presbyters].

CHAPTER 16.

Timothy. 1 And he reached Derbe and Lystra. And behold, a certain disciple was there named Timothy, son of a believing Jewess, but of a Gentile father. 2 And he was highly thought of by the brethren in Lystra and Iconium. 3 This man, Paul wished to go forth with him, and he took and circumcised him on account of the Jews who were in those parts, for they all knew that his father was a Gentile. 4 And as they passed through the cities, they delivered to the brethren for their observance the decisions arrived at by the apostles and presbyters in Jerusalem. 5 So the churches grew stronger and stronger in the faith and increased in numbers daily.

Departure for Macedonia. 6 Passing through Phrygia and the Galatian country, they were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in the province of Asia.* 7 And when they came to Mysia,* they tried to get into Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus did not permit them; 8 so passing by Mysia, they went down to Troas. 9 And Paul had a vision one night; a Macedonian was standing, appealing to him and saying, "Come over into Macedonia and help us." 10 As soon as he had the vision, straightway we* made efforts to set out for Macedonia, being sure that God had called us to preach the gospel to them.

Preaching at Philippi. 11 So sailing from Troas, we ran a straight course to Samothrace, and the next day to Neapolis, 12 and thence to Philippi, the principal city* of a part of Macedonia, a Roman colony. We stayed some days in this city; 13 and on the Sabbath we went outside the gate to the bank of the river, where there seemed to be a place of prayer. And we sat down and spoke to the women who had gathered there. 14 And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple from the city of Thyatira, who worshipped God, was listening; and the Lord touched her heart to give heed to what was being said by Paul. 15 And when she and her household had been baptized, she appealed to us and said, "If you have judged me to be a believer in the Lord, come into my house and stay there." And she insisted upon our coming.

A Possessed Girl. 16 Now it came to pass as we were going to the place of prayer that a girl met us who possessed a divining spirit* and brought her masters much profit by soothsaying. 17 She followed Paul and ourselves and kept crying out, saying, "These men are servants of the most high God and they proclaim to you a way of salvation." 18 This she did for many days; until Paul, being very much grieved, turned and said to the spirit, "I order thee in the name of Jesus Christ to go out of her." And it went out that very moment.

Arrest of Paul and Silas. 19 But on seeing that their hope of profit was gone, her masters seized Paul and Silas and dragged them into the market place to the rulers; 20 and bringing them to the magistrates, they said, "These men are making a great disturbance in our city; they are Jews, 21 and are advocating practices which it is against the law for us to adopt or observe, since we are Romans." 22 And the people joined in the attack against them; and the y magistrates tore off their clothes and ordered them to be beaten with rods; 23 and after inflicting many lashes upon them they cast them into prison, charging the jailer to keep them safely. 24 On receiving such orders, he cast them into the inner prison and fastened their feet in the stocks.

25 But at midnight Paul and Silas were praying, singing the praises of God, and the prisoners were listening to them; 26 and suddenly there was such a great earthquake that the foundations of the prison were shaken. And at once all the doors flew open, and everyone's chains were unfastened. 27 And the jailer, roused out of sleep and seeing that the doors of the prison were open, drew his sword and was about to kill himself, thinking that the prisoners had escaped. 28 But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, "Do thyself no harm, for we are all here." 29 Then calling for a light, he ran in and trembling for fear fell down before Paul and Silas; 30 and bringing them out, he said, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" 31 And they said, "Believe in the Lord Jesus, and thou shalt be saved, and thy household." 32 And they spoke the word of the Lord to him and to all who were in his household. 33 And he took them at that very hour of the night and washed their wounds; and he and all his family were baptized immediately. 34 And taking them into his house, he set food before them, and rejoiced with all his household over his faith in God.

Freedom. 35 But when day came, the magistrates sent the lictors with the instructions, "Let these men go." 36 And the jailer reported these words to Paul: "The magistrates have sent word that you are to be released; now therefore come forth and go in peace." 37 But Paul said to them, "They have beaten us publicly and without trial, although we are Romans, and have cast us into prison; and now are they going to put us out secretly? By no means, but let them come themselves 38 and take us out." The lictors reported these words to the magistrates, and on hearing that they were Romans they were alarmed 39 and came and appealed to them; and taking them out, besought them to leave the city. 40 And leaving the prison they went to Lydia's house, and after seeing the brethren and encouraging them, they departed.

CHAPTER 17.

Thessalonica. 1 Now after passing through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews. 2 And Paul, as was his custom, went in to them and for three Sabbaths reasoned with them from the Scriptures; 3 explaining and showing that the Christ had to suffer and rise from the dead, and that this is the Christ, even Jesus, whom I preach to you. 4 And some of them believed and joined Paul and Silas, along with a large number of the worshipping Greeks and of the Gentiles, and not a few women of rank. 5 But the Jews, moved with jealousy, took certain base loafers, and forming a mob, set the city in an uproar. They attacked Jason's house and sought to bring them out to the people; [6] but not finding them, they dragged Jason and certain brethren before the magistrates of the city, shouting, "These men who are setting the *world in an uproar have come here too, [7] and Jason has taken them in; and they are all acting contrary to the decrees of Caesar, saying that there is another king, Jesus." [8] And they stirred up the people and the magistrates of the city who heard this; [9] and they accepted bail from Jason and the rest and then let them go.

Beroea. [10] But the brethren straightway sent Paul and Silas away by night to Beroea, and on their arrival there they went into the synagogue of the Jews. [11] Now these were of a nobler character than those of Thessalonica and they received the word with great eagerness, studying the Scriptures every day to see whether these things were so. [12] Many of them became believers, and so did no small number of prominent Gentiles, women and men. [13] But when the Jews of Thessalonica found out that in Beroea too the word of God had been preached by Paul, they came there also to stir up and excite the multitude. [14] Then straightway the brethren sent forth Paul to go as far as the sea, while Silas and Timothy remained there. [15] But those who escorted Paul took him as far as Athens, and receiving instructions from him to Silas and Timothy to rejoin him as soon as possible, they set out.

Athens. [16] Now while Paul was waiting for them at Athens, he was exasperated to see how the city was wholly given to idolatry. [17] He had discussions therefore in the synagogue with the Jews and those who worshipped God, and in the market place every day with those who were there. [18] And some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers debated with him; and some said, "What is this babbler trying to say?" But others, "He seems to be a herald of strange gods," because he proclaimed to them Jesus and the resurrection. [19] And they took him and brought him to the Areopagus,* saying, "May we know just what is this new doctrine which thou teachest? [20] For thou bringest some strange things to our ears; we wish therefore to know what these things mean." [21] (Now all the Athenians and the visitors there from abroad used to spend all their leisure telling or listening to something new*).

Paul's Discourse. [22] Then Paul stood up in the midst of the Areopagus, and said, "Men of Athens, I see that in every respect you are extremely religious.* [23] For as I was going about and observing objects of your worship, I found also an altar with this inscription: 'To the Unknown God.'* What therefore you worship in ignorance, that I proclaim to you. [24] God, [z] who made the world and all that is in it, since he is Lord of heaven and earth, does not dwell* in temples built by hands; [25] neither is he served by human hands as though he were in need of anything, since it is he who gives to all men life and breath and all things. [26] And from one man he has created the whole human race and made them live all over the face of the earth, determining their appointed times and the boundaries of their lands; [27] that they should seek God, and perhaps grope after him and find him, though he is not far from any one of us. [28] For in him we live and move and have our being, as indeed some of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring. [29] If therefore we are the offspring of God, we ought not to imagine that the Divinity is like to gold or silver or stone, to an image graven by human art and thought. [30] The times of this ignorance God has, it is true, overlooked, but now he calls upon all men everywhere to repent; [31] inasmuch as he has fixed a day on which he will judge the world with justice by a Man whom he has appointed, and whom he has guaranteed to all by raising him from the dead."

[32] Now when they heard of a resurrection of the dead, some began to sneer, but others said, "We will hear thee again on this matter." [33] So Paul went forth from among them. [34] Certain persons

CHAPTER 18.

Corinth. 1 After this he departed from Athens and came to Corinth. 2 And there he found a certain Jew named Aquila, a native of Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla, because Claudius had ordered all Jews to leave Rome. Paul visited them 3 and, as he was of the same trade, he stayed with them and he set to work; for they were tentmakers by trade. 4 And he would preach in the synagogue every Sabbath, [bringing in the name of the Lord Jesus*] and try to convince Jews and Greeks. 5 But when Silas and Timothy came from Macedonia, Paul was wholly occupied with the word, emphatically assuring the Jews that Jesus is the Christ. 6 But as they contradicted him and blasphemed, he shook his garments in protest and said to them, "Your blood be upon your own heads; I am innocent of it. Henceforth I will go to the Gentiles." 7 And he departed from there, and went into the house of a man named Titus Justus, a worshipper of God; his house adjoined the synagogue. 8 But Crispus, the president of the synagogue, believed in the Lord and so did all his household, and many of the Corinthians heard Paul, and believed, and were baptized. 9 And one night the Lord said to Paul in a vision, "Do not fear, but speak and do not keep silence; 10 because I am with thee, and no one shall attack thee or injure thee, for I have many people in this city." 11 So he settled there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

Gallio. 12 But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews made a concerted attack upon Paul and took him before the tribunal, 13 saying, "This fellow is persuading men to worship God contrary to the Law." 14 But as Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, "If there were some question of misdemeanor or serious crime, O Jews, I should with reason bear with you. 15 But if these are questions of doctrine and of titles and of your Law, look to it yourselves; I have no wish to decide such matters." 16 And he drove them from the tribunal. 17 Then they all seized Sosthenes, the president of the synagogue, and beat him in front of the tribunal; but Gallio paid no attention to it.

Return to Antioch. 18 But Paul, after staying there some time longer, took leave of the brethren and sailed for Syria with Priscilla and Aquila; at Cenchrae* he had his head shaved,[a] because of a vow he had made. 19 He arrived at Ephesus and there he left them; but he himself entered the synagogue and had a discussion with the Jews. 20 But when they besought him to stay some time longer, he did not consent, 21 but bade them farewell, saying, "I will come back to you, God willing." He put to sea from Ephesus, 22 and landing at Caesarea, he went up to Jerusalem to pay his respects to the church* and then went down to Antioch.

3. Third Missionary Journey

Return to Ephesus. 23 After spending some time there he departed, and travelled through the Galatian country and Phrygia in turn, strengthening all the disciples.

24 Now a certain Jew named Apollos, a native of Alexandria, came to Ephesus. He was an eloquent man, and mighty in the Scriptures. 25 He had been instructed in the Way of the Lord, and being fervent in spirit, used to speak and teach carefully whatever had to do with Jesus, though he knew of John's baptism only. 26 This man therefore began to speak confidently in the synagogue, and on hearing him Priscilla and Aquila took him home and expounded the Way of God to him more precisely. 27 And as he wanted to go to Achaia, the brethren encouraged him and wrote to the disciples to welcome him. On his arrival there he was of great service to those who had believed,* 28 for he vigorously refuted the Jews in public and showed from the Scriptures that Jesus is the Christ.

Perhaps this period covered the time of his stay in Corinth and was now over; the sacrifices for the ending of the vow could be offered only in Jerusalem (cf Acts 21, 24).

CHAPTER 19.

1 Now it was while Apollos was in Corinth that Paul, after passing through the upper districts, came to Ephesus and found certain disciples; 2 and he said to them, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you became believers?" But they said to him, "We have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit." 3 And he said, "How then were you baptized?"
They said, "With John's baptism." 4 Then Paul said, [b] "John baptized the people with a baptism of repentance, telling them to believe in him who was to come after him, that is, in Jesus." 5 On hearing this they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus; 6 and when Paul laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and they began to speak in tongues and to prophesy. 7 There were about twelve men in all.

8 Now for three months he used to go to the synagogue and speak confidently, holding discussions and trying to persuade them about the kingdom of God.
9 But when some were obstinate and refused to believe, speaking evil of the Way before the community, he left them and withdrew his disciples from them, and held daily discussions in the school of one Tyrannus. 10 Now this went on for two years, so that all who lived in the province of Asia, both Jews and Gentiles, heard the word of the Lord. 11 And God worked more than the usual miracles by the hand of Paul; 12 so that even handkerchiefs and aprons were carried from his body to the sick, and the diseases left them and the evil spirits went out.

13 But certain of the itinerant Jews, exorcists, also attempted to invoke the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits in them, saying, "I adjure you by the Jesus whom Paul preaches."
14 And a certain Sceva, a Jewish high priest,* had seven sons who were doing this. 15 But the evil spirit answered and said to them, "Jesus I acknowledge, and Paul I know, but who are you?" 16 And the man in whom the evil spirit was sprang at them and overpowered them both* with such violence that they fled from that house tattered and bruised.

17 And this became known to all the Jews and Gentiles living in Ephesus, and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus came to be held in high honor. 18 And many of those who believed kept coming, and openly confessed their practices. 19 And many who had practiced magical arts collected their books* and burnt them publicly; and they reckoned up the prices of them, and found the sum to be fifty thousand pieces of silver. 20 Thus mightily did the word of the Lord spread and prevail.

21 After all this, Paul resolved in the Spirit to pass through Macedonia and Achaia and to go to Jerusalem, saying,
"After I have been there, I must also see Rome." 22 So he sent two of his assistants, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, while he himself stayed on for a while in the province of Asia.

23 Now at that time there arose no small commotion about the Way. 24 For a silversmith named Demetrius, by making silver shrines of Diana, brought no small gain to the craftsmen; 25 and these he got together, along with workmen of like occupation, and said, "Men, you know that our wealth comes from this trade; 26 and you see and hear that not only at Ephesus, but almost over the whole province of Asia, this man Paul has persuaded and turned away numbers of people, saying, 'Gods made by human hands are not gods at all.' 27 And there is danger, not only that this business of ours will be discredited, but also that the temple of the great Diana will be regarded as nothing, and even the magnificence of her whom all Asia and the world worship will be on the decline." 28 On hearing this they were filled with wrath and cried out, saying, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians."

29 And the city was filled with confusion, and they rushed by a common impulse into the theatre,* dragging along the Macedonians Gaius and Aristarchus, Paul's fellow-travellers. 30 But when Paul wanted to go before the people, the disciples would not let him; 31 and some of the Asiarchs* who were friends of his,

sent to him and begged him not to venture into the theatre. 32 Meanwhile, some were shouting one thing and some another; for the assembly was in confusion, and most of them did not know why they had gathered together. 33 Then some of the crowd called upon Alexander, as the Jews were pushing him forward; and Alexander, motioning with his hand for silence, wanted to give an explanation to the people. 34 But as soon as they saw that he was a Jew, they all with one voice for about two hours shouted, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians."

35 But when the town clerk* had quieted the crowd, he said, "Men of Ephesus, what man indeed is there who does not know that the city of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great Diana and of Jupiter's offspring? 36 Since therefore this is undeniable, you ought to be calm and do nothing rash. 37 For you have brought these men here who are neither guilty of sacrilege nor blasphemers of your goddess. 38 Therefore, if Demetrius and the craftsmen with him have a complaint against anyone, court days are kept and there are proconsuls; let them take action against one another. 39 And if you require anything further, it shall be settled in the lawful assembly. 40 For we are even in danger of being accused* of riot over today's uproar, since there is no culprit whom we can hold liable for this disorderly gathering." And with these words he dismissed the assembly.

CHAPTER 20.

Macedonia and Greece. 1 Now when the tumult had ceased, Paul sent for the disciples and encouraged them; then he took leave of them and started for Macedonia. 2 After travelling through those parts and giving them much encouragement, he came to Greece. 3 When he had spent three months there and was about to sail for Syria, a plot was laid against him by the Jews; so he resolved to return through Macedonia. 4 And there accompanied him Sopater of Beroea, the son of Pyrrhus; and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus, and Gaius of Derbe, and Timothy; and of the province of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus. 5 These, having gone in advance, waited for us at Troas; 6 but we ourselves sailed from Philippi after the days of the Unleavened Bread, and five days later joined them at Troas, and there we stayed seven days.

Troas. 7 And on the first day of the week,* when we had met for the breaking of bread, Paul addressed them, as he was to leave the next morning, and he prolonged his address until midnight. 8 Now there were many lamps in the upper room where we had assembled. 9 And a young man named Eutychus, who was sitting at the window, was overcome with drowsiness and, as Paul addressed them at great length, he went fast asleep and fell down from the third story to the ground and was picked up dead. 10 Paul went down to him and laid himself upon him, and embracing him, said, "Do not be alarmed, life is still in him." 11 Then he went up and broke bread and ate, and having spoken to them a good while, even till daybreak, he departed. 12 And they took away the boy alive and were not a little comforted.

13 But we went on board the ship and sailed for Assos, intending to take Paul on board there. That was the arrangement he had made, as he intended to travel there by land. 14 So when he met us at Assos, we took him on board and came to Mitylene. 15 Sailing from there, we arrived on the following day off Chios; the next day we made Samos, and the day after we reached Miletus. 16 For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, lest he should be delayed in the province of Asia; for he was hastening to be in Jerusalem, if it were possible for him, by the day of Pentecost.

Discourse at Miletus. 17 From Miletus, however, he sent to Ephesus for the presbyters of the church; 18 and when they had come to him and were assembled,* he said to them:

"You know in what manner I have lived with you all the time since the first day that I came into the province of Asia, 19 serving the Lord with all humility and with tears and in trials that befell me because of the plots of the Jews;

20, 7: The first day of the week: Sunday had replaced the Sabbath (Saturday) as the day of worship. Breaking of bread: the Holy Eucharist, celebrated in the evening.

20, 18: And were assembled: not in the Greek.

20 how I have kept back nothing that was for your good, but have declared it to you and taught you in public and from house to house, 21 urging Jews and Gentiles to turn to God in repentance and to believe in our Lord Jesus Christ.*
22 And now, behold, I am going to Jerusalem, compelled by the Spirit, not knowing what will happen to me there; 23 except that in every city the Holy Spirit warns me, saying that imprisonment and persecution are awaiting me. 24 But I fear none of these,* nor do I count my life more precious than myself, if only I may accomplish my course and the ministry that I have received from the Lord Jesus, to bear witness to the gospel of the grace of God.

25 "And now, behold, I know that you all, among whom I went about preaching the kingdom of God, will see my face no longer.* 26 Therefore I call you to witness this day that I am innocent of the blood of all; 27 for I have not shrunk from declaring to you the whole counsel of God.
28 Take heed to yourselves and to the whole flock in which the Holy Spirit has placed you as bishops, to rule the Church of God, which he has purchased with his own blood. 29 I know that after my departure fierce wolves will get in among you, and will not spare the flock. 30 And from among your own selves men will rise speaking perverse things, to draw away the disciples after them. 31 Watch, therefore, and remember that for three years night and day I did not cease with tears to admonish every one of you.

32 "And now I commend you to God and to the word of his grace, who is able to build up and to give the inheritance among all the sanctified. 33 I have coveted no one's silver or gold or apparel. 34 You yourselves know [c] that these hands of mine have provided for my needs and those of my companions. 35 In all things I have shown you that by so toiling you ought to help the weak and remember the word of the Lord Jesus, that he himself said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

36 Having said this, he knelt down and prayed with them all. 37 And there was much weeping among them all and they fell on Paul's neck and kissed him, 38 being grieved most of all at his saying that they would no longer see his face. And they escorted him to the ship.

CHAPTER 21.

Tyre. 1 And when we had parted from them and had set sail, we made a straight course and came to Cos, and the next day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara.
2 There we found a ship crossing over to Phoenicia, and we went on board and set sail. 3 After sighting Cyprus and leaving it to the left, we sailed for Syria and landed at Tyre, for there the ship was to unload her cargo. 4 Having looked up the disciples, we stayed there seven days.
And they told* Paul through the Spirit not to go to Jerusalem. 5 But when our time was up we left there and went on, and all of them with their wives and children escorted us till we were out of the city; and we knelt down on the shore and prayed. 6 And having said farewell to one another, we went on board the ship and they returned home.

Ptolemais and Caesarea. 7 After completing the voyage from Tyre, we landed at Ptolemais where we greeted the brethren and spent a day with them. 8 The next day we departed and came to Caesarea, where [d] we went to the house of Philip the evangelist, who was one of the seven,* and stayed with him. 9 He had four daughters, virgins, who had the gift of prophecy. 10 And while we were staying on there for some days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet named Agabus. 11 Coming to us, and taking Paul's girdle, he bound his own feet and hands, and said, "Thus says the Holy Spirit: The man whose girdle this is, the Jews will bind like this at Jerusalem, and they will deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles." 12 On hearing this, we ourselves and the people there begged him not to go to Jerusalem. 13 Then Paul answered and said, "What do you mean by weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be bound but even to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus." 14 And when we could not

Jerusalem. 17 On our arrival at Jerusalem the brethren gave us a hearty welcome. 18 On the next day Paul went with us to James,* and all the presbyters came in. 19 After greeting them, he related in detail what God had done among the Gentiles through his ministry.

20 They praised God when they heard it and they said to him, "Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of believers there are among the Jews, all of them zealous upholders of the Law. 21 Now, they have heard about thee that thou dost teach the Jews who live among the Gentiles to depart from Moses, telling them they should not circumcise their children nor observe the customs. 22 What then? The multitude is sure to assemble, for they will hear that thou hast come. 23 So do what we tell thee. We have four men who are under a vow; 24 take them and sanctify thyself along with them, and pay for them [e] that they may shave their heads; and all will know that what they have heard of thee is false, but that thou thyself also observest the Law. 25 But as for the Gentile believers, [f] we ourselves have written our decision that they abstain from idol offerings and from blood and from what is strangled and from immorality."

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day after being purified along with them he entered the temple and announced the completion of the days of purification, when the sacrifice would be offered for each of them.

Paul's Arrest. 27 But when the seven days were almost over, the Jews from the province of Asia, seeing him in the temple, stirred up all the people and seized him, shouting, 28 "Men of Israel, help. This is the man who teaches all men everywhere against the people and the Law and this place, and moreover he has brought Gentiles also into the temple and has desecrated this holy place." 29 For they had seen Trophimus the Ephesian in the city with him and they supposed that Paul had taken him into the temple. 30 And the whole city was thrown into confusion, and the people ran together, and seizing Paul, they proceeded to drag him out of the temple; whereupon the doors were immediately shut.

31 They were trying to kill him, when news reached the tribune of the cohort that all Jerusalem was in a tumult. 32 And he, immediately taking soldiers and centurions, ran down to them; and when they saw the tribune and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul. 33 Then the tribune came up and seized him and ordered him to be bound with two chains, and inquired who he was and what he had been doing. 34 Some in the crowd shouted one thing, and some another, and as he could not learn anything certain on account of the tumult, he ordered him to be taken into the barracks. 35 And when he came to the steps, he was actually being carried by the soldiers owing to the violence of the crowd; 36 for the mass of the people followed, shouting, "Away with him!"

37 And as Paul was about to be taken into the barracks, he said to the tribune, "May I say something to thee?" He said, "Dost thou know Greek? 38 Art not thou the Egyptian who recently stirred up to sedition and led out into the desert the four thousand assassins?"* 39 But Paul said to him, "I am a Jew from Tarsus in Cilicia, a citizen of no insignificant city. But I beg thee, give me leave to speak to the people."

Discourse to the People. 40 He gave him leave, and Paul, standing on the steps, motioned with his hand to the people and when they had become quiet he addressed them in Hebrew,* saying:

CHAPTER 22.

1 "Brethren and fathers, listen to what I have to say to you in my defense."

2 And when they heard him speak to them in Hebrew, they became even more quiet.

3 And he said: "I am a Jew, and I was born at Tarsus in Cilicia, but was brought up here in this city, a pupil of Gamaliel, and instructed according to the strict acceptation of the Law of our fathers. I was zealous for the Law* just as all of you are today. 4 And I persecuted this Way* even to the death,[g] binding and committing to prisons both men and women, 5 as the high priest can bear me witness, and all the elders.[h] In fact I received letters from them to the brethren in Damascus, and I was on my way to arrest those who were there and bring them back to Jerusalem for punishment.

6 "And it came to pass that, as I was on my way and approaching Damascus, suddenly about noon there shone round about me a great light from heaven; 7 and I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, 'Saul, Saul, why dost thou persecute me?' 8 And I answered, 'Who art thou, Lord?' And he said to me, 'I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou art persecuting.' 9 And my companions saw indeed the light, but they did not hear the voice of him who was speaking to me. 10 And I said, 'What shall I do, Lord?' And the Lord said to me, 'Get up and go into Damascus, and there thou shalt be told of all that thou art destined to do.' 11 And as I could not see because of the dazzling light, my companions had to lead me by the hand, and so I reached Damascus.

12 "Now one Ananias, an observer of the Law, respected by all the Jews who lived there, 13 came to me and, standing beside me, said to me, 'Brother Saul, regain thy sight.' And instantly I looked at* him. 14 And he said, 'The God of our fathers has appointed thee beforehand to learn his will and to see the Just One and to hear a voice from his mouth; 15 for thou shalt be his witness before all men of what thou hast seen and heard. 16 And now why dost thou delay? Get up and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on his name.'

17 "And it came to pass that, when I had returned to Jerusalem and was praying in the temple, I was in an ecstasy 18 and saw him as he said to me, 'Make haste and go quickly out of Jerusalem, for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me.' 19 And I said, [i] 'Lord, they themselves know that I used to imprison and beat in one synagogue after another those who believed in thee; 20 and when the blood of Stephen, thy witness, was shed, [i] I was standing by and approved it, and took charge of the garments of those who killed him.' 21 And he said to me, 'Go, for to the Gentiles far away I will send thee.' "

Paul's Citizenship. 22 Now, till he said this they were listening to him, but then they lifted up their voice and shouted, "Away from the earth with such a one! for it is not right that he should live." 23 And as they were shouting and throwing off their garments and casting dust into the air, 24 the tribune ordered him to be taken into the barracks and to be scourged and tortured that he might find out why they shouted so against him.

25 But when they had bound him with the straps, Paul said to the centurion who was standing by, "Is it legal for you to scourge a Roman, and that without a trial?" 26 When the centurion heard this, he went to the tribune and reported, saying, "What art thou about to do? This man is a Roman citizen." 27 Then the tribune came and said to him, "Tell me, art thou a Roman?" And he said, "Yes." 28 And the tribune answered, "I obtained this citizenship at a great price." And Paul said, "But I am a citizen by birth." 29 At once therefore those who had been going to torture him left him; and the tribune himself was alarmed to find that Paul was a Roman citizen, and that he had bound him.

The Sanhedrin. 30 The next day, as he wished to find out the real reason why he was accused by the Jews, he loosed him and ordered the priests and all the Sanhedrin to assemble; and taking Paul forth, he placed him in front of them.

CHAPTER 23.

1 Then Paul, looking steadily at the Sanhedrin, said, "Brethren, I have conducted myself before God with a perfectly good conscience up to this day." 2 But the high priest Ananias* ordered those who were standing by him to strike him on the mouth. 3 Then Paul said to him, "God will strike thee, thou white-washed wall.* Dost thou sit there to try me by the Law, and in violation of the Law order me to be struck?" 4 But the bystanders said, "Dost thou insult God's high priest?" 5 And Paul said, "I did not know, brethren, that he was the high priest; for it is written, [k] Thou shalt not speak evil of a ruler of thy people."

6 Then Paul, knowing that part of them were Sadducees and part of them Pharisees, cried out in the Sanhedrin, "Brethren, [l] I am a Pharisee, the son of Pharisees; it is about the hope* and the resurrection of the dead that I am on trial." 7 And when he said that, there arose a dispute between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and the multitude was divided. 8 For the Sadducees [m] say that there is no resurrection, and that there are no angels or spirits, whereas the Pharisees believe in both.* 9 So there was a great uproar, and some of the Pharisees* got up and began to insist, saying, "We find no evil in this man; what if a spirit has really spoken to him, or an angel?" 10 And as the dispute was becoming violent, the tribune, fearing lest Paul should be torn to pieces by them, ordered the soldiers to come down and take him by force from among them and bring him into the barracks. 11 But on the following night the Lord stood by him and said, "Be steadfast; for just as thou hast borne witness to me in Jerusalem, bear witness in Rome also."

A Conspiracy. 12 Now when day broke, some Jews assembled and bound themselves under a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul. 13 There were more than forty that had made this conspiracy; 14 and they went to the chief priests and the elders and said, "We have bound ourselves under a great curse to taste nothing until we have killed Paul. 15 Now therefore do you, with the Sanhedrin, suggest to the tribune that he bring him to you as though you mean to look into his case more carefully; but we are ready to kill him before he gets here."

16 Now the son of Paul's sister heard of the ambush, and he came and entered the barracks and told Paul. 17 Paul called one of the centurions to him and said, "Take this young man to the tribune, for he has something to report to him." 18 So he took him and brought him to the tribune and said, "The prisoner Paul called me and asked me to bring this young man to thee, for he has something to say to thee." 19 So the tribune took him by the hand, and going aside with him, asked him, "What is it that thou hast to tell me?" 20 And he said, "The Jews have agreed to ask thee to bring Paul to the Sanhedrin tomorrow, on the plea that they intend to have a more thorough investigation made into his case. 21 But do not believe them; for more than forty of them are lying in wait for him, having bound themselves under a curse not to eat or drink until they have killed him; and they are now ready, only waiting for thy promise."

To Caesarea. 22 The tribune therefore let the young man go, charging him not to divulge to anyone that he had given him this information. 23 Then he called two centurions and said to them, "Get ready by the third hour of the night two hundred soldiers to go as far as Caesarea, and seventy cavalry and two hundred spearmen; 24 and provide beasts to mount Paul and take him in safety to Felix the governor." 25 [*For he was afraid that the Jews might seize him by force and kill him, and he himself should afterwards be slandered, as though he intended to receive money.]

26 And he wrote a letter in these terms: "Claudius Lysias to His Excellency Felix the governor, greeting. 27 Whereas this man had been seized by the Jews and was on the point of being killed by them, I came on them with the troops and rescued him, having learnt that he was a Roman. 28 And wishing to know what charge they had preferred against him, I took him down into their Sanhedrin. 29 I found him accused about questions of their Law, but not of any crime deserving of death or imprisonment. 30 And when I was told of an ambush which they had prepared for him, I sent him to thee, directing his accusers also to state the case before thee. Farewell."

31 So the soldiers, in accordance with their instructions, took Paul and conducted him by night to Antipatris; 32 and the next day they returned to the barracks, leaving the cavalry to go on with him. 33 When they reached Caesarea, they delivered the letter to the governor and also handed Paul over to him. 34 On reading it he asked from what province he was; and learning that he was from Cilicia, 35 "I will hear thee," he said,
"when thy accusers have come." And he ordered him to be kept in Herod's palace.

CHAPTER 24.

The Accusation. 1 Now five days later the high priest Ananias came down with some of the elders and one Tertullus, an attorney; and they presented their case against Paul before the governor. 2 When Paul had been summoned, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying:

"Whereas we live in much peace through thee, and whereas many reforms are in progress by thy foresight, 3 we always and everywhere receive them, most excellent Felix, with all thankfulness. 4 But not to detain thee too long,
I entreat thee to be kind enough to grant us a brief hearing. 5 We have found this man a pest, and a promoter of seditions among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sedition of the* Nazarene sect. 6 He even tried to desecrate the temple, but we caught him [*and wished to judge him according to our Law. 7 But Lysias, the tribune, came upon us and with great violence took him away out of our hands, 8 ordering his accusers to come to thee]. By examining him thyself, thou wilt be able to discover all these things we charge him with." 9 And the Jews also supported the charge, saying that this was so.

The Defense. 10 Then when the governor nodded to him to speak, Paul answered, "As I know that for many years thou hast been a judge for this nation, I shall answer for myself with good courage. 11 For thou canst take as certain that it is not more than twelve days since I went up to worship in Jerusalem; 12 and neither in the temple did they find me disputing with anyone or creating a disturbance among the people, nor in the synagogues, 13 nor about the city; neither can they prove to thee the charges that they now make against me. 14 But this I admit to thee, that according to the Way, which they call a sect, so I serve the God of my fathers; believing all things that are written in the Law and the Prophets, 15 having a hope* in God which these men themselves also look for, that there is to be a resurrection of the just and unjust; 16 and in this* I too strive always to have a clear conscience before God and before men.

17 "Now after several years I came to bring alms to my nation and to offer sacrifice and fulfill vows;* 18 in which n they found me engaged in the temple, after having been purified, with no crowd or disturbance at all. 19 But there were some Jews from the province of Asia, who ought to have been here before thee and to have presented their charges, if they had any, against me; 20 or else let these men themselves say what they found wrong in me when I stood before the Sanhedrin, 21 unless it be for the one thing I shouted out as I stood among them, o 'It is about the resurrection of the dead that I am being judged by you this day.'"

The Prisoner. 22 Felix, however, having precise information about the Way, adjourned the trial, saying, "When Lysias the tribune comes down, I will decide your case." 23 And he instructed the cen-turion to keep Paul in custody but to allow him some liberty, and not to prevent any of his friends from looking after him.

24 Now some days later, Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was a Jewess, and sent for Paul and heard what he had to say about the faith in Christ Jesus.
25 But as he talked of justice and chastity and the judgment to come, Felix became alarmed and answered, "For the present go thy way; but when I get an opportunity, I will send for thee." 26 At the same time he was hoping that money would be given him by Paul, and for this reason he would send for him often and talk with him. 27 But after two years Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus; and as he wanted to ingratiate himself with the Jews, Felix left Paul in prison.

CHAPTER 25.

Festus. 1 Festus accordingly entered his province, and three days afterwards he went up from Caesarea to Jerusalem. 2 And the chief priests and Jewish leaders presented their charges against Paul, and begged him, 3 asking it as a favor against Paul, that he would have him fetched to Jerusalem. Meanwhile they were laying an ambush to kill him on the way. 4 But Festus answered that Paul was being kept in custody at Caesarea and that he himself would be going there shortly. 5 "Let, therefore, your influential men go down with me," he said, "and if there is anything wrong with the man, let them present charges against him."

6 After staying among them not more than eight or ten days, he went down to Caesarea, and the next day he took his seat on the tribunal and ordered Paul brought in. 7 And when he was fetched, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem surrounded him and brought many serious charges against him, which they were unable to prove. 8 Paul said in his own defense, "Neither against the Law of the Jews nor against the temple nor against Caesar have I committed any offense." 9 But Festus, wishing to do the Jews a favor, answered Paul and said, "Art thou willing to go up to Jerusalem and be tried there before me on these charges?"

10 But Paul said, "I am standing at the tribunal of Caesar; there I ought to be tried. To Jews I have done no wrong, as thou thyself very well knowest. 11 For if I have done any wrong or committed a crime deserving of death, I do not refuse to die. But if there is no ground to their charges against me, no one can give me up to them; I appeal to Caesar."* 12 Then Festus, after conferring with the council, answered, "Thou hast appealed to Caesar; to Caesar thou shalt go."

Agrippa. 13 And after an interval of some days, King Agrippa* and Bernice came to Caesarea to pay their respects to Festus. 14 And as they were staying there several days, Festus laid Paul's case before the king, saying, "There is a certain man left a prisoner by Felix, 15 and when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and elders of the Jews presented their case against him, and asked for his conviction. 16 But I told them that Romans are not accustomed to give any man up before the accused has met his accusers face to face and has been given a chance to defend himself against the charges. 17 Therefore, when they had assembled here, I lost no time, but on the following day took my seat on the tribunal and ordered the man to be brought in. 18 But when his accusers got up, they did not charge him with any of the crimes that I had expected. 19 But they had against him certain questions about their own religion and about a certain Jesus, who had died, but who Paul affirmed was alive. 20 Being at a loss as to how to investigate such matters, I asked him if he was willing to go to Jerusalem and be tried on these charges there. 21 But when Paul entered an appeal to have his case reserved for the decision of Augustus,* I ordered him kept in custody till I could send him to Caesar." 22 And Agrippa said to Festus, "I myself also could have wished to hear the man." "Tomorrow," said he, "thou shalt hear him."

23 So the next day Agrippa and Bernice came with great pomp and entered the audience hall with the tribunes and principal men of the city, and by order of Festus Paul was brought in. 24 And Festus said, "King Agrippa and all men here present with us, you see this man about whom the whole multitude of the Jews pleaded with me at Jerusalem and here, insisting and crying out that he ought not to live any longer. 25 But I, for my part, found that he had done nothing deserving of death. But as he himself made the appeal, I decided to send him to Augustus. 26 Still I have nothing definite to write to my lord about him. So I have brought him forth before you, and especially before thee, King Agrippa, that after an examination of him has been made I may have something to put in writing. 27 For it seems to me unreasonable to send a prisoner without stating the charges against him."

CHAPTER 26.

Paul's Discourse. 1 Then Agrippa said to Paul, "Thou art permitted to speak for thyself." Then Paul stretched forth his hand, and began his defense.

2 "I think myself fortunate, King Agrippa, that I am to defend myself today before thee against all the accusations of the Jews, 3 especially as thou art well acquainted with all the Jewish customs and controversies; I beg thee therefore to listen to me with patience.

4 "My life, then, from my youth up, the early part of which was spent among my own nation and at Jerusalem, all the Jews know; 5 for they have long known me, if only they are willing to give evidence, that according to the strictest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee. 6 And now for the hope in the promise made by God to our fathers I am standing trial; 7 to which promise our twelve tribes hope to attain as they worship night and day; and it is about this hope, O king, that I am accused by the Jews. 8 Why is it deemed incredible with you if God does raise the dead?

9 "And I then thought it my duty to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth. 10 And this [p] I did in Jerusalem; and many of the saints I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief priests to do so; and when they were put to death, I cast my vote against them; 11 and oftentimes in all the synagogues I punished them and tried to force them to blaspheme; and in my extreme rage against them I even pursued them to foreign cities.

12 "But while I was journeying on this business to Damascus [q] with authority and permission from the chief priests, 13 at midday, O king, I saw on the way a light from heaven brighter than the sunshine round about me and my companions. 14 We all fell to the ground, and I heard a voice saying to me in Hebrew, 'Saul, Saul, why dost thou persecute me? It is hard* for thee to kick against the goad,' 15 And I said, 'Who art thou, Lord?' And the Lord said, 'I am Jesus, whom thou art persecuting. 16 But rise and stand upon thy feet; for I have appeared to thee for this purpose, to appoint thee to be a minister and a witness to what thou hast seen, and to the visions thou shalt have of me; 17 delivering thee from the people and from the nations, to whom I am now sending thee, 18 to open their eyes that they may turn from darkness to light and from the dominion of Satan to God; that they may receive forgiveness of sins and an inheritance among those sanctified by faith in me.'

19 "Therefore, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision; 20 but first [r] to the people of Damascus and Jerusalem, and then all over Judea and to the Gentiles, I set about declaring that they should repent and turn to God, doing works befitting their repentance. 21 This is why the Jews seized me in the temple [s] and tried to kill me. 22 But aided to this day by the help of God, I stand here to testify to both high and low, saying nothing beyond what the Prophets and Moses said would come to pass: 23 that the Christ was to suffer, that he first by his resurrection from the dead was to proclaim light to the people and to the Gentiles."

The Result. 24 While he was saying this in his defense, Festus said with a loud voice, "Paul, thou art mad; thy great learning is driving thee to madness." 25 "I am not mad, excellent Festus," said Paul, "but I speak words of sober truth. 26 For the king knows about these things and to him also I speak without hesitation. For I am sure that none of these things escaped him; for none of them happened in a corner. 27 Dost thou believe the prophets, King Agrippa? I know that thou dost." 28 But Agrippa said to Paul, *"In a short while thou wouldst persuade me to become a Christian." 29 And Paul answered, "I would to God that, whether it be long or short, not only thou but also all who hear me today might become such as I am, except for these chains." 30 Then the king arose and the governor and Bernice, and those who had sat with them; 31 and after withdrawing they kept talking the matter over together, saying, "This man has done nothing to deserve death or imprisonment." 32 And Agrippa said to Festus,

5. Imprisonment in Rome

CHAPTER 27.

Departure for Rome. 1 Now when it was decided that he should sail* for Italy, and that Paul, with the other prisoners, should be turned over to a centurion named Julius, of the Augustan cohort, 2 we went on board [t] a ship of Adrumythium which was bound for the ports of the province of Asia, and set sail; Aristarchus, a Macedonian from Thessalonica, being one of our party.

3 The next day we reached Sidon and Julius treated Paul kindly, allowing him to go to his friends and receive attention. 4 And putting to sea from there, we passed under the lee of Cyprus, as the winds were against us, 5 and sailing over the sea that lies off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we reached Myra* in Lycia. 6 There the centurion found a ship of Alexandria bound for Italy and put us on board her.

7 For many days we made slow progress and had difficulty in arriving off Cnidus. Then as the wind kept us from going on, we sailed under the lee of Crete off Salmone, 8 and coasting along it with difficulty we came to a place called Fair Havens, near the town of Thalassa.*

9 But as much time had been spent the navigation was now unsafe, for the Fast* was already over. Paul began to admonish them, 10 saying to them, "Men, I see that this voyage is threatening to bring disaster and heavy loss, not only to the cargo and the ship, but to our lives also." 11 But the centurion gave more heed to the pilot and the captain than to what Paul had to say; 12 and as the harbor was unsuitable for wintering in, the majority favored sailing from there to try whether they could get to Phoenis, a harbor in Crete facing southwest and northwest, to winter there. 13 So when a light south wind sprang up, thinking they had secured their object, they weighed anchor* and ran close along the coast of Crete.

A Storm. 14 But not long afterwards a violent wind called Euroaquilo* burst against it; 15 and when the ship was caught in it and could not face the wind, we gave way and were driven along. 16 We ran under the lee of a small island called Cauda, where we managed with difficulty to secure the boat; 17 after hoisting it on board, they used supports to undergird the ship, and as they were afraid of being driven on the Syrtis quicksands, they lowered the mainsail and so were driven along. 18 As we were being tossed about by the violence of the storm, the next day they threw some of the cargo overboard; 19 and on the third day with their own hands they threw the ship's gear overboard. 20 As neither sun nor stars were visible for many days and no small storm was raging, all hope of our being saved was in consequence given up.

21 Then, when they had eaten nothing for a long time, Paul got up in the midst of them and said, "Men, you should indeed have listened to me and not have sailed from Crete, thus sparing yourselves this disaster and loss. 22 And now I beg you to be of good cheer, for there will be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship. 23 For last night an angel of the God I belong to and serve, stood by me, 24 saying, 'Do not be afraid, Paul; thou must stand before Caesar; and behold, God has granted thee all who are sailing with thee.' 25 So, men, be of good cheer; for I have faith in God that it will be as it has been told me. 26 But we are to reach a certain island."

Shipwreck. 27 It was the fourteenth night, and we were sailing in the Adria, when about midnight the sailors began to suspect that they were drawing near to some land. 28 On taking soundings, they found twenty fathoms, and a little further on they found fifteen; 29 then fearing that we might go on the rocks, they dropped four anchors from the stern and longed for daylight. 30 But as the sailors were trying to escape from the ship and had lowered the boat into the sea, pretending that they were going to cast anchors from the bow, 31 Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, "Unless these men remain in the ship, you cannot be saved." 32 Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat and let her drift off.

33 And when it began to grow light,
Paul begged them all to take food, saying, "This is the fourteenth day that you have been constantly on the watch and fasting, without taking anything to eat.
34 So I beg you to take some food for your safety; for not a hair from the head of any one of you shall perish." 35 With these words he took bread and gave thanks to God before them all and broke it and began to eat. 36 Then all became more cheerful and took food themselves.
37 Now, we were in all two hundred and seventy-six souls on board. 38 And after eating their fill, they proceeded to lighten the ship by throwing the wheat into the sea.

39 When day broke they could not make out the land; but they noticed a bay with a beach, and they proposed to run the ship ashore there if they could.
40 So they slipped the anchors and committed themselves to the sea,* at the same time unlashing the fastenings of the rudders; and hoisting the foresail to the breeze, they made for the beach. 41 But we struck a place open to two seas, and they ran the ship aground. The prow stuck fast and remained immovable, but the stern began to break up under the violence of the sea. 42 Now the soldiers planned to kill the prisoners lest any of them should swim ashore and escape, 43 but the centurion, wishing to save Paul, put a stop to their plan. He ordered those who could swim to jump overboard first and get to land, 44 and they brought the rest in, some on planks and others on various pieces from the ship. And so it came to pass that all got safely to land.

CHAPTER 28.

Malta. 1 After our escape we learned that the island was called Malta. 2 And the natives showed us no little kindness, for they kindled a fire and refreshed us all because of the rain that had set in, and the cold. 3 Now Paul gathered a bundle of sticks and laid them on the fire, when a viper came out because of the heat and fastened on his hand. 4 When the natives saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said to one another, "Surely this man is a murderer, for though he has escaped the sea, Justice* does not let him live." 5 But he shook off the creature into the fire and suffered no harm. 6 Now they were expecting that he would swell up and suddenly fall down and die; but after waiting a long time and seeing no harm come to him, they changed their minds and said that he was a god.

7 Now in the vicinity there were estates belonging to the head man of the island, whose name was Publius, and he received us and entertained us hospitably for three days. 8 And it happened that the father of Publius was laid up with fever and dysentery; but Paul went in, and after praying and laying his hands on him, he healed him. 9 After this all the sick on the island came and were cured; 10 and they honored us with many marks of honor, and when we sailed, they provided us with such things as we needed.

To Rome. 11 We set sail after three months in an Alexandrian ship with the Twins* on her figurehead, which had wintered at the island. 12 We put in at Syracuse, and stayed there three days.
13 Then, following the coast, we reached Rhegium; and one day later a south wind sprang up, and on the second day we arrived at Puteoli, 14 where we found brethren and were entreated to stay with them seven days; and so we came to Rome. 15 And the brethren there, having had news of us, came as far as the Market of Appius and the Three Taverns; and when Paul saw them, he gave thanks to God and took courage. 16 On our arrival at Rome, Paul was given permission to live by himself with a soldier to guard him.

At Rome. 17 Three days later he called together the leading Jews, and when they had assembled he said to them,
"Brethren, although I have done nothing against the people or against the customs of our fathers, yet I was handed over to the Romans as a prisoner from Jerusalem. 18 After an examination they were ready to release me, since I was innocent of any crime that deserved death; 19 but as the Jews objected, I was forced to appeal to Caesar—not that I had any charge to bring against my nation. This, then, is why I asked to see you and speak with you. 20 For it is because of the hope of Israel that I am wearing this chain." 21 But they said to him, "We ourselves have received no letters about thee from Judea, and none of the brethren, upon arrival, has reported or spoken any evil of thee. 22 But we want to hear from thee what thy views are; for as regards this sect, we know that everywhere it is spoken against."

23 So they fixed a day, and very many came to him at his lodging; and to them he explained the matter, bearing witness to the kingdom of God and trying from morning till evening to convince them concerning Jesus from the Law of Moses and from the Prophets. 24 And some believed what was said; and some disbelieved; 25 and as they could not agree among themselves, they began to depart, when Paul added this one word: "Well did the Holy Spirit speak through Isaias the prophet to our* fathers, 26 saying, "Go to this people and say: With the ear you will hear and will not understand; and seeing you will see and will not perceive. 27 For the heart of this people has been hardened, and with their ears they have been hard of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest perhaps they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted, and I heal them. 28 Be it known to you therefore that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles, and they will listen to it." 29 [*When he had said this, the Jews departed, having much argument among themselves.]

30 And for two full years he remained in his own hired lodging; and he welcomed all who came to him, 31 preaching the kingdom of God and teaching about the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness and unhindered. Amen.

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE

St. Paul was born at Tarsus, Cilicia, of Jewish parents who were descended from the tribe of Benjamin (Acts 9, 11; 21, 39; 22, 3). He was a Roman citizen from birth (Acts 22, 27f). As he was "a young man" at the stoning of St. Stephen (Acts 7, 58) and calls himself "an old man" when writing to Philemon (v 9), about the year 63, we may conclude that he was born around the beginning of the Christian era.

In his youth Paul acquired a threefold education. First, he learned the Greek language in his Tarsian environment, as is evident from his later skill in writing his Epistles. Secondly, his father probably initiated him into his own trade, which was that of tentmaking, and thus Paul during his apostolic labors was able to defray the cost of his food and lodging by the work of his own hands (Acts 18, 3; 1 Cor 4, 12; 1 Thes 2, 9; 2 Thes 3, 8). Thirdly, in his father's house at Tarsus his education was strongly Pharisaic (Acts 23, 6). To complete his schooling Paul was sent to Jerusalem, where he sat at the feet of the learned Gamaliel and was educated in the strict observance of the ancestral Law (Acts 22, 3). Here he also acquired a good knowledge of exegesis and was trained in the practice of disputation. As a convinced and zealous Pharisee he returned to Tarsus before the public life of Christ opened in Palestine, for he never refers to personal acquaintance with Christ during the Savior's mortal life.

Some time after the death of our Lord Paul returned to Palestine. His profound conviction and emotional character made his zeal develop into a religious fanaticism against the infant Church. He took part in the stoning of the first martyr, St. Stephen, and in the fierce persecution of the Christians that followed.

Entrusted with a formal mission from the high priest, he departed for Damascus to arrest the Christians there and bring them bound to Jerusalem. As he was nearing Damascus, about noon, a light from heaven suddenly blazed round him. Jesus with His glorified body appeared to him and addressed him, turning him away from his apparently successful career. An immediate transformation was wrought in the soul of Paul. He was suddenly converted to the Christian faith and arose an Apostle (Acts 9, 3-19; 22, 6-16; 26, 12-18).

He remained some days in Damascus after his Baptism (Acts 9, 10-19), and then went to Arabia (Gal 1, 17), possibly for a year or two, to prepare himself for his future missionary activity. Having returned to Damascus, he stayed there for a time, preaching in the synagogues, that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. For this he incurred the hatred of the Jews, and had to flee from the city (Acts 9, 23-25; 2 Cor 11, 32f). He then went to Jerusalem to see Peter (Gal 1, 18), to pay his homage to the head of the Church. Later he went back to his native Tarsus (Acts 9, 30) and began to evangelize his own province (Gal 1, 21) until called by Barnabas to Antioch (Acts 11, 25). After one year, on the occasion of a famine, both Barnabas and Paul were sent with alms to the poor Christian community at Jerusalem (Acts 11, 27-30). Having fulfilled their mission, they returned to Antioch (Acts 12, 25).

Soon after this Paul and Barnabas made the first missionary journey (44/45-49/50 A.D.), visiting the island of Cyprus, then Pamphylia, Pisidia and Lycaonia, all in Asia Minor, and establishing churches at Pisidian Antioch, Iconium, Lystra and Derbe (Acts 13—14).

After the Apostolic Council of Jerusalem Paul, accompanied by Silas and later also by Timothy and Luke, made his second missionary journey (50-52/53 A.D.), first revisiting the churches previously established by him in Asia Minor and then passing through Galatia (Acts 16, 6). At Troas a vision of a Macedonian was had by Paul, which impressed him as a call from God to evangelize Macedonia. He accordingly sailed for Europe, and preached the Gospel in Philippi, Thessalonica, Beroea, Athens and Corinth. Then he returned to Antioch by way of Ephesus and Jerusalem (Acts 15, 36—18, 22).

On his third missionary journey (53 /54-58 A.D.) Paul visited nearly the same regions as on the second, but made Ephesus, where he remained nearly three years, the center of his missionary activity. He laid plans also for another missionary journey, intending to leave Jerusalem for Rome and Spain. But persecutions by the Jews hindered him from accomplishing his purpose. After two years of imprisonment at Caesarea he finally reached Rome, where he was kept another two years in chains (Acts 18, 23—28, 31).

The Acts of the Apostles gives us no further information on the life of the Apostle. We gather, however, from the Pastoral Epistles and from tradition that at the end of the two years St. Paul was released from his Roman imprisonment, and then travelled to Spain (Rom 15, 24. 28), later to the East again, and then back to Rome, where he was imprisoned a second time, and in the year 67 was beheaded.

St. Paul's untiring interest in and paternal affection for the various churches established by him have given us fourteen canonical Epistles. It is, however, quite certain that he wrote other letters which are no longer extant.

These Epistles are not arranged in our Bible according to chronological order. In the first place are given the Epistles addressed to communities, according to the relative dignity of the church receiving the Epistle, and the length of the subject-matter; in the second place we have those addressed to individuals; and finally, the Epistle to the Hebrews.

All of the Epistles were written in Greek. Though St. Paul on occasion could speak that language with grace, he did not strive after literary elegance in his compositions. Because of the pressure of his work and cares, he usually dictated his Epistles and wrote the final salutation with his own hand (Rom 16, 22; 1 Cor 16, 21; Gal 6, 11; 2 Thes 3, 17). At times his thoughts are so overflowing and forceful that the rules of grammar and style are neglected. As a consequence, a mode of expression or an entire sentence is now and then difficult or obscure for us (2 Pt 3, 16).

And yet, in spite of these grammatical faults and irregularities of style, no one can read the Epistles of St. Paul without being amazed at his natural eloquence. St. Jerome remarks that the words of Apostle Paul seem to him like peals of thunder. His mental acumen and depth of feeling impart to his language loftiness, amazing power and beauty.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL
THE APOSTLE TO THE ROMANS

St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans is given the position of honor at the head of all the New Testament Epistles. It was written at Corinth during the winter 57-58 A.D., at the close of St. Paul's third missionary journey, prior to his voyage to Jerusalem, where at the instigation of his bitter Jewish adversaries he was to be arrested and afterwards held prisoner for several years. This date for the composition of the Epistle is arrived at by comparing the circumstances and persons to which it alludes with those at Corinth during St. Paul's sojourn there at the close of his third missionary journey.

St. Paul during this period of his missionary activity had rather thoroughly covered the territory in the eastern world, and was looking for new fields to evangelize in the West. He purposed, accordingly, after visiting Jerusalem, to journey to Spain, stopping en route at Rome. In this letter he wished to inform the Romans of his intended visit and to set before them the fruits of his meditations on the great religious question of the day, justification by faith and the relation of this new system of salvation to the Mosaic religion. Although he had previously dealt briefly with the question in the Epistle to the Galatians, St. Paul had not thus far had the opportunity of fully developing in writing his doctrine on this point. But now wishing to introduce himself to the Romans, he seized the opportunity of setting forth a lengthy statement and defense of his doctrine, not only for the Romans but also for the various Christian communities throughout the world.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, the servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, set apart for the gospel* of God, 2 which he had promised beforehand through his prophets in the holy Scriptures, 3 concerning his Son who was born to him according to the flesh of the offspring of David; 4 who was foreordained* Son of God by an act of power in keeping with the holiness of his spirit, by resurrection from the dead, Jesus Christ our Lord, 5 through whom we have received the grace of apostleship to bring about obedience to faith among all the nations for his name's sake; 6 among whom are you also called to be Jesus Christ's—7 to all God's beloved who are in Rome, called to be saints; grace be to you and peace from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Commendation and Desire to Visit Them. 8 First I give thanks to my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because your faith is proclaimed all over the world. 9 For God is my witness, whom I serve in my spirit in the gospel of his Son, how unceasingly I make mention of you, 10 always imploring in my prayers that somehow I may at last by God's will come to you after a safe journey. 11 For I long to see you that I may impart some spiritual grace unto you to strengthen you, 12 that is, that among you I may be comforted together with you by that faith which is common to us both, yours and mine.

Why He Wishes to Visit Them. 13 Now I would not, brethren, have you ignorant, that I have often intended to come to see you (and have been hindered until now) that I may produce some results among you also, as well as among the rest of the Gentiles. 14 To Greeks and to foreigners, to learned and unlearned, I am debtor; 15 so, for my part, I am ready to preach the gospel to you also who are at Rome.

Theme of the Epistle. 16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone who believes, to Jew first and then to Greek.

1, 1. 9. 16: In vv 2 and 9, "gospel" means the work of evangelizing or preaching the gospel. In v 16 it means the whole economy of salvation in Christ, doctrine and sacramental system included.

1, 4: Foreordained: in the Greek, "constituted" or "manifested." Jesus Christ was from all eternity the real Son of God according to His divine nature. When He became man, the glory of this nature was hidden away from men in the human nature which He had assumed. "He emptied himself" of that divine glory, in the words of St. Paul (Phil 2, 7). But from the moment of His Resurrection the process of His glorification in His human nature was begun, and culminated in His Ascension into heaven, where at the right hand of God the Father He was constituted (manifested) Son of God in power in that very human nature in which, during His sojourn on earth, He had appeared to men weak and lowly. Jesus Christ our Lord: these words are in apposition with his Son, at the beginning of v 3.

17 For in it the justice of God* is revealed, from faith unto faith, as it is written,
[a] He who is just lives by faith.

I: DOCTRINAL

THE GOSPEL: THE POWER OF GOD FOR THE SALVATION OF ALL WHO BELIEVE

1. Humanity Without Christ

The Pagans Adore Idols. 18 For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and wickedness of those men who in wickedness hold back the truth of God, 19 seeing that what may be known about God is manifest to them. For God has manifested it to them. 20 For since the creation of the world his invisible attributes are clearly seen—his everlasting power also and divinity—being understood through the things that are made. And so they are without excuse, 21 seeing that, although they knew God, they did not glorify him as God or give thanks, but became vain in their reasonings, and their senseless minds have been darkened. 22 For while professing to be wise, they have become fools, 23 and they have changed the glory of the incorruptible God [b] for an image made like to corruptible man and to birds and four-footed beasts and creeping things.

Punishment of Idolaters. 24 Therefore God has given them up* in the lustful desires of their heart [c] to uncleanness, so that they dishonor their own bodies among themselves — 25 they who exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshipped and served the creature rather than the Creator who is blessed forever, amen.

26 For this cause God has given them up to shameful lusts; for their women have exchanged the natural use for that which is against nature, 27 and in like manner the men also, having abandoned the natural use of the woman, have burned in their lusts one towards another, men with men doing shameless things and receiving in themselves the fitting recompense of their perversity. 28 And as they have resolved against possessing the knowledge of God, God has given them up to a reprobate sense, so that they do what is not fitting, 29 being filled with all iniquity, malice, immorality,* avarice, wickedness; being full of envy, murder, contention, deceit, malignity; being whisperers, 30 detractors, hateful to God,* irreverent, proud, haughty, plotters of evil; disobedient to parents, 31 foolish, dissolute, without affection, without fidelity,* without mercy. 32 Although they have known the ordinance of God, they have not understood that those who practise such things are deserving of death. And not only do they do these things, but they applaud others doing them.

a Hb 2, 4; Gal 3, 11; Heb 10, 38.—b Ps 105 (106), 20.—c Gal 5, 19; Eph 4, 19; etc.

1, 17: The justice of God: the real, intrinsic holiness and justice that God imparts to man, transforming him from a sinner into a son of God by adoption, and an heir to heaven.

1, 24: God has given them up: as St. Thomas Aquinas says, not by impelling them to evil, but by deserting them. He justly withdrew His grace from them in punishment of their idolatry, and being thus abandoned by God, men followed the bent of fallen nature, and fell into the degradation of unnatural vice.

1, 29: Immorality: not in the Greek.

1, 30: Hateful to God: in the Greek, rather "hating God."

1, 31: Without fidelity: wanting in most Greek MSS.

CHAPTER 2.

All Will Be Rewarded or Punished. 1 Wherefore, thou art inexcusable, O man, whoever thou art who judgest. For wherein thou judgest another, thou dost condemn thyself. For thou who judgest dost the same things thyself. 2 And we know that the judgment of God is according to truth against those who do such things. 3 But dost thou think, O man who judgest those who do such things and dost the same thyself, that thou wilt escape the judgment of God? 4 Or dost thou despise the riches of his goodness and patience and long-suffering? Dost thou not know that the goodness of God is meant to lead thee to repentance? 5 But according to thy hardness and unrepentant heart, thou dost treasure up to thyself wrath on the day of wrath and of the revelation of the just judgment of God, 6 who will render to every man according to his works. 7 Life eternal indeed he will give to those who by patience in good works seek glory and honor and immortality; 8 but wrath and indignation to those who are contentious, and who do not submit to the truth but assent to iniquity. 9 Tribulation and anguish shall be visited upon the soul of every man who works evil; of Jew first and then of Greek. 10 But glory and honor and peace shall be awarded to everyone who does good, to Jew first and then to Greek. 11 Because with God there is no respect of persons.

Gentiles To Be Judged by the Natural Law. 12 For whoever have sinned without the Law,* will perish without the Law; and whoever have sinned under the Law, will be judged by the Law. 13 For [d] it is not they who hear the Law that are just in the sight of God; but it is they who follow the Law that will be justified. 14 When the Gentiles who have no law do by nature what the Law prescribes, these having no law are a law unto themselves. 15 They show the work of the Law written in their hearts. Their conscience bears witness to them, even when conflicting thoughts accuse or defend them. 16 This will take place on the day when, according to my gospel, God will judge the hidden secrets of men through Jesus Christ.

The Jews Transgress the Law. 17 But if thou art called "Jew," and dost rely upon the Law, and dost glory in God, 18 and dost know his will, and dost approve the better things, being informed by the Law, 19 thou art confident* that thou art a guide to the blind, a light to those who are in darkness, 20 an instructor of the unwise, a teacher of children, having in the Law the pattern of knowledge and of truth. 21 Thou therefore who teachest another, dost thou not teach thyself? Thou who preachest that men should not steal, dost thou steal? 22 Thou who sayest that men should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? Thou who dost abominate idols, dost thou commit sacrilege?* 23 Thou who dost glory in the Law, dost thou dishonor God by transgressing the Law? 24 For [e] the name of God, as it is written, is blasphemed through you among the Gentiles.

True Circumcision. 25 Circumcision, indeed, profits if thou keep the Law; but if thou be a transgressor of the Law, thy circumcision has become uncircumcision. 26 Therefore if the uncircumcised keep the precepts of the Law, will not his uncircumcision be reckoned as circumcision? 27 And he who is by nature uncircumcised, if he fulfill the Law, will judge thee who with the letter and circumcision art a transgressor of the Law. 28 For he is not a Jew who is so outwardly; nor is that circumcision which is so outwardly in the flesh; 29 but he is a Jew who is so inwardly, and circumcision is a matter of the heart* in the spirit, not in the letter. His praise is not from men but from God.

CHAPTER 3.

Objections Answered. 1 What advantage then remains to the Jew, or what is the use of circumcision? 2 Much in every respect. First, indeed, because the oracles of God were entrusted to them. 3 For what if some of them have not believed? Will their unbelief make void the fidelity of God? By no means! 4 For God is true,* and every man is a liar, as it is written, [f] That thou mayest be justified in thy words, and mayest be victorious when thou art judged. 5 But if our wickedness shows forth the justice of God, what shall we say? Is God unjust who inflicts punishment? (I speak after a purely human manner.) 6 By no means! Otherwise, how is God to judge the world? 7 But if through my lie the truth of God has abounded unto his glory, why am I also still judged as a sinner? 8 And why should we not, as some calumniously accuse us of teaching, do evil that good may come from it? The condemnation of such is just.

The Scriptures Attest Universal Sin. 9 What then? Are we better off than they? Not at all. For we have argued that Jews and Greeks are all under sin, 10 as it is written, [g] There is not one just man; 11 there is none who understands; there is none who seeks after God. 12 All have gone astray together; they have become worthless. There is none who does good, no, not even one. 13 Their [h] throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have dealt deceitfully. The venom of asps is beneath their lips; 14 their mouth [i] is full of cursing and bitterness. 15 Their feet [j] are swift to shed blood; 16 destruction and misery are in their ways. 17 And the path of peace they have not known.

d Mt 7, 21.—e Is 52, 5; Ez 36, 20.—f Pss 115 (116), 11; 50 (51), 4.—g 10-12: Pss 13 (14), 1-3; 52 (53), 2-4.—h Pss 5, 11; 139 (140), 4.—i Ps 9 (10), 7.—j 15-17: Is 59, 7; Prv 1, 16.

2, 12: In this verse, as in the whole passage, the Mosaic Law is probably meant.

2, 19: Thou are confident: the Latin text, by omitting "and" of the Greek text before this clause, makes it an apodosis, whereas in the Greek there is a series of suppositions without an apodosis, and the sentence remains uncompleted.

2, 22: Commit sacrilege: a literal translation of the Vulgate; the corresponding Greek word is generally rendered "pillage temples."

2, 29: Circumcision of the heart means the uprooting of vices and evil tendencies from the heart.

3, 4: For God is true: the Greek has, "let God be true." Every man is a liar: in comparison with God who is Truth itself, every man is essentially unreliable, and may at any time intentionally or unintentionally fall into error.

18 There is no fear of God [k] before their eyes.

This Concerns the Jews. 19 Now we know that whatever the Law says, it is speaking to those who are under the Law; in order that every mouth may be shut, and the whole world may be made subject to God. 20 For by the works of the Law no human being shall be justified* before him, for through law comes the recognition of sin.

2. Salvation through Faith in Christ

Justice Comes through Faith in Christ. 21 But now the justice of God* has been made manifest independently of the Law, being attested by the Law and the Prophets; 22 the justice of God through faith in Jesus Christ upon all* who believe. For there is no distinction, 23 as all have sinned and have need of the glory of God. 24 They are justified freely by his grace through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus, 25 whom God has set forth as a propitiation by his blood through faith, to manifest his justice, 26 God in his patience remitting* former sins; to manifest his justice at the present time, so that he himself is just, and makes just him who has faith in Jesus.

Justification Excludes Boasting. 27 Where then is thy boasting? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? No, but by the law of faith. 28 For we reckon that a man is justified by faith independently of the works of the Law. 29 Is God the God of the Jews only, and not of the Gentiles also? Indeed of the Gentiles also. 30 For there is but one God who will justify the circumcised by faith, and the uncircumcised through the same faith. 31 Do we therefore through faith destroy the Law? By no means! Rather we establish the Law.

CHAPTER 4.

Abraham Justified by Faith. 1 What then shall we say that Abraham, our father according to the flesh, acquired? 2 For if Abraham was justified by works, he has reason to boast, but not before God. 3 For what does the Scripture say? [l] "Abraham believed God and it was credited to him as justice."* 4 Now to him who works, the reward is not credited as a favor but as something due. 5 But to him who does not work, but believes in him who justifies the impious, his faith is credited to him as justice.* 6 Thus David declares the blessedness of the man to whom God credits justice without works: 7 Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered;* 8 blessed* [m] is the man to whom the Lord will not credit sin.

Justified before Circumcision. 9 Does this blessedness hold good,* then, only for the circumcised, or also for the uncircumcised? For we say that unto Abraham faith was credited as justice. 10 How then was it credited? When he was in the state of circumcision or in that of uncircumcision? Not in circumcision but in uncircumcision. 11 And he received the sign of circumcision [n] as the seal of the justice of faith which he had while uncircumcised, in order that he may be the father of all who, while uncircumcised, believed, that to them also it may be credited as justice; 12 and the father of the circumcised, not of those merely who are circumcised, but also of those who follow in the steps of the faith that was our father Abraham's while yet uncircumcised.

Not Justified by the Works of the Law. 13 For not through the Law but through the justice of faith was the promise made to Abraham and to his posterity that he should be heir of the world. 14 For if they who are of the Law are heirs, faith is made empty, the promise is made void.

k Ps 35 (36), 2.—l Gn 15, 6.—m 7f: Ps 31 (32), 1f.—n Gn 17, 10f.

3, 20: It does not follow from St. Paul's statement that no man is justified by the works of the Law, that good works are not necessary for salvation. The justification of which St. Paul here speaks is the infusion of sanctifying grace which alone renders a person supernaturally pleasing in the sight of God. This cannot be obtained either by the observance of the Law or by any other work of unregenerate man.

3, 21: The justice of God through faith is not that holiness whereby God is just, but that grace which He imparts to the soul to make it really, intrinsically pleasing and holy in His sight. The necessary condition for obtaining the infusion of this divine gift is faith, not a bare speculative faith, but a practical faith which through the love of God effects the observance of the commandments and the performance of other good works.

3, 22: Upon all: the Greek has, "unto all."

3, 26: Remitting: the Greek has, "his passing over."

4, 3: We should distinguish between justification and salvation. We cannot be saved without good works, and accordingly St. Paul repeatedly insists on the necessity of avoiding sin and doing good. But justification, that is, the infusion of sanctifying grace, cannot be merited by us; it is an entirely gratuitous gift of God.

4, 5: Credited to him as justice: when God, who is infinite truth, credits something to man, it is equivalent to saying that He imparts it really to man; for there is no make-believe with God. The Clementine Vulgate adds: "According to the plan of God's grace."

4, 7f: Forgiven, covered, not credit: varying expressions, all indicative of the same idea, namely, that the guilt of sins is really removed from the soul by God.

4, 9: Hold good . . . only: not in the Greek.

15 For the Law works wrath;* for where there is no law, neither is there transgression. 16 Therefore the promise was the outcome of faith, that it might be a favor, in order that it might be secure for all the offspring, not only for those who are of the Law, but also for those who are of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all; 17 as it is written, o I have appointed thee the father of many nations. He is our father in the sight of God, whom he believed, who gives life to the dead and calls things that are not as though they were.

The Strength of His Faith. 18 Abraham hoping against hope believed, so that he became the father of many nations, according to what was said, p So shall thy offspring be. 19 And without weakening in faith, he considered his own deadened body (for he was almost a hundred years old) and the deadened womb of Sara; 20 and yet in view of the promise of God, he did not waver through unbelief but was strengthened in faith, giving glory to God, 21 being fully aware that whatever God has promised he is able also to perform. 22 Therefore it was credited to him as justice.

The Model of Our Faith. 23 Now not for his sake only was it written that "It was credited to him," 24 but for the sake of us also, to whom it will be credited if we believe in him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead, 25 who q was delivered up for our sins, and rose again for our justification.

3. The Superabundance of this Justification

CHAPTER 5.

Christ's Death Assures Us Hope and Peace. 1 Having been justified therefore by faith, let us have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, 2 through whom we also have access by faith unto that grace in which we stand, and exult in the hope of the glory of the sons* of God. 3 And not only this, but we exult in tribulations also, knowing that tribulation works out endurance, 4 and endurance tried virtue, and tried virtue hope. 5 And hope r does not disappoint, because the charity of God is poured forth in our hearts by the Holy Spirit who has been given to us. 6 For why did Christ,* at the set time, die for the wicked when as yet we were weak? 7 For scarcely in behalf of a just man does one die; yet perhaps one might bring himself to die for a good man. 8 But God commends* his charity towards us, because when as yet we were sinners, 9 Christ died for us.

Christ's Death Assures Our Salvation. Much more now that we are justified by his blood, shall we be saved through him from the wrath. 10 For if when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, having been reconciled, shall we be saved by his life. 11 And not this only, but we exult also in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

In Adam All Have Sinned. 12 Therefore as through one man* sin entered into the world and through sin death, and thus death has passed unto all men because all have sinned — 13 for until the Law sin was in the world, but sin is not imputed when there is no law;* 14 yet death reigned from Adam until Moses even over those who did not sin after the likeness of the transgression of Adam, who is a figure of him who was to come.

Grace and Life Superabound through Christ. 15 But not like the offense is the gift. For if by the offense of the one the many died, much more has the grace of God, and the gift in the grace of the one man Jesus Christ, abounded unto the many. 16 Nor is the gift as it was in the case of one man's sin, for the judgment was from one man unto condemnation, but grace is from many offenses unto justification. 17 For if by reason of the o Gn 17, 5.—p Gn 15, 5.—q Is 53, 6. 12; I Cor 15, 45; I Pt 1, 3.—r Ps 22 (23), 6.

4, 15: The Law works wrath: a law simply indicates the line of conduct to be followed. It does not impart the strength of will to fulfill its precepts. Of itself then it becomes an occasion of wrath, in that if its precepts are violated, the lawgiver is provoked to anger and inflicts punishment on the transgressor.

5, 2: Of the sons: not in the Greek.

5, 6: The Greek text reads: "For yet Christ, when as yet we were weak, at the set time died for the wicked."

5, 8: Commends: the Greek has "proves."

5, 12: Through one man: Adam, the moral head of the human race. The sin of which St. Paul speaks is original sin. All have sinned: general statements such as this are to be understood with their obvious exceptions, and also with exceptions that can be established from other sources of revealed truth. Thus, obviously, Jesus Christ is an exception to this general statement. The Church, the official interpreter of the Scriptures, teaches us also that in view of the future merits of Christ, His Blessed Mother was preserved from original sin.

5, 13: Sin is not imputed when there is no law: there was sin against the law of nature during the period between Adam and Moses, but the sins committed before the Law were not imputed as a cause of death, when the condition was not expressed. Yet all, even infants, underwent death. It must be then because all mankind shared some way in the sin of Adam.

one man's offense death reigned through the one man, much more will they who receive the abundance of the grace and of the gift of justice reign in life through the one Jesus Christ. 18 Therefore as from the offense of the one man the result was unto condemnation to all men, so from the justice of the one the result is unto justification of life to all men. 19 For [s] just as by the disobedience of the one man the many were constituted sinners, so also by the obedience of the one the many will be constituted just.

Purpose of the Law. 20 Now the Law intervened that the offense might abound. But where the offense has abounded, grace has abounded yet more; 21 so that as sin has reigned unto death, so also grace may reign by justice unto life everlasting through Jesus Christ our Lord.

4. Justification and the Christian Life

CHAPTER 6.

Christians Dead to Sin. 1 What then shall we say? Shall we continue in sin that grace may abound? 2 By no means! For how shall we who are dead to sin still live in it? 3 Do you not know that all we who have been baptized into Christ Jesus have been baptized into his death? 4 For [t] we were buried with him by means of Baptism into death, in order that, just as Christ has arisen from the dead through the glory of the Father, so we also may walk in newness of life. 5 For if we have been united with him in the likeness of his death, we shall be so in the likeness of his resurrection also. 6 For we know that our old self has been crucified with him, in order that the body of sin may be destroyed, that we may no longer be slaves to sin; 7 for he who is dead is acquitted of sin. 8 But if we have died with Christ, we believe that we shall also live together with Christ; 9 for we know that Christ, having risen from the dead, dies now no more, death shall no longer have dominion over him. 10 For the death that he died, he died to sin once for all, but the life that he lives, he lives unto God. 11 Thus do you consider yourselves also as dead to sin, but alive to God in Christ Jesus.

The Reign of Sin. 12 Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body so that you obey its lusts. 13 And do not yield [u] your members to sin as weapons of iniquity, but present yourselves to God as those who have come to life from the dead and your members as weapons of justice for God; 14 for sin shall not have dominion over you, since you are not under the Law but under grace.

Slavery to Sin. 15 What then? Are we to sin because we are not under the Law but under grace? By no means! 16 Do you not know [v] that to whom you offer yourselves as slaves for obedience, to him whom you obey you are the slaves, whether to sin unto death or to obedience unto justice? 17 But thanks be to God that you who were the slaves of sin have now obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine into which you have been delivered,* 18 and having been set free from sin, you have become the slaves of justice. 19 I speak in a human way because of the weakness of your flesh; for as you yielded your members as slaves of uncleanness and iniquity unto iniquity, so now yield your members as slaves of justice unto sanctification. 20 For when you were the slaves of sin, you were free as regards justice. 21 But what fruit had you then from those things of which you are now ashamed? For the end of these things is death. 22 But now set free from sin and become slaves to God, you have your fruit unto sanctification, and as your end, life everlasting. 23 For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is life everlasting in Christ Jesus our Lord.

CHAPTER 7.

Christians Freed from the Law. 1 Do you not know, brethren (for I speak to those who know law), that the Law has dominion over a man as long as he lives? 2 For [w] the married woman is bound by the Law while her husband is alive;*

s Phil 2 8f.—t Gal 3,27; Col 2, 12.—u Col 3, 5.—v Jn 8, 34.—w I Cor 7, 39.

6, 3: St. Paul alludes to the manner in which Baptism was ordinarily conferred in the primitive Church, by immersion. The descent into the water is suggestive of the descent of the body into the grave, and the ascent is suggestive of the resurrection to a new life. St. Paul obviously sees more than a mere symbol in the rite of Baptism. As a result of it we are incorporated into Christ's mystical body and live a new life.

6, 6: The body of sin: some, with St. John Chrysostom, take this expression to indicate sin in general, and others understand it of the body inasmuch as it is subject to concupiscence and is the instrument of sin. As such it is destroyed, i.e., reduced to impotence, so that we are no longer slaves to its evil inclinations.

6, 17: Into which you have been delivered: i.e., "in which you have been instructed."

7, 2: The Greek reads: "The married woman is bound by the law to her living husband."

but if her husband die, she is set free from the law of the husband. 3 Therefore while her husband is alive, she will be called an adulteress if she be with another man; but if her husband dies, she is set free from the law of the husband,* so that she is not an adulteress if she has been with another man. 4 Therefore, my brethren, you also, through the body of Christ, have been made to die* to the Law, so as to belong to another who has risen from the dead, in order that we may bring forth fruit unto God. 5 For when we were in the flesh* the sinful passions, which were aroused by the Law, were at work in our members so that they brought forth fruit unto death. 6 But now we have been set free from the Law, having died to that by which we were held down, so that we may serve in a new spirit and not according to the outworn letter.

The Law the Occasion of Sin. 7 What shall we say then? Is the Law sin? By no means! Yet I did not know sin save through the Law.* For I had not known lust unless the Law had said, [x] "Thou shalt not lust." 8 But sin, having thus found an occasion, worked in me by means of the commandment all manner of lust, for without the Law sin was dead.* 9 Once upon a time I was living without law, but when the commandment came, sin revived, 10 and I died, and the commandment that was unto life was discovered in my case to be unto death. 11 For sin, having taken occasion from the commandment, deceived me, and through it killed me. 12 So that the Law indeed is holy and the commandment holy and just and good.

Sin the Cause of Death. 13 Did then that which is good become death to me? By no means! But sin, that it might be manifest as sin, worked death for me through that which is good, in order that sin by reason of the commandment might become immeasurably sinful. 14 For we know that the Law is spiritual but I am carnal, sold into the power of sin. 15 For I do not understand what I do, for it is not what I wish that I do,* but what I hate, that I do. 16 But if I do what I do not wish, I admit that the Law is good. 17 Now therefore it is no longer I who do it, but the sin that dwells in me. 18 For I know that in me, that is, in my flesh, no good dwells, because to wish is within my power, but I do not find the strength to accomplish what is good. 19 For I do not the good that I wish, but the evil that I do not wish, that I perform. 20 Now if I do what I do not wish, it is no longer I who do it, but the sin that dwells in me. 21 Therefore, when I wish to do good I discover this law, namely, that evil is at hand for me. 22 For I am delighted with the law of God according to the inner man, 23 but I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind and making me prisoner to the law of sin that is in my members.

Deliverance Due to the Grace of God. 24 Unhappy man that I am! Who will deliver me from the body of this death? 25 The grace of God through Jesus Christ our Lord.* Therefore I myself with my mind serve the law of God, but with my flesh the law of sin.

CHAPTER 8.

The Faithful Need Fear No Condemnation. 1 There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus, who do not walk according to the flesh.* 2 For the law of the Spirit of the life in Christ Jesus has delivered me* from the law of sin and of death. 3 For what was impossible to the Law, in that it was weak because of the flesh, God has made good. By sending his Son in the likeness of sinful flesh as a sin-offering, x Ex 20, 17; Dt 5, 21.

7, 3: Of the husband: not in the Greek.

7, 4: St. Paul lays down the general principle that death severs the marriage bond. The Christian has died mystically by reason of his union through Baptism with Jesus Christ. But since the death was only mystical and not real, the Christian still lives and can enter a new union with Christ, and produce spiritual fruit. St. Thomas Aquinas says: "It is evident that through the death by which we die with Christ, the obligation of the Old Law ceases."

7, 5: When we were in the flesh: deprived of the grace of God which comes from union with Christ through Baptism. The sinful passions: i.e., evil inclinations which incite to sin. These evil inclinations were aroused by the Law. Prohibition whets desires.

7, 7: I did not know sin save through the Law: St. John Chrysostom says that St. Paul here means that a thorough and complete knowledge of sin comes only through law.

7, 8: Without the Law sin was dead: i.e., sin was comparatively weak. The restraint which prohibitive laws put on liberty stirred it up to rebellion, and thus in law sin found a powerful ally.

7, 15: Here St. Paul vividly depicts the inner struggle which goes on in all human beings between the lower, sensual nature, and the higher aspirations of the soul. He concludes by saying that the higher aspirations gain victory through the grace of God merited for mankind by Jesus Christ.

7, 25: The Greek here reads: "Thanks be to God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

8, 1: Who do not walk according to the flesh: not in the Greek.

8, 2: Me: the Greek has "thee."

he has condemned sin in the flesh, [4] in order that the requirements of the Law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not according to the flesh but according to the spirit.

The Flesh and the Spirit. [5] Now [y] they who are according to the flesh mind the things of the flesh, but they who are according to the spirit mind the things of the spirit. [6] For the inclination of the flesh is death, but the inclination of the spirit, life and peace. [7] For the wisdom of the flesh is hostile to God, for it is not subject to the law of God, nor can it be. [8] And they who are carnal cannot please God.

[9] You, however, are not carnal but spiritual, if indeed the Spirit of God dwells in you. But if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he does not belong to Christ. [10] But if Christ is in you, the body, it is true, is dead by reason of sin, but the spirit is life by reason of justification. [11] But if the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, then he who raised Jesus Christ from the dead will also bring to life your mortal bodies because of his Spirit who dwells in you.

A Solemn Warning. [12] Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, that we should live according to the flesh, [13] for if you live according to the flesh you will die; but if by the spirit you put to death the deeds of the flesh, you will live.

The Faithful Sons of God. [14] For whoever are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. [15] Now [z] you have not received a spirit of bondage so as to be again in fear, but you have received a spirit of adoption as sons, by virtue of which we cry, "Abba! Father!" [16] The Spirit himself gives testimony* to our spirit that we are sons of God. [17] But if we are sons, we are heirs also: heirs indeed of God and joint heirs with Christ, provided, however, we suffer with him that we may also be glorified with him.

Yearning of All Creation. [18] For I reckon that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory to come that will be revealed in us.* [19] For the eager longing of creation awaits the revelation of the sons of God. [20] For creation was made subject to vanity—not by its own will but by reason of him who made it subject—in hope, [21] because creation itself also will be delivered from its slavery to corruption into the freedom of the glory of the sons of God. [22] For we know that all creation groans and travails in pain until now.

Yearning of Human Beings. [23] And not only it, but we ourselves also who have the first-fruits of the Spirit—we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption as sons, the redemption of our body. [24] For in hope were we saved. But hope that is seen is not hope. For how can a man hope for what he sees? [25] But if we hope for what we do not see, we wait for it with patience.

The Holy Spirit Aids Us. [26] But in like manner the Spirit also helps our weakness. For we do not know what we should pray for as we ought, but the Spirit himself pleads for us with unutterable groanings. [27] And he who searches the hearts knows what the Spirit desires, that he pleads for the saints according to God.

God's Designs. [28] Now we know that for those who love God all things work together unto good,* for those who, according to his purpose, are saints through his call. [29] For *those whom he has foreknown he has also predestined to become conformed to the image of his Son, that he should be the firstborn among many brethren. [30] And those whom he has predestined, them he has also called; and those whom he has called, them he has also justified, and those whom he has justified, them he has also glorified.

Unshakable Hope in God. [31] What then shall we say to these things? If God is for us, who is against us? [32] He who has not spared even his own Son but has delivered him for us all, how can he fail y Acts 15, 10; Heb 9, 15.—z 2 Tm 1, 7; Gal 4, 5.

8, 16: The testimony of the Spirit does not give use absolute assurance of our eternal salvation, and such is not the idea St. Paul intended to convey, for elsewhere he counsels us to "work out our salvation in fear and trembling" (Phil 2, 12); and he warns us, "He who thinks himself to stand must take heed lest he fall" (1 Cor 10, 12). Gives testimony to our spirit: the Greek has, "Gives testimony with our spirit."

8, 18-23: St. Paul in this passage, in a mystical, poetical conception, thinks of the whole world as groaning in subjection to vanity, that is, to corruption, change and death, as a result of man's fall, and yearning to share in the glorification of the sons of God at the end of time. St. Peter tells us that there "will be a new heaven and a new earth" (2 Pt 3, 13). St. John in vision "saw a new heaven and a new earth" (Ap 21, 1).

8, 28: The Greek text reads: " . . . he (God) makes all things work together unto the good . . . " to grant us also all things with him? 33 Who shall make accusation against the elect of God? It is God who justifies! [a] 34 Who shall condemn? It is Christ Jesus who died; yes, and rose again, he who is at the right hand of God, who also intercedes for us!

8, 29f: The glorification here spoken of is that of grace. Cf Rom 3, 23; Eph 1, 6; 3, 16. So says St. John Chrysostom.

Indomitable Love of Christ. 35 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or hunger, or nakedness, or danger, or the sword? 36 Even as it is written, [b] For thy sake we are put to death all the day long, We are regarded as sheep for the slaughter. 37 But in all these things we overcome because of him who has loved us. 38 For I am sure that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, 39 nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature will be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

5. The Problem of the Rejection of Israel

CHAPTER 9.

Paul Grieves for the Jews. 1 I speak the truth in Christ, I do not lie, my conscience bearing me witness in the Holy Spirit, 2 that I have great sadness and continuous sorrow in my heart. 3 For I could wish to be anathema myself from Christ* for the sake of my brethren who are my kinsmen according to the flesh; 4 who are Israelites, who have the adoption as sons, and the glory and the covenants and the legislation and the worship and the promises; 5 who have the fathers, and from whom is the Christ according to the flesh, who is, over all things, God blessed forever, amen.

God's Election Depends on His Free Choice. 6 It is not that the word of God has failed. For they are not all Israelites* who are sprung from Israel; 7 nor because they are the descendants of Abraham, are they all his children; but [c] Through Isaac shall thy posterity bear thy name. 8 That is to say, they are not sons of God who are the children of the flesh, but it is the children of promise who are reckoned as posterity. 9 For this is a word of promise: [d] "About this time I will come and Sara shall have a son." 10 And not she only; [e] but also Rebecca, who conceived* by one man, Isaac our father; 11 for before the children had yet been born, or had done aught of good or evil, in order that the selective purpose of God might stand, 12 depending not on deeds, but on him who calls, it was said to her, "The elder shall serve the younger"; 13 as it is written, [f] "Jacob I have loved,* but Esau I have hated."

God Is Not Unjust. 14 What then shall we say? Is there injustice with God?* By no means! 15 For he says to Moses, [g] "I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will show pity to whom I will show pity." 16 So then there is question not of him who wills* nor of him who runs, but of God showing mercy. 17 For the Scripture says to Pharaoh, [h] "For this very purpose* I have raised thee up that I may show in thee my power, and that my name may be proclaimed in all the earth." 18 Therefore [i] he has mercy on whom he will, and whom he will he hardens.*

His Power and Glory. 19 Thou sayest* to me: Why then does he still find fault? For who resists his will? 20 O man, who art thou to reply to God? Does the object moulded say* to him who moulded it: Why hast thou made me thus? 21 Or [j] is a 33f: Is 50, 8f.—b Ps 43 (44), 23.—c Gn 21, 12.—d Gn 18, 10.—e 10-12: Gn 25, 23f.—f Mal 1-2.—g Ex 33, 19.—h Ex 9, 16.—i Ex 7, 3.—j 20f: Is 29, 16; 45, 9; Jer 18, 6; Wis 15, 7; 2 Tm 2, 20.

9, 3: Anathema . . . from Christ: i.e., to be eternally separated from Christ. So great was St. Paul's longing for the salvation of his own kinsmen that he would make any possible sacrifice to that end, even to the extent of being separated from Christ, if it were permissible to entertain such a desire. That these words are merely an emphatic way of declaring his great devotion to his people and that they are not to be taken literally is evident from what St. Paul has said above, 8, 38.

9, 6-12: St. Paul here teaches that the true Israelite is not merely the one who is physically descended from Abraham, but the one who has been the recipient of the divine promises, which God lavishes on whom He will, independently of personal merit.

9, 10: The Clementine Vulgate reads: "Who conceived at once."

9, 13: The hatred towards Esau here attributed to God may be explained in the sense of "loving less," in accord with a common Hebrew idiom.

9, 14: The question here under consideration is the call to the faith, and not predestination to glory. The efficacious call to the faith is a pure gratuity on God's part; man cannot merit it. No one deserves it for "all have sinned and have need of the glory of God." Cf Rom 3, 23.

9, 16: Not of him who wills: the primary and ultimate factor in man's destiny is the activity of God's grace, which of course does not exclude man's cooperation.

9, 17: For this very purpose: It is not to be understood that God's primary and express purpose in creating Pharaoh was to make a sinner out of him. But God raised him up to rule the Egyptian people, and, foreseeing that Pharaoh would abuse grace and fall into sin, God decreed to use Pharaoh according to his demerits for the further manifestation of His own divine attributes and for the realization of the designs of His all-wise providence.

9, 18: He hardens: i.e., by withdrawing divine grace in punishment of demerits.

9, 19: Thou sayest: the Greek has, "Thou wilt say."

9, 20: Does . . . say: the Greek has "Will . . . say."

not the potter master of his clay,* to make from the same mass one vessel for honorable, another for ignoble use? 22 But what if God, wishing to show his wrath and to make known his power, endured with much patience vessels of wrath, ready for destruction, 23 that he might show the riches of his glory upon vessels of mercy, which he has prepared unto glory—24 even us whom he has called not only from among the Jews but also from among the Gentiles?

Witness of the Old Testament. 25 As he says in Osee, [k] A people not mine I will call my people, and an unbeloved, beloved, and her who had not obtained mercy, one who has obtained mercy.* 26 And [l] it shall be in the place where it was said to them: you are not my people; there they shall be called sons of the living God.* 27 And Isaias cries out concerning Israel, Though the number of the children of Israel are as the sands of the sea, the remnant shall be saved. 28 For the Lord fulfills [m] his word speedily in justice, because a speedy word will the Lord accomplish on earth. 29 And as Isaias foretold, [n] Unless the Lord of Hosts had left us a posterity, we should have become as Sodom and should have been like Gomorrah.

Jews' Refusal to Believe. 30 What then shall we say? That the Gentiles who were not pursuing justice have secured justice, but a justice that is from faith; 31 but Israel, by pursuing a law of justice, has not attained to the law of justice. 32 And why? Because they sought it not from faith, but as it were from works. For they stumbled at the stumbling stone, 33 as it is written, [o] Behold I lay in Sion a stumbling-stone and rock of scandal: and whoever believes in him shall not be disappointed.

9, 25: And an unbeloved, beloved: wanting in most Vulgate codices though present in the Greek and the Clementine Vulgate. To this the Vulgate added from Os 2, 25 the clause: "And her who had not . . . "

10, 3: Justice of God: the holiness which God imparts to the soul through Christ and the Church. The Jews rejected this and sought to acquire holiness rather through the prescriptions of the Mosaic Law.

10, 5-13: St. Paul here seeks to establish the ease with which this justice of the Christian dispensation may be acquired, in contrast to the system which prevailed under the Mosaic dispensation. According to this latter, one had to observe the Law—not an easy thing as St. Paul has shown above in chapter 7. In the Christian dispensation there is no need of attempting the impossible, like ascending into heaven to bring Christ down, or descending into the abyss to bring Him up from the dead. Christ has already come and has arisen from the dead.

10, 15: Who preach the gospel of peace: wanting in the Greek text.

CHAPTER 10.

Ignorance of the Justice of God. 1 Brethren, my heart's desire and my prayer to God is in their behalf unto their salvation. 2 For I bear them witness that they have zeal for God, but not according to knowledge; 3 for, ignorant of the justice of God* and seeking to establish their own, they have not submitted to the justice of God. 4 For Christ is the consummation of the Law unto justice for everyone who believes.

This Justice Comes through Faith. 5 For Moses wrote that the man who does that justice which is of the Law [p] shall live by it.* 6 But the justice that is of faith says, [q] "Do not say in thy heart: Who shall ascend into heaven?" (that is, to bring down Christ); 7 "or, Who shall descend into the abyss?" (that is, to bring up Christ from the dead). 8 But what does it say? "The word is near thee, in thy mouth and in thy heart" (that is, the word of faith, which we preach). 9 For if thou confess with thy mouth that Jesus is the Lord, and believe in thy heart that God has raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. 10 For with the heart a man believes unto justice, and with the mouth profession of faith is made unto salvation. 11 For the Scripture says, [r] "Whoever believes in him shall not be disappointed." 12 For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek, for there is the same Lord of all, rich towards all who call upon him. 13 "For [s] whoever calls upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Refusal to Believe the Gospel. 14 How then are they to call upon him in whom they have not believed? But how are they to believe him whom they have not heard? And how are they to hear, if no one preaches? 15 And how are men to preach unless they be sent? As it is written, [t] How beautiful are the feet of those who preach the gospel of peace; of those who bring glad tidings of good things!* 16 But all did not obey the gospel. For Isaias says, [u] Lord, who has believed our report? 17 Faith then depends on hearing, and hearing on the word of Christ. 18 But I say: Have they not heard? Yes, indeed, v Their voice has gone forth into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world. 19 But I say: Has not Israel known? First of all, Moses says, w I will provoke you to jealousy of those who are not a nation; I will stir you to anger against a senseless nation. 20 Then Isaias dares to say, I was found by those who did not seek me; I appeared openly to those who made no inquiry of me. 21 But to Israel he says, x All the day long I stretched out my hand to a people unbelieving and contradicting.

CHAPTER 11.

A Remnant of the Jews Will Be Saved. 1 I say then: Has God cast off his people? By no means! For I also am an Israelite of the posterity of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. 2 God has not cast off his people whom he foreknew.y Or do you not know what the Scripture says in the account of Elias, how he lodges complaint with God against Israel? 3 Lord, z they have slain thy prophets, they have razed thy altars; and I only am left, and they are seeking my life.* 4 But what does the divine answer say to him? a I have left for myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed their knees to Baal. 5 Even so, then, at the present time there is a remnant left, selected out of grace. 6 And if out of grace, then not in virtue of works; otherwise grace is no longer grace.

Witness of the Scriptures. 7 What then? What Israel was seeking after, that it has not obtained; but the chosen have obtained it, and the rest have been blinded, 8 as it is written, b God has given them a spirit of stupor until this present day, eyes that they may not see, and ears that they may not hear.* 9 And David says, Let their table become a snare and a trap and a stumbling-block and a recompense unto them; 10 c let their eyes be darkened that they may not see, and let them bow their backs always.

Israel's Fall, the Gentiles' Salvation. 11 I say then: have they so stumbled as to fall? By no means! But by their offense salvation has come to the Gentiles,d that they may be jealous* of them. 12 Now if their offense is the riches of the world, and their decline the riches of the Gentiles, how much more their full number!

The Gentiles Must Be Humble. 13 For I say to you Gentiles: As long, indeed, as I am an apostle of the Gentiles, I will honor my ministry, 14 in the hope that I may provoke to jealousy those who are my flesh, and may save some of them. 15 For if the rejection of them is the reconciliation of the world, what will the reception of them be but life from the dead? 16 Now if the first handful of the dough is holy, so also is the lump of dough; and if the root is holy, so also are the branches. 17 But if some of the branches have been broken off, and if thou, being a wild olive, art grafted in their place, and hast become a partaker of the stem and fatness of the olive tree, 18 do not boast against the branches. But if thou dost boast, still it is not thou that supportest the stem, but the stem thee. 19 Thou wilt say, then, "Branches were broken off that I might be grafted in." 20 True, but they were broken off because of unbelief, whereas thou by faith standest. Be not high-minded, but fear. 21 For if God has not spared the natural branches, perhaps he may not spare thee either. 22 See, then, the goodness and the severity of God: his severity towards those who have fallen, but the goodness of God towards thee if thou abidest in his goodness; otherwise thou also wilt be cut off.

Israel Can Yet Be Saved. 23 And they also, if they do not continue in unbelief, will be grafted in; for God is able to graft them back. 24 For if thou hast been cut off from the wild olive tree which is natural to thee, and contrary to nature, hast been grafted into the cultivated olive tree, how much more shall these, the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree!

11, 3: Just as in the time of Elias there was a small remnant who persevered in their fidelity to God, so likewise when St. Paul wrote this Epistle, although the Jewish nation as a whole had refused to believe, there were not a few converts to Christianity. St. Paul insists, however, that their call to the faith was due to the free choice of God, and not to the merit of their works.

11, 8: God has given them, etc.: i.e., by permitting them, in punishment of their pride and hypocrisy, to be blinded to the truth of the Christian revelation.

11, 11: Jealous: must be understood here in a good sense.

Israel's Final Conversion. 25 For I would not, brethren, have you ignorant of this mystery, [e] lest you should be wise in your own conceits, that a partial blindness only has befallen Israel, until the full number of the Gentiles should enter, 26 and thus all Israel should be saved, as it is written, [f] There will come out of Sion the deliverer and he will turn away impiety from Jacob; 27 and this is my covenant with them, when I shall take away [g] their sins. 28 In view of the gospel, they are enemies for your sake; but in view of the divine choice, they are most dear for the sake of the fathers. 29 For the gifts and the call of God are without repentance.*

Ultimate Triumph of God's Mercy. 30 For as you also at one time did not believe God, but now have obtained mercy by reason of their unbelief,* 31 so they too have not now believed by reason of the mercy shown you, that they too may obtain mercy.* 32 For God has shut up all in unbelief,* that he may have mercy upon all.

God's Ways Unsearchable. 33 Oh, the depth of the riches of the wisdom and of the knowledge of God! How incomprehensible are his judgments and how unsearchable his ways! 34 For [h] Who has known the mind of the Lord, or who has been his counsellor? 35 Or who has first given to him, that recompense should be made him? 36 For from him and through him and unto him are all things. To him be the glory forever, amen.

11, 29: The gifts and the call of God are without repentance: this statement must be understood, in the light of the context, of the gifts mentioned in Rom 9, 4, especially of the gift of being the chosen people. The Jews remain the people of God's predilection and will eventually be converted and saved.

11, 30: Believe . . . unbelief: in the Greek, "obeyed . . . disobedience."

11, 31: The Greek reads: "So also now they have not obeyed by occasion of your (obtaining) mercy in order that they may later obtain mercy."

11, 32: Unbelief: the Greek has "disobedience."

12, 1: As a sacrifice: we should daily put to death or mortify the lusts of the flesh and wholly dedicate our bodies to the divine service in accord with the requirements of the Christian laws of right living. Spiritual service: worship such as the nature of God and the nature of man require, which consists in the submission of one's body and its inclinations to the law of God.

12, 3: Each must take as a rule of his estimation of himself, and as his role in the Church, the measure of the faith he has received. Faith: seems here to mean the charismatic gifts granted to the believer.

12, 6: Prophecy: a supernatural gift in virtue of which the recipient is given an insight into the hidden truths beyond the power of human reason This gift is to be exercised according to the proportion of faith, that is, as says St. Thomas, "not in vain, but that the faith may be confirmed by it; not against the faith."

12, 7: Ministry: a general term which includes various functions such as teaching, the distribution of alms, etc.

12, 8: Exhorts: distinct from teaching, this term designates probably the function of comforting and consoling the affiicted. He who gives: refers to one who gives alms. He who shows mercy: indicates the individual who feels real sympathy for the poor and affiicted and personally ministers to their needs.

II: MORAL

The Duties of Christians

CHAPTER 12.

Conclusion of the Foregoing. 1 I exhort you therefore, brethren, by the mercy of God, to present your bodies as a sacrifice,* living, holy, pleasing to God—your spiritual service. 2 And be not conformed to this world, but be transformed in the newness of your mind, that you may discern what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God.

Humility and Concord. 3 By the grace that has been given to me, I say to each one among you: let no one rate himself more than he ought,* but let him rate himself according to moderation, and according as God has apportioned to each one the measure of faith. 4 For just as in one body we have many members, yet all the members have not the same function, 5 so we, the many, are one body in Christ, but severally members one of another. 6 But we have gifts differing according to the grace that has been given us, such as prophecy* to be used according to the proportion of faith; 7 or ministry,* in ministering; or he who teaches, in teaching; 8 he who exhorts,* in exhorting; he who gives, in simplicity; he who presides, with carefulness; he who shows mercy, with cheerfulness.

Fraternal Charity. 9 Let love be without pretense. Hate [i] what is evil, hold to what is good. 10 Love one another with fraternal charity, anticipating one another with honor. 11 Be not slothful in zeal; be fervent in spirit, serving the Lord, 12 rejoicing in hope. Be patient in tribulation, persevering in prayer. 13 Share the needs of the saints, practising hospitality. 14 Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse. 15 Rejoice with those who rejoice; weep with those who weep. 16 Be of one mind towards one another. Do not set your mind on high things but condescend to the lowly. [j] Be not wise in your own conceits. 17 To no man render evil for evil, but provide good things

[k] not only in the sight of God, but* also in the sight of all men. [18] If it be possible, as far as in you lies, be at peace with all men. [19] Do not avenge yourselves,[l] beloved, but give place to the wrath, for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, says the Lord. [20] But [m] *If thy enemy is hungry, give him food; if he is thirsty, give him drink; for by so doing thou wilt heap coals of fire upon his head. [21] Be not overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

CHAPTER 13.

Obedience. [1] Let [n] everyone be subject to the higher authorities, for there exists no authority except from God, and those who exist have been appointed by God. [2] Therefore he who resists the authority resists the ordinance of God; and they that resist bring on themselves condemnation. [3] For rulers are a terror not to the good work but to the evil. Dost thou wish, then, not to fear the authority? Do what is good and thou wilt have praise from it. [4] For it is God's minister to thee for good. But if thou dost what is evil, fear, for not without reason does it carry the sword. For it is God's minister, an avenger to execute wrath on him who does evil. [5] Wherefore you must needs be subject, not only because of the wrath, but also for conscience' sake. [6] For this is also why you pay tribute, for they are the ministers of God, serving unto this very end. [7] Render [o] to all men whatever is their due; tribute to whom tribute is due; taxes to whom taxes are due; fear to whom fear is due; honor to whom honor is due.

Charity a Social Duty. [8] Owe no man anything except to love one another; for he who loves his neighbor has fulfilled the Law. [9] For [p] Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not covet; and if there is any other commandment, it is summed up in this saying, *Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. [10] Love does no evil to a neighbor. Love therefore is the fulfillment of the Law.

The Spirit of Christ. [11] And this do, understanding the time, for it is now the hour for us to rise from sleep, because now our salvation is nearer than when we came to believe. [12] The night is far advanced; the day is at hand. Let us therefore lay aside the works of darkness, and put on the armor of light. [13] Let us walk becomingly as in the day, not in revelry and drunkenness, not in debauchery and wantonness, not in strife and jealousy. [14] But [q] put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and as for the flesh, take no thought for its lusts.

CHAPTER 14.

Mutual Forbearance. [1] But him who is weak in faith,* receive, without disputes about opinions. [2] For one believes that he may eat all things; but he who is weak, let him eat vegetables. [3] Let not him who eats despise him who does not eat, and let not him who does not eat judge him who eats; for God has received him. [4] Who art thou to judge another's servant? To his own lord he stands or falls; but he will stand, for God is able to make him stand. [5] For one esteems one day above another; another esteems every day alike. Let everyone be convinced in his own mind. [6] He who regards the day, regards it for the Lord; and he who eats, eats for the Lord, for he gives thanks to God. And he who does not eat, abstains for the Lord, and gives thanks to God. [7] For none of us lives to himself, and none dies to himself; [8] for if we live, we live to the Lord, or if we die, we die to the Lord. Therefore, whether we live or die, we are the Lord's. [9] For to this end Christ died and rose again, that he might be Lord both of the dead and of the living. [10] But thou, why dost thou judge thy brother? Or thou, why dost thou despise thy brother? For we shall all stand at the judgment-seat of God; [11] for it is written, [r] As I live, says the Lord, to me every knee shall bend, and every tongue shall give praise to God.

12, 17: Not only in the sight of God, but . . . : not in the Greek.

12, 20: Heap coals of fire upon his head: i.e., overwhelm one's enemy with kindness. The coals of fire seem to mean shame and remorse. The purpose of the Christian is to bring his enemy to repentance and better conduct. The same obscure figure occurs in Prv 25, 22.

13, 9: The Clementine Vulgate, following a few codices, adds, "Thou shalt not bear false witness."

14, 1: Weak in faith: those who had an erroneous conscience concerning the implications of the Christian teaching, especially concerning certain foods. The strong in faith are those who are better instructed and understand that no food is of itself unclean and forbidden. St. Paul in this chapter exhorts the strong to bear with and refrain from scandalizing the weak, and the weak to refrain from condemning the strong. Judgment is to be left to our Lord, before whose tribunal all men must appear.

Charity and Peace. 12 Therefore every one of us will render an account for himself to God. 13 Therefore let us no longer judge one another, but rather judge this, that you should not put a stumbling-block or a hindrance in your brother's way. 14 I know and am confident in the Lord Jesus that nothing is of itself unclean; but to him who regards anything as unclean, to him it is unclean. 15 If, then, thy brother is grieved because of thy food, no longer dost thou walk according to charity. Do not with thy food destroy him for whom Christ died. 16 Let not, then, our good* be reviled. 17 For the kingdom of God does not consist in food and drink, but in justice and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit; 18 for he who in this way serves Christ pleases God and is approved by men. 19 Let us, then, follow after the things that make for peace, and let us safeguard the things that make for mutual edification. 20 Do not for the sake of food [s] destroy the work of God! All things indeed are clean; but a thing is evil for the man who eats through scandal.* 21 It is good not to eat meat and not to drink wine, nor to do anything by which thy brother is offended or scandalized or weakened. 22 Thou hast faith.* Keep it to thyself before God. Blessed is he who does not condemn himself by what he approves. 23 But he who hesitates, if he eats, is condemned, because it is not from faith; for all that is not from faith is sin.

CHAPTER 15.

Self-Denial and Patience. 1 Now we, the strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. 2 Let every one of you* please his neighbor by doing good, for his edification; 3 for Christ did not please himself, but as it is written, [t] The reproaches of those who reproach thee have fallen upon me. 4 For whatever things have been written have been written for our instruction, that through the patience and the consolation afforded by the Scriptures we may have hope. 5 May then the God of patience and of comfort grant you to be of one mind towards one another according to Jesus Christ; 6 that, one in spirit, you may with one mouth glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Mercy. 7 Wherefore receive one another, even as Christ has received you to the honor of God. 8 For I say that Christ Jesus has been a minister of the circumcision in order to show God's fidelity in confirming the promises made to our fathers, 9 but that the Gentiles glorify God because of his mercy, as it is written, [u] Therefore will I praise thee among the Gentiles, and will sing to thy name. 10 And again he says, Rejoice, you Gentiles, with his people. 11 And again, [v] Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles; and sing his praises, all you peoples. 12 And again Isaias says, [w] There shall be the root of Jesse, and he who shall arise to rule the Gentiles . . . in him the Gentiles shall hope.* 13 Now may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that you may abound in hope and in the power of the Holy Spirit.

Conclusion

Personal Explanations and Greetings

Apostle of the Gentiles. 14 Now I for my part, my brethren, am convinced with regard to you that you yourselves are full of love, filled with all knowledge, so that you are able to admonish one another. 15 But I have written to you rather boldly here and there, brethren—as it were to refresh your memory—because of the grace that has been given me by God, 16 that I should be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles; sanctifying the gospel of God,* that the offering up of the Gentiles may become acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Spirit. 17 I have therefore this boast in Christ Jesus as regards the work of God. 18 For I do not make bold to mention anything but what Christ has wrought through me to bring about the obedience of the Gentiles, by word and deed, 19 with mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Holy Spirit, so that from Jerusalem round about as far as Illyricum I

14, 16: Our good: the Greek says more probably "your good," i.e., what is good or right in itself in your actions.

14, 20: The sense seems to be: "A man who, by eating, gives scandal." Others understand: "Who eats under the influence of scandal.

14, 22f: Faith: here means conscience enlightened by faith.

15, 2: Every one of you: the Greek has, "every one of us."

15, 12: He who shall arise: the Greek has, "he who arises."

15, 16: Minister . . . sanctifying the gospel of God: St. Paul here uses the metaphorical language of sacrifice. The text here probably means: performing priestly functions by means of the gospel. This priestly ministration results in the oblation of the Gentiles, which is acceptable to God because it has been sanctified by the Holy Spirit, who dwells in the faithful.

have completed the evangelization of Christ. 20 But I have not preached this gospel where Christ has already been named, lest I might build on another man's foundation; but even as it is written, 21 They [x] who have not been told of him shall see, and they who have not heard shall understand.

St. Paul's Plans. 22 This is why I was hindered these many times from coming to you.* 23 But now, having no more work in these parts, and having had for many years a great desire to come to you, 24 when I set out for Spain I hope to see you as I pass through (and by you to be sped on my way there), having first enjoyed being with you for a while. 25 Now, however, I will set out for Jerusalem to minister to the saints. 26 For Macedonia and Achaia have thought it well to make a contribution for the poor among the [y] saints at Jerusalem. 27 So it has pleased them, and their debtors they are. For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual blessings, they should also minister to them in material things. 28 Therefore, when I have completed this, and have delivered to them the proceeds, I will set out by way of you for Spain. 29 And I know that when I come to you, I shall come with the fullness of Christ's blessing.

Request for Prayers. 30 Now I exhort you, brethren, through our Lord Jesus Christ, and through the charity of the Spirit, that you help me by your prayers to God for me, 31 that I may be delivered from the unbelievers in Judea, and that the offering of my service may be acceptable to the saints in Jerusalem; 32 that I may come to you in joy, by the will of God, and may be refreshed with you. 33 Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

CHAPTER 16.

Commendation of Phoebe. 1 But I commend to you Phoebe, our sister, who is in the ministry of the church at Cenchrae, 2 that you may receive her in the Lord as becomes saints, and that you may assist her in whatever business she may have need of you. For she too has assisted many, including myself.

Greetings to Individuals. 3 Greet [z] Prisca and Aquila, my helpers in Christ Jesus, 4 who for my life have risked their own necks. To them not only I give thanks but also all the churches of the Gentiles. 5 Greet also the church that is in their house. Greet my beloved Epaenetus, who is the first-fruits of Asia to Christ. 6 Greet Mary who has labored much among you. 7 Greet Andronicus and Junias, my kinsmen and my fellow-prisoners, who are distinguished among the apostles, who also were in Christ before me. 8 Greet Ampliatus, beloved to me in the Lord. 9 Greet Urbanus, our helper in Christ, and my beloved Stachys. 10 Greet Apelles, approved in Christ. 11 Greet the members of Aristobulus' household. Greet Herodion, my kinsman. Greet the members of Narcissus' household who are in the Lord. 12 Greet Tryphaena and Tryphosa who labor in the Lord. Greet the beloved Persis who has labored much in the Lord. 13 Greet Rufus, the elect in the Lord, and her who is his mother and mine. 14 Greet Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren who are with them. 15 Greet Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympias, and all the saints who are with them. 16 Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the churches of Christ greet you.

Warning to Troublemakers. 17 Now I exhort you, brethren, that you watch those who cause dissensions and scandals contrary to the doctrine that you have learned, and avoid them. 18 For such do not serve Christ our Lord but their own belly, and by smooth words and flattery deceive the hearts of the simple. 19 For your submission to the faith has been published everywhere. I rejoice therefore over you. Yet I would have you wise as to what is good, and guileless as to what is evil. 20 But the God of peace will speedily crush Satan under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Greetings from Corinth. 21 Timothy, my fellow-laborer, greets you, and Lucius, and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen. 22 I, Tertius, who have written this epistle, greet you in the Lord. 23 Gaius, my host, and the host of the whole church, greets you. Erastus, the city treasurer, and Quartus, our brother, greet you. 24

15, 22: The Clementine Vulgate adds: "and I have been hindered till now," probably taken from Rom 1, 13. The Greek has nothing that corresponds to it.

[*May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, amen.]

Doxology. 25 Now to him who is able to strengthen you in accordance with my gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery which has been kept in silence from eternal ages, 26 which is manifested now through the writings of the prophets according to the precept of the eternal God, and made known to all the Gentiles to bring about obedience to faith — 27 to the only wise God, through Jesus Christ, be honor forever and ever. Amen.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS

Corinth was a Roman colony built upon the remains of an old Greek city. At the time of the Apostles it was materially prosperous and morally corrupt.

On his second missionary journey, Paul preached about two years in Corinth, first to the Jews in the synagogue and then to the Gentiles in the house of Titus Justus (Acts 18, 1-18). After his disappointment in the use of a philosophical approach to Christianity at Athens (Acts 17, 15ff), Paul used at Corinth a simpler presentation of his doctrine. According to the divine promise (Acts 18, 9f), he made many converts, but suffered much from the hostility of the Jews. He left for Ephesus some time after Gallio became proconsul of Achaia, i.e., about 52 A.D.

It is quite probable that St. Paul wrote an Epistle to the Corinthians prior to the two that we now possess (1 Cor 5, 9). The Epistle called St. Paul's First to the Corinthians was occasioned by the visit to Ephesus of members of the Corinthian church (1 Cor 1, 11; 16, 12. 17). St Paul, who had meanwhile returned to Antioch and undertaken his third missionary journey, learned from these messengers of certain disorders in the church at Corinth. Questions were also proposed by the neophytes to their spiritual father for solution. To correct those disorders and to answer these questions, St. Paul wrote this masterly Epistle.

From 1 Cor 16, 5-8 it is clear that the letter was written at Ephesus some time before Pentecost, probably in the beginning of the year 57 A.D.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, called by the will of God to be an apostle of Jesus Christ, and Sosthenes* our brother, 2 to the church of God at Corinth, to you who have been sanctified in Christ Jesus and called to be saints with all who call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every place—their Lord as well as ours. 3 Grace be to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Gifts of God. 4 I give thanks to my God always concerning you for the grace of God [a] which was given you in Christ Jesus, 5 because in everything you have been enriched in him, in all utterance and in all knowledge; 6 even as the witness to the Christ has been made so firm in you, 7 that you lack no grace, while awaiting the appearance [b] of our Lord Jesus Christ, 8 who will also keep you secure unto the end,[c] unimpeachable in the day of the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9 God is trustworthy, by him you have been called into fellowship [d] with his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

I: PARTY SPIRIT

Nature of the Division. 10 Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you all say the same thing; and that there be no dissensions* among you, but that you be perfectly united in one mind [e] and in one a 2 Cor 8, 7. 9.—b Lk 17, 30; 2 Thes 1, 7; Ti 2, 13.—c 1 Thes 5, 23.—d 1 Jn 1, 3.—e Phil 2, 2; 3, 16.

16, 24: Not found in the best codices of the Vulgate.

1, 1: Probably the Sosthenes of Acts 18, 17.

1, 10f: These divisions were neither heretical nor schismatic but petty cliques based on particular but unsolicited attachment to one or other of the Apostles and preachers. This was detrimental to perfect Christian unity.

judgment. 11 For I have been informed about you, my brethren, by those of the house of Chloe, that there are strifes among you. 12 Now this is what I mean: each of you says, I am of Paul, or I am of Apollos,* or I am of Cephas, or I am of Christ. 13 Has Christ been divided up? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul? 14 I thank God that I baptized none of you but [f] Crispus and Gaius, 15 lest anyone should say that you were baptized in my name. 16 I baptized also the household of Stephanas.[g] I am not aware of having baptized anyone else.

Salvation Not by Wisdom of Words. 17 For Christ did not send me to baptize,* but to preach the gospel, [h] not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ be made void. 18 For the doctrine of the cross is foolishness to those who perish, but to those who are saved, that is, to us, [i] it is the power of God. 19 For it is written, [i] I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and the prudence of the prudent I will reject. 20 Where [k] is the "wise man"? Where is the scribe? Where is the disputant of this world? Has not God turned to foolishness the "wisdom" of this world? 21 For [l] since, in God's wisdom, the world did not come to know God by "wisdom,"* it pleased God, by the foolishness of our preaching, to save those who believe. 22 For [m] the Jews ask for signs,* and the Greeks look for "wisdom"; 23 but we, for our part, preach a crucified Christ—to the Jews indeed a stumbling-block and to the Gentiles foolishness, 24 but [n] to those who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ, the power of God and the wisdom of God. 25 For the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

Their Case an Example. 26 For consider your own call,* brethren; that there were not many wise according to the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble. 27 But [o] the foolish things of the world has God chosen to put to shame the "wise," and the weak things of the world has God chosen to put to shame the strong, 28 and the base things of the world and the despised has God chosen, and the things that are not, to bring to naught the things that are; 29 lest any flesh should pride itself before him. 30 From him [p] you are in Christ Jesus, who has become for us God-given wisdom, and justice, and sanctification, and redemption; 31 so that, just as it is written, [q] "Let him who takes pride, take pride in the Lord."

CHAPTER 2.

Paul's Method of Preaching. 1 And I, brethren, when I came to you, [r] did not come with pretentious speech or wisdom, announcing unto you the witness to Christ.* 2 For I determined not to know anything among you, except Jesus Christ [s] and him crucified. 3 And [t] I was with you in weakness and in fear and in much trembling. 4 And my speech and my preaching were not in the persuasive words of wisdom,* but in the demonstration of the Spirit [u] and of power, 5 that your faith might rest, not on the wisdom of men, but on the power of God.

True Wisdom. 6 Wisdom, however, we speak among those who are mature,* yet not a wisdom of this world nor of the rulers of this world, who are passing away. 7 But we speak the wisdom of God,[v] mysterious, hidden,* which God foreordained before the world unto our glory, 8 a wisdom which none of the rulers of this world* has known; [w] for had they known it, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory. 9 But, as it is written, Eye has not seen or ear heard,

1, 12: Apollos: friend and fellow-worker of St. Paul (cf 1 Cor 3, 4-8; 16, 12), eloquently evangelized Corinth after Paul had prepared the way (Acts 18, 24-28). Cephas: Aramaic name ("Rock") of Peter; it is not necessarily implied that Peter labored in Corinth. I am of Christ: Some consider this as the slogan of a fourth party, a reaction to attachment to a particular man. Others take the words as the cry of St. Paul, a slogan suggested to all.

1, 17: Not . . . to baptize: as his principal office: Like Christ (Jn 4, 2) and Peter (Acts 10, 48), Paul usually left the baptismal rite to others. Wisdom of words: eloquence.

1, 21: Wisdom, foolishness: from the Greek viewpoint.

1, 22: Signs: i.e., miracles.

1, 26: Your own call: yourselves at the time of your call.

2, 1: Witness to Christ: the Greek has "witness to God." The gospel is the witness of God to Christ and of Christ to God.

2, 1ff: Cf note on wisdom of words, 1 Cor 1, 17.

2, 6: Those who are mature: i.e., sufficiently prepared to receive it. The rulers of this world: interpreted as intellectual and political leaders among men, or as devils. The two interpretations can be harmonized. The devil is called the ruler of this world by Christ in Jn 12, 31; 14, 30; 16, 11.

2, 7: Mysterious, hidden: cf Col 1, 25-27; the mystery of redemption, hidden from eternity, revealed in Christ.

2, 8: Rulers of this world: cf v 6. Christ was put to death by intellectual and political leaders, not without diabolical influence. Effecting Christ's death was unwise for man because unjust, unwise for the devil because it ruined his power. Lord of glory: a title given to God.

nor has it entered into the heart of man, what things God has prepared for those who love him. [10] But to us God has revealed them through his Spirit.[x] For the Spirit searches all things, even the deep things of God. [11] For who among men knows the things of a man save the spirit of the man which is in him?
Even so, the things of God no one knows but the Spirit of God. [12] Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the spirit that is from God, that we may know the things that have been given us by God. [13] These [y] things we also speak, not in words taught by human wisdom, but in the learning of the Spirit, combining spiritual with spiritual.* [14] But the sensual man does not perceive the things that are of the [z] Spirit of God, for it is foolishness to him and he cannot understand, because it is examined spiritually.
[15] But the spiritual man judges all things, and he himself is judged by no man.*
[16] For [a] "who has known the mind of the Lord, that he might instruct him?" But we have the mind of Christ.

CHAPTER 3.

They Cannot Receive Full Doctrine. [1] And I, brethren, could not speak to you as to spiritual men but only as carnal, as to little ones in Christ. [2] I fed [b] you with milk,* not with solid food, for you were not yet ready for it. Nor are you now ready for it, for you are still carnal. [3] For since there are jealousy and strife among you,[c] are you not carnal, and walking as mere men? [4] For whenever one says,
"I am of Paul," but another, "I am of Apollos," [d] are you not mere men?

The Office of God's Ministers. [5] What then is Apollos? What indeed is Paul?
They are the servants of him whom you have believed—servants according as God has given to each to serve. [6] I have [e] planted, Apollos watered, but God has given the growth. [7] So then neither he who plants is anything, nor he who waters, but God who gives the growth.
[8] Now he who plants and he who waters are one,* yet each will receive his own reward according to his labor. [9] For we are God's helpers, you are God's tillage, [f] God's building.

Their Responsibility and Reward. [10] According to the grace of God which has been given to me, as a wise builder, I laid the foundation, and another builds thereon. But let everyone take care how he builds thereon. [11] For other foundation no one can lay, but that which has been laid, which is Christ Jesus. [12] But if [g] anyone builds upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw — [13] the work of each will be made manifest, for the day of the Lord* will declare it, since the day is to be revealed [h] in fire. The fire will assay the quality of everyone's work: [14] if his work abides which he has built thereon, he will receive reward; [15] if his work burns he will lose his reward,* but himself will be saved, yet so as through fire.

[16] Do you not know [i] that you are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwells in you? [17] If anyone destroys the temple of God, him will God destroy; for holy is the temple of God, and this temple you are.

Pride Not to Be Taken in Man. [18] Let no one deceive himself. If any one of you thinks himself wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may come to be wise. [19] For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, [j] "I will catch the wise in their craftiness." [20] And again, [k] "The Lord knows the thoughts of the wise, that they are empty." [21] Therefore let no one take pride in men.* [22] For all things are yours,[l] whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas: or the world, or life, or death; or things present, or things to come—all are yours,

2, 9: A free citation of Is 64, 4. Possessed already through grace, but completely in heaven.

2, 11: The things of a man: i.e., the thoughts that pass through a man's mind.

2, 13: Combining spiritual with spiritual: may mean explaining spiritual subjects to spiritual men, or using spiritual instruction for spiritual subjects, or judging spiritual things according to spiritual standards.

2, 15: The spiritual man can judge things both of nature and of the spirit, but the spirituality of a spiritual man cannot be judged by a merely natural man, who does not possess the spirit.

3, 2: Milk: elementary doctrine. Solid food: more advanced teaching.

3, 8: Are one: equal fellow-workers in the service of God.

3, 13: The day of the Lord: the day of judgment. Most Greek MSS have only "the day."

3, 15: Lose his reward: he will lose the special reward of preaching but will be saved if his conscience is otherwise clear. The teaching of this verse implies the teaching of Christian tradition on purgatory. If the venial offenses of preachers are punished on the last day, similarly other venial sins will be punished after the particular judgment.

3, 21: Pride in men: because of some connection with a talented teacher or apostle.

23 and you are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

CHAPTER 4.

Ministers of Gospel Judged by Christ. 1 Let a man so account us, [m] as servants of Christ and stewards of the mysteries* of God. 2 Now [n] here it is required in stewards that a man be found trustworthy. 3 But with me it is a very small matter to be judged by you or by man's tribunal. Nay I do not even judge my own self. 4 For I have nothing on my conscience, yet I am not thereby justified; [o] but he who judges me is the Lord. 5 Therefore, pass no judgment before the time, until the Lord comes, who will both bring to light the things hidden in darkness and make manifest the counsels of hearts; [p] and then everyone will have his praise from God.

Corinthians Contrasted with Apostles. 6 Now, brethren, I have applied these things to myself and Apollos by way of illustration for your sakes, that in our case you may learn not to be puffed up [q] one against the other over a third party, transgressing what is written.* 7 For who singles thee out? Or what hast thou that thou hast not received? And if thou hast received it, why dost thou boast as if thou hadst not received it? 8 You are already filled! You are already made rich! [r] Without us you reign! And would that you did reign, that we too might reign with you!* 9 For I think God has set forth us the apostles last of all,[s] as men doomed to death, seeing that we have been made a spectacle to the world, and to angels, and to men. 10 We [t] are fools for Christ, but you are wise in Christ! We are weak, but you are strong! You are honored, but we are without honor! 11 To this very hour we hunger and thirst,[u] and we are naked and buffeted, and have no fixed abode. 12 And [v] we toil, working with our own hands. We are reviled and we bless, we are persecuted and we bear with it, 13 we are maligned and we entreat, we have become as the refuse of this world, the offscouring of all, even until now!

14 I write these things not to put you to shame, but to admonish you as my dearest children. 15 For although [w] you have ten thousand tutors* in Christ, yet you have not many fathers. For in Christ Jesus, through the gospel, did I beget you. 16 Therefore, I beg you, [x] be imitators of me, as I am of Christ. 17 For this very reason [y] I have sent to you Timothy, who is my dearest son and faithful in the Lord. He will remind you of my ways, which are in Christ Jesus, even as I teach everywhere in every church.

18 Now some are puffed up, as if I were not coming to you. 19 But [z] I shall come to you shortly, if the Lord is willing, and I shall learn the power of those who are puffed up, not the promises. 20 For the kingdom of God [a] is not in word, but in power. 21 What is your wish? Shall I come to you with a rod, or in love and in the spirit of meekness?

II: MORAL DISORDERS

1. The Incestuous Man

CHAPTER 5.

Action To Be Taken. 1 It is actually reported [b] that there is immorality* among you, and such immorality as is not found even among the Gentiles, that a man should have his father's wife. 2 And you are puffed up, and have not rather mourned so that he who has done this deed might be put away from your midst. 3 I indeed,[c] absent in body but present in spirit, have already, as though present, passed judgment* 4 in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ on the one who has so acted—you and my spirit gathered together with the power [d] of our Lord Jesus—5 to deliver [e] such a one over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that his spirit may be saved in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. 6 Your boasting m Ti 1, 7.—n Mt 24, 25.—o Ps 142 (143), 2; Sir 7, 5; Prv 21, 2.—p 1 Cor 3, 13.—q Rom 12, 3.—r Ap 3, 17. 21.—s Rom 8, 36; Heb 10, 33.—t 2 Cor 13, 9.—u 2 Cor 11, 23-27.—v Acts 18, 3; 20, 34; 1 Thes 2, 9.—w Gal 4, 19.—x 1 Cor 11, 1.—y Acts 19, 22; Phil 2, 20.—z Acts 18, 21.—a 1 Cor 2, 4; 1 Thes 1, 5.—b Lv 18, 7f; Dt 22, 30.—c Col 2, 5.—d Mt 16, 19; 18, 18.—e 2 Cor 13, 10; 1 Tm 1, 20.

4, 1: Mysteries: includes doctrines and rites the excellence of which is God's secret, surpassing human understanding.

4, 6: What is written: may refer to transgressing what Paul has just written concerning the causes of dissension, or the teaching of the Old Testament in such passages as those quoted in 1 Cor 1, 19. 31; 3, 19f.

4, 8-13: Paul ironically contrasts the self-satisfaction of the Corinthians with the humble condition of the Apostles, still in the midst of sufferings.

4, 15: The tutor, i.e., "pedagogue," the slave, often not much loved, who accompanied the youth to and from his real teacher.

5, 1: Immorality: literally "fornication"; the word used generally of impurity, including unnatural vice.

5, 3ff: St. Paul indicates to the Corinthian church the action they should already have taken. To deliver such a one over to Satan: implies a) excommunication, b) trials, even physical, without the normal aids of the Church against Satan. The destruction of the flesh: the destruction of sinful tendencies.

is unseemly. Do you not know that a little leaven ferments* the whole lump? 7 Purge out the old leaven,[f] that you may be a new dough, as you really are without leaven. For Christ, our passover, has been sacrificed. 8 Therefore let us keep festival, not with the old leaven, nor with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Punishment by Excommunication. 9 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate with the immoral[g] — 10 not meaning, of course, the immoral of this world, or the covetous, or the greedy, or idolaters; otherwise you would have to leave the world. 11 But now I write to you not to associate[h] with one who is called a brother, if he is immoral, or covetous, or an idolater, or evil-tongued, or a drunkard, or greedy; with such a one not even to take food. 12 For what have I to do with judging those outside? Is it not those inside whom you judge? 13 For those outside God will judge. [i] "Expel the wicked man from your midst."

2. Lawsuits before Pagans

CHAPTER 6.

Public Litigation. 1 Dare any of you, having a matter against another, bring your case to be judged before the unjust and not before the saints? 2 Do you not know that the saints will judge[j] the world?* And if the world will be judged by you, are you unworthy to judge the smallest matters? 3 Do you not know that we shall judge angels? How much more worldly things! 4 If, therefore, you have cases about worldly matters to be judged, appoint those who are rated as nothing in the Church to judge.* 5 To shame you I say it. Can it be that there is not one wise man among you competent to settle a case in his brother's matter? 6 But brother goes to law with brother and that before unbelievers.

7 Nay, [k] to begin with, it is altogether a defect in you that you have lawsuits one with another. Why not rather suffer wrong? Why not rather be defrauded? 8 But you yourselves do wrong and defraud, and that to your brethren. 9 Or do you not know [l] that the unjust will not possess the kingdom of God? Do not err; neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, 10 nor the effeminate, nor sodomites, nor thieves, nor the covetous, nor drunkards, nor the evil-tongued, nor the greedy will possess the kingdom of God. 11 And [m] such were some of you, but you have been washed, you have been sanctified, you have been justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, and in the Spirit of our God.

3. The Evil of Immorality

Sacredness of the Body. 12 All things are lawful for me,[n] but not all things are expedient.* All things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of anyone. 13 Food for the belly and the belly for food, but God will destroy both the one and the other. Now the body is not for [o] immorality, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. 14 Now [p] God has raised up the Lord and will also raise us up by his power. 15 Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ and make them members of a harlot? By no means! 16 Or do you not know that he who cleaves to a harlot, becomes one body with her? [q] "For the two," it says, "shall be one flesh." 17 But he who cleaves to the Lord is one spirit [r] with him. 18 Flee immorality. Every sin that a man commits is outside the body, but the immoral man sins against his own body. 19 Or do you not know [s] that your members are the temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have from God, and that you are not your own? 20 For [t] you have been bought at a great price. Glorify God and bear him in your body.*

5, 6-8: Fermentation was considered as a kind of corruption. Therefore leaven was removed from Jewish houses for the observance of the Passover to symbolize removal of sin, the corruption of the soul. Cf Ex 12, 15ff. The comparison was probably suggested to St. Paul by the nearness of Easter, which replaced the Passover among Christians.

6,2: The elect will adopt the sentence of Christ their head and pronounce sentence with Him. Cf Wis 3, 8; Jude 6.

6, 4: Cf Mt 11, 11 for the advantage of even the least in the kingdom of heaven. This verse is spoken sarcastically; Paul's real advice, to pick those especially fitted, is implied in v 5.

6, 12: A proverbial way of saying that not all lawful things are expedient. It was applied by the Christians especially to the new freedom from the ritual of the Mosaic Law, and erroneously by some even to the natural law formulated in the Mosaic code. Cf note on Acts 15, 29.

6, 20: The Greek text has, "Glorify God, therefore, in your body."

III: ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

1. Marriage and Celibacy

CHAPTER 7.

Advice to the Married. 1 Now concerning the things whereof you wrote to me: It is good for man not to touch woman. 2 Yet, for fear of fornication, let each man have his own wife, and let each woman have her own husband. 3 Let the husband render to the wife her due, and likewise the wife to the husband. 4 The wife has not authority over her body, but the husband; the husband likewise has not authority over his body, but the wife. 5 Do not deprive each other, except perhaps by consent, for a time, that you may give yourselves to prayer; and return together again lest Satan tempt you because you lack self-control. 6 But this I say by way of concession, not by way of commandment. 7 For I would that you all were as I am myself; but each one has his own gift from God,[u] one in this way, and another in that.

Advice to the Unmarried. 8 But I say to the unmarried and to widows, it is good for them if they so remain, even as I. 9 But if they do not have self-control, let them marry,[v] for it is better to marry than to burn. 10 But to those who are married, not I, but the Lord commands that a wife is not to depart [w] from her husband, 11 and if she departs, that she is to remain unmarried or be reconciled to her husband. And let not a husband put away his wife.

Obligation of the Believing Spouse. 12 To the others I say, not the Lord:* If any brother has an unbelieving wife and she consents to live with him, let him not put her away. 13 And if any woman has an unbelieving husband and he consents to live with her, let her not put away her husband. 14 For [x] the unbelieving husband is sanctified* by the believing wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the believing husband; otherwise your children would be unclean, but, as it is, they are holy. 15 But [y] if the unbeliever departs, let him depart. For a brother or sister is not under bondage in such cases, but God has called us to peace. 16 For how dost thou know, O wife, whether thou wilt save thy husband? Or how dost thou know, O husband, whether thou wilt save thy wife?

No Change to Be Sought. 17 Only, as the Lord has allotted to each, as when God has called each, so let him walk—and so I teach in all the churches. 18 Was one called having been circumcised? Let him not become uncircumcised. Was one called being uncircumcised? Let him not be circumcised. 19 Circumcision [z] does not matter, and uncircumcision does not matter; but the keeping of the commandments of God is what matters. 20 Let every man remain in the calling in which he was called. 21 Wast thou a slave when called? Let it not trouble thee. But if thou canst become free,* make use of it rather. 22 For [a] a slave who has been called in the Lord, is a freedman of the Lord; just as a freeman who has been called is a slave of Christ. 23 You [b] have been bought with a price; do not become the slaves of men. 24 Brethren, in the state in which he was when called, let every man remain with God.

The State of Virginity. 25 Now concerning virgins [c] I have no commandment of the Lord, yet I give an opinion, as one having obtained mercy from the Lord to be trustworthy. 26 I think, then, that this is good on account [d] of the present distress*—that it is good for a man to remain as he is. 27 Art thou bound to a wife? Do not seek to be freed. Art thou freed from a wife? Do not seek a wife. 28 But if thou takest a wife, thou hast not sinned. And if a virgin marries, she has not sinned. Yet such will have tribulation of the flesh.[e] But I spare you that.

29 But this I say, brethren,[f] the time is short;* it remains that those who have wives be as if they had none; 30 and those who weep, as though not weeping; and those who rejoice, as though not rejoicing; and those who buy, as though not possessing; 31 and those who use this

7, 12: Not the Lord: not the express teaching of Christ during His earthly life, but a law made by the Apostles on the authority of Christ. It is known as the "Pauline privilege."

7, 14: Sanctified: an external sacredness deriving from membership in the Church of Christ or from close contact with it, as in marriage with a Christian.

7, 21: It is not clear whether St. Paul advises the slave to take or to leave an opportunity to be freed.

7, 26: The present distress: the persecution of Christians, the possible end of the world, as well as the general worries and troubles of this life.

7, 29: The time is short: i.e., for meriting in this life before the coming of Christ, whether in the particular or in the general judgment.

world, as though not using it, for this world as we see it is passing away. 32 I would have you free from care. He who is unmarried is concerned about the things of the Lord, how he may please God. 33 Whereas [g] he who is married is concerned about the things of the world, how he may please his wife; and he is divided. 34 And the unmarried woman, and the virgin, thinks about the things of the Lord, that she may be holy in body and in spirit. Whereas she who is married thinks about the things of the world, how she may please her husband. 35 Now [h] this I say for your benefit, not to hold you in check, but to promote what is proper, and to make it possible for you to pray to the Lord without distraction.

Duty of Father to Virgin Daughter. 36 But if any man thinks that he incurs disgrace with regard to his virgin, since she is over age, and that it ought so to be done, let him do what he will; he does not sin if she should marry.* 37 But he who stands firm in his heart, being under no constraint, but is free to carry out his own will, and has decided to keep his virgin – he does well. 38 Therefore both he who gives his virgin in marriage does well, and he who does not give her does better.

Widows. 39 A woman [i] is bound as long as her husband is alive, but if her husband dies, she is free. Let her marry whom she pleases, only let it be in the Lord.* 40 But she will be more blessed, in my judgment, if she remains as she is. And I think that I also have the spirit of God.

7, 36f: Marriage was settled chiefly by the father, but not without consideration for the feelings and choice of the daughter. Being under no constraint: implies an obligation towards his daughter.

7, 39: In the Lord: i.e., in the body of Christ, the Church. This can be taken as a general counsel to marriage within the Church.

8, 7: Idol-conscious: the Greek text has two readings: "habit of the idol" and "consciousness or conscience of the idol." By habit, some are accustomed to regard an idol as a reality. The eating food sacrificed to gods still entices them and would be heathen worship. Hence, the example of one who sees no wrong in it would encourage them to do what they think wrong. By habit they are idol-conscious.

8, 10: "Has knowledge": i.e., a false or overconfident knowledge. Idol place: includes not only the pagan temple, but also the surrounding gardens and buildings where sacrificed meats were served.

2. Idol Offerings

CHAPTER 8.

General Principles. 1 Now concerning things sacrificed to idols, [j] we know that we all have knowledge. Knowledge puffs up, but charity edifies. 2 If anyone thinks that he knows anything,[k] he has not yet known as he ought to know. 3 But if anyone loves God,[l] the same is known by him. 4 Now as for food sacrificed to idols, we know that there is no such thing as an idol in the world,[m] and that there is no God but one. 5 For even if there are what are called gods,[n] whether in heaven or on earth (for indeed there are many gods, and many lords), 6 yet for us there is only one God,[o] the Father from whom are all things, and we unto him; and one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we through him.

Practical Rules. 7 But such knowledge is not in everyone. Some, still idol-conscious,* eat idol offerings [p] as such, and their conscience, being weak, is defiled. 8 Now food [q] does not commend us to God. For neither shall we suffer any loss if we do not eat, nor if we do eat shall we have any advantage. 9 Still, take care lest perhaps this right of yours become a stumbling-block [r] to the weak. 10 For if a man sees one who "has knowledge"* reclining at table in an idol place, will not his conscience, weak as it is, be emboldened to eat idol offerings? 11 And [s] through thy "knowledge" the weak one will perish, the brother for whom Christ died. 12 Now when you sin thus against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, you sin against Christ. 13 Therefore, [t] if food scandalizes my brother, I will eat flesh no more forever, lest I scandalize my brother.

3. Paul's Rights as an Apostle

CHAPTER 9.

His Claim of Rights. 1 Am I not free? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen Jesus our Lord? Are not you my work [u] in the Lord? 2 And if to others I am not an apostle, yet to you I am. For you are the seal set upon my apostleship in the Lord. 3 My defense against those who question me is this: 4 Have we not a right to eat and to drink? 5 Have we not a right to take about with us a woman,* a sister, as do the other apostles, and the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas? 6 Or is it only Barnabas and I who have not the right to do this?* 7 What soldier ever serves at his own expense? Who plants a vineyard and does not eat of its fruit? Who feeds the flock, and does not eat of the milk of the flock? 8 Do I speak these things on human authority? Or does not the Law also say these things? 9 For it is written in the Law of Moses, [v] "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treads out the grain." Is it for the oxen that God has care?* 10 Or does he say this simply for our sakes? These things were written for us. For he who plows [w] should plow in hope, and he who threshes, in hope of partaking of the fruits. 11 If [x] we have sown for you spiritual things, is it a great matter if we reap from you carnal things? 12 If others share in this right over you, why not we rather? But we have not used this right,[y] but we bear all things, lest we offer hindrance to the gospel of Christ. 13 Do you not know [z] that they who minister in the temple eat what comes from the temple, and that they who serve the altar, have their share with the altar? 14 So also the Lord directed that those who preach the gospel should have their living [a] from the gospel.

Reason for Not Using Rights. 15 But [b] I for my part have used none of these rights. Neither do I write these things that so it should be done in my case. For it were better for me to die than that anyone should make void my boast.* 16 For even if I preach the gospel, I have therein no ground for boasting, since I am under constraint. For woe to me if I do not preach the gospel!* 17 If [c] I do this willingly, I have a reward. But if unwillingly, it is a stewardship that has been entrusted to me. 18 What then is my reward? That preaching the gospel, I deliver the gospel without charge, so as not to abuse my right in the gospel.

Paul is All to All. 19 For, free though I was as to all, unto all I have made myself a slave that I might gain the more converts. 20 And [d] I have become to the Jews a Jew that I might gain the Jews; 21 to those under the Law,[e] as one under the Law (though not myself under the Law), that I might gain those under the Law; to those without the Law, as one without the Law (though I am not without the law of God, but am under the law of Christ), that I might gain those without the Law. 22 To [f] the weak I became weak, that I might gain the weak. I became all things to all men, that I might save all.* 23 I do all things for the sake of the gospel, that I may be made partaker thereof.

He Makes Sure His Reward. 24 Do you not know [g] that those who run in a race, all indeed run, but one receives the prize? So run as to obtain it. 25 And [h] everyone in a contest abstains from all things — and they indeed to receive a perishable crown, but we an imperishable. 26 I, therefore, so run as not without a purpose; I so fight as not beating the air; 27 but I chastise my body and bring it into subjection,[i] lest perhaps after preaching to others I myself should be rejected.

4. Against Overconfidence

CHAPTER 10.

Warning from Old Testament. 1 For I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that our fathers were all [j] under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, 2 and all were baptized in Moses, in the cloud and in the sea. 3 And all ate the same spiritual food, 4 and all drank the same spiritual drink* (for they drank from the spiritual rock which followed them, and the rock was Christ). 5 Yet

9, 5: Woman: the Greek text has "a sister woman." There is no question of a right to marry. The Apostles had that right, but there is no evidence that many of them used it. Paul here is defending his right to support from the Church, not only for himself, but also for a "sister" who would attend to his needs. Brethren of the Lord: cf Mk 6, 3; Acts 1, 13.

9, 6: Right to do this: the Greek text reads "right not to labor."

9, 9: Cf Dt 25, 4. The meaning of St. Paul is, "if God has such care for oxen, how much more for man."

9, 15: The end of the verse in the Greek text reads, "It is better for me to die than—no one shall make void my boast."

9, 16-18: Paul is not unwilling to preach the Gospel. He is referring to the fact that he did not become an apostle of his own initiative, but that he received his commission while opposing the Church. The miraculous call, as it were, leaves him no choice. Realizing that the grace of the apostolate outweighs his great efforts, he voluntarily forgoes rights so as to increase his reward.

9, 22: The end of the verse in the Greek text reads, "I have become all things to all men, that at all costs I may save some."

10, 3f: Spiritual food, spiritual drink: so called because of the miraculous nature of the manna and the water from the rock. Cf Ex 16, 15. 35; 17, 6; Nm 20, 11. Spiritual rock . . . Christ, pre-existing as God, protected the Jews, and produced this food and drink, which were types of sacraments that He would later institute.

with most of them God was not well pleased, [k] for "they were laid low in the desert."

6 Now these things came to pass as examples to us,* that we should not lust after evil things even as they lusted. 7 And do not become idolaters, even as some of them were, as it is written, "The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play."* 8 Neither let us commit fornication, [l] even as some of them committed fornication, and there fell in one day twenty-three thousand. 9 Neither [m] let us tempt Christ, as some of them tempted, and perished by the serpents. 10 Neither [n] murmur, as some of them murmured, and perished at the hands of the destroyer. 11 Now [o] all these things happened to them as a type, and they were written for our correction,* upon whom the final age of the world has come.

Application. 12 Therefore let him who thinks he stands take heed lest he fall. 13 May no temptation take hold of you but such as man is equal to.* God is faithful and will not permit you to be tempted beyond your strength, but with the temptation will also give you a way out that you may be able to bear it.

5. Discussion of Idol Offerings Resumed

The Table of the Lord. 14 Therefore, beloved, flee from the worship of idols. [p] I am speaking as to men of sense, 15 judge for yourselves what I say. 16 The cup of blessing that we bless, is it not the sharing of the blood of Christ? [q] And the bread that we break, is it not the partaking of the body of the Lord? 17 Because the bread is one, we though many, are one body,[r] all of us who partake of the one bread. 18 Behold Israel according to the flesh, [s] are not they who eat of the sacrifices* partakers of the altar? 19 What then do I say? That what is sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? 20 No; but I say that what the Gentiles sacrifice, [t] "they sacrifice to devils and not to God"; and I would not have you become associates of devils. 21 You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devils; you cannot be partakers of the table of the Lord and of the table of devils. 22 Or are we provoking [u] the Lord to jealousy? Are we stronger than he?

Practical Directions. All things are lawful, but not all things are expedient. 23 All things are lawful, but not all things edify. 24 Let [v] no one seek his own interests, but those of his neighbor. 25 Anything that is sold in the market, eat, asking no question for conscience' sake. 26 "The [w] earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof." 27 If one of the unbelievers invites you, and you wish to go, eat whatever is set before you, and ask no question for conscience' sake. 28 But if someone says "This has been sacrificed to idols," do not eat of it, for the sake of him who told you and for conscience' sake – 29 I mean the other's conscience, not thine. For why should my liberty be called to judgment by another's conscience? 30 If I partake with thanksgiving,[x] why am I ill spoken of for that for which I give thanks?

Give No Offense. 31 Therefore, [y] whether you eat or drink, or do anything else, do all for the glory of God. 32 Do not be a stumbling-block [z] to Jews and Greeks and to the church of God, 33 even as I myself in all things please all [a] men, not seeking what is profitable to myself but to the many, that they may be saved.

10, 7: Eat . . . play: refers to the eating of victims offered to idols, and to idolatrous dancing. Cf Ex 32, 6. 19.

10, 11: Type . . . for our correction: those who received the various types of Baptism and the Eucharist were not secure from punishment and loss, neither are we who receive the realities.

10, 13: The Greek text reads: "No temptation has taken hold of you but such as is human," i.e., not beyond human resistance. Our text expresses a wish.

10, 18-21: To partake of the sacrifice among the Jews was a means of union with God. The eating of things sacrificed to false gods, to devils (Dt 32, 17), by analogy implied union with them. This was not befitting one who had been united to Christ in the Eucharist.

11, 2: Hold fast my precepts: the Greek text has "keep the traditions."

would have you know [c] that the head of every man is Christ, and the head of the woman is the man, and the head of Christ is God.* 4 Every man praying or prophesying [d] with his head covered, disgraces his head. 5 But every woman praying or prophesying with her head uncovered disgraces her head, for it is the same as if she were shaven. 6 For if a woman is not covered, let her be shaven. But if it is a disgrace for a woman to have her hair cut off or her head shaved, let her cover her head. 7 A man indeed ought not to cover his head, because he is the image and glory of [e] God. But woman is the glory of man. 8 For man is not from woman, but woman from man. 9 For man was not created for woman, but woman for man. 10 This is why the woman ought to have a sign of authority over her head, *because of the angels.

11 Yet neither is man independent of woman, nor woman independent of man in the Lord. 12 For as the woman is from the man, so also is the man through the woman, but all things are from God. 13 Judge for yourselves: does it become a woman to pray to God uncovered? 14 Does not nature itself teach you that for a man to wear his hair long is degrading; 15 but for a woman to wear her hair long is a glory to her? Because her hair has been given her as a covering. 16 But if anyone is disposed to be contentious—we have no such custom,* neither have the churches of God.

2. The Eucharist

An Abuse. 17 But in giving this charge,* I do not commend [f] you in that you meet not for the better but for the worse. 18 For first of all I hear that when you meet in church [g] there are divisions among you, and in part I believe it. 19 For there must be factions,* so that those who are approved may be made manifest [h] among you. 20 So then when you meet together, it is no longer possible to eat the Lord's Supper. 21 For at the meal, each one takes first his own supper,* and one is hungry, and another drinks overmuch. 22 Have you not houses for your eating and drinking? Or do you despise the church of God and put to shame the [i] needy? What am I to say to you? Am I to commend you? In this I do not commend you.

Institution of the Eucharist. 23 For I myself have received from the Lord (what I also delivered to you),[j] that the Lord Jesus, on the night in which he was betrayed, took bread, 24 and giving thanks broke, and said, "This is my body which shall be given up for you; do this in remembrance of me." 25 In like manner also the cup, after he had supped, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood; do this as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me. 26 For as often as you shall eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the death of the Lord, until he comes." 27 Therefore [k] whoever eats this bread or drinks the cup of the Lord unworthily, will be guilty of the body and the blood of the Lord. 28 But [l] let a man prove himself, and so let him eat of that bread and drink of the cup; 29 for he who eats and drinks unworthily, without distinguishing the body, eats and drinks judgment to himself. 30 This is why many among you are infirm and weak,* and many [m] sleep. 31 But if we judged ourselves, we should not thus be judged. 32 But when we are judged, we are being chastised [n] by the Lord that we may not be condemned with this world. 33 Wherefore, my brethren, when you come together to eat, wait for one another. 34 If anyone is hungry, let him

11, 3-10: Paul finds a justification in nature for the custom of headdress and the significance attached to it. Christian teaching raised the position of women. There was naturally a tendency to push equality with men beyond due limits. Paul is opposing this in a practical way.

11, 10: Because of the angels: who assist at the divine service and are interested in having all done properly.

11, 16: St. Paul realizes that his argument may not be generally accepted, and so appeals to the authority of custom in the Church.

11, 17: But in giving this charge: the Greek reads, "Now making this charge, I do not praise," etc.

11, 19: Must be factions: considering man's pride and obstinacy there must be factions, but from this evil arises good in that the true and genuine Christians are made manifest.

11, 20-22: Among the early Christians, in imitation of the Last Supper, a slight meal, the Agape or love-feast, preceded the Eucharist service.

11, 23-30: This section teaches that: (1) the Eucharist is really the body and blood of Christ (24f); (2) the Apostles and their successors were empowered to perpetuate the act (24-26); (3) the Mass is a sacrifice (25 cf note); (4) the Mass is one with the sacrifice of the cross (26); (5) the Eucharist must be received worthily (27-30).

11, 25: The new covenant: Sacrificial blood sealed the old covenant; cf Ex 24, 8. This is the sacrificial blood that makes effective the new order established by God.

11, 30: Sickness and death are temporal punishments which were more common then (cf Acts 5, 5. 10; 1 Cor 5, 5), just as extraordinary external favors were more common.

eat at home, lest you come together unto judgment. The rest I shall set in order when I come.

V: THE SPIRITUAL GIFTS

1. Their Distribution

CHAPTER 12.

A Principle of Discrimination. 1 Now [o] concerning spiritual gifts,* brethren, I would not have you ignorant. 2 You know that when you were Gentiles, you went to dumb idols according as you were led. 3 Wherefore I give you to understand [p] that no one speaking in the Spirit of God says "Anathema"* to Jesus. And no one can say "Jesus is Lord," except in the Holy Spirit.

4 Now there are varieties of [q] gifts, but the same Spirit;* 5 and there are varieties of ministries,[r] but the same Lord; 6 and there are varieties of workings, but the same God, who works all things in all. 7 Now the manifestation of the Spirit is given to everyone for profit. 8 To one through the Spirit is given the utterance of wisdom; and to another the utterance of knowledge, according to the same Spirit; 9 to another faith, in the same Spirit; to another the gift of healing, in the one Spirit; 10 to another [s] the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another the distinguishing of spirits; to another various kinds of tongues; to another interpretation of tongues. 11 But [t] all these things are the work of one and the same Spirit, who allots to everyone according as he will.

12 For as the body [u] is one and has many members, and all the members of the body, many as they are, form one body, so also is it with Christ.

13 For in one Spirit we were all baptized into one body,[v] whether Jews or Gentiles, whether slaves or free; and we were all given to drink of one Spirit. 14 For the body [w] is not one member, but many. 15 If the foot says, "Because I am not a hand, I am not of the body," is it therefore not of the body? 16 And if the ear says, "Because I am not an eye, I am not of the body," is it therefore not of the body?

17 If the whole body were an eye, where would be the hearing? If the whole body were hearing, where would be the smelling? 18 But as it is, God has set the members, each of them, in the body as he willed. 19 Now if they were all one member, where would the body be? 20 But as it is, there are indeed many members,[x] yet but one body. 21 And the eye cannot say to the hand, "I do not need thy help"; nor again the head to the feet, "I have no need of you." 22 Nay, much rather, those that seem the more feeble members of the body are more necessary;* 23 and those that we think the less honorable members of the body,* we surround with more abundant honor, and our uncomely parts receive a more abundant comeliness, 24 whereas our comely parts have no need of it. But God has so tempered the body together in due portion as to give more abundant honor where it was lacking; 25 that there may be no disunion in the body, but that the members may have care for one another. 26 And if one member suffers anything, all the members suffer with it, or if one member glories, all the members rejoice with it.

Christ's Mystical Body. 27 Now you are the body of Christ,[y] member for member. 28 And [z] God indeed has placed some in the Church, first apostles, secondly prophets, thirdly teachers; after that miracles, then gifts of healing, services of help, power of administration, and the speaking of various tongues. 29 Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? 30 Are all workers of miracles? Do all have the gift of healing? Do all speak with tongues? Do all interpret? 31 Yet [a] strive after the greater gifts.*

o Hb 2, 18f.—p Mk 9, 39; 1 Jn 4, 2f.—q Rom 12, 6; Eph 4, 4.—r 1 Cor 12, 28; Eph 4, 11.—s 1 Cor 13, 2; 14, 5; Acts 2, 4.—t 1 Cor 7, 7; Rom 12, 3; Eph 4, 7.—u 1 Cor 12, 27; 10, 17.—v Gal 3, 28; Eph 2,13. 16.—w 1 Cor 12, 20.—x 1 Cor 12, 14.—y Rom 12, 5; Eph 5, 30.—z Eph 4, 11.—a 1 Cor 14, 1.

12, 1: Spiritual gifts: free, supernatural gifts perfecting human knowledge, speech, service and administrative ability, not for personal advantage, but for the good of the Church. Some of these gifts are listed in vv 8-10; 28-30; Eph 4, 11.

12, 3: The Greek text reads "Jesus is anathema." Faith in the Lordship of Christ is a necessary foundation for any true spiritual gift.

12, 4-6: Note that Spirit, Lord, God, terms used to designate God in the Old Testament, are applied in the New to the Holy Spirit, the Son and the Father respectively, as distinct Persons with one divine nature.

12, 22: More necessary: the Greek text and many Vulgate MSS have simply "necessary." As a matter of fact, some of the most delicate organs of the body are the most necessary.

12, 23f: Paul speaks of a natural tendency not to neglect but rather to give additional attention to those organs which do not have proper strength and beauty. So in the body of Christ attention will be given to the members not according to virtue and attractiveness but according to needs.

12, 31: Greater gifts: greater than those just described is charity, which follows.

2. A Digression on Charity

CHAPTER 13.

Its Excellence. 1 And I point out to you a yet more excellent way. If I should speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but do not have charity,* I have become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal. 2 And if I have prophecy and know all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith so as to remove mountains, yet do not have charity,[b] I am nothing. 3 And if I distribute all my goods[c] to feed the poor, and if I deliver my body to be burned,* yet do not have charity, it profits me nothing.

4 Charity is patient, is kind; charity does not envy, is not pretentious, is not puffed up, 5 is not ambitious,* is not self-seeking, is not provoked; thinks no evil, 6 does not rejoice over wickedness,[d] but rejoices with the truth; 7 bears with all things,[e] believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Contrast With Other Gifts. 8 Charity never fails, whereas prophecies will disappear, and tongues will cease, and knowledge will be destroyed. 9 For we know in part and we prophesy in part; 10 but when that which is perfect has come, that which is imperfect will be done away with. 11 When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I felt as a child, I thought as a child. Now that I have become a man, I have put away the things of a child. 12 We see now through a mirror* in an obscure manner, but then face to face. Now I know in part, but then [f] I shall know even as I have been known. 13 So there abide faith,[g] hope and charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

3. Gifts of Tongues and Prophecy

CHAPTER 14.

Superiority of Prophecy. 1 Aim at charity, yet strive after the spiritual gifts,[h] but especially that you may prophesy.* 2 For he who speaks in a tongue* does not speak to men but to God; for no one understands, as he is speaking mysteries in his spirit. 3 But he who prophesies speaks to men for edification, and encouragement, and consolation. 4 He who speaks in a tongue edifies himself, but he who prophesies edifies the church. 5 Now I should like you all to speak in tongues, but still more to prophesy;[i] for he who prophesies is greater than he who speaks in tongues,* unless he can interpret so that the church may receive edification.

Tongues Require Interpretation. 6 But now, brethren, if I come to you speaking in tongues* what shall I profit you, unless I speak to you [j] either in revelation, or in knowledge, or in prophecy, or in teaching? 7 Even inanimate instruments, like the flute or the harp, may produce sound, but if there is no difference in the notes, how shall it be known what is piped or harped? 8 If the trumpet give forth an uncertain sound, who will prepare for battle? 9 So likewise you – unless with the tongue you utter intelligible speech – how shall it be known what is said? For you will be speaking to the empty air. 10 There are, for example, so many kinds of languages in this world and none without a meaning. 11 If, then, I do not know the meaning of the language, I shall be to the one to whom I speak, a foreigner; and he who speaks, a foreigner to me. 12 So also you, since you strive after spiritual gifts,[k] seek to have them abundantly for the edification of the church.

b Mt 7, 22; 17, 20.—c Mt 6, 2.—d Rom 10, 12; 13, 9.—e Gal 6, 2.—f 2 Cor 5, 7; Jas 1, 23.—g 1 Thes 1, 3; 1 Jn 4, 16.—h 1 Cor 12, 10. 31.—i Nm 11, 29; 1 Cor 12, 10.—j 1 Cor 12, 8.—k 1 Cor 14, 1-4.

13, 1: Charity: here is meant the supernatural virtue comprising love of God above all things and love of neighbor for God. The Greek word implies not a mere sentimental feeling, but a sense of appreciation of the worth of God in Himself and in one's neighbor.

13, 3: Body to be burned: the precise meaning is not clear, but it would seem to mean a heroic self-sacrifice for some good natural motive.

13, 5: Is not ambitious: the Greek text reads: "does not behave unbecomingly." Thinks no evil: the Greek text reads: "does not take account of, or impute evil."

13, 12: Charity is the will's choice of God based on the knowledge of God. We know Him now indirectly through His reflection in creatures. This indirect vision is vague and distorted as was the vision seen through the metal mirrors of St. Paul's day. But when grace becomes the beatific vision through the lifting of the veil, we shall see God directly and know Him as He knows us.

14, 1: To prophesy: to preach extempore under special inspiration of God, to be His spokesman whether for instructing, rebuking, exhorting to virtue or foretelling the future.

14, 2: From this it appears that the gift of tongues, i.e., of speaking new languages, was given primarily with a view not to preaching but to praising God, thereby attracting men to God not by the words spoken but by the miracle of speaking various tongues.

14, 5: Interpretation of tongues was a gift distinct from the speaking of tongues, enabling the hearers to derive edification also from the words spoken. Cf v 2.

14, 6-19: Speaking in tongues was a gift more obviously miraculous, more novel, and for that reason naturally desired. Paul, without condemning the desire to speak in tongues, prefers the more simple and useful gift of prophecy which gave supernatural help to religious instruction.

13 Therefore let him who speaks [l] in a tongue pray that he may interpret. 14 For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my understanding is unfruitful. 15
What, then, is to be done? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray with the understanding also; I will sing [m] with the spirit, but I will sing with the understanding also. 16 Else if thou givest praise with the spirit alone, how shall he who fills the place of the uninstructed say
"Amen" to thy thanksgiving? For he does not know what thou sayest. 17 For thou, indeed, givest thanks well, but the other is not edified. 18 I thank God that I speak with all your tongues; 19 yet in the church, I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that I may also instruct others, than ten thousand words in a tongue.

Functions of These Gifts. 20 Brethren, do not become children in mind,[n] but in malice be children and in mind mature.
21 In the Law it is written that In other tongues and with other lips I will speak to this people, and not even so will they listen to me, says the Lord. 22 Wherefore tongues are intended as a sign, not to believers, but to unbelievers; whereas prophecies, not to unbelievers, but to believers. 23 Therefore, [o] if the whole church be assembled together and, while all are speaking with tongues, there should come in uninstructed persons or unbelievers, will they not say that you are mad? 24 Whereas if, while all are prophesying, there should come in an unbeliever or uninstructed person,[p] he is convicted by all, he is put on trial by all; 25 the secrets of his heart are made manifest, and so, falling on his face, he will worship God, declaring that God is truly [q] among you.

Practical Directions. 26 What then is to be done, brethren? When you come together [r] each of you has a hymn, has an instruction, has a revelation, has a tongue, has an interpretation. Let all things be done unto edification. 27 If anyone speaks in a tongue, let it be by twos or at most by threes, and let them speak in turn, and let one interpret. 28 But if there is no interpreter let him keep silence in the church, and speak to himself and to God. 29 Of the prophets, let two or three speak at a meeting, and let the rest act as judges.[s] 30 But if anything is revealed to another sitting by, let the first keep silence. 31 For you all can prophesy one by one, so that all may learn and all may be encouraged. 32 For the spirits of the prophets are under the control of the prophets. 33 For God is a God of peace, not of disorder.

Order Necessary. Thus I likewise teach* in all the churches of the saints. 34 Let women keep silence in the churches, for it is not permitted them to speak, but let them be submissive, [t] as the Law also says. 35 But if they wish to learn anything let them ask their husbands at home, for it is unseemly for a woman to speak in church.

36 What, was it from you that the word of God went forth? Or was it unto you only that it reached? 37 If anyone thinks that he is a prophet or spiritual, let him recognize that the things I am writing to you are the Lord's commandments.
38 If any one ignores this, he shall be ignored. 39 So then, brethren, desire earnestly the gift of prophesying and do not hinder the gift of speaking in tongues.
40 Only [u] let all things be done properly and in order.

VI: THE RESURRECTION

CHAPTER 15.

Christ's Resurrection. 1 Now I recall to your minds, brethren, the gospel that I preached to you, which also you received, wherein also you stand, 2 through which also you are being saved, if you hold it fast, as I preached it to you [v] — unless you have believed to no purpose. 3 For I delivered to you first of all, what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, 4 and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures, 5 and that he appeared to Cephas,[w] and after that to the Eleven.* 6 Then he was seen by more than five hundred brethren at one time, many of whom are with us

14, 22: Prophecies: the Greek text reads "prophecy."

14, 33: I likewise teach: omitted in the Greek text. This verse may be joined with what precedes instead of with what follows.

15, 5: Eleven: the correct reading is probably that of most Greek MSS, "the Twelve." In fact there were only eleven Apostles after the loss of Judas, but "the Twelve" had become the title of the group irrespective of the actual number.

still, but some have fallen asleep. 7 After that [x] he was seen by James, then by all the apostles. 8 And last of all, as by one born out of due time,* he was seen [y] also by me. 9 For [z] I am the least of the apostles, and am not worthy to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God. 10 But by the grace of God I am what I am, and his grace in me has not been fruitless – in fact I have labored more than any of them,[a] yet not I, but the grace of God with me. 11 Whether then it is I or they,* so we preach, and so you have believed.

The False Doctrine. 12 Now if Christ is preached as risen from the dead, how do some among you say that there is no resurrection of the dead? 13 But if there is no resurrection of the dead, neither has Christ risen; 14 and if Christ has not risen, vain* then is our preaching, vain too is your faith. 15 Yes, and we are found false witnesses as to God, in that we have borne witness against God that he raised Christ [b] – whom he did not raise, if the dead do not rise. 16 For if the dead do not rise, neither has Christ risen; 17 and if Christ has not risen,[c] vain is your faith, for you are still in your sins. 18 Hence they also who have fallen asleep in Christ, have perished. 19 If with this life only in view we have had hope in Christ, we are of all men the most to be pitied.

Christ the First-fruits. 20 But as it is, Christ has risen from the dead, the first-fruits [d] of those who have fallen asleep. 21 For since by a man came death,[e] by a man also comes resurrection of the dead. 22 For as in Adam all die, so in Christ all will be made to live. 23 But each [f] in his own turn, Christ as first-fruits, then they who are Christ's, who have believed,* at his coming. 24 Then comes the end, when he delivers the kingdom to God the Father, when he does away with all sovereignty, authority and power. 25 For he must reign, until [g] "he has put all his enemies under his feet." 26 And the last enemy to be destroyed will be death, for [h] "he has put all things under his feet." But when he says 27 all things are subject to him, undoubtedly he is excepted who has subjected all things to him. 28 And when all things are made subject to him, then the Son himself will also be made subject to him who subjected all things to him, that God may be all in all.

Practical Faith. 29 Else what shall they do who receive Baptism* for the dead? If the dead do not rise at all, why then do people receive Baptism for them? 30 And we, [i] why do we stand in jeopardy every hour? 31 I die daily,[j] I affirm it, by the very pride that I take in you, brethren, in Christ Jesus our Lord. 32 If, as men do, I fought with beasts* at Ephesus, what does it profit me? If the dead do not rise, [k] "let us eat and drink for tomorrow we shall die." 33 Do not be led astray, "evil companionships corrupt good morals."* 34 Awake [l] as you should, and do not sin; for some have no knowledge of God. To your shame I say so.

The Mode of the Resurrection. 35 But someone will say, "How do the dead rise? Or with what kind of body do they come?" 36 Senseless man, what thou thyself sowest [m] is not brought to life, unless it dies. 37 And when thou sowest, thou dost not sow the body that shall be, but a bare grain, perhaps of wheat or something else. 38 But God gives it a body even as he has willed, and to each of the seeds [n] a body of its own. 39 All flesh is not the same flesh, but there is one flesh of men, another of beasts, another of birds, another of fishes. 40 There are also heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but of one kind is the glory of the heavenly, of another kind the glory of the earthly. 41 There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another of the stars; for star differs from star in glory. 42 So also with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown in cor-

15, 8: Out of due time: prematurely; Paul refers to his sudden conversion which took place without the mature preparation that the Apostles received.

15, 11: i.e., "Whether it is I or they who have brought this gospel to you."

15, 14: Vain: i.e., empty, not resting on any reality.

15, 23: The last part of the verse in Greek reads, "then those who are Christ's, at his coming." Who have believed: does not seem to have been in the original Greek.

15, 29: From this it seems that the Christians were accustomed to receive Baptism externally as substitutes for the catechumens who had received it only in desire. It did not have sacramental effect, but was tolerated as being the performance of an act the catechumens desired but could not themselves receive. It showed a belief in the Resurrection.

15, 32: I fought with beasts: usually taken metaphorically.

15, 33: Quotation taken from "Thais," a play by Menander.

ruption rises in incorruption; 43 what is sown in dishonor rises in glory;[o] what is sown in weakness rises in power; 44 what is sown a natural body rises a spiritual body.

The Natural and the Spiritual Body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. So also it is written, 45 "The first man, [p] Adam, became a living soul"; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. 46 But it is not the spiritual that comes first, but the physical, and then the spiritual. 47 The first man was of the earth, [q] earthy; the second man is from heaven, heavenly. 48 As was the earthy man, such also are the earthy; and as is the heavenly man, such also are the heavenly. 49 Therefore, even as we have borne the likeness of the earthy,[r] let us bear also the likeness of the heavenly.

Final Glory of the Body. 50 Now this I say, brethren, [s] that flesh and blood can obtain no part in the kingdom of God, neither shall corruption have any part in incorruption. 51 Behold, I tell you a mystery: we shall all indeed rise,[t] but we shall not all be changed* — 52 in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. [u] For the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall rise incorruptible and we shall be changed. 53 For this corruptible body must put on incorruption,[v] and this mortal body must put on immortality. 54 But when this mortal body puts on immortality, then shall come to pass the word that is written, "Death is swallowed up in victory!* 55 O death, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?"

56 Now the sting of death [w] is sin, and the power of sin is the Law. 57 But thanks be to God who has given us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 Therefore, my beloved brethren, be steadfast and immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that your labor is not in vain in the Lord.

Conclusion

CHAPTER 16.

The Collection. 1 Now concerning the collection [x] being made for the saints,* as I have ordered the churches of Galatia, do you also. 2 On the first day of the week,[y] let each one of you put aside at home and lay up whatever he has a mind to, so that the collections may not have to be made after I have come. 3 But when I am with you, whomever you may authorize by giving credentials, them I will send to carry your gift to Jerusalem. 4 And if it is important enough* for me also to go, they shall go with me.

St. Paul's Plans. 5 But I shall come to you after passing through Macedonia [z] (for I mean to pass through Macedonia); 6 but with you I shall perhaps remain or even winter,* so that you may speed me [a] wherever I may be going. 7 For I do not wish to see you just now in passing by, [b] for I hope to stay some time with you, if the Lord permits. 8 But I shall stay on at Ephesus [c] until Pentecost. 9 For [d] a door has been opened to me, great and evident,* and there are many adversaries.

10 Now if Timothy [e] comes, see that he be with you without fear, for he works the work of the Lord just as I do. 11 Therefore, let no one despise him, but speed him on his way in peace [f] that he may come to me, for I am awaiting him with the brethren.

12 With regard to our brother Apollos,[g] I earnestly besought him to come to you with the brethren, and he was quite unwilling to come at present; but he will come when he has leisure.*

Final Directions and Greetings. 13 Watch, stand fast in the faith, act like men, be strong. 14 Let all that you do be done in charity. 15 Now I beseech you, brethren — you know that the household of Stephanas [h] and of Fortunatus are the first-fruits of Achaia, and have devoted themselves to the service of the saints —

15, 51: The text of most Greek MSS is preferred: "We shall not all sleep (die), but we shall all be changed." The meaning would then be that while those who are living at the last day will not die, they must undergo the change spoken of in the previous verses, from the natural to the spiritual body.

15, 54f: Cf Is 25, 8; Os 13, 14.

16, 1: The collection for the poor Christians of Jerusalem was requested by the other Apostles (Gal 2, 10). It is referred to in Rom 15, 26; Acts 24, 17; 2 Cor 8-9.

16, 4: Important enough, i.e., if the sum be large enough. Paul did eventually go (Rom 15, 25; Acts 24, 17).

16, 6: Paul did spend the winter at Corinth (Acts 20, 1-3).

16, 9: Evident: the Greek reads "effective." The meaning is that he has wide opportunities and prospects of success.

16, 12: It is clear from this verse that there was no rivalry between Paul and Apollos.

16 to such as these [i] do you also be subject, and to every helper and worker.
17 I rejoice at the presence of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus, because what was lacking on your part they have supplied; 18 for they have refreshed both my spirit and yours. [j] To such as these, therefore, give recognition.

19 The churches of Asia greet you. Aquila [k] and Priscilla with the church at their house greet you heartily in the Lord.
20 All the brethren greet you. [l] Greet one another with a holy kiss.

21 I, Paul, greet you, [m] with my own hand. 22 If any man does not love the Lord Jesus Christ, [n] let him be anathema. Maranatha.* 23 The grace of our Lord Jesus be with you. 24 My love is with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS

St. Paul wrote this second canonical Epistle to the Christians of Corinth from Macedonia towards the close of his third missionary journey, and therefore very probably around the year 57 of our era. The Apostle had lately come from Ephesus, where he had spent over two years, and was on his way to Corinth. He had previously sent Titus to Corinth to visit the new community and to ascertain the effect on the faithful there of a severe letter which he had been obliged to write them some time before.

Paul and Titus had first arranged to meet at Troas, a Mysian seaport on the eastern shore of the Aegean Sea; but St. Paul arrived there ahead of schedule, and being anxious for news from Corinth, went across the sea to Philippi in Macedonia, and it was probably there that he met his envoy.

The report given by Titus of the effect on the Corinthians of St. Paul's letter from Ephesus occasioned this Epistle. In it the Apostle defends his life and ministry, urges that the collection—already requested and begun—be made for the poor Christians in Jerusalem, and replies to his bitter opponents. The Epistle ranks with those to Timothy and the Galatians as the most intensely personal of St. Paul's writings. But unlike the letters to Timothy, which are calmly pastoral and directive, this Epistle is vehement and hotly polemical, especially in the four closing chapters. The writer will have his critics and adversaries understand that he is a true apostle of Jesus Christ, and that his sincerity and authority have been amply attested by extraordinary visitations from heaven and by unparalleled labors and sufferings in behalf of the Gospel.

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, to the church of God that is at Corinth, with all the saints that are in the whole of Achaia: 2 grace be to you and peace from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Comfort in Trouble. 3 Blessed [a] be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort, 4 who comforts us in all our afflictions, that we also may be able to comfort those who are in any distress by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted by God. 5 For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so also through Christ does our comfort abound.
6 For whether we are afflicted, it is for your instruction and salvation; or whether we are comforted, it is for your comfort; which shows its efficacy in the endurance of the selfsame sufferings that we also suffer. 7 And our hope for you is steadfast, knowing that as you are partakers of the sufferings, so will you also be of the comfort.

i Phil 2, 29.—j 1 Thes 5, 12.—k Acts 18, 2. 18. 26.—l Rom 16, 3. 5. 16; 2 Cor 13, 12; 1 Pt 5, 14.—m Col 4, 18; 2 Thes 3, 17.—n Gal 1, 8f.—a Eph 1, 3; 1 Pt 1, 3.

16, 22: Maranatha: the Aramaic Maran atha means, "The Lord comes." By another division of the letters, Marana tha, one gets, "Our Lord, come."

Persecution and Deliverance. 8 For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of the affliction which came upon us in Asia. We were crushed beyond measure – beyond our strength, so that we were weary even of life.* 9 Yes, we have been carrying, within our very selves, our death sentence;* in order that we may not trust in ourselves, but in God who raises the dead. 10 He it is who delivered us, and will deliver us, from such great perils; and in him we have hope to be delivered yet again, 11 through the help of your prayers for us. Thus, for the gift bestowed on us at the instance of many persons, thanks will be given by many on our behalf.

His Sincerity. 12 For our boast is this, the testimony of our conscience that in simplicity and godly sincerity – not in carnal wisdom, but in the grace of God – we have conducted ourselves in the world, and especially in our relations with you. 13 For we write nothing to you that you do not read and understand. Indeed, I hope you will always understand, 14 even as you have understood us in part, that we are your boast, as you will also be ours, in the day* of our Lord Jesus Christ.

I: PERSONAL DEFENSE

1. The Apostle Explains His Delay

He Is Not Fickle. 15 With this assurance I meant, in order that you might enjoy a double grace, to visit you first, 16 and to pass through you into Macedonia, and from Macedonia to come again to you, and by you to be sent forward on my way to Judea. 17 Now in this my intention, did I show fickleness? Or are my plans made according to the flesh, so that with me it is now "Yes" and now "No"? 18 God is my witness that our message to you is not both "Yes" and "No." 19 For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us – by me and Silvanus and Timothy – was not now "Yes" and now "No," but only "Yes" was in him. 20 For all the promises of God find their "Yes" in him; and therefore through him also rises the "Amen" to God unto our glory. 21 Now it is God who is warrant for us and for you in Christ, who has anointed us, 22 who has also stamped us with his seal* and has given us the Spirit as a pledge in our hearts.

His Wish to Spare Them. 23 Now I call God to witness against my soul that it was to spare you that I did not again come to Corinth. Not that we lord it over your faith, but rather we are fellow-workers in your joy; for in faith you stand.

CHAPTER 2.

1 But *I made up my mind not to come to you again in sorrow. 2 For if I make you sad, who can gladden me, save the very one that is grieved by me? 3 And I wrote to you as I did, that when I come I may not have sorrow upon sorrow from those who ought to give me joy; for I trust in you all that my joy is the joy of you all. 4 For I wrote to you in much affliction and anguish of heart, with many tears, not that you might be grieved, but that you might know the great love I have for you.

He Pardons the Offender. 5 Now if anyone has caused grief, he has not grieved me, but in a measure (not to be too severe) all of you. 6 For such a one this punishment meted out by the many is sufficient. 7 On the contrary, then, you should rather forgive and comfort him, lest perchance he be overwhelmed by too much sorrow. 8 Therefore I exhort you to assure him of your love for him. 9 For to this very end also did I write, that I might test you and know whether you are obedient in all things. 10 Whom you pardon anything, I also pardon. Indeed, what I have forgiven–if I have forgiven anything–I have done for your sakes, in the person of Christ, 11 that we may not be defeated by Satan; for we are not unaware of his devices.

Thanksgiving for Good News. 12 Now when I came to Troas to preach the gospel of Christ, though I had there a great opportunity in the Lord, 13 I had no peace of mind, because I did not find Titus my brother. And so, bidding them farewell, I went on to Macedonia. 14 But thanks

1, 8: The sense of the Greek is: "so that we despaired even of life."

1, 9: Death sentence: the Apostle had passed through a serious illness.

1, 14: The day, etc.: the day of judgment at the Second Coming of Christ.

1, 15: St. Paul begins here to refute the accusation of his enemies that he is fickle.

1, 21: Anointed us doubtless refers to the call and commission of the Apostles to preach the gospel and do the work of the ministry.

1, 22: With his seal: the gifts of the Holy Spirit.

2, 1-4: These verses would seem to refer to a visit and to a letter other than our First Corinthians intervening between the Apostle's first visit to Corinth and the writing of this present letter.

be to God who always leads us in triumph* in Christ Jesus, manifesting through us the odor of his knowledge in every place. 15 For we are the fragrance of Christ for God, alike as regards those who are saved and those who are lost; 16 to these an odor that leads to death, but to those an odor that leads to life.* And for such offices, who is sufficient? 17 We, at least, are not, as many others, adulterating* the word of God; but with sincerity, as coming from God, we preach in Christ in God's presence.

2. The Apostle Defends His Assurance

CHAPTER 3.

They Are His Commendation. 1 Are we beginning again to commend* ourselves? Or do we need, as some do, letters of commendation to you or from you? 2 You are our letter, written on our hearts, which is known and read by all men; 3 clearly you are a letter of Christ, composed by us, written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on fleshly tablets of the heart.

Excellence of the New Law. 4 Such is the assurance I have through Christ towards God. 5 Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything, as from ourselves, but our sufficiency is from God. 6 He also it is who has made us fit ministers of the new covenant, not of the letter but of the spirit; for the letter kills, but the spirit gives life.

7 Now if the ministration of death,* which was engraved in letters upon stones, was inaugurated in such glory that the children of Israel could not look steadfastly upon the face of Moses on account of the transient glory that shone upon it, 8 shall not the ministration of the spirit* be still more glorious? 9 For if there is glory in the ministration that condemned, much more does the ministration that justifies abound in glory. 10 For though the former ministration was glorified, yet in this regard it is without glory, because of the surpassing glory of the latter. 11 For if that which was transient was glorious, much more is that glorious which abides.*

The Veil Is Taken Away. 12 Having therefore such hope,* we show great boldness. 13 We [b] do not act as Moses did, who used to put a veil over his face that the Israelites might not observe the glory of his countenance, which was to pass away. 14 But their minds were darkened; for to this day, when the Old Testament is read to them, the selfsame veil remains, not being lifted to disclose the Christ in whom it is made void. 15 Yes, down to this very day, when Moses is read, the veil covers their hearts; 16 but when they turn in repentance to God, the veil shall be taken away. 17 Now [c] the Lord is the spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom.* 18 But we all, with faces unveiled, reflecting as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into his very image from glory to glory, as through the Spirit of the Lord.

CHAPTER 4.

1 Discharging therefore this ministry in accordance with the mercy* shown us, we do not lose heart. 2 On the contrary, we renounce those practices which shame conceals, we avoid unscrupulous conduct, we do not corrupt the word of God; but making known the truth, we commend ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God. 3 And if our gospel also is veiled, it is veiled only to those who are perishing. 4 In their case, the god of this world has blinded their unbelieving minds, that they should not see the light of the gospel of the glory

b Ex 34, 33.—c Jn 4, 24.

2, 14: Leads us in triumph: as in Col 2, 15. The Apostle is overjoyed at the good news from Corinth which Titus has brought.

2, 16: The preaching of the Apostles meant eternal life to those who obeyed it, but to those who refused it, eternal death.

2, 17: Adulterating: literally the term means in Greek "huckstering," i.e., trading in the word of God. In Christ: i.e., as members of Christ and ministers of His word.

3, 1: Again to commend, etc.: implies that the Apostle had already been accused of self-recommendation, perhaps in 1 Cor, or in a lost letter written after our 1 Cor.

3, 7: Ministration of death: the Mosaic Law, which had no power, apart from faith and grace, to save from spiritual death.

3, 8: Ministration of the spirit: the New Law, the gospel.

3, 11: The splendor which accompanied the giving of the Old Law, like the Law itself, was passing.

3, 12: Such hope: of one day enjoying the fullness of the glory spoken of in v 8.

3, 13: The sense of the Greek is "that the children of Israel might not gape upon the end of that which was being destroyed."

3, 14: Their minds: i.e., the minds of the Jews who would not accept the gospel.

3, 17: Freedom: from the ceremonial precepts and bondage of Mosaic legislation, but not from its moral teaching.

4, 1: Mercy: the Apostle's supernatural vocation to preach the gospel to the Gentiles.

of Christ, who is the image of God.* [5] For we preach not ourselves, but Jesus Christ as Lord, and ourselves merely as your servants in Jesus. [6] For God, who commanded* light to shine out of darkness, has shone in our hearts, to give enlightenment concerning the knowledge of the glory of God, shining on the face of Christ Jesus.

Frailty and Support. [7] But we carry this treasure* in vessels of clay, to show that the abundance of the power is God's and not ours. [8] In all things we suffer tribulation, but we are not distressed; we are sore pressed, but we are not destitute; [9] we endure persecution, but we are not forsaken; we are cast down, but we do not perish; [10] always bearing about in our body the dying of Jesus, so that the life also of Jesus may be made manifest in our bodily frame. [11] For we the living are constantly being handed over to death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus may be made manifest in our mortal flesh. [12] Thus death is at work in us, but life in you. [13] But since we have the same spirit of faith, as shown in that which is written — [d] I believed, and so I spoke — we also believed, wherefore we also speak. [14] For we know that he who raised up Jesus will raise up us also with Jesus, and will place us with you.* [15] For all things are for your sakes, so that the grace which abounds through the many may cause thanksgiving to abound, to the glory of God.

[16] Wherefore we do not lose heart. On the contrary, even though our outer man is decaying, yet our inner man is being renewed day by day. [17] For our present light affliction, which is for the moment, prepares for us an eternal weight of glory* that is beyond all measure; [18] while we look not at the things that are seen, but at the things that are not seen. For the things that are seen are temporal, but the things that are not seen are eternal.

CHAPTER 5.

Reward after Death. [1] For we know that if the earthly house in which we dwell be destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made by human hands, eternal in the heavens. [2] And indeed, in this present state we groan, yearning to be clothed over* with that dwelling of ours which is from heaven, [3] if indeed we shall be found clothed, [e] and not naked.* [4] For we who are in this tent sigh under our burden, because we do not wish to be unclothed, but rather clothed over, that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life. [5] Now he who made us for this very thing is God, who has given us the Spirit as its pledge.*

[6] Always full of courage, then, and knowing that while we are in the body we are exiled from the Lord* — [7] for we walk by faith and not by sight — [8] we even have the courage to prefer to be exiled from the body and to be at home with the Lord. [9] And therefore we strive, whether in the body or out of it, to be pleasing to him. [10] For [f] all of us must be made manifest before the tribunal of Christ, so that each one may receive what he has won through the body, according to his works, whether good or evil.

3. The Apostle Defends His Sincerity

His Labor for God and Souls. [11] Knowing therefore the fear of the Lord,* we try to persuade men; but to God we are manifest. And I hope also that in your consciences we are manifest.

[12] We are not again commending ourselves to you; but we are giving you occasion to boast about us, that you may have an answer for them who glory in appearances and not in heart. [13] For if we were out of our mind, it was for God;*

d Ps 115 (116B), 1.—e Ap 16, 15.—f Rom 14, 10.

4, 4: The image of God: Christ is the image of God, (a) as having the same nature as the Father; (b) as being the Son of the Father; (c) as being equal to the Father (St. Thomas).

4, 6: For God, who commanded, etc.: the best reading here is, "For God who said, 'Out of darkness light shall shine.'"

4, 7: This treasure, etc.: the Christian ministry is discharged by frail human beings.

4, 14: And will place us with you: in heaven.

4, 17: This verse proves that the good works of the just on earth are meritorious of eternal life, as the Council of Trent teaches.

5, 2: To be clothed over, etc.: the Apostle wishes that he might attain immortality without passing through death, that he might take on the resurrected body over his natural body.

5, 3: The sense of the Greek is: "although, assuredly, when we have put it on, we shall not find ourselves naked."

5, 5: The Spirit as its pledge: The Holy Spirit received in Baptism is the earnest, the warrant, a foretaste of eternal life.

5, 6: The Apostle means to say, if death is necessary before we can be with Christ, then welcome death.

5, 11: The fear of the Lord: the fear inspired by the thought of the judgment to come. To God we are manifest: the Apostles have to resort to persuasion to convince men of their sincerity, but not so with regard to God, who reads their hearts and souls.

5, 13: When the Apostle spoke of the graces and privileges he had received from God, his adversaries accused him of madness; but he spoke thus for the glory of God and the welfare of the faithful.

if we are sane, it is for you. 14 For the love of Christ* impels us, because we have come to the conclusion that, since one died for all, therefore all died; 15 and that Christ died for all, in order that they who are alive may live no longer for themselves, but for him who died for them and rose again.

16 So that henceforth we know no one according to the flesh. And even though we have known Christ according to the flesh,* yet now we know him so no longer. 17 If then any man is in Christ, he is a new creature: the former things have passed away; [g] behold, they are made new! 18 But all things are from God, who has reconciled us to himself through Christ and has given to us the ministry of reconciliation.

19 For God was truly in Christ, reconciling the world to himself by not reckoning against men their sins and by entrusting to us the message of reconciliation.

Ambassadors of Christ. 20 On behalf of Christ, therefore, we are acting as ambassadors, God, as it were, appealing through us. We exhort you, for Christ's sake, be reconciled to God. 21 For our sakes* he made him to be sin who knew nothing of sin, so that in him we might become the justice of God.

CHAPTER 6.

1 Yes, working together with him we entreat you not to receive the grace of God in vain. 2 For he says, [h] In an acceptable time I have heard thee, and in the day of salvation I have helped thee. Behold, now is the acceptable time; behold, now is the day of salvation! 3 We [i] give no offense to anyone,* that our ministry may not be blamed. 4 On the contrary, let us conduct ourselves* in all circumstances as God's ministers,[j] in much patience; in tribulations, in hardships, in distresses; 5 in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults; in labors, in sleepless nights, in fastings; 6 *in innocence, in knowledge, in long-sufferings; in kindness, in the Holy Spirit, in unaffected love; 7 in the word of truth, in the power of God; with the armor of justice on the right hand and on the left; 8 in honor and dishonor, in evil report and good report; as deceivers and yet truthful, as unknown and yet well known, 9 as dying and behold, we live, as chastised but not killed, 10 as sorrowful yet always rejoicing, as poor yet enriching many, as having nothing yet possessing all things.

11 We are frank with you, O Corinthians; our heart is wide open to you. 12 In us there is no lack of room for you, but in your heart there is no room for us. 13 Now as having a recompense in like kind—I speak as to my children—be you also open wide to us.

Avoid Marriage with Unbelievers. 14 Do not bear the yoke* with unbelievers. For what has justice in common with iniquity? Or what fellowship has light with darkness? 15 What harmony is there between Christ and Belial?* Or what part has the believer with the unbeliever? 16 And what agreement has the temple of God with idols? For you are the temple of the living God, as God says, [k] I will dwell and move among them, I will be their God and they shall be my people. 17 Wherefore, Come out from among them, be separated, says the Lord, and touch not an unclean thing; 18 and I will welcome you in, [l] and will be a Father to you, and you shall be my sons and daughters, says the Lord almighty.

CHAPTER 7.

1 Having therefore these promises, beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all defilement of the flesh and of the spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

g Is 43, 19; Ap 21, 5.—h Is 49, 8.—i 1 Cor 10, 32.—j 1 Cor 4, 1.—k 1 Cor 3, 17; 6, 19; Lv 26, 12.—l Jer 31, 9.

5, 14: For the love of Christ, etc.: the love Christ has for men both urges and restricts the energies and activities of the Apostle to the things that pertain to the service of God and the salvation of human souls, to the exclusion of all selfish interests.

5, 16: Have known Christ according to the flesh: referring to the time before his conversion.

5, 21: For our salvation the sinless Son of God, in the Person of Christ our Redeemer, became identified with our sins; so that God "suffered Him to be condemned as a sinner, and to die as one accursed."

6, 3: We give no offense to anyone: the Greek has, "We give offense in nothing."

6, 4: Let us conduct ourselves, etc.: the Greek reads: "But in everything commending ourselves," etc. In much patience, etc.: the Apostle here begins an enumeration of nine classes of things that tried his patience and the patience of his companions (vv 4f).

6, 6f: St. Paul now mentions nine other practices by which he and his fellow-workers commended themselves in their ministry.

6, 14: Bear the yoke: the reference is to marriage, though the principle has application to all relations of Christians and pagans.

6, 15: Belial, or Beliar: a Hebrew word meaning "nothingness," "uselessness." In a secondary sense it means extreme wickedness, and it was commonly understood by the Fathers as a designation for the devil, or Satan.

4. The Apostle Defends His Previous Letter

Love for the Corinthians. 2 Make room for us. We have wronged no one, we have corrupted no one, we have taken advantage of no one.* 3 I am not saying this to condemn you; for I have already said that you are in our hearts, to die together and to live together. 4 Great is my confidence in you, great my boasting about you. I am filled with comfort, I overflow with joy in all our troubles.

5 For indeed when we came to Macedonia, our flesh had no rest; we had troubles on every side, conflicts without and anxieties within. 6 But God, who comforts the humble, comforted us by the arrival of Titus.* 7 And not by his arrival only, but also by the comfort which he himself experienced in you. He told us of your longing, of your sorrow, of your zeal for me, so that I rejoiced yet more.

Their Repentance. 8 Wherefore, although I made you sorry by my letter,* I do not regret it. And even if I did regret it, seeing that the same letter did for a while make you sorry, 9 now I am glad; not because you were made sorry, but because your sorrow led you to repentance. For you were made sorry according to God, that you might suffer no loss at our hands. 10 For [m] the sorrow that is according to God produces repentance that surely tends to salvation, whereas the sorrow that is according to the world produces death. 11 For behold this very fact that you were made sorry according to God, what earnestness it has wrought in you, nay, what explanations, what indignation, what fear, what yearning, what zeal, what readiness to avenge! In everything you have showed yourselves to be innocent in the matter.

m 1 Pt 2, 19.

7, 2: The Apostle is here refuting the accusation of his enemies.

7, 6f: The news brought from Corinth by Titus greatly consoled St. Paul.

7, 8: Here again the Apostle seems to be referring to a lost letter, or to a letter much more severe than our First Corinthians.

7, 12: Who suffered the wrong: would seem to refer to St. Paul himself. The person who did the wrong can hardly be the incestuous man of 1 Cor 5, 1ff, but someone who had given personal offense to the Apostle. The zeal we have for you: the Greek text reads: "The zeal you have for us."

8, 4: Saints: the poor Christians of Jerusalem.

8, 5: They gave themselves, first, etc.: they put their lives and persons at the disposition, first of Christ, and then of the Apostles for Christ's sake.

8, 8: Zeal of others: the earnestness of the Macedonians.

12 If then I did write to you, it was not for the sake of him who did the wrong, nor for the sake of him who suffered the wrong;* but to make clear the zeal we have for you, 13 before God This is why we have been comforted. But besides our own comfort, we more especially rejoiced at the joy of Titus, because his mind had been set at rest by you all. 14 And if I did boast to him at all about you, I have not been put to shame; but just as we have spoken all things in truth to you, so also has the boasting we made to Titus been found to be true. 15 And his affection for you is all the more abundant, as he recalls how obedient you all were and how you received him with fear and trembling. 16 I rejoice that in all things I can have confidence in you.

II. THE COLLECTION FOR THE POOR CHRISTIANS IN JERUSALEM

CHAPTER 8.

Example of the Macedonians. 1 Now we make known to you, brethren, the grace of God that has been bestowed upon the churches of Macedonia; 2 where, amid much testing of tribulation, their overflowing joy and their very deep poverty have resulted in rich generosity. 3 For according to their means—I bear them witness—yes, beyond their means, they gave, 4 earnestly begging of us the favor of sharing in the ministry that is in behalf of the saints.* 5 And beyond our expectations they gave themselves, first* to the Lord, and then by the will of God to us. This led us to exhort Titus to complete among you also this same gracious work, of which he had made a beginning before.

Exhortation. 7 Now, as you abound in everything—in faith, in utterance, in knowledge, in all zeal, and in your love for us—may you excel in this gracious work also. 8 I do not speak as commanding, but as testing the sincerity of your own charity by means of the zeal of others.* 9 For you know the graciousness of our Lord Jesus Christ—how, being rich, he became poor for your sakes, that by his poverty you might become rich.

10 In this matter I am giving advice. It is to your interest, since a year ago you not only began to do, but also to have the will. 11 Now therefore complete the doing also; so that your readiness to begin it may be equalled by your desire to carry it through, according to your ability. 12 For if there is willingness, it is welcome according to what one has, not according to what one does not have.

13 For I do not mean that the relief of others should become your burden, but that there should be equality; 14 that at the present time your abundance* may supply their want, and that their abundance may, in its turn, make up what you lack, thus establishing an equality, as it is written, 15 [n] He who had much had nothing over, and he who had little had not less.

The Mission of Titus. 16 Now thanks be to God, who has inspired Titus with this same zeal for you. 17 For not only has he accepted our exhortation, but being very zealous himself, he has gone to you of his own choice. 18 And we have sent along with him the brother whose services to the gospel are praised in all the churches; 19 and what is more, who was also appointed by the churches to travel with us in this work of grace which is being done by us, to the glory of the Lord and to show our own readiness. 20 We are on our guard, lest anyone should slander us in the matter of our administration of this generous amount.* 21 For [o] we take forethought for what is honorable, not only before God, but also in the sight of men. 22 And we have sent with them also our brother,* whom we have proved to be zealous often and in many things, but who now is more in earnest than ever, because of his great confidence in you, 23 whether as regards Titus, who is my companion and fellow-worker among you, or as regards our brethren, the messengers of the churches, the glory of Christ.* 24 Give them therefore, in the sight of the churches, a proof of your charity and of our boasting on your behalf.

CHAPTER 9.

The Collection to be Made Promptly. 1 For it is indeed superfluous for me to write to you with reference to this charitable service to the saints. 2 For I know your eagerness, whereof I boast about you to the Macedonians—that Achaia has been ready since last year—and your zeal has stimulated very many. 3 Still, I have sent the brethren, lest our boasting concerning you should be found empty in this instance; that, as I was saying, you may be ready, 4 lest, if any Macedonians come with me and find you unprepared, we—not to say yourselves—should be put to shame for having been so sure. 5 I have therefore thought it necessary to exhort the brethren to go to you in advance and to get ready this promised contribution, so that it may be as a matter of bounty, and not of extortion.

Exhortation to Generosity. 6 Mark this: he who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and he who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully. 7 Let each one give according as he has determined in his heart, not grudgingly or from compulsion, for [p] "God loves a cheerful giver." 8 And God is able to make all grace abound in you, so that always having ample means, you may abound in every good work, 9 as it is written, [q] He has scattered abroad and has given to the poor, his justice remains forever.

10 Now he who provides the sower with seed will both give you bread to eat and will multiply your seed, and will increase the growth of the fruits of your justice; 11 that, being enriched in all things, you may contribute with simplicity of purpose, and thus through us evoke thanksgiving to God; 12 for the administration of this service not only supplies the want of the saints, but overflows also in much gratitude to the Lord. 13 The evidence furnished by this service makes them glorify God for your obedient profession of Christ's gospel and for the sincere generosity of your contributions to them and to all; 14 while they themselves, in their prayers for you, yearn for you, because of the excellent grace God has given you. 15 Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift!*

n Ex 16, 18.—o Rom 12, 17.—p Sir 35, 8.—q Ps 111 (112), 9.

8, 14: Your abundance: Corinth was a center of great wealth. Their abundance: may refer to the spiritual plenty of the Christians in Jerusalem, or to the material goods which might be theirs at some future time.

8, 20: St. Paul took care that the collection should be handled by several representing the churches, so as not to give his enemies any chance to accuse him of misappropriating the money.

8, 22: Our brother: some trusted fellow-Christian who was to be the third delegate to go to Corinth. Perhaps it was Tychicus.

8, 23: The Greek reads, "Whether it be Titus, he is my companion and fellow-worker among you; or our brethren, they are the messengers of the churches . . ."

9, 15: Unspeakable gift: the gift of faith and charity spoken of in the preceding verse.

III: THE APOSTLE DEFENDS HIS APOSTOLATE

CHAPTER 10.

His Authority. 1 Now I myself, Paul, appeal to you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ—I who to your face indeed am diffident* when among you, but when absent am fearless towards you! 2 Yes, I beseech you that I may not when I come have to be bold, with that assurance wherewith I am thought to be bold, against those who regard us as walking according to the flesh. 3 For though we walk in the flesh, we do not make war according to the flesh; 4 for the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but powerful before God to the demolishing of strongholds, the destroying of reasoning*
— 5 yes, of every lofty thing that exalts itself against the knowledge of God, bringing every mind into captivity to the obedience of Christ, 6 and being prepared to take vengeance on all disobedience when once your own submission is complete.
7 Look at what is before you. If anyone is confident that he is Christ's, let him reflect within himself that even as he is Christ's, so too are we. 8 For even if I boast somewhat more about our authority (which the Lord has given for your upbuilding, and not for your destruction), I shall not be put to shame. 9 But that I may not seem to terrify you, as it were, by letters 10 ("for his letters," they say, "are weighty and telling, but his bodily appearance is weak and his speech of no account"), 11 let such people understand that what we are in word by letters when absent, such are we also in deed when bodily present.
12 Of course we have not the boldness to class ourselves or to compare ourselves with certain ones who commend themselves. We, on the contrary, measure ourselves by ourselves and compare ourselves with ourselves;* 13 and so [r] we do not boast beyond our limits, but within the limits of the commission which God has given us—limits which include you also.
14 For we are not going beyond our commission, as if it did not embrace you, since we reached even as far as you with the gospel of Christ.
15 We do not boast beyond our limits, in the labors of other men; but we hope,
as your faith increases, greatly to enlarge through you the province allotted to us, 16 so as even to preach the gospel in places that lie beyond you, instead of boasting in another man's sphere about work already done. 17 "But he who boasts, [s] let him boast in the Lord." 18 For he is not approved who commends himself, but he whom the Lord commends.

CHAPTER 11.

He Preached Gratuitously. 1 Would to God that you could bear with a little of my foolishness!* Nay, do bear with me!
2 For I am jealous for you with a divine jealousy.* For I betrothed you to one spouse, that I might present you a chaste virgin to Christ. 3 But I fear lest, [t] as the serpent seduced Eve by his guile, so your minds may be corrupted and fall from a single devotion to Christ. 4 For if he who comes preaches another Christ whom we did not preach, or if you receive another Spirit whom you have not received, or another gospel which you did not accept, you might well bear with him.* 5 For I regard myself as nowise inferior to the great apostles.* 6 Even though I be rude in speech, yet I am not so in knowledge; but in every way we have made ourselves clear to you.
7 Or did I do wrong when I humbled myself that you might be exalted, preaching to you the gospel of God free of charge? 8 I stripped other churches, taking pay from them so as to minister to you. 9 And when I was with you and in want, I was a burden to no one; for the brethren from Macedonia supplied my needs. Thus in all things I have kept myself from being a burden to you, and so I intend to keep myself. 10 By the truth of Christ which is in me, this boast shall not be taken from me in the districts of r Eph 4, 7.—s Jer 9, 23; 1 Cor 1, 31.—t Gn 3, 4.

10, 1: Am diffident, etc.: thus did the Apostle's adversaries speak about him.

10, 4f: Faith is a gift of God and is above reason, though not contrary to it. Everything that opposes faith is wrong and must be set aside or destroyed.

10, 12: The Greek reads, " . . . but they, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves with themselves . . . "

11, 1: Foolishness: the folly of self-praise which the Corinthians have forced the Apostle to indulge in for the moment. Had they remained loyal to him and to his preaching, such folly would have been unnecessary.

11, 2: Divine jealousy: St. Paul's zeal for the Corinthians was like God's for the people of Israel. One spouse: by their conversion the Corinthians became espoused to Christ.

11, 4: The supposition here is impossible since there is only one Christ, one Holy Spirit, one heavenly Gospel.

11, 5: Great apostles: may refer ironically to the false leaders at Corinth, or sincerely to the Twelve. St. Paul was certainly far superior to the former, and not inferior to the latter in his apostolate.

Achaia. [11] Why so? Because I do not love you? God knows I do. [12] But what I do I will go on doing, that I may deprive them of the occasion *who are seeking an occasion to boast that they are doing the same as we do. [13] For they are false apostles, deceitful workers, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ. [14] And no wonder, for Satan himself disguises himself as an angel of light. [15] It is no great thing, then, if his ministers disguise themselves as ministers of justice. But their end will be according to their works.

His Ministry of Labor and Suffering. [16] I repeat, let no one think me foolish. But if so, then regard me as such, that I also may boast a little. [17] What I am saying in this confidence of boasting, I am not speaking according to the Lord,* but as it were in foolishness. [18] Since many boast according to the flesh, I too will boast. [19] For you gladly put up with fools, because you are wise yourselves! [20] For you suffer it if a man enslaves you, if a man devours you, if a man takes from you, if a man is arrogant, if a man slaps your face! [21] I speak to my own shame, as though we had been weak. But wherein any man is bold—I am speaking foolishly—I also am bold. [22] Are they Hebrews? So am I! Are they Israelites? So am I! Are they offspring of Abraham? So am I! [23] Are they ministers of Christ? I—to speak as a fool—am more: in many more labors, in prisons more frequently, in lashes above measure, often exposed to death. [24] From the Jews [u]five times I received forty lashes less one. [25] Thrice [v] I was scourged, once I was stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I was adrift on the sea; [26] in journeyings often, in perils from floods, in perils from robbers, in perils from my own nation, in perils from the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils from false brethren; [27] in labor and hardships, in many sleepless nights, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. [28] Besides those outer things, there is my daily pressing anxiety, the care of all the churches! [29] Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is made to stumble, and I am not inflamed? [30] If I must boast, I will boast of the things that concern my weakness.

[31] The God and Father of the Lord Jesus, who is blessed forevermore, knows that I do not lie. [32] In Damascus [w] the governor under King Aretas was guarding the city of the Damascenes in order to arrest me, [33] but I was lowered in a basket through a window in the wall, and escaped his hands.

CHAPTER 12.

His Revelations. [1] If I must boast—it is not indeed expedient to do so—but I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord. [2] I know [x] a man in Christ* who fourteen years ago—whether in the body I do not know, or out of the body I do not know, God knows—such a one was caught up to the third heaven. [3] And I know such a man—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know, God knows— [4] that he was caught up into paradise and heard secret words that man may not repeat. [5] Of such a man I will boast; but of myself I will glory in nothing save in my infirmities. [6] For if I do wish to boast, I shall not be foolish; for I shall be speaking the truth. But I forbear, lest any man should reckon me beyond what he sees in me or hears from me.

His Infirmities. [7] And lest the greatness of the revelation should puff me up, there was given me a thorn for the flesh,* a messenger of Satan, to buffet me. [8] Concerning this I thrice besought the Lord that it might leave me. [9] And he has said to me, "My grace is sufficient for thee, for strength is made perfect in weakness." Gladly therefore I will glory in my infirmities, that the strength of Christ may dwell in me. [10] Wherefore I am satisfied, for Christ's sake, with infirmities, with insults, with hardships, with persecutions, with distresses. For when I am weak, then I am strong.

u Dt 25, 3.—v Acts 16, 22; 14, 18; 27, 2.—w Acts 9, 24.—x Acts 9, 3.

11, 12: The pseudo-apostles at Corinth took pay for their ministry, and if St. Paul did also, their practice would have justification before the people. That was what they wanted.

11, 17: Not . . . according to the Lord: i.e., not in keeping with the general rule given by Christ to His Apostles Mt 6, 1-6; Lk 17, 10; 18, 11-14). But St. Paul was justified in deviating from this rule in order to counteract the bad influence of his enemies.

12, 2: A man in Christ: St. Paul humbly speaks of himself in the third person. Whether in the body, etc.: the Apostle at the time was totally abstracted from the senses, as in ecstasy. The third heaven: i.e., paradise, the abode of the blessed.

12, 7: Thorn for the flesh: or "thorn in the flesh," seems to refer to some chronic illness.

He Has Been Forced to Boast. 11 I have become foolish! You have forced me. For I ought to have been commended by you, since in no way have I fallen short of the most eminent apostles, even though I am nothing. 12 Indeed, the signs of the apostle were wrought among you in all patience, in miracles and wonders and deeds of power. 13 For in what have you been less favored than the other churches—unless in this, that I was no burden to you? Pardon me this wrong!

His Third Visit. 14 Behold, this is the third time that I am ready to come to you. And I will not be a burden to you; for I do not seek yours, but you. For the children should not save up for the parents, but the parents for the children. 15 But I will most gladly spend and be spent myself for your souls, even though, loving you more, I be loved less.

16 But be it so: I was no burden to you, but, being crafty, I caught you by guile.* 17 Did I take advantage of you through any of these whom I sent to you? 18 I urged Titus to go, and I sent our brother with him. Did Titus take advantage of you? Have we not walked in the same spirit, have we not walked in the same steps?

19 Are you thinking all this time that we are defending ourselves before you? We speak before God in Christ;* but in all things, beloved, for your own edification. 20 For I fear lest perhaps when I come I may not find you as I should wish, and lest I may be found by you not as you would wish—lest perhaps there be found among you contentions, envyings, animosities, dissensions, detractions, gossiping, arrogance, disorders— 21 lest when I come again God should humiliate me before you, and I should mourn over many who sinned before and have not repented of the uncleanness and immorality and licentiousness that they practised.

CHAPTER 13.

Warnings. 1 Behold, this is the third time that I am coming to you: y "On the word* of two or three witnesses every word shall be confirmed." 2 I have already warned, when present, and now in my absence I warn again those who sinned before, and all the rest, that, if I come again, I will not spare. 3 Do you seek a proof of the Christ who speaks in me, who is not weak in your regard, nay, is powerful in you? 4 For though he was crucified through weakness, yet he lives through the power of God. Yes, we also are weak* in him, yet we shall live with him through the power of God in your regard.

5 Put your own selves to test, whether you are in the faith; prove yourselves.* Do you not know yourselves that Christ Jesus is in you? unless perhaps you are reprobate! 6 But I hope that you will come to know that we are not reprobate. 7 But we pray God that you may do no evil at all, not wishing ourselves to appear approved,* but that you may do what is good, and we ourselves pass as reprobate. 8 For we can do nothing against the truth, but only for the truth. 9 And so we rejoice when we are weak but you are strong. This we also pray for, your perfecting.*

10 Wherefore I write these things while absent, that when present I may not act more severely, according to the power that the Lord has given me for upbuilding, and not for destruction.

Conclusion

Farewell. 11 In conclusion, brethren, rejoice, be perfected, be comforted, be of the same mind, be at peace; and the God of peace and love will be with you. 12 Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the saints send you greetings.

13 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the charity of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all. Amen.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL

THE APOSTLE TO THE GALATIANS

The Galatians, to whom this Epistle was written, lived between Cappadocia and Phrygia, in Asia Minor. They were Gentile Christians, and were converted by St. Paul about the year 52 A.D. His ministry among them had borne great fruit; they had been baptized, and had received the Holy Spirit; miracles worked among them had given evidence of the presence of the Spirit in their hearts. The Apostle visited them a second time, and by his exhortations confirmed them in the faith. But after his second visit St. Paul learned, by letter or by special messenger sent to him, that some Jewish teachers who had lately arrived among his new converts were teaching, contrary to his doctrines, that for salvation it was necessary to be circumcised and to observe the Mosaic rites. Furthermore, these Judaizers sought to undermine the authority of the Apostle by questioning his divine commission. They claimed that his teaching seemed to be only human and differed widely in many respects from that of Christ and of the other Apostles. They asserted that he disregarded the sacredness of the Mosaic Law and circumcision, which were an external sign of God's covenant with man, and thereby doubted the truth of the divine promises. Such were the difficulties that reached the ears of St. Paul in Ephesus; and since he was unable to be with his converts, he met the serious situation by this Epistle.

The Epistle contains a defense of his person and of his doctrine. In indignation he asserts the divine origin of his teaching and of his authority; he shows that justification is not through the Mosaic Law, but through faith in Jesus Christ, who was crucified and who rose from the dead; he concludes that consequently the Mosaic Law was something transient and not permanent, that it is not an essential part of Christianity. Nor does he fail to insist on the necessity of the evangelical virtues, especially charity, the offspring of faith.

The subject-matter of the Epistle resembles closely that of the Epistle to the Romans, and also of the Second Epistle to the Corinthians. The reason for this similarity is that these Epistles were written when the Apostle was more or less in the same frame of mind, indignant that his converts were being perverted by Pharisaic emissaries.

The Epistle was probably written at Ephesus about the year 54 A.D. It may, however, have been written somewhat later, from either Macedonia or Corinth. Its authenticity was admitted by all antiquity.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, an apostle, sent not from men nor by man, but by Jesus Christ and God the Father [a] who raised him from the dead, 2 and all the brethren who are with me, to the churches of Galatia. 3 Grace and peace be to you from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ, 4 who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from the wickedness of this present world according [b] to the will of our God and Father; 5 to whom is glory forever and ever. Amen.

Surprise and Rebuke. 6 I marvel that you are so quickly deserting him* who called you to the grace of Christ, changing to another gospel; 7 which is not another gospel, except in this respect that there are some who trouble you, and wish to pervert the gospel of Christ. 8 But even if we or an angel from heaven should preach a gospel to you other than that which we have preached to you, let him be anathema!* 9 As we have said before, so now I say again: If anyone preach a gospel to you other than that which you have received, let him be anathema! 10 For am I now seeking the favor of men, or of God? Or am I seeking to please men? If I were still trying to please men, I should not be a servant of Christ.

a Gal 1, 11f.—b Gal 2, 20.

1, 6: Deserting him: refers to our heavenly Father. Another gospel: a different gospel, a gospel containing serious doctrinal errors.

1, 8: Anathema: i.e., cursed, excluded from the kingdom of God.

I: PERSONAL DEFENSE

1. A Defense of His Apostolate

Not of Human Origin. 11 For I give you to understand, brethren, that the gospel which was preached by me is not of man. 12 For I did not receive it from man, nor was I taught it; but I received it by a revelation [c] of Jesus Christ. 13 For you have heard of my former manner of life in Judaism; how beyond all measure I persecuted the Church of God, and ravaged it. 14 And I advanced in Judaism above many of my contemporaries in my nation, showing much more zeal for the traditions of my fathers. 15 But when it pleased him who from my mother's womb set me apart and called me by his grace, 16 to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the Gentiles, immediately, without taking counsel with [d] flesh and blood, 17 and without going up to Jerusalem to those who were appointed apostles before me, I retired into Arabia, and again returned to Damascus.

18 Then after three years I went to Jerusalem to see Peter, and I remained with him fifteen days. 19 But I saw none of the other apostles, except James, the brother of the Lord. 20 Now in what I am writing to you, behold, before God, I do not lie. 21 Then I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia. 22 And I was unknown by sight to the churches of Judea which were in Christ. 23 But they had heard only that he who formerly persecuted us, now preaches the faith which once he ravaged. 24 And they glorified God in me.

2. A Defense of His Gospel

CHAPTER 2.

Approved by the Apostles. 1 Then after fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking also Titus along with me. 2 And I went up in consequence of a revelation, and I conferred with them on the gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but separately with the men of authority; lest perhaps I should be running, or had run in vain. 3 But not even Titus, who was with me, Gentile though he was, was compelled to be circumcised, 4 although it was urged on account of false brethren* who were brought in secretly, who slipped in to spy upon our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into slavery. 5 Now to these we did not yield in submission,[e] no, not for an hour, that the truth of the gospel might continue with you. 6 But from the men of authority (what they once were matters not to me; [f] God accepts not the person of man)—the men of authority laid no further burden on me. 7 On the contrary, when they saw that to me was committed the gospel for the uncircumcised, as to Peter that for the circumcised 8 (for he who worked in Peter for the apostleship of the circumcised worked also in me among the Gentiles) — 9 and when they recognized the grace that was given to me, James and Cephas and John, who were considered the pillars, gave to me and to Barnabas the right hand of fellowship, that we should go to the Gentiles, and they to the circumcised; 10 provided only that we should be mindful of the poor, the very thing I was eager to do.

Paul Reproves Peter. 11 But when Cephas came to Antioch, I withstood him to his face, because he was deserving of blame. 12 For before certain persons came from James, he used to eat with the Gentiles; but when they came, he began to withdraw and to separate himself, fearing the circumcised. 13 And the rest of the Jews dissembled along with him, so that Barnabas also was led away by them into that dissimulation. 14 But when I saw that they were not walking uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said to Cephas before them all: If thou, though a Jew, livest like the Gentiles, and not like the Jews, how is it that thou dost compel the Gentiles to live like the Jews?

15 We are Jews by birth, and not sinners from among the Gentiles. 16 But we know that man is not justified by the works of the Law,* but by the faith of Jesus Christ. Hence we also believe in Christ Jesus, that we may be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the Law;[g] because by the works of the Law no man will be justified. 17 But if, while we are seeking to be justified in c Eph 3, 3.—d Gal 2, 7.—e Gal 3, 1.—f Rom 2, 11; Eph 6, 9.—g Rom 3, 20.

2, 4: These false brethren contended that circumcision was necessary for salvation. Against them a definite stand was taken by the Apostles. To spy upon. i.e., to find some weak points. Our liberty: i.e., freedom from the Mosaic observance. Slavery: i.e., subjection to the Law.

2, 16: The works of the Law: i.e., the Mosaic code. These prescriptions by themselves had no power to save, as salvation depends on faith and grace in Christ.

Christ, we ourselves also are found sinners, is Christ therefore the minister of sin? By no means. 18 For if I reconstruct the things that I destroyed,* I make myself a sinner. 19 For I through the Law have died to the Law that I may live to God. With Christ I am nailed to the cross.* 20 It is now no longer I that live, but Christ lives in me. And the life that I now live in the flesh, I live in the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself up for me. 21 I do not cast away the grace of God. For if justice is by the Law, then Christ died in vain.

II: DOCTRINAL

1. Justification from Faith not from the Law

CHAPTER 3.

Proved from the Galatians' Experience. 1 O foolish Galatians! who has bewitched you, before whose eyes Jesus Christ has been depicted crucified?* 2 This only I would learn from you: Did you receive the Spirit in virtue of the works of the Law, or in virtue of hearing and believing? 3 Are you so foolish that after beginning in the Spirit, you now make a finish in the flesh? 4 Have you suffered so much in vain? if indeed it be in vain. 5 He therefore who gives the Spirit to you, and works miracles among you, does he do it by the works of the Law, or by the message of faith? 6 Even thus [h] "Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as justice."

The Example of Abraham. 7 Know therefore that the men of faith are the real sons of Abraham. 8 And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, announced to Abraham beforehand, [i] "In thee shall all the nations be blessed." 9 Therefore the men of faith shall be blessed with faithful Abraham.

The Nature of the Law. 10 For those who rely on the works of the Law are under a curse.* For it is written, [j] Cursed is everyone who does not hold to all things that are written in the book of the Law, to perform them. 11 But that by the Law no man is justified before God is evident, because [k] "he who is just lives by faith."* 12 But the Law does not rest on faith; but, [l] "he who does these things, shall live by them." 13 Christ redeemed us from the curse of the Law, becoming a curse* for us; for it is written, [m] Cursed is everyone who hangs on a gibbet; 14 that the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles through Christ Jesus, that through faith we might receive the promise of the Spirit.

The Promise of God. 15 Brethren (I speak after the manner of men); [n] yet even a man's will, once it has been ratified, no one annuls or alters. 16 The promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring. He does not say, "And to his offsprings," as of many; but as of one, "And to thy offspring," who is Christ. 17 Now I mean this: The Law which was made four hundred and thirty years later does not annul the covenant which was ratified by God, so as to make the promise void.* 18 For if the right to inherit be from the Law, it is no longer from a promise. But God gave it to Abraham by promise.

The Purpose of the Law. 19 What then was the Law? [o] It was enacted on account of transgressions, being delivered by angels through a mediator, until the offspring should come to whom the promise was made. 20 Now there is no intermediary* where there is only one; but God is one. 21 Is the Law then contrary to the promises of God? By no means. For if a law had been given that could give life, justice would truly be from the Law. 22 But [p] the Scripture shut up all things under sin, that by the faith of Jesus Christ the promise might be given to those who believe.

23 But before the faith came we were kept imprisoned under the Law,[q] shut up

2, 18: The things that I destroyed: i.e., the works of the Law.

2, 19: The Law was intended to lead to Christ. Therefore its purpose was accomplished, and it died, or one became dead to it, when one reached Christ. By the cross Christ delivered us from the curse of the Law.

3, 1: Some Vulgate codices and the Clementine edition add, "That you should not obey the truth."

3, 10: Those who trust in an inherent sanctifying power in the works of the Law are under a curse. The Law gave no help towards keeping its mandates; and thereby multiplied sins.

3, 12: The citation from Lv 18, 5 means that he who keeps the Law shall live; but St. Paul points out that keeping the Law is impossible without some help, which the Law itself cannot give.

3, 13: Becoming a curse: i.e., Christ took on Himself all the maledictions of the Law, in order to free those under the Law. Curse: an execration, an expression or sentence of reprobation; it is used here by metonymy. The citation from Dt 21, 23, illustrates the way Christ redeemed us.

3, 17: At this time the Law was given to Moses.

3, 20: When there is a mediator, there are at least two parties.

for the faith that was to be revealed. 24 Therefore the Law has been our tutor unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith. 25 But now that faith has come, we are no longer under a tutor. 26 For you are all the children of God through faith in Christ Jesus. 27 For [r] all you who have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ. 28 There is neither Jew nor Greek; there is neither slave nor freeman; there is neither male nor female. For you are all one in Christ Jesus. 29 And if you are Christ's, then you are the offspring of Abraham,[s] heirs according to promise.

2. Christians Live in a State of Freedom

CHAPTER 4.

Slavery and Freedom. 1 Now I say, as long as the heir is a child, he differs in no way from a slave, though he is the master of all; 2 but he is under guardians and stewards until the time set by his father. 3 So we too, [t] when we were children, were enslaved under the elements of the world.* 4 But when the fullness of time came, God sent his Son, born of a woman, born under the Law, 5 that he might redeem [u] those who were under the Law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. 6 And because you are sons, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, "Abba, Father."* 7 So that he is no longer a slave, but a son; and if a son, an heir [v] also through God.

No Return to Slavery. 8 But then indeed, not knowing God, you served those who really are not gods. 9 But now that you have come to know God, or rather to be known by God, how is it that you turn again to the weak and beggarly elements, which you desire to serve again? 10 You are observing days and months and sea-become like you, brethren, I beseech you! You have done me no wrong. 13 And you know that on account of a physical infirmity I preached the gospel to you formerly; and though I was a trial to you in my flesh,* 14 you did not reject or despise me; but you received me as an angel of God, even as Christ Jesus. 15 Where then is your self-congratulation?* For I bear you witness that, if possible, you would have plucked out your very eyes and given them to me. 16 Have I then become your enemy, because I tell you the truth? 17 They* court you from no good motive; [w] but they would estrange you, that you may court them. 18 But court the good from a good motive always,* and not only when I am present with you, 19 my dear children, with whom I am in labor again, until Christ is formed in you! 20 But I wish I could be with you now, and change my tone, because I do not know what to make of you.

Ismael and Isaac. 21 Tell me, you who desire to be under the Law, have you not [x] read the Law?* 22 For it is written that Abraham had two sons, [y] the one by a slave-girl and the other by a free woman. 23 And the son of the slave-girl was born according to the flesh, but the son of the free woman in virtue of the promise. 24 This is said by way of allegory.* For these are the two covenants: one indeed from Mount Sinai, bringing forth children unto bondage,[z] which is Agar. 25 For Sinai is a mountain in Arabia, which corresponds to the present Jerusalem,* and is in slavery with her children. 26 But that Jerusalem which is above is free,* which is our mother. 27 For it is written, [a] Rejoice thou barren, that dost not bear; break forth and cry, thou that dost not travail; for many are the children of the desolate, more than of her that has a husband. 28 Now [b] we, brethren, are the children of promise, as Isaac was. 29 But as then he who was born according to the flesh persecuted him who was born according to the spirit, so also it is now. 30 But what

4, 3: The elements of the world: elementary principles of conduct, e.g., the religious laws of the Jews, and the various ceremonies of the heathens.

4, 6: Crying, "Abba, Father": i.e., the Spirit teaches us, the adopted sons of God, to cry out: "Abba, Father." The two words are used because St. Paul, writing the Greek word, wished to preface it with the very word our Lord had used in this doctrine which was of such great importance.

4, 10: Their feasts under the Jewish Law.

4, 13: Literally: "You did not despise your trial in my flesh." Physical infirmity: i.e., some bodily illness caused him to stop in Galatia, which otherwise he would have passed by.

4, 15: Self-congratulation: they congratulated themselves that they had had Paul with them as their teacher.

4, 17: They: i.e., his opponents. They would estrange you: namely, from Paul, or the Christian community.

4, 18: The Greek reading is: "it is good to be zealously sought after in a good thing always." St. Paul declares that anyone may take an interest in the Galatians in his absence, provided it is done from a good motive.

4, 21: The Greek has: "will you not listen to the Law?"

does the Scripture say? [c] "Cast out the slave-girl and her son, for the son of the slave-girl shall not be heir with the son of the free woman." [31] Therefore, brethren, we are not children of a slave-girl, but of the free woman[d] — in virtue of the freedom wherewith Christ has made us free.

III: MORAL

1. General Counsels

CHAPTER 5.

Circumcision Now Voidance of Christ. [1] Stand fast, and do not be caught again under the yoke of slavery. [2] Behold, [e] I, Paul, tell you that if you be circumcised, Christ will be of no advantage to you. [3] And I testify again to every man who has himself circumcised,* that he is bound to observe [f] the whole Law. [4] You who would be justified in the Law are estranged from Christ; you have fallen away from grace. [5] For we in the Spirit wait for the hope of justice* in virtue of faith. [6] For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision [g] is of any avail, nor uncircumcision, but faith which works through charity.

Judgment on Seducers. [7] You were running well; who hindered you from obeying the truth? [8] This persuasion* is not from him [h] who calls you. [9] A [i] little leaven * ferments the whole mass. [10] I have confidence in you in the Lord, that you will not think otherwise; but he who disturbs you will bear the penalty,[j] whoever he may be. [11] But I, brethren, if I still preach circumcision,* why am I still persecuted? Then is the stumbling-block of the cross removed! [12] Would that those who are unsettling you would mutilate* themselves!

How Christians Should Live. [13] For you have been called to liberty, brethren; only do not use liberty as an occasion for sensuality,* but by charity serve one another. [14] For the whole Law is fulfilled in one word: [k] Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. [15] But if you bite and devour one another, take heed or you will be consumed by one another.*

[16] But I say: [l] Walk in the Spirit, and you will not fulfill the lusts of the flesh. [17] For the flesh lusts against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh; for these are opposed* to each other, so that you do not do what you would. [18] But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the Law. [19] Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are immorality, uncleanness, licentiousness, [20] idolatry, witchcrafts, enmities, contentions, jealousies, anger, quarrels, factions, parties, [21] envies, murders, drunkenness, carousings, and suchlike. And concerning these I warn you, as I have warned you, that they who do such things will not attain the kingdom of God. [22] But the fruit of the Spirit is: charity, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, [23] faith, modesty, continency. Against such things there is no law.* [24] And they who belong to Christ have crucified their flesh with its passions and desires. [25] If we live by the Spirit,[m] by the Spirit let us also walk. [26] Let us not become desirous of vainglory, provoking one another, envying one another.

2. Specific Counsels

CHAPTER 6.

Fraternal Correction. [1] Brethren, even if a person is caught* doing something wrong, you who are spiritual instruct such a one in a spirit of meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted. [2] Bear one another's burdens, and so you will fulfill the law of Christ. [3] For if anyone thinks himself to be something, whereas he is [n] nothing, he deceives himself. [4] But let everyone test his own work, and so he will have glory in himself only, and not in comparison with another. [5] For each one will bear his own burden.*

5, 8: This persuasion: i.e., to believe that circumcision is necessary for salvation.

5, 9: Bad influence will cause total ruin.

5, 11: If I still preach circumcision: St. Paul here is referring to the calumny of his enemies, who said that he was still preaching the necessity of circumcision. If this were true, there is no reason why he should be persecuted; further, the cross, which was a stumbling-block to the Jews because it removed the obligation of the Law, should no longer be found such.

5, 12: Mutilate: i.e., that they would make themselves eunuchs.

5, 13: As an occasion for sensuality: namely, to indulge the lower tendencies of the flesh.

5, 15: Consumed by one another: signifies the complete ruin of their Christian community.

5, 17: The reference is to the struggle of man against the weakness of his nature. He cannot without the Spirit's help do what he would.

5, 23: Against such things there is no law: those who practise these virtues are not under the Mosaic Law, but under the law of Christ.

6, 1: Caught: i.e., led away by passion or surprise into a fault.

6, 5: His own burden: the duty imposed on each one (v 2).

Good Works. 6 And let him who is instructed in the word share all good things* with his teacher. 7 Be not deceived, God is not mocked. 8 For what a man sows, that he will also reap. For he who sows in the flesh, from the flesh also will reap corruption. But he who sows in the spirit, from the spirit will reap life everlasting. 9 And [o] in doing good let us not grow tired; for in due time we shall reap if we do not relax. Therefore, while we have time, let us do good to all men, but especially to those who are of the household of faith.

o 2 Thes 3, 13.—p Gal 5, 11.—q Gal 5, 6.

6, 6: Share all good things: i.e., give him some of his temporal possessions.

6, 11: He concludes the Epistle in large characters with his own hand, to impress on the Galatians the importance of what he wrote.

6, 12: In the flesh: in a worldly way, not in a manner suggested by the Spirit.

6, 13: Boast of your (circumcised) flesh: they would boast of having induced you to submit to circumcision.

6, 15: A new creation: the supernatural state of grace transforms one's mind, heart and actions.

6, 16: This rule: i.e., the teaching concerning the new creation. Israel of God: i.e., the Church. Those who have the faith are true Israelites.

6, 17: The scars on St Paul's body were those inflicted in persecutions; they attested his faithfulness to Christ.

Conclusion

Summary. 11 See with what large letters* I am writing to you with my own hand! 12 As many as wish to please in the flesh* compel you to be circumcised simply that they may not suffer persecution [p] for the cross of Christ. 13 For not even they who are circumcised keep the Law; but they desire you to be circumcised, that they may make a boast of your flesh.* 14 But as for me, God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom the world is crucified to me, and I to the world. 15 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision [q] nor uncircumcision but a new creation* is of any account.

16 And whoever follow this rule,* peace and mercy upon them, even upon the Israel of God.

17 Henceforth let no man give me trouble, for I bear the marks* of the Lord Jesus in my body. 18 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, brethren. Amen.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL
THE APOSTLE TO THE EPHESIANS

This Epistle was written by St. Paul towards the close of his first imprisonment in Rome, in the year 63 A.D. It was brought to its destination in Asia Minor by Tychicus, who also carried with him the Epistle to the Colossians. He was accompanied by Onesimus bearing the Epistle to Philemon.

In spite of this traditional title it is uncertain to whom St. Paul originally addressed this Epistle. Either it was indeed written to the Ephesians, as was commonly believed from the end of the second century A.D. and indicated by the presence of the words "at Ephesus" (1, 1) in most MSS; or it is to be identified with the Epistle mentioned in Col 4, 16, which St. Paul wrote to the Christians of Laodicea, a town not far from Colossae and Ephesus; or, finally, it may have been written, not to any one community in particular, but as a sort of circular letter to the various Christian communities in that part of Asia Minor in which Ephesus and Colossæ are situated.

Ephesus, then the chief city of western Asia Minor, had been evangelized by St. Paul about 53-56 A.D. Soon afterwards the important town of Laodicea, about a hundred miles to the east, had received Christianity from some Ephesian Christians. The great majority of converts in all this territory were from among the pagan Gentiles, Jews forming only a small minority.

Very similar in theme and language to the Epistle to the Colossians, but much more abstract, profound and systematic, this Epistle's central thought is the Church regarded as the mystical body of Christ, through which God pours out the divine life of grace in most generous fashion to its members, the Christians, in and through its head, Jesus Christ. The spiritual, organic unity of its members with Christ and with one another is emphasized as the basic principle of the life of the mystcal body. Then comes exhortation to lead the new life that befits those incorporated into the sublime unity of the mystical body.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to all* the saints [a] who are at Ephesus, the faithful in Christ Jesus: 2 grace be to you and peace from God [b] our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Eternal Plan of the Father. 3 Blessed [c] be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with every spiritual blessing on high in Christ. 4 Even as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world,[d] that we should be holy and without blemish in his sight in love. 5 He predestined us to be adopted through Jesus Christ as his sons,[e] according to the purpose* of his will, 6 unto the praise of the glory of his grace, with which he has favored us in his beloved [f] Son.*

Realized in the Son. 7 In him we have redemption through his blood, the remission of sins, [g] according to the riches of his grace. 8 This grace has abounded beyond measure [h] in us in all wisdom and prudence, 9 so that he may make known to us the mystery of his will [i] according to his good pleasure. And this his good pleasure he purposed in him 10 to be dispensed in the fullness of the times: [j] to re-establish* all things in Christ, both those in the heavens and those on the earth.

Fulfilled through the Holy Spirit. 11 In him, I say, [k] in whom we also have been called by a special choice, having been predestined in the purpose of him who works all things according to the counsel of his will, 12 to contribute to the praise of his glory – we* who before hoped in Christ. 13 And in him you too, when you had heard the word of truth, the good news of your salvation, and believed in it, were sealed with the Holy Spirit [l] of the promise, 14 who is the pledge* of our inheritance, [m] for a redemption of possession, for the praise of his glory.

I: DOCTRINAL

1. The Church is One with Christ

Thanksgiving and Prayer. 15 Wherefore I on my part, hearing of your faith [n] in the Lord Jesus, and of your love for all the saints, 16 do not cease to give thanks for you,[o] making mention of you in my prayers, 17 that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may grant you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in deep knowledge [p] of him: 18 the eyes of your mind being enlightened, so that you may know what is the hope of his calling,[q] what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, 19 and what the exceeding greatness of his power [r] towards us who believe.

Its measure is the working of his mighty power, 20 which he has wrought in Christ in raising him from the dead, and setting him at his right hand [s] in heaven 21 above every Principality* and Power and Virtue and Domination [t] – in short, above every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come. 22 And all things he made subject under his feet,[u] and him he gave as head over all the Church, 23 which indeed is his body,[v] the completion of him who fills all with all.

1, 1: All: not in the original Greek. At Ephesus: important manuscript and patristic evidence show that these words were probably not in the original text.

1, 5: The purpose: the original Greek reads "the good pleasure." This Epistle insists repeatedly on the gratuitous character of the divine gift of redemption.

1, 6: His beloved Son: not in the original text, but gives the full implied meaning.

1, 10: To re-establish: the Greek word means rather "to sum up under one heading."

1, 12f: We . . . you too: the Jewish Christians . . , the Gentile Christians.

1, 14: The pledge: in the Greek, "the earnest," which has a much stronger meaning, as it brings out that possession of the Holy Spirit in this life is already a real, though only initial, participation in the inheritance. A redemption of possession: a redemption that gives possession, either of us to God, or of God to us.

1, 21: Principality, etc.: a classification of the angels.

CHAPTER 2.

All Brought into Christ's Life. 1 You also,* when you were dead [w] by reason of your offenses and sins, 2 wherein once you walked according to the fashion of this world, according to the prince of the [x] power of the air about us, the prince* of the spirit which now works on the unbelievers— 3 indeed, in the company of these even we, all of us, once led our lives in the desires of our flesh, doing the promptings of our flesh and of our thoughts, and were by nature [y] children of wrath* even as the rest. 4 But God, who is rich in mercy, by reason of his very great love wherewith he has loved us 5 even when we were dead by reason of our sins, brought us to life together with Christ [z] (by grace you have been saved), 6 and raised us up together, [a] and seated us together in heaven* in Christ Jesus, 7 that he might show in the ages to come the overflowing riches of his grace in kindness towards us in Christ Jesus. 8 For by grace you have been saved through faith; [b] and that not from yourselves, for it is the gift of God; 9 not [c] as the outcome of works,* lest anyone may boast. 10 For his workmanship we are, created in Christ Jesus in good works, [d] which God has made ready beforehand that we may walk in them.

2, 1: You also: i.e., the Gentile converts as distinct from we, the Jews, of v 3.

2, 2: The prince, etc.: Satan, the prince of demoniacal power.

2, 3: Children of wrath: deserving of God's anger.

2, 6: In heaven: literally, as in Eph 1, 3, "on high." The divine life of the Christian on earth is an initial stage of the heavenly state, since it unites him to God in the glorified Christ.

2, 9: Works, i.e., mere human effort without God's grace coming before and with it.

2, 11: "Uncircumcision": the uncircumcised Gentiles. "Circumcision"; the circumcised Jews.

2, 14: The intervening wall, etc.: a concrete figure of speech signifying the Gentiles' exclusion from the religious life of the community of the Jews as God's chosen people. The metaphor is taken from the barrier in the outer court of the temple of Jerusalem, inside which the Gentiles might not proceed under penalty of death.

2, 15: The death of Christ supplanted the Old Law, which contained a strict distinction of Jew from Gentile.

2, 16: In himself: the Greek means rather "in it," i.e., in the cross.

2, 19: Citizens: the Greek is more expressive with "fellow-citizens." With the saints: another possible meaning is "of the sanctuary."

3, 1: The sentence begun here is resumed in v 14, vv 2-13 being a long parenthesis characteristic of St. Paul.

3, 5: Known: in the Greek, "made known." The sons of men: those who have human nature from Adam.

Gentile and Jew United. 11 Wherefore, bear in mind that once you, the Gentiles in flesh, who are called "uncircumcision"* by the so-called "circumcision" [e] in flesh made by human hand — 12 bear in mind [f] that you were at that time without Christ, excluded as aliens from the community of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of the promise, having no hope, and without God in the world. 13 But now in Christ Jesus you, who were once afar off, [g] have been brought near through the blood of Christ. 14 For he himself is our peace, [h] he it is who has made both one, and has broken down the intervening wall* of the enclosure, the enmity, in his flesh. 15 The Law of the commandments expressed in decrees [i] he has made void,* that of the two he might create in himself one new man, and make peace 16 and reconcile both [j] in one body to God by the cross, having slain the enmity in himself.* 17 And coming, he announced the good tidings of peace to you who were afar off, [k] and of peace to those who were near; 18 because through him we both have access [l] in one Spirit to the Father. 19 Therefore, you are now no longer strangers and foreigners, but you are citizens* with the saints and members [m] of God's household: 20 you are built upon the foundation [n] of the apostles and prophets with Christ Jesus himself as the chief corner stone. 21 In him the whole structure is closely fitted together [o] and grows into a temple holy in the Lord; 22 in him you too are being built together into a dwelling place for God [p] in the Spirit.

2. Paul's Commission to Preach the Mystery

CHAPTER 3.

Paul Instructed. 1 For this reason, I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for the sake of you, [q] the Gentiles—2 for I suppose you have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God that was given to me in your regard; 3 how that by revelation was made known to me the mystery, [r] as I have written above in brief; 4 and so by reading you can perceive how well versed I am in the mystery of Christ, 5 that mystery [s] which in other ages was not known to the sons of men, as now it has been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit: 6 namely, that the Gentiles are joint heirs, and fellow-members of the same body,* and joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel.

Assigned to Preach to the Gentiles. 7 Of that gospel I was made a minister [t] by the gift of God's grace, which was given to me in accordance with the working of his power. 8 Yes, to me,[u] the very least of all saints, there was given this grace, to announce among the Gentiles the good tidings of the unfathomable riches of Christ, 9 and to enlighten all men as to what is the dispensation of the mystery [v] which has been hidden from eternity in God, who created all things; 10 in order that through the Church [w] there be made known* to the Principalities and the Powers in the heavens the manifold wisdom of God 11 according to the eternal purpose* which he accomplished in Christ Jesus our Lord. 12 In him we have assurance and confident access [x] through faith in him. 13 Therefore I pray you not to be disheartened at my tribulations for you, [y] for they are your glory.

3. A Prayer for His Readers

14 For this reason I bend my knees to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,* 15 from whom all fatherhood* in heaven and on earth receives its name, 16 that he may grant you from his glorious riches to be strengthened [z] with power through his Spirit unto the progress of the inner man;* 17 and to have Christ dwelling through faith in your hearts: [a] so that, being rooted and grounded in love, 18 you may be able to comprehend [b] with all the saints what is the breadth* and length and height and depth, 19 and to know Christ's love which surpasses* knowledge, [c] in order that you may be filled unto all the fullness of God.

20 Now, to him who is able to accomplish all things* in a measure far beyond what we ask or conceive, in keeping with the power [d] that is at work in us— 21 to him be glory in the Church and in Christ Jesus down through all the ages of time without end. Amen.

II: MORAL

1. For Christians in General

CHAPTER 4.

Unity in the Mystical Body. 1 I therefore, the prisoner in the Lord, exhort you [e] to walk in a manner worthy of the calling with which you were called, 2 with all humility and meekness, with patience,[f] bearing with one another in love, 3 careful [g] to preserve the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace: 4 one body and one Spirit, [h] even as you were called in one hope of your calling; 5 one [i] Lord, one faith, one Baptism; 6 one [j] God and Father of all, who is above all, and throughout all, and in us all.*

Diversity of Graces. 7 But [k] to each one of us grace was given according to the measure of Christ's bestowal. 8 Thus it* says, [l] Ascending on high, he led away captives; he gave gifts to men. 9 Now this, "he ascended," what does it mean but that he also first* descended into the lower parts of the earth? 10 He who descended, he it is who ascended also above all the heavens, that he might fill all things. 11 And he himself gave some men as [m] apostles, and some as prophets, others again as evangelists, and others as pastors and teachers, 12 in order to perfect the saints for a work of ministry,[n] for building up the body of Christ,* 13 until we all attain to the unity of the faith and of the deep knowledge of the Son of God, to perfect manhood, [o] to the mature measure of the fullness of Christ. 14 And this he has done [p] that we may be now no

3, 6: The same body: the one mystical body of Christ, which is a central idea of this Epistle.

3, 10: There be made known: in the Greek, "there be made known now."

3, 11: Purpose: literally, "the purpose of the ages," i.e., embracing and foreordaining all stages of human history.

3, 14: Of our Lord Jesus Christ: not in the original Greek.

3, 15: Fatherhood: the Greek word means rather "family." Receives its name: i.e., derives its manifest being and nature.

3, 16: The inner man: human nature inasmuch as inclined to God in spite of original sin.

3, 18: The breadth, etc.: probably the Apostle speaks of the mystery of the Redeemer and His unfathomable riches. Cf Eph 3, 4. 9.

3, 19: Knowledge: human knowledge, Fullness of God: that plenitude of perfection of which God is the source and which He communicates to the saints.

3, 20: All things, etc.: in the Greek, "far beyond all that we ask," etc.

4, 6: In us all: the Greek omits us.

4, 8: It: the Holy Scripture. The quotation is from Ps 67 (68), 19, but somewhat freely worded by St. Paul to fit the present application. St. Paul is thinking of the triumphant Ascension of our Lord, who distributes His gifts to men.

4, 9: First: not in the best Greek MSS, but clarifies the meaning. The lower parts of the earth: this earth as opposed to heaven.

4, 12: The body of Christ: the mystical body, of which Christ is the head and the source of supernatural life.

longer children, tossed to and fro and carried about by every wind of doctrine devised in the wickedness* of men, in craftiness, according to the wiles of error. 15 Rather are we to practise the truth in love, and so grow up in all things in him who is the [q] head, Christ. 16 For from him the whole body (being closely joined and knit together through every joint of the system [r] according to the functioning in due measure of each single part)* derives its increase to the building up of itself in love.

Change of Self. 17 This, [s] therefore, I say and testify in the Lord, that henceforward you are not to walk as the Gentiles walk in the futility of their mind, 18 having their understanding clouded in darkness, [t] estranged from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness* of their heart. 19 For they have given themselves up in despair* to sensuality, greedily practising every kind [u] of uncleanness. 20 But you have not so learned Christ—21 for surely you have heard of him* and have been taught in him (as truth is in Jesus) 22 that as regards your former manner of life you are [v] to put off the old man,* which is being corrupted through its deceptive lusts. 23 But [w] be renewed in the spirit of your mind,* 24 and put on the new man,* which has been created according to God in justice and holiness of truth.

Vices to be Avoided. 25 Wherefore, [x] put away lying and speak truth each one with his neighbor, because we are members of one another. 26 "Be angry and [y] do not sin";* do not let the sun go down upon your anger: 27 do not give place to the devil. 28 He who was wont to steal, let him steal no longer, but rather let him labor, working with his hands at what is good, [z] that he may have something to share with him who suffers need. 29 Let [a] no ill speech proceed from your mouth, but whatever is good for supplying what fits the current necessity, that it may give grace to the hearers. 30 And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, in whom you were sealed for the day of redemption.* 31 Let [b] all bitterness, and wrath, and indignation, and clamor, and reviling, be removed from you, along with all malice. 32 On the contrary, [c] be kind to one another, and merciful, generously forgiving one another, as also God in Christ has generously forgiven you.

CHAPTER 5.

1 Be you, therefore, imitators of God,[d] as very dear children 2 and [e] walk in love, as Christ also loved us* and delivered himself up for us an offering and a sacrifice to God to ascend in fragrant odor.

3 But [f] immorality and every uncleanness or covetousness, let it not even be named among you, as becomes saints; 4 or obscenity or foolish talk or scurrility, which are out of place;[g] but rather thanksgiving. 5 For know this and understand, that no fornicator, or unclean person, or covetous one (for that is idolatry) has any inheritance [h] in the kingdom of Christ and God. 6 Let [i] no one lead you astray with empty words; for because of these things the wrath of God comes upon the children of disobedience. 7 Do not, then, become partakers with them. 8 For you were once darkness,[j] but now you are light in the Lord. Walk, then, as children of light 9 (for the fruit of the light is in all goodness and justice and truth), 10 testing [k] what is well pleasing to God;* 11 and have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather expose them.* 12 For of the things that are done by them in secret it is shameful even to speak; 13 but all the things that are exposed are made manifest by the light: [l] for all that is made

4, 14: Wickedness: the Greek means rather "deceit."

4, 16: This is a description of the spiritual organization of the mystical body for distributing from Christ through its various members its life of divine love.

7, 18: The blindness: the Greek word taken literally means "callousness"; hence, hardness, moral blindness of the heart, i.e., of the mind.

4, 19: In despair: the Greek word usually means "without feeling" (especially of pain); hence, morally insensible to the evil of sin.

4, 21: You have heard of him: i.e., in the teachers He sent.

4, 22: The old man: human nature under the domination of sin.

4, 23: The spirit of your mind: spirit here seems to mean, not the Holy Spirit nor yet grace in itself, but that interior and higher aspect of the mind by which it is open to the influence of grace, in contrast to the futility of the Gentiles' mind spoken of in v 17.

4, 24: The new man: human nature restored by grace and obedient to the Holy Spirit.

4, 26: The quotation is from Ps 4, 5. Even in just anger one must be careful not to sin by excess.

4, 30: The day of redemption: the last day, when redemption will be completed.

5, 2: Loved us: in Greek, "loved you."

5, 10: To God: the Greek has "to the Lord."

5, 11-14: Doing good is one of the best means of exposing the ugliness of evil deeds.

manifest is light. 14 Thus it says, [m] Awake, sleeper, and arise from among the dead, and Christ will enlighten thee. 15 See to it therefore, brethren, that you walk with care: [n] not as unwise 16 but as wise, making the most of your time, because the days are evil. 17 Therefore, [o] do not become foolish, but understand what the will of the Lord is. 18 And do not be drunk with wine, for in that is debauchery; [p] but be filled with the Spirit, 19 speaking to one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs,[q] singing and making melody in your hearts to the Lord, 20 giving thanks always [r] for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ to God the Father.

2. The Christian Home

The Wife and the Husband. 21 Be subject to one another [s] in the fear of Christ. 22 Let [t] wives be subject to their husbands as to the Lord; 23 because [u] a husband is head of the wife, just as Christ is head of the Church, being himself savior of the body. 24 But just as the Church is subject to Christ, so also let wives be to their husbands in all things.*

25 Husbands, [v] love your wives, just as Christ also loved the Church, and delivered himself up for her, 26 that he might sanctify her, [w] cleansing her in the bath of water* by means of the word; 27 in order that he might present to himself the Church in all her glory, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing, but that she might be holy [x] and without blemish. 28 Even thus ought husbands also to love their wives as their own bodies. 29 He who loves his own wife, loves himself. For no one ever hated his own flesh; on the contrary he nourishes and cherishes it, as Christ also does the Church 30 (because [y] we are members of his body, made from his flesh and from his bones*). [z] 31 For this cause a man shall leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife; and the two shall become one flesh. 32 This is a great mystery—I mean in reference to Christ and to the Church. 33 However, let each one of you also love his wife just as he loves himself; and let the wife respect her husband.

CHAPTER 6.

Children, Parents, Slaves and Masters. 1 Children, [a] obey your parents in the Lord, for that is right. 2 "Honor thy father and thy mother" [b]—such is the first commandment with a promise— 3 "that [c] it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest be long-lived upon the earth."*

4 And you, fathers,[d] do not provoke your children to anger, but rear them in the discipline and admonition of the Lord.

5 Slaves, [e] obey your masters* according to the flesh,* with fear and trembling in the sincerity of your heart, as you would Christ: 6 not serving to the eye as pleasers of men, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from your heart, 7 giving your service with good will as to the Lord and not to men, 8 in the knowledge that whatever good each does, the same he will receive back from the Lord,[f] whether he is slave or freeman.

9 And you, masters, [g] do the same* towards them, and give up threatening, knowing that their Lord who is also your Lord is in heaven, and that with him there is no respect of persons.

3. The Christian Warfare

The Armor of God. 10 For the rest, brethren, be strengthened [h] in the Lord and in the might of his power. 11 Put on the armor of God, that you may be able to stand against the wiles [i] of the devil. 12 For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against the [j] Principalities and the Powers, against the world-rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness on high. 13 Therefore take 5, 14: The quotation is not found elsewhere in Sacred Scripture. It may have been an early Christian hymn.

5, 15: In the Greek brethren is absent, and with care qualifies see, not walk.

5, 24: In all things: i.e., in all things that pertain to the right relationship of hubsand and wife. Note well that the subjection inculcated in these verses is not a brutal or slavish subjection as to a tyrant, but that of the loved one to her lover, who is according to right order head of the family, as Christ is head of the Church.

5, 26: The bath of water: the Sacrament of Baptism.

5, 30: From his flesh and from his bones: not in the best Greek MSS. It is probably an interpolation from Gn 2, 23.

6, 3: Earth: in the Old Testament, refers to the promised land of Palestine.

6, 5-8: St. Paul does not laud slavery as an institution but in the circumstances he exhorts those already slaves to humble acceptance of it in corporal activity for a supernatural motive.

6, 5: Masters according to the flesh: temporal human masters in the things of this world, as distinct from Christ who is Master according to the spirit, i.e., in what pertains to the supernatural and eternal.

6, 9: Do the same: act in the same spirit, according to the same rule.

[14] Stand, therefore, having girded your loins with truth, and having put on the breastplate of justice, [15] and having your feet shod with the readiness* of the [l] gospel of peace, [16] in all things taking up the shield of faith, [m] with which you may be able to quench all the fiery darts of the most wicked one. [17] And take unto you the helmet of salvation [n] and the sword of the spirit, that is, the word of God.

Assiduous Prayer. [18] With all prayer [o] and supplication pray at all times in the Spirit, and therein be vigilant in all perseverance and supplication for all the saints — [19] and for me, that when I open my mouth,* utterance may be granted to me fearlessly to make known the mystery [p] of the gospel, [20] for which I am an ambassador in chains; [q] so that therein I may dare to speak as I ought.

6, 15: Readiness: that prompt vigilance which is provided by the gospel to win a victorious peace.

6, 19: Open my mouth: either when Paul prepares to deliver his solemn message, or when God enables him to do so.

Conclusion

[21] But that you too may know my circumstances and what I am doing, Tychicus, [r] our dearest brother and faithful minister in the Lord, will tell you everything. [22] Him I have sent to you for this very purpose, that you may learn our circumstances, [s] and that he may comfort your hearts.

[23] Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. [24] Grace be with all those who have a love unfailing [t] for our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL
THE APOSTLE TO THE PHILIPPIANS

The church of Philippi was St. Paul's first foundation on European soil. The vision of a man of Macedonia calling for aid brought the Apostle, St. Timothy and their comrades from Asia into Europe. In Acts (16, 11-40) St. Luke narrates the conversions at Philippi, the cure of a girl possessed by a demon, the Apostle's imprisonment, his release and departure from that city.

On at least two other occasions Philippi had the joy of welcoming its beloved Apostle. The people were deeply attached to St. Paul, helping him by alms in his missionary work; and Paul's special affection for them manifests itself in this Epistle. He hopes to be able to visit them soon.

The occasion of its composition can be gathered from the Epistle. Learning that St. Paul had been cast into prison, the church at Philippi, in order to assist him, sent Epaphroditus with a sum of money and with instructions to remain beside the Apostle as his companion and servant. While thus employed, Epaphroditus fell sick and nearly died. Upon his recovery, St. Paul decided to send him back to Philippi. The Epistle expresses gratitude to the church for its gift and commends the service rendered by Epaphroditus.

At the same time Paul takes the opportunity of exhorting the faithful to compose their dissensions, and he warns them against Jewish converts who wished to make Old Testament practices obligatory for Christians.

No one but St. Paul could have composed such a letter. It was written from Rome in the year 63 A.D.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul and Timothy, servants of Jesus Christ, to all the saints in Christ Jesus that are at Philippi, with the bishops [a] and deacons; 2 grace be to you, and peace from God our Father, [b] and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving and Prayer. 3 I give thanks to my God in all my remembrance of you, 4 always in all my prayers making supplications for you all with joy, 5 because of your association with me in spreading the gospel* of Christ from the first day until now. 6 I am convinced of this, [c] that he who has begun a good work in you will bring it to perfection until the day of Christ Jesus.* 7 And I have the right to feel so about you all, because I have you in my heart, all of you, alike in my chains and in the defense and confirmation of the gospel, as sharers in my joy.* 8 For God is my witness how I long for you all in the heart* of Christ Jesus.
9 And this I pray, that your charity may more and more abound in knowledge and all discernment, 10 so that [d] you may approve the better things, that you may be upright and without offense unto the day of Christ, 11 filled [e] with the fruit of justice, through Jesus Christ, to the glory and praise of God.

I: PERSONAL NEWS

Propagation of the Gospel. 12 Now I wish you to know, brethren, [f] that my experiences have turned out rather for the advancement of the gospel, 13 so that [g] the chains* I bear for the sake of Christ have become manifest as such throughout the praetorium and in all other places.
14 And the greater number of the brethren in the Lord, gaining courage from my chains, have dared to speak the word of God more freely and without fear. 15
Some indeed preach Christ even out of envy and contentiousness, but some also out of good will. 16 Some proclaim Christ out of love since they know I am appointed for the defense of the gospel; 17 but some out of contentiousness, not sincerely, thinking to stir up affliction for me in my chains.* 18 But what of it?
Provided only that in every way, whether in pretense* or in truth, Christ is being proclaimed; [h] in this I rejoice, yes and I shall rejoice. 19 For I know that this will turn out for my [i] salvation, thanks to your prayer and the assistance of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, 20 in accord with my eager longing and hope that in nothing I shall be put to shame, but that with complete assurance now as at all times Christ will be glorified in my body, [j] whether through life or through death.

Sentiments of St. Paul. 21 For to me to live is Christ [k] and to die is gain. 22 But [l] if to live in the flesh is my lot, this means for me fruitful labor, and I do not know which to choose. 23 Indeed I am hard pressed from both sides* — desiring to depart and to be with Christ,[m] a lot by far the better; 24 yet to stay on in the flesh is necessary for your sake. 25 And with this conviction I know that I shall stay on and continue with you all for your progress and joy in the faith, 26 that your rejoicing in my regard may abound in Christ Jesus through my coming to you again.

II: EXHORTATION

Firmness. 27 Only [n] let your lives* be worthy of the gospel of Christ; so that, whether I come and see you, or remain absent, I may hear about you, that you are steadfast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel. 28 Do not be terrified in any way by the adversaries; [o] for this is to them a

1, 5: The gospel: the preaching of Christ's doctrine, not the written Gospels. In the Greek it is clear that St. Paul refers to what they have done for the propagation of the faith. The Philippians had supported the first missionaries and had sent money to St. Paul. Cf Phil 4, 10-20 and Acts 16, 15.

1, 6: Day of Christ Jesus: the Second Coming of Christ at the end of the world to judge all men.

1, 7: Sharers in my joy: the Greek has "sharers of my grace." For Paul his imprisonment is a divine favor.

1, 8: Heart: the Latin and Greek words refer to the internal organs as the heart, lungs and liver, which were considered the seat of thought and affection. "Heart" is the best present-day English equivalent.

1, 13: Chains, etc.: all perceive that Paul is imprisoned not as a criminal but for bearing witness to Christ. Praetorium: the word can mean either the imperial palace or the praetorian guard in whose custody St. Paul is. Here the Apostle refers to the soldiers.

1, 17: Affliction for me in my chains: they suppose their success in preaching will diminish Paul's renown and thus embitter his imprisonment.

1, 18: In pretense: some used the gospel as an excuse for furthering their own ambitions. In truth: they preach Christ without any selfish motives.

1, 23: Hard pressed from both sides: the two desires are a vise crushing his heart.

1, 27: Your lives: the Greek text means "be worthy citizens." Our commonwealth is in heaven. Cf Phil 3, 20. We are fellow-citizens of the saints. Cf Eph 2, 19.

reason for* destruction, but to you for salvation, and that from God. 29 For [p] you have been given the favor on Christ's behalf – not only to believe in him but also to suffer for him, 30 while engaged in the same [q] struggle in which you have seen me and now have heard of me.

CHAPTER 2.

Unity and Humility. 1 If, therefore, there is any comfort in Christ, any encouragement from charity, any fellowship in the Spirit, any feelings of mercy, 2 fill up my joy by thinking alike, having the same charity, with one soul and one mind. 3 Do [r] nothing out of contentiousness or out of vainglory, but in humility let each one regard the others as his superiors, 4 each one looking not [s] to his own interests but to those of others.

5 Have this mind in you which was also in Christ Jesus, 6 who though he was by nature* God, [t] did not consider being equal to God a thing to be clung to, 7 but emptied himself,* taking the nature of a slave and being made like unto men.[u] And appearing in the form of man, 8 he humbled himself,[v] becoming obedient to death, even to death on a cross. 9 Therefore [w] God also has exalted him and has bestowed upon him the name that is above every name, 10 so that at [x] the name of Jesus every knee should bend of those in heaven, on earth and under the earth, 11 and every tongue should confess [y] that the Lord Jesus Christ is in the glory* of God the Father.

1, 28: Reason for: the Greek has "sign" or "proof."

2, 6: By nature: literally "by form" in the Greek and Latin. A thing to be clung to: literally "rapine," "robbery." The Latin could mean "usurpation" but this translation would not bring out so well the doctrine of humility.

2, 7: Emptied himself: not by surrendering the divine nature, which is impossible, but by foregoing the glory attached to it.

2, 11: In the glory: the Vulgate reading suggests that both Persons enjoy equal glory. The Greek reads "Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father"; confessing the Son's divinity redounds to the Father's glory.

2, 17: Made the libation: the Philippians are the priests, their faith is the sacrificial animal on the altar, Paul's life blood is poured out as a libation. Service: the Greek means divine worship.

2, 30: What was lacking: the Philippians' money gift fell short of perfection in two respects. Because of the distance of Philippi from Rome they could not place their gift in Paul's hands, nor could they serve him personally. Epaphroditus, their messenger, has supplied these deficiencies.

Fear and Joy in Serving. 12 Wherefore, my beloved, obedient as you have always been, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your salvation with fear and trembling. 13 For [z] it is God who of his good pleasure works in you both the will and the performance. 14 Do all things without murmuring and without questioning, 15 so as to be blameless and guileless, children of God without blemish [a] in the midst of a depraved and perverse generation. For among these you shine like stars in the world, 16 holding fast the word of life to my glory against the day of Christ; because not in vain [b] have I run, neither in vain have I labored. 17 But [c] even if I am made the libation* for the sacrifice and service of your faith, I joy and rejoice with you. 18 And in the same way do you also joy and rejoice with me.

III: TIMOTHY AND EPAPHRODITUS

Timothy. 19 Now I hope in the Lord Jesus shortly to send Timothy to you, that I also may be of good cheer when I know your circumstances. 20 For [d] I have no one so like minded who is so genuinely solicitous for you. 21 For [e] they all seek their own interests, not those of Jesus Christ. 22 But know his worth: as child serves father, so he has served with me in spreading the gospel. 23 I hope then to send him to you as soon as I see how things stand with me. 24 But [f] I trust in the Lord that I myself also shall come to you shortly.

Epaphroditus. 25 But [g] I have thought it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus, my brother and fellow-worker and fellow-soldier, but for you a messenger and the minister to my need. 26 For he was longing for all of you and was grieved because you had heard that he was sick. 27 Yes, he was sick, almost unto death. But God had mercy on him, and not on him only but on me also, that I might not have sorrow upon sorrow. 28 Therefore I send him the more speedily, in order that seeing him again you may rejoice and that I may be free from sorrow. 29 Welcome him, [h] then, with all joy in the Lord and show honor to men like him, 30 because for the work of Christ he drew near to death, risking his life to supply what was lacking* for your service to me.

IV: WARNINGS AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

CHAPTER 3.

The Christian Spirit. 1 For the rest, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord. To write you the same things indeed is not irksome to me, but it is necessary* for you. 2 Beware of the dogs, [i] beware of the evil workers, beware of the mutilation. 3 For [j] we are the circumcision, we who serve God in spirit, who glory in Christ Jesus and have no confidence in the flesh — 4 though I too might have confidence even in the flesh. [k] If anyone else thinks he may have confidence in the flesh, yet more may I: 5 circumcised the eighth day, of the race of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews; [l] as regards the Law, a Pharisee; 6 as regards zeal, a persecutor of the Church of God;* as regards the justice of the Law, leading a blameless life.

Renunciation for the Sake of Christ. 7 But [m] the things that were gain to me,* these, for the sake of Christ, I have counted loss. 8 Nay more, I count everything loss because of the excelling knowledge of Jesus Christ, my Lord. For his sake I have suffered the loss of all things, and I count them as dung that I may gain Christ 9 and be found in him, not having a justice of my own, [n] which is from the Law, but that which is from faith in Christ, the justice from God based upon faith; 10 so that I may know him and the power of his resurrection [o] and the fellowship of his sufferings: become like to him in death, 11 in the hope that somehow I may attain to the resurrection [p] from the dead. 12 Not that I have already obtained this, or already have been made perfect,* [q] but I press on hoping that I may lay hold of that for which Christ Jesus has laid hold of me. 13 Brethren, I do not consider that I have laid hold of it already. But one thing I do: forgetting what is behind, I strain forward to what is before, 14 I press on towards the goal, to the prize [r] of God's heavenly call in Christ Jesus.

15 Let us then, as many as are perfect,* be of this mind; and if in any point you are minded otherwise, this also God will reveal to you. 16 Still [s] in what we have attained let us be of the same mind,* and let us also continue in this same rule.

Followers and Opponents of the Cross. 17 Brethren, be imitators of me,* [t] and mark those who walk after the pattern you have in us. 18 For many walk,* [u] of whom I have told you often and now tell you even weeping, that they are enemies of the cross* of Christ. 19 Their end is ruin, their god is the belly, [v] their glory is in their shame, they mind the things of earth. 20 But our citizenship* is in heaven from which also we eagerly await a Savior,* [w] our Lord Jesus Christ, 21 who [x] will refashion the body of our lowliness, conforming it to the body of his glory by exerting the power by which he is able also to subject all things to himself.

CHAPTER 4.

1 So then, my brethren, beloved and longed for, my joy and my crown, [y] stand fast thus in the Lord, beloved.

Conclusion

Concord. 2 I entreat Evodia and I exhort Syntyche to be of one mind in the Lord. 3 And I beseech thee also, my loyal comrade,* help them, for they have toiled with me in the gospel, as have Clement and the rest of my fellow-workers whose names are in the [z] book of life.

Peace and Joy in the Lord. 4 Rejoice in the Lord [a] always; again I say, rejoice. 5

3, 1: Necessary: the Greek text reads "salutary" or "a safeguard." The Greek can mean: "I do not hesitate to write . . . "

3, 2: Dogs: false teachers. The Jews of the time applied this epithet to the godless and to Gentiles. Mutilation: circumcision.

3, 5: Hebrew of Hebrews: referring perhaps not to racial descent only but to language and customs. Paul's parents, though living among Gentiles in the Dispersion, retained their Hebrew (Aramaic) language and customs.

3, 6: Church of God: the Greek text omits "of God."

3, 7: All his former advantages would indeed be disadvantages if he relied on them.

3, 15: Perfect: i.e., mature, not infants but adults in the faith. Cf 1 Cor 2, 6.

3, 16: Let us be of the same mind: not in the Greek text; probably a gloss.

3, 18: Enemies of the cross: some commentators understand St. Paul to speak of Judaizers, who considered their justification and sanctity as coming not solely from the merits of Christ's death but partly from their own action independently of Christ's merits. Others think the Apostle is speaking of unmortified Christians in general.

3, 19: Their god is the belly: they are slaves of their grosser appetites.

3, 20: Our citizenship: the Greek text reads "commonwealth."

4, 3: Loyal comrade: not identified. Some take Synzyge (comrade) as a proper name and understand "Synzyge, rightly so called."

Let your moderation* be known to all men.[b] The Lord is near. 6 Have no anxiety, but in every prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your petitions[c] be made known to God. 7 And may the peace of God which surpasses all understanding guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

8 For the rest, brethren, [d] whatever things are true, whatever honorable, whatever just, whatever holy, whatever lovable, whatever of good repute, if there be any virtue, if anything worthy of praise, think upon these things. 9 And what you have learned and received and heard and seen in me, [e] these things practise. And the God of peace will be with you.

Their Gift. 10 I have rejoiced in the Lord greatly that now at last your concern for me has revived. Indeed you were always concerned, but lacked opportunity.

11 Not that I speak because I was in want. [f] For I have learned to be self-sufficing in whatever circumstances I am. 12 I know how to live humbly and I know how to live in abundance (I have been schooled to every place and every condition [g]), to be filled and to be hungry, to have abundance and to suffer want. 13 I can do all things [h] in him who strengthens me. 14 Still, you have done well by sharing in my affliction. 15 But, Philippians, you yourselves also know that in the first days of the gospel, when I left Macedonia, no church went into partnership* with me in the matter of giving and receiving [i] but you only.

16 For even in Thessalonica, you sent once and twice something for my need. 17 Not that I am eager for the gift, but I am eager for the profit [j] accumulating to your account. 18 I have all and more than enough. I am fully supplied now that I have received from Epaphroditus what you have sent, a sweet odor,[k] an acceptable sacrifice, well pleasing to God. 19 But may my God supply your every need according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus. 20 Now to our God and Father be glory for endless ages. Amen.

Farewell. 21 Greet every saint in Christ Jesus. 22 The brethren with me here greet you. All the saints greet you, [l] especially those of Caesar's household.* 23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL
THE APOSTLE TO THE COLOSSIANS

During Paul's stay at Ephesus from about 53 to 56 A.D. (Acts 19, 1—20, 2), the message of the Gospel was carried inland by his zealous converts. Among these was Epaphras, who evangelized the towns of Colossae, Laodicea and Hierapolis (4, 12f), situated in the valley of the Lycus River little more than a hundred miles east of Ephesus. The Apostle took a personal interest in the work of his disciple (2, 1). A few years later, while he was being detained at Rome for trial before Caesar, he had news of the Colossians through Epaphras. Though the report of the evangelist was, on the whole, favorable (1, 4-8; 2, 5f), he saw dangerous tendencies in the young Christian community. Self-appointed teachers claimed for angels a very high place of honor (2, 18f), and boasted of a deeper knowledge of Christianity, insisting on Judaic observances (2, 16) and a false asceticism (2, 20-23). Concerned lest his work be destroyed, Epaphras had come to Rome to seek help from Paul.

Paul met the danger by sending (63 A.D.) a letter to Colossae, borne by Tychicus (4, 7-9). To counter the errors he set forth in clear terms the true doctrine concerning Christ, our Redeemer, head of the mystical body, the Church (1, 15—2, 3), and drew up rules for an ideal Christian life (3, 5—4, 6). Between these positive sections, the Apostle inserted a vigorous condemnation of the false teachings (2, 4—3, 4). Because of the emphatic statement of Christ's divinity that they contain, the first two chapters of the letter are of great doctrinal importance.

The Epistle to the Colossians bears a remarkable resemblance to the Epistle to the Ephesians. Most of the words and phrases of this shorter letter are met with in the other also. Written at the same time, both were addressed to communities of Jewish and pagan converts, struggling in like circumstances to maintain the purity of their faith. The two Epistles should be read and studied together.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and our brother Timothy, 2 to the brethren in Colossae, holy and faithful in Christ Jesus: grace be to you and peace from God our Father.

Thanksgiving. 3 We give thanks to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always for you, 4 for we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love that you bear towards all the saints 5 because of the hope that is laid up for you in heaven. Of that hope you have heard in the word of the gospel truth 6 which has reached you, even as it is in the whole world, both bearing fruit and growing; just as it does among you since the day that you heard and recognized the grace of God in truth. 7 Thus you learned from our most dear fellow-servant Epaphras.* He is a faithful minister of Christ Jesus in your behalf; 8 and it was he who made known to us your love in the Spirit.

Prayer for Their Progress. 9 This is why we too have been praying for you unceasingly, since the day we heard this, and asking that you may be filled with knowledge of his will, in all spiritual wisdom and understanding. 10 May you walk worthily of God and please him in all things, bearing fruit in every good work and growing in the knowledge of God. 11 May you be completely strengthened through his glorious power unto perfect patience and long-suffering; joyfully 12 rendering thanks to the Father, who has made us worthy to share the lot of the saints in light. 13 He has rescued us from the power of darkness and transferred us into the kingdom of his beloved Son, 14 in whom we have our redemption, the remission of our sins.

I: THE PRE-EMINENCE OF CHRIST

God, Creator, Head. 15 He is the image of the invisible God,* the firstborn of every creature. 16 For in him [a] were created all things in the heavens and on the earth, things visible and things invisible, whether Thrones, or Dominations, or Principalities, or Powers.* All things have been created through and unto him, 17 and he is before all creatures, and in him all things hold together. 18 Again, he is the head of his body, the Church; [b] he, who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, that in all things he may have the first place. 19 For it has pleased God the Father that in him all his fullness should dwell, 20 and that through him he should reconcile to himself all things, whether on the earth or in the heavens, making peace through the blood of his cross.

Conciliator. 21 You yourselves were at one time estranged and enemies in mind through your evil works. 22 But now he has reconciled you in his body of flesh through his death, to present you holy and undefiled and irreproachable before him. 23 Only you must remain firmly founded in the faith and steadfast and not withdrawing from the hope of the a Jn 1, 3.—b 1 Cor 15, 20; Ap 1, 5.

1, 7: Together with Col 2, 1 and Col 4, 12, these words make it almost certain that St. Paul had not preached at Colossae. However, he knew some of the Colossians personally from having met them at Ephesus. Cf note on Phlm 1.

1, 15-20: Christ's pre-eminence is asserted from the viewpoint of His divine nature (15-17) and of His work as Redeemer (18-20). The image of the Father, he is "true God of true God"; "the only-begotten of the Father" (Jn 1, 14), He occupies the privileged position of the firstborn (Heb 1, 4-15). All created things, even the angels, were made by Him out of nothing, and He maintains them in existence. As God-Man He redeemed us by shedding His blood for us on the cross. He is the source (beginning) of the new life of grace in us, firstborn of "the new creation." (Cf Gal 6, 15; 2 Cor 5, 17). The head of the mystical body, the Church, is Christ; angels are not His equals as mediators between God and mankind (cf Col 2, 10. 19).

1, 16: Thrones, Dominations, Principalities, Powers: here used of both good and bad angels. The last two names are applied to angels in Col 2, 10 and to demons in Col 2, 15.

gospel which you have heard. It has been preached to every creature under heaven; and of it I, Paul, have become a minister.

Center of Preaching. 24 I rejoice now in the sufferings I bear for your sake; and what is lacking of the sufferings of Christ* I fill up in my flesh for his body, which is the Church; 25 whose minister I have become in virtue of the office that God has given me in your regard. For I am to preach the word of God fully – 26 the mystery which has been hidden for ages and generations, but now is clearly shown to his saints. 27 To them God willed to make known how rich in glory is this mystery among the Gentiles – Christ in you, your hope of glory! 28 Him we preach, admonishing every man and teaching every man in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus. 29 At this, too, I work and strive, according to the power which he mightily exerts in me.*

CHAPTER 2.

1 For I wish you to know what great concern I have for you and for the Laodiceans and for all who have not seen me in the flesh; 2 that their hearts may be comforted, and they themselves well equipped in charity and in all the riches of complete understanding, so as to know the mystery of God the Father of Christ Jesus,* 3 in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom* and knowledge.

II: WARNINGS AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

A General Admonition. 4 Now I say this so that no one may deceive you by persuasive words. 5 For though I am absent in [c] body, yet in spirit I am with you, rejoicing at the sight of your orderly array and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ. 6 Therefore, as you have received Jesus Christ our Lord, so walk in him; 7 be rooted in him and built up on him, and strengthened in the faith, as you also have learnt, rendering thanks abundantly.

Speculative Errors. 8 See to it that no one deceives* you by philosophy and vain deceit, according to human traditions, according to the elements of the world and not according to Christ. 9 *For in him dwells all the fullness of the Godhead bodily, 10 and in him who is the head of every Principality and Power you have received of that fullness. 11 In him, too, you have been circumcised with a circumcision not wrought by hand, but through putting off the body of the flesh, a circumcision which is of Christ. 12 For you were buried together with him in Baptism, and in him also rose again through faith in the working of God who raised him from the dead. 13 And [d] you, when you were dead by reason of your sins and the uncircumcision of your flesh, he brought to life along with him, forgiving you all your sins, 14 cancelling the decree against us, which was hostile to us. Indeed, he has taken it completely away, nailing it to the cross. 15 Disarming the Principalities and Powers, he displayed them openly, leading them away in triumph by force of it.

Erroneous Practices. 16 Let no one, then, call you to account for what you eat or drink or in regard to a festival or a new moon or a Sabbath.* 17 These are a shadow of things to come, but the substance is of Christ. 18 Let no one cheat [e] you who takes pleasure in self-abasement and worship of the angels, and enters vainly into what he has not seen, puffed up by his mere human mind. 19 Such a one is not united to the head, from whom the whole body, supplied and built up by joints and ligaments, attains a growth that is of God.

c I Cor 5, 3.—d Eph 2, 1.—e Mt 24, 4.

1, 24: What is lacking of the sufferings of Christ: St. Paul means, according to many interpreters, the sufferings endured by our Lord during His life on earth. Though these sufferings have infinite value to satisfy for the sins of men, they have to be applied to individual souls. The labor of the Apostle contributes to this. According to a more probable view, St. Paul calls his own sufferings the tribulations of Christ because of his intimate union with the Savior in the mystical body.

1, 29: Or, "according to his strength which is mightily stirred within me."

2, 2: There is some support for the reading: " . . . the mystery of God, that is, Christ . . . in whom . . . "

2, 3: Only the Son can impart true knowledge concerning God the Father (Jn 1, 18). Those who pretend to have received further revelations, derived from sources other than Christ (Col 2, 4. 8. 16-23), are false teachers.

2, 8: Deceives: the Greek reads, "carries you away." The elements of the world: a term used in the syncretistic worship practised in Asia Minor, signifying the demons whom the heathens in their superstition held to be in control of the four elements and the heavenly bodies.

2, 9-15: St. Paul adduces three points against the false teachings: (1) Christ is superior to the angels for in Him the divine nature is incarnate (vv 9f): through Him, not through angels, we may become "partakers of the divine nature" (2 Pt 1, 4). (2) Our sins are forgiven, not through the agency of angels, but in our receiving at Baptism a spiritual circumcision (vv 11-13). (3) Through His death on the cross Christ brought to an end the rule of Satan and his hosts over the world (vv 14f).

2, 16-23: There is no need, then, for outworn and abrogated Judaic rites (vv 16f), or for the ascetical practices carried out in connection with the superstitious worship of evil spirits (vv 18-23). Indeed, such observances, inspired by vain pride, end in sinful catering to the sensual appetite.

20 If you have died with Christ to the elements of the world, why, as if still living in the world, do you lay down the rules: 21 "Do not touch; nor taste; nor handle!" — 22 things that must all perish in their very use? In this you follow "the precepts and doctrines of men," 23 which, to be sure, *have a show of wisdom in superstition and self-abasement and hard treatment of the body, but are not to be held in esteem, and lead to the full gratification of the flesh.

CHAPTER 3.

Mystical Death and Resurrection. 1
Therefore, if you have risen with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God.
2 Mind the things that are above, not the things that are on earth. 3 For you have died and your life is hidden with Christ in God. 4 When Christ, your life, shall appear, then you too will appear with him in glory.

III: THE IDEAL CHRISTIAN LIFE IN THE WORLD

Renounce Vices. 5 Therefore mortify your members, which are on earth: f immorality, uncleanness, lust, evil desire and covetousness* (which is a form of idol-worship). 6 Because of these things the wrath of God comes upon the unbelievers, 7 and you yourselves once walked in them when they were your life. 8 But g now do you also put them all away:
anger, wrath, malice, abusive language and foul-mouthed utterances. 9 Do not lie to one another. Strip off the old man with his deeds 10 and put on the new, one that is being renewed unto perfect knowledge
"according to the image of his Creator."
11 Here there is not "Gentile and Jew," "circumcised and uncircumcised," "Barbarian and Scythian," "slave and freeman";* but Christ is all things and in all.

Practise Virtues. 12 Put on therefore, as God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, a heart of mercy,h kindness, humility, meekness, patience. 13 Bear with one another and forgive one another, if anyone has a grievance against any other; even as the Lord has forgiven you, so also do you forgive. 14 But above all these things have charity, which is the bond of perfection. 15 And may the peace of Christ reign in your hearts; unto that peace, indeed, you were called in one body. Show yourselves thankful. 16 Let the word of Christ dwell in you abundantly: in all wisdom teach and admonish one another by psalms, hymns and spiritual songs, singing in your hearts to God by his grace.
17 Whatever i you do in word or in work, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him.

The Christian Family. 18 *Wives, be subject to your husbands,j as is becoming in the Lord. 19 Husbands, love your wives and do not be bitter towards them. 20 Children, k obey your parents in all things, for that is pleasing in the Lord. 21 Fathers,
l do not provoke your children to anger, that they may not be discouraged.

Slaves and Masters. 22 Slaves, m obey in all things your masters according to the flesh; not with eye-service seeking to please men, but in singleness of heart from fear of the Lord. 23 Whatever you do, work at it from the heart as for the Lord and not for men, 24 knowing that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward. Serve the Lord Christ. 25 For he n who does a wrong will reap the wrong he did, and there is no respect of persons.

CHAPTER 4.

1 Masters, give your slaves what is just and fair, knowing that you too have a Master in heaven.

Prayer and Prudence. 2 Be o assiduous in prayer, being wakeful therein with thanksgiving. 3 At the same time p pray for us also, that God may give us an opportunity for the word, to announce the mystery of Christ (for which also I am in chains), 4 that I may openly announce it as I ought to speak. 5 Walk q in wisdom as regards outsiders,* making the most of your time. 6 Let your speech, while always attractive, be seasoned with salt, that you may know how you ought to answer each one.

f Eph 5, 3.—g Rom 6, 4; Eph 4, 22; Heb 12, 1; 1 Pt 2, 1; 4, 2.—h Eph 6, 11.—i 1 Cor 10, 31.—j Eph 5, 22; 1 Pt 3, 1.—k Eph 6, 1.—l Eph 6, 4.—m Ti 2, 9; 1 Pt 2, 18.—n Rom 2, 5.—o Lk 18, 1; 1 Thes 5, 17.—p Eph 6, 19; 2 Thes 3, 1.—q Eph 5, 15.

2, 23: Or, "they have, to be sure, a show of wisdom in self-made piety and humiliation and bodily chatisement, but have no merit, serving the gratification of the flesh."

3, 5: Covetousness is the worship of mammon (Mt 6, 4).

3, 11: In the higher Christian life of grace, social and racial distinctions count for nothing.

3, 18-21: Cf notes on Eph 5, 21—6, 9.

4, 5: Like St. Paul, the Colossians must look for favorable openings to win outsiders to the faith.

Conclusion

Tychicus and Onesimus. 7 All my circumstances Tychicus,* our dearest brother and faithful minister and fellow-servant in the Lord, will tell you. 8 Him I have sent to you for this very purpose, that he may learn your circumstances and comfort your hearts.* 9 With him is Onesimus,* our most dear and faithful brother, who is one of you. They will tell you all that is going on here.

From Paul's Co-workers. 10 Aristarchus,* my fellow-prisoner, sends you greetings; so does Mark, Barnabas' cousin (concerning whom you have received instructions —if he comes to you, welcome him), 11 and Jesus who is called Justus. Of men circumcised, these only are my fellow-workers in the kingdom of God; they have been a comfort to me. 12 Epaphras,* who is one of you, sends you greetings — a servant of Christ Jesus, who is ever solicitous for you in his prayers, that you may remain perfect and completely in accord with all the will of God. 13 Yes, I bear him witness that he labors much for you and for those who are at Laodicea and at Hierapolis. 14 Luke,[r] our most dear physician,* and Demas send you greetings.

A Message for the Laodiceans. 15 Greetings to the brethren who are at Laodicea and to Nymphas* and the church that is in his house. 16 And when this letter has been read among you, see that it be read in the church of the Laodiceans* also; and that you yourselves read the letter from Laodicea. 17 And say to Archippus:* "Look to the ministry which thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfill it."

18 I, Paul, greet you by my own hand. Remember my chains. Grace be with you. Amen.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS

St. Paul founded the church at Thessalonica during the early part of his second great missionary journey, i.e., about 51 A.D. Thessalonica, the capital of Macedonia, was a large and important city. Its population was predominantly Gentile, but Jews dwelt there in sufficient numbers to have a synagogue. Paul succeeded in converting some of the Jews and a large number of Gentiles. But his success stirred up the envy of the unbelieving Jews, who by calumny and riot compelled him to flee to Berœa. From there he went to Athens and Corinth, and it was in the latter city that this letter was written.

While at Athens Paul, fearing lest the persecution which continued against the church at Thessalonica should cause his new converts to abandon the faith, sent Timothy to ascertain conditions in the church and to comfort and strengthen its members. Timothy reported to Paul at Corinth, bringing the cheering news of their constancy in the face of persecution. He likewise informed Paul that the Thessalonians required further instruction on the Second Coming of Christ, and this topic forms the main doctrinal subject of the Epistle, which was written shortly after Timothy's return from Thessalonica. The Second Epistle to the Thessalonians was written soon after the First, and these two Epistles are generally regarded as the earliest of Paul's writings.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul [a] and Silvanus and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians in God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ: grace be to you and peace.

Thanksgiving for Their Faith. 2 We give thanks to God always for you all, continually making a remembrance of you in our prayers; 3 being mindful before God our Father of your work of faith, and labor, and charity, and your enduring hope in our Lord Jesus Christ.

4 We know, brethren, beloved of God, how you were chosen.* 5 For our gospel was not delivered to you in word only, but in power* also, and in the Holy Spirit, and in much fullness, as indeed you know what manner of men we have been among you for your sakes. 6 And you became imitators of us and of the Lord,[b] receiving the word in great tribulation,* with joy of the Holy Spirit, 7 so that you became a pattern to all the believers in Macedonia and in Achaia. 8 For from you the word of the Lord has been spread abroad, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith in God has gone forth, so that we need say nothing further. 9 For [c] they themselves report concerning us how we entered among you, and how you turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God, 10 and to await from heaven Jesus, his Son,[d] whom he raised from the dead, who has delivered us from the wrath to come.*

I: PAUL'S PAST RELATIONS AND PRESENT INTEREST

CHAPTER 2.

His Mission among Them. 1 For you yourselves, brethren, know that our coming among you was not in vain.* 2 But although we had previously experienced suffering and shameful treatment at Philippi,* as you know, we had confidence in our God to preach to you the gospel of God amid much anxiety. 3 For our exhortation was not from error, nor from impure motives, nor from guile. 4 But as approved by God to be entrusted with the gospel, so we speak not as pleasing men, but God, who proves our hearts. 5 For at no time have we used words of flattery, as you know, nor any pretext for [e] avarice, God is witness, 6 nor have we sought glory from men,[f] neither from you nor from others. 7 Although as the apostles of Christ we could have claimed a position of honor among you, still while in your midst we were as children: as if a nurse were cherishing her own children, 8 so we in our love for you would gladly have imparted to you not only the gospel of God, but also our own souls;* because you had become most dear to us.

9 For you remember, brethren, our labor and toil. [g] We worked night and day so as not to be a burden to any of you while we preached to you the gospel of God.* 10 You are witnesses and God also, how holy and just and blameless was our conduct towards you who have believed; 11 inasmuch as you are aware of how we entreated and comforted each one of you, [h] acting towards you as a father towards his children, 12 declaring to you that you should walk worthily of God, who called you unto his kingdom and glory.

Thanksgiving for Their Constancy. 13 Therefore we too give thanks to God without ceasing, because when you heard and received from us the word of God, you welcomed it not as the word of men, but, as it truly is, the word of God, who works in you who have believed. 14 For you, brethren, have become imitators of the churches of God which are in Judea in Christ Jesus, in that you also have suffered the same things from your own countrymen as they have from the Jews,* 15 who both killed the Lord Jesus and the prophets, and have persecuted us. [i] They are displeasing to God, and are hostile to all men, 16 because they hinder us from speaking to the Gentiles, that they may be saved. Thus they are always filling up the measure of their sins, for the wrath of God* has come upon them to the utmost.

17 But we, brethren, being bereaved of you for a short time, in sight, not in heart, have made more than ordinary efforts to hasten* to see you, so great has been our desire. 18 For we wanted to come to you – I, Paul, more than once – but Satan hindered us.* 19 For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of glory, if not you before our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?* 20 Yes, you are our glory and joy.

CHAPTER 3.

The Mission of Timothy. 1 And so i when we could bear it no longer we decided to remain at Athens alone, 2 and we sent Timothy,k our brother and a servant of God in the gospel of Christ, to strengthen and comfort you in your faith, 3 lest any should be shaken* by these tribulations. For you yourselves know that we are appointed thereto. 4 Indeed l even when we were with you we used to tell you that we should suffer tribulations, as also it has come to pass, and you know. 5 Consequently when I could bear it no longer I sent in order to know your faith, lest perhaps the tempter* might have tempted you, and our labor might come to naught.

6 But now that Timothy has come to us from you,m and has made known to us your faith and charity, and your kindly remembrance of us at all times, and that you long to see us just as we long to see you, 7 we have accordingly found comfort in you, brethren, amid all our trials and tribulations, on account of your faith; 8 because now we live, if you stand fast in the Lord. 9 For what thanks can we return to God for you for all the joy wherewith we rejoice for your sakes before our God? 10 Night and day we pray more and more* that we may see you again, and may supply those things that are lacking to your faith.

11 May God our Father and our Lord Jesus direct our way unto you. 12 And may the Lord make you to increase and abound in charity towards one another, and towards all men just as we do towards you, 13 that he may strengthen your hearts, blameless in holiness before God our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, with all his saints. Amen.

CHAPTER 4.

Exhortation to Chastity and Charity. 1 Moreover, brethren, even as you have learned from us how you ought to walk to please God – as indeed you are walking – we beseech and exhort you in the Lord Jesus to make even greater progress. 2 For you know what precepts I have given to you by the Lord Jesus. 3 For this is the will of God, your sanctification; that you abstain from immorality; 4 that every one of you learn how to possess his vessel* in holiness and honor, 5 not in the passion of lust like the Gentiles who do not know God; 6 that no one transgress and overreach his brother in the matter,* because the Lord is the avenger of all these things, as we have told you before and have testified. 7 For God has not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness. 8 Therefore, he who rejects these things* rejects not man but God, who has also given his Holy Spirit to us.

9 But concerning brotherly charity there is no need for us to write to you, n for you yourselves have learned from God to love one another. 10 For indeed you

j Acts 17, 14f.—k Acts 16, 1f.—l Acts 14, 22.—m Acts 18, 5.—n Jn 13, 34.

2, 16: The wrath of God: cf 1 Thes 1, 10; 5, 9. The severest kind of punishment God can inflict on the unbelieving Jews is eternal damnation. Possibly Paul also has in mind two other manifestations of God's anger towards the Jews, namely, the destruction of Jerusalem and the exclusion of the Jews as a nation from the Church. Cf Rom 11, 25-27.

2, 17: More than ordinary efforts to hasten: literally, "have hastened more abundantly."

2, 18: Satan hindered us: i.e., through evil men, whether Jews or Gentiles, who served as his agents to interfere with Paul's ministry.

2, 19: Coming: i.e., parousia. The word, used four times in 1 Thes (cf 1 Thes 3, 13; 4, 15; 5, 23), occurs here for the first time. Literally it means "presence," but in the New Testament it is a technical term for the Second Coming of Christ.

3, 3: Shaken: has the meaning of "unfavorably affected." We are appointed thereto: cf Acts 14, 21; 2 Tm 3, 12.

3, 5: The tempter: the devil. He is also given this name in Mt 4, 3.

3, 10: More and more: literally, "more abundantly." Those things that are lacking to your faith: he wished to give them fuller instruction in the truths of Christianity. He had been obliged to leave Thessalonica before completing their instruction. Cf Acts 17, 1-10.

4, 1: To make even greater progress: literally, "to abound more."

4, 3: Immorality: Paul repeatedly warns his converts against this sin. Cf 1 Cor 5, 11; 6, 9. 13. 15-20; 1 Tm 1, 10.

4, 4: Vessel: may refer to a man's body or to his wife. The first meaning seems preferable. In this sense of "body," Paul is forbidding the use of it for immorality. In the sense of "wife," two translations are given: a) acquire a wife, b) possess a wife; a) avoid sexual indulgence before marriage, b) make a proper use of marriage.

4, 6: In the matter: the Vulgate, in negotio, may also mean "in business," but the context, which is concerned with immorality, favors the translation given. Paul is here warning against sins of adultery.

4, 8: These things: this teaching.

practise it towards all the brethren all over Macedonia. But we exhort you, brethren, to make even greater progress. 11 Strive to live peacefully, minding your own affairs, working with your own hands, as we charged you, 12 so that you may walk becomingly towards outsiders, and may need nothing.

II: THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD

Witnessed by the Dead. 13 But we would not, brethren, [o] have you ignorant concerning those who are asleep, lest you should grieve, even as others who have no hope. 14 For [p] if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, so with him God will bring those also who have fallen asleep through Jesus. 15 For [q] this we say to you in the word of the Lord, that we who live, who survive until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. 16 For [r] the Lord himself with cry of command,* with voice of archangel, and with trumpet of God will descend from heaven; and the dead in Christ will rise up first. 17 Then [s] we who live, who survive, shall be caught up together with them in clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so we shall ever be with the Lord. 18 Wherefore, comfort one another with these words.

CHAPTER 5.

Time Unknown. 1 But [t] of the times and seasons,* brethren, you have no need that we write to you, 2 for you yourselves know well that the day of the Lord is to come as a thief in the night. 3 For when they shall say, "Peace and security," even then sudden destruction will come upon them, as birth pangs upon her who is with child, and they will not escape.

Be Always Prepared. 4 But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day* should overtake you as a thief; 5 for you are all children of the light and children of the day. We are not of night nor of darkness. 6 Therefore, let us not sleep as do the rest, but let us be wakeful and sober. 7 For they who sleep, sleep at night, and they who are drunk, are drunk at night. 8 But let us, who are of the day, be sober. [u] Let us put on the breastplate of faith and charity, and for a helmet the hope of salvation. 9 For God has not destined us unto wrath,* but to gain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, 10 who died for us in order that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him. 11 Wherefore, comfort one another and edify one another, even as indeed you do.

Conclusion

Obedience, Patience and Charity. 12 Now we beseech you, brethren, to appreciate those who labor among you, and who are over you *in the Lord and admonish you. 13 Esteem them with a more abundant love on account of their work. Be at peace with them. 14 And we exhort you, brethren, reprove the irregular, comfort the fainthearted, support the weak, be patient towards all men. 15 See [v] that no one renders evil for evil to any man; but always strive after good towards one another and towards all men.

16 Rejoice always. 17 Pray without ceasing. 18 In all things give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus regarding you all. 19 Do not extinguish the Spirit.* 20 Do not despise prophecies.* 21

4, 14: After so understand the words: "we believe that." Fallen asleep through Jesus: those who died united to Jesus by grace shall share in His glorious Resurrection. There is a necessary bond between the Resurrection of Christ and that of the just. Cf 1 Cor 15, 13-16. 20f. 50-55.

4, 15: In the word of the Lord: Paul's teaching on the subject of the parousia is that of Christ Himself. We who live, who survive: this does not assert or imply that the parousia will take place in the lifetime of St. Paul. We: applies to the faithful, whoever they may be, who are alive at the end of the world. Those living at the Second Coming of Christ shall have no advantage over those who have died, because the living shall not go before them to glory or receive glory without them. The Thessalonians, therefore, need not grieve over the lot of the dead.

4, 16: Cry of command, voice of archangel, trumpet of God: probably signify the same thing, namely, God's command to the dead to arise. Cf Mt 24, 30; Lk 21, 27: Acts 1, 11; 2 Thes 1, 7.

5, 1: In v 2 Paul gives the reason why it is unnecessary for him to write to them about the time of Christ's Second Coming. When among them he had informed them that it would occur suddenly and unexpectedly. The time is uncertain because no man knows it. Cf Mt 24, 36; Mk 13, 32.

5, 4: Since the day of the Lord is uncertain as to time, there remains the possibility that it may occur during the lifetime of the Thessalonians. Paul neither asserts nor implies that it will. He merely points out the practical conclusions to be drawn from this possibility. It should not terrify them, because their virtues render them ready to meet Christ. It should prompt them always to live in a state of readiness (vv 5-8). Paul's admonition is the same as that of Christ. Cf Mt 24, 44.

5, 9: Wrath: cf 1 Thes 1, 10; 2, 16.

5, 12: The existence of a hierarchy is indicated.

5, 13: Be at peace with them: a variant reading has, "be at peace among yourselves."

5, 14: The irregular: the Greek reads "idlers."

5, 19: Do not extinguish the Spirit: make use of the charismatic gifts such as tongues and prophecy. Cf 1 Cor 12-14.

5, 20: Prophecies: inspired instructions of those who had the gift known as prophecy.

But test all things; *hold fast that which is good. 22 Keep yourselves from every kind of evil.

Final Blessing and Greeting. 23 And may the God of peace himself sanctify you completely, and may your spirit* and soul and body be preserved sound, blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. 24 He who called you is faithful and will do this.

25 Brethren, pray for us. 26 Greet all the brethren with a holy kiss. 27 I charge you by the Lord that this epistle be read to all the holy brethren. 28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS

The First Epistle failed to quiet the doubts and fears of the Thessalonians, and so Paul hastened to supply them with fuller information on the subject of the "parousia," or Second Coming of Christ. He informed them that the "parousia" was not at hand. It could not take place until a great apostasy occurred and Antichrist appeared. Some of the Thessalonians who were convinced that the Second Coming of Christ was at hand thought it useless to work, and consequently lived irregularly. Paul condemned this practice, and ordered the offenders to be corrected. He urged all to adhere to his teachings, whether these were given orally or in writing.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul and Silvanus and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians [a] in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ: 2 grace be to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Their Faith and Constancy. 3 We are bound to give thanks to God always for you, brethren. It is fitting that we should, because your faith grows exceedingly and your charity each one for the other increases. 4 And because of this we ourselves boast of you in the churches of God for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and the tribulations that you are enduring. 5 In this there is a proof* of the just judgment of God counting you worthy of the kingdom of God, for which also you suffer. 6 Indeed it is just on the part of God to repay with affliction those who afflict you, 7 and to give you who are afflicted rest with us at the revelation of the Lord Jesus* who will come from heaven with the angels of his power, 8 in flaming fire, [b] to inflict punishment on those who do not know God, and who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9 These [c] will be punished with eternal ruin, away from the face of the Lord and the glory of his power, 10 when on that day he shall come to be glorified in his saints,[d] and to be marvelled at in all those who have believed.* For our testimony before you has been believed.

Prayer for Their Glorification. 11 To this end also we pray always for you, that our God may make you worthy of his calling, and may fulfill with power every good purpose and work of faith, 12 that the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may 5, 21: Test all things: they are to make certain that the gifts are genuine.

5, 23: Spirit: the human soul as the principle of intelligence and will. Soul: the human soul as the principle of animal and sensitive life, hence as the seat of the affections and feelings. Spirit, soul, and body, are the terms in which Paul sums up man and his activities. Cf 1 Cor 15, 44. 46; Heb 4, 12. Consequently he prays that under the grace of God they may be wholly sanctified.

1, 5: Proof: i.e., token or indication. Their persecutions and sufferings show that God will have to punish and reward in another life. Cf vv 6f.

1, 7: At the revelation of the Lord Jesus: i.e., at the parousia or Second Coming of Christ. Cf Mt 24, 30f.

1, 8: In flaming fire: this is a figurative description of the appearance of Christ as judge. Cf 1 Cor 3, 12-15. All who reject the gospel, whether Jews or pagans, shall be punished.

1, 9: Eternal ruin: eternal damnation. Away from the face of the Lord: i.e., eternal separation from Christ. The glory of his power: i.e., eternal deprivation of the glory imparted to the just by the power of Christ.

1, 10: The glory of the just is reflected in Christ who obtained it for them.

be glorified in you,[e] and you in him,* according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

I: THE SECOND COMING OF OUR LORD

CHAPTER 2.

Preludes to the Second Coming. 1 We beseech you, brethren[f] by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our being gathered together unto him, 2 not to be hastily shaken from your right mind, nor terrified, whether by spirit,* or by utterance, or by letter attributed to us, as though the day of the Lord were near at hand. 3 Let no one deceive you in any way, for the day of the Lord will not come* unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of sin is revealed, the son of perdition, 4 who opposes and is exalted above all that is called God, or that is worshiped, so that he sits in the temple of God* and gives himself out as if he were God. 5 Do you not remember that when I was still with you, I used to tell you these things? 6 And now you know what restrains him,* that he may be revealed in his proper time. 7 For the mystery of iniquity* is already at work;[g] provided only that he who is at present restraining it, does still restrain, until he is gotten out of the way.

8 And then the wicked one will be revealed,[h] whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth and will destroy with the brightness of his coming.*

9 And his coming is according[i] to the working of Satan* with all power and signs and lying wonders, 10 and with all wicked deception to those who are perishing. For they have not received the love of truth that they might be saved. 11 Therefore God sends* them a misleading influence that they may believe falsehood, 12 that all may be judged who have not believed the truth, but have preferred wickedness.

Thanksgiving for Their Election. 13 But we, brethren, beloved of God, are bound to give thanks to God always for you, because God has chosen you as first-fruits* unto salvation through the sanctification of the Spirit and belief[j] of the truth. 14 For this purpose he also called you by our preaching to gain the glory[k] of our Lord Jesus Christ. 15 So then, brethren, stand firm, and hold the teachings* that you have learned, whether by word or by letter of ours. 16 And may our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our[l] Father, who has loved us and has given us through grace everlasting consolation and good hope, 17 comfort and strengthen your hearts in every good work and word.

II: EXHORTATION

CHAPTER 3.

Request for Mutual Prayer. 1 In conclusion, brethren, pray for us,[m] that the word of the Lord may run* and be glorified even as among you, 2 and that we may be delivered from troublesome and evil men; for not all men have the faith.*

3 But the Lord is faithful, who will strengthen you and guard you from evil. 4 And we have confidence in the Lord as regards you, that you both do and will do the things that we enjoin. 5 And may the

1, 12: All sanctification and glorification are achieved through the grace of Christ.

2, 2: Spirit . . . utterance . . . letter: indicate three possible sources of their belief that the parousia is imminent. Spirit refers to some falsely claimed revelation; utterance may be a statement of Paul's which was misunderstood, or wrongly attributed to him; the letter seems to be one forged in Paul's name.

2, 3: The day of the Lord will not come: these words have been inserted to complete the sentence, which in the original is elliptical. The parousia must be preceded by a great apostasy, i.e., a great religious revolt, and the advent of the man of sin, i.e., Antichrist. Son of perdition: one entirely deserving of eternal punishment.

2, 4: Antichrist will be characterized by great impiety and pride. He sits in the temple of God, etc.: he will aspire to be treated as God and proclaim that he is really God. The reference to the temple should not be pressed.

2, 6: What restrains him: the Thessalonians knew the obstacle. We can only conjecture what it was.

2, 7: Mystery of iniquity: the evil power of which Antichrist is to be the public exponent and champion. He who is at present restraining it: the obstacle is now spoken of as a person. Some suggest that Michael the archangel and his heavenly army may be the obstacles which now prevent the appearance of Antichrist.

2, 8: When Christ appears in glory, He will inflict defeat and death on Antichrist by a mere word of command.

2, 9f: By the aid of Satan Antichrist will perform prodigies which men will falsely regard as miracles, and by means of which they will be led to adopt sinful practices and erroneous doctrines.

2, 11: God sends: God will allow their willful rejection of truth to have its natural results of spiritual blindness, impenitence and damnation. A misleading influence: or, "a delusion."

2, 13: First-fruits: i.e., earliest believers in the gospel. Some MSS read: "from the beginning." That is, God called them from all eternity.

2, 15: Teachings: i.e., his teachings whether given orally or in writing. Hence not all apostolic teaching was written in the books of the New Testament.

3, 1: May run: i.e., be rapidly spread. Be glorified. i.e., be held in honor.

3, 2: Cf Acts 17, 5-13 and 18, 5f for Jewish opposition to his efforts.

Lord direct your hearts into the love of God and the patience of Christ.

Against Idleness. [6] And we charge you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to withdraw yourselves from every brother who lives irregularly,* and not according to the teaching received from us. [7] For you yourselves know how you ought to imitate us;* for we were not unruly while with you, [8] neither did we eat any man's bread at his cost,* but we worked night and day in labor and toil, so that we might not burden any of you. [9] Not that we did not have the right to do so, but that we might make ourselves an example for you to imitate us. [10] For indeed when we were with you we used to charge you:[n] if any man will not work, neither let him eat.* [11] For we have heard that some among you are living irregularly,[o] doing no work but busy at meddling. [12] Now such persons we charge and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ that they work quietly and eat their own bread.

[13] But you, brethren, do not grow tired of well-doing. [14] And if anyone does not obey our word by this letter, note that man and do not associate with him, that he may be put to shame. [15] Yet do not regard him as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother.

Conclusion

Final Blessing and Greeting. [16] And may the Lord of peace himself give you everlasting peace in every place.* The Lord be with you all. [17] I, Paul, greet you with my own hand. This is the mark in every letter. Thus I write.* [18] The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

n 1 Thes 3, 4; 4, 11.—o 1 Thes 5, 14.

3, 6: Irregularly: here, as in v 11, the term refers to deliberate avoidance of work, or malingering. In 1 Thes 4, 11 and in his preaching (3, 10) Paul expressly instructed them to work and perform their daily duties.

3, 7: He refers to his own example which should have been imitated.

3, 8f: He did not insist on his right to their support, but provided for himself by the labor of his own hands. Cf 1 Thes 2, 9; Acts 18, 3; 20, 34; 1 Cor 9, 14f; 2 Cor 11, 7-13.

3, 10: Paul indicates one of the means to be used in repressing culpable idleness. Cf v 12 for another.

3, 16: In every place: a variant reading has, "in every manner."

3, 17: Thus I write: i.e., this is my handwriting. His personal signature is the sign that the letter is his.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TIMOTHY

The two Epistles to St. Timothy and the one to St. Titus are called Pastoral Epistles because they are addressed directly, not to any church as a group, but rather to its head or pastor for his guidance in the rule of the church. All three Epistles are closely connected in form and content. From earliest times these letters have been recognized as inspired and canonical by the eastern and western Fathers.

St. Timothy was of Lystra in Lycaonia, born of a Greek father and a Jewish mother (Acts 16, 1). He was educated in the assiduous reading of the Scriptures (2 Tm 3, 15). His mother Eunice and his grandmother Lois (2 Tm 1, 5), as well as Timothy himself, probably embraced the faith during St. Paul's first stay at Lystra, since they were already Christians at his return on the second missionary journey (Acts 16, 1). It was at that time that Timothy was highly recommended by the Christians and the Apostle chose him as a missionary companion. Since Timothy was uncircumcised, the Apostle performed this rite upon him to facilitate his preaching among the Jewish colonists in the regions of Phrygia (Acts 16, 3) and elsewhere. Thereafter Timothy was seldom parted from St. Paul, who employed him in some difficult and confidential missions (2 Thes 3, 1-8; 1 Cor 4, 17; 16, 10; Phil 2, 19-23; Heb 13, 23). During the first imprisonment of the Apostle at Rome, Timothy was with his master (Col 1, 1; Phlm 1; Phil 1, 1). After this imprisonment he accompanied the Apostle on his last missionary journey and was left at Ephesus to take charge of the church there (1 Tm 1, 3). The Apostle, shortly before his death, wrote Timothy to come to him before the winter (2 Tm 1, 4; 4, 9. 21). According to tradition Timothy spent the rest of his life at Ephesus as its bishop and was martyred during the winter of 97 A.D. His feast is celebrated in the Latin Church on January 24.

This first Epistle was written between Paul's liberation from the first imprisonment (63 A.D.) and his death (67 A.D.), on one of his journeys not mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles (1 Tm 1, 3; cf also 2 Tm 4, 13. 20; Ti 3, 12), since it presupposes an ecclesiastical hierarchy as well as false teachers at Ephesus, who were not there during the Apostle's third missionary journey (Acts 20, 29f). For these reasons Catholic authors commonly hold that the Epistle was written in 65 or 66 A.D. from Macedonia (1 Tm 1, 3).

A twofold thought is dominant in this Epistle. Timothy must energetically combat false teachers and actively engage in the work of organizing the community. The thought of the Apostle moves restlessly back and forth on these two points, since he was fully aware from his own experience of the dangers that threatened.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the order of God our Savior,* and of Christ Jesus our hope, 2 to Timothy,[a] his beloved son in the faith: grace, mercy and peace from God the Father and from Christ Jesus our Lord.

I: AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

Timothy's Mission at Ephesus. 3 When I went to Macedonia, I asked thee to stay on at Ephesus that thou mightest charge some not to teach novel doctrines, 4 and not to study [b] fables and endless genealogies which beget controversies rather than godly edification, which is in the faith. 5 Now the purpose of this charge is charity, from a pure heart and a good conscience and faith unfeigned. 6 Some going astray from these things have turned aside to vain babbling, 7 *desiring to be teachers of the Law, when they understand neither what they say nor the things about which they make assertion.

Role of the Law. 8 But [c] we know that the Law is good, if a man uses it rightly, 9 knowing that the Law is not made for the just, but for the unjust and rebellious, for the ungodly and sinners, for criminals and the defiled, for parricides and matricides, for murderers, 10 for immoral people, for sodomites, for kidnapers, for liars, for perjurers, and whatever else is contrary to the sound doctrine, 11 according to the gospel of the glory of the blessed God, which has been committed to my trust.

The Apostle's Own Life. 12 I give thanks to Christ Jesus our Lord, who has strengthened me, because he counted me trustworthy in making me his minister. 13 For I formerly was a blasphemer, a persecutor and a bitter adversary; but I obtained the mercy of God because I acted ignorantly, in unbelief. 14 Indeed, the grace of our Lord has abounded beyond measure in the faith and love that is in Christ Jesus. 15 This saying is true* and worthy of entire acceptance, [d] that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am the chief. 16 But for this reason I obtained mercy, that in me first Christ Jesus might show forth all patience, as an example to those who shall believe in him for the attainment of life everlasting. 17 To the King of the ages, who is immortal, invisible, the one only God, be honor and glory forever and ever. Amen.

Fidelity to Vocation. 18 I commit to thee this charge, my son Timothy, that according to the prophecies once made concerning thee, thou mayest fight the good fight by means of them, 19 having faith and a good conscience. Some rejecting this have made shipwreck of the faith, 20 among whom are Hymeneus [e] and Alexander, whom I have delivered up to Satan* that they may learn not to blaspheme.

II: PASTORAL CHARGE

CHAPTER 2.

Directions on Prayer. 1 I urge therefore, first of all, that supplications, prayers, intercessions and thanksgivings be made for all men; 2 for kings, and for all in high positions, that we may lead a quiet and peaceful life in all piety and worthy behavior. 3 This is good and agreeable in the sight of God our Savior,4 who wishes all men to be saved* and to come to the knowledge of the truth. 5 For there is one God, and one Mediator* between God a Acts 16, 1.—b 1 Tm 4, 7; 2 Tm 2, 16; Ti 3, 9.—c Rom 7, 12.—d Mt 9, 13; Mk 2, 17.—e 2 Tm 2, 17; 4, 14.

1, 1: Savior: this title, applied to God so frequently in the Old Testament, is rarely so used in the New.

1, 3f: This sentence contains the theme of the Epistle and its thought is resumed in 1 Tm 2, 1.

1, 4: Genealogies: probably Jewish legends, not always reverent, about Biblical characters. Edification: the Greek text reads "economy," i.e., the dispensation of salvation. The sense is about the same.

1, 7f: These verses indicate that novel doctrines are Jewish.

1, 15: True: i.e., "reliable," "trustworthy."

1, 20: Delivered up to Satan: this expression means excommunication. Cf 1 Cor 5, 4f.

2, 4: God by His antecedent will wishes all men to be saved, and no one is lost save by his own fault.

2, 5: This insistence on the universal mediatorship of Christ as man is against the separatist tendencies.

and men, himself man, Christ Jesus, 6 who gave himself a ransom for all, bearing witness in his own time. 7 To this I have been appointed a preacher and an apostle (I tell the truth, I do not lie), a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth.

Women in Public Assemblies. 8 I wish, then, that the men pray everywhere, lifting up pure hands,* without wrath and contention. 9 In like manner [f] I wish women to be decently dressed, adorning themselves with modesty and dignity, not with braided hair or gold or pearls or expensive clothing, 10 but with good works such as become women professing godliness. 11 Let a woman learn in silence with all submission. 12 For I do not allow a woman to teach,[g] or to exercise authority over men; but she is to keep quiet. 13 For Adam [h] was formed first, then Eve. 14 And Adam [i] was not deceived, but the woman was deceived and was in sin. 15 Yet women will be saved by childbearing, if they continue in faith and love and holiness with modesty.

CHAPTER 3.

Qualities of a Bishop. 1 This saying is true: If anyone is eager for the office of bishop,* he desires a good work. 2 A bishop, then, must be blameless,[j] married but once,* reserved, prudent, of good conduct, hospitable, a teacher, 3 not a drinker or a brawler, but moderate, not quarrelsome, not avaricious. 4 He should rule well his own household, keeping his children under control and perfectly respectful. 5 For if a man cannot rule his own household, how is he to take care of the church of God? 6 He must not be a new convert, lest he be puffed up with pride and incur the condemnation passed on the devil. 7 Besides this he must have a good reputation with those who are outside, that he may not fall into disgrace and into a snare of the devil.

Qualities of a Deacon. 8 Deacons* also must be honorable, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy for base gain, 9 but holding the mystery of faith in a pure conscience. 10 And let them first be tried, and if found without reproach let them be allowed to serve. 11 In like manner let the women be honorable, not slanderers, but reserved, faithful in all things. 12 Deacons should be men who have been married but once, ruling well their children and their own households. 13 And those who have fulfilled well this office will acquire a good position and great confidence in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.

III: AGAINST FALSE DOCTRINE

Pillar and Mainstay of the Truth. 14 I write these things to thee hoping to come to thee shortly, 15 but in order that thou mayest know, if I am delayed, how to conduct thyself in the house of God, which is the Church of the living God, the pillar and mainstay of the truth. 16 And obviously great is the mystery of godliness:* which was manifested in the flesh, was justified in the spirit, appeared to angels, was preached to Gentiles, believed in the world, taken up in glory.

CHAPTER 4.

Lying Teachers. 1 Now the Spirit expressly says [k] that in after times some will depart from the faith, giving heed to deceitful spirits and doctrines of devils, 2 speaking lies hypocritically, and having their conscience branded.* 3 They will forbid marriage, and will enjoin abstinence from foods,* which God has created to be partaken of with thanksgiving by the faithful and by those who know the truth. 4 For every creature of God is good, and nothing is to be rejected that is accepted with thanksgiving. 5 For it is sanctified by the word of God* and prayer.

2, 8: Frescoes and graffiti of the catacombs show Christians praying with upturned palms.

3, 1: Bishop: represents a Greek word meaning "overseer," and "presbyter" another Greek word meaning "elder." In St. Paul "bishop" and "presbyter" seem to be used convertibly, and probably priests are here included under the term "bishops."

3, 2: Married but once: priestly celibacy as a law is of later ecclesiastical institution. No condemnation of second marriages in general is intended.

3, 8: Deacons: though this term is used in other places in the general sense of minister or servant, here it clearly refers to the sacramental office and order.

3, 16: Mystery of godliness: this is the gospel. The Greek reading is "who," i.e., the Christ, instead of "which," i.e., the gospel. We have here perhaps a fragment of a liturgical hymn. (Aramean). Manifested: in His appearance on earth. Justified: in His glorious Resurrection. Appeared to angels: at His Ascension.

4, 2: Fugitive slaves and criminals were often branded on the forehead.

4, 3-5: St. Paul condemns abstinence when it is the result of the false principle that matter is bad because produced by the evil spirit. From right motives of self-denial and mortification, and as commanded by the Church, the practice of fast and abstinence is good.

4, 5: Word of God: is either the creative word of God, or prayers from Scripture said at meals.

Piety and False Asceticism. 6 By recommending these things to the brethren, thou wilt be a good minister of Christ Jesus, nourished with the words of faith and of the good doctrine to which thou hast attained. 7 But avoid foolish fables[l] and old wives' tales and train thyself in godliness. 8 For bodily training is of little profit, while godliness is profitable in all respects, since it has the promise of the present life as well as of that which is to come. 9 This saying is true and worthy of entire acceptance; 10 for we work and are reviled for this reason, that we hope in the living God, who is the Savior of all men, especially of believers.

Zeal in His Office. 11 Command and teach these things. 12 Let no man despise thy youth,* but be thou an example to the faithful in speech, in conduct, in charity, in faith, in chastity. 13 Until I come, be diligent in reading,* in exhortation and in teaching. 14 Do not neglect the grace that is in thee, granted to thee by reason of prophecy with the laying on of hands of the presbyterate.* 15 Meditate on these things, give thyself entirely to them, that thy progress may be manifest to all. 16 Take heed to thyself and to thy teaching, be earnest in them. For in so doing thou wilt save both thyself and those who hear thee.

IV: DUTIES TOWARDS THE FLOCK

CHAPTER 5.

Different Classes. 1 Do not rebuke an elderly man, but exhort him as you would a father, and young men as brothers, 2 elderly women as mothers, younger women as sisters in all chastity.

Widows. 3 Honor widows who are truly widowed.* 4 But if a widow has children or grandchildren, let these first learn* to provide for their own household and make some return to their parents, for this is pleasing to God. 5 But she who is truly a widow, and left solitary, has set her hope on God and continues in supplications and prayers night and day. 6 For she who gives herself up to pleasures is dead while she is still alive. 7 And command them to be blameless. 8 But if anyone does not take care of his own, and especially of his household, he has denied the faith* and is worse than an unbeliever.

9 Let a widow who is selected be not less than sixty years old, having been married but once, 10 with a reputation for her good works in bringing up children, in practising hospitality, in washing the saints' feet, in helping those in trouble, in carefully pursuing every good work. 11 But refuse younger widows, for when they have wantonly turned away from Christ, they wish to marry, 12 and are to be condemned because they have broken their first troth. 13 And further, being idle, they learn to go about from house to house, and are not only idle but gossipers as well and busybodies, mentioning things they ought not. 14 I desire therefore that the younger widows marry,* bear children, rule their households, and give the adversary no occasion for abusing us. 15 For already some have turned aside after Satan. 16 If any believing woman has widowed relatives, let her provide for them and do not let the Church be burdened, in order that there may be enough for those who are truly widows.

Presbyters. 17 Let the presbyters who rule well be held worthy of double honor,* especially those who labor in the word and in teaching. 18 For the Scripture says, [m] "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treads out the grain," and, "The laborer is worthy of his wages." 19 Do not listen to an accusation against a presbyter unless it is supported by two or three witnesses. 20 When they sin, rebuke them in the presence of all, that the rest also may have fear. 21 I charge thee before God and Christ Jesus and the elect angels that thou observe these things impartially, in l 1 Tm 1, 4; 2 Tm 2, 23; Ti 3, 9.—m Dt 25, 4; 1 Cor 9, 9; Mt 10, 10; Lk 10, 17.

4, 12: Thy youth: St. Timothy would be about thirty-five years old at this time.

4, 13: Reading: this is the public reading of the Scriptures.

4, 14: Presbyterate: i.e., the priesthood.

5, 3: Truly widowed: i.e., one who is alone, solitary, with no relatives to provide for her. Cf vv 4f. 16. Honor: implies support, like our word "honorarium." Cf v 9.

5, 4: Let these first learn: implies that the children and grandchildren of a widow should provide for her. The Clementine Vulgate, reading in the singular, seems to mean that such a widow should devote herself to the care of her children and grandchildren.

5, 8: Has denied the faith: "which works through charity" (Gal 5, 6).

5, 9: This verse shows that the widow had an official position in the Church, at least as a beneficiary, and that some pledged themselves for life. Cf v 11.

5, 11: Refuse: reject, do not admit to an official position.

5, 14: This direction to young widows to marry does not contradict the Apostle's recommendation of virginity (1 Cor 7, 40). St. Paul has in mind those whom he has just described.

5, 17: Double honor: more ample provision. Cf v 3 above.

no way favoring either side. 22 Do not lay hands hastily upon anyone, and do not be a partner in other men's sins. Keep thyself chaste. 23 Stop drinking water only, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thy frequent infirmities. 24 Some men's sins are manifest even before investigation, other men's sins only afterwards. 25 In like manner also the good works are manifest, and those that are otherwise cannot be hidden.

CHAPTER 6.

Slaves. 1 Let slaves who are under the yoke account their masters deserving of all honor, that the name of the Lord and his teaching be not blasphemed. 2 And when they have masters who are believers, let them not despise them because they are brethren, but let them serve them all the more because they who receive their services are believers and beloved. Teach and exhort these things.

Lying Teachers. 3 If anyone teaches otherwise and does not agree with the sound instruction of our Lord Jesus Christ, and that doctrine which is according to godliness, 4 he is proud, knowing nothing, but doting about controversies and disputes of words. From these arise envies, quarrels, blasphemies, base suspicions, 5 the wranglings of men corrupt in mind and bereft of truth, supposing godliness to be gain. 6 And godliness with contentment is indeed great gain. 7 For we brought nothing into the [n] world, and certainly we can take nothing out; 8 but having food and sufficient clothing, [o] with these let us be content. 9 But those who seek to become rich fall into temptation and a snare and into many useless and harmful desires, which plunge men into destruction and damnation. 10 For covetousness is the root of all evils, and some in their eagerness to get rich have strayed from the faith and have involved themselves in many troubles.

Final Plea. 11 But thou, O man of God, flee these things;* but pursue justice, godliness, faith, charity, patience, mildness. 12 Fight the good fight of the faith, lay hold on the life eternal, to which thou hast been called, and hast made the good confession* before many witnesses. 13 I charge thee in the sight of God, who gives life to all things, and in the sight of Christ Jesus, who bore witness [p] before Pontius Pilate to the good confession, 14 that thou keep the commandment without stain, blameless until the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. 15 This coming he in his own time will make manifest, [q] who is the Blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords; 16 who alone has immortality and dwells in light inaccessible, [r] whom no man has seen or can see, to whom be honor and everlasting dominion. Amen.

The Rich. 17 Charge the rich of this world not to be proud, [s] or to trust in the uncertainty of riches, but in God, who provides all things in abundance for our enjoyment. 18 Let them do good and be rich in good works, giving readily, sharing with others, 19 and thus providing for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, in order that they may lay hold on the true life.

Conclusion

Exhortation and Greeting. 20 O Timothy, guard the trust and keep free from profane novelties in speech and the contradictions of so-called knowledge, 21 which some have professed and have fallen away from the faith. Grace be with thee. Amen.

5, 23: This abrupt parenthesis is characteristic of St. Paul.

5, 24: St. Paul adds two maxims that should guide St. Timothy in selecting leaders for the Church. Those publicly known to be unworthy are excluded, but all candidates are to be investigated before ordination.

6, 11: St. Paul appears anxious about Timothy, whose youth and timidity were known to him. But we must not exaggerate the Apostle's subjective fears by picturing his disciple as a weakling.

6, 12: Timothy's confession of the Christ was either at his Baptism, or before the priests of Lystra at his ordination; or, as is more probable from the expression used, at some time before the civil magistrates.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TIMOTHY

The Second Epistle to Timothy was written in 66 or 67 A.D., while St. Paul was a prisoner in Rome for the second and last time.

The Apostle describes himself as still in prison and abandoned by nearly all his companions, who for various reasons have left Rome (4, 9f). Only Luke the physician, of whom he seems to have special need, is with him (4, 11). He feels his isolation keenly, particularly since his relations with the Roman church are much restricted. He feels the need of seeing Mark and Timothy, for whom Tychicus was to substitute at Ephesus (4, 11f). He sees his death near (4, 6-8). The Epistle is an urgent invitation to Timothy to join him, yet the Apostle is concerned to strengthen the spirit of his beloved disciple and to urge him again to act energetically against the separatist teachers.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, in accordance* with the promise of life in Christ Jesus, 2 to Timothy, my beloved son: grace, mercy and peace from God the Father and from Christ Jesus our Lord.

Thanksgiving and Prayer. 3 I give thanks to God, whom I serve as did my forefathers, with a cleear conscience, that I remember thee without ceasing in my prayers night and day. 4 Recalling thy tears,* I long to see thee, that I may be filled with joy. 5 I remember that unfeigned faith of thine, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois and in thy mother Eunice, and dwells, I am certain, in thee also.

I: PASTORAL CHARGE

Paul's Example. 6 For this reason I admonish thee to stir up the grace of God which is in thee by the laying on of my hands. 7 For God [a] has not given us the spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of prudence. 8 Do not, therefore, be ashamed of testimony for our Lord, nor of me, his prisoner, but enter into my sufferings for the gospel through the power of God. 9 He has redeemed us and called us with a holy calling, [b] not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and the grace which was granted to us in Christ Jesus before this world existed,* 10 but is now made known by the manifestation of our Savior Jesus Christ. He has destroyed death and brought to light life and incorruption* by the gospel, 11 of which [c] I have been appointed a preacher and an apostle and a teacher of the Gentiles. 12 That is why also I am suffering these things; yet I am not ashamed. For I know whom I have believed, and I am certain that he is able to guard the trust committed to me against that day. 13 Hold to the form of sound teaching which thou hast heard from me, in the faith and love which are in Christ Jesus. 14 Guard the good trust through the Holy Spirit, who dwells in us.

Loyalty and Defections. 15 This thou knowest that all in the province of Asia have turned away from me, among them, Phigelus and Hermogenes. 16 May the Lord grant mercy [d] to the house of Onesiphorus,* because he often comforted me and was not ashamed of my chains; 17 but when he came to Rome, he sought me out diligently and found me. 18 May the Lord grant him to find mercy from the Lord on that day. And thou knowest very well the many services he rendered me at Ephesus.

CHAPTER 2.

Devotion to His Office. 1 Therefore, my child, be strengthened in the grace which is in Christ Jesus; 2 and the things that thou hast heard from me through many witnesses, commend to trustworthy men who shall be competent in turn to teach others. 3 Conduct thyself in work as a good soldier of Christ Jesus. 4 No one serving as God's soldier entangles himself in worldly affairs, that he may please him whose approval he has secured.* 5 And again, one who enters a contest is not crowned unless he has competed according to the rules. 6 The farmer who toils must be the first to partake of the fruits. 7 Take in what I tell thee, for the Lord will give thee understanding in all things.

a Rom 8, 15.—b Ti 3, 5.—c 1 Tm 2, 7.—d 2 Tm 4, 19.

1, 1: In accordance, etc.: the aim and purpose of St. Paul's election and call to the apostleship was to proclaim the fulfillment in Christ of the promises of the Old Testament.

1, 4: Tears: the reference is to a farewell on some occasion, perhaps St. Paul's departure as a prisoner.

1, 9: This is a statement of St. Paul's doctrine of justification by faith, assured by the divine purpose.

1, 10: Incorruption: immortality, eternal happiness.

1, 16: Onesiphorus is spoken of as now dead; he was an official of the church at Ephesus.

2, 4: The Greek reads, ". . . involves himself in affairs of everyday life, for he must satisfy him who enlisted him." The Latin means, "to whom he has engaged himself."

The Thought of Christ. 8 Remember that Jesus Christ rose from the dead and was descended from David; this is my gospel, 9 in which I suffer even to bonds, as a criminal. But the word of God is not bound. 10 This is why I bear all things for the sake of the elect, that they also may obtain the salvation that is in Christ Jesus, with heavenly glory. 11 This saying is true: *If we have died with him, we shall also live with him; 12 if we endure, we shall also reign with him; [e] if we disown him, he also will disown us; 13 if we are faithless,[f] he remains faithful, for he cannot disown himself.

II: FIDELITY TO HIS OFFICE

False Teachers. 14 Recall these things to their minds, charging them in the sight of the Lord not to dispute with words, for that is useless,* leading to the ruin of the listeners. 15 Use all care to present thyself to God as a man approved, a worker that cannot be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth. 16 But avoid profane and empty babblings, for they contribute much to ungodliness, 17 and their speech spreads like a cancer. Of this sort are Hymeneus and Philetus, 18 who have erred from the truth in saying that the resurrection has taken place already;* and they are destroying the faith of some.

The Faithful Servant. 19 But the sure foundation of God stands firm, bearing this seal: *"The Lord knows who are his"; and, "Let everyone depart from iniquity who names the name of the Lord."

20 But in a great house there are vessels not only of gold and silver, but also of wood and clay;* and some are for honorable uses, but some for ignoble. 21 If anyone, therefore, has cleansed himself from these, he will be a vessel for honorable use, sanctified and useful to the Lord, ready for every good work. 22 But flee the cravings of youth and pursue justice, faith, charity and peace with those who call on the Lord from a pure heart.
23 Avoid also foolish and ignorant controversies,[g] knowing that they breed quarrels. 24 But the servant of the Lord must not quarrel, but be gentle towards all, ready to teach, patient, 25 gently admonishing those who resist, in case God should give them repentance to know the truth, 26 and they recover themselves from the snare of the devil, to whose will they are held captive.

CHAPTER 3.

Against New Teachers. 1 But know this, [h] that in the last days dangerous times will come. 2 Men will be lovers of self, covetous, haughty, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, criminal, 3 heartless, faithless, slanderers, incontinent, merciless, unkind, 4 treacherous, stubborn, puffed up with pride, loving pleasure more than God, 5 having a semblance indeed of piety, but disowning its power. Avoid these. 6 For of such are they who make their way into houses and captivate silly women who are sin-laden and led away by various lusts: 7 ever learning yet never attaining knowledge of the truth. 8 Just as [i] Jamnes and Mambres* resisted Moses, so these men also resist the truth, for they are corrupt in mind, reprobate as regards the faith. 9
But they will make no further progress, for their folly will be obvious to all, as was that of those others.

Paul's Example and Doctrine. 10 But thou hast closely followed my doctrine, my conduct, my purpose, my faith, my long-suffering, my love, my patience, 11 my persecutions, my afflictions; [j] such as befell me at Antioch, Iconium and Lystra – such persecutions as I suffered, and out of them all the Lord delivered me. 12 And all who want to live piously in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution. 13 But the wicked and imposters will go from bad to worse, erring and leading into error.
14 But do thou continue in the things that thou hast learned and that have been entrusted to thee, knowing of whom* thou

2, 20: The change of metaphor from the construction of the building to its furnishings is quite abrupt but this is not uncommon in Semitic literature.

3, 8: Jamnes and Mambres are the names given in later Jewish tradition to the magicians of Pharaoh.

hast learned them. 15 For from thy infancy thou hast known the Sacred Writings, which are able to instruct thee unto salvation by the faith which is in Christ Jesus. 16 All Scripture [k] is inspired by God* and useful for teaching, for reproving, for correcting, for instructing in justice; 17 that the man of God may be perfect, equipped for every good work.

CHAPTER 4.

Preach Sound Doctrine. 1 I charge thee, in the sight of God and Christ Jesus, who will judge the living and the dead by his coming and by his kingdom, 2 preach the word, be urgent in season, out of season; reprove, entreat, rebuke with all patience and teaching. 3 For there will come a time when they will not endure the sound doctrine; but having itching ears, will heap up to themselves teachers according to their own lusts, 4 and they will turn away their hearing from the truth and turn aside rather to fables. 5 But do thou be watchful in all things, bear with tribulation patiently, work as a preacher of the gospel, fulfill thy ministry.*

Reward. 6 As for me, I am already being poured out* in sacrifice, and the time of my deliverance is at hand. 7 I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith. 8 For the rest, there is laid up for me a crown of justice, which the Lord, the just Judge, will give to me in that day; yet not to me only, but also to those who love his coming.

Conclusion

Paul's Loneliness. 9 Make haste to come to me shortly; for Demas has deserted me, loving this world, and has gone to Thessalonica, 10 Crescens to Galatia, Titus to Dalmatia. 11 Luke only is with me.[l] Take Mark and bring him with thee, for he is useful to me for the ministry. 12 But Tychicus I have sent to Ephesus. 13 When thou comest, bring with thee the cloak* that I left at Troas with Carpus, and the books, especially the parchments. 14 Alexander,* the coppersmith, has done me much harm; the Lord will render to him according to his deeds. 15 Do thou also avoid him for he has vehemently opposed our words.

His Trial. 16 At my first defense* no one came to my support, but all forsook me, may it not be laid to their charge. 17 But the Lord stood by me and strengthened me, that through me the preaching of the gospel might be completed, and that all the Gentiles* might hear, and I was delivered from the lion's mouth. 18 The Lord will deliver me from every work of evil, and will preserve me for his heavenly kingdom; to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

Greetings. 19 Greet [m]Prisca and Aquila* and the household of Onesiphorus. 20 Erastus stayed at Corinth, but Trophimus I left sick at Miletus. 21 Hasten to come before winter. Eubulus, Pudens, Linus* and Claudia and all the brethren greet thee. 22 The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy spirit. Grace be with you. Amen.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TITUS

St. Titus was born of Greek parents. He accompanied Sts. Paul and Barnabas to the Council of Jerusalem (Gal 2, 1, 3). He was uncircumcized, and although at the Council Judaizers insisted that he submit to this rite, St. Paul refused to permit it. Titus is addressed in this Epistle as "beloved son" (1, 4), probably because he was converted to the faith by the Apostle. He was sent by the latter on several important missions during the third missionary journey (2 Cor 2, 13; 7, 6; 8, 6. 16; 12, 18). We lose sight of him after this, as he is not mentioned in the Epistles of the Captivity. From this Epistle we learn that St. Paul entrusted him with the organization of the church in Crete (1, 5). Afterwards he was summoned by the Apostle to Nicopolis in Epirus (3, 12), and during St. Paul's final Roman imprisonment he was sent on a mission to Dalmatia (2 Tm 4, 10). According to tradition he returned to Crete to exercise his episcopal office, and died there.

The journey of St. Paul to the island of Crete (1, 5) cannot be inserted anywhere in the life of the Apostle before the first Roman imprisonment. Hence the visit, as well as the composition of this Epistle, took place between St. Paul's liberation from this first imprisonment and his death. Catholic authors commonly hold that the Epistle was written shortly after the writing of 1 Timothy, in either 65 or 66 A.D.

The religious situation in Crete and the mission of Titus correspond to what confronted Timothy at Ephesus (compare 3, 9 with 1 Tm 1, 4). Because of the character of the inhabitants and the spread of erroneous doctrines (1, 10f. 14; 3, 9-11), Titus' task was a difficult one. Before leaving Titus at Crete St. Paul had instructed him how to organize and rule the churches. In this Epistle the Apostle gives him counsels and instructions to guide him in his episcopal office.

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Paul, servant of God and apostle of Jesus Christ, in accordance with* the faith of God's elect and the full knowledge of the truth which is according to piety, 2 in the hope of life everlasting which God, who does not lie, promised before the ages began — 3 he has in due times manifested his word through the preaching committed to my trust by the command of God our Savior — 4 to Titus, my beloved son in the common faith: grace and peace from God the Father, and from Christ Jesus our Savior.

I: PASTORAL CHARGE

Titus' Mission. 5 For this reason I left thee in Crete, that thou shouldst set right anything that is defective and shouldst appoint presbyters* in every city, as I myself directed thee to do. 6 They must be blameless,[a] married but once,* having believing children who are not accused of impurity or disobedience. 7 For a bishop must be blameless as being the steward of God, not proud, or ill-tempered, or a drinker, or a brawler, or greedy for base gain; 8 but hospitable, gentle, reserved, just, holy, continent; 9 holding fast the faithful word which is in accordance with the teaching, that he may be able both to exhort in sound doctrine and to confute opponents.

Special Needs in Crete. 10 For there are also many disobedient, vain babblers and deceivers, especially those of the circumcision. 11 These must be rebuked, for they upset whole households, teaching things that they ought not, for the sake of base gain. 12 One of themselves, a prophet of their own, said, "Cretans, always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons."* 13 This statement is true. Hence rebuke them sharply that they may be sound in faith, 14 and may not listen to Jewish fables and the commandments of men who turn away from the truth. 15 For the clean all things are clean,[b] but for the defiled and unbelieving nothing is clean;* for both their mind and their conscience are defiled. 16 They profess to know God, but by their works they disown him, being abominable and unbelieving and worthless for any good work.

II: CHARGE TO TEACH THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

CHAPTER 2.

Different Classes. 1 But do thou speak what befits the sound doctrine: 2 that elderly men be reserved, honorable, prudent, sound in faith, in love, in patience; 3 that elderly women, in like manner, be marked by holiness of behavior, not slanderers, nor enslaved to much wine; teaching what is right, 4 that they may train the younger women to be wise, to love their husbands and their children, 5 to be discreet, chaste, domestic,* gentle, obedient to their husbands, so that the word of God be not reviled. 6 Exhort the younger men, in like manner, to be self-controlled. 7 Show thyself in all things an example of good works, in teaching,* in integrity and dignity; 8 let thy speech be sound and blameless, so that anyone opposing may be put to shame, having nothing bad to say of us. 9 Exhort slaves to obey their [c] masters, pleasing them in all things and not opposing them; 10 not pilfering, but showing faithfulness* in all things, so as to adorn in all things the teaching of God our Savior.

2, 5: Domestic: variants in the Greek text give two words very similar in form, "home worker" and "stayer at home."

Changed Life. 11 For the grace of God our Savior [d] has appeared to all men, 12 instructing us, in order that, rejecting ungodliness and worldly lusts, we may live temperately and justly and piously in this world; 13 looking for the blessed hope and glorious coming of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ, 14 who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and cleanse for himself an acceptable people, pursuing good works. 15 Thus speak, and exhort, and rebuke. with all authority. Let no one despise thee.

CHAPTER 3.

1 Admonish them to be subject to princes and authorities, obeying commands, ready for every good work, 2 speaking evil of none, not quarrelsome but moderate, showing all mildness to all men. 3 For we ourselves also were once unwise, unbelieving, going astray, slaves to various lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful and hating one another. 4 But when the goodness and kindness of God our Savior appeared, 5 then not by reason of good works [e] that we did ourselves, but according to his mercy, he saved us through the bath of regeneration and renewal by the Holy Spirit; 6 whom he has abundantly poured out upon us through Jesus Christ our Savior, 7 in order that, justified by his grace, we may be heirs in the hope of life everlasting.

Good Works and Truth. 8 This saying is true, and concerning these things I desire thee to insist, that they who believe in God may be careful to excel in good works. These things are good and useful to men. 9 But avoid foolish controversies [f] and genealogies* and quarrels and disputes about the Law; for they are useless and futile. 10 A factious man avoid after a first and a second admonition, 11 knowing that such a one is perverted and sins, being self-condemned.

Closing Messages. 12 When I send Artemas or Tychicus to thee, make every effort to come to me at Nicopolis;* for there I have decided to spend the winter. 13 Help Zenas the lawyer* and Apollos on their way, taking care that nothing be wanting to them. 14 And let our people* also learn to excel in good works, in order to meet cases of necessity, that they may not be unfruitful.

Greeting. 15 All my companions greet thee. Greet those who love us in the faith.* The grace of God be with you all. Amen.

2, 7f: In teaching: the Greek text reads: ". . . in teaching, show forth integrity, dignity and sound discourse that will be irreproachable, so that . . ."

2, 10: Faithfulness: a variant reading gives "charity."

3, 9: Genealogies: cf 1 Tm 1, 3.

3, 12: Nicopolis: probably Nicopolis of Epirus.

3, 13: Zenas the lawyer: he may have been a Roman lawyer or a doctor of the Jewish Law.

3, 15: In the faith: this replaces the common formula, "in Christ," and is directed against the separatists.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO PHILEMON

During his first Roman imprisonment (61-63 A.D.), St. Paul came to know a slave named Onesimus, who had deserted his master Philemon, a wealthy Christian of Colossae in Phrygia. After the Apostle had won the fugitive over to Christianity, he looked for a favorable opportunity to send him back to his master. This opportunity offered itself when he was dispatching a letter to the Colossians in the year 63 A.D. Onesimus accompanied St. Paul's messenger Tychicus (Col 4, 7-9). To Philemon the Apostle addressed this touching appeal, entreating his friend to deal kindly with the runaway.

CHAPTER 1.

Address and Greeting. 1 Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and our brother Timothy, to Philemon,* our beloved and fellow-worker, 2 and to Appia,* the sister, and to Archippus, our fellow-soldier, and to the church that is in thy house: 3 grace be to you and peace from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Philemon's Faith and Charity. 4 I give thanks to my God, always making remembrance of thee in my prayers, 5 as I hear of thy charity and of the faith* that thou hast in our Lord Jesus and towards all the saints. 6 May the sharing of thy faith be made evident in full knowledge of* all the good that is in you, in Christ Jesus. 7 For I had great joy and consolation in thy charity, because through thee, brother, the hearts of the saints have found rest.

Plea for Onesimus. 8 For this reason, though I am very confident that I might charge thee in Christ Jesus to do what is fitting, 9 yet for the sake of charity I prefer to plead, since thou art such as thou art; as Paul, an old man — and now also a prisoner of Jesus Christ— 10 I plead with thee for my own son, whom I have begotten in prison, for Onesimus. 11 He once was useless to thee, but now is useful both to me and to thee. 12 I am sending him back to thee, and do thou welcome him as though he were my very heart. 13 I had wanted to keep him here with me that in thy stead he might wait on me in my imprisonment for the gospel; 14 but I did not want to do anything without thy counsel, in order that thy kindness might not be as it were of necessity, but voluntary.

15 Perhaps, indeed, he departed from thee for a short while so that thou mightest receive him forever, 16 no longer as a slave, but instead of a slave as a brother most dear, especially to me, and how much more to thee, both in the flesh and in the Lord! 17 If, therefore, thou dost count me as a partner, welcome him as thou wouldst me. 18 And if he did thee any injury or owes thee anything, charge it to me. 19 I, Paul, write it with my own hand: I will repay it—not to say to thee that thou owest me thy very self. 20 Yes, indeed, brother! May I, too, make use of thee in the Lord! Console my heart in the Lord!

Hopes, Greetings, Blessings. 21 Trusting in thy compliance I am writing to thee, knowing that thou wilt do even beyond what I say. 22 At the same time make ready a lodging for me too, for I hope that through your prayers I shall be restored to you. 23 Epaphras,* my fellow-prisoner in Christ Jesus, 24 Mark, Aristarchus, Demas and Luke, my fellow-workers, send thee greetings. 25 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

1, 1: Philemon had been converted to Christianity by St. Paul, probably during the latter's long stay at Ephesus (Acts 19, 10). This is the debt Philemon owes the Apostle (v 19).

1, 2: Appia was the wife of Philemon. Archippus was probably his son (cf Col 4, 17).

1, 5: Faith draws them to our Lord, charity to the brethren.

1, 6: The Greek reads: "May thy participation in the faith become effective in the clear knowledge of . . ." Our text refers to the liberality of Philemon, inspired by his faith.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE HEBREWS

Apart from some doubts expressed unofficially in the West before the fourth century, the traditional Catholic view has always maintained the Pauline authorship of the Epistle to the Hebrews, at least in the sense that it was conceived by St. Paul and written under his direction. Its thought is thoroughly Pauline, and much of its phraseology is also distinctly Pauline. The excellent literary style, however, is generally superior to that found in the other Epistles of St. Paul, and ranks with the best in the New Testament.

The time, place of composition and destination of the Epistle are not stated explicitly, and there is but little evidence elsewhere bearing upon these matters. Opinions, based on the few vague indications available, differ widely. As plausible as any is the common view that the Epistle was written at Rome about 63 A.D., shortly after St. Paul's release from his first Roman imprisonment, and that it was destined for the Jewish Christians of Palestine, who under the stress of trials were in danger of relapsing into Judaism.

The Epistle describes most eloquently the eminent superiority of the new dispensation over the old. Inaugurated by the Son of God Himself, this new dispensation was God's final revelation to man. It completed the message of the prophets, and brought to perfection all that was of permanent value in the Mosaic covenant. The Incarnate Son of God was its High Priest, and His glorious sacrifice was truly efficacious before God in the forgiveness of sin. As suffering and humiliation had an important place in His victory, His followers are exhorted to forego worldly advantage, to bear their trials patiently, and to persevere heroically in the faith.

I: SUPERIORITY OF THE NEW DISPENSATION OVER THE OLD

CHAPTER 1.

1. A Superior Mediator

Christ Superior to the Angels. 1 God, who at sundry times* and in divers manners spoke in times past to the fathers by the prophets, 2 last of all in these days* has spoken to us by his Son, whom he appointed heir of all things,[a] by whom also he made the world; 3 who, being the brightness of his glory and the image of his substance, and upholding all things by the word of his power, has effected man's purgation from sin and taken his seat at the right hand [b] of the Majesty on high, 4 having become* so much superior to the angels as he has inherited a more excellent name [c] than they. 5 For to which of the angels has he ever said, [d] Thou art my son, I this day have begotten thee? and again, I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son? 6 And again, when he brings* the firstborn into the world, he says, [e] And let all the angels of God adore him. 7 And of the angels indeed he says, [f] He makes his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire.* 8 But of the Son, [g] *Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever, and a sceptre of equity is the sceptre of thy kingdom. 9 Thou hast loved justice and hated iniquity; therefore God, thy God, has anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows. 10 And, [h] Thou in the beginning, O Lord, didst found the earth, and the heavens are works of thy hands. 11 They shall perish, but thou shalt continue; and they shall all grow old as does a garment, 12 *and as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed. But thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail. 13 Now to which of the angels has he ever said, [i] Sit at my right hand, until I make thy enemies the footstool of thy feet? 14 Are they not all ministering [j] spirits, sent for service, for the sake of those who shall inherit salvation?

CHAPTER 2.

Warning and Exhortation. 1 Therefore ought we the more earnestly to observe the things that we have heard, lest perhaps we drift away. 2 For [k] if the word spoken by angels* proved to be valid, and every transgression and disobedience received a just punishment, 3 how shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? For it was first announced by the Lord and was confirmed unto us by those who heard him; 4 God [l] also, according to his own will, bearing them witness by signs and wonders, and by manifold powers, and by impartings of the Holy Spirit.

Christ Suffered for His Brethren. 5 For he has not subjected to angels the world to come,* whereof we speak. 6 Rather someone has testified somewhere, saying, [m] What is man that thou art mindful of him, or the son of man that thou visitest

1, 1: At sundry times: the Greek means, "in many portions."

1, 2: Last of all in these days: the Greek text has, "at the end of these days," or according to another reading, "in these last days." By his Son: literally, "in a son"; i.e., one who by nature is a son.

1, 4: Having become: or, "showing himself to be." The humanity of Christ was exalted in glory far above the angels, because He alone was truly the Son."

1, 6: And again, when he brings: or, "And when he again brings." In the Greek the "again" may be taken with either "says" or "brings." If it is taken with "says," it will merely introduce another quotation, and the reference will be to the first coming of Christ at the Incarnation. If it is taken with "brings," the reference will be to the Second Coming of Christ at the end of the world. World: in Greek: "the inhabited earth."

1, 7: Spirits: or, "winds."

1, 8: Thy kingdom: some Greek MSS have "his kingdom."

1, 12: As a vesture, etc.: the Greek has, "as a mantle thou shalt roll them up."

2, 2: Word spoken by angels: the Mosaic Law. Proved to be valid: or, "held good," "had the force of law." Just punishment: literally, "just recompense of reward."

2, 5: World to come: here means the Christian dispensation, not the future life.

him? [7] Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, thou hast crowned him with glory and honor, and has set him over the works of thy hands;* [8] thou [n] hast put all things under his feet. For in subjecting all things to man, he left nothing that is not subject to him. But now we do not see as yet all things subject to him. [9] But we do see him who was made "a little lower than the angels," namely, Jesus, crowned with glory and honor because of his having suffered death, that by the grace of God he might taste death for all [10] For it became him for whom are all things and through whom are all things, who had brought many sons into glory, to perfect through sufferings the author of their salvation. [11] For both he who sanctifies and they who are sanctified are all from one.* For which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren, saying, [12] I [o] will declare thy name to my brethren; in the midst of the church I will praise thee. [13] And again, [p] I will put my trust in him. And again, Behold, I and my children whom God has given me. [14] Therefore because children have blood and flesh* in common, so he in like manner has shared in these; that [q] through death he might destroy him who had the empire of death, that is, the devil; [15] and might deliver them, [r] who throughout their life were kept in servitude by the fear of death. [16] For, of course, it is not angels that he is succoring, but he is succoring the offspring [s] of Abraham. [17] Wherefore it was right that he should in all things be made like unto his brethren, that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest before God to expiate the sins of the people. [18] For in that he himself has suffered and has been tempted,* he is able to help those who are tempted.

CHAPTER 3.

Christ Superior to Moses. [1] Therefore, holy brethren, partakers of a heavenly calling, consider the apostle and high priest of our confession, Jesus, [2] who is faithful to him who made him, as was [t] Moses also "in all his house."* [3] For he was deemed worthy of greater glory than Moses,[u] just as the builder of a house has greater honor than the house that he has built. [4] For every house is built by someone; but he who created all things is God. [5] And Moses indeed was faithful "in all his house" as a servant, to testify [v] concerning those things that were to be spoken; [6] but Christ is faithful [w] as the Son over his own house. We are that house, if we hold fast our confidence and the hope in which we glory* unto the end.

Exhortation. [7] Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says, [x] Today if you shall hear his voice, [8] do not harden your hearts as in the provocation, during the day of temptation in the desert, [9] where your fathers tried me, proved and saw my works [10] forty years. Wherefore I was offended with this generation, and said, "They always err in heart, and they have not known my ways." [11] As I have sworn in my wrath: They shall not enter into my Rest.* [12] Take heed, brethren, lest perhaps there be in any of you an evil, unbelieving heart that would turn away from the living God. [13] But exhort one another every day, while it is still Today, that none of you be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. [14] For we have been made partakers of Christ, provided only that we hold fast our first confidence in him [y] unto the end. [15] While it is said, Today if you shall hear his voice, do not harden your hearts as in that provocation — [16] for some who heard gave provocation,* but not all those who came out of Egypt under Moses— [17] with whom then was he offended forty years? Was it not with those who sinned, whose corpses fell [z] in the desert? [18] And to whom did he swear [a] that they should not enter into his Rest, but to those who were unbelieving? And we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.

2, 7: A little lower: or, "for a little while lower." And hast set . . . thy hands: omitted in some Greek MSS.

2, 10: Who had brought many sons into glory: better, according to the Greek, "while he was bringing many sons into glory."

2, 11: All from one: probably, from one family, with God as the Father of all.

2, 14: Blood and flesh: i.e., having the same human nature.

2, 18: Has suffered and has been tempted: the Greek has, "for in that he himself suffered, having been tempted."

3, 2: In all his house": i.e., in all God's house.

3, 6: The hope in which we glory: literally, "the glory of hope."

3, 11: They shall not enter: literally, "if they shall enter." This is the common form of oath, with some such words as "God do so to me and more also" preceding the "if."

3, 16: For some who heard gave provocation, etc.: the Greek has, "who were they, who having heard did provoke? Were they not all those who were led out of Egypt by Moses?"

CHAPTER 4.

Our Promised Land. 1 Let us therefore fear lest perhaps, while the promise of entering into his Rest remains, any of you should be thought wanting. 2 For to us also it has been declared,* just as to them. But the word that was heard did not profit them, since they had no faith in what they heard. 3 We then who have believed shall enter* into his Rest, even as he said, [b] As I have sworn in my wrath: They shall not enter into my Rest. And indeed his works were completed at the foundation of the world. 4 For somewhere he spoke of the seventh day thus, [c] And God rested the seventh day from all his works; 5 and in this place again: They shall not enter into my Rest. 6 Since then it follows that some are to enter into it, and they to whom it was first declared did not enter in because of unbelief, 7 he again fixes another day to be Today, saying by David after so long a time, as quoted above, [d] Today if you shall hear his voice, do not harden your hearts. 8 For if Josue* had given them rest, [e] God would never afterwards be speaking of another day. 9 There remains therefore a Sabbath Rest for the people of God. 10 For he who has entered into his Rest, has himself also rested from his own works, even as God did from his. 11 Let us therefore hasten to enter into that Rest, lest anyone fall by following the same example of unbelief. 12 For the word of God is living and efficient and keener than any two-edged sword,[f] and extending even to the division of soul and spirit, of joints also and of marrow, and a discerner of the thoughts and intentions of the heart. 13 And [g] there is no creature hidden from his sight; but all things are naked and open to the eyes of him to whom we have to give account.

2. A Superior High Priest

Confidence in Christ. 14 Having therefore a great high priest who has passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our confession. 15 For we have not a high priest who cannot have compassion on our infirmities, but one tried as we are in all things except sin. 16 Let us therefore draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

CHAPTER 5.

Christ the High Priest. 1 For every high priest taken from among men is appointed for men in the things pertaining to God, that he may offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. 2 He is able to have compassion on the ignorant and erring, because he himself [f] also is beset with weakness, 3 and by reason thereof is obliged to offer for sins, [h] as on behalf of the people, so also for himself. 4 And [i] no man takes the honor to himself; he takes it who is called by God, as Aaron was. 5 So also Christ did not glorify himself with the high priesthood, but he who spoke to him, [j] Thou art my son, I this day have begotten thee. 6 As he says also in another place, [k] Thou art a priest forever, according to the order of Melchisedech. 7 For Jesus, in the days of his earthly life, with a loud cry and tears, offered up prayers and supplications to him who was able to save him from death,[l] and was heard because of his reverent submission.* 8 And he, Son though he was, learned obedience [m] from the things that he suffered; 9 and when perfected, he became to all who obey him the cause of eternal salvation, 10 called by God a high priest according to the order of Melchisedech.

Importance of the Doctrine. 11 On this point we have much to say, and it is difficult to explain it, because you have grown dull of hearing. 12 For whereas by this time you ought to be masters, you need to be taught again the rudiments of the words of God; and you have become such as have need of milk [n] and not of solid food. 13 For everyone who is fed on milk is unskilled in the word of justice;* he is but a child. 14 But solid food is for the mature, for those who by practice have their faculties trained to discern good and evil.

b Ps 94, (95), 11.—c Gn 2, 2.—d Heb 3, 7.—e Jos 22, 4.—f Wis 7, 24; 18, 15f; Eph 6, 17; Ap 1, 16; 19, 15.—g Sir 15, 19; Pss 89 (90), 8; 33, (34), 16.—h Lv 9, 7; 16, 17.—i Ex 28, 1; 2 Par 26, 18.—j Ps 2, 7; Jn 8, 54.—k Ps 109 (110), 4.—l Mt 26, 38ff.—m Phil 2, 8.—n 1 Cor 3, 2; 1 Pt 2, 2.

4, 2: It has been declared: the Greek has, "For we too have had the good news proclaimed to us, just as they had. But the word they heard did not profit them because it was not mingled with faith on the part of the hearers."

4, 3: Shall enter: the Greek text reads, "are entering," or, "do enter."

4, 8: Josue: in Greek, "Jesus." The reference is to the successor of Moses.

5, 7: Was heard because of his reverent submission: or, "was heard because of his godly fear." The Old Latin has, "was delivered from fear."

5, 13: Word of justice: probably, the deeper truths of faith.

CHAPTER 6.

An Appeal for Progress. 1 Therefore, leaving the elementary teaching concerning Christ,* let us pass on to things more perfect, not laying again a foundation of repentance from dead works and of faith towards God, 2 of the doctrine of baptisms and the laying on of hands, of the resurrection of the dead and of eternal judgment. 3 And this we will do, if God permits.

Danger of Apostasy. 4 For [o] it is impossible* for those who were once enlightened, who have both tasted the heavenly gift and become partakers of the Holy Spirit, 5 who have moreover tasted the good word of God and the powers of the world to come, 6 and then have fallen away, to be renewed again to repentance; since they crucify again for themselves the Son of God and make him a mockery.* 7 For the earth that drinks in the rain that often falls upon it, and produces vegetation [p] that is of use to those by whom it is tilled, receives a blessing from God; 8 but that which brings forth thorns and thistles is worthless,[q] and is nigh unto a curse, and its end is to be burnt.

Expectation of Better Things. 9 But in your case, beloved, we are confident of better things, things that promise salvation, even though we speak thus. 10 For God is not unjust, that he should forget your work and the love that you have shown in his name,* you who have ministered and do minister to the saints. 11 But we want every one of you to show to the very end the same earnestness [r] for the fulfillment of your hopes; 12 so that you may become not sluggish but imitators of those who by faith and patience will inherit the promises.

Certainty of God's Promise. 13 For when God made his promise to Abraham, since he had no one greater to swear by, he swore by himself, 14 saying, [s] *I will surely bless thee, and I will surely multiply thee. 15 And thus after patient waiting, Abraham obtained the promise. 16 For men swear by one greater than themselves, and an oath given as a guarantee is the final settlement of all their disagreement. 17 Hence God, meaning to show more abundantly to the heirs of the promise the unchangeableness of his will, interposed an oath, 18 that by two unchangeable things,* in which it is impossible for God to deceive, we may have the strongest comfort—we who have sought refuge in holding fast the hope set before us. 19 This hope we have, as a sure and firm anchor of the soul, reaching even behind the veil 20 where our forerunner Jesus has entered for us, having become a high priest forever [t] according to the order of Melchisedech.

o Heb 10, 26; Mt 12, 31. 45; 2 Pt 2, 20.—p Gn 1, 11.—q Gn 3, 18.—r Heb 3, 14.—s Gn 22, 16.—t Ps 109 (110), 4.—u Gn 14, 17-20.—v Nm 18, 21.

6, 1: Elementary teaching concerning Christ: literally, "the word of the beginning of Christ."

6, 4: Impossible: i.e., extremely difficult.

6, 6: Make him a mockery: by apostasy.

6, 10: God would indeed be unjust if He punished sin without rewarding good works.

6, 14: I will surely bless thee: literally, "unless blessing, I bless thee," a Hebrew idiom.

6, 18: Two unchangeable things: namely, the promise and the oath.

7, 3: Without father, without mother: because they are not mentioned in Scripture. Likened: i.e., he is a figure or type of Christ.

CHAPTER 7.

Melchisedech More Than Abraham. 1 For [u] this Melchisedech was king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him; 2 to whom Abraham divided the tithes of all. First, as his name shows, he is King of Justice, and then also he is King of Salem, that is, King of Peace. 3 Without father, without mother,* without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but likened to the Son of God, he continues a priest forever.

Melchisedech More Than Levi. 4 Now consider how great this man is, to whom even Abraham the patriarch gave tithes out of the best portions of the spoils. 5 And indeed they who are of the priestly sons of [v] Levi, have a commandment to take tithes from the people according to the Law, that is, from their brethren, though these also have come from the loins of Abraham. 6 But he whose genealogy is not recorded among them received tithes of Abraham and blessed him who had the promises. 7 Now beyond all contradiction, that which is less is blessed by the superior. 8 And in the one case indeed, mortal men receive tithes, while in the other, it is one of whom it is testified that he lives on. 9 And even Levi, the receiver of tithes, was also, so to speak, through Abraham made subject to tithes, 10 for he was still in the loins of his father when Melchisedech met him.

Levitical Priesthood Imperfect. 11 If then perfection was by the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the Law), what further need was there that another priest should rise, according to the order of Melchisedech, and said not to be according to the order of Aaron? 12 For when the priesthood is changed, it is necessary that a change of law be made also. 13 For he of whom these things are said is from another tribe, from which no one has ever done service at the altar. 14 For it is evident that our Lord has sprung out of Juda,[w] and Moses spoke nothing at all about priests when referring to this tribe. 15 And it is yet far more evident if there arise another priest, according to the likeness of Melchisedech, 16 who has become so not according to the Law of carnal commandment, but according to a life that cannot end. 17 For it is testified of him, [x] Thou art a priest forever, according to the order of Melchisedech.

Superseded by Priesthood of Christ. 18 On the one hand there is the rejection of the former commandment, because of its weakness and unprofitableness 19 (for the Law brought nothing to perfection), and on the other hand a bringing in of a better hope, through which we draw near to God.

A Priest by Divine Oath. 20 And inasmuch as it is not without an oath (for the others indeed were made priests without an oath, 21 but he with an oath through him who said to him, [y] The Lord has sworn and will not repent: Thou art a priest forever), 22 all the more has Jesus become surety of a superior covenant. 23 And the other priests indeed were numerous, because they were prevented by death from continuing in office; 24 but he, because he continues forever, has an everlasting priesthood.* 25 Therefore he is able at all times to save those who come to God through him,[z] since he lives always to make intercession for them.

Sinless and Perfect. 26 For it was fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, innocent, undefiled, set apart from sinners, and become higher than the heavens. 27 He does not need [a] to offer sacrifices daily (as the other priests did), first for his own sins, and then for the sins of the people; for this latter he did once for all in offering up himself. 28 For the Law appoints as priests men who are weak; but the word of the oath, which came after the Law, appoints a Son who is forever perfect.

3. A Superior Covenant

Christ in the Heavenly Sanctuary. 1 Now the main point in what we are saying is this. We have such a high priest, who has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of Majesty in the heavens, 2 a minister of the Holies, and of the true tabernacle,[b] which the Lord has erected and not man. 3 For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; therefore it is necessary that this one also should have something to offer. 4 If then he were on earth, he would not even be a priest, since there are already others to offer gifts according to the Law. 5 The worship they offer is a mere copy and shadow of things heavenly, even as Moses was warned when he was completing the tabernacle: [c] "See," God said, "that thou make all things according to the pattern that was shown thee on the mount."

Mediator of a Superior Covenant. 6 But now he has obtained a superior ministry, in proportion as he is mediator of a superior covenant, enacted on the basis of superior promises. 7 For had the first been faultless, place would not of course be sought for a second. 8 For finding fault with them he says, [d] Behold, days are coming, says the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Juda, 9 not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers on the day when I took them by the hand to lead them forth out of the land of Egypt; for they did not abide by my covenant, and I did not regard them, says the Lord. 10 For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord: I will put my laws into their mind, and upon their hearts I will write them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. 11 And they shall not teach, each his neighbor, and each his brother, saying,

"Know the Lord"; for all shall know me, from least to greatest among them. [12] Because I will be merciful to their iniquities, and their sins I will remember no more.
[13] Now in saying "a new covenant," he has made obsolete the former one; and that which is obsolete and has grown old is near its end.

4. A Superior Sacrifice

CHAPTER 9.

The Earthly Sanctuary. [1] The first covenant also had ritual ordinances and a sanctuary, though an earthly one. [2] For there was set up a tabernacle[e] in the outer part of which were the lamp-stand and the table and the showbread, and this is called the Holy Place; [3] but beyond the second veil was the tabernacle which is called the [f] Holy of Holies, [4] having a golden censer* and the ark of the covenant,[g] overlaid on every side with gold. In the ark was a golden pot containing the manna and the rod of Aaron which had budded, and the tablets of the covenant; [5] and above it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy-seat.[h] But of all these we cannot now speak in detail.

A Type of the Heavenly Sanctuary. [6] Such then being the arrangements, the priests always used to enter into the first tabernacle to perform the sacred rites; [7] but into the second tabernacle[i] the high priest alone entered once a year, not without blood, which he offered for his own and the people's sins of ignorance. [8] The Holy Spirit signified by this that the way into the Holies was not yet thrown open while the first tabernacle was still standing. [9] This first tabernacle is a figure of the present time, inasmuch as gifts and sacrifices are offered that cannot perfect the worshipper in conscience, since they refer only to food and drink [10] and various ablutions and bodily regulations[j] imposed until a time of reformation.

9, 4: Censer: the Greek word means either "censer" or "altar."
9, 11: Greater and more perfect tabernacle: the tabernacle of the heavens.
9, 14: The Greek reads, "by his eternal spirit."
9, 16: Testament: the Greek word used here has the double signification of "covenant" and "will."
9, 22: Forgiveness: legal pardon.
9, 24: Jesus: the Greek has "Christ."

Christ the High Priest and Victim. [11] But when Christ appeared as high priest of the good things to come, he entered once for all through the greater and more perfect tabernacle,* not made by hands (that is, not of this creation), [12] nor again by virtue of blood of goats and calves, but by virtue of his own blood, into the Holies, having obtained eternal redemption. [13] For if [k] the blood of goats and bulls and the sprinkled ashes of a heifer sanctify the unclean unto the cleansing of the flesh, [14] how much more will the blood of Christ,[l] who through the Holy Spirit* offered himself unblemished unto God, cleanse your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?

Redemption through Christ. [15] And this is why he is mediator of a new covenant,[m] that whereas a death has taken place for redemption from the transgressions committed under the former covenant, they who have been called may receive eternal inheritance according to the promise. [16] For where there is a testament,* the death of the testator must intervene; [17] for a testament is valid only when men are dead, otherwise it has as yet no force as long as the testator is alive.

The Blood of Victims. [18] Hence not even the first has been inaugurated without blood; [19] for when every commandment of the Law had been read by Moses to all the people, he took the blood of the calves and of the goats, with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book itself and all the people, saying, [20] [n] This is the blood of the covenant which God has commanded for you.
[21] The tabernacle also and all the vessels of the ministry he sprinkled likewise with blood; [22] and with blood almost everything is cleansed according to the Law,[o] and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness.*

The Blood of Christ. [23] It was necessary, therefore, that the copies of the heavenly realities should be cleansed by these things; but the heavenly realities themselves require better sacrifices than these. [24] For [p] Jesus* has not entered into a Holies made by hands, a mere copy of the true, but into heaven itself, to appear now before the face of God on our behalf; [25] nor yet has he entered to offer himself often, as the high priest enters into the Holies year after year with blood not his own; 26 for [q] in that case he must have suffered often since the beginning of the world. But as it is, once for all at the end of the ages, he has appeared for the destruction of sin by the sacrifice of himself. 27 And [r] just as it is appointed unto men to die once and after this comes the judgment, 28 so also was Christ offered once to take away the sins of many;* the second time with no part in sin he will appear unto the salvation of those who await him.

CHAPTER 10.

One Sacrifice Supplants Many. 1 For the Law, having but a shadow of the good things to come,[s] and not the exact image of the objects, is never able by the sacrifices which they offer continually, year after year the same, to perfect those who draw near; 2 for in that case would they not have ceased to be offered, because the worshipers, once cleansed, would no longer have any consciousness of sin? 3 Yet [t] in these sacrifices sins are brought to remembrance year by year. 4 For it is impossible that sins should be taken away [u] with blood of bulls and of goats. 5 Therefore in coming into the world, he says, [v] Sacrifice and oblation thou wouldst not, but a body thou hast fitted to me: 6 in holocausts and sin-offerings thou hast had no pleasure. 7 Then said I, "Behold, I come—(in the head of the book it is written of me)—to do thy will, O God."* 8 In saying in the first place, "Sacrifices and oblations and holocausts and sin-offerings thou wouldst not, neither hast thou had pleasure in them" (which are offered according to the Law), 9 and then saying, "Behold, I come to do thy will, O God," he annuls the first covenant in order to establish the second. 10 It is in this "will" that we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

Its Eternal Efficacy. 11 And every priest indeed stands daily ministering, and often offering the same sacrifices,[w] which can never take away sins; 12 but Jesus, having offered one sacrifice for sins, has taken his seat forever at the right hand of God, 13 waiting thenceforth until his enemies be made the footstool [x] under his feet. 14 For by one offering he has perfected forever those who are sanctified. 15 Thus also the Holy Spirit testifies unto us. For after having said, 16 This is the covenant [y] that I will make with them after those days, says the Lord: I will put my laws upon their hearts, and upon their minds I will write them, he then adds, 17 And their sins and their iniquities I will remember no more. 18 Now where there is forgiveness of these, there is no longer offering for sin.*

II: EXHORTATIONS

1. To Perseverance in Faith

First Motive: the Judgment. 19 Since then, brethren, we are free to enter the Holies in virtue of the blood of Christ, 20 a new and living way [z] which he inaugurated for us through the veil (that is, his flesh), 21 and since we have a high priest over the house of God, 22 let us draw near with a true heart in fullness of faith, having our hearts cleansed from an evil conscience by sprinkling, and the body washed with [a] clean water. 23 Let us hold fast the confession of our hope without wavering, for he who has given the promise is faithful. 24 And let us consider how to arouse one another to charity and good works; 25 not forsaking our assembly as is the custom of some, but exhorting one another, and this all the more as you see the Day drawing near.

Guilt of Apostasy. 26 For [b] if we sin willfully* after receiving the knowledge of the truth, there remains no longer a sacrifice for sins, 27 but a certain dreadful expectation of judgment, and [c] "the fury of a fire which will consume the adversaries." 28 A man making void the Law of Moses dies without any mercy on the word of two [d] or three witnesses; 29 how much worse punishments do you think he deserves who has trodden under foot the Son of God, and has regarded as unclean the blood of the covenant through which he was sanctified, and has insulted the Spirit of grace? 30 For we know him who has said, [e] Vengeance is mine, I will repay. And again, The Lord will judge his people. 31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

Second Motive: Trials Well Borne. 32 But call to mind the days gone by, in which, after you had been enlightened, you endured a great conflict of sufferings; 33 partly by being made a public spectacle through reproaches and tribulations, and partly by making common cause with those who fared thus. 34 For you both have had compassion on those in prison and have joyfully accepted the plundering of your own goods, knowing that you have a better possession and a lasting one. 35 Do not, therefore, lose your confidence, which has a great reward. 36 For you have need of patience that, doing the will of God, you may receive the promise: 37 [f] For yet a very little while, and he who is to come, will come, and will not delay. 38 [g] Now my just one lives by faith. But if he draws back, he will not please my soul.* 39 We, however, are not of those who draw back unto destruction, but of those who have faith to the saving of the soul.

CHAPTER 11.

Third Motive: Old Testament Examples. 1 Now faith is the substance of things to be hoped for,* the evidence of things that are not seen; 2 for by it the men of old had testimony borne to them.* 3 By faith [h] we understand that the world was fashioned by the word of God; and thus things visible were made out of things invisible.

Abel. 4 By faith [i] Abel offered to God a sacrifice more excellent than did Cain, through which he obtained a testimony that he was just, God giving testimony to his gifts; and through his faith, though he is dead, he yet speaks.

Henoch. 5 By faith [j] Henoch was taken up lest he should see death; and he was not found, because God took him up. For before he was taken up he had testimony that he pleased God, 6 and without faith it is impossible to please God. For he who comes to God must believe that God exists and is a rewarder to those who seek him.

Noe. 7 By faith [k] Noe, having been warned concerning things not seen as yet, prepared with pious fear an ark in which to save his household. Having thus condemned the world, he was made heir of the justice which is through faith.

Abraham. 8 By faith [l] he who is called Abraham obeyed by going out into a place which he was to receive for an inheritance; and he went out, not knowing where he was going. 9 By faith [m] he abode in the Land of Promise as in a foreign land, dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, the co-heirs of the same promise; 10 for he was looking for the city with fixed foundations,[n] of which city the architect and the builder is God.

Sara. 11 By faith even Sara [o] herself, who was barren, received power for the conception of a child when she was past the time of life, because she believed that he who had given the promise was faithful. 12 And so there sprang from one man,[p] though he was as good as dead, issue like the stars of heaven in number and innumerable as the sand that is by the seashore.

The Heavenly Country. 13 In the way of faith all these died without receiving the promises, but beholding them afar off, and saluting them and acknowledging that they were pilgrims and strangers on earth. 14 For they who say these things show plainly that they seek a country of their own. 15 And indeed if they were thinking of the country from which they went out, they certainly would have had opportunity to return; 16 but as it is they seek after a better, that is, a heavenly country.[q] Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he has prepared for them a city.

Abraham's Trial. 17 By faith Abraham,[r] when he was put to the test, offered Isaac; and he who had received the promises 18 (to whom it had been said, [s] In Isaac thy seed shall be called) was about to offer up his only-begotten son, 19 reasoning that God has power to raise up even from the dead; [t] whence also he received him back as a type.*

10, 38: Lives: the Greek has, "shall live."

11, 1: The sense is: faith is assurance in the case of things that are hoped for, it is convictions about things that are not seen.

11, 2: Had testimony borne to them: gained God's approval.

11, 19: As a type: i.e., of the Resurrection.

Isaac, Jacob, Joseph. 20 By faith [u] Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau even regarding things to come. 21 By faith [v] Jacob, when dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph and bowed in worship towards the top of his staff. 22 By faith [w] Joseph, when dying, made mention of the departure of the sons of Israel and gave orders concerning his bones.

Amram and Jochabed. 23 By faith [x] Moses was hidden by his parents* for three months after his birth, because they saw he was a beautiful babe and they did not fear the king's edict.

Moses. 24 By faith [y] Moses, when he was grown up, denied that he was a son of Pharaoh's daughter; 25 choosing rather to be afflicted with the people of God than to have the enjoyment of sin for a time, 26 esteeming the reproach of Christ* greater riches than the treasures of the Egyptians; for he was looking to the reward. 27 By faith [z] he left Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king; for he persevered as if seeing him who cannot be seen. 28 By faith [a] he celebrated the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, that he who destroyed the firstborn might not touch them.

The Israelites. 29 By faith [b] they passed through the Red Sea, as through dry land; whereas the Egyptians, attempting it, were swallowed up. 30 By faith [c] the walls of Jericho fell after they had gone around them for seven days.

Rahab. 31 By faith [d] Rahab the harlot, who had received the spies in peace, did not perish with the unbelievers.

More Heroes of Faith. 32 And what more shall I say? [e] For time will fail me if I tell of Gideon, of Barac, of Samson, of Jephthe, of David and of Samuel and the prophets, 33 who by faith [f] conquered kingdoms, wrought justice, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, 34 quenched the violence of fire,[g] escaped the edge of the sword, recovered strength from weakness, became valiant in battle, put to flight armies of aliens. 35 Women had their dead restored to them by resurrection.[h] Others were tortured, refusing to accept release, that they might find a better resurrection. 36 Others [i] had experience of mockery and stripes, yes, even of chains and prisons. 37 They [j] were stoned, they were sawed asunder, they were tempted, they were put to death by the sword. They went about in sheepskins and goatskins, destitute, distressed, afflicted — 38 of whom the world was not worthy — [k] wandering in deserts, mountains, caves and holes in the earth.

Imperfection of Their State. 39 And all these, though they had been approved by the testimony of faith, did not receive what was promised, 40 for God had something better in view for us; so that they should not be perfected without us.

2. Other Virtues

CHAPTER 12.

Constancy. 1 Therefore let us also, having such a cloud of witnesses over us, put away every encumbrance and the sin entangling us,[l] and run with patience to the fight set before us; 2 looking towards the author and finisher of faith, Jesus, who for the joy set before him, endured a cross, despising shame, and sits at the right hand of the throne of God. 3 Consider, then, him who endured such opposition from sinners against himself, so that you may not grow weary and lose heart.

4 For you have not yet resisted unto blood in the struggle with sin. 5 And you have forgotten the exhortation that is addressed to you as sons, saying, [m] My son, neglect not the discipline of the Lord, neither be thou weary when thou art rebuked by him. 6 For whom the Lord loves he chastises; and he scourges every son whom he receives.

7 Continue under discipline. God deals with you as with sons; for what son is there whom his father [n] does not correct? 8 But if you are without discipline, in which all have had a share, then you are illegitimate children and not sons. 9 Furthermore, we had fathers of our flesh to correct us, and we reverenced them. Shall we not much more obey the Father of spirits and live? 10 For they indeed corrected us for a few days, as they saw fit; but he for our benefit, that we may share his holiness. 11 Now all discipline seems for the present to be a matter not for joy but for grief; but afterwards [o] it yields the most peaceful fruit of justice to those who have been exercised by it. 12 Therefore brace up the hands that hang down,[p] and the tottering knees, 13 and make straight paths for your feet;[q] that no one who is lame may go out of the way, but rather be healed.

Peace and Holiness. 14 Strive for peace[r] with all men, and for that holiness without which no man will see God. 15 Take heed lest anyone be wanting in the grace of God;[s] lest any root of bitterness springing up cause trouble and by it the many be defiled; 16 lest there be any immoral or profane person, [t] such as Esau, who for one meal sold his birthright. 17 For know that even afterwards,[u] when he desired to inherit the blessing, he was rejected; for he found no opportunity for repentance, although he had sought after it with tears.

Sinai and the New Sion. 18 For [v] you have not approached a mountain that may be touched, and a burning fire, and whirlwind and darkness and storm, 19 and sound of trumpet, and sound of [w] words; which sound was such that those who heard entreated that the word should not be spoken to them; 20 for they could not bear what was being said: [x] "And if even a beast touches the mount, it shall be stoned." 21 And so terrible was the spectacle that Moses said, [y] "I am greatly terrified and trembling." 22 But you have come to Mount Sion, and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to the company of many thousands of angels, 23 and to the Church of the firstborn who are enrolled in the heavens, and to God, the judge of all, and to the spirits [z] of the just made perfect, 24 and to Jesus, mediator of a new covenant, and to a sprinkling of blood [a] which speaks better than Abel. 25 See that you do not refuse him who speaks. For if they did not escape who rejected him who speaks to us from heaven. 26 His voice then shook the earth, but now he promises thus, [b] Yet once, and I will shake not the earth only but heaven also. 27 Now by this expression, "yet once," he announces the removal of things which can be shaken – created things–in order that the things which cannot be shaken may remain. 28 Therefore, [c] since we receive a kingdom that cannot be shaken, we have grace,* through which we may offer pleasing service to God with fear and reverence. 29 For [d] our God is a consuming fire.

CHAPTER 13.

Brotherly Love and Purity. 1 Let brotherly love abide in you, 2 and do not forget to entertain strangers; for [e] thereby some have entertained angels unawares. 3 Remember those who are in bonds as if you were bound with them, and those who are ill-treated, as tarrying yourselves also in the body. 4 Let [f] marriage be held in honor with all, and let the marriage bed be undefiled. For God will judge the immoral and adulterers.

God Will Never Fail You. 5 Let your manner of life be without avarice; be content with what you have, for he himself has said, [g] I will not leave thee, neither will I forsake thee. 6 So that we may confidently say, [h] The Lord is my helper: I will not fear what man shall do to me.

Loyalty to Christ and Superiors. 7 Remember your superiors, who spoke to you the word of God. Consider how they ended their lives, and imitate their faith. 8 Jesus Christ [i] is the same, yesterday and today, yes, and forever.

9 Do not be led away by various and strange doctrines. For it is good to make steadfast the heart by grace, not by foods,[j] in which those who walked found no profit. 10 We have an altar, from which they have no right to eat who serve the tabernacle. 11 For [k] the bodies of those animals whose blood is brought into the Holies by the high priest for sin, are burned outside the camp; 12 and so Jesus also, [l] that he might sanctify the people by his blood, suffered outside the gate. 13 Let us therefore go forth to him outside the camp, bearing his reproach; 14 for here we have no permanent city, but we seek for the city that is to come. 15 Through him, therefore, [m] let us offer up a sacrifice of praise always to God, that is, fruit of lips praising his name. 16 And do not forget kindness and charity, for by such sacrifices God's favor is obtained. 17 Obey your superiors and be subject to [n] them, for they keep watch as having to render an account of your souls; so that they may do this with joy, and not with grief, for that would not be expedient for you.

Conclusion

Request for Prayer. 18 Pray for us. For we are confident that we have a good conscience, desiring to live uprightly in all things. 19 But I more especially exhort you to do this, that I may be restored to you the sooner.

Blessing. 20 Now may the God of [o] peace, who brought forth from the dead the great pastor of the sheep, our Lord Jesus, in virtue of the blood of an everlasting covenant, 21 fit you with every good thing to do his will; working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom is glory forever and ever. Amen.

Greetings. 22 And I beseech you, brethren, to bear with this word of exhortation; for I have written to you in few words. 23 Know that our brother Timothy has been set free; with whom (if he comes soon) I will see you. 24 Greet all your superiors and all the saints. The brethren from Italy* send you greetings. 25 Grace be with you all. Amen.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. JAMES THE APOSTLE

Besides the fourteen Epistles of St. Paul, there are seven Catholic Epistles: one of St. James, two of St. Peter, three of St. John, and one of St. Jude. From the earliest days of the Church these have been called "Catholic" on account of their universal appeal. With the exception of the Second and Third Epistles of St. John, they were circular or encyclical letters sent by these Apostles to various Christian communities of the Church.

St. James the Less, the author of the first Catholic Epistle, was the son of Alpheus of Cleophas (Mt 10, 3). His mother Mary was a sister, or a close relative, of the Blessed Virgin, and for that reason, according to Jewish custom, he was sometimes called the brother of the Lord (Gal 1, 19; cf also Mt 13, 55; Mk 6, 3). The Apostle held a distinguished position in the early Christian community at Jerusalem. St. Paul tells us he was a witness of the Resurrection of Christ (1 Cor 15, 7); he is also called a "pillar" of the Church, whom St. Paul consulted about the gospel (Gal 2, 2. 9). According to tradition, he was the first Bishop of Jerusalem, and was at the Council of Jerusalem about the year 50 (Acts 1, 13, 15, 4ff; 21, 18; Gal 1, 19). The historians Eusebius and Hegesippus relate that St. James was martyred for the faith by the Jews in the spring of the year 62, although they greatly esteemed his person and had given him the surname of "James the Just."

Catholic tradition has always recognized St. James as the author of this Epistle. Internal evidence based on the language, style and teaching of the Epistle reveals its author as a Jew familiar with the Old Testament, and a Christian thoroughly grounded in the teachings of the gospel. External evidence from the early Fathers and councils of the Church confirms its authenticity and canonicity.

The date of its writing cannot be determined exactly. According to some scholars it was written about the year 49. Others, however, claim it was written after St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans (composed during the winter of 57-58). It was probably written between the years 60 and 62.

St, James addresses himself to the "twelve tribes that are in the Dispersion" (1, 1), that is, to Christians outside Palestine; but nothing in the Epistle indicates that he is thinking only of Jewish Christians. St. James realizes full well the temptations and difficulties they encounter in the midst of paganism, and as a spiritual father, he endeavors to guide and direct them in the faith. Therefore the burden of his discourse is an exhortation to practical Christian living.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 James, the servant of God and of our Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes that are in the Dispersion:[a] greeting.

I: EXHORTATION TO PATIENCE IN TRIALS

Wisdom in Trials. 2 Esteem it all joy, my brethren, [b] when you fall into various trials,* 3 knowing that the trying of your faith begets patience. 4 And let patience have its perfect work, that you may be perfect and entire, lacking nothing.

5 But if any of you is wanting in wisdom,[c] let him ask it of God, who gives abundantly to all men, and does not reproach; and it will be given to him. 6 But [d] let him ask with faith, without hesitation. For he who hesitates is like a wave of the sea, driven and carried about by the wind. 7 Therefore, let not such a one think that he will receive anything from the Lord, 8 being a double-minded* man, unstable in all his ways.

9 But let the brother of lowly condition [e] glory in his high estate, 10 and the rich man in his low condition; [f] for he will pass away like the flower of the grass. 11 For the sun rises with a burning heat* and parches the grass, and its flower falls and the beauty of its appearance perishes. So too will the rich man wither in his ways.

12 Blessed [g] is the man who endures temptation; for when he has been tried, he will receive the crown of life which God has promised to those who love him.

Sources of Evil and Good. 13 Let no man say when he is tempted, that he is tempted by God;* for God is no tempter to evil, and he himself tempts no one. 14 But everyone is tempted by being drawn away and enticed by his own passion. 15 Then when passion has conceived, it brings forth sin; but when sin has matured, it begets death. 16 Therefore,* my beloved brethren, do not err.

17 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of Lights,[h] with whom there is no change, nor shadow of alteration. 18 Of his own will he has begotten us by the word of truth,[i] that we might be, as it were, the first-fruits of his creatures.

II: LIVING AND ACTIVE FAITH

Hearers and Doers of the Word of God. 19 You know this, my beloved brethren. [j] But let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath. 20 For [k] the wrath of man does not work the justice of God. 21 Therefore, [l] casting aside all uncleanness* and abundance of malice, with meekness receive the ingrafted word, which is able to save your souls. 22 But [m] be doers of the word,* and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves. 23 For if anyone is a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like a man looking at his natural face in a mirror: 24 for he looks at himself and goes away, and presently he forgets what kind of man he is. 25 But [n] he who has looked carefully into the perfect law of liberty and has remained in it, not becoming a forgetful hearer but a doer of the work, shall be blessed in his deed. 26 And [o] if anyone thinks himself to be religious, not restraining his tongue but deceiving his own heart, that man's religion is vain. 27 Religion pure and undefiled before God the Father is this: to give aid to orphans and widows in their tribulation, and to keep oneself unspotted from this world.

CHAPTER 2.

Impartiality. 1 My brethren,[p] do not join faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ with partiality towards persons.* 2 For if a man in fine apparel, having a gold ring,

1, 2: Various trials: i.e., afflictions or misfortunes due to external causes, rather than temptations taken in the moral sense of the term.

1, 8: Double-minded: literally, a man endowed with two souls, that is, an irresolute person who entertains conflicting sentiments.

1, 11: The Greek text reads "burning wind" (cf Mt 20, 12).

1, 13: He is tempted by God: the Greek reads, "I am tempted by God." God is no tempter to evil: the meaning probably is that God is not subject to temptation, neither does he tempt any man.

1, 16: Therefore: wanting in the Greek.

1, 21: Uncleanness: the Greek expression usually refers to the lack of physical cleanliness. In the present context it is used metaphorically of what defiles the soul. Abundance of malice: i.e., not merely excessive, but manifold wickedness which must be discarded before the word can be ingrafted.

1, 22: The word of God has already been received by the Christians to whom St. James is writing; but they must understand it better and obey it.

2, 1ff: Faith in Jesus Christ should not be combined with partiality towards men. V 2 and the following exemplify this.

enters your assembly, and a poor man in mean attire enters also, [3] and you pay attention to him who is clothed in fine apparel and say, "Sit thou here in this good place"; but you say to the poor man, "Stand thou there," or "Sit by my footstool"; [4] are you not making distinctions among yourselves, and do you not become judges with evil thoughts? Listen, my beloved brethren! [5] Has not God chosen the poor of this world to be rich in faith [q] and heirs of the kingdom which God has promised to those who love him? [6] But [r] you have dishonored the poor man. Do not the rich use their power to oppress you, and do they not drag you before judgment-seats? [7] Do [s] they not blaspheme the good name by which you are called?

[8] If, however, you fulfill the royal law, according to the Scriptures, [t] "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," you do well. [9] But [u] if you show partiality towards persons, you commit sin, being convicted by the law as transgressors. [10] For [v] whoever keeps the whole law,* but offends in one point, has become guilty in all. [11] For he who said, [w] "Thou shalt not commit adultery," said also, "Thou shalt not kill." Now if thou wilt not commit adultery, yet wilt commit murder, thou hast become a transgressor of the law. [12] So [x] speak and so act as men about to be judged by the law of liberty. [13] For judgment is without mercy to him who has not shown mercy; [y] but mercy triumphs over judgment.

Practical Faith. [14] What will it profit, my brethren, if a man says he has faith,[z] but does not have works? Can the faith save him? [15] And if a brother or a sister be naked* and in want of daily food, [16] and one of you say to them, "Go in peace, be warmed and filled," yet you do not give them what is necessary for the body,[a] what does it profit? [17] So faith too, unless it has works, is dead in itself. [18] But someone will say, "Thou hast faith, and I have works." Show me thy faith [b] without works, and I from my works will show thee my faith. [19] Thou [c] believest that there is one God.* Thou dost well. The devils also believe, and tremble.

[20] But dost thou want to know, O senseless man, that faith without works is useless? [21] Was [d] not Abraham our father justified by works, when he offered up Isaac his son upon the altar? [22] Dost thou see that faith worked along with his works, and by the works the faith was made perfect? [23] And the Scripture was fulfilled which says, [e] "Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as justice, and he was called the friend of God." [24] You see [f] that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only. [25] In like manner, [g] was not Rahab the harlot also justified by works, when she welcomed the messengers and sent them out another way? [26] For just as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith also without works is dead.

III: THE HAZARD OF TEACHING

CHAPTER 3.

Abuses of the Tongue. [1] Let not many of you become teachers, my brethren, knowing that you will receive a greater judgment.* [2] For in many things we all offend. If anyone does not offend in word, he is a perfect man, able also to lead round by a bridle the whole body. [3] For if we put bits into horses' mouths that they may obey us, we control their whole body also. [4] Behold, even the ships, great as they are, and driven by boisterous winds, are steered by a small rudder wherever the touch of the steersman pleases. [5] So the tongue also is a little member, but it boasts mightily. Behold, how small a fire—how great a forest it kindles! [6] And the tongue is a fire, the very world of iniquity. The tongue is placed among our members, defiling the whole body, and setting on fire the course of our life,* being itself set on fire by hell. [7] For every kind of beast and bird, and of serpents and the rest,* is tamed and has been tamed by mankind; [8] but the tongue no man can tame—a restless evil, full of deadly poison. [9] With it we bless [h] God the Father;* and with it we curse men,

2, 15: Naked: i.e., insufficiently clad.

2, 19: The Greek reads: "Dost thou believe that there is one God?"

3, 1: The Greek has: "we shall receive the greater judgment," i.e., a stricter judgment.

3, 6: Course of our life: literally, "the wheel of our nativity" or "nature," i.e., man's life from beginning to end (cf Jas 1, 23).

3, 7: And the rest: the Greek has "and sea creatures."

who have been made after the likeness of God. 10 Out of the same mouth proceed blessing and cursing. These things, my brethren, ought not to be so. 11 Does the fountain send forth sweet and bitter water from the same opening? 12 Can a fig tree, my brethren, bear olives, or a vine figs? [i] So neither can salt water yield fresh water.

True Wisdom. 13 Who is wise and instructed among you? Let him by his good behavior show his work in the meekness of wisdom. 14 But if you have bitter jealousy and contentions in your hearts, do not glory and be liars against the truth. 15 This is not the wisdom that descends from above. [j] It is earthly, sensual, devilish. 16 For where there is envy and contentiousness, there is instability and every wicked deed. 17 But the wisdom that is from above is first of all chaste, then peaceable, moderate, docile, in harmony with good things, full of mercy and good fruits, without judging, without dissimulation. 18 The [k] fruit of justice is sown in peace by those who make peace.

IV: SPECIAL ADMONITIONS

CHAPTER 4.

Sources of Discord. 1 Whence do wars and quarrels come among you? [l] Is it not from this, from your passions, which wage war in your members? 2 You covet and do not have; you kill and envy, and cannot obtain. You quarrel and wrangle, and you do not have because you do not ask. 3 You ask and do not receive, because you ask amiss, that you may spend it upon your passions. 4 Adulterers,* do you not know that the friendship of this world is enmity with God? Therefore, whoever wishes to be a friend of this world becomes an enemy of God. 5 Or do you think that the Scripture says in vain, [m] "The Spirit which dwells in you covets unto jealousy"? 6 But he gives a greater grace.* For this reason it says, [n] "God resists the proud, but gives grace to the humble." 7 Be subject therefore to God,[o] but resist the devil, and he will flee from you. 8 Draw near to God, and he will draw near to [p] you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double-minded. 9 Be sorrowful, and mourn, and weep; let your laughter be turned into mourning, and your joy into sadness. 10 Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, [q] and he will exalt you.

Presumption. 11 Brethren, do not speak against one another. He who speaks against a brother, or judges his brother, speaks against the law and judges the law. But if thou judgest the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge. 12 There is one Lawgiver and Judge,[r] he who is able to destroy and to save. 13 But thou who judgest thy neighbor, [s] who art thou?

Behold now, you who say, "Today or tomorrow we will go into such a city, and spend a year there, and trade and make money"; 14 you [t] who do not know what will happen tomorrow. 15 For what is your life? It is a mist that appears for a little while, and then vanishes. You ought rather to say, [u] "If the Lord will," and, "If we live, we will do this or that."* 16 But now you boast in your arrogance. All such boasting is evil. 17 Therefore [v] he who knows how to do good, and does not do it, commits a sin.

CHAPTER 5.

The Unjust Rich. 1 Come now, you rich, [w] weep and howl over your miseries which will come upon you. 2 Your riches have rotted,[x] and your garments have become moth-eaten. 3 Your gold and silver are rusted; [y] and their rust will be a witness against you, and will devour your flesh as fire does. You have laid up treasure in the last days. 4 Behold, the wages of the laborers who reaped your fields,[z] which have been kept back by you unjustly, cry out; and their cry has entered into the ears of the Lord of Hosts. 5 You have feasted upon earth,[a] and you have nourished your hearts on dissipation in the day of slaughter. 6 You have condemned and put to death the just,* and he did not resist you.

4, 4: The Greek reads, "adulteresses." A worldly soul is guilty of spiritual infidelity or adultery.

4, 6: But he gives a greater grace: i.e., He gives us more valuable gifts than the world or its votaries can offer (cf 1 Jn 3, 20).

4, 15: The Greek reads: "If the Lord will, we shall live and do this or that"; and, "You are a mist."

5, 6: Many translate "the Just One," and see here some allusion to the Passion and Death of Christ. More probably the expression refers to the class of the just who offered no resistance.

Conclusion

Patience in Affliction. 7 Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth, being patient until it receives the early and the late [b] rain. 8 Do you also be patient; strengthen your hearts; [c] for the coming of the Lord is at hand. 9 Do not complain against one another, brethren, that you may not be judged. Behold, the judge is standing at the door. 10 Take, brethren, as an example of labor and patience, the prophets [d] who spoke in the name of the Lord. Behold, we call them blessed who have endured. 11 You have heard of the patience of Job,[e] and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, how the Lord is merciful and compassionate. 12 But above all things, my brethren, [f] do not swear, either by heaven or by the earth, or any other oath; but let your yes be yes, your no, no; that you may not fall under judgment.

Last Anointing, Confession and Prayer. 13 Is any one of you sad? Let him pray. Is any one in good spirits? Let him sing a hymn. 14 Is any one among you sick? Let him bring in the presbyters of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil [g] in the name of the Lord. 15 And the prayer of faith will save the sick man,[h] and the Lord will raise him up, and if he be in sins, they shall be forgiven him. 16 Confess, therefore, your sins to one another, and pray for one another, that you may be saved. For the unceasing prayer of a just man is of great avail. 17 Elias [i] was a man like ourselves, subject to the same infirmities; and he prayed earnestly that it might not rain upon the earth, and it did not rain for three years and six months. 18 He prayed again,[j] and the heavens gave rain and the earth brought forth its fruit.

Conversion of a Sinner. 19 My brethren, if any one of you strays from the truth [k] and someone brings him back, 20 he ought to know that he who causes a sinner to be brought back from his misguided way, will save his soul from [l] death, and will cover a multitude of sins.

5, 16: That you may be saved: the sense of the Greek is "that you may be healed."

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF ST. PETER THE APOSTLE

St. Peter, also called Simon (Acts 15, 14; 2 Pt 1, 1), was the son of a certain John from the town of Bethsaida in Galilee (Jn 1, 42-44). He was led by his brother Andrew to the Lord, who conferred upon him the name Cephas, i.e., "rock," or Peter (Jn 1, 42; Mt 16, 17-19; Mk 3, 16; Lk 6, 14). Thereupon he followed the Lord and became the "Prince of the Apostles." After the Resurrection the primacy was conferred upon him and immediately after the Ascension he began to exercise it. After preaching in Jerusalem and Palestine he went to Rome, probably after his liberation from prison (Acts 12, 17). Some years later he was in Jerusalem for the first Church Council (Acts 15, 6ff), and shortly afterwards at Antioch (Gal 2, 11-14). In the year 67 he was martyred in Rome.

The Epistle names St. Peter, Apostle of Jesus Christ, as its author (1, 1; cf also 5, 12-14), and the testimony of the early centuries of Christianity reaffirms this evidence. So constant was this testimony that Eusebius, the Church historian, placed the Epistle among the books of the Bible accepted by all. Its authorship is also confirmed by the contents of the Epistle, in which the author appears as an immediate witness of the sufferings of Christ (5, 1), and by its similarity to St. Peter's discourses in the Acts.

The Epistle is addressed to the Christian communities of Asia Minor that were being distressed by the enmity of their pagan neighbors. By their acceptance of Christianity they had become separated from their own countrymen, who abused and persecuted them. The Apostle therefore instructs his readers that Christianity is the true religion in spite of their trials and sufferings, and exhorts them to lead good Christian lives.

The place of composition is given as "Babylon" (5, 13). From the Apocalypse (14, 8; 16, 19, etc.), the Jewish writings and the Sibylline books of the first century, we know that this name was a cryptic designation of the city of Rome. Since the author seems to be familiar with the Epistle to the Ephesians, which was written in 63 A.D., and since he makes no reference to the persecution of Nero, which began about the end of 64 A.D., it appears very likely that the letter was written in the latter part of 63 or the beginning of 64.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Peter, an Apostle of Jesus Christ, to the sojourners of the Dispersion* in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia, chosen 2 unto the sanctification of the Spirit according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, unto obedience to Jesus Christ and the sprinkling of his blood:* grace and peace be given you in abundance.

Thanksgiving. 3 Blessed [a] be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to his great mercy has begotten us again, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, unto a living hope, 4 unto an incorruptible inheritance —undefiled and unfading, reserved for you in heaven. 5 By the power of God you are guarded through faith for salvation, which is ready to be revealed in the last time. 6 Over this you rejoice; though now for a little while, if need be, you are made sorrowful by various trials, 7 that the temper of your faith—more precious by far than gold which is tried by fire [b] —may be found unto praise and glory and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ. 8 Him, though you have not seen, you love. In him, though you do not see him,[c] yet believing, you exult with a joy unspeakable and triumphant; 9 receiving, as the final issue of your faith, the salvation of your souls. 10 The prophets who foretold the grace that was to come for you made earnest inquiry and search concerning this salvation. 11 They searched what time or circumstances the Spirit of Christ in them was signifying, when he foretold the sufferings of Christ, and the glories that would follow. 12 To them it was revealed [d] that not to themselves but to you they were ministering those things which now have been declared to you by those who preached the gospel to you by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven. Into these things angels desire to look.

I: GENERAL COUNSELS OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS

Filial Obedience and Fear. 13 Therefore, having girded up the loins of your understanding, [e] be sober and set your hope completely upon that grace which is brought to you in the revelation of Jesus Christ. 14 As obedient children,* do not conform to the lusts of former days when you were ignorant; 15 but as the One who called you is holy, be you also holy in all your behavior; 16 for it is written, [f] You shall be holy, because I am holy.

17 And if you invoke as Father him who [g] without respect of persons judges according to each one's work, conduct yourselves with fear* in the time of your sojourning. 18 You know that you were redeemed from the vain manner of life handed down from your fathers, not with perishable things, with silver or gold, 19 but [h] with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot. 20 Foreknown,* indeed, before the foundation of the world, he has been manifested in the last times for your sakes. 21 Through him you are believers in God who raised him up from the dead and gave him glory, so that your faith and hope might be in God.

Brotherly Love. 22 Now that your obedience to charity has purified your souls

1, 1: To the sojourners of the Dispersion: a technical term among the Jews referring to the Jews resident outside Palestine. St. Peter uses it in an analogous sense, i.e., with reference to Christians who on earth form a dispersion from their heavenly home. Cf Jas 1, 1; Heb 11, 13-16; 12, 22.

1, 2: Sprinkling of his blood: a metaphor based on the dedication of the covenant contracted at Mount Sinai (Ex 24, 8).

1, 6: You rejoice: the Greek text may be the imperative "rejoice!"

1, 7: More precious by far, etc.: the Greek text reads: "more precious than gold which perishes, proved though it is by fire."

1, 14: Obedient children: literally, "children of obedience," i.e., in contrast to those not "obedient" to the faith. Cf Eph 2, 2f; 5, 6.

1, 17: With fear: the reverential fear of children towards a just father. Sojourning: life on earth is but a pilgrimage.

1, 19f: Without blemish and without spot. Foreknown, etc.: a reference to the messianic prophecy of Is 53, 7 (cf Acts 8, 32), and to the preaching of John the Baptist (Jn 1, 29-34).

for a brotherly love that is sincere, love one another heartily and intensely. 23 For you have been reborn, not from corruptible seed but from incorruptible, through the word of God who lives and abides forever. 24 For, [i] All flesh is as grass, and all its glory as the flower of grass; the grass withered, and the flower has fallen —25 but the word of the Lord endures forever. Now this is the word of the gospel that was preached to you.

CHAPTER 2.

Growth in Holiness. 1 Lay aside therefore all malice, and all deceit, and pretense, and envy, and all slander. 2 Crave, as newborn babes,* pure spiritual milk, that by it you may grow to salvation; 3 if, indeed,[j] you have tasted that the Lord is sweet. 4 Draw near to him, a living stone, rejected indeed by men but chosen and honored by God. 5 Be you yourselves as living stones,* built thereon into a spiritual house, [k] a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. 6 Hence Scripture says, [l] Behold, I lay in Sion a chief cornerstone, chosen, precious; and he who believes in it shall not be put to shame. 7 For you, therefore, who believe, is this honor; but to those who do not believe, [m] A stone which the builders rejected, the same has become the head of the corner, 8 and, [n] A stumbling-stone, and a rock of scandal, to those who stumble at the word, and who do not believe.* For this also they are destined. 9 You, however, [o] are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a purchased people;* that you may proclaim the perfections of him who has called you out of darkness into his marvellous light. 10 You [p] who in times past were not a people, but are now the people of God; who had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

II: PARTICULAR COUNSELS OF CHRISTIAN CONDUCT

Good Example. 11 Beloved, [q] I exhort you as strangers and pilgrims to abstain from carnal desires which war against the soul. 12 Behave yourselves honorably among the pagans; that, whereas they slander you as evildoers, they may, through observing you, by reason of your good works glorify God in the day of visitation.*

For the Citizen. 13 Be subject to every human creature *for God's sake,[r] whether to the king as supreme, 14 or to governors as sent through him for vengeance on evildoers and for the praise of the good. 15 For such is the will of God, that by doing good you should put to silence the ignorance of foolish men. 16 Live as freemen, yet not using your freedom as a cloak for malice but as servants of God. 17 Honor all men; [s] love the brotherhood; fear God; honor the king.

For the Slave. 18 Servants,[t] be subject to your masters in all fear, not only to the good and moderate, but also to the severe. 19 This is indeed a grace, if for consciousness of God* anyone endures sorrows, suffering unjustly. 20 For what is the glory if, when you sin and are buffeted, you endure it? But if, when you do right and suffer, you take it patiently,[u] this is acceptable with God. 21 Unto this, indeed, you have been called, because Christ also has suffered for you, leaving you an example [v] that you may follow in his steps: 22 [w] Who did no sin, neither was deceit found in his mouth. 23 Who, when he was reviled, did not revile, when he suffered, did not threaten, but yielded himself to him who judged him unjustly; 24 who himself [x] bore our sins in his body upon the tree, that we, having died to sin, might live to justice; and by his stripes you were healed. 25 For you were as sheep going astray,[y] but now you have returned to the shepherd and guardian of your souls.

CHAPTER 3.

For the Wife and the Husband. 1 In like manner [z] also let wives be subject to their

2, 2: Newborn babes: the meaning is in no sense derogatory, as in 1 Cor 3, 1. Neophytes will attain to maturity (Eph 4, 13f) more readily when strengthened by the spiritual milk, the pure and unadulterated word of God.

2, 5: Living stones, built, etc.: a frequent metaphor in the Epistles of St. Paul.

2, 8: Do not believe: the Greek has: "being disobedient." Are destined: rejection of Christ spells destruction.

2, 9: A purchased people: the Greek has: "a people for (God's) possession."

2, 12: The day of visitation: this may refer to the last judgment, or, more probably, to the time when the call of grace shall be given to the pagan. Hence the exhortation to good example. Cf Mt 5, 16.

2, 13: For God's sake: the Greek has: "for the Lord's sake."

2, 19: For consciousness of God: for religious motives.

husbands; so that even if any do not believe the word, they may without word be won through the behavior of their wives, 2 observing reverently your chaste behavior. 3 Let not theirs be the [a] outward adornment of braiding the hair, or of wearing gold, or of putting on robes; 4 but let it be the inner life of the heart, in the imperishableness of a quiet and gentle spirit, which is of great price in the sight of God. 5 For after this manner in old times the holy women also who hoped in God adorned themselves, while being subject to their husbands. 6 So [b] Sara obeyed Abraham, calling him lord. You are daughters of hers when you do what is right and fear no disturbance.*

7 Husbands,[c] in like manner dwell with your wives considerately, paying honor to the woman as to the weaker vessel,* and as co-heir of the grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered.

In Christian Charity. 8 Finally, be all like-minded, compassionate, lovers of the brethren, merciful, humble; 9 not rendering evil for evil,[d] or abuse for abuse, but contrariwise, blessing; for unto this were you called that you might inherit a blessing. 10 For, [e] He who would love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no deceit. 11 Let him turn away from evil and do good, let him seek after peace and pursue it. 12 For the eyes of the Lord are upon the just, and his ears unto their prayers; but the face of the Lord is against those who do evil.

In Christian Suffering. 13 And who is there to harm you, if you are zealous for what is good? 14 But [f] even if you suffer anything for justice' sake, blessed are you. So have no fear of their fear and do not be troubled. 15 But hallow* the Lord Christ in your hearts.[g] Be ready always with an answer to everyone who asks a reason for the hope that is in you. 16 Yet do so with gentleness and fear, having a good conscience, so that wherein they speak in disparagement of you they who revile your good behavior in Christ may be put to shame. 17 For it is better, if the will of God should so will, that you suffer for doing good than for doing evil. 18 Because [h] Christ also died once for sins, the Just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God. Put to death indeed in the flesh, he was brought to life in the spirit,* 19 in which also he went and preached to those spirits that were in prison. 20 These in times past had been disobedient when the patience of God waited [i] in the days of Noe while the ark was building. In that ark a few, that is, eight souls were saved through water. 21 Its counterpart, Baptism,[j] now saves you also (not the putting off of the filth of the flesh, but the inquiry of a good conscience after God), through the resurrection [k] of Jesus Christ; 22 who is at the right hand of God, swallowing up death that we might be made heirs of eternal life;* for he went into heaven, Angels, Powers and Virtues being made subject to him.

CHAPTER 4.

In Christian Faithfulness. 1 Since Christ therefore has suffered in the flesh, do you also arm yourselves with the same intent;* because he who has suffered in the flesh has ceased from sins; 2 that [l] during the rest of his time in the flesh he may live no longer according to the lusts of men, but according to the will of God. 3 For sufficient is the time past for those to have accomplished the desire of the pagans, walking, as they did, in dissipation, lusts, drunkenness, revellings, carousings and unlawful worship of idols. 4 They are amazed that you do not run with them into the same flood of dissipation, and they abuse you. 5 But [m] they will render an account* to him who is ready to judge the living and the dead. 6 For to this end was the gospel preached even to the dead,* that they may be judged indeed as men in flesh but may live as God lives in spirit.

things is at hand. Be prudent therefore and watchful in prayers. [8] But above all things have a constant mutual charity* among yourselves; [n] for charity covers a multitude of sins. [9] Be hospitable [o] to one another without murmuring. [10] According to the gift that each has received,[p] administer it to one another as good stewards of the manifold grace of God. [11] If anyone speaks, let it be as with words of God. If anyone [q] ministers, let it be as from the strength that God furnishes; that in all things God may be honored through Jesus Christ, to whom are the glory and the dominion forever. Amen.

Blessings of Persecution. [12] Beloved, do not be startled at the trial by fire that is taking place among you to prove you,[r] as if something strange were happening to you; [13] but rejoice, in so far as you are partakers of the sufferings of Christ,[s] that you may also rejoice with exultation in the revelation of his glory. [14] If you are upbraided for the name of Christ,[t] blessed will you be, because the honor, the glory and the power of God and his Spirit rest upon you. [15] Let none of you suffer as a murderer, or a thief, or a slanderer, or as one coveting what belongs to others. [16] But if he suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God under this name. [17] For the time has come for the judgment to begin with the household of God; [u] but if it begin first with us, what will be the end of those who do not believe* the gospel of God? [18] And [v] if the just man scarcely will be saved, where will the impious and the sinner appear? [19] Therefore let them also who suffer according to the will of God commend their souls [w] in well-doing to a faithful Creator.

CHAPTER 5.

For the Ministry. [1] Now I exhort the presbyters [x] among you—I, your fellow-presbyter* and witness of the sufferings of Christ, the partaker also of the glory that is to be revealed in time to come— [2] tend [y] the flock of God which is among you, governing not under constraint, but willingly, according to God; nor yet for the sake of base gain, but eagerly; [3] nor yet as lording it over your charges,[z] but becoming from the heart* a pattern to the flock. [4] And when the Prince of the shepherds* appears, [a] you will receive the unfading crown of glory.

Counsels to the Laity. [5] Likewise, you who are younger,* be subject to the presbyters. And all of you practise humility towards one another; for, [b] God resists the proud, but gives grace to the humble. [6] Humble [c] yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in the time of visitation;* [7] cast [d] all your anxiety upon him, because he cares for you. [8] Be sober, be watchful! [e] For your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, goes about seeking someone to devour. [9] Resist him, steadfast in the faith,[f] knowing that the same suffering befalls* your brethren all over the world. [10] But the God of all grace, who has called us* unto his eternal glory [g] in Christ Jesus, will himself, after we have suffered a little while, perfect, strengthen and establish us. [11] To him is the dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Conclusion

Farewell. [12] By Silvanus,* the faithful brother as I account him, I have written to you thus briefly, exhorting and testifying that this is the true grace of God. Stand firmly in it. [13] The church* which is at Babylon,[h] chosen together with you, greets you, and so does my son Mark. [14] Greet one another [i] with a holy kiss. Grace* be to you all who are in Christ. Amen.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF ST. PETER THE APOSTLE

In this Second Epistle St. Peter refers to his previous letter and to the doctrine contained in it (3, 1f). It was most likely addressed to the same Christian communities of Asia Minor as the former Epistle, and was occasioned by the appearance among the Christians of false teachers (2, 1), heretics and deceivers (3, 3), who promised them freedom (2, 19), corrupting their good morals (2, 18) and denying the Second Coming of Christ and the end of the world (3, 4ff). Its purpose, therefore, was to encourage the Christians to persevere in the faith, and to protect them against the dangers of the false teachers.

The contents of this Epistle, especially Chapter 2, bear such a striking resemblance to the Epistle of St. Jude that it seems probable St. Peter was familiar with the Epistle of his fellow-Apostle and made use of some of its thoughts.

The author calls himself "Simon Peter, a servant and Apostle of Jesus Christ" (1, 1). This statement of authorship is confirmed by the Epistle itself, the author of which describes himself as an eyewitness of our Lord's Transfiguration (1, 16-18), and calls Paul his "dear brother" (3, 15).

The time and place of its composition are deduced from 1, 13-15. The Apostle knows that his death is close at hand. As St. Peter died a martyr in Rome, we may conclude that the Epistle was written from Rome during his imprisonment, 66-67 A.D.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 Simon Peter, a servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who have obtained an equal privilege of faith with ourselves through the justice of our God and Savior Jesus Christ. 2 May grace and peace be given you in abundance in the knowledge [a] of our Lord.

I: CHRISTIAN VIRTUE—ITS NECESSITY AND MOTIVES

Life of a Christian. 3 For indeed [b] his divine power* has granted us all things pertaining to life and piety through the knowledge of him who has called us by his own glory and power — 4 through which* he has granted us the very great and precious promises,[c] so that through them you may become partakers of the divine nature, having escaped from the corruption of that lust which is in the world. 5 Do you accordingly on your part strive diligently to supply* your faith with virtue,[d] your virtue with knowledge, 6 your knowledge with self-control, your self-control with patience, your patience with piety, 7 your piety with fraternal love,[e] your fraternal love with charity.

Necessity of Virtue. 8 For if you possess these virtues and they abound in you,* they will render you neither inactive nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. 9 For he who lacks them is blind,[f] groping* his way, and has forgotten that he was cleansed from his former sins. 10 Therefore, brethren, strive even more by good works* to make your calling and election sure. For if you do this, you will not fall into sin at any time. 11 Indeed, in this way will be amply provided for you the entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

12 Therefore I shall begin to remind you always of these things; although indeed you know them and are well established in the present truth. 13 As long as I am in this tabernacle,* I think it right to arouse you by a reminder, 14 knowing as I do that the putting off of my tabernacle is at hand,[g] just as our Lord Jesus Christ signified to me. 15 Moreover I will endeavor that even after my death you may

1, 3: His divine power: the power of Christ, who is mentioned last in the preceding sentence. The call is always ascribed to God the Father.

1, 4: Through which: Christ's glory and power are the foundation of our hope. The Greek text reads, "the . . . things promised us," and, "having escaped from the corruption which is in the world by lust." Partakers of the divine nature: the adopted sons of God share in a supernatural way in the nature of God. Grace makes them like Him; and in heaven they will see Him as He is.

1, 5: The Greek text reads, "For this very reason, employing all care, supply. . . ."

1, 8: The Greek has: "For if these things are yours and increase, they render. . . ."

1, 9: Groping: in the Greek, "seeing only what is near."

often have occasion to call these things to mind.

Sovereignty of Christ. 16 For we were not following fictitious tales* when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we had been eyewitnesses of his grandeur. 17 For he received from God the Father honor and glory, when from out the majestic glory a voice came down to him, speaking thus: [b] This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased. 18 And this voice we ourselves heard borne from heaven when we were with him on the holy mount.

19 And we have the word of prophecy,* surer still, to which you do well to attend, as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. 20 This, then, you must understand first of all, that no prophecy of Scripture is made by private interpretation.* 21 For not by will of man was prophecy brought at any time; but holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the [i] Holy Spirit.

II: FALSE TEACHERS

CHAPTER 2.

Punishment of Lying Teachers. 1 But there were false prophets [j] also among the people, just as among you there will be lying teachers who will bring in destructive sects. They even disown the Lord who bought them, thus bringing upon themselves swift destruction. 2 And many will follow their wanton conduct, and because of them [k] the way of truth* will be maligned. 3 And out of greed they will with deceitful words [l] use you for their gain. Their condemnation, passed of old, is not made void, and their destruction does not slumber.

Warning from the Past. 4 For [m] God did not spare the angels when they sinned, but dragged them down* by infernal ropes to Tartarus, and delivered them to be tortured and kept in custody for judgment. 5 Nor did he spare the ancient world, [n] but preserved (with seven others) Noe a herald of justice, when he brought a flood upon the world of the impious. 6 And [o] he condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to destruction, reducing them to ashes, thus making them an example to those who in the future should live impiously; 7 whereas he delivered just Lot, who was distressed by the lawless behavior of the wicked. 8 For by what that just man saw and heard while dwelling among them, they tormented his just soul day after day with their wicked deeds. 9 The Lord knows how to deliver the God-fearing from temptation [p] and to reserve the wicked for torment on the day of judgment, 10 but especially [q] those who follow the flesh in unclean lust and despise authority.

The Vices of Heresy. Rash and self-willed, such men in their deriding do not regard majesty;* 11 whereas angels,[r] though greater in strength and power, do not bring against themselves an abusive charge. 12 But these men, like irrational animals created by nature for capture* and destruction,[s] deride what they do not understand, and will perish in their own corruption, 13 receiving thereby the recompense of their wrongdoing. They regard as pleasure their daylight revelry; they are spots and blemishes,[t] they abound in wantonness while banqueting with you. 14 They have eyes full of adultery and turned unceasingly towards sin. They entice unstable souls; they have their hearts exercised in covetousness; they are children of a curse. 15 They have forsaken the right way and have gone astray; [u] they have followed the way of Balaam, the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of wrongdoing. 16 But he was rebuked for his madness; [v] a dumb beast of burden spoke with the voice of a man and checked the folly of the prophet.

1, 17: Some few MSS of the Vulgate add, "hear him," to the quotation.

1, 18: The holy mount: the Mount of Transfiguration.

1, 19: Word of prophecy: the sum of messianic prophecies of the Old Testament which declares the glorious reign of the Messias. Until the day dawns: the day of the Lord, a reference to the Second Coming of Christ. It will resemble the morning star in splendor.

1, 20: Some would render this: ". . . no prophecy is the object of private interpretation."

2, 2: The way of truth: the code of moral living as taught by Christ.

2, 4: But dragged them down: the Greek reads, "consigned them to the dark pits of Tartarus, delivering them into custody to await judgment." Tartarus: i.e., hell.

2, 10: Majesty: as in Jude, probably refers to the good angels.

2, 12: The Greek text reads, "born according to nature for capture."

17 These [w] men are springs without water and mists driven by storms; the blackness of darkness is reserved for them. 18 For [x] by high sounding, empty words they entice with sensual allurements of carnal passion those who are just *escaping from such as live in error. 19 They promise them freedom, whereas they themselves are the slaves of corruption; [y] for by whatever a man is overcome, of this also he is the slave. 20 For if after escaping the defilements of the world through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein and overcome, [z] their latter state has become worse for them than the former. 21 For it were better for them not to have known the way of justice,[a] than having known it, to turn back from the holy commandment delivered to them. 22 For what that true proverb says has happened to them, [b] A dog returns to his vomit, and, A sow even after washing wallows in the mire.

CHAPTER 3.

The Second Coming. 1 This, beloved, is now the second epistle that I am writing to you wherein I stir up your pure mind to remembrance, 2 that you may be mindful of what I formerly preached [c] of the words of the holy prophets* and of your apostles, which are the precepts of the Lord and Savior. 3 This first you must know, [d] that in the last days there will come deceitful scoffers, men walking according to their own lusts, 4 saying, "Where is the promise or his coming?* For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation." 5 For of this they are willfully ignorant, that there were heavens [e] long ago, and an earth formed out of water and by water through the word of God. 6 By these means the world that then was, deluged with water,[f] perished. 7 But the heavens that now are, and the earth, by that same word have been stored up, being reserved for fire against the day of judgment and destruction* of ungodly men.

8 But, beloved, do not be ignorant of this one thing, that one day with the Lord is as a thousand years,[g] and a thousand years as one day. 9 The Lord does not delay in his promises, but for your sake is long-suffering, not wishing that any should perish [h] but that all should turn to repentance. 10 But [i] the day of the Lord will come as a thief; at that time the heavens will pass away with great violence, and the elements will be dissolved with heat, and the earth,* and the works that are in it, will be burned up. 11 Seeing therefore that all these things are to be dissolved, what manner of men ought you to be in holy and pious behavior, 12 you who await and hasten towards the coming of the day of God, by which the heavens, being on fire, will be dissolved and the elements will melt away by reason of the heat of the fire. 13 But [j] we look for new heavens and a new earth, according to his promises,* wherein dwells justice.

Conclusion

Exhortation, Doxology. 14 Therefore, beloved, while you look for these things, endeavor to be found by him without spot and blameless, in peace. 15 And regard the long-suffering of our Lord as salvation. Just as our most dear brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given him, has written to you, 16 as indeed he did in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things. In these epistles there are certain things difficult to understand, which the unlearned and the unstable distort, just as they do the rest of the Scriptures also, to their own destruction.

17 You therefore, brethren, since you know this beforehand, be on your guard lest, carried away [k] by the error of the foolish,* you fall away from your own steadfastness. 18 But grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. To him be the glory, both now and to the day of eternity. Amen.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF ST. JOHN THE APOSTLE

That St. John the Apostle, the author of the Fourth Gospel, is also the author of this Epistle is the verdict of historical evidence, both implicit and explicit, reaching as far back as St. Polycarp. The internal evidence of the book itself is sufficiently strong; for the writer speaks with authority, as an Apostle would. Moreover, when the Epistle is compared with the Gospel of St. John, the resemblance both in thought and in expression is so striking that identity of authorship is admitted by most commentators.

From this close relation to the Fourth Gospel many commentators are of the opinion that the Epistle was written shortly before or shortly after the Gospel to serve as an introduction, or as a postscript, to it, or at least with the intention that both should be read together. Beyond this, there is nothing to indicate the time and place of its composition; but from this close connection we may say that it was written at Ephesus towards the close of the first century.

The Apostle wrote this letter probably as a circular letter to the faithful of Asia Minor, to remind them of what he had written and preached concerning the divinity of Christ, and thus to strengthen them against the heresies of the day. For it seems certain that, in the churches to which the letter is directed, there had risen false teachers and prophets—antichrists who denied that Jesus was the Messias, and Incarnate Son of God.

The fundamental thought of the Epistle is this: God is made known to us in Jesus Christ; hence, fellowship with the Father is through the Son. There are three main currents of thought: (1) God is light (1, 5—2, 27); (2) God is justice (2, 28—4, 6); (3) God is love (4, 7—5, 12).

Hence, if we are to have fellowship with the Father through the Son, we must walk in light, in justice or holiness, and in love. Thus the Apostle calls those who deny that Jesus is the Christ and the Incarnate Son of God, liars and antichrists. He especially emphazises the sublimity and excellence of love, the love of God finding expression in brotherly love. The Apostle further shows how to distinguish the children of God from the children of the devil; he describes the baseness and gravity of sin; and finally, he shows how the sinner may hope for pardon.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

The Witness to the Word of Life. 1 I write of what was from the beginning,[a] what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we have looked upon and our hands have handled: of the Word of Life. 2 And the Life was made known and we have seen, and now testify and announce to you, the Life Eternal which was with the Father,[b] and has appeared to us. 3 What we have seen and have heard we announce to you, in order that you also may have fellowship with us, [c] and that our fellowship may be with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. 4 And these things we write to you that you may rejoice, [d] and our joy may be full.

I: GOD IS LIGHT

Walk in Light. 5 And the message which we have heard from him and announce to you, is this: that God is light, and in him is no darkness. 6 If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, [e] we lie, and are not practising the truth. 7 But if we walk in the light as he also is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, [f] and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanses us from all sin.

8 If [g] we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. 9 If we acknowledge our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all iniquity. 10 If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word [h] is not in us.

CHAPTER 2.

1 My dear children, these things I write a Jn 1, 1. 14.—b Jn 17, 5.—c Jn 17, 21.—d Jn 15, 11.—e Jn 3, 21; 12, 35.—f Hb 9, 14; 1 Pt 1, 19; Ap 1, 5.—g 3 Kgs 8, 46; 2 Par 6, 36; Prv 20, 9; Eccl 7, 20.—h Jn 5, 38; 8, 37.

to you in order that you may not sin. But if anyone sins, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the just; 2 and he is a propitiation for our sins, not for ours only but also for those [i] of the whole world.

Observe the Commandments, Especially Charity. 3 And by this we can be sure that we know him, if we keep [j] his commandments. 4 He who says that he knows him, and does not keep his commandments, is a liar [k] and the truth is not in him. 5 But he who keeps his word, in him the love of God is truly perfected; [l] and by this we know that we are in him. 6 He who says that he abides in him, ought himself also to walk just as he walked.

7 Beloved, no new commandment am I writing to you, but an old commandment which you had from the beginning.* The old commandment is the word which you have heard. 8 Again, a new commandment I am writing to you,[m] and this is true both in him and in you. Because the darkness has passed away and the true light is now shining. 9 He who says that he is in the light, and hates his brother, [n] is in the darkness still. 10 He [o] who loves his brother abides in the light, and for him there is no stumbling. 11 But he who hates his brother is in the darkness, and walks in the darkness, and he does not know whither he goes; because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

Reasons for Writing. 12 I am writing to you, dear children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake. 13 I am writing to you, fathers, because you know him who is from the beginning. I am writing to you, young men, because you have conquered the evil one. 14 I am writing to you,* little ones, because you know the Father. I am writing to you, fathers, because you know him who is from the beginning.[p] I am writing to you, young men, because you are strong and the word of God abides in you, and you have conquered the evil one. 15 Do not love the world, or the things that are in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him; 16 because all that is in the world is the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life; which is not from the Father, but from the world. 17 And the world with its lust is passing away, but he who does the will of God abides forever.

Against False Teachers. 18 Dear children, it is the last hour;* and as you have heard that Antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have arisen; whence we know that it is the last hour. 19 They have gone forth from us, but they were not of us.* For if they had been of us, they would surely have continued with us; but they were to be made manifest, that [q] not one of them is of us. 20 But you have an anointing [r] from the Holy One* and you know all things. 21 I have not written to you as to those who do not know the truth, but as to those who know it, and because no lie is of the truth. 22 Who is the liar but he who denies that Jesus is the Christ? He is the Antichrist who denies the Father and the Son. 23 No one who disowns the Son has the Father. [s] He who confesses the Son has the Father also. 24 As for you, let that which you have heard from the beginning abide in you. If that abides in you which you have heard from the beginning, [t] you also will abide in the Son and in the Father. 25 And this is the promise that he has given us, [u] the life everlasting.

26 These things I have written to you concerning those who lead you astray. 27 And as for you, let the anointing which you have received from him, dwell in you, and you have no need that anyone teach you. But as his anointing teaches you concerning all things, and is true and is no lie, even as it has taught you, abide in him.

II: GOD IS JUSTICE

Children of God. 28 And now, dear chil-

2, 7f: The old and the new commandments are really one and the same commandment of love, promulgated in the Old Testament, but renewed by Christ, especially in the new motives and other helps supplied by Him.

2, 14: I am writing to you, fathers, etc.: omitted by the Clementine Vulgate. The Greek text has, "I wrote."

2, 18: It is the last hour: the meaning probably is that it is the last age of the world, the age of the Church. How long it will last no one knows. Antichrist St. John supposes that the doctrine concerning the coming of Antichrist is already known to his readers. "Antichrist" is commonly understood as a personal opponent of Christ at the end of time. Cf 2 Jn 7.

2, 19: The antichrists who teach erroneous and subversive doctrines formerly belonged to the Church. Before they left the Christian community they were no longer ours: they were not in the state of grace and not real Christians.

2, 20: Anointing from the Holy One: the expression is usually understood to refer to the conferring of the Holy Spirit. You know all things: some very ancient authorities read, "all of you have knowledge," following the Greek text.

dren, abide in him,[v] so that when he appears we may have confidence, and may not shrink ashamed from him at his coming. [29] If you know that he is just, know that everyone also who does what is just has been born of him.

CHAPTER 3.

[1] Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed upon us, that we should be called children of God;[w] and such we are. This is why the world does not know us, because it did not know him. [2] Beloved, now we are the children of God, and it has not yet appeared what we shall be. We know that, when he appears, we shall be like to him, for we shall see him[x] just as he is. [3] And everyone who has this hope in him makes himself holy, just as he also is holy.

[4] Everyone who commits sin commits iniquity also; and sin is iniquity. [5] And you know that he appeared to take our sins away,[y] and sin is not in him. [6] No one who abides in him commits sin; and no one who sins has seen him, or has known him.

Children of the Devil. [7] Dear children, let no one lead you astray. He who does what is just is just, even as he is just. [8] He[z] who commits sin is of the devil, because the devil sins from the beginning. To this end the Son of God appeared, that he might destroy the works of the devil. [9] Whoever is born of God does not commit sin,* because his seed abides in him and he cannot sin, because he is born of God. [10] In this the children of God and the children of the devil are made known.

Whoever is not just is not of God, nor is he just who does not love his brother. [11] For this is the message that you have heard from the beginning,[a] that we should love one another; [12] not like[b] Cain, who was of the evil one, and killed his brother. And wherefore did he kill him? Because his own works were[c] wicked, but his brother's just. [13] Do not be surprised, brethren, if the world hates you. [14] We know that we have passed from death to life, because we love the brethren.[d] He who does not love abides in death. [15] Everyone who hates his brother is a murderer.[e] And you know that no murderer has eternal life abiding in him.

True Charity. [16] In this[f] we have come to know his love, that he laid down his life for us; and we likewise ought to lay down our life for the brethren. [17] He[g] who has the goods of this world and sees his brother in need and closes his heart to him, how does the love of God abide in him? [18] My dear children, let us not love in word, neither with the tongue, but in deed and in truth.

A Good Conscience. [19] In this we know that we are of the truth, and in his sight we set our hearts at rest. [20] Because if our heart blames us, God is greater than our heart and knows all things. [21] Beloved, if our heart does not condemn us, we have confidence towards God, [22] and[h] whatever we ask, we shall receive from him, because we keep his commandments and do those things that are pleasing in his sight.

[23] And this is his[i] commandment, that we should believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, even as he gave us commandment. [24] And he who keeps his commandments abides in God, and God in him. And in this we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit whom he has given us.

CHAPTER 4.

True and False Spirits. [1] Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits* to see whether they are of God; because many false prophets have gone forth into the world. [2] By this is the spirit of God known: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh, is of God. [3] And every spirit that severs Jesus,* is not of God, but is of Antichrist, of whom you have heard that he is coming, and now is already in the world.

3, 9: Does not commit sin: this does not mean that it is impossible for him who has been spiritually reborn in Baptism to commit sin, but simply that he will not sin as long as he keeps the seed of grace in himself. This grace, however, can be lost through sin.

3, 19f: A probable rendering of the Greek: ". . . and in his sight we shall reassure our hearts, whatever our heart may accuse us of, because God is greater. . . ."

3, 19: The Greek reads: ". . . we shall know . . . we shall set."

4, 1: Test the spirits: the expression probably refers to those Christians who claimed extraordinary gifts of the Holy Spirit (cf 1 Cor 14, 32). These spirits should be examined to see whether their teaching is in agreement with Catholic faith and the doctrine of Christ and His Church.

4, 3: And every spirit that severs Jesus: i.e., that separates the Christ from Jesus, regarding them as two distinct persons, as Cerinthus did. He maintained that the Christ came upon Jesus at baptism and left Him before the Passion. The better reading of the Greek is: "and every spirit that does not confess Jesus," etc.

4 You are of God, dear children, and have overcome him, because greater is he who is in you than he who is in the world.
*They are of the world;[j] 5 therefore of the world they speak and the world listens to them. 6 We are of God.[k] He who knows God listens to us; he who is not of God does not listen to us. By this we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error.

III: GOD IS LOVE

Love Unites Us with God. 7 Beloved, let us love one another, for love is from God.
And everyone who loves is born of God, and knows God. 8 He who does not love does not know God; for God is love. 9 In [l] this has the love of God been shown in our case, that God has sent his only-begotten Son into the world that we may live through him. 10 In this is the love, not that we have loved God, but that he has first loved us, and sent his Son a propitiation for our sins. 11 Beloved, if God has so loved us, we also ought to love one another.

12 No [m] one has ever seen God. If we love one another, God abides in us and his love is perfected in us. 13 In this we know that we abide in him and he in us, because he has given us of his Spirit. 14
And we have seen, and do testify, [n] that the Father has sent his Son to be Savior of the world. 15 Whoever confesses that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him and he in God. 16 And we have come to know, and have believed,[o] the love that God has in our behalf. God is love, and he who abides in love abides in God,
and God in him.

17 In this is love perfected with us, that we may have confidence in the day of judgment; because as he is, even so are we also in this world. 18 There is no fear in love;* but perfect love casts out fear, because fear brings punishment. And he who fears is not perfected in love. 19 Let us therefore love, because God first loved us. 20 If anyone says, "I love God," and hates his brother, he is a liar. For how can he who does not love his brother, whom he sees, love God, whom he does not see? 21 And this commandment we have from him,[p] that he who loves God should love his brother also.

CHAPTER 5.

The Basis of Love. 1 Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ is born of God.[q] And everyone who loves him who begot, loves also the one begotten of him.
2 In this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and do his commandments. 3 For this is the love of God, that we keep his [r] commandments; and his commandments are not burdensome. 4 Because all that is born of God overcomes the world;[s] and this is the victory that overcomes the world, our faith. 5 Who [t] is there that overcomes the world if not he who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

Witnesses to Christ. 6 This is he who came in water and in blood, Jesus Christ; not in the water only, but in the water and in the blood.* And it is the Spirit [u] that bears witness that Christ is the truth.
7 *For there are three that bear witness [v]
[in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit; and these three are one.
8 And there are three that bear witness on earth]: the Spirit, and the water, and the blood; and these three are one. 9 If we receive the testimony of men, the testimony of God is greater; for this is the testimony of God which is greater, that he has borne witness concerning his Son.
10 He who believes in the Son of God has the testimony of God in himself. [w] He who does not believe the Son, makes him a liar; because he does not believe the witness that God has borne concerning his Son.

11 And this is the testimony, that God has given us eternal life;[x] and this life is in his Son. 12 He who has the Son has the life.[y] He who has not the Son has not the life.

13 These things I am writing to you that you may know that you have eternal life [z]—you who believe in the name of the Son of God.

4, 4: They are of the world: the false prophets of 1 Jn 4, 1.

4, 18: There is no fear in love: perfect love banishes human, doubtful and servile fear. It does not, however, exclude the wholesome fear of God's judgments, nor the fear and trembling with which man must work out his salvation (Phil 2, 12).

5, 6: The water . . . the blood: probably refers to the baptism and death of Christ.

5, 7f: According to the evidence of many manuscripts, and the majority of commentators, these verses should read: "For there are three that bear witness: the Spirit, and the water, and the blood; and these three are one." The Holy See reserves to itself the right to pass finally on the origin of the present reading.

Confidence in Prayer. 14 And the confidence that we have towards him is this, that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us. 15 And we know that he hears us whatever we ask; we know that the requests we make of him are granted.

16 He who knows his brother is committing a sin that is not unto death,* shall ask, and shall give life to him who does not commit a sin unto death. There is sin unto death; I do not mean that anyone should ask as to that. 17 All lawlessness is sin, and there is a sin unto death.

Conclusion

18 We know that no one who is born of God commits sin; but the Begotten of God [a] preserves him and the evil one does not touch him. 19 We know that we are of God, and the whole world is in the power of the evil one. 20 And we know that the Son of God has come and has given us understanding, that we may know the true God [b] and may be in his true Son. He is the true God and eternal life.

21 Dear children, guard yourselves from the idols. Amen.

5, 16f: It is difficult to determine just what St. John means by sin . . . not unto death and sin unto death. The former is probably a grievous or mortal sin, because life shall be given; the latter is probably a willful apostasy and the sin of final unrepentance. St. John does not forbid us to pray for such sinners, because God alone can determine whether one is finally impenitent or not. Our faith teaches us that God desires not the death of the sinner, but that he be converted and live (Ez 33, 11).

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF ST. JOHN THE APOSTLE

The direct external evidence that this as well as the following Epistle was written by St. John the Apostle, is not extensive. Yet sufficient references to both Epistles are found in early patristic literature to prove their authorship and authenticity. Besides, we have a number of indirect testimonies in the citation of passages obviously derived from either the Second or the Third Epistle. Again, the vocabulary throughout is precisely that which is found in the Gospel and in the First Epistle.

The ideas and expressions of the Second Epistle are the same as those of the First; hence its composition must have been prompted by the same or similar occasions. It was probably written towards the end of the first century.

The recipient of the Second Epistle is addressed as "Elect Lady." The meaning of the title is obscure. Many have thought that an individual is meant, one whose name was Kuria or Elect, or simply "an elect lady." Others have seen in the title a mere symbol, either of the universal Church, or of some particular church in Asia Minor.

The Apostle commends the recipients of the letter for their steadfastness in the true faith, and exhorts them to persevere, lest they lose the reward of their labors. He exhorts them to love one another, but warns them to have no fellowship with heretics, and not even to greet them.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Greeting. 1 The presbyter* to the Elect Lady and to her children whom I love in truth—and not I alone, but also all who have [a] known the truth—2 for the sake of the truth which abides in us, and will be with us forever: 3 grace, mercy and peace be with you from God the Father and from Christ Jesus, the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

TEACHING OF THE APOSTLE

Brotherly Love. 4 I rejoiced greatly that I found some of thy chiidren walking in truth, according to the commandment that we have received from the Father. 5 And now I beseech thee, lady, not as writing to thee a new commandment, but that which we have had from the beginning, [b] that we love one another. 6 And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments.[c] This is the commandment, that, just as you have heard from the beginning, you should walk in it.*

1st Epistle: a Jn 17, 12.—b Jn 17, 3; Lk 24, 25.—2nd Epistle: a Jn 8, 32.—b Jn 13, 34; 15, 12.—c Jn 14, 15.

1, 1: Presbyter: a general term meaning "elder" or "ancient." The author here is called The Presbyter, such apparently being his title, or surname of honor. The Elect Lady may have been an individual, but more likely the title is given to a particular church, since the name occurs at the end of the Epistle, and is applied to another. Cf introduction

1, 6: In it: may refer to love or to commandment.

Against False Teachers. 7 For many deceivers have gone forth into the world who do not confess Jesus as the Christ coming in the flesh. [d] This is the deceiver and the Antichrist.

8 Look to yourselves, that you do not lose what you have worked for,* but that you may receive a full reward. 9 Anyone who advances and does not abide in the doctrine of Christ, has not God; [e] he who abides in the doctrine, he has both the Father and the Son. 10 If anyone comes to you and does not bring this doctrine, do not receive him into the house, or say to him, Welcome. 11 For he who says to him, Welcome, is sharer in his evil works.

Conclusion

12 Though I have much to write to you, I do not wish to do so with paper and ink; for I hope to be with you and to speak face to face, [f] that your joy may be full.

13 The children of thy sister Elect greet thee.

d 1 Jn 4, 3.—e Jn 8, 31.—f Jn 15, 11; 17, 13.

1, 8: The Greek text may mean: ". . . that you do not lose what you have accomplished."

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF ST. JOHN THE APOSTLE

The Third Epistle of St. John is addressed to a certain Gaius. Whether he is to be identified with a Christian of the same name mentioned in Acts 19, 29 and 20, 4 is uncertain.

The time and place of composition of this Epistle are likewise uncertain. The similarity of content and form, however, suggests that it was written about the same time as the Second Epistle.

The Epistle, though brief, vividly portrays certain features in the life of the early Church. Gaius is praised for his hospitality and for walking in the truth. Diotrephes, on the contrary, is censured for his ambition and lack of hospitality. A certain Demetrius is also commended for his virtue.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Salutation. 1 The presbyter to the beloved Gaius,* whom I love in truth.

PRAISE OF GAIUS

2 Beloved, I pray that in all things thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospers. 3 I rejoiced greatly when some brethren came and bore witness to thy truth, even as thou walkest in the truth. 4 I have no greater joy than to hear that my children are walking in the truth. 5 Beloved, thou dost in accordance with faith whatever thou workest for the brethren, and that even when they are strangers. 6 They have borne witness to thy love before the church. Thou wilt do well to see them off on their journey in a manner worthy of God. 7 For on behalf of the Name they have gone forth, taking nothing from the pagans. 8 We therefore ought to support such as these, that we may be fellow-workers for the truth.

DIOTREPHES AND DEMETRIUS

9 I would have written perhaps to the church;* but Diotrephes, who loves to have the first place among them, does not receive us. 10 Therefore if I come, I will recall to mind his works, prating against us with evil words; and as if this were not enough for him, he himself does not receive the brethren, and those who do so he hinders, and casts them out of the church.

11 Beloved, do not imitate evil, but that which is good. He who does what is good is of God; he who does what is evil has not seen God. 12 Witness is borne to Demetrius* by all, and by the truth itself,

1, 1: While not the head of a church, Gaius seems to have been a man of great influence and to have been much loved by the Apostle.

1, 9: I would have written perhaps, etc.: the sense evidently differs from the Greek, "I wrote something." Many think the reference is to a lost Epistle, similar to that alluded to in 1 Cor 5, 9. Diotrephes: probably the bishop of one of the churches established by St. John. He is censured here, not for usurping authority but rather for abusing it, especially by his opposition to St. John.

1, 12: It is impossible to identify this Demetrius, who in a special way seems to have been the object of Diotrephes' animosity.

yes, we also bear witness;[a] and thou knowest that our witness is true.

Conclusion

13 I had much to write to thee; but I do not want to write to thee with pen and ink. 14 But I hope to see thee shortly, and we will speak face to face.

15 Peace be to thee. The friends greet thee. Greet the friends by name.

THE EPISTLE OF ST. JUDE THE APOSTLE

By designating himself "the brother of James" (v 1), the writer of this Epistle evidently wished to reveal himself to his readers. At the time the Epistle was written, there was no one of prominence in the Church having the name of James except the Apostle James the Less, Bishop of Jerusalem and author of the Epistle that bears his name. St. James the Less was one of the "brethren of the Lord" (Gal 1, 19), and had a brother named Jude (Mt 13, 55; Mk 6, 3). In the two lists of the Apostles given by St. Luke (Lk 6, 16; Acts 1, 15), one is named "Jude of James." He is called Thaddeus by the other evangelists (Mt 10, 3; Mk 3, 18). It is clear that Luke refers to Jude the brother of James. Little more is known of the life of this Apostle. According to a tradition he preached the gospel in Syria and suffered martyrdom at Beirut. The Church celebrates the feast of Sts. Simon and Jude on October 28.

The author of this Epistle presupposes that his readers are familiar with the Old Testament and with Jewish traditions. It is likely, therefore, that it was addressed to converts from Judaism who also knew the Apostle James.

The Epistle is both brief and practical. It was occasioned by the teachings and practices of certain heretics within the Church. By their evil lives they were denying that Jesus is the only Lord and Master. They were opposed to all law and authority, and changed Christian liberty into unrestrained license. The Epistle is a warning to them.

The Epistle was written between the years 62 and 67 A.D., as may be concluded from the following indications. The warnings from the past (vv 5-7) contain no mention of the fall of Jerusalem. It was written before the death of St. Peter. It was written after the death of St. James, Bishop of Jerusalem, for on the authority of Hegesippus we know that the church in Palestine was free from heresies during his administration.

The Fathers, and Catholic tradition in general, ascribe this Epistle to the Apostle St. Jude. St. Peter made use of it in his Second Epistle. The Muratorian canon enumerates it among the sacred books.

Introduction

CHAPTER 1.

Purpose of Address. 1 Jude, the servant[a] of Jesus Christ and the brother of James, to the called who have been loved in God the Father and preserved for Christ Jesus: 2 mercy and peace and charity be given you in abundance.

3 Beloved, while I was making every endeavor to write to you about our common salvation, I found it necessary to write to you, exhorting you to contend earnestly for the faith once for all delivered to the saints. 4 For certain men have stealthily entered in,* who long ago were marked out for this condemnation, ungodly men who turn the grace of God into wantonness and disown our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.

I: WARNING AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

Divine Judgments. 5 But I desire to remind you, though once for all you have come to know all things, that Jesus, who saved the people from the land of Egypt,[b] the next time destroyed those who did not believe. 6 And the angels* also who did not preserve their original state, but forsook their abode, he has kept in ever-

3rd Epistle: a Jn 19, 35; 21, 24.—Jude: a Mt 13, 55.—b Nm 14, 35.

1, 4: These men had not been sincere in embracing Christianity. Hence they are said to have stealthily entered in. The condemnation for which they have been marked is the judgment of God on sinners whose crimes and punishments are recorded in the Old Testament.

1, 6: The rebellious angels lost the dignity conferred on them through grace and were cast into hell. On the last day final sentence will be passed upon them, and the fullness of punishment will be meted out to them.

lasting chains under darkness for the judgment of the great day. 7 Just as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the neighboring cities which like them committed sins of immorality and practised unnatural vice, have been made an example, undergoing the punishment of eternal fire.

Evil Life of Heretics. 8 In like manner do these men also defile the flesh, disregard authority, deride majesty.* 9 Yet when [c] Michael the archangel was fiercely disputing with the devil about the body of Moses,* he did not venture to bring against him an accusation of blasphemy, but said, "May the Lord rebuke thee." 10 But these men deride whatever they do not know; and the things they know by instinct like the dumb beasts, become for them a source of destruction. 11 Woe to them! [d] for they have gone in the way of Cain,* and have rushed on thoughtlessly into the error of Balaam for the sake of gain, and have perished in the rebellion of Core. 12 These men are stains on their feasts, banqueting together without fear, looking after themselves; clouds without water, carried about by the winds; trees in the fall, unfruitful, twice dead, uprooted; 13 wild waves of the sea, foaming up their [e] shame; wandering stars, for whom the storm of darkness has been reserved forever.

Judgment of Heretics. 14 Now of these also Henoch,* the seventh from Adam, prophesied, saying, [f] "Behold, the Lord has come with thousands of his holy ones 15 to execute judgment upon all, and to convict all the impious of all their impious works, and of all the hard things that impious sinners have spoken [g] against him." 16 These are grumbling murmurers walking according to their lusts. And haughty in speech, they cultivate people for the sake of gain. 17 But as for you, beloved, be mindful of the words that have been spoken beforehand by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, 18 who kept saying to you that at the end of time there will come scoffers, walking impiously according to their lusts. 19 These are they who set themselves apart,* sensual men, not having the Spirit.

II: ADMONITIONS FOR CHRISTIANS

Perseverance and Charity. 20 But as for you, beloved, build up yourselves upon your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Spirit. 21 Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto life everlasting. 22 *And some, who are judged, reprove; 23 but others, save, snatching them from the fire.[h] And to others be merciful with fear, hating even the garment which is soiled by the flesh.

Conclusion

24 Now to him who is able to preserve you without sin and to set you before the presence of his glory, without blemish, in *gladness, 25 to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, belong glory and majesty, dominion and authority, before all time, and now, and forever. Amen.

1, 8: Majesty: the Greek text has the plural, which is understood as referring to the angels.

1, 9: This dispute between Michael and the devil is nowhere else recorded in the Scriptures. The cause of the dispute is not assigned, but it is certain the devil wished to make some evil use of the body of Moses.

1, 11: Way of Cain: who slew his brother. Error of Balaam: who for the sake of a reward would have led the people astray. Rebellion of Core: who opposed Moses, a divinely appointed authority. The heretics resemble these men, and will be punished as they were.

1, 14f: The "Book of Henoch" is apocryphal. St. Jude does not here approve the entire book, but only this prophecy. Has come: so certain is His coming that it is represented as accomplished.

1, 19: Who set themselves apart: another supported reading is: "who bring about division."

1, 22f: The reading of these two verses is uncertain. They may be rendered from the Greek, "And some who are wavering try to persuade." The advice is that they should admonish the erring. If their efforts fail they are to be merciful to them, at the same time avoiding their contamination.

1, 24: The Clementine Vulgate adds: "At the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."

THE APOCALYPSE OF ST. JOHN THE APOSTLE

The Apocalypse is a revelation of things that were, are and will be. We are actually witnessing some of the events foretold in this book, but many still lie in the future. It is Christ who commands John to write to the seven churches, opens the seven seals, reveals the sufferings of the saints, opens the little book, overcomes the beast, reigns during the period of the first resurrection, judges the dead, both great and small, according to their works at His Second Coming, rules over all things from the beginning, presides over all the changing scenes of earth's history, and is the King of kings and Lord of lords.

The book presents Christ as the Coming One; it reveals the dealings of Him who came, and who is to come. It opens with the solemn hope that the Coming One will come soon, and closes with the impressive prediction that the Coming One will come quickly.

The book is one of hope, but also one of warning; its aim is to assure the Church of the advent of her Lord in victory. The precise time of this victory lies hidden with God, but it is certain, although the crown will not be won without a struggle. Heaven will be stormed and carried away through suffering and conflict. And all who keep the words of this book will take part in the conflict and share in the victory.

The conflict is presented under the form of symbols. It is not easy to give a full interpretation of all the types, but the general symbols are not difficult to understand. Jerusalem stands as the type of the good cause, and this is the Church of Christ. Babylon appears as the type of the evil cause, and this is the world power. The heavenly Jerusalem has the assistance of divine power. The earthly Babylon has the help of evil powers, the dragon, the beast and the false prophet. The scenes in the great conflict arrange themselves around these types of good and of evil. The numbers, the seals, the trumpets and the bowls are phases in the development and consummation of the conflict.

John has arranged the scenes in a sevenfold structure; even in the subordinate visions he keeps to this arrangement. Commentators, however, are not agreed in marking off the limits of each structure.

The book was written in Greek by St. John the Evangelist, on the island of Patmos, about the year 96 A.D.

Prologue

CHAPTER 1.

The Book — Its Source and Contents. 1 The revelation of Jesus Christ which God gave him, to make known to his servants the things that must shortly come to pass; and he sent and signified them through his angel to his servant John; 2 who bore witness to the word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, to whatever he saw. 3 Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep the things that are written therein; for the time is at hand.

Greetings. 4 John to the seven churches that are in Asia:* grace be to you and peace from him [a] who is and who was and who is coming, and from the seven spirits who are before his throne, 5 and from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness, the [b] firstborn of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth. To him who has loved us, and washed* us from our sins in his own blood, 6 and made us to be a kingdom, and priests to God his Father—to him belong glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Christ's Coming. 7 Behold, [c] he comes with the clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also who pierced him. And all the tribes of the earth shall wail over him. Even so. Amen. 8 [d] "I am the Alpha and the Omega,* the beginning and the end," says the Lord God, "who is and who was and who is coming, the Almighty."

I: THE SEVEN LETTERS

1. Preparatory Vision

John Told to Write His Visions. 9 I, John, your brother and partner in the tribulation and kingdom and patience that are in Jesus, was on the island which is called Patmos, because of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus. 10 I was in the spirit on the Lord's day,* and I heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet, 11 saying, "What thou seest write in a book, and send to the seven churches, to Ephesus, and to Smyrna, and to Pergamum, and to Thyatira, and to Sardis, and to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea."

Vision of the Son of Man. 12 And I turned to see the voice that was speaking to me.* And having turned, I saw seven golden lamp-stands; [13] and in the midst of the seven lamp-stands One like to a son of man, clothed with a garment reaching to the ankles, and girt about the breasts with a golden girdle. [14] But his head and his hair were white as white wool, and as snow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire; [15] his feet were like fine brass,* as in a glowing furnace, and his voice like the voice of many waters. [16] And he had in his right hand seven stars. And out of his mouth came forth a sharp two-edged sword; and his countenance was like the sun shining in its power.

1, 4: Asia: the Roman Province of Asia, the western part of what is now known as Asia Minor. The seven spirits: the Holy Spirit, whose seven gifts are diffused among all the churches; or the phrase may refer to seven angels.

[17] And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as one dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying, "Do not be afraid; [e] I am the First and the Last, [18] and he who lives; I was dead, and behold, I am living forevermore; and I have the keys of death and of hell. [19] Write therefore the things that thou hast seen, and the things that are, and the things that are to come hereafter. [20] As for the mystery of the seven stars that thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden lamp-stands — the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lamp-stands are the seven churches."

CHAPTER 2.

To the Church at Ephesus. [1] "To the angel* of the church at Ephesus write: Thus says he who holds the seven stars in his right hand, who walks in the midst of the seven golden lamp-stands: [2] I know thy works and thy labor and thy patience, and that thou canst not bear evil men; but hast tried them who say they are apostles and are not, and hast found them false. [3] And thou hast patience and hast endured for my name, and hast not grown weary.

e Is 41, 4; 44, 6.—f Nm 24, 3; 25, 2.

1, 12: The sense is: "To see what voice it was that spoke to me."

1, 15: The image is that of brass glowing in the refiner's furnace.

2, 1: Angel: the guardian angel of the church, or the church itself; or, and this is the common view, the bishop of the church. If St. John addresses the bishops, he regards them as the incarnation of their respective churches.

2, 9: The Jews of Smyrna are called the synagogue of Satan because of their interference with the Christian Church, the true synagogue.

2, 10: Ten days: the period of trial would be limited and would be short.

2, 11: Second death: a death which is other than the death of the body, i.e., the final condemnation of sinners.

[4] "But I have this against thee, that thou hast left thy first love. [5] Remember therefore whence thou hast fallen, and repent and do the former works; or else I will come to thee, and will move thy lamp-stand out of its place, unless thou repentest. [6] But this thou hast: thou hatest the works of the Nicolaites, which I also hate.

[7] "He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches: Him who overcomes I will permit to eat of the tree of life, which is in the paradise of my God.

To the Church at Smyrna. [8] "And to the angel of the church at Smyrna write: Thus says the First and the Last, who was dead and is alive: [9] I know thy tribulation and thy poverty, but thou art rich; and that thou art slandered by those who say they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan.* [10] Fear none of those things that thou art about to suffer. Behold, the devil is about to cast some of you into prison that you may be tested, and you will have tribulation for ten days.* Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the crown of life.

[11] "He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches: He who overcomes shall not be hurt by the second death.*

To the Church at Pergamum. [12] "And to the angel of the church at Pergamum write: Thus says he who has the sharp two-edged sword: [13] I know where thou dwellest, where the throne of Satan is; and thou holdest fast my name and didst not disown my faith, even in the days of Antipas, my faithful witness, who was slain among you where Satan dwells.

[14] "But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there some who hold the teaching of [f] Balaam, who taught Balak to cast a stumbling-block before the children of Israel, that they might eat and commit fornication. [15] So thou hast also some who hold the teaching of the Nicolaites. [16] In like manner repent, or else I will come to thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

[17] "He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches: To him who overcomes, I will give the hidden manna, and I will give him a white pebble, and upon the pebble a new name written, which no one knows except him who receives it.

To the Church at Thyatira. 18 "And to the angel of the church at Thyatira write: Thus says the Son of God,* who has eyes like to a flame of fire, and whose feet are like fine brass: 19 I know thy works, thy faith, thy love, thy ministry, thy patience and thy last works, which are more numerous than the former.

20 "But I have against thee that thou sufferest the woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess, to teach, and to seduce my servants, to commit fornication, and to eat of things sacrificed to idols. 21 And I gave her time that she might repent, and she does not want to repent of her immorality. 22 Behold, I will cast her upon a bed,* and those who commit adultery with her into great tribulation, unless they repent of their deeds. 23 And her children I will strike with death, and all the churches shall know [g] that I am he who searches desires and hearts, and I will give to each of you according to your works.

"But to you I say, 24 to the rest in Thyatira, as many as do not hold this teaching and do not know the depths of Satan,* as they call them, I will not put upon you any other burden. 25 But that which you have, hold fast till I come. 26 And to him who overcomes, and who keeps my works unto the end, I will give authority over the nations. 27 And he shall rule them with a rod of iron, and like the potter's vessel they shall be dashed to pieces, 28 as I also have received from my Father; and I will give him the morning star.*

29 "He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

CHAPTER 3.

To the Church at Sardis. 1 "And to the angel of the church at Sardis write: Thus says he who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars: I know thy works; thou hast the name of being alive, and thou art dead. 2 Be watchful and strengthen the things that remain, but which were ready to die. For I do not find thy works complete before my God. 3 Remember therefore what thou hast received and heard, and observe it and repent. Therefore, if thou wilt not watch, [h] I will come upon thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know at what hour I shall come upon thee. 4 But thou hast a few persons at Sardis who have not defiled their garments, and they shall walk with me in white; for they are worthy. 5 He who overcomes shall be arrayed thus in white garments, and I will not blot his name out* of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

6 "He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

To the Church at Philadelphia. 7 "And to the angel of the church at Philadelphia write: Thus says the holy one, the true one, [i] he who has the key of David, he who opens and no one shuts,* and who shuts and no one opens: 8 I know thy works. Behold, I have caused a door to be opened before thee which no one can shut, for thou hast scanty strength, and thou hast kept my word and hast not disowned my name. 9 Behold, I will bring some of the synagogue of Satan who say they are Jews, and are not, but are lying —behold, I will make them come and worship before thy feet. And they shall know that I have loved thee. 10 Because thou hast kept the word of my patience,* I too will keep thee from the hour of trial, which is about to come upon the whole world to try those who dwell upon the earth. 11 I come quickly; hold fast what thou hast, that no one receive thy crown. 12 He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of my God, and never more shall he go outside. And I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God—the new Jerusalem, which comes

To the Church at Laodicea. 14 "And to the angel of the church at Laodicea write: i Thus says the Amen,* the faithful and true witness, who is the beginning of the creation of God: 15 I know thy works; thou art neither cold nor hot. I would that thou wert cold or hot. 16 But because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I am about to vomit thee out of my mouth; 17 because thou sayest, 'I am rich and have grown wealthy and have need of nothing,' and dost not know that thou art the wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked one.

18 "I counsel thee to buy of me gold refined by fire, that thou mayest become rich, and mayest be clothed in white garments, and that the shame of thy nakedness may not appear, and to anoint thy eyes with eye salve that thou mayest see. 19 As for me, k those whom I love I rebuke and chastise. Be earnest therefore and repent. 20 Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man listens to my voice and opens the door to me, I will come in to him and will sup with him, and he with me. 21 He who overcomes, I will permit him to sit with me upon my throne; as I also have overcome and have sat with my Father on his throne.

22 "He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches."

II: THE SEVEN SEALS

1. Preparatory Vision

CHAPTER 4.

The Court of Heaven. 1 After this I looked, and behold, a door standing open in heaven, and the former voice,* which I had heard as of a trumpet speaking with me, said, "Come up hither, and I will show thee the things that must come to pass hereafter." 2 Immediately I was in the spirit;* and behold, there was a throne set in heaven, and upon the throne One was sitting. 3 And he who sat was in appearance like to a jasper-stone and a sardius,* and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in appearance like to an emerald.

4 And round about the throne are twenty-four seats; and upon the seats twenty-four elders* sitting, clothed in white garments, and on their heads crowns of gold. 5 And from the throne proceed flashes of lightning, rumblings, and peals of thunder; and there are seven lamps burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God. 6 And before the throne there is, as it were, a sea of glass like to crystal, and in the midst of* the throne, and around the throne, are four living creatures, full of eyes before and behind. 7 And the first living creature is like a lion and the second like a calf, and the third has the face, as it were, of a man, and the fourth is like an eagle flying. 8 And the four living creatures have each of them six wings; round about and within they are full of eyes. And they do not rest day and night, saying, l Holy, holy, holy, the Lord God almighty, who was, and who is, and who is coming.

9 And when those living creatures give glory and honor and benediction to him who sits on the throne, who lives forever and ever, 10 the twenty-four elders will fall down before him who sits upon the throne, and will worship him who lives forever and ever, and will cast their crowns before the throne, saying, 11 "Worthy art thou, O Lord our God, to receive glory and honor and power; for thou hast created all things, and because of thy will they existed, and were created."

CHAPTER 5.

The Scroll and the Lamb. 1 And I saw upon the right hand of him who sits upon the throne a scroll* written within and without, sealed with seven seals. 2 And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, "Who is worthy to open the scroll, and to break the seals thereof?"

j Jn 14, 6.—k Prv 3, 12; Heb 12, 6.—l Is 6, 3.

3, 14: Amen: a Hebrew word, used here as a personal name.

4, 1: The former voice: the voice heard in the opening vision, i.e., in Ap 1, 10.

4, 2: In the spirit: the soul was absorbed in heavenly things, i.e., he saw with clear spiritual insight.

4, 3: There is some uncertainty as to what stones are meant. Jasper is described as a dark, opaque green, but that is not the case here, for in Ap 21, 11 it is qualified as "clear as crystal."

4, 4: Twenty-four elders: these elders represent the holy ones of the Old and New Testaments.

4, 6: In the midst of: probably one creature on each of the four sides. Four living creatures: representative of animated nature. Four beings hold a primacy in the world: among animals, man; among birds, the eagle; among cattle, the bull; and among wild animals, the lion.

5, 1: Scroll: the ancient form of the book was a volume or a roll, and this particular roll was written on the inside and on the outside.

3 And no one in heaven, or on earth, or under the earth, was able to open the scroll or to look thereon.* 4 And I wept much, because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look thereon.

5 And one of the elders said to me, "Do not weep; behold, the lion of the tribe of Juda, the root of David,* has overcome to open the scroll and its seven seals." 6 And I saw, and behold, in the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the elders, a Lamb standing, as if slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth. 7 And he came and took the scroll out of the right hand of him who sat upon the throne. 8 And when he had opened the scroll,* the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb, having each a harp and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints.

The Three Songs of Praise. 9 And they sing a new canticle, saying, "Worthy art thou to take the scroll and to open its seals; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us for God with thy blood, out of every tribe and tongue and people and nation, 10 and has made them for our God a kingdom and priests, and they shall reign over the earth."

11 And I beheld, and I heard a voice of many angels round about the throne, and the living creatures and the elders, and the number of them was [m] thousands of thousands, 12 saying with a loud voice, "Worthy is the Lamb who was slain to receive power and divinity* and wisdom and strength and honor and glory and blessing." 13 And every creature that is in heaven and on the earth and under the earth, and such as are on the sea, and all that are in them, I heard them all saying, "To him who sits upon the throne, and to the Lamb, blessing and honor and glory and dominion, forever and ever." 14 And the four living creatures said, "Amen," and the elders fell down and worshipped him who lives forever and ever.

m Dn 7, 10.

5, 3: Look thereon: to examine it and see what it contained.

5, 5: Root of David: the lion is also the symbol of the royal house of David. Christ comes of the seed of David and the prophets described Him as the branch that would spring from the ancient stock. Cf Is 11, 1.

5, 8: The Greek text reads, "when he had taken the scroll."

5, 12: Divinity: the Greek text reads "wealth."

6, 1: The Greek text reads, "when the Lamb had opened."

2. The Breaking of the First Six Seals

CHAPTER 6.

War. 1 And I saw that the Lamb had opened* the first of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder, "Come!" 2 And I saw, and behold, a white horse,* and he who was sitting on it had a bow, and there was given him a crown, and he went forth as a conqueror to conquer.

Strife. 3 And when he opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature saying, "Come!" 4 And there went forth another horse, a red one;* and to him who was sitting on it, it was given to take peace from the earth, and that men should kill one another, and there was given him a great sword.

Famine. 5 And when he opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature saying, "Come!" And I saw, and behold, a black horse,* and he who was sitting on it had a balance in his hand. 6 And I heard as it were a voice in the midst of the four living creatures, saying, "A measure of wheat for a denarius,* and three measures of barley for a denarius, and do not harm the wine and the oil."

Pestilence. 7 And when he opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature saying, "Come!" And I saw, 8 and behold, a pale-green horse,* and he who was sitting on it—his name is Death, and hell was following him. And there was given him power over the four parts of the earth, to kill with sword, with famine, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

The Martyrs. 9 And when he opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been slain for the word of God, and for the witness that they

6, 2: White horse: this horseman with the bow symbolizes Christ and the victory of His word. Cf Ap 19, 11-13.

6, 4: Red one: this horse symbolizes war.

6, 5: Black horse: symbolizing famine.

6, 6: A measure of wheat for a denarius: a famine price. Perhaps "twenty-five cents for a five-cent loaf of bread" might indicate the prices signified. Do not harm the wine and the oil: these are not, like bread, necessary for life.

6, 8: Pale-green horse: i.e., olive-colored: this horseman symbolizes death, or rather pestilence. There was given him power, etc.: the Greek text reads, "power was given them over a fourth part of the earth."

bore. 10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, "How long, O Lord (holy and true), dost thou refrain from judging and from avenging our blood on those who dwell on the earth?" 11 And there was given to each of them a white robe; and they were told to rest a little while longer, until the number of their fellow-servants and their brethren who are to be slain, even as they had been, should be complete.

Signs on Earth and in Heaven. 12 And I saw, when he opened the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake, and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair; and the whole moon became as blood. 13 And the stars of heaven fell upon the earth, as the fig tree sheds its unripe figs when it is shaken by a great wind. 14 And heaven passed away as a scroll that is rolled up; and every mountain and the islands were moved out of their places. 15 And the kings of the earth, and the princes, and the tribunes, and the rich, and the strong, and everyone, bond and free, hid themselves in the caves and in the rocks of the mountains. 16 And they said to the mountains and to the rocks, [n] "Fall upon us, and hide us from the face of him who sits upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb;* 17 for the great day of their wrath has come, and who is able to stand?"

3. An Intermediate Vision, and the Opening of the Seventh Seal

CHAPTER 7.

Sealing of the Spiritual Israel. 1 After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding fast the four winds of the earth, that no wind should blow over the earth, or over the sea, or upon any tree. 2 And I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God; and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, who had it in their power to harm the earth and the sea, 3 saying, "Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God on their foreheads." 4 And I heard the number of those who were sealed, a hundred and forty-four thousand* sealed, out of every tribe of the children of Israel; 5 of the tribe of Juda, twelve thousand sealed; of the tribe of Ruben, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Gad, twelve thousand; 6 of the tribe of Aser, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Nephthali, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Manasses, twelve thousand; 7 of the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand; 8 of the tribe of Zabulon, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Joseph, twelve thousand; of the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand sealed.

Blessedness of the Sealed. 9 After this I saw a great multitude which no man could number, out of all nations and tribes and peoples and tongues, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, and with palms in their hands. 10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, "Salvation belongs to our God who sits upon the throne, and to the Lamb." 11 And all the angels were standing round about the throne, and the elders and the four living creatures; and they fell on their faces before the throne and worshiped God, 12 saying, "Amen. Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving and honor and power and strength to our God forever and ever. Amen."

The Seventh Seal. 13 And one of the elders spoke and said to me, "These who are clothed in white robes, who are they? and whence have they come?" 14 And I said to him, "My lord, thou knowest." And he said to me, "These are they who have come out of the great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. 15 Therefore they are before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple, and he who sits upon the throne will dwell with them. 16 They [o] shall neither hunger nor thirst any more, neither shall the sun strike them nor any heat. 17 For the Lamb who is in the midst of the throne will shepherd them, and will guide them to the fountains of the waters of life, [p] and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes."

n Is 2, 19; Os 10, 8; Lk 23, 30.—o Is 49, 10.—p Ap 21, 4; Is 25, 8.

6, 16: Wrath of the Lamb: the Lamb has again become the Lion.

7, 4: A hundred and forty-four thousand: a symbolical number which signifies a great multitude, i.e., all the predestined. In the enumeration of the twelve tribes Ephraim is replaced by Joseph, and Dan is not mentioned at all, perhaps intentionally, for the Antichrist was to come out of Dan according to a Jewish tradition.

CHAPTER 8.

1 And when he opened the seventh seal, there was silence* in heaven, as it were for half an hour.

III: THE SEVEN TRUMPETS

1. Preparatory Vision

Seven Angels with Trumpets. 2 And I saw the seven angels who stand before God, and there were given to them seven trumpets. 3 And another angel came and stood before the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given to him much incense, that he might offer it with the prayers of all the saints upon the golden altar which is before the throne. 4 And with the prayers of the saints there went up before God from the angel's hand the smoke of the incense. 5 And the angel took the censer and filled it with the fire of the altar and threw it down upon the earth, and there were peals of thunder, rumblings, and flashes of lightning and an earthquake. 6 And the seven angels who had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound the trumpet.

2. The First Six Trumpets

The First Four Trumpets. 7 And the first angel sounded the trumpet, *and there followed hail and fire mingled with blood, and it was cast upon the earth; and the third part of the earth was burnt up, and the third part of the trees was burnt up, and all green grass was burnt up.

8 And the second angel sounded the trumpet, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea; and the third part of the sea became blood, 9 and there died the third part of those creatures that have life in the sea, and the third part of the ships was destroyed.

10 And the third angel sounded the trumpet, and there fell from heaven a great star, burning like a torch, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers and upon the fountains of waters. 11 The name of the star is called Wormwood. And the third part of the waters became wormwood; and many people died of the waters because they were made bitter.

12 And the fourth angel sounded the trumpet, and the third part of the sun was smitten,* and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars, that the third part of them might be darkened, and the day for the third part of it might not shine, and the night likewise.

The Three Woes. 13 And I beheld, and I heard the voice of an eagle flying in midheaven, saying with a loud voice, "Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth!" because of the rest of the trumpet-voices of the three angels who were about to sound the trumpet.

CHAPTER 9.

The Fifth Trumpet. 1 And the fifth angel sounded the trumpet, and I saw that a star* had fallen from heaven upon the earth, and there was given to him the key of the bottomless pit. 2 And he opened the bottomless pit, and there came up smoke out of the pit like the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened by the smoke of the pit. 3 And out of the smoke there came forth locusts upon the earth. And there was given to them power, as the scorpions of the earth have power. 4 And they were told not to hurt the grass of the earth or any green thing or any tree; but only the men who do not have God's seal upon their foreheads. 5 And they were not permitted to kill anyone, but to torture them for five months;* and their torment was as the torment of a scorpion when it strikes a man.

6 And q in those days men will seek death and will not find it; and they will long to die and death will flee from them. 7 And r in appearance the locusts were like horses made ready for battle; and there were on their heads crowns as it were like gold; and their faces were like the faces of men. 8 And they had hair like the hair of women; and their teeth were like the teeth of lions. 9 And q Is 2, 19; Os 10, 8; Lk 23, 30.—r Wis 16, 9.

8, 1: Silence: the cries and groans of the earth and even the doxologies of heaven are hushed. This is not a symbol or a prophecy but simply a vision and a preparation for what follows.

8, 7: The prohibition of Ap 7, 1 is retracted.

8, 12: The sense is that the light of the heavenly bodies was reduced by one-third its intensity.

9, 1: A star: perhaps Lucifer. This is confirmed by the words, the key of the bottomless pit. This key was given to the fallen star, and therefore the star is an individual. Bottomless pit: abode of the damned and the devils.

9, 5: Five months: the general period of a locust plague is about five months.

they had breastplates like breastplates of iron; and the sound of their wings was like the sound of many horse-chariots running to battle. 10 And they had tails like those of scorpions and there were stings in their tails; and they had power to harm mankind for five months. 11 And they had over them a king, the angel of the abyss; his name in Hebrew is Abaddon,* and in the Greek Apollyon; in Latin he has the name Exterminans.

12 The first woe is past; behold, two woes are yet to come hereafter!

The Sixth Trumpet. 13 And the sixth angel sounded the trumpet, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar which is before God, 14 saying to the sixth angel who had the trumpet, "Loose the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates." 15 And the four angels were loosed who had been kept ready for the hour* and day and month and year, that they might kill the third part of mankind. 16 And the number of the army of horsemen was twenty thousand times ten thousand. I heard the number of them.

17 And this is how *I saw the horses in the vision: they who sat upon them had breastplates like to fire and to hyacinth and to sulphur, and the heads of the horses were like the heads of lions; and from their mouths issued fire and smoke and sulphur. 18 By these three plagues the third part of mankind was killed, by the fire and the smoke and the sulphur which issued from their mouth. 19 For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails. For their tails are like serpents, and have heads, and with them they do harm.

20 And the rest of mankind, they who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands so as not to worship the demons and the idols of gold and of silver and of brass and of stone and of wood, which can neither see nor hear nor walk. 21 And they did not repent of their murders or of their sorceries or of their immorality or of their thefts.

s Dn 12, 7.—t Ez 3, 1.

9, 11: Abaddon: i.e., destruction. Apollyon: i.e., destroyer.

9, 15: Who had been kept ready for the hour: the loosing of the angels would take place at a definite period, the year, month, day and hour of which are known, in accordance with the Providence of God.

9, 17: The Greek text is usually punctuated to read, "I saw . . . the horses and those who sat on them . . . , having . . ."

10, 2: Little open scroll: three scrolls are associated in the Apocalypse. The first is the scroll of the course of this world determined by divine Providence, mentioned in the fifth chapter; the last is the scroll of life, mentioned in the twenty-first and twenty-second chapters. Between these two comes another scroll, the little open scroll, the ever-open scroll of God's promises and the witness of His power.

10, 9f: Sweetness is succeeded by bitterness when John realizes the contents of the little scroll.

3. An Intermediate Vision and the Seventh Trumpet

CHAPTER 10.

The Angel with the Little Scroll. 1 And I saw another angel, a strong one, coming down from heaven, clothed in a cloud, and the rainbow was over his head, and his face was like the sun, and his feet like pillars of fire. 2 And he had in his hand a little open scroll;* and he set his right foot upon the sea but his left upon the earth. 3 And he cried with a loud voice as when a lion roars. And when he had cried, the seven thunders spoke out their voices. 4 And when the seven thunders had spoken, I was about to write; and I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Seal up the things that the seven thunders spoke, and do not write them."

5 And [s] the angel whom I saw standing on the sea and on the earth, lifted up his hand to heaven, 6 and swore by him who lives forever and ever, who created heaven and the things that are therein, and the earth and the things that are therein, and the sea and the things that are therein, that there shall be delay no longer; 7 but that in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he begins to sound the trumpet, the mystery of God will be accomplished, as he declared by his servants the prophets.

8 And the voice that I heard from heaven was speaking with me again, and saying, "Go, take the open scroll from the hand of the angel who stands upon the sea and upon the earth." 9 And I went away to the angel, telling him to give me the scroll. And he said to me, [t] "Take the scroll and eat it up, and it will make thy stomach bitter, but in thy mouth it will be sweet* as honey." 10 And I took the scroll from the angel's hand, and ate it up, and it was in my mouth sweet as honey, and when I had eaten it my stomach was made bitter. 11 And they said to me, "Thou must prophesy again to many nations and peoples and tongues and kings."

CHAPTER 11.

The Measuring of the Temple. 1 And there was given me a reed like to a rod, and I was told: "Rise and measure the temple of God, and the altar and those who worship therein. 2 But the court outside the temple, reject it, and do not measure it; for it has been given to the nations, and the holy city they will trample under foot for forty-two months.* 3 And I will grant unto my two witnesses* to prophesy for a thousand two hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth."

The Two Witnesses. 4 These are the two olive trees and the two lamp-stands that stand before the Lord of the earth. 5 And if anyone desires to harm them, fire will come out of their mouths, and will devour their enemies. And if anyone desires to injure them, he must in this manner be killed. 6 These have power to shut heaven, so that it will not rain during the days of their prophesying; and they have power over the waters to turn them into blood, and to smite the earth with every plague as often as they desire.

7 And when they have finished their testimony, the beast* that comes up out of the abyss will wage war against them, and will conquer them and will kill them. 8 And their dead bodies will lie in the streets of the great city, which is called mystically Sodom and Egypt, where their Lord also was crucified. 9 And men from the tribes and peoples and tongues and nations will look upon their bodies three days and a half; and they will not allow their dead bodies to be laid in tombs. 10 And the inhabitants of the earth will rejoice over them and make merry; and they will send gifts to one another because these two prophets tormented the inhabitants of the earth.

11 And after the three days and a half,* the breath of life from God entered into them. And they stood up on their feet, and a great fear fell upon those who saw them. 12 And they heard a great voice from heaven saying to them, "Come up hither." And they went up to heaven in a cloud, and their enemies saw them. 13 And at that hour there was a great earthquake and the tenth part of the city fell; and there were killed in the earthquake seven thousand persons; and the rest were affrighted and gave glory to the God of heaven.

14 The second woe is past; and behold, the third woe will come quickly.

The Seventh Trumpet. 15 And the seventh angel sounded the trumpet; and there were loud voices in heaven saying, "The kingdom of this world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." 16 And the twenty-four elders who sit upon their thrones before God fell on their faces and worshiped God, saying, 17 "We give thee thanks, O Lord God almighty, who art, and who wast, because thou hast taken thy great power and hast begun thy reign. 18 And the nations were angered, but thy wrath came and the time for the dead to be judged, and for giving the reward to thy servants —the prophets, and the saints, and those who fear thy name, the small and the great—and for destroying those who corrupted the earth." 19 And the temple of God in heaven was opened, and there was seen the ark of his covenant in his temple, and there came flashes of lightning, and peals of thunder, and an earthquake, and great hail.

IV: THE SEVEN SIGNS

CHAPTER 12.

The Woman and the Dragon. 1 And a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman* clothed with the sun, and the moon was under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars. 2 And being with child, she cried out in her travail and was in the anguish of delivery. 3 And another sign was seen in heaven, and be-

11, 2: Forty-two months: three years and a half. The forty-two months of thirty days each correspond to the twelve hundred and sixty days of the prophesying of the two witnesses and to the three years and a half of the woman in the wilderness. The period of forty-two months is the symbol of a period, limited in length, and under the control of Him who governs all things.

11, 3: Two witnesses: Elias and Enoch, according to some authors; Christian preachers, according to another view.

11, 7: Beast: no beast as yet has been mentioned. This beast symbolizes Antichrist.

11, 11: Three days and a half: this refers to the resurrection of the witnesses.

12, 1: A woman: this woman is not the Blessed Virgin, for the details of the prophecy do not fit her. The prophecy pictures the Church of the Old and New Covenants. The beams of the divine glory clothe her; the moon is beneath her feet; she is crowned with a crown of twelve stars, and she must bring forth Christ to the world. By accommodation the Church applies this verse to the Blessed Virgin.

hold, a great red dragon having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his heads seven diadems. 4 And his tail was dragging along the third part of the stars of heaven, and it dashed them to the earth; and the dragon stood before the woman who was about to bring forth, that when she had brought forth he might devour her son. 5 And she brought forth a male child, who is to rule all nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up to God and to his throne. 6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she has a place prepared by God, that there they may nourish her a thousand two hundred and sixty days.

Michael Overcomes the Dragon. 7 And there was a battle in heaven; Michael and his angels battled with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels. 8 And they did not prevail, neither was their place found any more in heaven. 9 And that great dragon was cast down, the ancient serpent, he who is called the devil and Satan, who leads astray the whole world; and he was cast down to the earth and with him his angels were cast down.

The Song of Triumph. 10 And I heard a loud voice in heaven saying, "Now has come the salvation, and the power and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ; for the accuser of our brethren has been cast down, he who accused them before our God day and night. 11 And they overcame him through the blood of the Lamb and through the word of their witness, for they did not love their lives even in face of death.* 12 Therefore rejoice, O heavens, and you who dwell therein. Woe to the earth and to the sea, because the devil has gone down to you in great wrath, knowing that he has but a short time."

The Dragon and the Woman. 13 And when the dragon saw that he was cast down to the earth, he pursued the woman who had brought forth the male child. 14 And there were given to the woman the two wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness unto her place, where she is nourished for a time and times and a half time, away from the serpent. 15 And the serpent cast out of his mouth after the woman water like a river, that he might cause her to be carried away by the river. 16 And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth and swallowed up the river that the dragon had cast out of his mouth. 17 And the dragon was angered at the woman, and went away to wage war with the rest of her offspring, who keep the commandments of God, and hold fast the testimony of Jesus. 18 And he stood upon the sand of the sea.

CHAPTER 13.

The Beast of the Sea. 1 And I saw a beast* coming up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon its horns ten diadems, and upon its heads blasphemous names. 2 And the beast that I saw was like a leopard, and its feet were like the feet of a bear, and its mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave it his own might and great authority. 3 And one of its heads was smitten, as it were, unto death; but its deadly wound was healed. And all the earth followed the beast in wonder. 4 And they worshiped the dragon because he gave authority to the beast, and they worshiped the beast, saying, "Who is like to the beast, and who will be able to fight with it?"

5 And there was given to it a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and there was given to it authority to work for forty-two months. 6 And it opened its mouth for blasphemies against God, to blaspheme his name and his tabernacle, and those who dwell in heaven. 7 And it was allowed to wage war with the saints and to overcome them. And there was given to it authority over every tribe, and people, and tongue, and nation. 8 And all the inhabitants of the earth will worship it whose names have not been written in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain from the foundation of the world.

9 If any man has an ear, let him hear.
10 *He who is for captivity, into captivity he goes;" he who kills by the sword, by u Gn 9, 6; Mt 26, 52.

12, 11: In face of death: a noteworthy expression, meaning they esteemed life as nothing in comparison with loyalty to their faith, even unto martyrdom.

13, 1: The picture of the first beast is based on the seventh chapter of Daniel. This beast is the figure of the kingdoms of the world, kingdoms founded on passion and selfishness, which in every age are antagonistic to Christ and seek to oppress the servants of God. Imperial Rome represents this power.

13, 10: The weapons of the saints are faith and patience; they must accept sufferings and persecution as Christ did His cross.

the sword must he be killed. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints.

The Beast of the Earth. 11 And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth, and it had two horns like to those of a lamb, but it spoke as does a dragon. 12 And it exercised all the authority of the former beast in its sight; and it made the earth and the inhabitants therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed. 13 And it did great signs, so as even to make fire come down from heaven upon earth in the sight of mankind. 14 And it leads astray the inhabitants of the earth, by reason of the signs which it was permitted to do in the sight of the beast, telling the inhabitants of the earth to make an image to the beast which has the wound of the sword, and yet lived. 15 And it was permitted to give life to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should both speak and cause that whoever should not worship the image of the beast should be killed. 16 And it will cause all, the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free and the bond, to have a mark* on their right hand or on their foreheads, 17 and it will bring it about that no one may be able to buy or sell, except him who has the mark, either the name of the beast or the number of its name.

18 Here is wisdom. He who has understanding, let him calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man; and its number is six hundred and sixty-six.*

CHAPTER 14.

The Lamb and the Virgins. 1 And I saw, and behold, the Lamb was standing upon Mount Sion, and with him a hundred and forty-four thousand* having his name and the name of his Father written on their foreheads. 2 And I heard a voice from heaven like a voice of many waters, and like a voice of loud thunder; and the voice that I heard was as of harpers playing on their harps. 3 And they were singing as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four living creatures and the elders; and no one could learn the song except those hundred and forty-four thousand, who have been purchased from the earth. 4 These are they who were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These follow the Lamb wherever he goes. These were purchased from among men, first-fruits unto God and unto the Lamb, 5 and in their mouth there was found no lie; they are without blemish.*

The Three Angels. 6 And I saw another angel flying in midheaven, having an everlasting gospel to preach to those who dwell upon the earth and to every nation and tribe and tongue and people, 7 saying with a loud voice, "Fear God, and give him honor, for the hour of his judgment has come; and worship him [v] who made the heaven and the earth, the sea and fountains of waters." 8 And another angel followed, saying, "She has fallen, Babylon* the great,[w] who of the wine of the wrath of her immorality has given all the nations to drink."

9 And another, a third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, "If anyone worships the beast and its image and receives a mark upon his forehead or upon his hand, 10 he also shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured unmixed into the cup of his wrath; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the sight of the holy angels and in the sight of the Lamb. 11 And the smoke of their torments goes up forever and ever; and they rest neither day nor night, they who have worshiped the beast and its image, and anyone who receives the mark of its name."

Blessedness of the Saints. 12 Here is the patience of the saints, who keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus. 13 And I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Write: Blessed are the dead who

v Acts 14, 14.—w Is 21, 9; Jer 51, 8.

13, 16: Mark: as slaves received a brand or a mark in their flesh, indicating to whom they belonged, so in the spiritual conflict there is on the side of good and of evil a brand or mark. St. Paul spoke of such marks in his own body that proved him a slave of Jesus Christ [Gal 6, 17]. So the false prophet seeks to impress a mark on all. Just what this mark is we do not know.

13, 18: Six hundred and sixty-six: the most probable interpretation of the number is that it represents the name Caesar Neron, which in Hebrew characters makes up the number 666. It symbolizes extreme imperfection, for each digit is one short of seven, the number that signifies perfection.

14, 1: A hundred and forty-four thousand: these are the faithful followers of the Lamb, for they have his name and that of the Father written on their foreheads. One of their characteristics is purity; they are virgins. Cf Ap 14, 4.

14, 5: At the end of the verse the Clementine Vulgate adds, "before the throne of God."

14, 8: Babylon: in Jewish and Christian circles, Babylon was a synonym for Rome.

die in the Lord henceforth.* Yes, says the Spirit, let them rest from their labors, for their works follow them."

Vision of the Judgment. 14 And I saw, and behold, a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sitting like to a son of man, having upon his head a crown of gold and in his hand a sharp sickle.* 15 And another angel came forth out of the temple crying with a loud voice to him who sat upon the cloud, [x] "Put forth thy sickle and reap, for the hour to reap has come, because the harvest of the earth is ripe." 16 And he who sat on the cloud cast his sickle upon the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17 And another angel came forth out of the temple that is in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle. 18 And another angel came forth from the altar, he who has authority over the fire, and he called with a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, saying, "Put forth thy sharp sickle and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; for its grapes are fully ripe." 19 And the angel cast his sickle to the earth, and gathered the vintage of the earth, and cast it into the great wine press of the wrath of God. 20 And the wine press was trodden outside the city, and there came forth blood out of the wine press, up to the horses' bridles, for a thousand and six hundred stadia.*

CHAPTER 15.

The Angels and the Plagues. 1 And I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven angels having the seven last plagues. For in them has been completed the wrath of God.

x Mt 13, 39; Jl 3, 13.—y Jer 10, 7.

14, 13: The punctuation of the Vulgate is slightly different: ". . . those who die in the Lord. Now from henceforth. . . ." The punctuation adopted here is that of the Greek text, which is supported by some good Vulgate codices.

14, 14: The figure of the wheat harvest seems to refer to the good: the figure of the vintage in v 19 refers to the bad.

14, 20: A thousand and six hundred stadia: a considerable distance, but the number is symbolical and signifies a judgment that is complete and final, and reaching to all corners of the earth.

15, 3: The song of Moses: a hymn of victory over Pharaoh. This victory finds its full expression in the sacrifice of the Lamb, and so the saints break into a more perfect melody, the song of Moses and the song of the Lamb.

15, 5: The temple of the tabernacle of the testimony: the inner sanctuary of the heavenly temple.

16, 1: Loud voice: the divine voice from the throne itself.

16, 2: The plague falls on those who carry the mark of the beast; it resembles the sixth Egyptian plague, the plague of boils. Cf Ex 9, 8-12.

The Sea of Glass. 2 And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire, and those who had overcome the beast and its image and the number of its name, standing on the sea of glass, having the harps of God 3 and singing the song of Moses,* the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, "Great and marvellous are thy works, O Lord God almighty; just and true are thy ways, O King of the ages. 4 Who [y] will not fear thee, O Lord, and magnify thy name? for thou alone art holy. For all nations will come and worship before thee; because thy judgments are manifest."

V: THE SEVEN BOWLS

1. Preparatory Vision

The Angels and the Bowls. 5 And after this I looked, and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony* was opened in heaven, 6 and there came forth out of the temple the seven angels who had the seven plagues, clothed with clean white linen, and girt about their breasts with golden girdles. 7 And one of the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven golden bowls, full of the wrath of God who lives forever and ever. 8 And the temple was filled with smoke from the majesty of God, and from his power; and no one could enter into the temple till the seven plagues of the seven angels were finished.

2. The First Six Bowls

CHAPTER 16.

The First Three Bowls. 1 And I heard a loud voice* from the temple saying to the seven angels, "Go and pour out the seven bowls of the wrath of God upon the earth." 2 And the first went and poured out his bowl upon the earth, and a sore and grievous wound was made upon the men who have the mark of the beast,* and upon those who worshiped its image. 3 And the second poured out his bowl upon the sea, and it became blood as of a dead man; and every live thing in the sea died. 4 And the third poured out his bowl upon the rivers and fountains of waters, and they became blood.

5 And I heard the angel of the waters saying, "Thou art just, O Lord, who art and who wast, O Holy One, because thou hast judged these things; 6 because they poured out the blood of saints and prophets, blood also thou hast given them to drink; they deserve it!" 7 And I heard the altar saying, "Yes, O Lord God almighty, true and just are thy judgments."

The Second Three Bowls. 8 And the fourth poured out his bowl upon the sun, 9 and he was allowed to scorch mankind with fire. And mankind were scorched with great heat, and they blasphemed the name of God who has authority over these plagues, and they did not repent and give him glory. 10 And the fifth poured out his bowl upon the throne of the beast; and its kingdom became dark, and they gnawed their tongues for pain. 11 And they blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their wounds, and they did not repent of their works. 12 And the sixth poured out his bowl upon the great river Euphrates, and dried up its waters, that a way might be made ready for the kings from the rising sun.

3. Intermediate Vision and the Seventh Bowl

The Unclean Spirits. 13 And I saw issuing from the mouth of the dragon, and from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs. 14 For they are spirits of demons working signs, and they go forth unto the kings of the whole earth to gather them together for the battle on the great day of God almighty. 15 "Behold,[z] I come* as a thief! Blessed is he who watches and keeps his garments, lest he walk naked and they see his shame." 16 And he gathered them together in a place that is called in Hebrew Armagedon.*

The Seventh Bowl. 17 And the seventh poured out his bowl upon the air, and there came forth a loud voice out of the temple from the throne, saying, "It has come to pass!" 18 And there were flashes of lightning, rumblings and peals of thunder, and there was a great earthquake such as never has been since men were first upon the earth, so great an earthquake was it. 19 And the great city came into three parts; and the cities of the nations fell. And Babylon the great was remembered before God, to give her the cup of the wine of his fierce wrath. 20 And every island fled away, and the mountains could not be found. 21 And great hail, heavy as a talent, came down from heaven upon men; and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for it was very great.

VI: BABYLON THE GREAT

CHAPTER 17.

The Woman on the Scarlet Beast. 1 And there came one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls, and he spoke with me, saying, "Come, I will show thee the condemnation of the great harlot who sits upon many waters, 2 with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth were made drunk with the wine of her immorality."

3 And he took me away in spirit into a desert. And I saw a woman sitting upon a scarlet-colored beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. 4 And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and covered with gold and precious stones and pearls, having in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the uncleanness of her immorality. 5 And upon her forehead a name written—a mystery*—Babylon the great, the mother of the harlotries and of the abominations of the earth. 6 And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And when I saw her, I wondered with a great wonder.

The Angel's Explanation. 7 And the angel said to me, "Wherefore dost thou wonder? I will tell thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast that carries her which has the seven heads and the ten horns. 8 The beast that thou sawest was, and is not, and is about to come up from the abyss, and will go to destruction. And the inhabitants of the earth—whose names have not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world—will wonder when they see the beast which was, and is not. 9 And here is the meaning for him who has wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains upon which the woman sits; and they are 16, 15: Behold, I come: the voice of Christ.

16, 16: Armagedon: or, as in Hebrew, "Har-Megiddo," i.e., the mountain of Megiddo. The place indicated here is the plain of Esdraelon, the great battlefield of Palestine; here the fortunes of kings have been decided, here rulers fought and fell. This battleground becomes the symbol of the divine struggle.

17, 5: A mystery: the name is not literal but symbolical and its meaning will be revealed in due time.

seven kings; [10] five of them have fallen, one is, and the other has not yet come; and when he comes, he must remain a short time. [11] And the beast* that was, and is not, is moreover himself eighth, and is of the seven, and is on his way to destruction.

[12] "And the ten horns that thou sawest are ten kings, who have not received a kingdom as yet, but they will receive authority as kings for one hour* with the beast. [13] These have one purpose, and their power and authority they give to the beast. [14] These will fight with the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, [a] for he is the Lord of lords, and the King of kings, and they who are with him, called, and chosen, and faithful."

[15] And he said to me, "The waters that thou sawest where the harlot sits, are peoples and nations and tongues. [16] And the ten horns that thou sawest, and the beast, these will hate the harlot, and will make her desolate and naked, and will eat her flesh, and will burn her up in fire. [17] For God has put it into their hearts to carry out his purpose, to give their kingdom* to the beast, until the words of God are accomplished. [18] And the woman whom thou sawest is the great city which has kingship over the kings of the earth."

CHAPTER 18.

The Fall of Babylon. [1] And after this I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth was lighted up by his glory. [2] And he cried out with a mighty voice, saying, "She has fallen, she has [b] fallen, Babylon the great; and has become a habitation of demons, a stronghold of every unclean spirit, a stronghold of every unclean and hateful bird; [3] because all the nations have drunk of the wrath of her immorality, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and by the power of her wantonness the merchants of the earth have grown rich."

Her Sins and Punishment. [4] And I heard another voice from heaven saying, "Go out from her, my people, that you may not share in her sins, and that you may not receive of her plagues. [5] For her sins have reached even to heaven, and the Lord has remembered her iniquities. [6] Render to her as she also has rendered, and give her the double according to her works; in the cup that she has mixed, mix for her double. [7] As much as she glorified herself and gave herself to wantonness, so much torment and mourning give to her. Because in her heart she says, [c] 'I sit a queen, I am no widow, and I shall not see mourning.' [8] Therefore in one day her plagues shall come, death and mourning and famine; and she shall be burnt up in fire; for strong is God who will judge her."

Dirge of the Kings. [9] *And the kings of the earth who with her committed fornication and lived wantonly will weep and mourn over her when they see the smoke of her burning, [10] standing afar off for fear of her torments, saying, "Woe, woe, the great city, Babylon, the strong city, for in one hour has thy judgment come!"

Dirge of the Merchants. [11] And the merchants of the earth will weep and mourn over her; for no one will buy their merchandise any more: [12] merchandise of gold and silver, and precious stones and pearls, and fine linen and purple, and silk and scarlet, and all thyine wood, and all vessels of ivory, and all vessels of precious stone, and of brass, and of iron, and of marble, [13] and cinnamon and amomum and spices, and ointment and frankincense, and wine and oil, and fine flour and wheat, and beasts of burden* and sheep and horses, and chariots and slaves, and souls of men. [14] And the fruit which was the desire of thy soul departed from thee; and all the fat and splendid things perished from thee, and men will find them nevermore. [15] The merchants of these things, who grew rich by her, will stand afar off for fear of her torments, weeping and mourning, [16] and saying, "Woe, woe, the great city, which was clothed in fine linen and purple and scarlet, and gilded in gold, and precious stone, and pearls; 17 for in one hour riches so great were laid waste!"

Dirge of the Mariners. And every shipmaster, and everyone who sails to a place, and mariners, and all who work upon the sea, stood afar off, 18 and cried out as they saw the place of her burning, saying, "What city is like to this great city?" 19 And they cast dust on their heads, and cried out weeping and mourning, saying, "Woe, woe, the great city, wherein all who had their ships at sea were made rich out of her wealth; for in one hour she has been laid waste!" 20 Make merry over her, O heaven, and you the saints and the apostles and the prophets, for God has judged your cause upon her.

The Angel's Promise. 21 And a strong angel took up a stone, as it were a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, "With this violence will Babylon, the great city, be overthrown, and will not be found any more. 22 And the sound of harpers and musicians and flute-players and trumpet will not be heard in thee any more; and no craftsman* of any craft will be found in thee any more; and sound of millstone will not be heard in thee any more. 23 And light of lamp will not shine in thee any more; and voice of bridegroom and of bride will not be heard in thee any more; because thy merchants were the great men of the earth, for by thy sorcery all the nations have been led astray. 24 And in her was found blood of prophets and of saints, and of all who have been slain upon the earth."

CHAPTER 19.

The Angelic Song. 1 After these things I heard as it were a loud voice of a great crowd in heaven, saying, "Alleluia! salvation and glory and power belong to our God. 2 For true and just are his judgments, who has judged the great harlot who corrupted the earth with her fornication, and has avenged the blood of his servants at her hands." 3 And again they have said, "Alleluia! And the smoke of her goes up forever and ever!" 4 And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshiped God who sits on the throne, and they said, "Amen! Alleluia!" 5 And a voice came forth from the throne, saying, "Praise our God, all you his servants, and you who fear him, the small and the great!"

The Song of Triumph. 6 And I heard as it were a voice of a great crowd, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunders, saying, "Alleluia! for the Lord, our God almighty, now reigns! 7 Let us be glad and rejoice, and give glory to him; for the marriage of the Lamb has come, and his spouse has prepared herself. 8 And she has been permitted to clothe herself in fine linen, shining, bright. For the fine linen is the just deeds of the saints."

9 And he said to me, "Write: [d] Blessed are they who are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb." And he said to me, "These are true words of God." 10 And I fell down before his feet to worship him. And he said to me, "Thou must not do that. I am a fellow-servant* of thine and of thy brethren who give the testimony of Jesus. Worship God! for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy."

VII: THE CONSUMMATION

The Divine Warrior. 11 And I saw heaven standing open; and behold, a white horse, and he who sat upon it is called Faithful and True, and with justice he judges and wages war. 12 And his eyes are as a flame of fire, and on his head are many diadems; he has a name written which no man knows except himself. 13 And [e] he is clothed in a garment sprinkled with blood, and his name is called The Word of God. 14 And the armies of heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and pure, were following him on white horses.

King of Kings and Lord of Lords. 15 And from his mouth goes forth a sharp sword with which to smite the nations. [f] And he will rule them with a rod of iron, and he treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God almighty. 16 And he has on his garment and on his thigh a name written, [g] "King of kings* and Lord of lords."

Defeat of the Beast and the False Prophet. 17 And I saw an angel standing in the sun, and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the birds that fly in mid-heaven, "Come, gather yourselves together to the great supper of God, 18 that you may eat flesh of kings, and flesh of tribunes, and flesh of mighty men, and flesh of horses, and of those who sit upon them, and flesh of all men, free and bond, small and great."

19 And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth and their armies* gathered together to wage war against him who was sitting upon the horse, and against his army. 20 And the beast was seized, and with it the false prophet* who did signs before it wherewith he deceived those who accepted the mark of the beast and who worshiped its image. These two were cast alive into the pool of fire that burns with brimstone. 21 And the rest were killed with the sword of him who sits upon the horse, the sword that goes forth out of his mouth; and all the birds were filled with their flesh.

CHAPTER 20.

Satan Chained. 1 And I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. 2 And he laid hold on the dragon, the ancient serpent, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years.* 3 And he cast him into the abyss, and closed and sealed it over him, that he should deceive the nations no more, until the thousand years should be finished. And after that he must be let loose for a little while.

Reign of the Saints. 4 And I saw thrones, and men sat upon them and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the witness to Jesus and because of the word of God, and who did not worship the beast or his image, and did not accept his mark upon their foreheads or upon their hands. And they came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years. 5 The rest of the dead* did not come to life till the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection. 6 Blessed and holy is he who has part in the first resurrection! Over these the second death has no power; but they will be priests of God and Christ, and will reign with him a thousand years.

Satan Loosed. 7 And when the thousand years are finished, Satan will be released from his prison, and will go forth and deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth,[b] Gog and Magog,* and will gather them together for the battle; the number of whom is as the sand of the sea. 8 And they went up over the breadth of the earth and encompassed the camp of the saints, and the beloved city. 9 And fire from God came down out of heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was cast into the pool of fire and brimstone, where are also the beast 10 and the false prophet; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

The Last Judgment. 11 And I saw a great white throne and the one who sat upon it; from his face the earth and heaven fled away, and there was found no place for them. 12 And I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne, and scrolls were opened. And another scroll was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of those things that were written in the scrolls,* according to their works. 13 And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and death and hell gave up the dead that were in them; and they were judged each one, according to their works.

14 And hell and death were cast into the pool of fire. This is the second death, the pool of fire. 15 And if anyone was 19, 19: The true King is followed by his army; it is one army, united by one bond and under one King. The army of the beast is made up of diverse armies and united only by opposition to the good. The battle appears to be that of Armagedon.

19, 20: The false prophet: the second wild beast, that of chapter 13.

20, 2: A thousand years: not to be taken literally. It signifies that, after the destruction of hostile kings and the chaining of the dragon, the Church will enjoy a long era of peace. During this era Christ will reign over the souls of men, and Christians, through their influence over the world, will reign with Christ.

20, 5: The rest of the dead: sinners who will not enjoy any kind of resurrection until the end of time. The first resurrection: the spiritual reign of the faithful with Christ during the long period of a thousand years. The general resurrection, on the last day, is referred to in vv 12 and 13.

20, 7: Gog and Magog: after a thousand years the nations will attack the Church. These nations are designated as Gog and Magog. The names are taken from Ezechiel. In rabbinical books the names were used to signify the nations that would rise against the Messias. The names are to be understood figuratively and signify the earthly powers that will make the last onslaught against the Church.

20, 12: Out of those things that were written in the scrolls: i.e., according to their works, a frequent idea in the New Testament.

not found written in the book of life, he was cast into the pool of fire.

CHAPTER 21.

New Heaven and New Earth. 1 And [i] I saw a new heaven and a new* earth. For the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and the sea is no more. 2 And I saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. 3 And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, "Behold the dwelling of God with men, and he will dwell with them. And they will be his people, and God himself will be with them as their God. 4 And [j] God will wipe away every tear from their eyes. And death shall be no more; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain any more, for the former things have passed away."

The Promise. 5 And he who was sitting on the throne said, [k] "Behold, I make all things new!" And he said, "Write, for these words are trustworthy and true." 6 And he said to me, "It is done! I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. To him who thirsts I will give of the fountain of the water of life freely. 7 He who overcomes shall possess these things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my son. 8 But as for the cowardly and unbelieving, and abominable and murderers, and fornicators and sorcerers, and idolaters and all liars, their portion shall be in the pool that burns with fire and brimstone, which is the second death."

The Heavenly Jerusalem. 9 And there came one of the seven angels who had the bowls full of the seven last plagues; and he spoke with me, saying, "Come, I will show thee the bride, the spouse of the Lamb." 10 And he took me up in spirit to a mountain, great and high, and showed me the holy city Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, 11 having the glory of God. Its light was like to a precious stone, as it were a jasper-stone, clear as crystal. 12 And it had a wall great and high with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written on them, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel. 13 On the east are three gates, and on the north three gates, and on the south three gates, and on the west three gates. 14 And the wall of the city has twelve foundation stones, and on them twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

15 And he who spoke with me had a measure, a golden reed, to measure the city and the gates thereof and the wall. 16 And the city stands foursquare,* and its length is as great as its breadth; and he measured the city with the reed, to twelve thousand stadia: the length and the breadth and the height of it are equal. 17 And he measured its wall, of a hundred and forty-four cubits, man's measure, that is, angel's measure.* 18 And the material of its wall was jasper; but the city itself was pure gold, like pure glass. 19 And the foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with every precious stone. The first foundation, jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, agate; the fourth, emerald; 20 the fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolite; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, topaz; the tenth, chrysoprase; the eleventh, jacinth; the twelfth, amethyst. 21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; that is, each gate was of a single pearl. And the street of the city was pure gold, as it were transparent glass.

God and the Lamb Give It Light. 22 And I saw no temple therein. For the Lord God almighty and the Lamb are the temple thereof. 23 And the city [l] has no need of the sun or the moon to shine upon it. For the glory of God lights it up, and the Lamb is the lamp thereof. 24 And the nations shall walk by the light thereof; and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory and honor into it. 25 And [m] its gates shall not be shut by day; for there shall be no night there. 26 And they shall bring the glory and the honor of nations into it. 27 And there shall not enter into it anything defiled, nor he who practises abomination and falsehood, but those only who are written in the book of life of the Lamb.

CHAPTER 22.

The River and Tree of Life. 1 And he showed me a river of the water of life, clear as crystal, coming forth from the throne of God and of the Lamb. 2 In the midst of the city street, on both sides of the river, was the tree of life, bearing twelve fruits, yielding its fruit according to each month, and the leaves for the healing of the nations.

The Throne of God and of the Lamb. 3 And there shall be no more any accursed thing; but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him. 4 And they shall see his face and his name shall be on their foreheads. 5 And [n] night shall be no more, and they shall have no need of light of lamp, or light of sun, for the Lord God will shed light upon them; and they shall reign forever and ever.

EPILOGUE

Confirmation. 6 And he said to me, "These words are trustworthy and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent his angel to show to his servants what must shortly come to pass. 7 And behold, I come quickly!* Blessed is he who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book." 8 And I, John, am he who heard and saw these things. And when I heard and saw, I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed me these things. 9 And he said to me, "Thou must not do that. I am a fellow-servant of thine and of thy brethren the prophets, and of those who keep the words of this book. Worship God!"

Words of Christ. 10 And he said to me, "Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book; for the time is at hand. 11 He who does wrong, let him do wrong still; *and he who is filthy, let him be filthy still; and he who is just, let him be just still; and he who is holy, let him be hallowed still. 12 Behold, I come quickly! And my reward is with me, to render to each one according to his works. 13 I [o] am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end!" 14 Blessed are they who wash their robes that they may have the right to the tree of life, and that by the gates they may enter into the city. 15 Outside are the dogs, and the sorcerers, and the fornicators, and the murderers, and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practises falsehood.

Final Attestation. 16 "I, Jesus, have sent my angel to testify to you these things concerning the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright morning star." 17 And the Spirit* and the bride say, "Come!" And let him who hears say, "Come!" And let him who thirsts come; [p] and he who wishes, let him receive the water of life freely. 18 I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book. If anyone shall add to them, God will add unto him the plagues that are written in this book. 19 And if anyone shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God will take away his portion from the tree of life, and from the holy city, and from the things that are written in this book. 20 He who testifies to these things says, "It is true, I come quickly!"* Amen! Come, Lord Jesus! 21 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with all.* Amen.

n Is 60, 20.—o Ap 1, 8; 21, 6; Is 41, 4; 44, 6.—p Is 55, 1.

22, 7: I come quickly: these are the words of Christ and confirm the declaration of the last verse. He will come quickly but the precise time is not determined. "One day with the Lord is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day!" [2 Pt 3, 8].

22, 11f: No permission is given to continue in evil. The meaning is that we reap what we sow.

22, 17: The Spirit: the Holy Spirit. The bride: the Church of Christ.

22, 20: I come quickly: the words are Christ's, now repeated for the seventh time.

22, 21: The Greek Codex Sinaiticus has, "The grace of the Lord Jesus be with the saints."

GLOSSARY OF THE NEW TESTAMENT

AFRICA. Countries and places of Africa mentioned in the New Testament:

1) Egypt, where the Holy Family took refuge (Matt. 2, 13-19).
2) Cyrene, which had many Jewish inhabitants. Some of these contended in Jerusalem against Stephen, some heard Peter's first discourse on Pentecost; some were among the first preachers of the gospel at Antioch (Acts 2, 10; 6, 9; 11, 20; 13, 1).
3) Ethiopia, the treasurer of whose queen was baptized by Philip (Acts 8, 27).
4) Libya, lying between Egypt and Cyrene, also represented at the Pentecostal preaching of Peter (Acts 2, 10).
5) The Quicksands mentioned in Acts 27, 17 lay to the west of Cyrene on the north coast of Africa.

AGRIPPA (I and II). See HEROD.

ANCIENTS. The forebears of Israel, whose traditions were supposed to be the authority for the unwritten law (Matt. 5, 27-33; 15, 2).

ANNAS. See HIGH PRIEST.

ATTENDANTS. See RULERS.

ASIA. In the New Testament, used of the Roman Province of Asia, which included only the western third of what is now Asia Minor. Ephesus was its capital, and of its other important cities and districts many are mentioned in the New Testament. The evangelization of the province was accomplished by St. Paul on his third missionary journey, St. Peter addressed the churches of Asia, the Apocalypse conveys messages to each of its most important cities, the "seven churches."

BEELZEBUB. This name was given to Satan, the prince of devils, in the days of Christ. It was the name of a Philistine god (2 Kgs. 1, 2). The Greek MSS and many versions read "Beelzebul," i.e., Master of the infernal regions (Matt. 10, 25).

BURIAL. "Preparation for burial" (Mark 14, 8) included the washing and anointing of the body, then its envelopment in a shroud treated with spices. Burial was usually in a tomb hewn from the rock (Mark 14, 8; 15, 46; Acts 5, 6; 8, 2).

CÆSAR. See RULERS.

CAIPHAS. See HIGH PRIEST.

CALENDAR.

1) The civil day was reckoned from sunset to sunset, and hence Jewish Sabbaths and feasts began with the setting of the sun.
2) The hours of the day were twelve, beginning at about our 6:00 A.M. and ending at 6:00 P.M. The third, sixth, ninth and twelfth hours were specially sacred to prayer. The night was divided into four watches, the evening watch beginning at 6:00 P.M., the midnight watch at 9:00, "cockcrow" at 12:00, the morning watch at 3:00 A.M.
3) The week contained seven days ending in the Sabbath, or "Rest." The "first day of the week" became sacred for Christians because of Christ's Resurrection (John 20, 19; Acts 20, 7).
4) The year consisted of twelve lunar months of twenty-nine or thirty days—i.e., 354 days. The month began with the new moon, and this first day was observed as a holy day. To preserve the proper relation between the lunar and solar calendars, an extra lunar month was intercalated every two or three years. The first month, Nisan, always began on the new moon nearest to and preceding the vernal equinox, March 21.

CAPTAIN. See RULERS, TEMPLE.

CENTURION. See RULERS.

CHIEF PRIESTS. This title is applied to those members of the Jewish priesthood who excelled in dignity or authority. It would include: 1) the high priest and ex-high priests; 2) the priests of families from which high priests had been or usually were chosen; 3) the twenty-four priestly representatives in the Sanhedrin. They are most frequently mentioned in this last connection.

CHURCH. Etymologically meaning a "gathering," the term is applied in a particular way to the Christian group. In the present version, "Church" refers to the universal kingdom of God, "church" to the local organizations.

COHORT. One-sixth of a Roman legion, ideally numbering 1000 infantrymen and 120 horsemen. Of the cohorts stationed in Palestine, two are named: the Italian (Acts 10, 1) and the Augustan (Acts 27, 1). The term was used even when only a part of the cohort was in question (John 18, 3).

COINS. See MONEY.

DECAPOLIS. A confederation of ten or more pagan cities, each of which had its own suburban territory, lying mostly east of the Jordan, from Damascus on the north almost to the region of the Dead Sea. Some of our Lord's followers were from Decapolis, and He Himself passed through its confines (Mark 5, 20; 7, 31).

DENARIUS. See MONEY.

DESERT. In Palestine, a region with pasturage insufficient for other animals than goats and sheep, and occupied mostly by nomads. The "desert of Judea" stretched about 40 miles along the western shore of the Dead Sea and the Jordan. The desert of John the Baptist was part of this. Another tract of this, called Quarantania, is the traditional site of our Lord's forty days' fast. "Desert" and "desert place" often mean an uninhabited locality. Cf. Luke 15, 4.

DIDRACHMA. See MONEY.

DOCTOR OF THE LAW. See SCRIBES.

DRACHMA. See MONEY.

ELDERS. In ancient Israel this name was given to the leaders of the tribes. Under the kingdom it was borne by the king's councillors. In later times it designated the councillors of the princes and the high priest. In the New Testament it designates the principal men of the community, who formed part of the Sanhedrin. Cf. Matt. 16, 21; 21, 23; Luke 19, 47; 20, 1.

EUROPE. Of the countries of Europe mentioned in the New Testament, the principal are Achaia, Greece, Macedonia, Italy, all evangelized by St. Paul, though Italy had received the faith before his visit there. Other countries mentioned are Dalmatia, Illyricum, Spain, Scythia.

FASTS. The chief Jewish fast was that of the Day of Atonement (Acts 27, 9). Fasts were also observed on the second and fifth days of the week (Matt. 9, 14; Acts 10, 30). Our Lord taught that fasting must be sincere (Matt. 6, 16ff). Our Lord's great fast was foreshadowed by those of Moses (Ex. 24, 18) and Elias (1 Kgs. 19, 8). Fasting was observed by the Christians especially in connection with ordinations (Acts 13, 3).

FEASTS. In memory of the rest of God after the work of creation, the Jews kept as sacred the seventh day, or Sabbath, the seventh month, the seventh or Sabbatical year, and the fiftieth or Jubilee year.

The weekly Sabbath was observed by special sacrifices, by rest from servile work, and by attendance at religious instruction. Christ, as Lord of the Sabbath, could dispense from the Sabbatic rest (Matt. 12, 5; John 5, 17).

The first day of the month, the New Moon, was a holy day on which special offerings were made (Col. 2, 16).

The three major feasts of the year, on which male Israelites were required to go to the temple, were Passover, in March or April, Pentecost, fifty days later, and Tabernacles, towards the end of September.

Passover began on the evening of the fourteenth Nisan with the eating of the lamb. On the tenth of the month each Jew procured his lamb. On the fourteenth, after all leaven had been removed from the house, the lamb was sacrificed at the temple, and then brought home for cooking. It was eaten with herbs and unleavened bread in memory of the going out of Israel from Egypt (Heb. 11, 27-29). The following week was known as the days of the Unleavened Bread. The eve of the Sabbath within this week was the Preparation Day (Matt. 27, 62). During this week the first-fruits of the barley harvest were presented as the opening of the seven weeks of harvest. Servile work was forbidden on the fifteenth and twenty-first of the month, and each day special sacrifices were offered. Our Lord attended three such feasts during His public ministry.

Pentecost recalled the giving of the Law, and it offered in thanks the first-fruits of the wheat harvest. At Pentecost the Holy Spirit came upon the Apostles and the others gathered in the Cenacle.

Tabernacles was celebrated in the month of Tishri. The first day of that month was the feast of Trumpets, the civil New Year. On the tenth fell the Day of Atonement, a day of fast and of expiatory sacrifices, when the high priest entered the Holy of Holies to sprinkle blood. Cf. Rom. 3, 25; Heb. 2, 17; 4, 14-16; 5, 1-10; 6, 19f; 9, 11-15; 13, 10-12. From the fifteenth to the twenty-first of the month the feast of Tabernacles (Booths) was celebrated. It recalled the wanderings of the Israelites in the desert. This week marked the end of the harvest of fruit, wine and oil. The last day of the feast was the greatest (John 7, 2. 37). It was a day of rest on which were observed the ceremonies of water libation and the lighting of the four great golden candelabra (John 7, 37; 8, 12).

Two minor feasts were kept during the winter, Dedication and Purim (Lots). The former was held in our December, and was a joyous commemoration of the rededication of the temple by Judas Machabeus. It was also known as the feast of Lights, since during it the temple was illuminated (John 10, 22). Purim, held at the close of winter, recalled the rescue of the Jews by Esther when Aman cast lots to determine the day on which they should be destroyed.

FELIX. See RULERS.

GALILEE. The most northerly region of Palestine and the one most favored by nature. Among its flourishing towns were Cana, Corozain, Nazareth, Capharnaum, Bethsaida, Tiberias. The population was predominantly Jewish, but there was a noticeable Galilean dialect (Matt. 26, 73). The Galileans were very loyal to their religion and nation, though regarded by the Judeans as ignorant and lawless (John 7, 41; Mark 14, 70). Our Lord was reared in Galilee, He spent most of His time preaching there, and all but one of His Apostles were from Galilee.

GALILEE, LAKE OF. A lake which formed the eastern boundary of Galilee. It was also called the Sea of Genesareth, from the plain on its northwest corner, and the Lake of Tiberias, from the city of this name, the residence of Herod Antipas. The lake is about thirteen miles long and six broad.

GENTILES. All non-Israelites were thus designated. The stricter Jews, such as the Pharisees, considered all Gentiles as sinners, and would have nothing to do with them.

GOLD PIECE. See MONEY.

HEROD. The Herodian family, though Jewish in religion, was Idumean in origin. Herod "the Great" (B.C. 62 to 4) was appointed by Rome as king of Judea in B.C. 40, to the exclusion of the native Asmonean line. He rebuilt the temple, and was in general an efficient ruler, but his cruelties made him odious. He slaughtered the infants at Bethlehem (Matt. 2, 16-18). Four of his children are mentioned in the New Testament: Archelaus, Antipas and two named Philip.

Archelaus, ethnarch of Judea (4 B.C.-6 A.D.), was deposed on account of his cruelty and exiled to Vienne in Gaul.

Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee and Perea, was deposed in 39 A.D. He divorced his wife, the daughter of King Aretas, and married Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip, who resided in Rome. He imprisoned and later beheaded John the Baptist (Matt. 14, 1ff). He was present in Jerusalem at the time of our Lord's trial (Luke 23, 7-15).

Philip, tetrarch of Trachonitis, unlike his brothers, was a moderate and peaceful ruler.

Two other descendants of Herod are also mentioned in the New Testament. Herod Agrippa I, grandson of Herod the Great, was king of all Palestine from 41 to 44 A.D. He was a strict observer of Judaism, and a persecutor of Christianity (Acts 12, 1ff). His death is mentioned in Acts 12, 23. His son, Agrippa II, ruled in Trachonitis until his death in 100 A.D. This Agrippa and his sister Bernice heard St. Paul's defense (Acts 25f). Another sister, Drusilla, was married to the procurator Felix (Acts 24, 24).

HERODIANS. These were partisans and courtiers of the reigning dynasty of the Herods. Though they were Jews in religion, their spirit was Gentile. They conspired with their enemies the Pharisees against Christ (Matt. 22, 16).

HIGH PRIEST. The chief of the sacred ministers among the Jews. He was supreme in religious matters, and to him was reserved the exclusive right of offering the great sacrifice of expiation and of entering the Holy of Holies (Heb. 9, 7). Through him at times God announced things to come (John 11, 51). He was a member of the Sanhedrin and ordinarily presided over its deliberations (Matt. 26, 57; Acts 4, 5f; 5, 27; etc.). Induction into this high priesthood was by anointing or by investiture in the precious robes of the office. The dignity descended at first by primogeniture from Aaron and the elder branch of Aaron's family and was held for life. But in the days of Christ the high priests were appointed and removed at will by the Herods and the Roman procurators. During the lifetime of our Lord some fifteen different individuals held the office, the most noted of whom were Annas (6-15 A.D.) and his son-in-law Caiphas (18-36 A.D.). Annas lived to see four of his sons succeed him to the office, and he himself remained the leader of the Sadducean faction long after he left the office. Between the death of Christ and the destruction of Jerusalem there were fourteen more high priests, among whom Ananias (47-59 A.D.) is mentioned in the New Testament. Annas and Caiphas, often named together, judged Christ (John 18, 13. 24), Peter and John (Acts 4, 6), then all the Apostles (Acts 5, 17ff) and St. Stephen (Acts 6, 12ff), while Ananias acted against Paul (Acts 23, 2; 24, 1).

HOUR. See CALENDAR.

IDUMEA. In New Testament times a district to the south and east of Judea occupied by the descendants of the ancient Edomites (Mark 3, 8). It formed part of the jurisdiction of Archelaus, and later of the Roman Province of Judea.

JERUSALEM. The chief city of Palestine and the religious center of Judaism in the time of Christ. Situated on a plateau, its walls looked down into deep ravines, the Cedron on the east and the Valley of Hinnom on the south and west. Within the walls the city was divided by the Valley of the Tyropœan, and sloped gradually towards the southeast.

The northeastern part of the city rested on Mount Moriah and was occupied chiefly by the temple and the fortress Antonia. North of the temple were the Sheep Gate and the Pool Bethsaida (John 5, 2). The Golden Gate, in the eastern wall of the city, opened on the road to Gethsemani, Mount Olivet, Bethany and Jericho. On its western side the temple had a bridge that led over the Tyropœan to the Upper City. The southeastern section of the city was the ancient city of David, whose walls contained the tower of Siloe (Luke 13, 4) and the various gates that led to the fountains outside the walls. This part of the city was inhabited largely by priests. The southwestern section of the city contained the business districts, the palaces of Annas and Caiphas, of Herod and of the Asmoneans. To the east of it was the Pool of Siloe (John 9, 7), and to the south the Valley of Hinnom (a place for refuse) and Haceldama, the Field of Blood (Matt. 27, 8; Acts 1, 19).

Another section of the city lay to the northwest, across from the temple. Beyond its walls were fields, gardens and places of burial. The Ephraim Gate which opened here on the highway to Jaffa was not far from the place of the Crucifixion, which lay just outside the city (John 19, 17-20; Heb. 13, 12).

JORDAN. The foremost river of Palestine. From the Lebanons to the Dead Sea it covers a distance of 125 miles, though with its meanderings the stream itself is more than double that. The width varies from 80 to 150 feet, and the depth in summer from 4 to 12 feet. The river is generally hidden by a thick growth of willow. There are many fords which allow passage from the one bank to the other.

JUDEA. The most southern of the three districts of Palestine west of the Jordan. Together with Samaria and Idumea it formed the Roman Province of Judea. The capital was Jerusalem, but the seat of government of the Roman procurator was Cæsarea (Acts 23, 33). Other places within the confines of Judea were: Antipatris, Arimathea, Azotus, Bethany, Bethlehem, Bethphage, Emmaus, Ephrem, Gaza, Jericho. From its high, rocky plateau it sloped towards the east through the Judean desert, and towards the west through hills that led down to the Philistine plain. Some places east of the Jordan may have belonged to Judea (Matt. 19, 1).

LAW. The Law, respected by all Jews as from God, consisted of the five books of Moses. These formed the basis of the Scripture reading and instruction in the synagogue services. In addition the Pharisees observed a traditional law, the Mishna, which they taught had also its author in Moses. Our Lord observed the Mosaic Law and promulgated for His followers its essential element, the Ten Commandments. He criticized the Pharisees for their neglect of it in favor of their traditions.

LAWYERS. See SCRIBES.

LEAVEN. An agent used as yeast in the making of bread. It was forbidden during the octave of the Passover. Our Lord used the term metaphorically to designate the hypocrisy of the Pharisees and Herod Antipas (Mark 8, 15; Luke 12, 1).

LEVITES. Sacred ministers of lowest rank among the Jews. Unlike the priests, they were members of the tribe of Levi who did not belong to the house of Aaron. While on duty they wore a distinctive linen dress, but they entered only the inner court and not the Holy Place of the temple. The higher Levites assisted the officiating priests, others had charge of the music during the services, and still others acted as doorkeepers and overseers of the temple. Barnabas, the companion of Paul, had been a Levite (Acts 4, 36).

MEASURE. That mentioned in John 2, 6 is the Hebrew bath, equivalent to 44.6 quarts. St. Luke (16, 6f) mentions also the kor, which was ten times the bath.

MITE. See MONEY.

MONEY. In the time of our Lord the coins current in Palestine were Roman, Greek, Syrian and Jewish. The Jews might issue coins only in bronze.

1) Large sums were expressed in talents and mnas. The talent equalled about $1920.00 in United States currency. The mna was one-sixtieth of a talent, or about $32.00. The "gold pieces" of Luke 19, 13ff were mnas.

2) Silver coins mentioned in the New Testament are: the Syrian stater (51 cents), the Roman denarius (about 17 cents), the Greek drachme, equivalent to the denarius. The stater was accepted as equal to the Jewish shekel, one-fiftieth of a mna (about 64 cents), the temple tax for two persons (Matt. 17, 26). It was known as the argurion, or piece of silver, as in the price of Judas' treason (Matt. 26, 15). The denarius was the usual day's wage for a laborer in the field, and it was the coin of the tribute to Rome (Matt. 20, 2; 22, 19).

3) Bronze coins referred to are: the Roman assarion (one cent) and quadrans (one-fourth of a cent), the Jewish perutah or lepton (one-eighth of a cent), the coin of the "widow's mite" (Matt. 10, 29; 5, 26; Mark 12, 42).

It should be remembered that the coin values here given are only approximate, and that the purchasing power of money was much greater in ancient times than today.

OFFICER. See RULERS.

PALESTINE. The chief scene of New Testament history lay between Syria on the north, the Arabian desert on the east, the desert of Sinai to the south, the Mediterranean to the west. It measured some 150 miles from north to south, and was about 80 miles wide. The country is divided into two unequal parts by the Jordan, which flows from Lebanon in the north to the Dead Sea in the south. The territory west of the Jordan is again divided by a mountain range which descends abruptly to the Jordan, but gradually to the coastal plain of the Mediterranean. This range is broken only by the Valley of Esdrælon, and its loftiest peak does not reach 4000 feet above sea level.

The country east of the Jordan is a tableland rising very steeply from the Jordan Valley and descending imperceptibly into the desert beyond. This plateau is flat in the north and the south, but its central portion rises at times to an elevation of more than 4000 feet. This country is generally more fertile than that to the west.

In the days of Christ the territory west of the river was divided into: Galilee in the north, with Phœnicia on its west, and on the east, beyond the Jordan, Iturea, Abilene and Trachonitis; in the center, Samaria; Judea and Idumea in the south. Across the Jordan from these lay Perea.

Politically, during the first century of our era, the whole of this country was subject to the Roman Empire, but it underwent various changes of administration. In the beginning there was a united kingdom subject to Herod the Great (Matt. 2, 1). Next the kingdom was divided into the ethnarchy of Judea, Idumea and Samaria, and the three tetrarchies of Galilee-Perea, Trachonitis-Iturea and Abilene, 4 B.C. to 6 A.D. (Matt. 2, 22; Luke 3, 1). From A.D. 6 to 41, the ethnarchy was annexed to the Province of Syria and governed by a procurator. The tetrarchies continued as before. From A.D. 41 to 44, the united kingdom of Palestine was restored under the rule of Agrippa I (Acts 12, 1). With his death the whole country was reduced to the condition of a Roman Province (Acts 23, 26; 24, 27), though Agrippa II became king of Trachonitis, Iturea and Abilene in 53 A.D. (Acts 25).

PARABLE. A form of simile based on conditions known to the people and used for the purpose of teaching higher truths. Christ employed parables generally in instructing His hearers in the elevated truths of His kingdom (Matt. 13).

PEREA. The "country beyond the Jordan" (Matt. 4, 15; 19, 1; John 1, 28; etc.). Our Lord ministered in Perea (Mark 10, 1; John 10, 40), and the Baptist was imprisoned and beheaded there in the fortress of Machærus near the eastern side of the Dead Sea. During our Lord's public life Perea, like Galilee, was subject to Herod Antipas.

PHARISEES. A religious sect of the Jews that numbered about 6000 in the time of Christ. Originating in the days of the Greek conquest of Palestine, they sought above all to preserve the Jews from the contamination of foreign religions, and to this end insisted upon strict separation from the Gentiles. They insisted also on strict loyalty to the Scriptures and to the traditions of the rabbis. Among many Pharisaic hedges about the Law, ceremonial purity and payment of religious dues were emphasized. In doctrine the Pharisees were inclined to fatalism, but on the other hand they strongly upheld the resurrection and the future life. By the time of Christ their primitive zeal had degenerated into fanaticism and hypocrisy. They took a leading part in the opposition to Christ, and He scathingly rebuked their insincerity (Matt. 23, 25; Luke 11, 39; 18, 9-14). That they were not all bad is evidenced by such men as Gamaliel (Acts 5, 34).

PONTIUS PILATE. See RULERS.

PORCIUS FESTUS. See RULERS.

PRÆTORIUM. The residence of a prætor, or his military headquarters, where he had his guard and held court. The procurators of Judea in the time of Christ had their prætorium at Cæsarea, in the palace of Herod (Acts 23, 35). But when in Jerusalem they might reside in any one of several buildings, Herod's castle, the palace of the Asmoneans, the fortress called Antonia, after Mark Antony, where the garrison of Jerusalem was stationed. Christian tradition, traceable to the fourth century, makes the Antonia the prætorium where Christ was tried.

PRESBYTERS. The present version so designates the elders of the various Christian churches. The term includes all those who were in authority in the early Christian communities, both priests and bishops.

PRIESTS, JEWISH. Sacred ministers, whose duty it was to offer sacrifice at the altar of holocausts, and to enter morning and evening into the Holy Place to burn incense at the golden altar (Heb. 7, 27; 10, 11). They also had care of the loaves of proposition (Matt. 12, 4) and certified the cure of lepers (Luke 17, 13). They were divided into twenty-four classes, each of which in turn officiated for a week at the temple (Luke 1, 5). During the three great feasts all the classes ministered together. Their dress comprised a long linen tunic, ornamented sash and turban. The priesthood was hereditary, by descent from the tribe of Levi through the younger branch of Aaron's family (Heb. 7, 5). For their support the priests received tithes and other offerings.

PROCONSUL. See RULERS.

PROCURATOR. See RULERS.

PROPHETS. When capitalized this term refers to the section of the Jewish canon of the Scriptures which bore this name. An excerpt from the Prophets was read at each synagogue service (Matt. 5, 17).

PUBLICANS. Management of imperial taxation was farmed by the government to the highest bidders, who in turn entrusted the collection in the provinces to native agents by whom the privilege had been purchased with advance payments. These agents are the "publicans." They were often guilty of merciless extortion, and were universally hated as plunderers of their own people. Among the Jews they were also considered as disloyal to their religion, since they cooperated with Gentiles and exacted tribute from the race that God had made free (John 8, 33; Matt. 22, 17). Like the Baptist, our Lord condemned the injustice of the publicans, but did not reject those who were sincerely repentant (Matt. 5, 46; 21, 31f). Two publicans are distinguished in the Gospels, Zacchæus (Luke 19, 2) and Matthew (Matt. 10, 3), who became an Apostle and evangelist.

RULERS. In the civil order, Palestine was subject to the Roman Empire. The Empire was divided into provinces ruled by Roman governors, and kingdoms presided over by native princes. The provinces were of two classes: the senatorial, better established, and ruled by proconsuls, the imperial where military operations were necessary. Two proconsuls are mentioned in the New Testament: Sergius Paulus (Acts 13) and Gallio (Acts 18).

The imperial provinces were ruled by governors appointed by the emperor. These were known as prefects (as in Egypt), legates (as in Syria), and procurators (as in Judea). Their power was military, judicial and administrative. The procurator also had direct charge of the taxes for the emperor. The procurators ranked last among these governors, their territories being least settled. This was the rank of Pontius Pilate (Luke 3, 10), of Felix (Acts 23, 26) and of Porcius Festus (Acts 24, 27).

Three of the emperors are mentioned in the New Testament: Cæsar Augustus (31 B.C. to 14 A.D., Luke 2, 1), Tiberius Cæsar (14 to 37 A.D., Luke 3, 1), Claudius (41 to 54 A.D., Acts 11, 28). In Acts other minor officials in the provinces are referred to (Acts 16, 20; 19, 35). Of the military officers, the tribune (in charge of a cohort) and centurions (in charge ideally of 100) are mentioned (John 18, 12; Acts 21, 31; Matt. 8, 5; Mark 15, 39; etc.). The more notable of these are Cornelius (Acts 10), Julius (Acts 27), Claudius Lysias (Acts 21, 31; 23, 26).

In the civil order also, Palestine was ruled by the Herods (see HEROD).

In the civil-religious order, because of the theocratic character of the Jewish Law, the Sanhedrin and its members are spoken of as rulers. The civil jurisdiction of the Sanhedrin at Jerusalem, from 6 to 41 A.D., reached to all parts of Judea; its religious jurisdiction reached to all Jews, wherever they resided. The elders, the Scribes and the priests are in this sense given the title of rulers (John 3, 1; 7, 32; Acts 4, 5). In the temple the high priest had peculiar authority, and beneath him were "captains and officers" (Luke 22, 52; Acts 5, 26), and also "attendants" (John 7, 45; 18, 12. 22). The leading men of the Jewish communities in the Diaspora are also termed rulers (Acts 14, 5).

SABBATH. See FEASTS.

SACRIFICE. The supreme form of divine worship, by which some creature is offered to God and used in adoration as an acknowledgment of His infinite majesty and the creature's subjection. True sacrifices were offered in the Old Law (Heb. 9, 1ff), but they were only preparations for the perfect sacrifice of Christ on the cross (Heb. 9, 11)and on the altar (Heb. 13, 10).

SADDUCEES. A religious sect of the Jews, less numerous than their rivals the Pharisees, but very influential on account of the many noble and wealthy persons who belonged to their ranks (Acts 4, 1; 5, 17). They set aside traditions and even rejected truths taught in the Sacred Books themselves. They insisted upon human free will, but denied immortality, the resurrection and the existence of angels (Matt. 22, 23; Mark 12, 18; Luke 20, 27; Acts 23, 8). They were denounced by the Baptist (Matt. 3, 7) and by our Lord (Matt. 16, 6). Though less prominent in their opposition to Christ than the Pharisees, they nevertheless sought to entrap Him (Matt. 16, 1; 22, 34), and through their representatives joined in His condemnation by the Sanhedrin. They also strongly opposed the early Church because the Apostles preached of our Lord's Resurrection (Acts 4, 1f; etc.).

SAINTS. A common term in the Old Testament to designate those who belong to God, it was applied in the New Testament to those who believed in Christ. It occurs first in Acts 9, 13, and is frequent in the writings of St. Paul. Those are saints who are separated from other men, are attached to the glorious Christ, and are sanctified by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

SAMARIA. The central district of Palestine west of the Jordan. It formed part of the ethnarchy of Archelaus, and later of the Roman Province of Judea. Of its cities and places mention is made in the New Testament of Samaria (Sebaste), Sichar, Jacob's well and Mount Garizim (John 4).

SAMARITANS. The inhabitants of Samaria were a mixed race, descended from intermarriage of Israelites and Assyrian colonists. The enmity between the Jews and the Samaritans was so great that travellers between Galilee and Judea often had to cross the Jordan into Perea for safety. Pilate was deposed because of his severity to the Samaritans. In various uprisings this race was almost exterminated, and only a small remnant survives today.

In religion the Samaritans acknowledged the Pentateuch, Josue and Judges, but not the additional revelation or Jewish traditional doctrine. They looked for the Messias who would teach all truth (John 4, 25f). In practice they worshipped the same God as the Jews, and in such matters as Sabbaths and feasts, circumcision and worship, they did not dissent. But though vying with the Jews in the strict observance of Mosaic regulations, they disowned the Jerusalem temple and priesthood. The rival sanctuary of Garizim they revered as their holy place (John 4, 20). Our Lord passed through their country more than once, and preached and worked miracles among the people. He also spoke well of them (Luke 10, 30-37), defended them (Luke 9, 51-56), and commanded that the gospel be preached to them. This was done with success, and a Christian community was early formed among the Samaritans (Acts 8, 4-17; 9, 31; 15, 3).

SANHEDRIN. Literally session, a council, national or local, endowed with authority to pass on cases ecclesiastical or civil.

1) The national Sanhedrin, or Great Council, of the Jews met at Jerusalem, usually in the temple, but occasionally in the house of the high priest. The high priest himself seems to have presided as a rule. The full membership was seventy-two, representing equally the three groups of priests, Scribes and elders. The twenty-four priests are thought to have been taken one each from the twenty-four priestly classes. This council took cognizance of grave matters of a doctrinal, judicial or administrative character affecting the Jewish religion and nation. The assembly sat in a semicircle, the president at the center, and all faced the sanctuary as a reminder that justice must be observed. The Romans acknowledged the decrees of the Sanhedrin, and lictors attended the meetings to fulfill the orders of the judges (Matt. 26, 58). Sentence of death, however, was reserved to the Roman authority (John 18, 31).

2) Local tribunals, subordinate to the supreme Sanhedrin, were found in the towns of Palestine. Their membership varied from three to twenty-three, according to the size of the male population of the place. The "judgment" (Matt. 5, 22) probably refers to one of these lower tribunals.

SCRIBES. Literally this title means a writer, but in the New Testament the reference is to the learned class among the Jews, the official authorities on the written Law and oral traditions. One who had made successful studies became a Scribe at the age of thirty by receiving imposition of hands with the delivery of a tablet and key. Probably we should distinguish various classes among the Scribes: 1) the doctors, or rabbis, who held classes and taught in the temple (Luke 2, 46; 5, 17; Acts 5, 34; 1 Tim. 1, 7); 2) the lawyers, who were specially trained to plead in court on matters of Jewish law (Matt. 22, 35; Mark 12, 28; 3) the judges, who sat in the national Sanhedrin or local tribunals as members of the court (Mark 14, 53).

As the function of the priests was ritualistic, that of the Scribes was doctrinal. These latter were interpreters of the Scriptures (Matt. 2, 4; 17, 10; Mark 12, 35), but our Lord condemned them for their burdensome additions to the divine Law (Matt. 23). They taught by quoting the celebrated doctors of the past (Mark 1, 22). In our Lord's day the chief rival schools among the Scribes were those of the liberal Hillel and the severe Shammai. Generally the Scribes opposed the Sadducees (Luke 20, 39) and upheld the Pharisees (Mark 7, 1ff). Like the Pharisees, the Scribes were noted for hypocrisy, pride and contradiction of Christ (Matt. 23, 2ff; Mark 12, 39-40; Luke 20, 46; Matt. 9, 3). But there were noble and sincere characters among them (Matt. 8, 19), especially Nicodemus and Gamaliel (John 3; Acts 5, 34).

SYNAGOGUES. Minor places of religious assembly among the Jews, used also as schools, libraries and halls of judgment. The central place of worship was the temple, the one national sanctuary and the only place of sacrifice. The synagogue served local communities or separate congregations for less solemn religious functions. Every considerable Jewish community, whether in or out of Palestine, had at least one synagogue, sometimes built by devout Gentiles (Luke 7, 5). In Jerusalem, it is said, there were as many as 480 synagogues, some of them Hellenistic (Acts 6, 9; 24, 12). The building, commonly rectangular, was erected on the plan of the temple. There was a gallery reserved for women, another space for men, and the worshippers faced towards Jerusalem and the Holy of Holies. In front was a platform on which stood the Holy Ark containing the Scriptures and an eight-branch candlestick burning before it. Nearest the platform were the chief seats, where sat the leading men facing the congregation (Matt. 23, 6; Mark 12, 39; Luke 11, 43; 20, 46). Among these leading men were the ruler of the synagogue and the elders, and various functionaries whom they appointed.

1) The ruler of the synagogue was the chief elder. He presided at the services (Mark 5, 22; Acts 13, 15). Jairus (Luke 8, 41ff), Crispus (Acts 18, 8) and Sosthenes (Acts 18, 17) are such rulers mentioned in the New Testament.
2) The elders assisted at all the services, and along with the ruler of the synagogue they formed the local sanhedrin, which had the power to hear cases (Luke 12, 11), to excommunicate (John 9, 22; 16, 2), to scourge (Matt. 10, 17; 23, 34), to send for trial to Jerusalem (Acts 9, 2).
3) The functionaries included the reader, an elder selected for each service by the ruler; the interpreter, who explained in the popular language the texts read in Hebrew; the attendant, frequently the local schoolmaster, who had charge of the sacred rolls (Luke 4, 20).

The synagogue services were held chiefly on the Sabbath. They had two parts: 1) The liturgical part was conducted by the reader of the day, who recited prayers, some on a platform in the middle of the synagogue, others before the Ark with his back towards the people. If a priest was present, he concluded the liturgy with a blessing. 2) The instruction followed, and consisted of readings from the Law and the Prophets, followed by an interpretation and sermon (Acts 13, 15; 15, 21). The ruler of the synagogue might grant permission to members of the congregation to speak, and sometimes he called on one present to address the congregation. Our Lord often spoke in synagogues. Within their walls some of His miracles were performed and memorable discourses delivered. St. Stephen (Acts 6, 9) and St. Paul (Acts 9, 20; etc.) preached Christ in synagogues.

The congregation joined in the services in various ways. They took part in the prayers (Matt. 6, 5), raised and distributed alms (Matt. 6, 2), and discussed remarks made by the speakers (Acts 6, 9; 17, 17). The service ended with a prayer of thanksgiving, after which arrangements might be made for the next Sabbath (Acts 13, 42f).

SYRIA. The region between Asia Minor to the north and Palestine to the south, whose chief cities were Damascus and Antioch. A Roman Province to which Palestine was subordinated (Luke 2, 2) and with which Cilicia of Asia Minor was closely related (Acts 15, 41; Gal. 1, 21).

TEMPLE. The sacred place of worship on Mount Moriah, including all buildings and courts. The first temple was built by Solomon, in 967 to 964 B.C., but was destroyed by the Chaldeans in 586 B.C. The second was erected by Zorobabel in 515 B.C., but was profaned in 167 B.C. by the Syrians. Herod the Great began a magnificent restoration of this temple. It is his structure that is the temple referred to in the time of our Lord. In a more restricted sense, the term applies only to the "House" in which were the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies, or to the immediate precincts of this "House." The space covered by the temple and its courts was about 585 by 610 feet.

The temple proper (Naos) measured 30 feet north to south, and 90 feet east to west. The innermost part of this building was the Holy of Holies, set apart from the outer room, the Holy Place, by a double curtain (Matt. 27, 51). The Holy of Holies contained the stone on which once rested the Ark of the Covenant. It was entered once a year by the high priest (Heb. 9, 3-5). The Holy Place had within it the golden altar of incense (Luke 1, 11), and the table of loaves (Matt. 12, 4). About the Naos ran an uncovered court reserved to the priests. In front of the entrance to the Holy Place stood the altar of holocausts (Mark 14, 12). The lay Israelite might approach this altar only to bring his sacrifice to the priests (Matt. 5, 23).

Outside this court of the priests, towards the east, was the court of the Israelites, where the laity could assist at the services. Beyond this was an outer court known as the court of the women, since to it women were admitted. This court was surrounded by rooms, one of which was the treasury with thirteen boxes for contributions (Luke 21, 1ff). To these courts only Jews were admitted, inscriptions warning none-Jews not to enter under pain of death (Acts 21, 28). By a staircase of fifteen steps one descended to the outer court which was known as that of the Gentiles. This outside court was surrounded by walls with high towers. The court of the Gentiles was open to all, and it was used for buying and selling (Mark 11, 15). Against the walls of this court on the interior were porches or colonnades where the people listened to religious teachers (Luke 2, 46; Matt. 26, 55). The porch attached to the eastern wall was known as Solomon's (John 10, 23; Acts 3, 11; 5, 12). At its northwestern corner this court was adjacent to the fortress Antonia, whose garrison was ready to keep order among the crowds (Acts 21, 30ff). But the Jews had also their own temple police, with captains and officers, who patrolled the whole area day and night (Luke 22, 52; Acts 4, 1).

The veneration of the Jews for the temple was very great (Matt. 23, 16; Acts 6, 13f). Even the casual spectator would be impressed by the majesty of this sanctuary. The gates were adorned with gold and silver, one of them meriting the name Beautiful (Acts 3, 2). The view of the temple from Mount Olivet was especially impressive. In the siege of Jerusalem in A.D. 70 the temple was burned to the ground. This passing of Israel's sanctuary had been predicted by our Lord some forty years before (Matt. 24, 2; Mark 13, 2; Luke 21, 6).

TIME, RECKONING OF. See CALENDAR.

TITHES. The ancient method, still valid in the time of our Lord, prescribed for the support of the sacred ministers. One-tenth of the yield of all crops and of the increase of all animals had to be contributed by the Israelites for this purpose (Luke 18, 12).

TRIBUNE. See RULERS.

TYRE AND SIDON. The ancient Phœnician seaports, famed for wealth and commerce. Our Lord went to this district after the first multiplication of the loaves and fishes, and worked a miracle for a Phœnician woman. St. Paul landed at Tyre and was greeted by the Christian community (Acts 21, 3).

THE HOLY LAND

The Land of the Bible

St. Jerome, one of the earliest and greatest students of the Holy Scriptures, remarked that as "we have a better understanding of the Greek historians when we have seen Athens...(so) we have a better comprehension of Sacred Scripture when we have seen Judea with our own eyes and contemplated the ruins of its ancient cities." These words are verified by every serious student of the Bible who has visited the Holy Land and walked the very places on which our Lord and His disciples stood.

The Sacred Texts come to life under the influence of the Holy Land. The most apparently insignificant details of the human authors are corroborated by visible evidence and take on new meanings. Turns of phrase, expressive but uncommon images and the entire text itself are more easily understood and at times receive different nuances.

Most of all, a unique religious experience is felt. To visit the very places where our Lord was born and lived, to see what He saw and where He went in the mornings, the evenings and the swift days of His earthly life, effectuates a more intimate union with Him in all that He said and did. The pilgrim spans the centuries and follows Christ in the eventful days of His Life, re-living everything and forgetting nothing. At the end of his pilgrimage, He comes away filled with awe, humility and happiness, with a deeper understanding, and greater faith, hope and love.

However, many persons through no fault of their own never do visit the Holy Places, and thus miss this special experience and love for Scripture that such a pilgrimage imparts. It is for these persons that the following section on the Holy Land is intended. It aims to provide them with the opportunity to view the sacred places at their leisure through the secondary medium of excellent photographs.

To this end, the most up-to-date photographs have been used. Each picture has been carefully selected for its instructive and inspirational content as well as for its photographic quality. In this way, it is hoped that those who cannot journey to the Land of Christ in person will nevertheless be able to visit it in spirit and profit in some way from its salutary influence.

We hope that the magnificent photographs of sacred shrines and traditional sites identifying actual places traversed by the Son of God while on earth will bring the Bible texts to life for all who view them. May these photographs help to inculcate the true spirit of the Scriptures and thus contribute to the magnificent Biblical revival that has made our age truly the Age of the Bible.
